- After the internal investigation, Officer 16 received her 2019 performance review, in which Lt. Wagner rated her highly in most areas, with scores she recalled being mostly 4s and 5s. However, during the review, she was told, "This is where we are at – we're concerned about your judgment." This comment deeply unsettled Officer 16, shaking her confidence, and it continues to affect her to this day.
  At that time, she was given an ultimatum: either return to patrol willingly or we will force you to go back. Officer 16 expressed frustration, noting that she had been requesting to return to patrol for months. She agreed to the reassignment but asked if she could be placed on a day shift, as she had a newborn at home. Throughout the review, she felt that Lt. Wagner was condescending toward her.
  Disturbed by the comment questioning her judgment, Officer 16 became emotionally upset and asked to take the rest of the day off, citing her mental state. She was granted the remainder of the day off. Officer 16 also mentioned that she felt Lt. Wagner was unsupportive of women in law enforcement, which added to her frustration. This is the second or third time this comment has been made while talking with female officers, both current and previous.
- Officer 16 went back to patrol day shift where she had Sgt. Lackey as her direct supervisor. After Chief Klug took over in 2020, Sgt. Lackey was promoted to Lt – over Sgts. Noyes and Baubeneck, both of whom she said were great. Where did Lackey rank on the promo board vs. Noyes and Baubeneck?

- In January of 2020 officer 16 received an email from Chief Olsen as he was retiring. In the email Chief Olsen spoke about how good of an officer she was and that'd she'd be great for the next Chief.
- The selection process for the next Chief began and officer 16 recalled someone from the city coming in and asking officers who would be their choice for the new Chief – Cpt. Klug or someone from outside the department. Officer 16 responded that she'd prefer someone from outside the department and she noted that most of the other officers responded the same way. Officers told the city official "Klug and Sundheim would wreck the department." Klug was promoted to Chief and she said moral in the department plummeted.
- Officer 16 again recognized she was struggling. She was unable to shake the 'concerned about your judgement' comment and she was still having trouble with her baby (sleeping etc). During one afternoon shift – altered duty (she'd been moved to afternoons because she'd failed her handgun qualifications) Lt. Lackey said something to her about something she'd done (officer 16 admitted – she'd earned the talking to) but Lt. Lackey was very harsh to her and this upset her very much. Sgt. Foley was a good friend of officer 16's within the department and he tried to 'talk her down' from her emotional state.
- Shortly after this incident, officer 16 was called into Chief Klug's office – where Cpt. Sundheim and Lt. Lackey were in attendance as well. Chief Klug's first words were "we don't want you to feel ganged up on." They remediated officer 16 to handgun training with Officer 14. Officer 16 stated that officer 14 was not a good trainer for her and she continued to struggle with her handgun qualifications.
- Afterward, Sgt. Foley spoke with Officer 16 regarding body cam footage that had surfaced during a review. Although Officer 16 didn't specify what the footage contained, she expressed how deeply it upset her, stating that she felt "targeted." In her distress, she turned in her badge and name plate but failed to surrender her firearm.
  At this point, Officer 16 shared that she had been struggling mentally for some time and was contemplating suicide. She went to the briefing room and called her husband, telling him she was going to end her life. Although external factors likely contributed to her mental state, the way Officer 16 was treated at the department must be critically examined. It seems this type of mental stress was being missed at the department.
  Her husband reminded her of a suicide victim she had once saved, and how grateful that person was to Officer 16 for intervening. Reflecting on that moment, she credits her husband with saving her life that day. She further shared how trapped she felt working at the department, especially with a newborn at home and the financial burden of bills. The idea of taking a pay cut to transfer to another department wasn't an option. She also reiterated the ongoing frustration caused by the lack of communication from Chief Klug and Captain Sundheim.
- Between April and May of 2020, during the height of the COVID pandemic, Officer 16 was informed that her stepfather had been diagnosed with terminal cancer. Chief Klug then told her she would not be permitted to visit her stepfather in his final days or attend his funeral. Time passed, and while on duty one afternoon, Officer 16 received a text from her mother, notifying her that her stepfather had passed away. She was on a call with a fellow officer at the time. After completing the call, she informed her colleague that she needed to call her mother and explained the reason. After speaking with her mother, she texted her husband to let him know about her stepfather's death. Upon returning to the department, she informed her sergeants of the situation before heading back out on patrol to finish the remaining six hours of her shift.

Shortly thereafter, Officer 16 was called back to the station for a meeting with Chief Klug, Captain Sundheim, and Sgt. Noyes, who expressed concern for her well-being. Officer 16 found this odd, given that they had already denied her the ability to attend the funeral. She assured them she was fine and asked to return to her patrol duties to finish her shift

- A few weeks go by and officer 16 is called in to speak with Chief Klug again. This meeting is about her suicidal comments a few months back. Chief Klug asks officer 16 if she is ok and she responds with "No, I haven't been ok since 2019. I feel targeted by certain officers (Sundheim, Wagner and Lackey) within the department and I'm still having trouble with things going on outside of work." Chief Klug refers her for counseling with Feely and puts officer 16 on administrative leave. During her counseling sessions, officer 16 and Feely discuss her leaving the department. Officer 16 mentioned that she still to this day sees Feely for counseling.
- Officer 16 takes Counselor Feely's advice and starts looking for jobs outside MPD. There are openings at Ward County Corrections and she is hired on for July start. She puts in her notice on June 23, 2020 and hands Chief a resignation letter. Chief Klug won't accept the letter and she takes it over to City Hall to give to HR. (letter attached) Chief Klug made officer 16 write another resignation letter (which is also attached).
- Officer 16 finished up our meeting with 2 very important points. First, she spoke again about the harassment and mental stress put on officers from some of the command staff and supervisors. Second, that the body cam footage review process is being used against good officers who "aren't part of Chief's group of good ol' boys". She mentioned officers like Cory, Lund, etc). Officer 16 also mentioned that Klug/Sundheim started recording conversations.
- To her credit, officer 16 reached out to both Chief Klug and Cpt. Sundheim in December of 2023 to apologize and take more accountability for some of her behavior. She said that apology was met with "lip service" from the two of them.

Minot Police Department
ATTN: Chief Klug

To Whom It May Concern,

It is with unfortunate circumstances that I offer this letter as my resignation notification as well as my exit interview.

In 2015 when I was hired on to the Department, never did I dream I would be quitting in 5 short years. My goal was to be a K9 officer, now, that is a distant memory and dream that I find that I am not quite ready for.

As such, my end date with the City of Minot Police Department will be July 10, 2020, where I'll then be working in Corrections with the Ward County Jail.

Listed below will be some points I wish to address in lieu of my exit interview.

- I have come to appreciate this career. While visibly thankless and easy to lose sight of those in appreciation for what I do in my day to day, I have noticed that there is more support, more of a community family, even friendships present in the City of Minot than I ever dreamed of. I could not have been luckier to serve such a kind community's streets.
- I've learned that the blue line spreads across the country, even countries overseas. I have made many connections, networks, and friendships with my other brothers and sisters in blue that I have met from several areas.
- I've learned time and time again that I am tougher than I give myself credit for. I am also more emotional that I am willing to admit and I have seen that come in handy when talking to people, especially victims, who need a shoulder.
- I've learned that teamwork is essential. Simply, #TeamWorkMakesTheDreamWork.
    - But working with other Agencies, such as Highway Patrol, Border Patrol, and Ward County Sheriff's Deputies, is often frowned upon on. If Officers, such as myself, utilize the special deputy exception we are sworn under to assist another agency, we are called off and told it is not our problem. BUT as soon as our Officers are bogged down with calls, our supervisors request other agencies assistance AFTER telling them to get out of city limits.
- I've learned that policy is gold and very little else matters. If it isn't for the good of the policy, it isn't for the good of the order and that policy seems to only apply to certain people and only certain people

- Do not mistake, I understand policy is to protect us, the department, and the community; but does it really hurt to take photographs with other individuals in the community, each other, or family and post it to social media?

Jane Doe 2

- I've learned that many times it is someone's way or the highway and that it is easier to just bend and do it that way, until another someone comes along and then it is only that way. But there are many ways to describe a Lion as well as paint one.
- I've learned that 'big brother' is everything Officers were promised it would not be. Because of that, we watch over our shoulder and anticipate the reprimand, constantly.
- I've learned that those who do no self-initiated work, take little to no calls, and overall 'ghost' during shift get very little consequences and seem to never make mistakes. BUT as soon as an officer who is always out there, making stops, taking the reports, being the community officer we need; they are wrong, make several mistakes, and are often on a formal plan for whatever mistake was made.
- I've learned that as soon as a mistake is made, often it is not addressed immediately, but addressed weeks, and months later.
- I've learned that mental health, while talked about, is not trained for. My best help was my coworkers and shift partner.
- Many aspects with this department is still a 'good ol boys club' and if you're not a part of it, you're wrong, outcast, and often run out of the department. I've seen many good Officers experience this and leave.

This career is hard, thankless on the surface, mentally taxing, emotionally grueling, family disconnecting, dark, sometimes perverted, the product that every salesman must sell but no one wants and passionate.

I truly hope, in the future, that these concerns never come up again. I truly hope our supervisors will lead us and not manage us. I truly hope that this department will be as supportive of the officers as the community is. I also hope that this department will be fun, uplifting, caring, understanding, practical, and rational when those changes come around.

My home and door is always open to any Officer who needs a place, needs a break, is wanting an ear or a shoulder and doesn't mind taking a short drive because I live way out there. I will always be that blue sister to any of the siblings at this department.

Sincerely,

Heather Summers

July 1, 2020

To whom it may concern,

Please accept this letter as my resignation from the Minot Police Department.

My last day with the police department will be July 10,2020.

Sincerely,

Heather Summers

Officer #11 (Current MPD officer SO)

- Current patrol officer for the last 6.5 years, current SWAT officer
- Officer 11 started off our meeting by talking about his performance reviews over the last few years. He noted that he received an excellent review in 2019. Then in 2020 no reviews were done because of COVID. In 2021, after speaking out at Cpt. Sundheim's free speak meeting, he was given a poor performance review. He was unsure why as he'd not been in any trouble. He was told by one Lt. and one Sgt. That he wouldn't promote because he needs to work better with the brass. He asked Sgt. Q and Lt Redding if they'd written the review, they both indicated that it wasn't either of them that wrote the review (who it should have been) – Cpt. Sundheim was the only other person who could/would have done the review. 2022's review was slightly better and they have not received their 2023 reviews yet.
- Officer 11 stated that 'brass doesn't want to hear any ideas that could help, changes that would help with policy efficiencies. "If it doesn't come from the brass, it's a dumb idea". Specifically changes to the patrol areas has been brought up and they were asked to give input – nobody listened when they did give input...disappeared down the ivory hall.
- Officer 11 spoke about how he doesn't feel he will be promoted and I asked him to elaborate on that. He said that he was supposed to be given credit for his associates degree from Alex Tech. He spoke to Sundheim about it – but he didn't seem to care. He said the disparity between associate degree credits vs full college credits makes it hard for recruits from say Alex Tech or Lake Region to get promoted. He also stated that is one of the reasons you see you recruits in the 5-7 year phase of their career leave. This new promotion system was implemented under Chief Klug.
- Officer 11 also spoke about the Uniform Committee that the brass put together to review beards, female officer hair, etc. They worked for 4 months on it, came up with what they believed was a great policy and presented it back to the brass. It has sat on Chief's desk since then with no input whatsoever. He said again – even if they ask us to come up with ideas, if it doesn't come from the brass, it doesn't happen.
- In May of '24 they were told the schedule would be changing from 3 shift to 4 shift rotations. Most officers plan their years in January as they know what days they have off, vacation requests, etc. There were some complaints and everyone was told to "just deal with it". Officer 11 was scheduled to get married at the end of May – this had been planned for over a year. With the new schedule he was scheduled to work the day of his wedding. Cpt. Sundheim knew weeks before about officer 11s wedding but didn't do anything to make sure he was off per his vacation request. He mentioned the brass didn't care about how the shift changes affect any of their officers' lives. Whey they announced the shift change mandate, not once was it mentioned to anyone that their days off/hrs/days worked etc would change. – very poor communication. Ultimately officer 11 got his time off for his wedding, but it was "more of a hassle than it should have been".
- Officer 11 spoke at length about a couple of our PD Lts. Specifically, Lt. Houge (internal affairs) and Lt. McLeod (patrol shift commander). He said that Lt. Houge is very similar to Cpt. Sundheim and his leadership is very poor. Yells and screams at people – very little communication with officers unless 'he needs something'. When he spoke about Lt. McLeod, officer 11 did say "McLeod and Chapman are both good Lts.", but questioned how many times an officer can be accused of sexual misconduct with a minor/child and still be with the force. Lt. McLeod was accused of sexual assault of a minor in 202 by the Valley City PD. He was again accused this year (2024) by agencies in MT and ID. He was placed on admin leave in January as the investigation played out. He was on leave for 6 months and a letter of discipline was placed in his file. The department was told don't ask or talk about this and it was never spoken about again within the PD. I suggest we pull the out of state investigation reports from ID and MT, as well as the Valley City incident from 2020. He spoke about how the inconsistent discipline in the department has become a 'joke'. He said brass never seem to get in trouble as the lower officers do.

- Officer 11 did say Cpt. Sundheim helped him last year when he had a brief struggle with alcohol. So he did speak well of Cpt in this instance, but still doesn't think highly of him as a leader. To me this speaks volumes, if someone helps you and you still don't respect them as a leader, why is that?
- Officer 11 mentioned he got in trouble one time for putting some kids in for the life saving award, when they drove their friend who had overdosed, to the hospital. He was reprimanded for this because the kids were underage and high and shouldn't have driven their friend to the hospital, thus they didn't deserve to be put in for the award.
- Officer 11 also spoke about the SWAT team as he is a member of it. He said the SWAT Commander (Sundheim) never shows up for training and that Cpt Sundheim has pretty much put the SWAT team on stand down (3 calls in 3 years) because the "perception in the community is poor." "They don't even use us to serve drug warrants." Why do we train and equip our SWAT team if they don't ever plan to use them?
- I asked officer 11 what he thought needed to be done to help fix the issues within the PD. He said, "get brass involved", they just aren't around". Open up the lines of communication and tell us what is going on and come to the officer briefings. He said he hasn't seen a command staff officer at a briefing in about 3-4 years. He also said maybe be more open to ideas that can help the department – whether that be in a moral or efficiency way.

Officer #12 (former Minot PD officer)

- Minot native, 13 years of LE exp. Worked for MPD from 2017 to 2021. No poor performance reviews or discipline during his time at MPD.
- Left MPD to move back south to be closer to family. He said the culture wasn't the main reason he left, but it made it easier to make the decision to move.
- Officer 12 started by speaking about Chief – his very first comment was "Worst chief he has ever worked for (he worked under Olsen as well at MPD). The reasons for this comment he said was because as soon as the torch was passed to Klug – life at the MPD changed. He distanced all leadership from the officers below them, established the "Ivory Hallway", he was out of touch with what was going on within the department and he alienated lower officers through the other command staff officers. One issue that emerged among the command staff was a 'rules for you, but not for me' mentality. He said they would do the same things they yelled at junior officers not to do. (no examples given). Mentioned how they were told quite frequently "you are all replaceable".
- He said Chief never walked around and spoke with any of the officers – "he led from the keyboard". If he wanted to say something to someone below him, he just sent you an email.
- Officer 12 then spoke about Officer Blanchard's death. He said they were told 'not to speak about his death" – that was a DIRECTIVE from above. He then mentioned that they were told the department would provide counseling for any officer that needed it and through EAP they set up sessions for officers. The counselor that was selected for officers to speak with was Maggie Klug – Chief's wife. He said not many people took advantage of that, as they were worried, she'd tell chief what was said and there would be retaliation. WTF! This is the second person to bring this up...how can the Chief of Police's spouse be the pick for officers to speak with?
- Officer 12 also mentioned that during the first McLeod sexual assault on a minor case, everyone in the department was not allowed to speak about it or ask any questions.
- Officer 12 stated that towards the end of 2020 and into 2021 – heavy turnover started within the department because 'officers just couldn't take it any longer'. He said we were/are losing people that made a conscious effort to be in Minot, whether it was for family, kids, etc – these are people that wanted to work here and it is sometimes hard to find people that do want to live/work in Minot.
- Officer 12 is still close with quite a few officers that work at MPD and officers that have left MPD. He suggested we pull ALL the exit interviews and read them.
- Officer 12 came back to give the Eulogy at officer Blanchard's funeral – he said that many past/present officers came and thanked him for doing such a nice job on the eulogy. He said that Chief never spoke with him nor any other past officer from the department.
- He made mention that Chief never showed up at the department the day/night officer Blanchard killed himself. He couldn't be bothered to come in – people were upset that their Chief wasn't there after an officer died. "He doesn't care about the officers underneath him".
- Officer 12 said that post Officer Blanchard's death, there was no incident stress debrief, as they'd had in the past when officer deaths occur. Again, mentioned Chief not showing up to speak with officers after the death – no support from Chief for subordinates nor their mental health. He mentioned that for officer Blanchard – all the signs were there that there was an issue – officer Blanchard was taking steroids, drinking heavily (mentioned the SWAT call out spoken of before where Blanchard tried to drive drunk to the call), had marital issues and was depressed/embarrassed after being removed from SWAT. Nobody cared or was paying attention.

- Officer 12 stated he believed that officer 7 went to Cpt Sundheim and told him about the issues officer Blanchard had and said he needs help. Other officers also mentioned it to their supervisors – don't believe it went anywhere.
- Officer 12 mentioned that "the PD would operate without the command staff. He said the Sgts. And SO/MO officers run everything every day.
- Officer 12 spoke briefly about Officer 1 and said that what happened to her was sad and that she was a great officer and an honest cop.
- Officer 12 mentioned both Sgt. Z and Sgt. Q – how both were good officers but had been retaliated against and beat down for speaking up and going to bat for their officers. He said both officers have given their life and time to the department and they had both been treated poorly since the "speak freely" meeting in 2020. He said Sgt. Q is the best Sgt he's ever worked for/with in either the military or LE agencies he's been with.

Officer #15 (former MPD officer)

- 5 yr MPD officer – crime scene response officer, FTO
- Officer 15 told me he'd dreamed of being a cop since he was a kid and he loved the job until 2020.
- He was originally on the night shift with Lt. Redding and Sgt. Schoenrock – great people to start with he mentioned.
- Officer 15 recounted his first internal review in 2019, which stemmed from a complaint made by an offender he helped arrest. The incident began when Officer Boyer initiated a traffic stop. The driver was ordered to exit the vehicle but refused to comply. After some time, the offender unlocked the car doors, allowing Boyer to open the driver's side door while Officer 15 opened the passenger side. As they attempted to remove the offender from the vehicle, he resisted, flailing his arms aggressively. Officer 15 believed he saw the offender swing at Officer Boyer and, in response, struck the offender three times to subdue him. Once the offender was restrained and handcuffed, an ambulance was called to assess his injuries. However, due to the offender's continued agitation and non-compliance, the ambulance refused transport, and the officers had to take him to the hospital themselves. It was later determined that the offender had sustained a facial fracture and subsequently filed a lawsuit against the department.
  The case was reviewed by the department's "Use of Force" board, which concluded that the level of force used was justified. Officer 15 then met with Chief Olsen, who reviewed the department's "Use of Force" policy with him. Chief Olsen remarked, "It's a different age, and we have to be mindful of what we do." Although the chief suspended Officer 15 for three days, he assured him that there would be no termination or change of assignment.
- Officer 15 said that after Klug was promoted in 2020 things started to change. Officer 15 admitted that in March/April of that year, everyone was stressed out. COVID was in full force, officers were scared, they were out on patrol, had families at home and everyone was worried. Command staff was not around...they sat home while other officers were at work.
- Officer 15 shared that he had been struggling with marital issues, depression, and possibly PTSD (though he did not specify the cause). Seeking support, he approached Sgt. Schoenrock and Lt. Redding, who escalated his request up the chain of command. As a result, Officer 15 was referred to counseling with Maggie, the department's recommended counselor.
  He then recounted an incident from 2015 involving Maggie, who is also the wife of Chief Klug. While working for the department, Maggie confronted him about a comment he had made to one officer regarding another, in which he described the officer as a "good guy, but kind of odd." Feeling uncomfortable discussing personal matters with the chief's wife, Officer 15 requested a different counselor, though he didn't think much of it at the time. He admitted that speaking with the chief's spouse made him uneasy.
- In 2020, during the height of COVID-19 concerns, officers were instructed to stay home if they felt unwell or exhibited any symptoms. One day, Sgt. Lackey was coughing at the department, and Officer 15, in a polite and considerate manner, suggested that she take the day off to rest, explaining that he had a young child at home and was simply concerned. Despite his cordial approach, Sgt. Lackey became angry, turned around, and deliberately coughed in Officer 15's face, saying, "Now you have COVID too.

Officer 15 reported the incident to Lt. Redding, requesting that something be done about it. Redding escalated the matter to Chief Klug. The next day, Sgt. Lackey called in sick, confirming that she had contracted COVID-19. Officer 15 again raised the issue with Klug, who responded dismissively, asking, "What do you want me to do?" Officer 1, another officer who had a similar encounter with Sgt. Lackey, also reported the incident to Klug, but no disciplinary action was taken against Sgt. Lackey. (Lackey and Klug were good friends and "drinking buddies")

- In June 2020, Officer 15 was unexpectedly called into Chief Klug's office and placed on administrative leave without explanation. He was instructed to go home but remain within 20 minutes of the department in case they needed him. When Officer 15 inquired about the reason for his leave, he was told, "We are reviewing things, and I'll let you know what happens." This left him confused, as he had no disciplinary issues beyond what had already been discussed.

  At the same time, an investigation into Lt. McLeod was underway, and McLeod was also on administrative leave, but unlike Officer 15, he was allowed to review body cam footage at the department. After 48 hours with no further information, Officer 15 reached out to Chief Klug for guidance but received no response. Growing anxious, he contacted the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) to secure legal representation.
- A few days later, Officer 15 was called in for an interview with Lt. McLeod during the COVID-19 pandemic. He requested his FOP representative be present, to which McLeod responded, "Why do you need an attorney present?" Officer 15 was eventually allowed to have his FOP rep participate via phone. During the interview, Officer 15 was informed that the department was reviewing body cam footage dating back to 2015, specifically focusing on all his "use of force" reports. This review confused him, as the only incident previously brought to his attention was the 2019 case reviewed by Chief Olsen. During the interview, he and McLeod discussed the inadequate training officers received regarding "use of force." Afterward, his FOP attorney remarked, "This is BS, McLeod isn't trying to distinguish right from wrong."
- Within a few days of that interview, Officer 15 was summoned to a meeting with Chief Klug. He attempted to contact his FOP attorney more than 20 times but was unsuccessful. Upon arriving at the department, he was met by Chief Klug and Captain Sundheim. The Chief handed him a packet containing nearly five years' worth of "use of force" reviews. Officer 15 once again requested that his FOP rep be included in the meeting, explaining that he had been trying to reach him but couldn't get through. His request was ignored. Chief Klug then informed him he was being recommended for termination, or he could choose to resign and retain his law enforcement license. The Chief coldly added, "It was a mistake to hire you." Despite Officer 15's continued requests to speak with his FOP representative, he was told he had two options: resign, or be fired and risk having his license revoked by the POST board, which would prevent him from working as a police officer again. Officer 15 was left bewildered, as all previous incidents had already been reviewed, and he had served his 3-day suspension without further issues.
- Officer 15 ultimately signed the resignation letter and quit the department. He said he struggled a lot with this. He'd just gone through a divorce and now he'd lost his job, but had no idea why. He attempted to get on with another department and keep working, only to find out that he had been put in as "terminated" by Klug and so POST would not let the new department have his records. He got it all straightened out, but was upset that Klug put him in as terminated so he couldn't work at other departments. Eventually went on to work for McHenry County. Officer 15 mentioned that Klug tried to do the same thing to Officer Frelich, but he quit before it could happen.

- Officer 15 also mentioned how moral suffered as a result of what Klug said at officer Blanchard's funeral. Officer 15 remarked that while Blanchard started off as 'one of Chief's boys', he'd had increasing issues with Chief's micromanagement before he died.

Dispatcher #1 (former MPD Dispatch)

- 11 years with dispatch, left in Dec. 2023
- Dispatcher 1 stated she left the department because it was a hostile work environment (created by Margaret), lack of leadership and no follow through on promises. Dispatcher 1 also noted that the new dispatch room is depressing (no windows and dark) and that training within dispatch is awfully poor.
- Dispatcher 1 stated that 3 leads went to Cpt. Sundheim last year (summer) and complained about Margaret. A 360 eval was done on Margaret, she went to some type of leadership training and things got better for a short time, but then quickly went back to what they had been before.
- Dispatcher 1 said Margaret leads with 'retaliation'. She stated that PSAP holds employees schedule over their heads, she plays favorites and she treats employees very differently, depending on if she likes you or not. Dispatcher 1 also said that Margaret likes to create drama amongst employees by telling employees lies to upset them against another employee. Dispatcher 1 continued by saying that PSAP confidentiality does not exist. Margaret divulges information (both personal about dispatchers) and professional that shouldn't be talked about.
- Dispatcher 1 said Margaret and the Asst. PSAP will stand in dispatch and fight with each other. The dispatchers went back to Cpt. Sundheim to report that issues still remained, they were ignored and nothing was done.
- Dispatcher 1 also mentioned that employees were caught 'stealing time' and she took it up the chain of command. Not much was done, each of the people caught were given a 1 day off suspension. Dispatcher 1 stated that they could've used the camera footage, but waited to long to look and it had been recorded over already.
- Dispatcher 1 also stated that there is very inconsistent discipline within the department and dispatch.
- She mentioned we should check the exit interviews of other dispatchers who left that have/had very similar complaints about Margaret. Samantha Christman, Beth Watne, Brittany Yoder, Cloe Micaen, Molly Schoen, Samantha Silva and Amand Wright (although she was terminated for cause).
- Dispatcher 1 spoke about the "12 hour shift/PTO lunch" policy, that went into place at the beginning for 2024, if only 2 dispatchers were on shift at a time. Whether this is legal or not, it is VERY UNPOPULAR.
- Dispatcher 1 spoke about the death of MO Blanchard and how it affected dispatch. She stated that the whole response to mental health issues after his suicide was disgusting. Margaret made inappropriate jokes that upset other dispatchers.
- Dispatcher 1 spoke about how Chief Klug and Cpt. Sundheim have created animosity between the county and the city (MPD does not want Ward county policing in Minot) and this has made things hard on the dispatchers.
- Dispatcher 1 finished our conversation by talking about when Chief Olsen and Sundheim put Margaret in as PSAP. She mentioned that dispatchers were asked and begged them not to put Maragaret in as the PSAP, but rather bring in someone from outside. I asked how we need to fix dispatch – restructuring, retraining and better communication were her answers.

Officer #14 (former MPD officer)

- 12 yr MPD officer, Patrol, K9, Bomb Squad Commander, 0 write ups, 0 disciplinary actions
- Officer 14 started our conversation by saying "Promoting Klug to chief single handedly killed the dept. He said there was no one to tell him no any longer. He asked why the city manager and HR have not done more as they've watched people 'stream' out of our PD and dispatch.
- Officer 14 said the problem with Klug was it didn't matter how you were as a cop – if you were great and he didn't like you, you suffered. If you were awful and he liked you, you moved through the ranks.
- Officer 14 spoke about how getting to some of the positions he achieved (bomb squad commander) and how these are positions where you have to prove yourself. He also mentioned that the city spent over $235,000 training and equipping him for K9 and Bomb Squad.
- Officer 14 said the only command staff we have that has any integrity is Cpt. Plessus
- Officer 14 explained that after Klug assumed leadership, the promotion process changed noticeably. He stated that he had tested for the Sergeant position six times—four times under Olsen and twice under Klug. In the first three or four attempts, he ranked lower on the promotion list, and officers with more seniority and experience were promoted ahead of him, which he found understandable. However, during his fifth attempt, which was his first under Klug, the situation changed. At that time, he was the most senior officer, had the highest score on both the written exam and the interview, making him the top candidate for the promotion. Yet, another officer, who ranked lower and had disciplinary letters in their file, was promoted instead. Officer 14 found this unusual and approached Klug to ask what he needed to do to secure the promotion. Klug's response was vague, offering no clear explanation other than suggesting, "just keep doing what you're doing, you'll get there." Klug also mentioned that there were no available Sergeant positions with K9, but no further discussion was had.
- Officer 14 recounted that during the next promotion board, he was still handling his K9 unit, though he had already submitted her retirement papers before the promotion process began. A Sgt had recently left the department, prompting an earlier-than-usual start to the promotion board. Once again, Officer 14 was the top candidate, with more experience and a higher ranking than the others. However, despite this, Officer Pappenfous, who was ranked third, was promoted instead. Officer 14 found this particularly strange since Pappenfous had letters of discipline in his file and was also part of the K9 unit, despite there being no available Sgt positions in K9 at the time.
- Perplexed by the decision, Officer 14 sought another meeting with Klug to understand what he was missing. The following day, during their conversation, Klug responded bluntly, saying, "Where are you going to go? What are you going to do? You're a career cop—I don't need to keep you happy. What are you going to do?" Feeling disillusioned, Officer 14 returned home, gathered his gear and keys, and resigned from the department later that day.
- Although Officer 14 noted that he had never personally had issues with Klug, he did mention that his father, who had served as an officer alongside Klug, had a difficult relationship with him.

- Officer 14 also spoke about K9 handlers have always gotten to keep their dogs after the dog is retired. It is basically impossible to train them to someone else after 10 yrs. He said that after he had resigned, Klug tried to keep him from keeping his K9 and instead wanted to have the dog euthanized. He mentioned Clouse was fired and still got to keep his dog. This screams RETALIATION.
- Officer 14 expressed concerns about the overwhelming amount of paperwork placed on officers, highlighting the inefficiency of the process. He referenced other departments, such as Brooklyn Park, MN, and Fargo, as examples of places that handle things differently. Officer 14 recalled his final drug arrest while serving with the department, noting that after making the arrest at 9:30 a.m. and transporting the offender to jail, he returned to the department to begin the paperwork. He didn't complete the required documentation for the single drug bust until after 6:30 p.m. This has been brought up to command staff as a way to better the efficiency in the department. The response, "that's the officers issue to deal with".
- He emphasized how this inefficient process keeps officers tied to their desks, preventing them from being out on the streets actively pursuing criminals. In contrast, he explained, other departments streamline the process by utilizing their records divisions. In those agencies, officers submit an initial report, and the records department compiles all necessary reports, affidavits, etc. for the various departments involved, allowing officers to return to the field more quickly. He said look at the crime rates in Minot as this was placed back onto officers to handle. He said that is multiplied as we lose officers on top of that.
- Officer 14 also mentioned issues with the States Attorney's office and how they don't work with the department or officers for scheduling of court cases. He mentioned times when he had come off night shift at 3am and was expected to be at the court house by 9am for a court case...why couldn't they schedule court appearances in the afternoon for night shift officers? He also spoke about a time where he was scheduled to go on vacation, he'd told the States Attorney's office and Klug. He said the case was scheduled for a day right in the middle of his vacation. He went to Klug to ask for him to intervene and chief responded "it's up to you to figure it out". Klug refused to even speak to the SA office. Officer 14 had to change his vacation so he wasn't in contempt of court – very low support for the officers in the dept from command staff.
- Officer 14 spoke about how the McLeod (1st) investigation crushed the moral in the department. People started checking out after a Lt. was accused of child sex offenses and nothing was really done. I asked him if he'd heard about any other investigations into Lt. McLeod – he said yeh he heard of the one earlier this year as well. Wasn't surprised there was nothing more than 6 months admin leave. "He is one of Chief's boys, he'll never get in trouble". WE NEED TO REVIEW ALL 3 OF THESE INVESTIGATIONS INTO MCLEOD'S SEXUAL ABUSE INVESTIGATIONS.
- Officer 14 expressed doubts about the integrity of Captains Sundheim and Sundbakken. He specifically pointed to Sundbakken's situation, questioning, "How can you serve as the Investigations Lieutenant or Captain and not be aware that your wife was embezzling money?" Officer 14 found it hard to reconcile Sundbakken's position with his personal circumstances. He also referenced a controversial "stand down" order issued by Sundheim during the Blanchard incident (driving drunk and leaving the scene of an accident while responding to a SWAT call), suggesting that the video footage of Blanchard pulling into the police department garage that night should be reviewed for further clarity.

- I asked officer 14 if he did an exit interview. He said not a single person from the command staff or HR asked him why he resigned or reached out to him at any point after. THIS IS UNACCEPTABLE. HR NEEDS TO SPEAK WITH EVERY EMPLOYEE LEAVING THE CITY EMPLOYMENT AND GET AN EXIT INTERVIEW SCHEDULED.
- Officer 14 finished our conversation by speaking about the inconsistent discipline and inconsistent treatment of officers with in the department – "if Klug likes you, you're fine. If he doesn't, it'll be a tough place to work".

Officer #13 (former MPD officer) – current Fargo PD officer

- 7.5 years with MPD – 2015-2022
- Officer 13 mentioned that the first time he'd ever really noticed how bad things were under Chief was when he went to Fargo for a joint training SWAT exercise. He said the differences he noticed during his 3 days there were unbelievable. Fargo's Chief (new one, as they fired their previous chief because of similar issues to what we are seeing) was engaging with his officers, walked around and talked to them. Officer 13 said he'd seen that under Chief Olsen, but under Chief Klug he never had. He said that Chief Klug isn't thought of as a leader within the dept. and that he'll just walk past other officers and never say a word.
- Officer 13 said he didn't have anything that had ever personally been done to him by Chief, but that he thought it was important to let us know how different things are at the Fargo PD for his friends and colleagues that still work at Minot PD.
- He did mention Cpt Sundbakken by name and said 'that guy isn't recruiting anybody".

Dispatcher #2 (former MPD Dispatch)

- 32 yr dispatcher, 4 yrs as PSAP – retired in 2020
- In 2022, a new position was created: Assistant PSAP Manager. This role was designed to support the PSAP Manager, focusing primarily on training, scheduling, and overseeing the dispatchers. Dispatcher 2 expressed interest in the role, as these responsibilities had been her favorite part of her dispatch work. She stated that her goal in applying for the position was 'to help get dispatch back on track, mentor and train someone to take the lead in dispatch, as Margaret lacks leadership qualities." She is just a "yes man" for Klug and Sundheim.
- Dispatcher 2 help write/wrote the training manual for Dispatch during her time there. She also developed an 8- and 10-hour schedule that worked very well. She only lost 2 dispatchers during her time as PSAP. She also came back for a few months after she retired to help cover lunches, as dispatch so short-handed.
  Before applying, Dispatcher 2 met with Margaret three times to assure her that she had no interest in reclaiming her former job as PSAP Manager. Instead, she was seeking to re-engage after retirement, finding the training and scheduling aspects of the new role appealing. All conversations were positive, and Dispatcher 2 believed that Margaret was supportive of her return. Quoting Margaret as saying "she'd be happy to have her back."
- Dispatcher 2 maintains contact with many current and former dispatchers, who reach out to her, to vent and get guidance and while still maintaining some aspect of confidentiality, as Margaret 'tells everyone everything'.
- Dispatcher 2 first applied for the Assistant PSAP Manager position in May 2022. She met with Chief Klug, with whom she had worked side by side for 20 years. However, she described their conversation as somewhat strange, sensing an attitude of 'sure, apply, but you won't be hired.'
  During her second interview for the role, she raised a critical point, stating they 'needed to address why so many people were leaving or quitting.' This interview panel included representatives from MPD, the Ward County Sheriff's Department, and the FD/Ambulance Service. Kraft, from the Sheriff's Department, asked Dispatcher 2 what she had done differently to retain more staff. She highlighted the significant strain that 12-hour shifts, implemented under Chief Klug, were placing on dispatchers.
- At the end of 2023/beginning of 2024 after going through a couple other Asst. PSAP managers, the position opened again. Dispatcher 2 applied again, met with Margaret again to assure her that she just wanted to do the Asst. PSAP job and not take her job. Margaret again was on board and seemed excited to have the help.
- Dispatcher 2 was called by Cpt. Sundheim some time later and told "So Chief offered the job to another candidate and he accepted. That's where we are at." Dispatcher 2 asked why the other candidate had been picked over her, to which Sundheim responded, "I can't tell you why, I wasn't part of the interview process." She was disappointed Chief Klug didn't call her himself. Dispatcher 2 showed me letters of recommendation she had from former Chief Olsen, Sheriff Robert Roed, Larry Haug (former 911 Coordinator) and Lonnie Sather (Asst. Fire Chief, MFD). Attached. Speaking with Lisa Jundt on 9.19.24 in Stef Stalheim's office, Lisa said they knew/know they have a problem with Margaret, yet when Sundheim asked her about dispatcher 2 applying for the Asst. PSAP position earlier this year, Lisa advised against it because it would cause issues with Margaret. If we know we have a problem with Margaret, why are we worried about having issues with her? WTH?

- Dispatcher 2 mentioned how quickly things went downhill in dispatch after Chief Klug took command in 2020. No one was/is allowed to speak with Chief Klug or Cpt. Sundheim any longer, they must speak with Margaret first and she'll decide if they need to be informed. She also said there is no accountability within dispatch, because "if Margaret likes you, you don't get in trouble." Some other dispatchers (Jackie, Jenna, Jean) have brought up concerns and things they think could help fix some of the issues within dispatch. Margaret did not like them speaking up, so some of them were pushed out. Margaret labeled them as trouble makers. "Margaret does not like to be questioned, and is very retaliatory when she is."
- Dispatcher 2 also mentioned how many of our dispatchers both past and present are unhappy with the dispatch center. The center was designed by Cpt. Sundheim without any input from staff....didn't even ask for 'anything you think we need' to anyone. Dispatcher 2 mentioned again how depressing and dark most of the dispatchers think the center is. No windows, etc.
- Dispatcher 2 mentioned how it will take 6-8 months to train the new Asst. PSAP manager and that she could have been up and running in a couple weeks. I will mention, I have heard really good things about he candidate hired, but it is still surprising to see someone with these qualifications passed over.
- Dispatcher 2 closed our conversation by talking about a dispatcher hired while she was PSAP, named Lacey Burgess. She apparently was friends with Chief Klug. Burgess left the scene of an accident in which her friend, who was drinking and driving, needed to be transported to the ER. She was arrested while on shift for doing so...later promoted within the department.

To whom it may concern:

I am pleased to write this letter of recommendation for Barbara McPeak who is applying for the position of Assistant PSAP Manager with the City of Minot. I have known Barbara for over 35 years and worked with her at the Minot Police Department for over 25 of those years. After retiring from the Police Department, I continued working with her for an additional nine years while serving as the 9-1-1 Coordinator for Ward County. During this time I was able to observe her on the job as she expanded her knowledge and experience as a 9-1-1 Dispatcher, and later as the Minot Central Dispatch PSAP Manager.

Barbara has extensive experience in emergency services and has established herself as a person who is insightful and can handle pressure, while at the same time thinking about how to continue improving herself and the dispatch center as a whole. An example are the training manuals she created for new hires in the dispatch center. These manuals, along with policy reviews and revisions, assisted countless individuals who were beginning their careers as dispatchers in the extremely challenging and demanding world of emergency services. Another example of improving the dispatcher center was when she started the work on transitioning from the old style medical emergency cards for the dispatchers to the more modern and upgraded electronic medical dispatching system. This procedure ultimately assisted the dispatchers as well as improved service to the public during medical emergencies. Barbara also has worked on budgeting for the dispatch center

To find a more qualified individual for this position would be, in my opinion, very challenging. Barbara has a proven track record as a successful and resourceful leader in her field. She has extensive working knowledge of the -9-1-1 system, radio and telephone network systems and the overall working environment of a 9-1-1 dispatch center. In addition, Barbara has the ability to work closely with the dispatchers and assist them when they are experiencing difficulties on the job. This can help create a worker friendly environment leading to the retention of qualified individuals.

To summarize, I feel Barbara would be the perfect fit for the position of Assistant PSAP Manager. She checks all the boxes on the list of qualifications, and could assist the PSAP Manager with any duties required. She would also be an effective liaison working with both city administration and the dispatch staff. If you have any questions or would like to visit with me concerning this matter please feel free to contact me at any time. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Larry Haug

Letter of Recommendation

Date: 04/30/2024

I have been informed that Barb McPeak is applying for the assistant PSAP manager for Minot Central Dispatch. I can think of no other person more qualified for this position. Her years of experience as a dispatcher and former PSAP manager make her a perfect fit for the job.

I have worked with Barb my entire 34-year career in Law Enforcement. From the start, she became the voice I wanted to hear on the other end of the radio. Whether I was dispatched to a call in progress or making a traffic stop, she would strive to stay one step ahead of me. Barb could anticipate the information that I would most likely be asking for and have that information ready for me. This was especially helpful in the years we worked before cell phones and in car computers came into play. Having someone taking initiative and researching made things run so much smoother that having someone just answering the radio and reacting only after I would ask for information. Barb was especially valuable each July while working dispatch in the Command Trailer at the ND State Fair. Again, her experience shined as she was able to answer questions, keep things running smoothly and even teach new deputies a few things about the fair. Our lost and found property was always organized and she took the initiative to research and make calls to reunite people with their property.

As we both move up in our careers, we continued to maintain that positive relationship. When Barb applied for the PSAP manager position, I felt that she was the obvious choice and voiced my opinion at that time. I am again voicing my opinion, as once again I feel she is right for the spot, and to me it would be an easy decision. I have had nothing but positive experiences with Barb whether it be through work or on a personal level outside of work.

I recently learned that Barb McPeak has expressed interest in the position of Assistant PSAP Manager at Minot Central Dispatch. I cannot think of a more qualified and appropriate person to fill this position.

I had the privilege of working with Barb for three decades at Minot Police Department where I had the opportunity to see her career develop. I observed her perform her duties from the time that she began as a Dispatcher until her retirement from the position of PSAP Manager just a few years ago.

Barb has always displayed tremendous passion for her position in public safety along with a true desire to make the dispatch center and its staff the best they can be. She has trained almost countless new dispatchers during her career. She did so in a way that made it most likely for them to succeed. She treated her staff and co-workers with respect. She consistently worked towards improving the Dispatch Center both in keeping up with current trends in technology but also with concern for those she supervised. Barb approaches life with a servant's heart and a positive attitude.

I have absolutely no doubt that Barb would excel in the role of Assistant PSAP Manager. I give her my strongest endorsement.

Please feel free to contact me with any follow up questions if you would like.

Respectfully,

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing in reference to Barb McPeak's application for Assistant PSAP Manager for the City of Minot. I have known Barb for more than thirty (30) years through our positions as dispatcher and firefighter, including later in our careers as administrators within our departments. Through my experiences working with Barb I found her to be a competent and dedicated dispatcher. She was always willing to listen to any issues we experienced involving the communications between our departments and worked well with our staff to find solutions to any problems. As an administrator she worked well in a team environment. I witnessed this as we cross trained our personnel to better our working relationship and improve our responses to emergency situations.

I recommend Barb for this position as I believe her education and experience would be an asset to your department and the training of your dispatchers.

If you require any additional information or more details to the information mentioned above, please feel free to contact me directly at [redacted].

Open Letter of Vote of No Confidence

To All Concerned:

On behalf of Lodge #7, whose members have by majority vote assented on 9/18/2024, I submit this letter of No Confidence on Minot Chief of Police, John Klug. We deeply regret that this action has become necessary, however we believe that Chief Klug's conduct during his tenure leaves us with few options.

While outside factors have created challenges to leading law enforcement organizations, in other parts of the state and nation, during Chief Klug's assignment, this doesn't account for the unusually high tempo of resignations or early retirements at the Minot Police Department. Nor does it explain the continued degradation of morale experienced by current Officers and staff. Specifically, we point to three areas of conduct that lead to this vote. First, a breakdown in communication in all points on the chain of command, to the point that too many Officers feel it's pointless to even try to speak with him and his command staff. Second, Chief Klug's leadership/management style has created an environment of fear of retaliation and unfair/unequal enforcement of discipline standards among the rank-and-file Officers/employees. Third, Chief Klug's responses to Officers he perceives as disagreeing with him or challenging to his decisions can be characterized as arrogantly dismissive, needlessly defensive/argumentative, and often individually insulting.

On 2/3/2020, Chief Klug was sworn into office by Mayor Shaun Sipma at a meeting of the City Council. When he spoke, Chief Klug said, "My colleagues, my coworkers, you deserve this. You deserve everything we're about to go through together, trust me." In the years following this statement, whatever hopeful and positive vision Chief Klug had, sadly this was never adequately communicated to our membership, the lion-share of which are Minot Police Officers. And sadder still, what was realized in terms of what we have "gone through together" in no way can be described as what our members and other employees have deserved.

Lodge #7 remains dedicated to ensuring our membership's voice is heard and respected. Now and always the Lodge Executive Board remains dedicated to the principle that everyone is best served, when we approach challenges to the profession and our members' agencies, side by side with department leadership as a team. Despite our concerns documented in this letter, this offer remains. The wellbeing of our members, the departments we work for, and most importantly the communities we serve, demand it.

... continued... On 1/28, 1/29, and 1/30 Sgt. Ruelle specifically told Batteiger to conduct follow-up and document in activity if unable to make contact. On 1/29, Batteiger was very busy for the majority of his shift, and unable to follow-up. Follow-up was documented in activity on 1/30/22, without success. It was also indicated he will attempt follow up "later this week." As of 2/8/22 at 0312 hrs, there is nothing indicating additional follow up or request made to another officer or detective for assistance, three shifts worked.

42 days have elapsed since the case was first sent back for follow-up; the total number of shifts worked is 20. I did not check each day worked to see how busy Batteiger was, such as on 1/29. Regardless, this is an unacceptable amount of time taken to complete the task, nor is it a reasonable amount of time. Generally, I would expect most follow up to be completed within one work week, if not, activity and reports should be updated to reflect the reason(s) why.

The manner in which this case has been handled reflects poorly upon Master Officer Batteiger, his shift supervision and the department as a whole.

Master Officer Batteiger may submit a response in writing, if he chooses to do so.

Dan, I don't know who was still asking about the video. I read your report and saw that you sent a link for the video on the 8th. I think it would be appropriate to attempt follow up for the video and check on its availability if we have not yet received it, rather than simply stating you requested it. Please document the result in a report. TJR 1/24/22

LETTER OF COUNSELING

EMPLOYEE: Daniel Batteiger

DATE OF INCIDENT/EVENT: October 2022 - January 2023

DESCRIPTION OF INCIDENT(S) OR EVENT(S):

As a Police Service Dog handler with the Minot Police Department, all handlers are expected to maintain the 'industry standard' number of hours of 16 hours per month. The Minot Police Department calculates this on a 4 month rolling average.

Master Officer Batteiger, since July 2022, has had 5 individual months of training below 16 hours, and 2 months at 16 or more. His current 4 month average, encompassing Oct 2022-Jan 2023, is 13.95 hours of training.

On 1/19/2023, I gave Master Offer Batteiger a copy of his training hours, and told him he needs to have at least 16 hours per month on average, and pointed out at least half of his months were lacking hours. He told me that he would make the necessary changes.

 See attached

APPLICABLE VIOLATION(S) OF POLICIES/DIRECTIVES/TRAINING (LIST ALL THAT APPLY):

The accepted industry standard for K9 training is at minimum 16 hours per month to maintain proficiency. The Minot Police Department calculates this on a rolling average of the the immediate 4 months. This average must equal at least 16 hours.

HAS ISSUE BEEN ADDRESSED IN THE PAST? (VERBAL OR WRITTEN COUNSELING, DISCLIPLINE) LIST AND DATE ALL THAT APPLY:

1/19/2022 - Listed in first box. (first documented)

* non-specific dates: We talk about training hours, and requirements to meet them frequently. Handlers have access to the Excel logs I keep, and also can search their hours in PackTrack.

LETTER OF COUNSELING

ACTION STEPS TO CORRECT ISSUE (IF APPLICABLE):

* Canine Cyrus will not be allowed to participate in any Law Enforcement actions until his 4 month training hours average is brought up to at least 16 hours. Officer Batteiger may bring Cyrus with him on patrol, but he may not leave the vehicle for any other purpose than normal breaks, and training.
I will verify any training hours completed, and recalculate his training hours average on Friday, February 10th, and provide the results to Cpt. Sundheim.
If his training hours are not raised within that period, Cyrus will remain out of service until they reach at least 16 hours, verified on the Friday of each consecutive week.

LETTER OF COUNSELING

EMPLOYEE: Master Officer Dan Batteiger

DATE OF INCIDENT/EVENT: 7/4/23 - #23-20299

DESCRIPTION OF INCIDENT(S):

Officer Batteiger initiated a traffic stop on a 4 Wheeler that had no lights driving on 4th Ave NE after the fireworks display. Officer Batteiger pursued the 4 wheeler after it failed to pull over and continued westbound. Due to the darkness and the 4 wheeler not having lights, pursuing seemed reasonable at this point, however, when they got to about 14th St NE they encountered vehicles stopped in the roadway due to traffic congestion. The 4 wheeler at that point moved into the eastbound lane and continued. So did officer Batteiger and continued doing so until 3rd St NE, in violation of department policy. In doing so, they passed over 70 vehilces that were stopped in the westbound lane. The pursuit turned northbound on 3rd St and went over the viaduct. In doing so, both passed a northbound vehicle while going up the viaduct (could not see if there was any oncoming traffic). Shortly after turning westbound on 8th Ave NE, the 4 wheeler stopped and the passenger got off before the 4 wheeler took off again. The pursuit was ended at that point and Officer Batteiger dealt with the passenger.

The report in this matter failed to articulate why the officer felt the need to continue. He also noted asking for supervisor permission to continue, but nothing of a response from the supervisor. Due to Officer Batteiger's position as not only a Master Officer, but an EVOC / Pursuit instructor, better decision making in incidents like this are crucial.

APPLICABLE VIOLATION(S) OF POLICIES/DIRECTIVES/TRAINING (LIST ALL THAT APPLY):

307.3.1 WHEN TO INITIATE A PURSUIT

An officer may initiate or engage in a pursuit if the violation is one that endangers others, or the officer has a reason to believe that the operator or occupants have committed a criminal offense involving violence or injury and based on the nature of the violation or crime there is reason to believe the operator or occupant of the fleeing vehicle poses a greater immediate danger to the public if not apprehended than the danger created by engaging in a pursuit.

Factors that shall be considered, both individually and collectively, when deciding to initiate or continue a pursuit include:

(a) The seriousness of the known or reasonably suspected crime and its relationship to community safety.

(b) The importance of protecting the public and balancing the known or reasonably suspected offense and the apparent need for immediate capture against the risks to officers, innocent motorists and others.

(c) The apparent nature of the fleeing suspect (e.g., whether the suspect represents a serious threat to public safety).

(d) The identity of the suspect has been verified and there is comparatively minimal risk in allowing the suspect to be apprehended at a later time.

(e) The safety of the public in the area of the pursuit, including the type of area, time of day, the amount of vehicular and pedestrian traffic (e.g., school zones) and the speed of the pursuit relative to these factors.

(f) The pursuing officer's familiarity with the area of the pursuit, the quality of radio communication between the pursuing units and the dispatcher/supervisor, and the driving capabilities of the pursuing officers under the conditions of the pursuit.

(g) The weather, traffic and road conditions that unreasonably increase the danger of the pursuit when weighed against the risks resulting from the suspect's escape.

(h) The performance capabilities of the vehicles used in the pursuit in relation to the speed and other conditions of the pursuit.

(i) Vehicle speeds.

(j) Other persons in or on the pursued vehicle (e.g., passengers, co-offenders and hostages).

(k) The availability of other resources, such as aircraft assistance.

(l) The police unit is carrying passengers other than on-duty police officers. Pursuits should not be undertaken with a prisoner or ride-along in the pursuit vehicle .

307.3.2 WHEN TO TERMINATE A PURSUIT

Pursuits should be discontinued whenever the circumstances known or which reasonably ought to be known to the officer or supervisor during the pursuit indicates that the present risk of continuing the pursuit reasonably appears to outweigh the risk resulting from the suspect's escape.

The above factors on when to initiate a pursuit are will apply equally to the decision to discontinue as well as the decision to initiate a pursuit. The term "terminate" shall be construed to mean to discontinue or to stop chasing the fleeing vehicle.A pursuit is terminated when the motorist stops, or when the attempt to apprehend is discontinued by the officer. An officer is deemed to be no longer attempting to apprehend the motorist when the officer deactivates the emergency lights and siren; pulls over to the side of the road and stops (does not continue to follow the fleeing vehicle) and/or, when safe to do so, makes a 90 or 180 degree turn away from the fleeing vehicle. In addition to the factors listed above, the following factors should be considered when deciding whether to terminate a pursuit:

(a) The distance between the pursuing officers and the fleeing vehicle is so great that further pursuit would be futile or require the pursuit to continue for an unreasonable time or distance or the pursued vehicle's location is no longer definitely known.

(b) The officer's pursuit vehicle sustains damage or a mechanical failure that renders it unsafe to drive or has an emergency equipment failure that causes the vehicle to no longer qualify for emergency operation use.

(c) When directed to terminate the pursuit by a supervisor.

307.4.4 PURSUIT DRIVING TACTICS

(c) As a general rule, officers should not pursue a vehicle driving the wrong way on a roadway, highway or freeway. In the event the pursued vehicle does so, the following tactics should be considered:

SUPERVISOR NOTES:

Jenser

10/2/23- Lt Chapman sent an email to myself and Master Officer Batteiger stating that it was time to apply for new drugs. He stated he could start the process but to keep me in the loop so I have an idea of how the process goes.

12/6/23- I received an email from Lt. Chapman regarding a certificate from DEA – controlled substance registration certificate. Up to this point, I have never seen any paperwork regarding DEA nor have I been involved in the matter. Master Officer Batteiger stated over email" I have figured out how this is all going. When we are together next I'm going to have explain how it goes together and the process required by the DEA. Had to work out a few kinks as it was a new adventure. More to come very soon." Master Officer Batteiger told me in person that he didn't want the headaches for two people so he had figured out the process and sent it through.

12/8/23- During our meeting with CPSM- Lt. Chapman found out that Master Officer Battegier submitted the paperwork to DEA. Lt. Chapman told Batteiger again that he wasn't supposed to do that. Receiving new drugs means the old drugs are soon to be destroyed.

12/14/23- During our bi-monthly K9 training, Deputies from McLean County K9 unit joined our training to try out our new ball popper. Also present was Lt. Chapman and Master Officer Connole at around 1630 hours inside the old city hall upstairs. The ball popper is a 4 box system that allows you to place a target odor inside of it. When the dog alerts to the correct box, the handler or said person uses a remote control and can activate the popper to reward the dog with a popped up ball. During this session, I asked the drug K9 handlers what odor they wanted to use. I was not going to use the system for my explosives so we could focus on the three drug dogs to use the ball popper for. I don't remember if someone asked to use heroin or if that's the drug that I grabbed. When I asked how much, the McLean county K9 handlers stated they did not want an entire jar. Inside a narcotic odor jar is 28grams of target odor. These narcotics are 100% pure drugs sent straight from DEA. Inside each jar is three weights that are totaled to 28 grams. Each separate odor can have different weights but ultimately there is three packages in each jar.

I grabbed the heroin jar and noticed that there were only two odor bags in there. One said 6. Something and the other said 6. Something which does not equal 28 grams. I asked Connole where the 15g of Heroin was. Connole stated he had just picked up the kit from Officer Batteiger at his residence (he called in sick this night). Lt. Chapman was sitting right next to me so this is also when he became aware of the missing drug. Officer Connole and I opened every narcotic jar seeing if maybe the 15g of heroin became misplaced. Every other jar had the appropriate weights in their respective jar. I then texted Master Officer Batteiger where the 15g of heroin is and he did not reply. To this day (12-19-23) I have not received an answer from him. Connole texted him and then Lt. Chapman called him. Communication was then between Lt. Chapman and Master Officer Batteiger and I was not involved. We continued with training until approximately 2030 hours.

I returned back to the Minot Police Department and went upstairs to start looking for this 15g of heroin. I looked everywhere upstairs where I think a hide could have been placed (drawers, cabinets, door seams) and did not locate the drug. I then went into admin cars (The blue Jeep Liberty and the transport van) as I know K9 handlers have placed hides in there before. I did not locate anything in there. I wasn't sure where else to look but I know Connole went to Longfellow and looked in recent hide locations. Lt. Chapman went to MSU dorms and looked there with no results.

12/15/23- I asked Lt. Chapman if the drugs were located yet and if I were to instruct the two K9 handlers to continue looking for the missing drug. Lt. Chapman said yes and stated he gave them both a list of trainings were heroin was used and asked them to work backwards through it.

12/18/23- The narcotics have still not been found. Master Officer Connole showed me an email he had sent to Lt. Chapman indicating places he has searched for the drugs. I documented the missing drugs in Master Officer Batteiger's working excel document. I also looked on the drug kit check out list on the locker downstairs in the K9 room- The sheet indicated the following

-02/16/23- Dan Batteiger- Full Kit - returned 11/13/23
-11/13/23- Dan Batteiger- Heroin- - returned 11/26/23
-11/29/23 Michael Connole- Meth/Crack/Cocaine - returned 11/23/23
-12/5/23- Michael Connole - Fentanyl - returned 12/5/23
-12/7/23- Dan Batteiger - Full Kit - returned 12/7/23
-12/11/23- Dan Batteiger- Full Kit - (yet to be returned)

Captain Sundheim,

9/14/23 given to Sundheim

"The Minot Police Department will provide excellent police services to the citizens and guests of the City of Minot. We will strive to reduce and prevent crime, to instill a sense of safety and security, and to work in partnership with our community to preserve a high quality of life. We will use our training and resources along with our values of honor, integrity and trustworthiness to serve our citizens. Our goal is to make Minot a better place for all to live through our commitment to our profession"

Minot PD Policy #322.5.9(m); Conduct: Any other on- or off-duty conduct which any member knows or reasonably should know is unbecoming a member of this department, is contrary to good order, efficiency or morale, or tends to reflect unfavorably upon this department or its members.

Minot PD Policy #322.5.7(b); Efficiency: Unsatisfactory work performance including, but not limited to, failure, incompetence, inefficiency or delay in performing and/or carrying out proper orders, work assignments or the instructions of supervisors without a reasonable and bona fide excuse.

In 2022, when you took part in promoting me to Sgt., you and the rest of the Administration entrusted me with making decisions not only for what was best for patrol, but for the department and community as a whole. I have taken this position very seriously and want only what is best. As you also know, I have a lot of passion for being a part of the K9 team. I have put numerous hours into making Caspian as reliable as he has been for the Minot Police Department and the State of North Dakota. Part of also being a Sergeant, I have learned, is pointing out where there is problems and how to fix them.

The reason for this letter is due to policy violations resulting in multiple letters of counseling (pursuit, spikes, victim, k9 training hours, follow up on cases, lying to citizen). This portrays that there is a consistent pattern of bad decision making. I have lost trust and confidence in Master Officer Batteiger to run K9 Cyrus. I do not believe that MO Batteiger makes the best sound decisions. As a supervisor, I fear that he will make a decision that will cost the department a lawsuit. This is especially on my mind because the K9s are the biggest liability piece of equipment we have. Qualities of being a K9 handler are to make quick sound decisions, mature, reliable and adaptable.

Part of our mission is to provide excellent police services to the citizens and guests of the city. Attached is MO Batteiger's drug seizure stats. You will see that just in this year alone, there has been zero drug product seizures. It is true that K9s need time to mature/develop; however, K9 Cyrus and MO Batteiger have been out of training since June 2022. Minot Police Department's K9s are used as locating tools whether that is drugs/explosives/people/articles etc. This raises the question, is the problem the dog or the handler. I have spoken to you about the lack of training hours that was an issue a few months back. MO Batteiger was put in a position to train the K9. I do not know how we can, as an agency, argue the need for an additional drug detection dog (4th dog) as the stats show we are not finding any.

MO Batteiger has also had the recent issue that K9 Cyrus is regressing on tracking. Lt. Chapman and I have told him that he needs to make these tracks "fun" for him and not be "boring". While I do believe the tracking is a specific training issue that can easily be corrected in training, MO Batteiger has repeatedly done what he believes is best vs what I have suggested or Lt. Chapman has suggested. Additionally, MPO Batteiger and MPO Connole were given specific instructions by myself and by our kennel provider, Steve Pearson to not let K9 Ike play with tug toys during the bonding stages prior to the 10 week long training as the dogs do not know the word "out". Having them "play" with tug toys can create a conflict between the handler and the K9. MPO Batteiger and MPO Connole went against what was told to them resulting in MPO Connole getting bit. MPO Battieger stated this was his idea and now knows it was a bad decision.

I do believe that K9 Cyrus has potential to be a great dual-purpose dog for the Minot Police Department; however, the lack of results, policy violations and lack of trust/confidence leads me to suggest a recommendation for removal of the current K9 handler. I believe this is what is BEST for the Minot Police Department and the community.

I have also spoken with our Kennel in Minnesota (Performance Kennels) and to send a new handler with K9 Cyrus will cost $6500. The switch of handlers I hope is not looked at as a negative change. K9 Cyrus is young enough that switching handlers would be of ease. I understand this is not something we as a department have ever done before, but again my intent is only to suggest what is best.

On our Sgt meeting (07/17/23) after you left, MO Batteiger was a topic of conversation starting with Sgt Bambenek for unsatisfactory work performance on the road. I am not sure if having a K9 is causing his patrol work performance to lack. This section was documented in the minutes posted by Lt. Wegner stemming from a pursuit incident of MPO Batteiger's. If having a K9 is too much than this again would back my recommendation for change of handlers. Entrustment of a K-9 (a potential use of force) to an officer who is not physically or mentally fit can be a concern for negligent entrustment.

K9, as any specialty unit, is subject to litigation. I personally believe that K9s have the highest liability exposure as an agency unit, as they are being deployed daily. This leads to my question is how many letters of counseling is cause for removal from any specialized team?

On 08/29/2023 TFO Wilkerson came to the PD to express concerns about K9 Cyrus' inability to locate drugs in callouts that the K9 should have "alerted". TFO Wilkerson stated both him and TFO Miller have become increasingly frustrated calling out MO Batteiger/ K9 Cyrus and having no alerts. TFO Wilkerson stated that in a recent incident, MO Batteiger ran K9 Cyrus on a vehicle and he indicated that K9 Cyrus did not alert. TFO Wilkerson stated they asked the individuals if they could pat them down which resulted in eventually locating drugs/narcotics on the individuals. TFO Wilkerson stated this can create issues with their cases and want to resort to using Ward County's K9 (Baxi) as they feel that he is more reliable. I asked TFos if they could document through reports any incidents of this nature.

Captain, I don't want this K9 program to fail and I respect any decision you/and/or the Chief make.

Respectfully

Sgt Jensen

Administrative Investigation 23-12

RE: The loss of control of narcotics from the canine training allocation

ADMINISTRATIVE INVESTIGATION

Introduction:

Employee:	Lt. David Chapman, Sgt. Taylor Jensen, M.O. Daniel Batteiger, and S.O. Michael Connole
Source of Complaint:	Notification from Lt. David Chapman
Interviewed:	Lt. David Chapman, Sgt. Taylor Jensen, M.O. Daniel Batteiger, and S.O. Michael Connole
Complaint Date:	December 14, 2023
Investigation Date:	December 20, 2023
Investigator:	Capt. Dale Plessas – Minot Police Department

Synopsis:

On December 14, 2023, at 1630 hours members of the Minot Police Department K9 team, to include Lt. Chapman (coordinator), Sergeant Jensen (handler), and S.O. Michael Connole, met with two handlers from McHenry County Sheriff's Department for bimonthly K9 training. Master Officer Batteiger was not present for this training as he was home sick.

The training was conducted at the Minot Police Department in the old City Council Chambers. The training was a drug detection training where drugs were to be hidden in specialized K9 popper boxes. While placing drugs in popper boxes, Sgt. Jensen discovered that the 15.7-gram sample of heroin was missing. She immediately alerted Lt. Chapman. Lt. Chapman conducted a limited search for the drugs and then contacted Capt. Sundheim to report the discrepancy.

Chief John Klug assigned this investigation with focus on the following questions:

- Who signed out the narcotics?
- Who accessed the drugs during that time?
    - Voluntary hair follicle testing of all with access.
- Were current policies/procedures followed?
- Were additional attempts to locate since the initial report?

Summary of investigation:

During this investigation, I interviewed each of the members of the K9 team starting with Master Officer Daniel Batteiger, Senior Officer Michael Connole, Lieutenant, Dave Chapman, and finishing with Sergeant Taylor Jensen. I later found it necessary to re-interview M.O. Batteiger and S.O. Connole to clarify some items. I began my interviews by orientating myself on the K9 drug kit make up and process of the K9 team. I learned that the K9 drug kit is made up of 4 types of narcotics to include Methamphetamine, crack cocaine, cocaine, and heroin. Each of these drugs were received via the DEA laboratory and were sent in 1 oz samples or roughly 28 grams (see: 2023 K9 forms -DEA Request). The samples were then broken into three smaller samples by the K9 team. This was done by breaking the sample in half and then breaking one of the halves in half again. The largest of the Samples of heroin was measured at 15.7 grams. These smaller samples were then placed individually in canvas bags with a label that indicated the size of the sample. The three samples of a drug type were then placed in a small glass jar, similar to a baby food container. Each of the narcotic samples undergo the same process and are stored in a pelican case that is referred to as the K9 drug kit. This kit generally would be stored in a locked locker located in a basement storage room at the Minot Police Department. The storage room has limited access among police personnel and the locked K9 locker has a combination lock that limits access to members of the K9 team. Members who assist the K9 team, commonly referred to as decoys, do not have access to this locker. The K9 locker has a paper log, titled Drug inventory Log, that is used for tracking the K9 drug kit usage (I took pictures to illustrate each of these storage locations and log, Images 1 – 8). LT. Chapman indicated in his statement that he developed a digital log but acknowledged that it is not used with any consistency. He indicated that this is ironic as members of the team wanted the digital log, but they do not use it. In my review I determined that M.O. Batteiger and S.O. Connole do not use the digital log. Connole indicated that he has not been able to get the log to work on his cell phone. Sgt. Jensen does regularly use the digital log when accessing training aids.

It appears that inventories of the K9 drug kit are inconsistent at best. In interviews with Lt. Chapman and M.O. Batteiger it was determined that there is no formal process in place for inventory of drug samples in the K9 kit. Lt. Chapman and M.O. Batteiger acknowledged that they do not formally inventory the kit prior to taking or upon returning the kit to the locker, beyond ensuring all of the bottles are inside. M.O. Batteiger said it is not part of his process to take a physical count or inventory of the K9 kit. S.O. Connole indicated that it is his experience that an inventory is done after each training event. Despite this statement, he acknowledged that he retrieved the kit in from M.O. Batteiger's patrol vehicle in preparation for the December 14, 2023, training, but did not do an inventory. Each indicated that during training, sometimes they take a sample out of the bottle and use them individually, and sometimes they use the full sample, in and out of the bottle. Each indicated that they should notice if a sample is missing but could not be certain of this.

Further complicating tracking of these drugs is inadequacies in training documentation. The K9 team utilizes the Packtrack system for monitoring training. The system provides a great means of monitoring all of the various training activities by members of the K9 team. The System permits the K9 handler to be very detailed in documentation of training. The inadequacy comes with documenting specific training aid being used. While S.O. Connole seems to document the specific size of sample he utilizes, M.O. Batteiger often indicates "1 item" when the full sample is not used. This makes it difficult to determine when the 15.7-gram sample was last used. The last recorded date that the 15.7-gram sample was listed in training is Jun 23, 2023, at MSU (see: Excersize-Detail-Report-9328-vBaoL hrp Pg28). There were multiple times where 28 grams, or 1 ounce, was listed, but it is difficult to know if the handler observed all three samples, or simply used the whole jar and considered it the full sample. Sgt. Jensen indicated that she handled placement of one of the 6-gram sample (the Packtrack log shows 6.4 grams) of heroin on November 12, 2023, and felt confident that if the 15.7-gram sample was missing, she would have noticed, but could not be certain of this.

M.O. Batteiger stated that after, former K9 handler, Sgt. Pappenfus left the Minot PD, Batteiger's dog was the only narcotics dog left, so he commonly left the K9 kit in his vehicle. This is documented on the drug inventory log as M.O. Batteiger checked the full kit out from February 28, 2023, to November 13, 2023 (ref image 2). According to Lt. Chapman storing the drugs in a patrol car long term, was consistent with how he and other past drug detection K9 handlers operated. Nevertheless, Lt. Chapman acknowledged that he knew this was not good practice, so he put out an order stating that the K9 kit could only be checked out of the locker for three days at a time for the full kit, and 7 days at a time for a partial kit. If more time was necessary, the handler would need approval of the K9 coordinator. Samples were not to be split apart (partial odors from the same drug type) at any time (See: Minot Police Department Unit Expectations). This order was distributed at the first training in November. M.O. Batteiger stated that after this order was given, he checked the kit back into the K-9 locker, but he and Officer Connole split the kit apart. He took the heroin with the intent of training with it. The Drug Inventory Log showed that the M.O. Batteiger checked the heroin sample out of the locker on the same date that he checked the full kit back in, November 13, 2023. The log also showed that S.O. Connole checked a partial kit containing methamphetamine, crack cocaine, and cocaine out, thirteen days later, on November 26th, 2023, and returned it on November 29, 2023.

A noteworthy discrepancy shows that M.O. Batteiger logged the heroin sample back in on November 26, 2023, but heroin was absent from S.O. Connole's check out of the partial kit on November 26, 2023. M.O. Batteiger stated that he recalls placing the sample in the kit and did not leave the lone heroin container in the locker. He also indicated that he did not give it to S.O. Connole. With the indications on the log, this explanation is not possible. Also noteworthy is that the handwritten "2" in the number 26, in M.O. Batteiger's log check in date, appears modified, potentially from a "1". If the date was listed as "1" the check in date would have been November 16th, 2023, which would have been consistent with Lt. Chapman's directive. M.O. Batteiger acknowledged that the date listed was November 26, 2023, which he acknowledged put him in violation of Lt. Chapman's directive. He indicated he could have been wrong on his date that they split the drugs. Also noteworthy was that S.O. Connole logged training on November 26, 2023, and listed cocaine and methamphetamine but did not utilize heroin. After refreshing his memory with the use of the drug inventory log and Packtrack training log, S.O. Connole recalled that he had checked out the kit on November 26, 2023, to train with Sgt. Jensen and M.O. Batteiger but said that Batteiger indicated that he had possession of the heroin sample, so Connole did not check that sample out nor use it in training.

Sgt. Jensen pointed out that Lt. Chapman had instructed M.O. Batteiger, via e-mail, that she should be involved in the process of replacement of the K9 kit (See: DEA Narcotics – e-mail from Lt. Chapman). She said Batteiger went forward with the process without her. Sgt Jensen found out about this when she received a DEA certificate forwarded to her from Lt. Chapman (see: DEA Cert – e-mail to Sgt. Jensen). She then asked Batteiger about this and he said he did not want a headache for the both of them. In their interviews, both Sgt. Jensen and S.O. Connole made mention that it was a red flag that M.O. Batteiger had sent the paperwork in to the DEA to have the drugs destroyed and shortly after Sgt. Jensen discovered that the heroin sample was missing. Officer Connole said M.O. Batteiger had advised him the kit was out of use for up to six weeks because the drugs were being destroyed. In fact, Officer Connole pointed to the December 5th, 2023, training and indicated that he took a fentanyl training aid (a pseudo-odor) because he was under the belief that the K9 drug kit was destroyed. Officer Connole said it was a surprise to him on December 7th, 2023, training to see the kit was still available. At this training Lt. Chapman did utilize the 1 Ounce sample of heroin but indicated that he did not know for sure if the full sample was there, and indicated in hindsight, something seemed to be off. He equated his feeling to a situation where you feel like something is off, but just cannot put your finger on it. He acknowledged that he did not inventory the drugs, so he does not know for sure. M.O. Batteiger acknowledged that he did tell S.O Connole that he was destroying the drugs. He said replacing the k9 drug kit was a new process to him and he didn't know that he would need to wait for a letter from the DEA before he could destroy it. M.O. Batteiger said he had a conversation with Sgt. Foley to determine the process to destroy the drugs but learned that he needed to wait for the letter, after that conversation. Sgt. Foley recalled having a conversation with Batteiger but could not give a specific date other than to estimate it was roughly the end of November or beginning of December.

It was determined that Lt. David Chapman, Sgt. Taylor Jensen, Master Officer Daniel Batteiger, and S.O. Michael Connole were the only people to have access to the drug kit. Each was asked to submit to a voluntary drug test. Since I was unable to pinpoint the date that the heroin went missing, a decision to utilize hair follicle testing was made. The hair follicle test provides the best results for a long length of time (up to 90 days). Julie Eidemiller, from Trinity Occupational Medicine, advised that the 5-panel test was recommended for opioid screening. This was the test selected. Lt. Chapman, Sgt. Jensen, M.O. Batteiger, and S.O. Connole each separately agreed to provide a sample for testing. They were individually directed to Trinity Occupational Medicine where they provided a sample. Each screening resulted in negative results for all five panels (see attached file: City of Minot PD K9-Hair -Connole, Chapman, Jensen, & Batteiger).

When Lt. Chapman was informed of the missing narcotics on December 14, 2023, he went to the last location where he knew the drugs had been used in training. He returned to John Hoeven Elementary and Minot State University. After failing to locate the missing heroin, he contacted Capt. Sundheim and informed him of the missing drugs. Sgt. Jensen and S.O. Connole searched the K9 kit to ensure it was not inadvertently placed in the wrong jar. On December 15, 2023, Lt. Chapman sent an e-mail to K9 handlers Daniel Batteiger and Michael Connole with a list of training logs pages from Packtrack. He instructed them to start working backwards through each of the locations where heroin was used in training (see: E-mail string from Officer Connole). S.O. Connole searched most of these locations to include searching the administrative vehicles used in hides (see: Note-Michael Connole, 1 & 2) while M.O. Batteiger searched other locations.

- Who signed out the narcotics?
    - Since the last known time that the 15.7-gram sample was in use (June 23, 2023, training at MSU) M.O. Batteiger was the only handler to check the heroin out. S.O. Connole checked the kit out on November 26, 2023, but only signed for Meth/CC/Coke.
- Who accessed the drugs during that time?
    - Since June 23, 2023, each of the handlers of the K9 team, to include Lt. Chapman, Sgt. Jensen, M.O. Batteiger, and S.O. Connole had access to the K9 kit and used it in training in some way.
    - Voluntary hair follicle testing of all with access.
        - All submitted voluntary hair follicle samples for testing. All tested negative for drug use.
- Were current policies/procedures followed?
    - See the applicable policy section.
- Were additional attempts to locate since the initial report?
    - Each member contributed to searches for the missing heroin. Lt. Chapman directed his team to search every location that the drug was used since the last known possession (June 23, 2023), to no avail.

Conclusion:

The 15.7-gram training aid sample was discovered missing on December 14, 2023, but it most certainly had been missing prior to that date. The last record of this sample's use was six months prior, on June 23, 2023, at a K9 drug detection training at Minot State University. While the drugs were consistently stored in M.O. Batteiger's locked car, and less commonly in the K9 locker, there was never any indication of theft from either of these locations. The K9 team has no formalized procedure for inventory on the K9 drug kit. Heroin had been used in at least six training sessions from June 23, 2023, to December 14, 2023. The K9 training system, Packtrack, would have been a great resource for tracking the sample use, if proper sample descriptions were consistently used. This was not the case as M.O Batteiger often listed "1 item" instead of using product weight in the amount section of the report. As a result, it is unclear when the 15.7-gram sample of heroin went missing. What is clear is that M.O. Batteiger was the only handler to check out the heroin samples from the locker, and he possessed them exclusively, from February 28, 2023, (he checked the other three drug samples back in on November 13, 2023, but kept the heroin sample), until at least November 26, 2023, when he signed the heroin sample back into the locker. This return date is also in question as S.O. Connole checked the kit out on the same day (notably absent the heroin sample) that M.O. Batteiger indicated he had returned it. In his second interview M.O. Batteiger acknowledged that this entry could not be accurate if S.O. Connole had the case in his possession at that time, but he could not give any explanation for the discrepancy. He surmised that he may have listed the wrong date on the log. Further adding suspicion to this situation was the timing of all of this. M.O. Batteiger was in the process of having the kit destroyed for the impending replacement samples. He did this unilaterally and without the knowledge or involvement of Sgt. Jensen, as he was instructed by Lt. Chapman. In fact, S.O. Connole was under the belief that this process had already happened as per a conversation he had with M.O. Batteiger. M.O. Batteiger acknowledged having this conversation with Connole but indicated at the time he did not understand that he had to wait for a letter from the DEA to destroy the kit. The kit was not permissible to be destroyed, so it was returned to training on December 7th, 2023. The heroin sample was not noticed missing on that date, but an inventory was not completed. Lt. Chapman did indicate that he felt something was off regarding the heroin sample at that training. While these circumstances are suspicious, no evidence of theft of the heroin was found in this investigation. Each of the K9 handlers voluntarily submitted to drug screening and all resulted in negative tests.

Applicable Policy:

I reviewed the following applicable policies:

Policy 309- Canines

Policy 322 - Standards of Conduct

Police 324 – Report Preparation

Policy 700 – Department-Owned and Personal Property

Policy 309 - Canines

309.4 CANINE COORDINATOR

The canine coordinator shall be appointed by the Chief and directly responsible to the Patrol Commander.

The responsibilities of the coordinator include, but are not limited to:

(a) Reviewing all canine use reports to ensure compliance with policy and to identify training issues and other needs of the program.
(b) Maintaining accurate records to document canine activities.
(c) Not reviewed.

Lt. David Chapman is the K9 Coordinator.

(a) There is evidence that Lt. Chapman reviewed all the K9 training reports as they all show that he signed off on them. Lt. Chapman identified a procedure issue and adjusted it based on his evaluation that it was improper for a K9 handler to maintain control of the K9 kit for an extended period (See: Minot Police Department Unit Expectations).

(b) While the accuracy of M.O. Batteiger's reports should have been better, the reports were not inaccurate. Good records are kept via the Packtrack system which documents K9 training activities apart from M.O. Batteiger's neglecting to add weight to describe samples being used.

309.9 TRAINING

Before assignment in the field, each canine team shall be trained and certified to meet current nationally recognized standards or other recognized and approved certification standards. Cross-trained canine teams or those canine teams trained exclusively for the detection of narcotics and/or explosives also shall be trained and certified to meet current nationally recognized standards or other recognized and approved certification standards established for their particular skills.
All canine training should be conducted while on-duty unless otherwise approved by the canine coordinator or Patrol Supervisor.

309.9.3 TRAINING RECORDS

All canine training records shall be maintained by the canine handler and the canine's training file.

Training records are maintained in the Packtrack system. The K9 Coordinator and the K9 team members have access to review these records. The K9 Coordinator finalizes the reports when he signs off on them.

309.9.4 CONTROLLED SUBSTANCE TRAINING AIDS

Officers acting in the performance of their official duties may possess or transfer controlled substances for the purpose of narcotics-detection canine training in compliance with state and federal laws (N.D.C.C. § 19-03.1-16; 21 USC § 823(f)).

The Chief of Police or the authorized designee may authorize a member to seek a court order to allow controlled substances seized by the Minot Police Department to be possessed by the member or a narcotics-detection canine trainer who is working under the direction of this department for training purposes, provided the controlled substances are no longer needed as criminal evidence.

As an alternative, the Chief of Police or the authorized designee may request narcotics training aids from the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA).

These procedures are not required if the canine handler uses commercially available synthetic substances that are not controlled narcotics.

The Chief of Police has authorized and made a request for the use of training aids provided by the DEA. The K9 Team was properly registered to maintain these narcotics (See: 2023 K9 forms -DEA Request).

309.9.5 CONTROLLED SUBSTANCE PROCEDURES

Due to the responsibilities and liabilities involved with possessing readily usable amounts of controlled substances and the ever-present danger of the canine's accidental ingestion of these controlled substances, the following procedures shall be strictly followed:

(a) All controlled substance training samples shall be weighed and tested prior to dispensing to the individual canine handler or trainer.
(b) Blank
(c) Blank
(d) All controlled substance training samples may be inspected, weighed, and tested. The results of the quarterly testing shall be recorded and maintained by the canine coordinator with a copy forwarded to the dispensing agency.
(e) All controlled substance training samples will be stored in locked, airtight, and watertight cases at all times, except during training. The locked cases shall be secured in the trunk of the canine handler's assigned patrol vehicle during transport and stored in an appropriate locked container.
(f) All DEA obtained controlled substance aids shall be destroyed in accordance with DEA procedures. All other controlled substance training aids shall be destroyed in accordance with department controlled substance destruction procedures.

The investigation found:

(a) All controlled substance training samples were weighed upon receipt and broken to smaller sample sizes.
(b) blank
(c) blank
(d) There is no record of the substances being inspected, weighed, or tested nor did any of the handlers make any indication that this was a practice. This section indicates," substances training samples may be inspected, weighed, and tested". The failure to do so may be poor practice but is not a violation of this policy.
(e) All samples, except for the missing sample, were stored in an airtight, and watertight pelican case. This case is not locked as required by this policy. The case was stored for extended periods of time in the back of M.O Batteiger's locked patrol vehicle. This policy does permit a locked case, secured in the trunk of a K9 handler's car during transport, but Batteiger had an unlocked case in the back of his patrol car for approximately 8 and ½ months. Furthermore, this goes well beyond transport of the drugs and the intent of this policy. It should be noted that storage of the drugs in a patrol car was an accepted procedure at the time and up until Batteiger returned the drugs on November 13, 2023, but at that time he was directed by Lt. Chapman not to store them beyond 3 days. He was again in violation when he stored heroin in his car outside of the locked pelican case, for up to 13 days, between November 13, 2023, to November 26th, 2023.
(f) M.O. Batteiger was in the process of starting the destruction of the drugs in this kit when he learned that he was required to wait until receiving a letter, permitting their destruction, by the DEA. He did suspend his effort to destroy these drugs, so as to be in compliance with DEA procedures.

Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct

322.2 POLICY

The continued employment or appointment of every member of the Minot Police Department shall be based on conduct that reasonably conforms to the guidelines set forth herein. Failure to meet the guidelines set forth in this policy, whether on- or off-duty, may be cause for disciplinary action.

322.3 DIRECTIVES AND ORDERS

Members shall comply with lawful directives and orders from any department supervisor or person in a position of authority, absent a reasonable and bona fide justification.

On or before November 13 Lt. David Chapman, the K9 Coordinator, gave the K9 team a document titled Minot Police Department K9 Unit Expectations. This document was as a lawful order to the K9 team. In section 10 of this document Lt. Chapman directs the team to "treat and maintain training aids properly".

As part of this order, he made modification to the procedure of checking out and maintaining drugs outside of the K9 locker. In this order he required the K9 handlers to check the training aids via the digital app. He limited the time the handler could maintain training aids to three days (or 72 hours) for a full kit, or 7 days (or 168 hours) for half of a kit. After this order was given, M.O. Batteiger admitted that he returned the K9 drug kit to the locker, but immediately checked out the heroin sample for an additional 13 days, in disregard for this order.

322.5 CAUSES FOR DISCIPLINE

The following are illustrative of causes for disciplinary action. This list is not intended to cover every possible type of misconduct and does not preclude the recommendation of disciplinary action for violation of other rules, standards, ethics and specific action or inaction that is detrimental to efficient department service.

322.5.1 LAWS, RULES AND ORDERS

(a) Violation of, or ordering or instructing a subordinate to violate any policy, procedure, rule, order, directive, requirement or failure to follow instructions contained in department or City manuals.

(b) Disobedience of any legal directive or order issued by any department member of a higher rank.

(c) Violation of federal, state, local or administrative laws, rules or regulations.

M.O. Batteiger disobeyed Lt. Chapman's order by maintaining the K9 kit outside of the K9 locker for 13 days.

Police 324 – Report Preparation

324.1 PURPOSE AND SCOPE

Report preparation is a major part of each employee's job. The purpose of reports is to document sufficient information to refresh the employee's memory and to provide sufficient information for follow-up investigation and successful prosecution.

324.1.1 REPORT PREPARATION

Employees should ensure that their reports are sufficiently detailed for their purpose and reasonably free of errors prior to submission. It is the responsibility of the assigned employee to complete and submit all reports taken during the shift before going off-duty, unless permission to delay submission of the report has been approved by a supervisor. Generally, reports requiring prompt follow-up action on active leads or arrest reports where the suspect remains in custody should not be delayed.

324.2 REQUIRED REPORTING

Written reports are required in all of the following situations on the appropriate department-approved form unless otherwise approved by a supervisor.

324.2.2 NON-CRIMINAL ACTIVITY

Whenever the employee believes the circumstances should be documented or at the direction of a supervisor

Lt. Chapman, as well as MPD Policy 309, expressed the importance of maintaining records to show that the K9 team members are appropriately trained. To this end, he initiated the Packtrack training log system. This log permits K9 handlers to submit detailed reports about their activities. Lt. Chapman has instructed his handlers to log their reports within 24 hours of the event. Policy 324.1.1 requires the reports be “sufficiently detailed for their purpose”. M.O. Batteiger appears to be the only handler to neglect to document the weight of the training sample. This proved to be problematic when trying to narrow down when the 15.7-gram sample was last used, resulting in substantially more effort being expended in searching for the missing sample.

700.1 PURPOSE AND SCOPE

The policy addresses the care of department-owned property and the role of the Department when personal property, the property of another or department-owned property is damaged or lost.

700.3 POLICY

It is the policy of the Minot Police Department that members shall properly care for department property assigned or entrusted to them…

700.4 DEPARTMENT-ISSUED PROPERTY

All property and equipment issued by the Department shall be documented in the appropriate property sheet or equipment log; receipt shall be acknowledged by signature…

A drug inventory log is maintained, to track when K9 handlers have access to the K9 drug kit. Maintaining an accurate log is essential as any discrepancies in the log leads to questions of impropriety. A discrepancy was observed in the November 26, 2023, entry where M.O. Batteiger noted returning the heroin sample to the kit, but a subsequent entry by S.O. Connole, checking the kit out on November 26, 2023, shows that the heroin was not present in the kit (see: Image 2). M.O. Batteiger acknowledges that his entry cannot be accurate. It is also note worth that the entry appears to have been altered from a "1" in the day, to a "2" (changing the day from 11/16/23 to 11/26/23). Lt. Chapman indicated that he created a digital log that could not be altered, but the log was not used by M.O. Batteiger or S.O. Connole.

700.4.1 CARE OF PROPERTY

Members shall be responsible for the safekeeping, serviceable condition, proper care, use and replacement of department property that has been assigned or entrusted to them. Intentional or negligent abuse or misuse of department property may lead to discipline including, but not limited to, the cost of repair or replacement.

(a) Members shall promptly report, through their chain of command, any loss, damage to, or unserviceable condition of any department-issued property or equipment assigned for their use.

1. A supervisor receiving such a report shall conduct an investigation and direct a memo to the appropriate Division Commander, in circumstances where misconduct or negligence caused the loss, damage or unserviceable condition.
2. A review by command staff should determine whether additional action is appropriate.

It is not clear when the 15.7-gram sample of heroin when missing, but M.O. Batteiger is the only K9 handler to sign this sample out of the locker. As a result, he took responsibility for this sample and should have accounted for it. He acknowledged that he does not regularly maintain inventories of the K9 drug kit as part of his process. Lt. Chapman reported asking M.O. Batteiger if he had everything at the end of the December 7th, 2023, training. It was at the next training that the sample was learned to be missing. S.O. Connole did not check the K9 kit out of the locker but acknowledged taking the kit from M.O. Batteiger's car in preparation for the December 14, 2023, training. S.O. Connole should have inventoried the kit at that time to ensure that he had the whole kit in his possession.

City of Minot

Police Department

February 23, 2024

To: Daniel Batteiger, Master Police Officer

Ref: 23-12, Chief's Letter of Discipline

This is a summary and order of discipline resulting from the investigation of Master Officer Daniel Batteiger reference internal administrative investigation 23-12 regarding the missing narcotics from the canine training kit.

On December 14, 2023, it was discovered that 15.7 grams of heroin, packaged for training canine teams for narcotics detection, was missing. Upon being notified, I assigned the administrative investigation to Capt. Dale Plessas. The full investigative report is available in the internal file and will be maintained for reference. The investigation was to determine if the narcotics were misplaced or taken by one of the four employees with access to the storage location.

The result of the internal investigation showed that the last person to sign out the heroin samples was Officer Batteiger. The night of December 13, 2024, the heroin kit was retrieved by Officer Connole from Officer Batteiger's vehicle, which was parked at Batteiger's residence. The kit was not inventoried, but it remained sealed until the evening of December 14, 2023, and it was at that time that Sgt. Taylor Jensen found the 15.7 gram sample was missing from the kit.

With Officer Batteiger being the primary handler to check the narcotics out from the locker and the handler who had most recently checked it out, I find that most of the responsibility for the missing sample lies with him.

Based on the results of the investigation, I find the following violations of policy and have set discipline based on the seriousness of the violations which are all sustained and are basis for this disciplinary action.

- Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct
    - 322.5.1 LAWS, RULES, AND ORDERS
      (b) Disobedience of any legal directive or order issued by any department member of a higher rank.
        - Maintained possession of heroin training kit beyond the time allowed by the directive issued by Lt. Dave Chapman.
    - 322.5.7 EFFICIENCY
      (b) Unsatisfactory work performance including, but not limited to, failure, incompetence, inefficiency, or delay in performing and/or carrying out proper orders, work assignments or the instructions of supervisors without a reasonable and bona fide excuse.

- Failure to maintain minimum training requirements.
- Failure to inventory samples when checked out for training.
- Maintaining possession of sample beyond the allotted time allowed.

- 322.5.9 CONDUCT
  (i) Unauthorized possession of, loss of, or damage to department property or the property of others or endangering it through carelessness or maliciousness.
  - Maintained the samples of heroin with poor practices of inventory and accountability.

My concerns about this incident are inflated by the history of disciplinary actions with Officer Daniel Batteiger. He has been counseled for errors made while instructing the deployment of our spike systems, policy violation associated with the pursuit of an off-highway vehicle, and failure to maintain the required level of training with his canine as established by the department. Officer Batteiger has also been suspended for a Standards of Conduct violation, which was largely reflective of poor judgement.

Discipline: As a result of these policy violations, I am ordering the following for Master Officer Daniel Batteiger:

- This letter will serve as a letter of reprimand for the violations of the Standards of Conduct policy.
- Officer Dan Batteiger will be removed from his position as a canine handler and surrender Cyrus to the Canine Coordinator by the date and time set by the Chief of Police.
  - Date: 2/26/2024 Time: 1730
- Officer Batteiger will no longer instruct Emergency Vehicle Operations Courses for the Department or its' members.
- A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Daniel Batteiger in the Office of the Chief of Police.

John Klug, Chief of Police — Date: 2/23/2024

I have been given a copy of this disciplinary decision.

Master Police Officer
Minot Police Department

RE: Allegations against Master Officer Dan Batteiger

Beginning on Friday, July 12th, you reported to Brittany Thurston, Senior HR Generalist, that you had concerns about your safety at work and the conduct of Master Officer Dan Batteiger. You restated those concerns to me on Monday, July 15th and again when we met on Tuesday, July 16th. During these meetings, you cited several examples of his behavior that you felt were sexually inappropriate towards yourself and/or other officers. In addition, you indicated a lack of integrity on the part of Batteiger within the Police Department.

All allegations are taken seriously and it is the intention of the Human Resource Department to thoroughly investigate all claims of misconduct as it relates to the employees of the City of Minot. After interviewing the parties involved, there were no assertions by any party of unwanted or inappropriate actions or comments on the part of Batteiger other than your complaint regarding sexual comments made in an isolated incident approximately 2 years ago. In addition, based on all the information provided and upon review of personnel files, we have determined that while Batteiger has had performance and policy violations in the past, all issues have been previously addressed by the leadership team of the Police Department and corrective measures were taken. By all accounts, Batteiger has responded appropriately to these measures. While you may not agree with the decisions made in regards to Mst Officer Batteiger's past performance, there is no evidence to support further corrective or disciplinary action at this time.

In regards to your work assignments and performance management conversations with the leadership team at the Police Department, it has also been determined that the actions taken were in the interests of providing the best possible environment for your success. Your contributions to the Police Department and City of Minot as a whole are valued. It is our expectation that all parties move forward in a professional and mutually beneficial manner.

Sincerely,

Monica Porterfield

Performance Improvement Plan

This plan is meant to promote employee growth and development in meeting performance expectations. This tool is designed to identify performance concerns and steps to improve performance. In addition, it provides a process for follow up procedures between employee and supervisor to encourage continued communication about performance.

DESIRED PERFORMANCE: (Describe the desired performance expectations. Give specific examples of productivity, efficiency, teamwork, quality, attendance, conduct, other.)

1) Make decisions consistent and in accordance with MPD policy. Dan is an employee who has come to the Minot Police Department with previous law enforcement experience and training. Based on this, we expect Dan to make good, rational decisions when confronted with various situations a patrolman/K9 handler will encounter. An example would be: Knowing if/when to continue or call-off the pursuit of a fleeing vehicle. He should be able to weigh the positives v. the negatives, Officer and Public safety, Legality and Policy viability.
2) Complete all assigned tasks. When tasks are assigned or volunteered for, there should be reasonable timeliness for completion. Communication about progress, delays, and problems should be regularly updated up the chain of command. An example would be if you were assigned to conceptualize a K9 Demonstration, plan how it should look, what space, equipment and helpers you will need to make that happen prior to a specified date. That idea should then be presented for approval, once approved time, before the demonstration date, should be allowed for practice.
3) Improved Communication. Communication should flow freely in all directions. Handlers should keep their peers and supervision advised of any out-of-town training or time off of work so that plans can be made in the event a dog is needed. An example of an approved school out of state, once the school is approved by the Administrative Captain, it should be entered by the handler onto the K9 calendar in Outlook; or an Email to K9 supervision should be sent to ensure notification is made.
4) Know your dog. The handler must become the 'expert' of their dog. They should be able to know, almost 2nd nature, what the dog is doing and what the dog is detecting. The handler must be cognizant of the dog's changes in behavior, and must be able to articulate what they are, and what they mean. An example of this may be: The handler and dog team are walking through a cold storage area, the dog's ear perk-up, his breathing changes, he pulls hard and steady toward a storage unit 30 meters up wind. The handler should know that the dog has alerted (change of behavior) on a strong odor which he is trained to find. The handler should be able, based on their knowledge of the dog, to decipher whether it is Human, or Narcotic odor.
5) Stop minimizing the bad – be honest with yourself and others. Being an effective handler is a journey of constant struggle and desire to improve. In order to improve the handler must be able to separate 'themselves' from their 'performance'; meaning being critical of your performance is not a personal assault on you as a person, it is important information that is needed and is the only way to know what needs improving upon. After a training, there are ALWAYS things that should be brought up and worked on. It does no one any good to gloss over and minimize those flaws, they only add upon each other to create larger problems. Problems should be highlighted, and brought to the fore-front.

6) Maintain timely and accurate K9 records. After each deployment and training, the handler should enter the data into PackTrak at their earliest opportunity. This will give the best chance to enter the most accurate data with the least lost to time and memory. If a training is done where the dog is not verbally 'outing', the entry should be made during, or directly after the training. Detailed notes should be made as to the circumstance, who was involved, and what was worked on. A future training / corrective plan should be generally laid out if possible.

ACTUAL PERFORMANCE: (Describe the employee's current performance. Give specific examples of productivity, efficiency, teamwork, quality, attendance, conduct, other.)

1) After being assigned to the K9 Unit, MPO Batteiger has received (6) written letters of counseling, to include (1) letter of suspension. Dates range from 2/8/2022 through 7/4/2023 (about 18 months – averaging 1 letter every 3 months). There were no repeated areas of concern. This appears to be a deficiency in the general decision-making process.
2) MPD Batteiger has volunteered, or been assigned several tasks to complete since his assignment to the K9 unit. Some of the tasks requiring extensive follow-up remain incomplete, with no progress updates, or were finished by someone else.
    a. Area for 'boxes' at Fire Training Grounds
    b. Assigned to design a 'demo' for an event (Ryan Honda Fundraiser) and practice it
    c. K9 Unit shirt order
3) MPO Batteiger was taking a week of comp-time during September and an additional week of being out of town (Instructing EVOC in Devils Lake, K9 Training). Any time a handler is going to be 'away' and unavailable, the K9 coordinator needs to be informed to plan for and accommodate K9 related needs from the schools, Patrol, and other agencies. MPO Batteiger failed to notify K9 supervision of the absence in advance.
4) Dan has been a certified handler for over 14 months, on numerous occasions, during formal and informal training we have covered the 'change of behavior' a dog exhibits when odor is detected. This applies to both human odor and narcotics odor. We have also covered what an 'alert' is, and how it differs from a 'final alert position'. Recently Dan has seemed not to understand the difference. When asked, he could not articulate what his dog's changes in behavior are (each dog is a little different). He seemed to not understand that probable cause is established by an 'Alert – change in behavior', not the 'final alert position – sit'. These are not new topics, and have been covered multiple times.
5) Dan minimizes or leaves out details on mistakes that are made. There have been several occasions where Dan has provided overviews of a call or a training exercise. He tends to emphasize the 'good' things and minimize, or gloss over the 'bad'. It is generally later found out that the problems were much more significant than initially stated. One example being: we did a training day at Lake Sakakawea State Park, one of the exercises was a tracking event. The decoy laid a track, and hid. Officer Batteiger began the track at the starting point with Office Connole walking with him, eventually finding the hidden decoy. Dan told me overall the track went well, and they worked through some small problems, but he felt good about how it went. I later found out that Officer Connole called the decoy and told the decoy they were lost, and needed some direction. The decoy told Officer Connole they needed to turn 90 degrees, to find them.

6) The training record keeping ultimately falls as the responsibility of the K9 handler. Dan enters his data consistently within a week of the end of the month which is when the coordinator checks for compliance. The K9 training software allows the handler to immediately enter training and deployment events while they are still 'fresh', allowing the handler to articulate accurate, beneficial data. Not entering training data in a timely fashion leaves training records open to potential discrepancies or forgotten training issues. discrepancies

PERFORMANCE IMPROVEMENT: (Describe the difference between the actual and desired performance.)

1) Currently Dan is using poor judgement in making decisions as evidenced by the written disciplinary actions. Use better judgement when making decisions.
2) Currently Dan is semi-reliable in completing assigned or volunteered for tasks, leaving his leadership questioning whether tasks will be completed or not. Completing all tasks reliably on-time is expected.
3) Dan tends to not tell the complete story; glossing over the negatives and emphasizing the positives, the negatives are more important as that is what we learn the most from. We expect to hear full and unabridged accounts of his actions (deployments and training). He tends to not always keep his leadership informed of how his schedule changes. To accommodate requests for service, and other planning, he will need to ensure his leadership teams are kept current.
4) Dan seems to have trouble recognizing what his dog is 'telling' him. He is expected to become THE expert on 'reading' his dog.
5) Dan will minimize any deficits in performance and training, focusing mainly on the best performance. All deficits in performance will need to receive emphasis at least equal to the best performances and actions.
6) Dan tends to wait until the 'last-minute' to enter training events into Packtrack. Training and deployments need to be entered in a timely manner, no later than 24 hours after the end of training so that vital details are not lost.

ACTION PLAN: (Identify actions to help improve performance. Utilize SMART goals in establishing plan.)

1) Use the 'tools' you already possess to make better decisions.
    a. LE Experience
    b. Training
    c. Life Experience
    d. Legal Case Precedents
    e. Knowledge of Laws/Ordinance
    f. Knowledge of City/MPD Policy
    g. If something seems questionable, slow down and analyze the situation to ensure policy compliance.
2) Use the tools available to you to keep yourself 'on-track'
    a. MS Office tools
        i. "To do list"
        ii. Make a "Teams" Notebook for projects
    b. Use a notebook
    c. Use an alternate phone app / schedule
3) Extra duty work will be restricted to 8 hours per month
    a. Includes: all RollKall based jobs
    b. "Normal" work related O.T. does not fall under this restriction
    c. Example not mentioned that will work for you: _____
4) Ensure your leadership is kept apprised of what you are doing (schools, vacations, compensation time…etc.) especially the times you will be away. It is best that it be in written form, as verbal communications can be forgotten during the course of conversations.

    a. Use Email
    b. Use Evertel
    c. Add your dates to the K9 Calendar (you should have edit access through outlook)
5) Become the 'expert' of reading your dog. It requires a lot of attention to detail as many of the changes in behavior exhibited by your dog are subtle. You have to know how your dog 'normally' acts, and when things are 'different' based on detection of odor.
    a. Do detection training while not watching, only listening to the dog's breathing. This will help you pick out his changes in sniff rate and breathing patterns
    b. Record odor detection, review it, and pick it apart.
        i. Cell phone
        ii. Go-Pro
        iii. Body-Worn Camera
        iv. Vehicle mounted camera
        v. Training with an experienced handler/trainer
6) The only way to learn and grow is through our mistakes. Put your pride aside, and highlight the things that did not go as planned. If you caused your dog to fail, own it – that way we can repeat it in training, and fix it. If your dog failed on his own – highlight and own that as well, we can find a way to fix it through the resources and connections we have available. Covering up deficiencies only makes them worse, it is much better to catch them early, before they become ingrained, and habitual.
7) Log all training and deployments in a timely manner. It should never take more than 24 hours after training ends to get them logged. Not logging them promptly leads to loss of important details.

MEASUREMENT: (Specify how desired performance will be measured. Give examples of timelines or milestones that will show achievement of desired performance level.)

1) Measurement criteria will be based on input from the sources listed below. The goal is to have no adverse formal documentation for the duration of this P.I.P (6 months from the initial delivery).
    a. Feedback from first line supervision (Sergeants)
    b. Lieutenant's note files
    c. Written disciplinary documentation
2) Measurement of success will be based on:
    a. The handler will complete and present a plan to Lt. Chapman detailing how they intend to ensure all tasks are completed fully and in a timely manner.
    b. All assignments will be completed fully and within the time agreed upon at the time of assignment.
3) Measurement of success will be based on
    a. Scheduled schools (when K9 team will be unavailable; whether attending or teaching) will be updated on the K9 calendar. Success will be achieved when there are zero undocumented schedule conflicts within the duration of this PIP.
    b. Scheduled time off (compensation time, vacation time, scheduled sick leave, and days off when unavailable) will be scheduled on the K9 calendar.
    c. Supervision is kept apprised on the status of all current projects
    d. K9 team is kept apprised of the working/training status and issues of your dog and yourself (problems, successes)
4) Measurement of success will be based on
    a. Provide Documentation (via PackTrack) that every training was completed.
    b. Follow through on E-Collar training. E-Collar training should, at minimum, be completed once during each formal training held the first and third Thursday of every month.

c. Seeking the training out

Your primary source for coordinating formal training will be Lt. Chapman. When there are slower times during shift, you should seek out assistance from Sgt. Jensen as her schedule allows. You will need to actively seek times for training, we are both more than willing to help.

d. Monitored training
    i. Sgt. Jensen.
    ii. Lt. Chapman.

e. Increased Proactive open-air sniffs on vehicles. The measure of success for this will be: Officer Batteiger will conduct open-air sniffs on not-less-than 25% of the average number of vehicles a patrol officer, working Officer Batteiger's normal shift hours, stops in a month. (this number will be calculated: (total number of traffic stops made during Officer Batteiger's normal working hours / total number of Officers assigned to the shift(s) = W ; W / the number of days in the month = X ; X * number of days Officer Batteiger worked = Y ; Y * .25 = Z)
    i. Examples of ways to increase number of open-air vehicle sniffs
        1. Make Traffic stops
        2. Not waiting to be called to stops Patrol Officers Make
        3. Network with Ward County Narcotics Taskforce

f. Ability to articulate the changes in behavior (alert to odor) Cyrus exhibits. Success will be measured when Officer Battieger can consistently identify the changes as they occur in 'live' scenario training under the supervision of Lt. Chapman and Sgt. Jensen:
    i. Alerting to the presence of narcotic odor
    ii. Showing changes in behavior to the presence of distracting odor
        1. Animal
        2. Food
        3. Treats
        4. Tape
        5. Spices
        6. Misc.
    iii. Alerting to the presence of human odor
    iv. Proximity alerts

g. Pass tests, whether written or practical, designed to demonstrate your 'expert knowledge' of your dog.
    i. Conduct 'blind' tracks successfully
    ii. Mock Certification – NPCA Standards
    iii. Successful article searches
        1. Locate articles thrown into area covered by foliage using the dog.
    iv. Successful (Double Blind) Room, Vehicle and area searches for narcotics
    v. Successful Room and area searches for human
    vi. Apprehension, verbal out, recall
    vii. Obedience (NPCA Standards)

5) Measurement of success will be based
    a. Descriptions of training and/or deployments should mostly match in positives and negatives between handler, decoys, and other involved parties (officers, supervisors).
    b. Mistakes and unfavorable outcomes/actions need to be highlighted as much as successes.
    c. Recognizing it is through the mistakes we 'own', we grow.

6) Measurement of success will be based on
    a. Training event details recorded in PackTrak within 1 day (24 hours) after the training event ends.
    b. Deployments details will be recorded in PackTrak to greater than 1 day (24 hours) after the deployment ends.
    c. All documentation will contain detailed accounts of what happened during the training or deployment (using the most current template for training events).

OUTCOMES: (Identify positive and negative outcomes with the employee regarding meeting or not meeting expectations. If termination is a possibility, it should be clearly communicated in the plan document.)

Meeting or showing substantial progress toward meeting the goals of this PIP after 6 months will result in the handler and dog team remaining intact, and in service.

NOT meeting or showing substantial progress toward meeting the goals of this PIP within 6 months will result in the dog/handler team being dissolved, and Cyrus being re-assigned to a new handler.

To: Senior Officer Amanda Somerville

Ref: Suspension – Standards of Conduct

This is a summary and order of discipline resulting from Senior Officer Amanda Somerville's conversation with Sgt. Matthew Pappenfus on September 12, 2022. This conversation was reference a call for service covered by Officer Somerville on August 8, 2022 (22-24208) pertaining to a theft from a vulnerable adult. Sgt. Pappenfus conducted follow up on the information provided by Officer Somerville and determined it appeared she was not truthful about the follow up calls she received from the complainant on the call.

During the investigation conducted by Lt. Matt McLeod, Officer Somerville admitted she denied receiving voicemails from the complainant on the call, even though she knew she had just deleted them. She stated the reason for not saying she did not return the calls was because she was embarrassed about not following up with the complainant as she stated she would. When I spoke to Sgt. Pappenfus, he agreed that her response was likely due to embarrassment about her work performance, and not a direct attempt to be deceitful about the call itself. Investigative report of Lt. Matt McLeod is available for further details of the investigation.

Regardless of the intent, dishonesty with superiors cannot be tolerated. Additionally, victims and others reporting crime deserve the respect and responsiveness of police department staff pertaining to their complaint; therefore, I find the following violations of policy and have set discipline based on the seriousness of the violations, which are all sustained and are basis for this disciplinary action.

- Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct
    - 322.5.7 EFFICIENCY
        (a) Neglect of duty
        (b) Unsatisfactory work performance including, but not limited to, failure, incompetence, inefficiency or delay in performing and/or carrying out proper order, work assignments, or the instructions of supervisors without a reasonable and bona fide excuse.
        (c) Concealing, attempting to conceal, removing or destroying defective or incompetent work.
    - 322.5.9 CONDUCT
        (m) Any other on- or off-duty conduct which any member knows or reasonably should know is unbecoming a member of this department, is contrary to good order, efficiency or morale, or tends to reflect unfavorably upon this department or its members.

Discipline: As a result of these policy violations, I am ordering the following for Senior Officer Amanda Somerville:

- Officer Somerville will be suspended for a period of eight days (80 hours) without pay.
- A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Amanda Somerville at the City of Minot Human Resources Office.

MINOT POLICE DEPARTMENT

LETTER OF REPRIMAND

EMPLOYEE: Lt. Dave Chapman

DATE OF INCIDENT/EVENT: Reported on: Dec. 14, 2023

Addressed with Lt. Chapman on March 27, 2024

DESCRIPTION OF INCIDENT(S):
On December 14, 2023, Sgt. Taylor Jensen discovered 15.7 grams of heroin missing from the K9 training kit. The internal investigation revealed this was likely lost by one of the K9 handlers, and Lt. Chapman is the K9 Coordinator, and is in charge of the program operation.

APPLICABLE VIOLATION(S) OF POLICIES/DIRECTIVES/TRAINING (LIST ALL THAT APPLY):
Policy 322: Standards of Conduct, 322.5.7 Efficiency (b) Unsatisfactory work performance including, but not limited to, failure, incompetence, inefficiency, or delay in performing and/or carrying out proper orders, work assignments, or the instructions of supervisors without a reasonable or bona fide excuse.

Although the Canine Coordinator responsibilities does not specifically speak to their accountability for the narcotics for training, it does fall under the overall policy, which is referenced. Lt. Chapman identified a need to put a more specific parameter in place for checking out/in the narcotics. Although the procedure was changed, there was no additional accountability or a random or scheduled check implemented by Lt. Chapman. This allowed handlers to continue checking the narcotics training aids out for longer times than allowed under the new procedure without accountability. The recommended actions steps below should clarify the accountability in policy. This should include some "shall" language to ensure some steps are taken periodically to make sure all narcotics (and other training aids) are accounted for by handlers and by the Coordinator.

HAS ISSUE BEEN ADDRESSED IN THE PAST? (VERBAL OR WRITTEN COUNSELING, DISCLIPLINE) LIST AND DATE ALL THAT APPLY:
No

ACTION STEPS TO CORRECT ISSUE (IF APPLICABLE):
Review Policy 309.4 and outline accountability measures for the Canine Coordinator pertaining to the accountability for Controlled Substances and other training aids used by handlers for training.
Review Policy 309.9.5 and recommend changes to the Chief of Police. Ensure these changes include inventory and accountability measures are in place.

To: Kelly Hendershot, City Attorney, City of Minot, ND

Subject: Investigation and Assessment of City of Minot Police Department Investigations Unit.

Conducted by: Michele Sturgell/Robert Jahn

Investigation Active: November 17, 2020 through March 4, 2021

Procedure: On November 17, 2020, City of Minot Human Resources Director, Lisa Jundt, contacted Michele Sturgell of Employers Council to perform a workplace investigation and assessment. Ms. Sturgell explained the investigation and assessment process to Ms. Jundt and clarified the investigator's role including the necessary expectations in this process as communicated to all participants and referenced below.

I, the undersigned, Robert Jahn, assumed the role of investigator in this matter from Michele Sturgell who began the investigation. Ms. Sturgell and I personally interviewed and prepared written summary statements for each witness. We communicated similar introductory remarks to each witness. These remarks addressed the purpose of the assessment and our role as a neutral fact finder, confidentiality expectations, the City of Minot's prohibition against retaliation for participation in the investigation and/or making complaints under the equal employment opportunity policy, and the expectation to be truthful.

Each witness reviewed his or her statement electronically. We encouraged each witness to make any additions, deletions, or other modifications necessary to accurately reflect his or her beliefs. Each witness was asked to review his or her statement to ensure completeness and accuracy and attest thereto by signing the summary statement.

25. Shannon Lackey Summary Statement

Background and Summary of Issues

Founded in 1886, the City of Minot is located in Ward County, North Dakota. The City of Minot Police Department was founded in 1887. The Police Department is led by Chief John Klug. The Minot Police Department has three divisions: Patrol, Investigations and Administration. The Minot Police Department is comprised of 81 sworn officers along with 26 civilian support staff. Captain Dale Plessas, Commander of Investigations, supervises approximately nineteen (19) employees within the Investigative Division.

This assessment focused on events that occurred within the City of Minot Police Department's Investigations Unit. This investigator understands that, in November 2020, City Attorney Kelly Hendershot received a complaint from Sgt. Steve Schoenrock alleging Lt. Darren Dyke had received improper assistance on the promotional examination for the rank of Lieutenant which occurred on July 1, 2020.

It is this investigator's understanding that Sgt. Schoenrock also sat for the Lieutenant's examination. Specifically, Sgt. Schoenrock alleged that Senior Human Resource Generalist Brittany Rust was the proctor for that Lieutenant's exam and she impermissibly assisted Lt. Darren Dyke on the examination because he claims they were in an inappropriate sexual relationship. Lt. Dyke was eventually promoted to Lieutenant over Sgt. Schoenrock and other candidates.

This investigator further understands that scoring on the Lieutenant's examination is not the sole criteria for promotional considerations and other factors are considered during the selection process, including subsequent interviews, educational level, and law enforcement related experience.

This investigator also understands that Sgt. Schoenrock claimed that female employees within the Investigative Division were being differently than male employees.

After receiving Sgt. Schoenrock's complaint, Human Resource Director Lisa Jundt requested that Employers Council perform a workplace assessment based on questions selected by the City of Minot as well as an investigation to the claim of test taking improprieties.

Investigator Findings

The Findings sections identify the pertinent allegations and issues, followed by identification of specific sources of information from employees and managers. Investigator commentary follows to develop specific areas of concern, address credibility assessment, or provide other subjective comment. For a comprehensive understanding of the issues presented here it is recommended that each summary statement be reviewed individually. Unless otherwise noted, all information quoted below comes from the summary statements or follow-up conversations with this investigator.

Assessment Findings

Issue 1: Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

Employees Responses:

Ms. Carmen Asham, a Master Officer who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department since 2011, states: "Yes. I have heard female officer complaining that they are treated differently. I have not experienced that myself. There is a lot more micromanaging going on with the female employees than the male employees. This is mostly from Lt. Wegner."

Mr. Aaron Bowles, a Detective who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department for three years, states: "Yes. It seems relatively arbitrary. I notice something I might be able to get away with, may not be the same for everyone else. There seems to be a concern by my peers that there is gender bias against females. I have not experienced but I believe my co-workers."

Mr. Bowles continues: "Something I have heard is that females have been talked to about their professional dress where there is really no standard. I believe our policy says business casual attire. I know several females have been talked to about their clothing. I have never seen anyone dressed inappropriately. I never seen them wear anything too low cut or too tight; they are always dressed appropriately."

Ms. Kristin Guerton is a Detective who has worked for the City of Minot for four and a half years, Ms. Guerton states: "Yes. Lt. Wegner treats people differently. I know that it has been addressed several times, more so females. I have never been treated differently or experienced any sexual harassment. I feel like he knows that if he tried to treat me like that, I would say something or try to shut it down. There are other women who are treated differently. Miki, she is newer, and she is treated differently. She is a bit of a people pleaser and Lt. Wegner takes advantage of that. She is often called out when she is not the next person up. There was a time when I was the next person on call and instead, he called Miki"

Ms. Guerton continues: “I asked Lt. Wegner why he did not call me. He said that Miki is his go to because she won’t say no. He takes advantage of her willingness to come in. Lt. Wegner has made comments some of the women’s clothing. Men can wear tennis shoes but if women do, he will make a comment. Miki one time wore black and white checkered pants and Lt. Wegner made a comment about them. There was a detective who dressed like a total slob (male) and Lt. Wegner never addressed it or said anything to him.”

Ms. Mikali Talbott is a Master Police Officer with the City of Minot Police Department. Ms. Talbott has been with the Department for six years, and her supervisor is Lieutenant Shawn Wegner. Ms. Talbott states: “Yes. Within investigations specifically, there are some supervisors that are somewhat sexist. For example, if I did something in an investigation that a male officer did the exact same way; I would be talked to, but the male officer would not. Shawn Wegner is the one who does that. I have been told that I am not the first person he has done that to.”

Ms. Talbott continues: “Shawn acts like females should not be outside the home or in law enforcement. He has also made comments about his daughter and that she should remain in the home. He also makes comments that women should not be in male dominated industries or basically anywhere outside the home. The experiences that I have been through with Lt. Wegner have been brought up with other supervisors and I was told that it would be taken care of. I specifically asked another supervisor if I should bring it up with Lt. Wegner in my annual review and I was told not to that it was taken care of. Here we sit a year later, and I wouldn’t say it is totally taken care of. Even with this year as a different year he still treats me differently.”

Ms. Talbott further states: “Just last week I was on vacation and he called my work cell phone. When I answered he told me I shouldn’t do that on vacation – but he called me. I have heard in the past that Lt. Wegner has told other females that their clothing was too tight, and they needed to change. I have not experienced it myself. Lt. Wegner is all over the place with case assignments. He loads his better people (those who will do the work and get it done) with more cases. Lt. Wegner does not know how to not overwhelm or overburden people. He would call me all the time to respond to a call regardless of the type or time. When Lt. Wegner was told he was overwhelming me, he made it seem like it was my fault for answering my phone. It was also brought up in my annual review that I need to learn to say no and take care of myself and I need to let my supervision know when I am overwhelmed.”

Mr. Ross Lakoduk is a task force officer who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department since October of 2012. Mr. Lakoduk’s supervisor is Special Agent Rob Browne, however, if Mr. Lakoduk states that if he has a complaint, he directs those to Captain Dale Plessas. Mr. Lakodu states: "Yes. We in the task force are treated differently. We work out of a different office and are assigned to work directly with special agents. Sometimes we get left out of the loop on certain things, like personnel or equipment issues, or budget issues, etc. For example, if the detectives are getting new equipment, we find out later and then when I try to acquire the same equipment, I am unable to do so. Other times they don't understand how we do things in narcotics and they may want us to do something a certain way and we had to work through the differences with the task force."

Mr. Lakoduk continues: "I have also been told that some detectives (especially females) are treated differently based upon their gender. I have heard this from some of the female detectives. Some of the examples given were time management or micromanaging. The examples given were related to Lt. Shawn Wegner. The behavior they described was not something I experienced when I was in investigations. I also heard that Lt. Wegner made comments about their clothes or dress code and caseload issues as well."

Ms. Sarah White is an Investigation Administrative Clerk, and she has worked for the City of Minot Police Department for five years. Ms. White's supervisor is Lieutenant Shawn Wegner. Ms. White states: "It does seem like the male employees in the back are treated better than the female employees. They are definitely nicer towards the male employees and it appears that there is more respect toward the males."

Ms. White continues: "Sgt. Goodman is nice and respectful to everyone – regardless of gender so is Captain Plessas. Sgt. Wilk and Lt. Wegner are more misogynistic. This behavior is not directed toward me. Every now and then, Sgt. Wilk and Lt. Wegner can be condescending toward me, I don't take it personally and it seems to happen when they are in a bad mood. I have heard from other females this happens more often and not based on any other reason other than them being female."

Mr. Charles "Shane" Johnson is a Task Force Officer who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department since September of 2010. Mr. Johnson's supervisor is Special Agent Rob Brown; however, Mr. Johnson states he deals frequently with Lieutenant Shawn Wegner or Dale Plessas. Mr. Johnson states: "I would say so. It appears this is based on friendships or a good ol' boy system. It can also be impacted by how long someone has been there or work history. I have not seen anything that appears gender based."

Mr. Jay Bloyer is a Master Police Officer who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department since 2012. Mr. Bloyer's supervisor is Lieutenant Wegner. Mr. Bloyer states: "Yes in investigations there is some bias towards females and at least one of the road supervisors' treats people of color differently than anyone else. From what I have seen Lt. Wegner treats the women differently. He will talk to them about uniform standards and doesn't care about how the men dress. When he was our road supervisor, he would single out women for productivity issues and he wouldn't do that with the male officers."

Mr. Bloyer continues: "In the comments, Lt. Wegner makes he will ask (or tell) someone to do something and then blame them for doing what he said. I have heard rumors from others about the same thing from Lt. Wegner. Shannon Lackey treats people of color differently. The most obvious way is that she makes comments that are off-color. Lt. Lackey treated Officer Hanks disrespectfully. She would have him start her car and throw keys at him (she did not do that with anyone else). He also would sing when he was walking around. If he would rap, she would tell him not to do that but if he was singing anything else, she did not say anything to him."

Ms. Jenna Bjork is a Department Liaison who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department for four and a half years. Ms. Bjork's supervisor is Dave Goodman. Ms. Bjork states: "Within the investigations divisions, I haven't seen that. I have heard my co-workers in the division complain about it. I have heard that Lt. Shawn Wagner is sexist and treats the guys differently than the girls. I have not experienced that with him. Outside of the division, I think there is some good-ole boy's club vibes within the department."

Mr. Robbie Sumlin is a Detective who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department for six years. Detective Sumlin's supervisor is Dave Goodman. Mr. Sumlin states: "No, I don't think so."

Ms. Stephanie Lentz is a Master Officer/Detective who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department for seven years. Ms. Lentz's supervisor is Sergeant Kevin Wilk. Ms. Lentz states: "Generally no. There are some specifics that involve differential treatment. In our section, we have quite a few specialties like crime scene response unit. These individuals are called out more often than the rest of us. They are leaned on more than the crime scene response people in patrol. We are extremely taxed in investigations and it seems a bit much."

Elijah Hanks is a Detective who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department for four years. Mr. Hanks's supervisors are Sergeant Dave Goodman and Sergeant Kevin Wilk. Mr. Hanks states: "I don't believe so in investigations or the department as a whole from what I have seen."

Managers Responses:

Mr. Jason Sundbakken is a Captain who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department since 1996. Mr. Sundbakken supervises approximately thirty employees. Mr. Sundbakken's supervisor is Chief Klug. Mr. Sundbakken states: "I would say in general yes. The reason would be based upon experience. New employees are going to be treated differently (i.e., not as much responsibility) than a more experienced officer. In the broader terms (like in terms of gender) I have not seen that."

Mr. Steve Schoenrock is a Patrol Sergeant who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department for approximately fifteen years. Mr. Schoenrock supervises approximately fifteen employees. Mr. Schoenrock reports to Lieutenant Darren Dyke. Mr. Schoenrock states: "Yes. The females in investigations appear to be treated differently than the males. Additionally, Lt. Lackey treats the female officers differently than the male officers. She seems to have conflict with some of the ambitious women. I am not sure if she is threated by them, but I have heard from some of the female officers that she is very difficult to work with."

Mr. Tyler Ruelle is a Patrol Sergeant who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department for eleven years. Mr. Ruelle supervises around five to eight people. Mr. Ruelle's supervisor is Lieutenant Darren Dyke. Mr. Ruelle states: "From what I see, yes. People are treated differently based upon their needs. For example, a new officer would need more supervision than an experienced officer."

Mr. Ruelle continues: "The standard regarding appearance is different between men and women. I have to come to work clean shaven and with a clean haircut, but the women can have different colored hair or fingernails. I don't know what the distinction is, and why the men cannot have a well-trimmed beard. Punishment wise, it seems fair and based upon progressive discipline."

Mr. Dale Plessas, a Captain who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department for approximately nineteen years and supervises approximately 19 employees states: "There is a big difference between being treated differently and unfairly. For example, if an employee has a strength or a short coming, they may be treated differently due to that, but the treatment is never unfair."

Mr. Dave Goodman, a sergeant who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department for 31 years and supervises four employees, and reports to Lieutenant Shawn Wegner states: "Not that I have seen or been made aware of. I haven't had anyone come to me, in the last few years and express to me that they have been treated differently. I think the only time that has happened was about 5 years ago and that person has since left our agency."

Mr. Kevin Wilk is a sergeant who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department since 2005, he supervises twelve employees. Mr. Wilk's supervisor is Shawn Wegner. Mr. Wilk states: "I don't think so. I think everyone is treated fairly. There are stretches where it is the same guys who are volunteering to help out when we need help. I am not sure that is treatment necessarily."

Mr. Wilk continues: "Everyone pitches in to help out, but some people pitch in more. Part of that issue is that our department isn't big enough to have a dedicated crime scene unit, the people in that unit are also assigned to other divisions as well. They can be burning the candle at both ends. They have tried to get more patrol officers involved in crime scene. This would help some of the investigators who workdays from getting called out in the middle of the night and would help patrol officers get more experience. There hasn't been enough interest from patrol."

Shawn Wegner is a Lieutenant who has worked for the City of Minot Police Department for over twenty years. Mr. Wegner supervises eleven employees, and his supervisor is Captain Dale Plessas. Mr. Wegner states: "Within my group, I don't believe we treat anyone differently."

Mr. Wegner continues: "When it comes to case assignments, I try to even that out as much as possible. Some people have certain specialties. I try and keep the case types and numbers as fair as possible. There might be speculation in the department as a whole that based upon prior friendships certain people were "taken care of" or given promotions. This based upon an appearance, not necessarily based on proven facts. This is not in the investigations division."

Ms. Shannon Lackey is a Lieutenant with City of Minot Police Department, Minot, North Dakota. Ms. Lackey states: "I started working at the department as a patrol officer. I became Sergeant in the Patrol Division, then became a Lieutenant in the Patrol Division, and now I am a Lieutenant in the Administrative Division. My current supervisor is Captain Jason Sundbakken."

Ms. Lackey continues: "I understand that some members of the department have alleged differential treatment. I have no direct knowledge of any differential treatment and I have not received or observed any differential treatment."

Chief John Klug is the Chief of the City of Minot Police Department, Minot, North Dakota. Chief Klug states: "I became Chief in February 2020. I started working for the department in 1995 and worked my way up through the ranks to be promoted to Chief in 2020. I report to the City Manager. I understand that the City Attorney has requested that Employers Council provide an assessment of working conditions within the department based on recent complaints made by some members of the department."

Chief Klug continues: "I understand that some members of the department have alleged differential treatment based on friendships within the department. I have no direct knowledge of any differential treatment and I have not received or observed any differential treatment. As the Chief of Police and department head for the police department, I understand and hold true to treat all employees with fairness and respect regardless of my connection or friendship, either past or present."

Mr. Darren Dyke is a Lieutenant with City of Minot Police Department, Minot, North Dakota. Mr. Dyke states: "I started working at the department in February

1998 as a patrol officer. I became Sergeant in 2010 and became a Lieutenant in 2021. My current supervisor is Captain Justin-Sundheim and Captain Dale Plessas."

Mr. Dyke continues: "I understand that some members of the department have alleged differential treatment. I have no direct knowledge of any differential treatment and I have not received or observed any differential treatment."

Mr. Justin Sundheim is a Captain with the City of Minot Police Department, Minot, North Dakota. Mr. Sundheim states: "I became Operations Captain in February 2020. I started working for the department in May 2000 as a patrol officer and I was later promoted to Sergeant in 2009. I was thereafter promoted to Lieutenant and then promoted to Captain. I report directly to Chief John Klug. I understand that the City Attorney has requested that Employers Council provide an assessment of working conditions within the department based on recent complaints made by some members of the department."

Mr. Sundheim continues: "I understand that some members of the department may perceive there is differential treatment based on friendships within the department. I have no direct knowledge of any differential treatment and I have not received or observed any differential treatment. I do note that an officer, who is disciplined for work violations, or has observed performance issues, may be treated differently in the sense that he or she made be reprimanded or assigned different tasks to rectify the disciplinary issue."

Comment: This investigator finds the majority of responses to this question seem to suggest that there is differential treatment of female employees within the Investigative Division; however, there appears to be a disparity of opinions among the ranks of the police officers. It would suggest that the more senior officers do not observe any blatant different treatment among employees aside from administrative or professional differences whereas lower ranking officers report direct differential treatment of female employees pertaining to dress code, caseload assignment, and work-related duties.

This investigator notes that Lt. Shawn Wegner is referenced more than any other supervisory officer and there are specific complaints of gender bias directed at him professionally. Most of the complaints of gender bias and differential treatment among employees made by the lower ranking officers are directed at Lt. Wegner in much greater proportion than other managing level employees. There does not appear to be widespread disparate treatment within the Investigative Division rather the claims are more focused on that one individual.

It is noted that some of the criticisms are related to dress code or attire for female employees compared to male employees. For example, Ms. Guerton stated that Lt. Wegner has made comments some of the women's clothing and men can wear tennis shoes but if women do, he [Lt. Wegner] will make a comment. Mr.

Bowles noted: "Something I have heard is that females have been talked to about their professional dress where there is really no standard. I believe our policy says business casual attire. I know several females have been talked to about their clothing. I have never seen anyone dressed inappropriately. I never seen them wear anything too low cut or too tight; they are always dressed appropriately."

Ms. White, a civilian employee, observed that the male employees are treated better than the female employees. She stated: "They are definitely nicer towards the male employees and it appears that there is more respect toward the males."

This investigator concludes that there is a perception, among the lower ranking officers, of differential treatment of female employees, compared to male employees, within the Investigative Division. That perception does not appear to exist among the higher-ranking officers. Notwithstanding, this investigator notes that the upper management, starting with the Chief, would not seem to accept or tolerate differential treatment once confirmed.

Issue 2: Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

Employees Responses:

Ms. Bjork states: "Within the division, yes. Shawn's issues are not based on respect he just wants to be liked by everyone. Dave is great to work for and I have no complaints about him. Lt. Wagner can go out of his way to help when personal things have gone on."

Ms. White states: "Captain Plessas and Sgt. Goodman definitely do. Lt. Wegner says that he does but he is not very good at showing that, same with Sgt. Wilk. He can act respectful towards some people, but I don't think he does so with everyone."

Mr. Bloyer states: "For the most part yes. I would not say that there are others (other than Lt. Wegner and Lt. Lackey) who are disrespectful. There are some that are not good managers, but I would not say that they are necessarily disrespectful."

Mr. Sumlin states: "Yes."

Mr. Hanks states: "Yes."

Ms. Guerton states: "Sometimes. If you do a good job on a case, they might mention it. There is a lack of respect with investigators and management. Sgt. Wilk and Lt. Wegner are absent and don't really understand the job; sometimes that creates a lack of respect toward them. Being on call is so stressful and partly because you don't have your supervisor to fall back on. You can't call them; they probably won't answer. You can call Dave Goodman and he will help but not the other two. We are a young department, so we need more support from managers, and we don't always get it."

Mr. Johnson states: "Generally yes. There are some managers who do not. Paul Burns does not respect employees in how he treats people or speaks to employees. I know there have been issues with Matt Mcloud as well. He is known for having an abrasive personality and is disrespectful. I don't work in the building presently and have not for the past 5 years."

Ms. Lentz states: "I don't think they show disrespect directly, but I think there is a line drawn. If you can see that your employees are overwhelmed or overburdened, then a supervisor could or should pitch in and help. I don't see that, and it seems like they don't really care how overburdened we are, but just care that the work is done."

Ms. Talbott states: "Some do, and some don't. The ones who don't make it apparent, like in how they communicate or approach you. They don't hesitate to make you feel like a number and you are replaceable. Lt. Wegner and Sgt. Wilk fall into that category. Sgt. Wilk is kind of inexperienced in investigations, so I am not sure if that relates to his behavior. Others will go out of their way to make you feel important or needed. Sgt. Goodman is all about his people and is always making sure people have what they need."

Ms. Talbott continues: "Captain Plessas is new to being my captain, so I am not sure about him. Lt. Lackey can be very aggressive with females and has made racist comments to another black officer. I was not present for this, I heard about it later. She claims to be about women in the workplace, but she is very aggressive. She should never have been promoted to Sergeant or Lieutenant, but she is friends with Chief. She is always being complained about nothing happens to her. I used to work nights and Sgt. Shanerock is good and looks out for his people. Sgt. Burns and Sgt. Foley have a different style. I don't think they do it to be malicious they just have a different viewpoint."

Ms. Asham states: "No. It seems like our concerns and complaints are not addressed. If feels like you are not being taken seriously. For me specifically one of the issues is caseloads. Because of extra duties I have, I am assigned extra cases from the State. We were told if we had these other cases that our normal caseload would be lessened but that has never happened."

Mr. Bowles states: "There is a manager who is getting ready to retire and he is the consummate professional. He respects everyone. The others, not so much. They are quick to dismiss, from what I have seen. They can also sidestep issues which can be seen as disrespectful. I, personally, have had a good experience."

Mr. Lakoduk states: "I think it depends on which manager you are talking about. Overall, there isn't a large issue with that but there are a few. Lt. Wegner does not appear to respect all employees, especially the females. Lt. Shannon Lackey is on patrol right now, but several officers have had issues with her, including myself. Her management style needs improvement or is lacking as is. I have been questioned with how certain things were done."

Mr. Lakoduk continues: "In this type of questioning it appears they don't know or understand how we do business. We have also had issues with getting patrol assistance regarding an arrest. I also heard that Lt. Lackey was screaming at people over the radio and accosted people over the radio. I also heard that some officers were yelled at or reprimanded for helping us (in the task force). There has not been a change in Shannon Lackey's lack of respect in my time at the department and yet she is still promoted."

Managers Responses:

Mr. Plessas states: "Yes. I feel respected by my manager as well."

Mr. Sundbakken states: "As a manger, I do. Overall, I think the supervision in the department is respectful of employees."

Mr. Wilk states: "Yes, I think they do. I feel respected from my supervisors. They will listen to me when I bring issues forward. I brought up that we need at least another 7 investigators. There are senior and master patrol that are assigned to investigations when there are openings. They do so much more work and are not paid any more for this. There is no value for this extra work. There is no compensation for being on call either."

Mr. Wilk further states: "There is only compensation if you are called out. I brought this to my Captain. He was respectful when I brought it to him. I disagreed with his answer that money does not motivate people. In the last five years we have lost 15 investigators to other agencies. I also brought that up. Everyone said they left because of the caseload, being on call, and not being valued. These experienced investigators left for more pay and feeling valued. I felt like I was brushed aside but they were respectful to me when listening."

Mr. Goodman states: "I feel that they do. My manager is respectful of me."

Mr. Wegner states: "Yes. In my division that is always in the forefront of our minds. We have a weekly supervisor meeting, and we discuss that in those meetings. There is a lot of care and respect in those meetings. In investigations we have to have someone on call all the time. I am not required to be on call but with our shortages I have been taking call shifts. I did those so that I wouldn't have to change the schedule on someone through Christmas Eve when they weren't expecting it."

Mr. Wegner further states: "I am on my third boss in 5 years. The most current one took over 10 months ago. We have also been dealing with COVID and he is learning the job. I don't feel disrespected."

Mr. Schoenrock states: "Some of the managers do and some do not. The majority of supervisors are pretty respectful. There are a few old-fashioned people who are not respectful of all backgrounds. Lt. Lackey plays favorites and Lt. Wegner is not always respectful as well."

Mr. Ruelle states: "Some of them do respect employees. Generally, amongst the Sergeants there is a lot of respect. My immediate Lieutenant and the other patrol lieutenants seem to respect employees. As for the Captains and the Chief, they say that they respect employees, but their actions don't always show that. We just had this major change and it greatly affects the Sergeants, but they didn't talk to use beforehand or ask our opinion. This feels disrespectful."

Ms. Lackey states: "I do feel that managers/supervisors show respect for subordinate employees."

Chief Klug states: "In my experience, I do feel that managers/supervisors show respect for subordinate employees. Some supervisors do have a direct approach and do not 'sugarcoat' their orders or commands. I understand that often, employees may confuse directness with being disrespectful or 'rude', but I believe the supervisory level employees do respect their subordinates. There is generally more issue with the style and method of communication and the perception and judgement of the persons past behavior, whether true or accurate, that bring negative meeting to some messages."

Mr. Dyke states: "I do feel that managers/supervisors show respect for subordinate employees in general."

Mr. Sundheim states: "In my experience, I do feel that managers/supervisors show respect for subordinate employees. Some supervisors do have a direct approach and do not "sugarcoat" their orders or commands. I understand that often times, employees may confuse directness with disrespectful, but overall, I believe the supervisory level employees generally respect their subordinates."

Comment: This investigator finds most responses to this question suggest that the managers in general do respect their subordinates. The overall assessment pertaining to this question reveals most employees feel most managers show them respect in their capacity as supervisor.

In a sampling of employee's responses, Mr. Ruelle states: "Some of them do respect employees. Generally, amongst the Sergeants there is a lot of respect. Mr. Lakoduk states: "I think it depends on which manager you are talking about. Overall, there isn't a large issue with that but there are a few. Mr. Bloyer states: "For the most part yes. I would not say that there are others (other than Lt. Wegner and Lt. Lackey) who are disrespectful. There are some that are not good managers, but I would not say that they are necessarily disrespectful." Several employees simply responded "Yes" to the question posed.

Again, as with the preceding Issue No. 1 Comment Section, there appears to be some division between the higher and lower ranking officers of the department with the higher members generally stating that managers show respect towards subordinate employees.

This investigator finds that overall responses to this question finds that managers do seem to respect their subordinates.

Issue 3: If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper-level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

Employees Responses: Ms. Asham states: "Yes."

Mr. Johnson states: "Yes."

Mr. Sumlin states: "Yes."

Mr. Hanks states: "Yes, I would."

Mr. Bloyer states: "Yes, I would feel comfortable doing that. I am not sure if anything would be done about it, but I would feel comfortable doing that."

Ms. Talbott states: "Yes, depending on who I had to go to. In the past I have talked to other supervisors about what is happening I am told that they will take care of it. It only gets better for a week or so. I am comfortable going to some of them, like Sgt. Goodman."

Ms. White states: "I think I would. Captain Plessas is very good at listening and you can tell he definitely cares. You never know if anything is going to be done about it. This is common with the higher ups within the department."

Ms. Bjork states: "To my Captain, yes. I would not bring anything to the Chief. I wouldn't confront Lt. Wagner directly."

Ms. Lentz states: "I know that it has been done in the past and nothing happened, it feels like it fell on deaf ears. I would feel comfortable doing it, but I am not sure anything would be done about it."

Mr. Bowles states: "At this point no. Within the last couple of weeks, I had a major complaint, and it was swept under the rug. The higher you go up the chain the more we feel like a cog in the wheel. That doesn't feel good."

Ms. Guerton states: “No because it falls on deaf ears. I would feel comfortable talking to someone about it, but I know that nothing is going to change. We have had multiple sit-down meetings with more people, and nothing changes, nothing happens when we complain.

Mr. Lakoduk states: “It might depend on the situation. I have seen that sometimes complaints however valid are always taken as serious as I would have seen them. This may lead to me not feeling entirely comfortable going up the chain. I am not sure if I went higher that anything would actually be done about it.”

Managers Responses:

Mr. Plessas states: “If I had to do that, I would do so.”

Mr. Sundbakken states: “Yes. I would feel comfortable reporting any issue regarding the Chief to his supervisor (which is the City Manager).”

Mr. Wilk states: “Yes.”

Mr. Goodman states: “I have been with the agency longer than anyone else. I recognize that I have been respected by my co-workers and a lot of times my supervisors have come to me. If I ever felt like I needed to go up the chain of command I would feel comfortable doing so. In the past, there were times when I was not comfortable this was a result of not having as much experience.”

Mr. Wegner states: “Yes.”

Mr. Schoenrock states: “I would feel comfortable doing it, but I don’t think my voice would not be heard. I don’t think anything would be done about it. That is part of why I went to Kelly. I have seen instances where things have not been addressed in the past.”

Mr. Ruelle states: “No, not within the department. It seems like everyone is really close. The lieutenants are either really close with or afraid of the Chief. It seems like they don’t want to say anything to the Chief that he doesn’t want to hear. I wouldn’t want to have anything come back negatively on me.”

Ms. Lackey states: “Yes. I would.”

Chief Klug states: “Yes. I would.”

Mr. Dyke states: “Yes. I would.”

Mr. Sundheim states: “Yes. I would.”

Comment: This investigator finds that the overall responses to this question seem to suggest that employees would feel comfortable reporting an issue with their superior to upper-level management. There are some employees who feel they would not be comfortable reporting an issue with their superiors to upper management, but the majority of the responses confirm that employees would report an issue without hesitancy.

The responses from the upper management of the department must be assessed in conjunction with each member's applicable rank. From the rank of Lieutenant up, there may be little significance given to the affirmative responses by higher ranking members.

This investigator concludes that the assessment to this question suggests that most employees would feel comfortable reporting an issue with their superior to upper-level management.

Issue 4: Do you feel your manager is approachable?

Employees Responses: Ms. Asham states: "Both Sgt. Wilk and Lt. Wegner are approachable but not helpful. They both are open to having someone ask questions or ask for help, they just don't offer the help that is needed. For example, advice on how to work a case. I think this stems from lack of knowledge and experience on their part. This results in me asking someone else who does have that knowledge and experience."

Ms. Talbott states: "Sgt. Goodman is very approachable. I can go to him with anything. He is super easygoing and easy to talk to. I can go to Lt. Wegner with certain things, but it isn't worth my time. He will usually blow it off or not acknowledge me. Sgt. Wilk is ok depending on what we are talking about. He can't keep things confidential so if I am going to talk about someone else or someone else's work, I wouldn't do that."

Mr. Sumlin states: "Yes. I get along with him well and he is personable and easy to get along with."

Mr. Hanks states: "I do."

Mr. Lakoduk states: "Regarding day-to-day stuff or minor issues or updates, yes they are approachable. Lt. Wegner tries to have open communication, at least with me. Generally, he tries his best (as well as Captain Plessas) to get me whatever training or equipment I need. I haven't had to take anything serious to Lt. Wegner so I can't necessarily speak to that. I did have to take an issue with a detective with Captain Plessas."

Mr. Lakoduk continues: “This detective appeared to have an issue with how I directed the investigation and we eventually worked out a solution. Captain Plessas was helpful and approachable in that regard. He (and Wegner) didn’t have a lot of investigation experience when he came into his role. He has been very open about that and is open to learning. If I had something serious, I would take it to Captain Plessas first. Also, Lt. Wegner is moving to patrol, and I don’t know who is taking his place.”

Mr. Johnson states: “Lt. Wegner and Captain Plessas are very approachable.”

Ms. Guerton states: “In a way. I feel like I can talk to them. Sgt. Wilk is almost too approachable; he talks and talks but it doesn’t go anywhere. He doesn’t understand the job and how stressful it is. Our work environment is also not ideal because we work in cubicles and it is so distracting and hard to get anything done because it is so loud, and everything is going on. Sgt. Wilk doesn’t understand the job. He is the type of person that says he doesn’t understand why we (some of us) come in early.”

Ms. Guerton continues: “Lt. Wegner is approachable, but I won’t go to him with a complaint or guidance on a case. I don’t think he knows what to do in the job. He’ll talk and talk, but at the end of the conversation you are nowhere. Dave Goodman isn’t my supervisor, but I’ll go to him because he knows and is experienced. We are losing him soon and I hate to see what will happen to the department.”

Ms. Lentz states: “Yes. Sgt. Wilk is approachable. Lt. Wegner is approachable, but things fall on deaf ears. If I want to go to training, he’ll answer me very quickly. If I have another issue, it seems like he always has to check with someone else and then I never hear back from him. Whenever there is a bunch of us that can’t handle the caseload and we go to Lt. Wegner, nothing changes.”

Mr. Bowles states: “My immediate supervisors, yes. It diminishes the further you go up the chain. Any manager will listen to what you have to say as long as it is not contrary to an order they have given. I don’t know what happens after you approach them.”

Ms. Bjork states: “Absolutely, Dave Goodman is great. Lt. Wagner is approachable, but I am not comfortable with him and I don’t necessarily think that he will do anything about whatever is brought to him. He sometimes plays the game of “it’s not my responsibility or job.”

Ms. White states: “Depending on the day. If he is in an extremely bad mood, he is not pleasant to talk to. If he is in a good mood, he is super approachable and easy to talk to. It depends on his mood for the day.”

Mr. Bloyer states: “If I had problems, I would not go to the investigations people. I would go to one of the other Captains I have worked with before (Captain Sundheim, Sgt. Ruelle and Sgt. Schoenrock)."

Managers Responses: Mr. Plessas states: "Yes, I think he is approachable."

Mr. Goodman states: "Yes."

Mr. Sundbakken states: "Yes, absolutely. The Chief is approachable."

Mr. Wilk states: "Yes. I don't have any problems talking to anyone who is superior to me. I can report information, but I feel like the major issues are not addressed."

Mr. Wegner states: "I have a decent relationship with my Captain and the Chief, and I have never had an issue approaching either one."

Mr. Ruelle states: "Yes, I think he is. I don't have any issues talking to him."

Mr. Schoenrock states: "I would not take anything to Darren. I don't think he has anything to offer as far as patrol. I respect the chain of command, but I don't think he knows as much as he should in his position."

Ms. Lackey states: "Yes. I do."

Chief John Klug states: "Yes. I do."

Mr. Dyke states: "Yes. I do."

Mr. Sundheim states: "Yes. I do."

Comment: This investigator notes that this question is similar to the preceding question of whether employees comfortable reporting an issue with their superior to upper-level management. The overwhelming consensus from all ranks of employees is that their direct manager is approachable.

This investigator concludes that the assessment to this question suggests that most employees believe their managers are approachable.

Issue 5: Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

Employees Responses: Ms. Asham states: "No."

Mr. Bowles states: "No."

Mr. Sumlin states: “No.”

Mr. Johnson states: “No.”

Mr. Lakoduk states: “I don’t think so as I am currently removed from the physical building at the City.”

Mr. Bloyer states: “I don’t think so.”

Mr. Hanks states: “No, everything is fine for me.”

Ms. Bjork states: “Lt. Wagner is not a good employee. He is smart and knows the job, but he is good a manipulating people and acting like he doesn’t know. He also seems to sabotage things that would require him to do more work even if it would benefit the department as a whole. He has a good group of investigators that work hard, and he coasts by. He is just lazy, and I don’t think that leaving the division is going to change that.”

Ms. Talbott states: “It is hard to approach the older generation within the police department. They are set in their ways and don’t want to adapt or change with the newer generation of officers and the changing times. It can be difficult to deal with that. It would be beneficial if they would treat people like people instead of like numbers; replaceable at any time and overworked and under paid.”

Ms. Guerton states: “Only that everything falls on deaf ears. The people that they choose for management positions doesn’t make sense. When Sgt. Wilk was chosen for his role there were 4 options and they asked us who we would like. The options were not great. There is a female officer that is very hard to deal with and she breaks people down – somehow, she is a lieutenant now which is shocking. It is weird that changes are happening; two main people who are problems are getting moved. The person who would be a great Lieutenant in investigations can’t be because the Chief is his brother-in-law. They should make an exception or something – we need good people.”

Ms. Guerton continues: “I am not sure the new lieutenant is going to be the best fix; we will have to see. When Dave Goodman retires, I do not know who we will go to for help. The State’s Attorney’s office is a large part of our battle and they are difficult to work with on top of everything else. I do DV cases, and they are terrible in how they treat victims, I find myself having to compensate for their lack of care or experience. Cases are getting dismissed like crazy because of their errors. They are not prepared when they go to court as well. I have had to tell victims to call the State’s Attorney herself to address their concerns. I wrote a letter to one of our Captains about what was going on in their office.”

Ms. White states: “There have been concerns brought up by the employees in our department. We have brought forward complains or ideas for changes and it doesn’t seem like anything is ever done. That frustrates a lot of the detectives. Also, communication from the brass to the rest of the division seems really bad lately.”

Ms. Lentz states: “Lately it has been difficult to see how things are going due to COVID and many of us working from home. I personally don’t understand what there is to supervise if they are not responding out to calls. Only looking at paperwork is not full supervision. A couple years ago, I had an annual review. One of the shortcomings on my review was that I was friends with another female officer, and she was bringing me down. This had nothing to do with my work product and did not involve anything I could do to fix. This did not seem constructive.”

Managers Responses:

Mr. Plessas states: “In general, I am fairly new to the investigations team. I started in February. I got briefings from the former Captain and my subordinates, so I knew the challenges in this position. The stress on my division is huge. We have higher caseloads and more serious cases then we have ever seen. The outgoing commander also mentioned that there were leadership challenges in the division that I would have to deal with. The leaders were unable to lead and manage their employees. This did not appear intentional but as a result of issues. Previously, employees were bypassing the lieutenant and going straight to the Captain.”

Mr. Plessas continues: “In an attempt to fix that, we moved the Captain physically further away from the Lieutenant to empower him to manage employees. I also heard from employees that they felt there were being treated unfairly partly due to workloads. We had a lot of leadership challenges and we have been trying to work through them. Some detectives only have part of the information and only see outward facing info and can get frustrated. Unfortunately, we can’t always share what goes on behind the scenes (for example if an employee is on a performance improvement plan) and that leads to frustration.”

Mr. Wilk states: “Yes. I don’t have any problems talking to anyone who is superior to me. I can report information, but I feel like the major issues are not addressed.”

Mr. Goodman states: “No. I have worked for several different supervisors and I recognize that people are different and have different styles. Over the years I have had to adapt depending on the person that is just because people are different.”

Mr. Wegner states: “No. We are just trying to get the job done with not enough people, we are often spread too thin."

Mr. Schoenrock states: "On night shift we are often the forgotten group. The night shift is a very tight knit group. What I don't like is that over the years we used to have trainings during the cross over time with the afternoon shift. Also, there is no consideration for court appearances because those are during the day and yet we are expected to go back to work the same night."

Mr. Schoenrock continues: "Also there is no shift differential for working nights. Also, there isn't going to be a Lieutenant in the overnight shift. It would be nice to see management care more about us (night shift) and take better care of us."

Mr. Sundbakken states: "No, I don't think so."

Mr. Ruelle states: "I don't think so."

Ms. Lackey states: "I have only been working as a Lieutenant in the Administrative Division for a short period of time. There is currently nothing that I need to discuss related to my management at this time. I do believe I should have been promoted earlier in my career and I believe some male co-workers were promoted more rapidly during my time working for the department."

Chief John Klug states: "I have only been working as a Chief for a short period of time. There is currently nothing that I need to discuss related to my management at this time. Based on my knowledge of the current investigation, as Chief, I do wish to correct any employee relationships or perceptions within the department that are the subject of any complaints."

Mr. Dyke states: "I have only been working as a Lieutenant for a short period of time. There is currently nothing that I need to discuss related to my management at this time."

Mr. Sundheim states: "There is currently nothing that I need to discuss related to my management in my role as Captain at this time. Based on my knowledge of the current investigation, I do understand that management will attempt to correct any employee relationships or perceptions within the department that are the subject of any substantiated complaints."

Comment: This investigator finds that the overall responses related to the management of specific work areas reveal nothing to address or correct. This investigator does note that, of the few affirmative responses suggesting additional discussions, those seem to stem from a small group of employees who reported issues with management.

Most employees indicated they had nothing to address concerning their specific work area. The suggestions that are related to specific work areas seem to be ministerial and administrative in nature and not substantive.

Issue 6: Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

Employees Responses: Ms. Asham states: "Yes. I think the divisions are natural and this is true in any place of employment. There are definitely cliques of people that get along better; shifts or age groups that get along better."

Mr. Bowles states: "I think every department has people who are favorites, who seemingly can get away with anything. I feel like within investigation the people who might get away with more, work harder for it so less is said about it. I feel like I fall somewhere in there."

Mr. Bowles continues: "Working from home has crushed my ability to be effective. We were recently told that we will stay at home unless we have a reason for coming into the office. I am less effective and productive from home. But no one says anything to me."

Ms. Bjork states: "There is a division between the higher-ups and the lower ranking. There are a few bad apples that create the division. Within the division, Lt. Wagner is lazy and doesn't care. He can overload one investigator with a large caseload and others have fewer and easier cases. That creates division and low morale. It makes everyone disengage and that is too bad because they are an incredible group of people."

Ms. Talbott states: "Yes. A big division is younger generation vs older generation. Some of the older officers are more open to listening to the younger officers but others don't want to hear anything like that. In investigations we have one of the highest rates of female officers so that is nice to see the added diversity."

Mr. Lakoduk states: "There is animosity with some supervisors with the task force officers and how we conduct our business. I have personally had complaints or causing issue (borderline upset) type questions with how we do our work. They have either demanded we do it differently or sternly stated that we shouldn't be pulling in their patrol officers. I have also gotten issues when I have asked for assistance and the response was, I don't know if we have the people. There is almost an unsaid opinion that they don't want to help."

Mr. Lakoduk further states: "I have also heard that some supervisors don't like the way do things or don't approve of how we work our cases. I blow off the minor jabs at how we do things, but it is still there. I think there is also a division between those in patrol and those in investigations. Everyone has their opinion about how things should be done, even if they are not the ones doing the work. I don't think it rises to the level of causing work not to get done."

Ms. Lentz states: "The brass (upper level) is separated from the rest of us. I think that is based upon rank structure. There are cliques of people who get along better but nothing that impacts work product. Some people get more leeway than others."

Ms. Lentz further states: "Someone can make 175 mistakes, and nothing happens. However, if someone has a lower rank and makes a small mistake the response is disproportionate. This drives morale down. This is not just our division specifically; it happens department wide."

Ms. Guerton states: "Not that I can think of. There are some officers that are close but there aren't really cliques. I have heard that Chief is friends with certain people and those people get promoted quicker, but I can't say 100% that is happening I have only heard that.

Mr. Sumlin states: "No. Only the divisions that are divided by the type of work that they do."

Ms. White states: "I personally don't see any. I can relate well to everyone. Of course, there are always people you are closer with than others. I don't personally think there are too many cliques. It used to be like that a while ago but with the new people I think everyone gets along pretty well."

Mr. Johnson states: "Shift work creates a closer relationship with people you work with generally, but I don't think there are any cliques or anything like that."

Mr. Bloyer states: "I don't think there are any major divisions within the department."

Mr. Hanks states: "No, not from what I have seen."

Managers Responses:

Mr. Goodman states: "Yes. They appear to be based upon personality conflicts. I have seen this over time and I have experienced it as well. There have been personality clashes over the years. I tend to get along with everyone. Right now, I have heard that people have had disagreements, but I usually don't hear anything until a few days later."

Mr. Plessas states: "There are divisions between personalities. There are some aggressive personalities and some that are not. There is value in but can lead to frustration among the different types. I think strong leadership could help with that and alleviate some of that. A lot of this seems to come from a lack of understanding and different perspectives."

Mr. Wilk states: “There is a division between the Captains and the Chief and the rest of the department. They are making structural changes and they are shifting Lieutenants to more administrative work. As long as I have been here, there has always been a division between patrol and investigations. I am not sure if these are major divisions but sometimes it creates a division and people can get irritated with one another.”

Mr. Wilk continues: “The biggest division is the brass and the rest of the department. I can say that I have been here long enough that I have worked with the Captains and Chief before they went into their current positions. Sometimes I think there is too much stress of department first. If you take care of your employees that will take care of the department.”

Mr. Wegner states: “Sometimes I hear rumors of things. I am not always involved in the conversations and maybe that is because of my position. I know within our division the detectives talk among themselves and sometimes they bring things to me. In the last 5 years this is probably the most cohesive group I have had. In the past I have always had 1 or 2 people that were difficult to get along with.”

Mr. Wegner continues: “I know it has been a tough year with COVID and that has impacted our cases and the kinds of cases we are seeing. I haven’t seen any type of division within the investigations unit. Most of them get along with the rest of the department otherwise. There is a group of them that will hang out with the other shifts to find out what is going on. This has been limited due to COVID this year. Some of the social aspect that we used to have is not there.”

Mr. Ruelle states: “There are some divisions among the shift work. I work nights and I understand what that entails. I wish they would schedule meetings or trainings later in the day and not when we should be sleeping. Also, the night shift often feels forgotten about. For example, if a local business brings in food or pizza for everyone by the time the night shift comes in, there isn’t much left. Officers notice that and night shift feels the sting. That is the main division I notice among staff.”

Mr. Schoenrock states: “There are a few people that pick favorites. Lt. Lackey picks favorites and she treats people differently based upon that. She is moving to administrative lieutenant and hopefully that changes soon. There were some divisions based upon Lt. Lackey and her treatment of others. Everyone knows who the favorites are and that causes division. We are not super cliquey as a department.”

Mr. Sundbakken states: “While we use the term divisions to separate the groups within the department it also seems like any division can be along those same lines. I was in investigations for 10 years and it seemed like investigations and patrol would not get along; kind of like siblings. I don’t think any of these division interfered with our abilities or the work product of the department."

Ms. Lackey states: "I have not witnessed any divisions within the department aside for normal friendship and camaraderie that some officers experience while working together on a specific shift or assignment."

Chief Klug states: "I have not witnessed any divisions within the department aside for normal friendship and camaraderie that some officers experience while working together on a specific shift or assignment. That being said, since my promotion to captain in 2012, I have worked hard to build relationships and eliminate the "us vs. them" attitudes that were much stronger at that time. My current captains know that I will not tolerate unfair treatment because of where an employee works. We are one team with one purpose — to serve the Minot community."

Mr. Dyke states: "I have not witnessed any divisions within the department aside for normal friendship and camaraderie that some officers experience while working together on a specific shift or assignment."

Mr. Sundheim states: "I have not witnessed any divisions within the department aside from normal friendship and camaraderie that some officers experience while working together on a specific shift or assignment."

Comment: This investigator finds that, as to the issue of any division within the department, most employees claim any division is based on the actual separation of duties among the different units within the department, namely Administration, Patrol, and Investigations. This investigator does note that most employees referenced usual and customary divisions that exist based on the required responsibilities of each unit.

Essentially, any employee reported divisions seem to be based on the type of work performed by officers within each specific division. There were some references to separation based on shift work which would be considered customary in the law enforcement environment.

There does not appear to be any non-work-related separation among employees aside from rank and duties associated with each position.

Issue 7: What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

Employees Responses: Ms. Asham states: "Help. Additional detectives would help everyone. We all feel that we are barely keeping our heads up above and it feels like no one cares."

Ms. Asham continues: “There have been issues for a while and we have tried collectively to voice our concerns. We felt at the time that we were being heard but nothing was done about what we said. We had meetings with upper management as a group about what we needed but it feels like nothing was done to rectify the situation.”

Mr. Bowles states: “Trust. Your average officer is going to tell you that the trust diminishes the higher up you go; that this is run like a business and you truly are a cog. In a line of work where trust is paramount it is difficult. It creates unnecessary and added stress to an already stressful job.”

Mr. Bowles further states: “This means transparency in the operation of the department. We just went through a restructuring and the managers were told not to tell us for over two weeks. This does not build trust or transparency in the workplace.”

Ms. Bjork states: “Transparency. This applies to the entire division. They require us to be transparent on duty (with body cams and dash cams), but leadership isn’t transparent with us. I don’t trust that Chief won’t try to get his hands on the report and find out who said what.”

Ms. Guerton states: “More people to help us. Our workload is way too heavy. The expectations are higher of us and we are not compensated for that. If we had good leadership, our caseloads would not be as much as an issue. We don’t need to be babied but we need help and support. We have been told that a detective is a desired position. We don’t get any additional compensation for being on call and it is so stressful. We may be on the only one on a call or at a scene and it is overwhelming to take a huge case by ourselves. I understand it is part of the job but if we had more people it might be easier to manage. Supervision also needs to step it up.”

Ms. Talbott states: “Treat people equally and fairly. When complaints are brought forward, take them seriously.”

Mr. Lakoduk states: “I am not generally involved in the day to day down at the department. The environment I currently work in is decent. When it comes to the City, I can think that the attitude regarding promotion could use improvement. I have been questioned regarding Sergeant positions when they come open. I have chosen not to pursue that line and I have been asked why I didn’t test or apply. I have also heard that some people were upset that there were not enough people testing for Sergeant. That seems counterproductive to accost people if they are not ready or interested in the open positions. There have been some questionable promotions and ones that I have not necessarily agreed with as well.”

Mr. Lakoduk continues: “I have heard a lot over the years with management, both within patrol and investigations. At times it is concerning to hear that. I currently hear more than I experience considering my removed position. Often officers will vent to me because they don't think supervision has done enough (or anything) to address their complaints."

Ms. White states: "Getting another detective. I know this has been communicated to the brass, but we haven't seen it yet. We don't know if it is going to happen and that is causing a lot of stress. I think a new Lieutenant would be beneficial as well and hopefully that helps a lot of the issues we have."

Mr. Johnson states: "I am in a pretty decent situation where I am, I don't know that I have a response to that."

Ms. Lentz states: "If we are going to keep the same workload, then more personnel. Changing the way investigations are done would help too, but either way we need something to keep our heads above water."

Mr. Bloyer states: "Right now, I am in a good place. When I was on the road my biggest complaint was that they did not listen to their hiring board and we had officers we shouldn't. I think a pretty universal complaint would be that they should listen to the officers they assign in certain places."

Mr. Hanks states: "More detectives for my specific environment. That would allow people to specialize in certain areas or types of cases."

Managers Responses:

Mr. Plessas states: "I think we are working on that and it is establishing better leadership; providing more opportunities to my subordinates to lead personnel better. We made some changes department wide to allow for some overall changes and to allow new perspectives. Hopefully this will change and make everyone more efficient at their jobs as well."

Mr. Plessas continues: "No one likes to have this kind of investigation done but this sounds like a constructive report. I look forward to implementing any changes if necessary, after this process is finished."

Mr. Goodman states: "Our office is kind of a poor set up. I am lucky enough to have my own office, but the bulk of our investigators are in an open setting. It is very distracting, and it can be difficult to work in. We also bring members of the public back for interviews and we have to be aware of what is going on when working certain cases."

Mr. Goodman continues: "We are not set up to respond to the needs of the community. We are very reactive and not proactive. We are trying to handle the workload that comes in and it is not possible. With the amount of people we have, we cannot keep up with the workload. We have more to deal with and with more technology. What used to take me 1 hour to finish can now take me 3 or 4 hours to complete. If the City wants us to be a resource to the community then we need more than we have. I have seen a lot of things fall on deaf ears over the years and that is frustrating. I have seen the City pay thousands or hundreds of thousands of dollars and nothing changes."

Mr. Sumlin states: "More detectives would help. We have a pretty high case load for the 8-9 of us. These cases are more complex with technology and social media. Everyone is stretched pretty thin, and we all have a lot of cases."

Mr. Wilk states: "We need more investigators. Not only would this lighten the caseload but would also allow each case the full attention it deserves. We also need to compensate people for being on call. It is very stressful to put your life on hold and wait for the phone to ring, we should be compensated for being on call. This leads to low morale as well. Cases are becoming more technical with the added use of technology and this takes more time and we also don't have a technician who does electronic searches or is an expert in these areas."

Mr. Wilk continues: "I think there is some perceived mistreatment among some of the investigators. Some people feel like their caseloads are higher, if you look at the numbers though the caseloads are equal. This can make people feel like the workload is unfair. In the past, 4 or 5 years ago, there were some investigators that did not have as many cases; that has changed and doesn't happen anymore."

Mr. Wilk further states: "A major concern I have is that 2 of our investigators that work ICAC cases (tips about cyber-crimes, online predators, etc.). To handle these kinds of cases takes a lot of time and is intense work. If they work the hours that these kinds of cases require, they ended working almost double. Some agencies have people dedicated to these kinds of cases, we don't. Our investigators who do this work also have a full caseload and also do crime scene. I can see where these employees might feel that they were treated differently. If the community found out, we didn't have a dedicated unit, I don't think they would be happy about it. There is a good chunk of investigators who feel they are burnt out. Things are cyclical. We have recognition for some of our employees, something that comes from the Chief. It doesn't get you a pay increase or a change in position or help you get promoted. It is just a piece of paper that said you did a good job. It seems like it happens in spurts, we will do a lot of them and then none at all but at the end of the day it doesn't change anything."

Mr. Wegner states: "Additional personnel. That is something we have been fighting for, for years. We finally got up to full staff (after going a full year understaff) and that puts a lot of stress on them. If we can have more detectives that would be better. The layout is also difficult as we have some people working in cubicles and it can get noisy. I would love if everyone could have their own office."

Mr. Schoenrock states: “Trust. Trusting the administration would improve the work environment. I don’t currently trust them and that makes it difficult. Some I spoke about and others are character or ethics based. It would be nice to see trust and honor back in the department. We are copying policies from large organizations (like New York or Los Angeles) and they don’t necessarily fit with us. We put policy before responsibility, and it doesn’t make any sense.”

Mr. Schoenrock continues: “The timing of this is difficult now that there is change being made starting 2021. The problem I foresee is that nothing will change as a result of this investigation because the Department is already planning changes and they will think they ‘fixed’ it.”

Mr. Schoenrock further adds: “I have heard that you can request a copy of your personnel file and remove anything that is over 5 years old (negative or positive). I am not sure if that is accurate but that is what I heard.”

Mr. Sundbakken states: “Any organization can be improved with better communication and I think that holds for us as well. We communicate pretty well but that can always be improved. Of course, increased funding would help as well.”

Mr. Ruelle states: “Respect. The Captains and the Chief don’t appear to respect the opinions of the Sergeants. Respect for the time and experience the sergeants have. It seems like the only sergeants that are consulted are the ones that will tell them what they want to hear. Two years ago, the prior Chief created another rank of officer and then they were given a raise for that. The next year the Chief, the Captains, and Lieutenants, all received the raise. Someone asked, what about the Sergeants? They said they would look into it and nothing was done. It feels like more and more is expected of the Sergeants but without regard to increase in pay.”

Ms. Lackey states: “I believe the new administration and the new Chief are in the process of correcting any negative perceptions within the department which are the subject of some complaints. I believe all issues raised are now acknowledged by management and steps are being taken to resolve these issues with the assistance of this investigation.”

Chief Klug states: “As stated, as Chief, I do wish to correct any negative perceptions within the department that are the subject of any complaints. I believe all issues raised are now acknowledged by management and steps are being taken to resolve these issues with the assistance of this investigation. In addition, I think it is important to properly handle complaints from employees about their fellow employees. That being said, it is also going to be prudent to the function and morale of the whole department to ensure that rumors are not the "facts" presented as basis for these complaints to ensure all employees can work in an environment free from harassment by other employees."

Mr. Dyke states: "Again, I am new to my current assignment and have no relevant suggestions for improvement at this time."

Mr. Sundheim states: "As stated, I believe any issues raised are heard by management, and if anything is found to be substantiated, steps will be taken to resolve those issues with the assistance of this investigation."

Comment: This investigator finds many of responses to the question of what is most important to improving the work environment seem to be related to workload issues and a request for additional personnel. Mr. Sumlin stated: "More detectives would help. We have a pretty high case load for the 8-9 of us. These cases are more complex with technology and social media. Everyone is stretched pretty thin, and we all have a lot of cases."

Mr. Wilk reiterated: "We need more investigators. Not only would this lighten the caseload but would also allow each case the full attention it deserves. We also need to compensate people for being on call. It is very stressful to put your life on hold and wait for the phone to ring, we should be compensated for being on call." Ms. Guerton states: "More people to help us. Our workload is way too heavy. The expectations are higher of us and we are not compensated for that. If we had good leadership, our caseloads would not be as much as an issue.

Some of the responses focused on administrative issues rather than substantive issues. The overall consensus from most of the officers was work-load issues and having additional personnel to offer support. Again, the opinions of the higher-ranking officers as to potential improvements are distinct and separate compared to the lower-ranking officers.

Assessment Findings

1. This investigator finds that, within the Investigative Division, there is a perception that female employees are treated differently than male employees regarding caseload assignments, duties, and dress code.

2. This investigator finds that with a few exceptions, the vast majority of employees believe that their managers show respect to subordinate employees.

3. This investigator finds that with a few exceptions, the vast majority of employees note that if they had to report an issue with their manager to upper-level management, they would do so.

4. This investigator finds that most employees feel their manager is approachable.

5. This investigator finds that most employees did not want to talk about the management of their area aside from some minor critiques.

6. This investigator finds most employees claim any division is based on the actual separation of duties among the different units within the department.

7. This investigator finds most employees recommended improving the work environment by requesting additional personnel to assist with the workload.

Allegation Findings

Allegation: Sgt. Steve Schoenrock alleges that Senior Human Resources Generalist Brittany Rust and Lieutenant Darren Dyke were involved in inappropriate sexual relationship when she was the proctor for the examination required for promotion to the rank of Lieutenant. Specifically, Sgt. Schoenrock alleges that Ms. Rust may have improperly assisted Lt. Dyke by providing him the examination information.

Supporting Information: Sgt. Schoenrock states: "I supervise approximately 12 -15 employees I usually share that duty with another Sargent or Lieutenant. I report to Lieutenant Darren Dyke."

Sgt. Schoenrock continues: "I have been on night shifts for 5 years as a Sargent. I came from narcotics. I have worked hard to gain the trust and respect of the other officers. The higher the rank the higher standard should be in the department. It has been the opposite within the department. The newer officers were held accountable but the higher the rank doesn't seem to be held to the same or higher standard."

Sgt. Schoenrock continues: "The last few years of one of my night shift lieutenant's career I took over a lot of his tasks because he was going through some major physical problems and was sort of checked out. He had some medical issues and personal issues, and I covered his duties for him as much as possible. It was probably 2 1/2 years of me covering. When Scott finally left, I was made temporary lieutenant. Chief told me he was going to have me do the job while Scott was vacationing out. After Scott's end date was known then they started the process of replacing Scott."

Sgt. Schoenrock further states: "I tested and did well and made top 3. I had the highest peer reviews. I have a lot of experience and have been working this shift for years. It was between me, Sgt. Dyke, and Sgt. Chapman. They ended up choosing Sgt. Dyke. It was brought to my attention that he had an inappropriate sexual relationship with Brittany Valentine. Brittany is the one who proctors the exam and has the information. Sgt. Dyke does not know the job and we have had to train him about it. Other officers come to me about search and seizure saying Sgt. Dyke doesn't know it. I am not sure how because the test was full of it. Sgt. Dyke was also reprimanded for having a relationship with a former SWAT team member's wife."

Sgt. Schoenrock concluded: "Based on his lack of knowledge and lack of ability in this job it seems like there was something going on with Sgt. Dyke's test for Lieutenant. I heard they talked to him about it – that isn't enough. There should be due diligence in looking into it and actually investigate."

Mr. Tyler Ruelle, Patrol Sergeant, states: "Steve had some concerns about the promotion that Darren got. There were rumors that Darren had a relationship with Brittani and she administered the test for Lieutenant and there were concerns that potentially Darren was cheating."

Refuting Information: Ms. Brittany Rust, Human Resources Senior General Specialist, states: "As part of my job duties I do recruiting, I assist with payroll, I handle DOT drug testing. I do a little bit of everything, including employee questions. I have worked for the City of Minot for approximately five years, I started in June of 2015. My supervisor Lisa Jundt."

Ms. Rust continues: "With recruiting, we have exams, I do administer and proctor exam for the police department. I mostly do entry level stuff. I recall proctoring the exam Darren Dyke took. There were other test takers who took the lieutenants exam the same day, inside the same room where Darren Dyke took his exam. The exam was on July 1, 2020 at 2:00 pm. The test takers that day were, Darren Dyke, Steve Schoenrock, Dave Chapman, Tyler Ruelle, Kevin Wilk, Greg Johnson, and Dan Wheeler. All individuals were taking the same exam to make lieutenant."

Ms. Rust further states: "What they do in this process, they use a variety of categories to put the scores together. They have a service time category, a training hours category, a test category, and an interview. Each category is given a score and the scores are weighed. So, ten points for service, fifteen points for training hours, 32.5 points for the test, and 32.5 points for the interview."

Ms. Rust continues: "The exam itself is fill in the bubbles. The city uses a company called IPMAHR. IPMAHR sends me the scoring rubric. But with the internal controls, I have another girl from HR help. I initially grade the exams and then I send them to another person in HR to double check my work, this is to make sure I didn't miss anything, and nothing got missed. I generally grade the exams right there inside the exam room on the spot."

Ms. Rust remarks: "I do have the answers in front of me ahead of time. I get the test answers before the exam, about a week before. I like to make sure I got the right exam, and that I have enough tests for each test taker. I do not open the sealed test until that day. I usually open it when I get to the room. I grade the exams right there on the spot, it is more time efficient. I do have the answers in front of me. I get the test answers before the exam day."

Ms. Rust continues: "Regardless of when I get them, the test answers are sealed, and I don't open them until I get to the test room. I would have opened the exam that day on July 1, 2020. I went in a half an hour early at about 1:30 pm. I ordered the exams on June 26, 2020 per my order confirmation from UPS next day. The exams were shipped late, so I probably did not receive the exams until either June 28th or 29th, but I do not recall the exact date. I did order the exams from UPS next day air."

Ms. Rust comments: "I was the only proctor in the room during the exam. Generally, we would have two people proctoring the exam, but we were short staffed this year. I am in a room and I am down there with a handful of police officers and I take the tests down there. The tests never leave HR's possession. The tests remain locked in my office until I take them into the exam room. Everything stays sealed until the testing. The box will be open, but everything else remains sealed."

Ms. Rust states: "I did not help Darren Dyke study for the exam, he got the same information that everyone else did. The officers are all given a reading list. The officers are sent out a reading list by Jason Sundbakken. He usually sends the reading list as soon as we post the job. We want people to have enough time to study, so as soon as we post the job, we try to get the reading list out to the officers so they can begin to study. I did not help Darren Dyke cheat on the exam. I was surprised that Darren Dyke did as well as he did on the test because he did great on it and Darren has admitted he is a bad test taker."

Ms. Rust continues: "I did congratulate him, but I did not help him. First of all, I would never help anyone cheat. Secondly, the procedures that are in place are to make sure nothing gets opened beforehand, I do not want that responsibility. I don't recall exactly when I graded Darren Dykes exam. I might have graded his exam the next day. I was working on a software training and I might have graded the exam later that evening or the next day. I don't really remember. Sometimes, if everyone is done with the exams, I will go upstairs and grade them in my office, just because I don't need to be sitting down there by myself grading. I guess I don't really know where that claim came from. I do not have any inside as to how I would even do that."

Ms. Rust further states: "I have worked with Darren with recruiting, I know him, I have worked with him a little more than others, but I have no reason to help him over others, or anyone getting promoted over someone else. My only role is to be there, to watch them take the test, grade the test, and I compile the scores. Jason Sundbakken checks my work. I also send my scoring to the Captain and the Chief to also check my work."

Ms. Rust comments: "Also, you can be the number one person in the ranking, and it does not always mean that person will get the promotion. With everything combined, I do not know where the allegation came from. I make sure that I am careful with the exam procedures. I don't open the exams, I only have them for a couple of days beforehand. The exams are in a box locked in my office, and the exams are sealed in plastic wrapping."

Ms. Rust states: "I have not had a relationship with Darren outside of work, we are friends on Facebook but that's about it. I want to reiterate, I worked with Darren more than anyone else who tested, but there was no outside relationship, and I had no reason to help him cheat. The internal controls that are in place between testing and the office prevent cheating from happening. Captain Sundbakken and Chief are sent everything by me. They check my work."

Ms. Lackey states: "I also understand that a co-worker has alleged testing irregularities in the most recent Lieutenant promotional examination. Regarding any claim that were some irregularities in the most recent Lieutenant promotional examination, I will state, while I have no specific knowledge of any irregularities in the testing procedure, that, in my experience, promotions within the department are not based solely on the testing results and involve other factors, including interviews, experience level and the candidate's continuing education in law enforcement. I believe this individual is making false accusations because he was passed over for the Lieutenant promotion and is resentful and vindictive as a result."

Chief John Klug states: "Regarding any claim that were some irregularities in the most recent Lieutenant promotional examination, I will state that I, as Chief, am ultimately responsible for fulfilling the position based on a selection from several candidates. While I have no specific knowledge of any irregularities in the testing procedure, I can state that promotions within the department are not based solely on the testing results and involve other factors, including interviews, experience level and the candidate's continuing education in law enforcement. There are many factors I must weigh in deciding on who I am going to promote, and this decision is not easy given the high quality of employees who rise to the top in the promotional process. If there is any proof through this investigation or otherwise that a member of my department cheated on a promotional exam or during any other part of the process, I would move to terminate them from my department and the City of Minot."

Lt. Dyke states: "I also understand that a co-worker has alleged that I was involved in testing irregularities in the most recent Lieutenant promotional examination. I further understand that this individual alleges that I was in a social or romantic relationship with HR Generalist, Brittany Rust, who oversees the testing procedures."

Lt. Dyke continues: “I completely deny that I am in or have ever been in any romantic relationship with Ms. Rust. I am married and am offended that I have been accused on these allegations. I did not cheat or receive any improper assistance on this most recent or any prior promotional examination. I believe this individual is making false accusations because he was passed over for the Lieutenant promotion and is resentful and vindictive as a result.”

Captain Sundheim states: “I also under that Employers Council is investigating a claim that were some irregularities in the most recent Lieutenant promotional examination.”

Captain Sundheim continues: “Regarding any claim that were some irregularities in the most recent Lieutenant promotional examination, I will state that, while I have no specific knowledge of irregularities in the testing procedure, in my experience promotions within the department are not based solely on the testing results and involve many other factors, including interviews, experience level and the candidate's continuing education in law enforcement.”

Comment: Based on the available information, this investigator finds it less likely than so that Brittany Rust and Lieutenant Darren Dyke were involved in inappropriate sexual relationship when she was the proctor for the Lieutenant promotional examination and less likely than so that Ms. Rust improperly assisted him by providing the examination information.

This investigator finds there is no supporting information that Ms. Rust and Lt. Dyke were involved in inappropriate sexual relationship when she was the proctor for the Lieutenant promotional examination or at any other time. Aside Sgt. Schoenrock’s speculation based on rumors, there is no foundation for that assertion.

The only further supporting information was the statement of Sgt. Ruelle. He confirmed that there were only “rumors” that Ms. Rust and Lt. Dyke were involved in inappropriate sexual relationship and rumors are not reliable to provide support for Sgt. Schoenrock’s claim. There is no concrete evidence or reliable information that Ms. Rust and Lt. Dyke were involved in any inappropriate relationship, sexual or otherwise.

Both Ms. Rust and Lt. Dyke adamantly deny that they were involved in inappropriate sexual relationship. This investigator has no outside or refuting information that their statements are less than credible. This investigator finds it less likely than so that Ms. Rust and Lt. Dyke were involved in inappropriate sexual relationship when she was the proctor for the Lieutenant promotional examination.

Regarding the claim that Ms. Rust had any test information to share with Lt. Dyke, she has documented and detailed her involvement in the administration/proctoring of the examination. Ms. Rust confirmed that the tests never leave possession of the Human Resources Department and remain locked until she takes them into the exam room. Ms. Rust further confirmed that all materials stay sealed in plastic wrapping until the testing. Ms. Rust is credible in her statement that there are also separate internal controls in place to prevent cheating.

It is reasonable for this investigator to conclude that scoring on the Lieutenant's promotional examination is not the sole criteria for consideration for promotion to Lieutenant. It is evident from the refuting information that other factors are considered during the selection process, including subsequent interviews, educational level, and law enforcement related experience.

Chief John Klug confirmed he was ultimately responsible for fulfilling the Lieutenant position based on a selection from several candidates. Chief Klug added that promotions within the department are not based solely on the testing results and involve other factors, including interviews, experience level and the candidate's continuing education in law enforcement. Captain Sundheim, one of the highest-ranking officers in the department, reiterated that promotions within the department are not based solely on the testing results and involve many other factors.

This investigator finds that Ms. Rust would have been aware of the promotional process, specifically having knowledge that test scores are the only part of the overall selection process. Ms. Rust states: "You can be the number one person in the ranking, and it does not always mean that person will get the promotion. With everything combined, I do not know where the allegation came from." Therefore, it is not plausible that Ms. Rust would risk termination and multitude of charges for both of them when Lt. Dyke's promotion to Lieutenant would not be guaranteed by his test results only.

This investigator must further consider the motivation and credibility of Sgt. Schoenrock in determining the validity of his claims. Based on his statement that he had worked night shifts for 5 years, worked hard to gain the trust and respect of the other officers, tested in the top three, and that he was a temporary lieutenant for 2 ½ years, it is plausible that Sgt. Schoenrock may be resentful that he was essentially passed over for Lieutenant's promotion by Lt. Dyke coupled with the fact that he now has to report to him as a superior. Sgt Schoenrock remarked that he had a lot of experience and have been working the temporary shift for years.

Sgt. Schoenrock's potential motivation for making these statements is supported by the statements of some higher-ranking officers who were aware of his identity as the complainant. Lt. Lackey has stated she understands a co-worker has alleged testing irregularities in the most recent Lieutenant promotional examination. She further stated she believe this individual [Sgt. Schoenrock] was making false accusations because he was passed over for the Lieutenant promotion. Lt. Lackey asserted Sgt. Schoenrock is resentful and vindictive as a result.

This claim was corroborated by Lt. Dyke himself who is being accused of cheating and proclaimed that he did not cheat or receive any improper assistance on this or any prior promotional examination. Lt. Dyke further asserted this individual [Sgt. Schoenrock] is making false accusations because he was passed over for the Lieutenant promotion and, in agreement with Lt. Lackey's statement, was being resentful and vindictive. This investigator must consider Sgt. Schoenrock's motivation to make these claims as part of this investigator and as an important factor.

Based on the totality of the information, this investigator finds it less likely than so that Ms. Rust and Lt. Dyke were involved in inappropriate sexual relationship when she was the proctor for the Lieutenant promotional examination and less likely than so that Ms. Rust improperly assisted Lt. Dyke by providing the examination information.

Conclusion

There is a lack of supporting and sufficient information that Ms. Rust and Lt. Dyke were involved in inappropriate sexual relationship when Ms. Rust was the proctor for the Lieutenant promotional examination. There is also no supporting or objective information that Ms. Rust improperly assisted Lt. Dyke by providing the test information.

Summary of Allegation Findings

1. This investigator finds it less likely than so that Brittany Rust and Lieutenant Darren Dyke were involved in inappropriate sexual relationship when she was the proctor for the Lieutenant promotional examination and less likely than so that Ms. Rust improperly assisted him by providing the examination information.

Analysis

Decision-makers for the City of Minot are responsible for assessing the facts in this matter. This assessment and investigative report are intended to be the tool for making that analysis by identifying the relevant issues and addressing sources of information pertinent to those issues. This investigator's commentary is also shared, but it is important to understand that another person, such as a judge or a juror, might reach different conclusions based on the same or additional information.

I am Robbie Sumlin. I am a Detective in the Investigations Division. I have been here for six years. My supervisor is Sgt. Dave Goodman.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

No, I don't think so.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

Yes.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

Yes.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

Yes. I get along with him well and he is personable and easy to get along with.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

No.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

No. Only the divisions that are divided by the type of work that they do.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

More detectives would help. We have a pretty high case load for the 8-9 of us. These cases are more complex with technology and social media. Everyone is stretched pretty thin and we all have a lot of cases.

I am Jenna Bjork. I am the Liaison, I am currently assigned to the Investigations Division. I have been here for 4 ½ years. My supervisor is Detective Dave Goodman.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

Within the investigations divisions, I haven't seen that. I have heard my co-workers in the division complain about it. I have heard that Lt. Shawn Wagner is sexist and treats the guys differently than the girls. I have not experienced that with him. Outside of the division, I think there is some good-ole boy's club vibes within the department. NOT EVERYONE IS TREATED EQUALLY IN THE DEPARTMENT.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

Within the division, yes. Shawn's issues are not based on respect ~~he just wants to be liked by everyone.~~ Dave is great to work for and I have no complaints about him. ~~Lt. Wagner can go out of his way to help when personal things have gone on.~~

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

To my Captain, yes. I would not bring anything to the Chief. ~~I wouldn't confront Lt. Wagner directly.~~ I WOULD FEEL LESS COMFORTABLE GOING TO LT. WEGNER. I FEEL COMFORTABLE GOING TO GOODMAN.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

Absolutely, Dave Goodman is great. Lt. Wagner is approachable, ~~but I am not comfortable with him and~~ BUT I don't necessarily think that he will do anything about whatever is brought to him. He sometimes plays the game of "it's not my responsibility or job."

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

Lt. Wagner is not a good employee. He is smart and knows the job but he is good a manipulating people and acting like he doesn't know. He also seems to sabotage things that would require him to do more work even if it would benefit the department as a whole. He has a good group of investigators that work hard and he coasts by. He is just lazy and I don't think that leaving the division is going to change that.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

There is a division between the higher-ups and the lower ranking. ~~There are a few bad apples that create the division.~~ Within the division, Lt. Wagner is lazy ~~and doesn't care~~. He can overload one investigator with a large caseload and others have fewer and easier cases. That creates division and low morale. It makes everyone disengage and that is too bad because they are an incredible group of people.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

Transparency. This applies to the entire ~~division~~ DEPARTMENT. They require us to be transparent on duty (with body cams and dash cams) but leadership isn't transparent with us. I don't trust ~~that Chief won't try to get his hands on the report and find out who said what.~~ SOME OF THE ADMIN

December 17, 2020

I am Kevin Wilk. I am a Sergeant assigned to the Investigations division with City of Minot Police Department. I have been here since November 14, 2005. I supervise 12 employees technically, 7 employees in the day to day operations. My supervisor is Shawn Wegner.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

I don't think so. I think everyone is treated fairly. There are stretches were it is the same guys who are volunteering to help out when we need help. I am not sure that is treatment necessarily. Everyone pitches in to help out but some people pitch in more. Part of that issue is that our department isn't big enough to have a dedicated crime scene unit, the people in that unit are also assigned to other divisions as well. They can be burning the candle at both ends. They have tried to get more patrol officers involved in crime scene. This would help some of the investigators who work days from getting called out in the middle of the night and would help patrol officers get more experience. There hasn't been enough interest from patrol.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

Yes, I think they do. I feel respected from my supervisors. They will listen to me when I bring issues forward. I brought up that we need at least another 7 investigators. There are senior and master patrol that are assigned to investigations when there are openings. They do so much more work and are not paid any more for this. There is no value for this extra work. There is no compensation for being on call either. There is only compensation if you are called out. I brought this to my Captain. He was respectful when I brought it to him. I disagreed with his answer that money does not motivate people. In the last five years we have lost 15 investigators to other agencies. I also brought that up. Everyone said they left because of the caseload, being on call, and not being valued. These experienced investigators left for more pay and feeling valued. I felt like I was brushed aside but they were respectful to me when listening.

→ WHEN COMPARED TO PATROL DUTIES VS INVESTIGATION

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

Yes.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

Yes. I don't have any problems talking to anyone who is superior to me. I can report information but I feel like the major issues are not addressed.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

I don't think so.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

There is a division between the Captains and the Chief and the rest of the department. They are making structural changes and they are shifting Lieutenants to more administrative work. As long as I have been here, there has always been a division between patrol and investigations. I am not sure if these are major divisions but sometimes it creates a division and people can get irritated with one another. The biggest division is the brass and the rest of the department. I can say that I have been here long enough that I have worked with the Captains and Chief before they went into their current positions. Sometimes I think there is too much stress of department first. If you take care of your employees that will take care of the department.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

We need more investigators. Not only would this lighten the caseload but would also allow each case the full attention it deserves. We also need to compensate people for being on call. It is very stressful to put your life on hold and wait for the phone to ring, we should be compensated for being on call. This leads to low morale as well. Cases are becoming more technical with the added use of technology and this takes more time and we also don't have a technician who does electronic searches or is an expert in these areas.

I think there is some perceived mistreatment among some of the investigators. Some people feel like their caseloads are higher, if you look at the numbers though the caseloads are equal. This can make people feel like the workload is unfair. In the past, 4 or 5 years ago, there were some investigators that did not have as many cases; that has changed and doesn't happen anymore. A major concern I have is that 2 of our investigators that work ICAC cases (tips about cyber-crimes, online predators, etc.). To handle these kinds of cases takes a lot of time and is intense work. If they work the hours that these kinds of cases require they ended working almost double. Some agencies have people dedicated to these kinds of cases, we don't. Our investigators who do this work also have a full caseload and also do crime scene. I can see where these employees might feel that they were treated differently. If the community found out, we didn't have a dedicated unit, I don't think they would be happy about it. There are a good chunk of investigators who feel they are burnt out. Things are cyclical. We have recognition for some of our employees, something that comes from the Chief. It doesn't get you a pay increase or a change in position or help you get promoted. It is just a piece of paper that said you did a good job. It seems like it happens in spurts, we will do a lot of them and then none at all but at the end of the day it doesn't change anything.

December 17, 2020

I am Carmen Asham. I am a Master Officer with the City of Minot Police Department. I have been here since January 2011. My immediate supervisor is Sgt. Wilk. Lt. Wegner is my indirect supervisor.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

Yes. I have heard female officer complaining that they are treated differently. I have not experienced that myself. There is a lot more micromanaging going on with the female employees than the male employees. This is mostly from Lt. Wegner.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

No. It seems like our concerns and complaints are not addressed. If feels like ~~you~~ we are not being taken seriously. For me specifically one of the issues is caseloads. Because of extra duties I have, I am assigned extra cases from the State. We were told if we had these other cases that our normal caseload would be lessened but that has never happened.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

Yes.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

Both Sgt. Wilk and Lt. Wegner are approachable but not helpful. They both are open to having someone ask questions or ask for help, they just don't offer the help that is needed. For example, advice on how to work a case. I think this stems from lack of knowledge and experience on their part. This results in me asking someone else who does have that knowledge and experience.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

No. Communication is an issue. It seems to have deteriorated with our current working situation (remotely). There are supervisor + command staff meetings often but there doesn't seem to be much information being shared with us.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

Yes. I think the divisions are natural and this is true in any place of employment. There are definitely cliques of people that get along better; shifts or age groups that get along better.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

Help. Additional detectives would help everyone. We all feel that we are barely keeping our heads up above water and it feels like no one cares.

There have been issues for a while and we have tried collectively to voice our concerns. We felt at the time that we were being heard but nothing was done about what we said. We had meetings with upper management as a group about what we needed but it feels like nothing was done to rectify the situation.

I am Shawn Wegner. I am a Lieutenant with the City of Minot Police Department. I have been here just over 20 years. I supervise 11 employees. My supervisor is Captain Dale Plessas.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

Within my group, I don't believe we treat anyone differently. When it comes to case assignments I try to even that out as much as possible. Some people have certain specialties. I try and keep the case types and numbers as fair as possible. There might be speculation in the department as a whole that based upon prior friendships certain people were "taken care of" or given promotions. This based upon an appearance, not necessarily based on proven facts. This is not in the investigations division.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

Yes. In my division that is always in the forefront of our minds. We have a weekly supervisor meeting and we discuss that in those meetings. There is a lot of care and respect in those meetings. In investigations we have to have someone on call all the time. I am not required to be on call but with our shortages I have been taking call shifts. I did those so that I wouldn't have to change the schedule on someone through Christmas Eve when they weren't expecting it.

I am on my third boss in 5 years. The most current one took over 10 months ago. We have also been dealing with COVID and he is learning the job. I don't feel disrespected.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

Yes.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

I have a decent relationship with my Captain and the Chief and I have never had an issue approaching either one.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

No. We are just trying to get the job done with not enough people, we are often spread too thin.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

Sometimes I hear rumors of things. I am not always involved in the conversations and maybe that is because of my position. I know within our division the detectives talk among themselves and sometimes they bring things to me. In the last 5 years this is probably the most cohesive group I have had. In the past I have always had 1 or 2 people that were difficult to get along with. I know it has been a tough year with COVID and that has impacted our cases and the kinds of cases we are seeing. I haven't seen any type of division within the investigations unit. Most of them get along with the rest of the department otherwise. There is a group of them that will hang out with the other shifts to find out what is going on. This has been limited due to COVID this year. Some of the social aspect that we used to have is not there.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment? Additional personnel. That is something we have been fighting for, for years. We finally got up to full staff (after going a full year understaff) and that puts a lot of stress on them. If we can have more detectives that would be better. The layout is also difficult as we have some people working in cubicles and it can get noisy. I would love if everyone could have their own office.

December 17, 2020

I am Dave Goodman. I am Detective Sergeant with City of Minot Police Department. I have been here for almost 31 years. I supervise 4 employees. My supervisor is Lt. Shawn Wegner.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

Not that I have seen or been made aware of. I haven't had anyone come to me, in the last few years and express to me that they have been treated differently. I think the only time that has happened was about 5 years ago and that person has since left our agency.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

I feel that they do. My manager is respectful of me.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

I have been with the agency longer than anyone else. I recognize that I have been respected by my co-workers and a lot of times my supervisors have come to me with questions or issues! If I ever felt like I needed to go up the chain of command I would feel comfortable doing so. In the past, there were times when I was not comfortable this was a result of not having as much experience.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

Yes.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

~~No.~~ I have worked for several different supervisors and I recognize that people are different and have different styles. Over the years I have had to adapt depending on the person that is just because people are different.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

Yes. They appear to be based upon personality conflicts. I have seen this over time and I have experienced it as well. There have been personality clashes over the years. I tend to get along with everyone. Right now, I have heard that people have had disagreements but I usually don't hear anything until a few days later.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

Our office is kind of a poor set up. I am lucky enough to have my own office but the bulk of our investigators are in an open setting. It is very distracting and it can be difficult to work in. We also bring members of the public back for interviews and we have to be aware of what is going on when working certain cases.

We are not set up to respond to the needs of the community. We are very reactive and not proactive. We are trying to handle the workload that comes in and it is not possible. With the amount of people we have, we cannot keep up with the workload. We have more to deal with and with more technology. it takes us longer to complete our tasks. What used to take me 1 hour to finish can now take me 3 or 4 hours to complete. If the City wants us to be a resource to the community then we need more People than we have. I have seen a lot of things fall on deaf ears over the years and that is frustrating. I have seen the City pay thousands or hundreds of thousands of dollars and nothing changes. I am Dale Plessas. I am Captain Commander of Investigations for City of Minot Police Department. I have been here for over 19 years. I supervise approximately 18-19 employees. My supervisor is the Chief of Police, John Klug.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

There is a big difference between being treated differently and unfairly. For example, if an employee has a strength or a short coming they may be treated differently due to that but the treatment is never unfair.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

Yes. I feel respected by my manager as well.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

If I had to do that, I would do so.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

Yes, I think he is approachable.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

In general, I am fairly new to the investigations team. I started in February. I got briefings from the former Captain and my subordinates so I knew the challenges in this positions. The stress on my division is huge. We have ~~higher~~ High caseloads and more serious cases then ~~we~~ I have ever seen. The outgoing commander also mentioned that there were leadership challenges in the division that I would have to deal with. The leaders were unable to lead and manage their employees. This did not appear intentional but as a result of issues. Previously, employees were bypassing the lieutenant and going straight to the Captain. In an attempt to fix that, we moved the Captain physically further away from the Lieutenant to empower him to manage employees. I also heard from employees that they felt there were being treated unfairly partly due to workloads. We had a lot of leadership challenges and we have been trying to work through them. Some detectives only have part of the information and only see outward facing info and can get frustrated. Unfortunately we can't always share what goes on behind the scenes (for example if an employee is on a performance improvement plan) and that leads to frustration.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

There are divisions between personalities. There are some aggressive personalities and some that are not. There is value in both but can lead to frustration among the different types. I think strong leadership could help with that and alleviate some of that. A lot of this seems to come from a lack of understanding and different perspectives.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

I think we are working on that and it is establishing better leadership; providing more opportunities to my subordinates to lead personnel better. We made some changes department wide to allow for some overall changes and to allow new perspectives. Hopefully this will change and make everyone more efficient at their jobs as well.

No one likes to have this kind of investigation done but this sounds like a constructive ~~report~~ process. I look forward to implementing any changes if necessary after this process is finished.

*Truthfulness/Completeness

December 18, 2020

I am Stephanie Lentz. I am a Master Officer/Detective with City of Minot Police Department. I have been here for seven years. My supervisor is Sgt. Kevin Wilk.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

Generally no. There are some specifics that involve differential treatment. In our section, we have quite a few specialties like crime scene response unit. These individuals are called out more often than the rest of us. They are leaned on more than the crime scene response people in patrol. We are extremely taxed in investigations and it seems a bit much.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

I don't think they show disrespect directly but I think there is a line drawn. If you can see that your employees are overwhelmed or overburdened then a supervisor could or should pitch in and help. I don't see that and it seems like they don't really care how overburdened we are, but just care that the work is done.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

I know that it has been done in the past and nothing happened, it feel like it fell on deaf ears. I would feel comfortable doing it but I am not sure anything would be done about it.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

Yes. Sgt. Wilk is approachable. Lt. Wegner is approachable but things fall on deaf ears. If I want to go to training he'll answer me very quickly. If I have another issue, it seems like he always has to check with someone else and then I never hear back from him. Whenever there is a bunch of us that can't handle the caseload and we go to Lt. Wegner, nothing changes.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

Lately it has been difficult to see how things are going due to COVID and many of us working from home. I personally don't understand what there is to supervise if they are not responding out to calls. Only looking at paperwork is not full supervision. A couple years ago, I had an annual review. One of the shortcomings on my review was that I was friends with another female officer and she was bringing me down. This had nothing to do with my work product and did not involve anything I could do to fix. This did not seem constructive.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

The brass (upper level) is separated from the rest of us. I think that is based upon rank structure. There are cliques of people who get along better but nothing that impacts work product. Some people get more leeway than others. Someone can make 175 mistakes and nothing happens. However, if someone has a lower rank and makes a small mistake the response is disproportionate. This drives morale down. This is not just our division specifically, it happens department wide.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

If we are going to keep the same workload, then more personnel. Changing the way investigations are done would help too, but either way we need something to keep our heads above water.

December 21, 2020

I am Aaron Bowles. I am a Detective with the City of Minot Police Department. I have been here for three years. My supervisor is Lt. Wegner. But I report to a variety of officers within the department.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

Yes. It seems relatively arbitrary. I notice something I might be able to "get away with," may not be the same for everyone else. There seems to be a concern by my peers that there is gender bias against females. I have not experienced but I believe my co-workers. Something I have heard is that females have been talked to about their professional dress where there is really no standard. I believe our policy says business casual attire. I know several females have been talked to about their clothing. I have never seen anyone dressed inappropriately. I never seen them wear anything too low cut or too tight; they are always dressed appropriately.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

There is a manager who is getting ready to retire and he is the consummate professional. He respects everyone. The others, not so much. They are quick to dismiss, from what I have seen.

They can also sidestep issues which can be seen as disrespectful. I, personally, have had a good experience.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

At this point no. Within the last couple of weeks I had a major complaint and it was swept under the rug. The higher you go up the chain the more we feel like a cog in the wheel. That doesn't feel good.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

My immediate supervisors, yes. It diminishes the further you go up the chain. Any manager will listen to what you have to say as long as it is not contrary to an order they have given. I don't know what happens after you approach them.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

No.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

I think every department has people who are favorites, who seemingly can get away with anything. I feel like within investigation the people who might get away with more, work harder for it so less is said about it. I feel like I fall somewhere in there. Working from home has crushed my ability to be effective. We were recently told that we will stay at home unless we have a reason for coming into the office. I am less effective and productive from home. But no one says anything to me.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

Trust. Your average officer is going to tell you that the trust diminishes the higher up you go; that this is run like a business and you truly are a cog. In a line of work where trust is paramount it is difficult. It creates unnecessary and added stress to an already stressful job. This means transparency in the operation of the department. We just went through a restructuring and the managers were told not to tell us for over two weeks. This does not build trust or transparency in the workplace.

We were having our Wednesday meeting (maybe three months ago). Everyone was present. We were discussing our cases. A sexual assault case was being discussed. Sgt. Wilk is generally seen as lazy and does not have any investigations experience. ~~He went so far as to say that a victim who was claiming to be raped was "asking for it."~~ Several females gave me the side eye and texted me and asked me to say something. They felt more comfortable having me say something and having it come from a male. I spoke up and said that we shouldn't say something like that – we shouldn't comment on the motivation of a sexual assault victim. It seemed like Sgt. Wilk said something so open like this because he wanted an excuse not to do anything about it. This impacted his ability to manage and his credibility. I went to the other Sargent and asked if he heard Wilk's comment. He said he didn't, so I repeated it. I left it with the other Sargent to discuss it – that isn't my role and I would be out of my lane to do it now.

HE WAS UNCONVINCED BY OF THE VERACITY OF THE FEMALE'S CLAIMS OF HAVING BEEN RAPED BECAUSE SHE DIDN'T SEEM APPROPRIATELY UPSET.

December 22, 2020

I am Kristin Guerton. I am a Detective with City of Minot Police Department. I have been here for four and one-half years. My supervisor is Kevin Wilk.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

Yes. Lt. Wegner treats people differently. I know that it has been addressed several times, more so females. I have never been treated differently or experienced any sexual harassment. I feel like he knows that if he tried to treat me like that I would say something or try to shut it down. There are other women who are treated differently. Miki, ~~she is newer and she~~ is treated differently. She is a bit of a people pleaser and Lt. Wegner takes advantage of that. She is often called out when she is not the next person up. There was a time when I was the next person on call and instead he called Miki. I asked Lt. Wegner why he did not call me. ~~He said that Miki is his go to because she won't say no~~. He takes advantage of her willingness to come in. Lt. Wegner has make comments some of the women's clothing. Men can wear tennis shoes but if women do, he will make a comment. Miki one time wore black and white checkered pants and Lt. Wegner made a comment about them. There was a detective who dressed like a total slob (male) and Lt. Wegner never addressed it or said anything to him.

He stated he knew Mikki was available.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

Sometimes. If you do a good job on a case, they might mention it. There is a lack of respect with investigators and management. Sgt. Wilk and Lt. Wegner are absent and don't really understand the job; sometimes that creates a lack of respect toward them. Being on call is so stressful and partly because you don't have your supervisor to fall back on. You can't call them, they probably won't answer. You can call Dave Goodman and he will help but not the other two. We are a young department so we need more support from managers and we don't always get it.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

No because it falls on deaf ears. I would feel comfortable talking to someone about it but I know that nothing is going to change. We have had multiple sit down meetings ~~with more people~~ with all investigators included and nothing changes, nothing happens when we complain.

Many suggestions have been made by investigators to help operations work better but nothing changes.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

In a way. I feel like I can talk to them. Sgt. Wilk is almost too approachable, he talks and talks but it doesn't go anywhere. He doesn't understand the job and how stressful it is. Our work environment is also not ideal because we work in cubicles and it is so distracting and hard to get anything done because it is so loud and everything is going on. Sgt. Wilk doesn't understand the job. He is the type of person that says he doesn't understand why we (some of us) come in early. Lt. Wegner is approachable but I won't go to him with a complaint or guidance on a case. I don't think he knows what to do in the job. He'll talk and talk, but at the end of the conversation you are nowhere. Dave Goodman isn't my supervisor but I'll go to him because he knows and is experienced. We are losing him soon and I hate to see what will happen to the department.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

Only that everything falls on deaf ears. The people that they choose for management positions doesn't make sense. When Sgt. Wilk was chosen for his role there were 4 options and they asked us who we would like. The options were not great. There is a female officer, Shannon Lackey that is very hard to deal with and she breaks people down – somehow she is a lieutenant now which is shocking. It is weird that changes are happening; two main people who are problems are getting moved. The person who would be a great Lieutenant in investigations can't be because the Chief is his brother-in-law. They should make an exception or something – we need good people. I am not sure the new lieutenant is going to be the best fix, we will have to see. When Dave Goodman retires I do not know who we will go to for help. The State's Attorney's office is a large part of our battle and they are difficult to work with on top of everything else. I do DV cases and they are terrible in how they treat victims, I find myself having to compensate for their lack of care or experience. Cases are getting dismissed like crazy because of their errors. They are not prepared when they go to court as well. I have had to tell victims to call the State's Attorney herself to address their concerns. I wrote a letter to one of our Captains about what was going on in their office.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

Not that I can think of. There are some officers that are close but there aren't really cliques. I have heard that Chief is friends with certain people and those people get promoted quicker but I can't say 100% that is happening I have only heard that.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

More people to help us. Our workload is way too heavy. The expectations are higher of us and we are not compensated for that. If we had good leadership our caseloads would not be as much as an issue. We don't need to be babied but we need help and support. We have been told that a detective is a desired position. We don't get any additional compensation for being on call and it is so stressful. We may be on the only one on a call or at a scene and it is overwhelming to take a huge case by ourselves. I understand it is part of the job but if we had more people it might be easier to manage. Supervision also needs to step it up.

kguerton

Kristin Guerton

. An additional problem I have seen repeatedly is officers/employees not being held accountable. The less work a person does, or the harder they are to deal with, their actions are pushed under a rug. There are certain people who can get away with ANYTHING! One being a female Lt. It is unfortunate when there are good supervisors who could be in supervisor rolls.

December 22, 2020

I am Sarah White. I am the Investigations Administrative Clerk for the City of Minot Police Department. I have been here for five years. My supervisor is Lt. Shawn Wegner.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

It does seem like the male employees in the back are treated better than the female employees. They are definitely nicer towards the male employees and it appears that there is more respect toward the males. Sgt. Goodman is nice and respectful to everyone – regardless of gender so is Captain Plessas. Sgt. Wilk and Lt. Wegner are more misogynistic. This behavior is not directed toward me. Every now and then, Sgt. Wilk and Lt. Wegner can be condescending toward me, I don't take it personally and it seems to happen when they are in a bad mood. I have heard from other females this happens more often and not based on any other reason other than them being female.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

Captain Plessas and Sgt. Goodman definitely do. Lt. Wegner says that he does but he is not very good at showing that; same with Sgt. Wilk. He can act respectful towards some people but I don't think he does so with everyone.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

I think I would. Captain Plessas is very good at listening and you can tell he definitely cares. You never know if anything is going to be done about it. This is common with the higher ups within the department.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

Depending on the day. If he is in an extremely bad mood, he is not pleasant to talk to. If he is in a good mood, he is super approachable and easy to talk to. It depends on his mood for the day.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

There have been concerns brought up by the employees in our department. We have brought forward complains or ideas for changes and it doesn't seem like anything is ever done. That frustrates a lot of the detectives. Also, communication from the brass to the rest of the division seems really bad lately. Sgt. Will makes statements in regards to sexual assault/rape cases that are concerning to me + detectives in the office, such as "well she was drunk", etc. Seems to find an "excuse" why it happened. Personally don't think he should be assigned those cases.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

I personally don't see any. I can relate well to everyone. Of course, there are always people you are closer with than others. I don't personally think there are too many cliques. It used to be like that a while ago but with the new people I think everyone gets along pretty well.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

Getting another detective. I know this has been communicated to the brass but we haven't seen it yet. We don't know if it is going to happen and that is causing a lot stress. I think having a new Lieutenant would be beneficial as well and hopefully that helps a lot of the issues we have.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

I don't believe so in investigations or the department as a whole from what I have seen.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

Yes.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

Yes, I would.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

I do.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

No, everything is fine for me.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

No, not from what I have seen.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

More detectives for my specific environment. That would allow people to specialize in certain areas or types of cases.

I am Charles Shane Johnson. I am a Task Force Officer with the City of Minot Police Department. I have been here since September 27, 2010. My supervisor is Special Agent Rob Brown. I am assigned to Investigations. I deal most frequently with Lt. Shawn Wegner or Captain Dale Plessas.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

I would say so. It appears this is based on friendships or a good ol' boy system. It can also be impacted by how long someone has been there or work history. I have not seen anything that appears gender based.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

Generally yes. There are some managers who do not. Paul Burns does not respect employees in how he treats people or speaks to employees. I know there have been issues with Matt Mcloud as well. He is known for having an abrasive personality and is disrespectful. I don't work in the building presently and have not for the past 5 years.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

Yes.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

Lt. Wegner and Captain Plessas are very approachable.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

Shift work creates a closer relationship with people you work with generally but I don't think there are any cliques or anything like that.

I am Steve Schoenrock. I am a Patrol Sergeant with City of Minot Police Department. I have been here for 15 years and 4 months. I supervise approximately 12 -15 employees I usually share that duty with another Sergeant or Lieutenant. I report to Lieutenant Darren Dyke.

One of my strengths at work is that I am approachable and people bring me their problems to me. Between all 3 shifts and all other divisions it is almost daily. I understand nothing is perfect but over the years it has become overwhelming. Most of the people in investigations worked for me at some point in patrol. There is an overwhelming sense of dread for people in investigations. I had addressed some issues in the past with a Captain and I was assured that things would change. Sometimes people tell me one thing and then when they report their concerns to administration they fear reprisal or they feel like they are not heard and are afraid to tell the whole truth. There are 3 women in investigations who worked for me and I never had any issues with them when they were with me in patrol. They have come to me with numerous pproblems. We should never be treating anyone differently. All the detectives brought their problems to administration and had a couple meetings about it. I was told by these same detectives that nothing changed after that and it seems to have gotten worse in some cases. I felt like there was nowhere else to go so I eventually went to Kelly. These are good officers and I want to see them succeed.

A few of the women in investigations are getting piled on when it comes to case assignments. They are getting overwhelmed and they cannot give the cases the full attention partly because they won't say no to the assignments. This is happening to Miki Talbot. She is a people pleaser and a fantastic teammate. She has been handed several of the bigger cases. She is a good detective and hard worker. She is also given extra on call weeks because she doesn't say no. Kristin is another one that won't say no and cares about her job greatly. She has had to deal with a difficult case and a difficult member of the community. She needed support but she wasn't getting it from her superiors or from the State's Attorney's office.

I went to a captain to try and help Kristin because she needed support. The males are getting different case assignments. Some of the men have a bunch of burglaries and shoplifting and the women had the more serious cases. The women are also being talked to about dress code. The females were talked to about dress codes but the males were not even though we have a shaving policy and they were not adhering to. We lost a female officer to the FBI and she had a similar experience. Lt. Wegner is one of the problems as well but he is being moved in 2021. I am not sure if that is going to solve the problems.

The supervisors need to be there for the team and for the group. Especially since we have had so many more homicides this year than most years. Sgt. Wilk would prefer not to get his hands dirty and does not help when he should be helping the team.

Some of the women were being reprimanded for coming in early to try and catch up on their cases and then they were reprimanded for coming in early. They should be praised for their work ethic not punished. We cannot afford to lose these officers. They are good quality officers.

When I went to Kelly I wanted to bring forward the concerns of these female employees as well as some of the men who are frustrated with the lack of the supervision in investigations. There is no reason that these women should not be treated with respect and treated fairly. But I fear when questioned about things the officers hold back from administration. This is because of fear and not being heard in the past. When officers bring things to me they always seem to say that it doesnt matter, nothing is ever going to change.

I have been on night shift for 5 years as a Sergeant. I worked 5 years on nights as an officer then worked narcotics for 5 years before being promoted to Sergeant. I have worked hard to gain the trust and respect of the other officers. The higher the rank the higher standard should be in the department. It has been the opposite within the department. The newer officers are held to be accountable but the higher the rank, it doesn't seem to be that they are held to the same or higher standard. Things are swept under the rug when it comes to issues with rank. The examples are to numerous to mention.

The last few years of one of my night shift lieutenant's career I took over a lot of his tasks because he was going through some major physical problems and was sort of checked out. He had some medical issues and personal issues and I covered his duties for him as much as possible. It was probably 2 ½ years of me covering. When Scott finally left I was made temporary lieutenant. Chief told me he was going to have me do the job while Scott was vacationing out. After Scott's end date was known then they started the process of replacing Scott. I tested and did well and made top 3. I have a lot of experience and have been working this shift for years. It was between me, Sgt. Dyke, and Sgt. Chapman. They ended up choosing Sgt. Dyke. It was brought to my attention that he had an inappropriate sexual relationship with Brittany Balentine from HR. Several officers had told me of this and one Lt., whomlater recanted when I asked him to please bring it up to admin. Brittany is the one who runs the testing for Lt. and proctors the exam and has the information. Sgt. Dyke does not know the patrol end of the job since he had been away from patrol for so many years.Myself and the other shift sergeants had to train the new Lt on the job. Other officers come to me about search and seizure saying Sgt. Dyke doesn't know it. I am not sure how because the Lt. exam was full of questions on search and seizure. Sgt. Dyke was also reprimanded for having a relationship with a former SWAT team member's wife, lied to the Chief of police about it and was demoted as sergeant years ago. Based on his lack of knowledge and lack of ability in this job it seems like there was something going on with Sgt. Dyke's test for Lieutenant. I heard they talked to him about his innappropriate relationship with the HR employee but both denied the allegation and that was the end of it.Based on previous history with Dyke I dont believe thats enough. There should be due diligence in looking into it and actually investigate. I had to get some specific trainings before I could even test for Lieutenant (supervisor training). Darren only got the training after he was promoted. It is not just me but there are questions about Darren's promotion from many other officers. It is hard to watch the promotional process sometimes. It doesn't always seem like they best person is promoted. This is damaging to morale for all of the department as well. They see that there isn't a reward for hard work and an ability to move up.

Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?
Yes. The females in investigations appear to be treated differently than the males. Additionally, Lt. Lackey treats the female officers differently than the male officers. She seems to have conflict with some of the ambitious women. I am not sure if she is threatened by them but I have heard from some of the female officers that she is very difficult to work with.

Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?
Some of the managers do and some do not. The majority of supervisors are pretty respectful. There are a few old fashioned people who are not respectful of all backgrounds. Lt. Lackey plays favorites and Lt. Wegner is not always respectful as well.

If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?
I would feel comfortable doing it but I don't think my voice would be heard. I don't think anything would be done about it. That is part of why I went to Kelly. I have seen instances where things have not been addressed in the past.

Do you feel your manager is approachable?
I would not take anything to Darren. I don't think he has anything to offer as far as patrol. I respect the chain of command but I don't think he knows as much as he should in his position.

Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?
On night shift we are often the forgotten group. The night shift is a very tight knit group. What I don't like is that over the years we used to have trainings during the cross over time with the afternoon shift. Also there is no consideration for court appearances because those are during the day and yet we are expected to go back to work the same night. Also there is no shift differential for working nights. Also there isn't going to be a Lieutenant in the overnight shift. It would be nice to see management care more about us (night shift) and take better care of us.

Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?
There are a few people that pick favorites. Lt. Lackey picks favorites and she treats people differently based upon that. She is moving to administrative lieutenant and hopefully that changes soon. There were some divisions based upon Lt. Lackey and her treatment of others. Everyone knows who the favorites are and that causes division. We are not super cliquey as a department.

What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?
Trust. Trusting the administration would improve the work environment. I don't currently trust them and that makes it difficult. Some I spoke about and others are character or ethics based. It would be nice to see trust and honor back in the department. We are copying policies from large organizations (like New York or Los Angeles) and they don't necessarily fit with us. We put policy before responsibility and it doesn't make any sense.

The timing of this is difficult now that there is change being made starting 2021. The problem I foresee is that nothing will change as a result of this investigation because the Department is already planning changes and they will think they "fixed" it.

I have heard that you can request a copy of your personnel file and remove anything that is over 5 years old (negative or positive). I am not sure if that is accurate but that is what I heard.

I am Jay Bloyer. I am a Master Police Officer with the City of Minot Police Department. I have been here since August 2012. My supervisor is Lt. Wegner; I am currently assigned to the narcotics task force so my day-to-day supervision is through BCI.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

Yes in investigations there is some bias towards females and at least one of the road supervisors' treats people of color differently than anyone else. From what I have seen Lt. Wegner treats the women differently. He will talk to them about uniform standards and doesn't care about how the men dress. When he was our road supervisor he would single out women for productivity issues and he wouldn't do that with the male officers. In the comments, Lt. Wegner makes he will ask (or tell) someone to do something and then blame them for doing what he said. I have heard rumors from others about the same thing from Lt. Wegner. Shannon Lackey treats people of color differently. The most obvious way is that she makes comments that are off-color. Lt. Lackey treated Officer Hanks disrespectfully. She would have him start her car and throw keys at him (she did not do that with anyone else). He also would sing when he was walking around. If he would rap, she would tell him not to do that but if he was singing anything else, she did not say anything to him.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

For the most part yes. I would not say that there are others (other than Lt. Wegner and Lt. Lackey) who are disrespectful. There are some that are not good managers, but I would not say that they are necessarily disrespectful.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

Yes, I would feel comfortable doing that. I am not sure if anything would be done about it but I would feel comfortable doing that.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

If I had problems I would not go to the investigations people. I would go to one of the other Captains I have worked with before (Captain Sunheim, Sgt. Rolle and Sgt. Schoenrock).

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

I don't think so.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

I don't think there are any major divisions within the department.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

Right now, I am in a good place. When I was on the road my biggest complaint was that they did not listen to their hiring board and we had officers we shouldn't. I think a pretty universal complaint would be that they should listen to the officers they assign in certain places.

December 29, 2020

I am Tyler Ruelle. I am a Patrol Sargent with City of Minot Police Department. I have been here as a full time employee for a little over 11 years. My supervisor is Darren Dyke. There are five employees that I am responsible for conducting their annual reviews. Additionally, whoever happens to be working when I am working I share the daily supervision of, this varies from 5-8 employees.

I went with Steve to speak to Kelly (the City Attorney). A number of female employees had come to Steve over the years to complain. Additionally, people had been talking about Lt. Lackey potentially covering up for a dispatcher who was drinking and on a UTV. This happened around October 2020. I also heard about another incident at another officer's wedding. Apparently, Lt. Lackey confronted Jenna about a complaint she (Jenna) made against Lt. Lackey. This can cause unrest among the officers because it seems that Lt. Lackey can get away with everything. Additionally, a bar owner (or manager) said that Lt. Lackey was present at Octoberfest and there was an ax throwing competition. Apparently, Lt. Lackey had too much to drink and the bar wasn't going to let her participate and this was upsetting to her and the bar called the Sargent to deal with it.

Also, Steve had some concerns about the promotion that Darren got. There were rumors that Darren had a relationship with Brittani and she administered the test for Lieutenant and there were concerns that potentionally Darren was cheating.

There some detectives in investigations that seem like they can go through the day without doing much and others are overworked and overloaded. It doesn't seem as fair. They don't confide in me as much as Steve.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

From what I see, yes. People are treated differently based upon their needs. For example, a new officer would need more supervision than an experienced officer. The standard regarding appearance is different between men and women. I have to come to work clean shaven and with a clean haircut but the women can have different colored hair or fingernails. I don't know what the distinction is, and why the men cannot have a well-trimmed beard. Punishment wise, it seem fair and based upon progressive discipline.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

Some of them do respect employees. Generally, amongst the Sergeants there is a lot of respect. My immediate Lieutenant and the other patrol lieutenants seem to respect employees. As for the Captains and the Chief, they say that they respect employees but their actions don't always show that. We just had this major change and it greatly affects the Sergeants but they didn't talk to use beforehand or ask our opinion. This feels disrespectful.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

No, not within the department. It seems like everyone is really close. The lieutenants are either really close with or afraid of the Chief. It seems like they don't want to say anything to the Chief that he doesn't want to hear. I wouldn't want to have anything come back negatively on me.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

Yes, I think he is. I don't have any issues talking to him.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

I don't think so.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

There are some divisions among the shift work. I work nights and I understand what that entails. I wish they would schedule meetings or trainings later in the day and not when we should be sleeping. Also, the night shift often feels forgotten about. For example, if a local business brings in food or pizza for everyone by the time the night shift comes in, there isn't much left. Officers notice that and night shift feels the sting. That is the main division I notice among staff.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

Respect. The Captains and the Chief don't appear to respect the opinions of the Sergeants. Respect for the time and experience the sergeants have. It seems like the only sergeants that are consulted are the ones that will tell them what they want to hear. Two years ago the prior Chief created another rank of officer and then they were given a raise for that. The next year the Chief, the Captains, and Lieutenants, all received the raise. Someone asked, what about the Sergeants? They said they would look into it and nothing was done. It feels like more and more is expected of the Sergeants but without regard to increase in pay.

December 30, 2020

I am Mikali Talbott. I am a Master Police Officer assigned to investigations. I have been here almost six years. My supervisor is Sgt. Dave Goodman and above him is Lt. Shawn Wegner.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

Yes. Within investigations specifically, there are some supervisors that are somewhat sexist. For example, if I did something in an investigation that a male officer did the exact same way; I would be talked to but the male officer would not. Shawn Wegner is the one who does that. I have been told that I am not the first person he has done that to. Shawn acts like females should not be outside the home or in law enforcement. He has also made comments about his daughter and that she should remain in the home. He also makes comments that women should not be in male dominated industries or basically anywhere outside the home. The experiences that I have been through with Lt. Wegner have been brought up with other supervisors and I was told that it would taken care of. I specifically asked another supervisor if I should bring it up with Lt. Wegner in my annual review and I was told not to that it was taken care of. Here we sit a year later and I wouldn't say it is totally taken care of. Even with this year as a different year he still treats me differently. Just last week I was on vacation and he called my work cell phone. When I answered he told me I shouldn't do that on vacation – but he called me. I have heard in the past that Lt. Wegner has told other females that their clothing was too tight and they needed to change. I have not experienced it myself. Lt. Wegner is all over the place with case assignments. He loads his better people (those who will do the work and get it done) with more cases. Lt. Wegner does not know how to not overwhelm or overburden people. He would call me all the time to respond to a call regardless of the type or time. When Lt. Wegner was told he was overwhelming me, he made it seem like it was my fault for answering my phone. It was also brought up in my annual review that I need to learn to say no and take care of myself and I need to let my supervision know when I am overwhelmed.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

Some do and some don't. The ones who don't make it apparent, like in how they communicate or approach you. They don't hesitate to make you feel like a number and you are replaceable. Lt. Wegner and Sgt. Wilk fall into that category. Sgt. Wilk is kind of inexperienced in investigations so I am not sure if that relates to his behavior. Others will go out of their way to make you feel important or needed. Sgt. Goodman is all about his people and is always making sure people have what they need. Captain Plessas is new to being my captain so I am not sure about him. Lt. Lackey can be very aggressive with females and has made racist comments to another black officer. I was not present for this, I heard about it later. She claims to be about women in the workplace but she is very aggressive. She should never have been promoted to Sergeant or Lieutenant but she is friends with Chief. She is always being complained about nothing happens to her. I used to work nights and Sgt. Shanerock is good and looks out for his people. Sgt. Burns and Sgt. Foley have a different style. I don't think they do it to be malicious they just have a different view point.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

Yes, depending on who I had to go to. In the past I have talked to other supervisors about what is happening I am told that they will take care of it. It only gets better for a week or so. I am comfortable going to some of them, like Sgt. Goodman.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

Sgt. Goodman is very approachable. I can go to him with anything. He is super easygoing and easy to talk to. I can go to Lt. Wegner with certain things but it isn't worth my time. He will usually blow it off or not acknowledge me. Sgt. Wilk is ok depending on what we are talking about. He can't keep things confidential so if I am going to talk about someone else or someone else's work, I wouldn't do that.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

It is hard to approach the older generation within the police department. They are set in their ways and don't want to adapt or change with the newer generation of officers and the changing times. It can be difficult to deal with that. It would be beneficial if they would treat people like people instead of like numbers; replaceable at any time and overworked and under paid.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

Yes. A big division is younger generation vs older generation. Some of the older officers are more open to listening to the younger officers but others don't want to hear anything like that. In investigations we have one of the highest rates of female officers so that is nice to see the added diversity.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

Treat people equally and fairly. When complaints are brought forward, take them seriously.

January 6, 2021

I am Jason Sundbakken. I am a Captain for City of Minot PD. I have been here since July 8, 1996. My supervisor is Chief Klug. I supervise approximately 30 employees.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

I would say in general yes. The reason would be based upon experience. New employees are going to be treated differently (i.e., not as much responsibility) than a more experienced officer. In broader terms (like in terms of gender) I have not seen that.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

As a manger, I do. Overall, I think the supervision in the department is respectful of employees.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper-level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

Yes. I would feel comfortable reporting any issue regarding the Chief to his supervisor (which is the City Manager).

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

Yes, absolutely. The Chief is approachable.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

No, I don't think so.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

While we use the term divisions to separate the groups within the department it also can be used to describe disagreements within our department. I was in investigations for 10 years and it seemed like, at that time, investigations and patrol had a division in their ideas regarding workflow and responsibilities; kind of like siblings. I don't think any of these division interfered with our abilities or the work product of the department. In actuality, I feel like they were more of a healthy disagreement which resulted in a more efficient work product.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

Any organization can be improved with better communication and I think that holds for us as well. We communicate pretty well but that can always be improved.

January 8, 2021

I am Ross Lakoduk. I am a task force officer, my rank within the City is Master Police Officer. I have been here since October 2012. My supervisor is Special Agent Rob Browne (with the task force). Generally if there is any issues or complaints at the City I would usually go to Captain Dale Plessas.

1. Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?

Yes. We in the task force are treated differently. We work out of a different office and are assigned to work directly with special agents. Sometimes we get left out of the loop on certain things; like personnel or equipment issues, or budget issues, etc. For example, if the detectives are getting new equipment, we find out later and then when I try to acquire the same equipment I am unable to do so. Other times they don't understand how we do things in narcotics and they may want us to do something a certain way and we had to work through the differences with the task force. I have also been told that some detectives (especially females) are treated differently based upon their gender. I have heard this from some of the female detectives. Some of the examples given were time management or micromanaging. The examples given were related to Lt. Shawn Wegner. The behavior they described was not something I experienced when I was in investigations. I also heard that Lt. Wegner made comments about their clothes or dress code and caseload issues as well.

2. Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?

I think it depends on which manager you are talking about. Overall, there isn't a large issue with that but there are a few. Lt. Wegner does not appear to respect all employees, especially the females. Lt. Shannon Lackey is on patrol right now but several officers have had issues with her, including myself. Her management style needs improvement or is lacking as is. I have been questioned with how certain things were done. In this type of questioning it appears they don't know or understand how we do business. We have also had issues with getting patrol assistance regarding an arrest. I also heard that Lt. Lackey was screaming at people over the radio and accosted people over the radio. I also heard that some officers were yelled at or reprimanded for helping us (in the task force). There has not been a change in Shannon Lackey's lack of respect in my time at the department and yet she is still promoted.

3. If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?

It might depend on the situation. I have seen that sometimes complaints however valid are always taken as serious as I would have seen them. This may lead to me not feeling entirely comfortable going up the chain. I am not sure if I went higher that anything would actually be done about it.

4. Do you feel your manager is approachable?

Regarding day to day stuff or minor issues or updates, yes they are approachable. Lt. Wegner tries to have open communication, at least with me. Generally he tries his best (as well as Captain Plessas) to get me whatever training or equipment I need. I haven't had to take anything serious to Lt. Wegner so I can't necessarily speak to that. I did have to take an issue with a detective with Captain Plessas. This detective appeared to have an issue with how I directed the investigation and we eventually worked out a solution. Captain Plessas was helpful and approachable in that regard. He (and Wegner) didn't have a lot of investigation experience when he came into his role. He has been very open about that and is open to learning. If I had something serious I would take it to Captain Plessas first. Also, Lt. Wegner is moving to patrol and I don't know who is taking his place.

5. Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?

I don't think so as I am currently removed from the physical building at the City.

6. Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?

There is animosity with some supervisors with the task force officers and how we conduct our business. I have personally had complaints or causing issue (borderline upset) type questions with how we do our work. They have either demanded we do it differently or sternly stated that we shouldn't be pulling in their patrol officers. I have also gotten issues when I have asked for assistance and the response was, I don't know if we have the people. There is almost an unsaid opinion that they don't want to help. I have also heard that some supervisors don't like the way do things or don't approve of how we work our cases. I blow off the minor jabs at how we do things but it is still there. I think there is also a division between those in patrol and those in investigations. Everyone has their opinion about how things should be done, even if they are not the ones doing the work. I don't think it rises to the level of causing work not to get done.

7. What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?

I am not generally involved in the day to day down at the department. The environment I currently work in is decent. When it comes to the City I can think that the attitude regarding promotion could use improvement. I have been questioned regarding Sergeant positions when they come open. I have chosen not to pursue that line and I have been asked why I didn't test or apply. I have also heard that some people were upset that there were not enough people testing for Sergeant. That seems counterproductive to accost people if they are not ready or interested in the open positions. There have been some questionable promotions and ones that I have not necessarily agreed with as well.

I have heard a lot over the years with management, both within patrol and investigations. At times it is concerning to hear that. I currently hear more than I experience considering my removed position. Often officers will vent to me because they don't think supervision has done enough (or anything) to address their complaints.

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Spouse transfer, military

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   More training beyond the annual in-service. More range time with instructors, and defensive tactics

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your Sgt. / Lt.?
   Yes, no problem with that, mostly. Would not feel comfortable going to Lt. Lackey, so did not. (offish and un-approachable)

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Needs some more diversity. More females than at most departments, and the hiring pool is a major factor.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes, didn't remember being asked for input but feels that if she had, her voice would be heard.

6. How would you describe the morale at this department?
   Fine for her. Kept to herself to avoid issues  (wasn't comfortable answering)

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training prior to your solo assignment?
   Yes, in house and FTO was sufficient, but again more on-going training.

8. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   Yes

9. Any comments you would like to add?
   Felt like a family atmosphere. Liked the patrol schedules

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   The atmosphere in dispatch is toxic and the leadership is negligent.
   See attached list of concerns

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   See attached list of concerns

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   No, not at all. (backstabbing)

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Seems a lot better on police side and relationships between police and dispatch are OK, but in the dispatch center its bad.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Depended on who she was working with. Was told early on that she asked too many questions. Each eval addressed it as well, yet when she asked Margret about it she said she had no idea because she didn't write the eval.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Good between officers and dispatch.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   No, was trained in before the training protocol was updated. Did not feel prepared to do the job solo.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   Feels there is a lack of transparency. Discipline issues result in rumors and mis-information.

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   Would recommend for police officers, not dispatch.

10. Any comments you would like to add?
    See attached concerns

Issues and Management concerns:

-Sean's quality control reviews are not private, anyone in the room can hear it.

-When county came to serve the warrant on Laci, Margret instructed them to not punch a card for it therefor no record. Also Lt. Lackey told all officers to leave the PD before the S.O. arrived

-When Lt. Lackey's recent incident happened, they were initially told not to put her name on the card (Wheeler)

-While Linda S. was in remedial and her calls were being reviewed, it was widely talked about being her 3rd time in remedial training.

-Ambulance call in Berthold (21-75), the dispatcher did not follow up on the ambulance page and nobody was sent for an hour (relative of Christman)

-The old training program was not sufficient to prepare new dispatchers. The new program was developed by younger dispatchers (worried whether they are qualified to do so)

-They received no training on reading abstracts, III's, and orders. Also, were not advised they would be doing so until the day before the change happened. Were told by Margret that she doesn't like it or agree either, but it is what it is.

-Feels Margret creates the bulk of problems in dispatch
- -Unsure if she has ever received management training
- -Allows, promotes, and takes part in in-fighting
- -Puts management decisions off on subordinates (has 2 do the same project, then makes them Decide who's is better
- -Plays favorites in front of others
- -Lectures and belittles dispatchers in front of the others in the room
- -Will speak negative about a dispatcher to someone while that dispatcher is within earshot
- -Downplays concerns brought to her ("is this needed, or just Sam being Sam?")

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Not happy with the town and options here (Minot). Girlfriend had trouble finding a job

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Push out more training options, in house and out. Felt it was hard to seek out trainings*

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Yes, no issues with any supervisor

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Currently low morale, like the past year or so. Possibly Covid related as people feel it's a waste to do work with the jail issues and all. A frustrated feeling that it doesn't matter.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Part of a team, yes. Felt he was too new for his opinion to matter, so he did not offer it.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Good relationships. Was never part of any in-fighting or drama.
   New changes to officers being assigned cases in LERMS is confusing for many.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Yes, felt he had a good platform to build on.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   No, other than the obvious needing more staff to cover the workload.

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   Yes

10. Any comments you would like to add?
    NA

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Accepted a job instructing at the YMCA, and plan to return to school.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Communication – Sometimes when procedural changes are made the supervisors are inconsistent and want things done to how they see it should be.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Yes – didn't have any issues

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Good, but there are cliques. Those lead to gossip, drama, and people dragging personal lives into the mix.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes, however never offered an input

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Pretty good, when people were on calls and working they didn't let the previously mentioned drama affect things.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Yes

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   Improve communication

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   Yes

10. Any comments you would like to add? Thanks

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Kids have been relocated to Georgia, found something closer to them

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   -Work on recruitment / retention. The feeling that the admin doesn't care about the officers has filled the ranks. "Everyone is replaceable" being said by admin.
   -Establish set rules/guidelines for lateral transfers and develop recruiting from other agencies
   -On the city level, HR is lacking. Much time spent setting up training sessions on how to stretch, or being nice to others, but when and issue is brought to them, they won't address it

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Yes

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Young. Segregated by age and job

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Relationships are good. Divisions get along to get things accomplished

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Yes for new hitting patrol. No for investigations. Little to no FTO process, getting to a "basic investigator" relies too much on BCI doing the course (outside options should be explored)

   Moving to South Dakota

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Communication during in house could have been better. Lt. Lackey gave no information on when or what shift they were going to, and did not fully equip them prior to FTO

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Absolutely, felt like an open door policy

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   The young officers on patrol complain pretty steady. "they don't really know what they are complaining about"

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes, everyone on shift seemed to get along

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Great

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   After in house, yes. Things weren't too smooth in house. Sgt. Strandemo was newly in charge and was gone for the first couple weeks

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   No

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?

Employee: Jesse Hartman

1. Why are you leaving the agency?

No longer willing or able to deal with the management of the dept. Feels the officers are doing a great job, but with sergeants and up, there is no accountability or desire to fix issues brought to them. There is too much negativity department wide, and no recognition for the good officers. Stated there is no trust in the sergeants except for Sgt. Noyes and Sgt. Foley. His evals would say that he was right where he should be, be did not get any guidance on how to attain his goals (SWAT, CSRU, Investigations). Feels that sergeants should not count towards manpower, but when he brought it up he was ignored. When he spoke to sergeants about officers he felt weren't doing things right, he was told to address it pier to pier. Feels that dispatch is going to get someone hurt (not paying attention) and the admin is well aware of the problem.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?

Hold officers accountable for what they do. Stop telling everyone to fix one issue or another instead of just telling those that make the mistake. Tell the officers that they are doing good.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?

Most comfortable with Sgt. Noyes and Sgt. Foley. Said that Sgt. Burns would only tell him about mistakes made and never talked about the positives. Feels that a lot of the sergeants don't know the job well enough. Said that all the talks he had with Lt. Haug went nowhere.

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?

Described it as patrol vs. the rest of the department. No matter how much patrol suffers, the other divisions just go along without a care.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?

With the officers on his shift, he did. Everyone gets along and has each other's backs. He wanted to be tasked with more but was never asked, unless it involved working an overtime shift.

Minot Investigation CH0910

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?

Addressed above.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?

Feels the training received was good. Feels that the FTO process has gotten to a point where it isn't good. Feels there needs to be more on-going training with topics like defensive tactics. Thought that the annual in-service trainings were good and well planned according to needs

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?

Thinks that spreading out the special duties and teams so more people can be involved would help. Acknowledgement of the good officers in front of other is needed

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?

Yes

10. Any comments you would like to add?

Nothing that was not addressed above

Employee: Thomas Lynn

1. Why are you leaving the agency?

-Wife got a job offer in New Hampshire. He is from there and has family. Feels that with the way things are at the PD there is no desire to stay, due to morale.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?

-Feels more officer recognition would help. There used to be more of at briefings and ceremonies, acknowledged that the covid issues can be part of that. Feels that it would go a long way of Lts and Capts came to briefings from time to time to talk, also the detectives.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?

-Yes, no issues

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?

-There is a lot of complaining (amongst patrol), he said there really isn't a repetitive theme, just like its un-happy people. He feels that it could also involve everything going on in the country the past few years playing into it.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?

-He did feel like he was part of a team within the patrol group. He didn't have any problems personally as far as giving input but heard others that felt ignored. (Hugg proposing take home cars)

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?

-Strong within the divisions. With email being the main form of communication between divisions and command staff, gaps widen. Sometimes the emails from detectives or regarding emails make the officers feel like they are on the bottom rung.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?

-Yes, he does. Feels that there are a good number that ignore the training they get, and it can and does become a safety concern on the road.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?

-No

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?

   Found it to be a stressful job. Has been straining the relationship with his wife at home. Not really the job he thought it would be.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   There is a divide between patrol and admin (maybe more perceived than real) and it creates a lack of understanding.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Yes, no problems. They were always very helpful.

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   There are cliques within patrol. Not a major issue but its apparent who is friends with who as they always try to take calls together. Sometimes it gets in the way.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes. Supervisors were receptive to his ideas.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Professional (not a fan of the shift cliques)

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Yes, also like the annual in-service training

2. What do you think our agency can do better?

   Feels like there is frequently a lack of information. Things happen, and nobody is told why, or people leaving the agency, and nobody is aware of it. Perceived secrecy

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?

   Yes, never really had an issue. Did have a couple supervisors that she felt kinda "talked down to her"

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?

   Feels divided by divisions. Detectives has gotten cliquey lately. People team up together and if one leaves, they both do. All the time

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?

   Yes, and didn't hesitate to give her opinion.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?

   Pretty Good. There is a perception that some people are treated better than others. Has seen lately especially that the issues with the SA and courts are taking a mental toll on the detectives, and they don't know if anyone is fighting for them.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Yes

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Good team environment. Morale has been low, but he feels it has been a little better lately. Manpower issues seem to be the driving force in that areas. Lt. Wegner had the troops on edge by nitpicking but seems to have let up a bit.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes, he was allowed to give his input.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Patrol & investigations could get along a little better. Doesn't feel the issues with the SA Office and courts is as widespread in patrol.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Yes. More training is always better. Feels that specialized training is more likely to get interest from the officers, whether traveling to or bringing it in. Its harder to get any interest in attending in-house refreshers. ("already did that")

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Overstressed most of the time leading to anxiety issues. Feels there "needs to be more support". A lot of issues that were brought up were listened to, but not followed up on.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Make sure the growth of officers is represented with support staff as well. Communicate future plans better to support and sworn.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Most of the time. Sometimes felt like it wasn't taken seriously

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Mostly like a family but can be fragmented at times. Leadership and command staff are "separate"

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   For the most part, felt comfortable presenting new ideas

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Mostly good. Feels there are issues where some people are not held accountable. Referenced Cheryl creating issues and then Christine getting a write up for sticking up for herself.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Yes, was usually able to get needed training

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Can make more money elsewhere without the frustration.
   Frustration has been building ->bad behavior and laziness is not addressed.
   Communication between admin and patrol is not good

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Supervion needs to receive leadership training. Too many issues get ignored. The patrol Lts don't take concerns brought to them seriously and blow them off. Sgts do not address the officers that duck calls, or kill time on calls while everyone else is running.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Yes, no issues

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Broken, there are a lot of people looking for jobs elsewhere, past couple of years things have declined and most people are unhappy.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Team, yes. Did not feel that input matters. Feels that the admin is going to do whatever they want without caring what the officers feel about it.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Mostly good, there are certain people on the shifts that are "cancers" to the group

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Yes, no issues

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?

Employee: Jay Bloyer

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Better pay and benefits, closer to home, culmination of lots of things over the past few years

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Better communication, let the officers know that they can bring things up. Keep everyone in the loop. Don't just rattle of a list of thing you put in your budget as most people don't know how the process works. Changing the way we do business and the effects it has on the officers lives, both at work and home cant just be thrust on them with short notice and without input from everyone.
   Consistency through the supervision. There are different "rules" based on who the sergeant is that day.
   Officers don't want to go to the patrol Lts because Haug wont do anything other than listen to them and forget about it. Wegner tells people to just deal with it. He still treats females un-fairly and has been nit-picking the officers.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Yes, went to sergeants he trusted.

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Inflexible and reactive. Officers feel that admin is un-available to them and doesn't want to hear any new ideas

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Felt part of the team but not that his input mattered. When things get brought up to Sgt. or Lt, it just ends there

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Within the shift people get along. No real relationships between different divisions.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?

Minot Investigation CH0925

Yes

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   Hold everyone accountable. They see the sergeants do whatever they want and get away with it. Wheeler makes derogatory comments about homosexuals openly in front of everyone. Foley does nothing but traffic and doesn't go to calls, and nobody says anything. Feels consistency is needed

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   If someone had to move to Minot and wanted to be a cop, otherwise no.

10. Any comments you would like to add?
    Probably wouldn't have looked for another agency if it seemed there was some effort to Change the culture over the past few years.

Employee: Mikali Talbott

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Personal reasons, the attitude and communication at the department has deteriorated.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Communicate with the staff. There is no explanation as to why, just an email saying this will be. This gives a "because I said so" feel. When asking for input and feedback, don't dismiss it outright or blow it off.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Depends on the supervisor, was OK with most. Couldn't respect Sgt. G. Johnson as he will ignore casework and walk around all day talking to people, and never gets talked to about it. Would avoid Lt. Wegner as she feels he is sexist and has consistently treated females unfairly. Doesn't feel that Lt. Dyke is competent enough to be in a leadership position, and felt he was un-professional a lot.

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Too many negative attitudes. Staff are made to feel like a number and that they can be replaced.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Not in terms of the big picture, but within the smaller groups. The different divisions are too separated, with very little understanding of what the others do.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Admin seems un-approachable. Told they can always go ask questions, but the doors are always closed.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Until the past couple years, yes. When asked to take over doing cell phones, was not sent to any formal training. Was shown how to dump a phone once by Sgt. Strandemo and then he left. Was told to complete and online course in one of the areas, but then got talked to about working on that instead of casework. Felt no urgency to get her certified to be doing the expected work

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   Be open with the officers, explain how things work they way they do. Be visible face to face and not just in emails. Give out "atta-boy" letters, or emails, or even quick phone calls when you hear of a good arrest, or clearing a big call, etc. Felt slighted that the chief never congratulated her after the arrest on the Knutson case.

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   Not now

10. Any comments you would like to add?

Employee: Tyler Daws

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Thought this was the career he wanted growing up, but now doesn't know what he wants to do
   There is a lot of miscommunication and misunderstanding as things filter from Capt. down through to Sgts. (example given was case follow-up. Told to fix or do something then after its done, they are asked why another thing wasn't done, that was never mentioned)

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   FTO Program. Says there is a terrible FTO that "everyone knows about" but nothing is done. When he found out he would be going to Adleman, he was warned about him. Asked specifically what the issue was and he said that any question is met with a response of "find the answer yourself". While he had Adleman in phase three, talking to other officers he found that its response in every phase.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Yes, with Sgt. Pappenfus and Sgt. Schoenrock. Just felt more at ease with them.

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Within patrol there are cliques. When those that don't like each other are on the same side of town, it gets awkward.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Those that like working together do well, but some people just don't get along. Afternoon shift and dayshift have been butting heads. Days feels that afternoons briefs for extended periods and then they don't answer the radio, and dayshift has to keep taking calls instead of finishing up their paperwork.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   The training provided in the In-house training is pretty much all doubled up with what the academy teaches. Maybe some thought should be given to extending in-house to be our own academy and save the time and cost of sending officers off to learn what they were just taught.

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Taking a new job to get a fresh start outside of Law Enforcement

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Along with other department heads, more aggressive pushes to improve pay and benefits. Communicate that to the staff so they are aware, regardless of the outcome.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Always, never a problem

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Generally good. The SA office has created a lot of frustration and hard feelings among the officers by dropping solid cases for little or no reason, failing to communicate with the officers and treating them like they don't know what they are doing.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes, frequently had valuable conversations

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   There are some cliques (different divisions, within shifts), but nothing detrimental.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Yes, even coming in with many years of experience, found the training to be solid.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   Communication has to improve. Making sure the officers have correct information can help alleviate people getting disgruntled. Thought that the video messages were good. Feels the new policy of moving shifts on a rotation will turn off a number of people. Even though the intent is understood, a number of people like to find their niche and excel there.

Minot Investigation CH0933

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   Yes, but making sure they understand what they are getting into (as far as the field in general)

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Took a job as an officer with Surrey PD

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Nothing as far as her job was concerned. Ran smooth

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Yes, All the time

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Everyone seems to get along. Some people complain to complain

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes, offered ideas and never had a problem

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Same as #4

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Yes. COVID forced her training to be online, so in person would be better

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   No

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   Yes

10. Any comments you would like to add?

Employee: Matthew Pappenfus

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Minnesota agency can pay the same as a deputy that he is making as a sergeant with 10 years of experience. Will also be able to retire the same year he would have here, but at 100%. This also moves him closer to family.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Hard to say with manpower turning over so much

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Yes. Preferred going to Lt. Haug over Lt. Wegner

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Fine…"not sure what to say"

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes, never had a problem with that.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Feels that everyone is able to get along.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Yes

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   Move Lt. Wegner away from patrol. Feels that he is the source of most of the un-happiness amongst the officers. The process for getting trainings approved needs to improve. Officers put in and don't get any kind of response for long periods of time or not at all.

Minot Investigation CH0936

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?

Employee: Matthew Cole

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Wife was very un-happy working at Trinity and started looking for larger level 1 hospitals and they agreed on the Omaha area.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Hold people accountable for their actions. Has seen lots of issues and policy violations that have gone without being addressed. (did acknowledge that things may have been addressed without his knowledge)

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   All except for Sgt. Foley. Did not agree with his style and way of doing things

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   "Not bad, but not good". Feels that there are a lot of little things that wear on people and add up. Feels the K9 program is un-fair and that policies were changed to allow for Officer Batteiger to get a dog over him. Also, that there is no accountability for the fact that the dog has not been leading to any drug seizures.
   Feels that the shift sergeants know and allow for the senior and master officers to ignore calls and do less work while the junior officers run call to call. Indicated that he brought it up with a sergeant and got a "political response" of things not changing overnight

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Feels that there are "little teams" within the shifts where certain officers mesh well together, but overall not so much

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Same as question #4

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   From the academy, no. Attended during COVID and the online training was in-effective. Also feels that some of the FTOs should not be FTOs, as some of them are the senior officers that shrug calls.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   No

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   Yes. While pay was not a real factor for him, he thinks that better pay would attract better applicants to choose from.

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Wants to move closer to medical facilities for his son. There are more opportunities for his wife to work in her preferred field. Pay could be better but was not a driving force.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Maybe pay closer attention to officer's long term goals. Didn't like that the SRO spots were going to get moved.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Yes, although Sgt. Burns could be rough to talk to.

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Mostly good work ethic amongst the officers. The different divisions feel pretty separated.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   People seem to get along for the most part.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Yes, FTO process could be sticky at times. When in phase 2, he had 4 different FTOs, so there was inconsistency.

Minot Investigation CH0940

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   More trainings than the annual training. Maybe quarterly, or at briefings to do refreshers beyond the main yearly ones.

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   Yes, Better pay would help.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Yes, never had a problem.

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Friendly, cordial, everybody gets along quiet well.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Employees have a tendency to work well together.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Felt she was trained properly, just did not get the proper equipment to be effective.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   The PCO vehicle needs to be updated to have a computer to effectively do impounds, receive information for parking tickets and impounds. Should have at least been issued cell phone, instead of calling dispatch for information constantly with her personal phone.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Likes agency as a whole. There was some difficulty with communication between the lead dispatchers and dispatchers. Some talking behind peoples backs and should take up issues directly with people.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Yes, felt comfortable talking to Shawn.

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Overall good.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Most of the time. Drama could interfere occasionally

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Officers and dispatchers got along good. The lead dispatchers would clash occasionally.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Felt the training received was very good and all trainers she had were competent.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Took a job with the CAC. Jenna added she could no longer work for Margaret and had a list of reasons why. See separate list.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Jenna felt the issues with the PSAP have to be resolved. She felt there was a lack of training for the new center, some of the equipment does not work properly or is the wrong equipment for our dispatch center.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Jenna stated she did not feel comfortable talking to her supervisor. She believed if you say anything to her, she will tell all of the dispatchers.

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Morale is poor. The department was not proactive with mental health before Pat, there was then a knee jerk reaction and now its back to the way it was.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Not necessarily, Jenna stated she'd brough up concern and nothing ever gets done about them.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Overall, the working relationships were good, with the exception of working with Margaret.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   For the most part. A lot of trainings are conducted with police officers and are not exactly for dispatchers. The department needs more dispatcher exclusive trainings.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   Have follow through with things that are discussed at meetings, because nothing ever gets done.

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   Maybe as an officer, definitely not dispatch.

10. Any comments you would like to add?
    No

Additional Concerns with the PSAP Manager:

- Unprofessional
- Creates animosity
- Has a lack of confidentiality
- Leads by favoritism
- No backbone – is a "yes" person
- No standards, accountability, or consequences
- The PSAP manager and assistant PSAP manager issues of them not getting along are beginning to effect dispatch as a whole.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Haven't had a lot of gripes with the department. Communication from the top down could've been better but he felt it has improved since the adoption of the Evertel system

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Yes

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   He feels the culture at the department is ever changing because of the high turnover.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes. Especially felt his input mattered as part of the SWAT team and the task force.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Good as it could get.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Yes, seemed like he was always training.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   Feels the most important thing would be to continue centralizing intel. This has also improved with the advent off Evetel.

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   The schedule is a big reason. She had always had to work nights and that doesn't work with her husband's schedule. Took a job at Ward Co. with day hours and a Monday-Friday schedule.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Molly felt there was a severe management problem in dispatch. The problem is with both the PSAP and APSAP. New hires are scared of trainers. When she brought up issues, she was made to feel she was the problem.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   For a little while when she first started. Molly stated she never felt comfortable talking with Margaret. Molly stated that whatever was told to Margaret would not stay private.

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   There is a disconnect between management and employees.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Molly felt nothing she gave input on mattered. None of the ideas she had were ever followed through.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   The police department is good. Different patrol shifts get along well. In dispatch, the dispatchers on the same shift get along, but the different shifts do not get along.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   She believed the training was good when she first started.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   Molly believed the newly hired dispatchers were not getting anything out of the classroom training but fear.

Minot Investigation CH0949

When they get out of classroom training nothing is set up, such as Lexipol, NCIC, last group hadn't been fingerprinted. Molly stated everyone's input should matter and not just some people. A lot of the training material is outdated.

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   She would, depending on the persons personality.

10. Any comments you would like to add?
    She stated she had recently been investigated for time card issues. Molly stated there had been other instances of people leaving early and these instances were brought up to Shawn and Beth and nothing was done about it.

Employee: Erin Bonney

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Erin stated she was leaving the agency to be closer to her home, daughter and for more money.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   - Erin believed the sergeants could do a better job reviewing the work product of their officers. She felt the sergeants were not supervised properly and allowed mistakes and incomplete work to be done.
   -She also specifically stated Sgt. G. Johnson was a "terrible" supervisor. She stated nobody in investigations goes to him, everybody goes to S. Johnson.
   -Erin also mentioned some of the FTOs should not be FTOs and are not teaching new employees properly.
3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Definitely

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Erin described the culture as "improving". She stated moral was improving and much better than a couple of years ago. She also stated pay had improved.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Patrol and investigations get along well. There is a division between employees and administration.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Sure did, got enough.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   Erin thought she'd covered this in previous questions

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   Would not if they've ever been a cop somewhere else. With no prior experience she would.

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Going back to doing what she was doing before working at the police department. It became too difficult taking direction from multiple people.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Communication across the board, both positive and negative needs to improve.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Not really. She felt it was difficult for non-sworn personnel to talk to sworn supervisor. She felt non-sworn see a bigger picture, such as sharing intel with other agencies.

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Cameon felt she got along with patrol and they were approachable. She felt investigations was slightly toxic because some of the people had been there so long and it has become cliquey.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   There seemed to be a divide between non-sworn and sworn personnel. It was less noticeable with patrol.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Definitely

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?

   Absolutely

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   The department is fairly transparent to the public and to its employees compared to the past and for the most part everybody. gets along. Pretty cohesive department.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Overall, it was good. Felt the department at a good open-door policy. If there was an issue there was never a problem speaking to a supervisor or a member of the command staff, whether personal or professional.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Overall training was good, but could have had more training when there were technological advances in technology, but admitted some of that was on him.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   Should be more interaction between command staff and patrol in general, with something as simple as going to briefings more regularly.

Employee: Cody Miller

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Relocating to Seattle to live with fiancé.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Recruitment and retention is poor. Paperwork is far more complicated and in depth than previous department, begins to burn people out.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Yes, worked with Noyes and Wheeler, no issues with them at all.

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   The way our shifts are set up do not allow employees to share days off, which doesn't create tight nit working relationships at work. Morale is also suffering because of burnout due to manpower shortages.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Didn't have any issues being part of a team. Felt input mattered on shift.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   The officers do not seem to have a very tight nit relationships outside of work and there is a separation between administration and the patrol shifts. Would be nice to see them at nights maybe on the road occasionally.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Yes
8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   Simplify the paperwork aspect of our department. They would be more effective actually patrolling and being proactive. Williston had PD offices in each fire station to keep officers from congregating at the PD.

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
"If a buddy asked if they should work here, I would say no." It would be simpler to work at another agency due to the paperwork and bureaucracy.

10. Any comments you would like to add?
Communication from administration is not good and effects morale. The bead policy was a good example. It was never communicated what was going on with that other than, "if you don't hear from me." People complained about that for a week.

Department should have a "recruitment team" like Williston had, a regular group of officers who traveled to schools, career fairs, ect. The team traveled the entire tristate area. A relocation allowance or signing bonus would help recruitment.

Lateral transfer pay could be a little higher. Did not get promoted when he should have and was and received backpay.

Employee: Craig Boyungs

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   More conducive to family life working as a police officer in Surrey, such as hours, live out there and the pay was going to be better by the end of the year.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   More communication in general. When someone is promoted to senior or master officer or gets an award very few people are aware of it. There should be more kudos given out to the department for good work people do.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   He did

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Nothing really stuck out at him

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   On his shift he felt like he was part of a team. At first not so much, but that was because he was the new guy and needed to gain acceptance.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   There are different cliques at the department and drama, but he kept to himself for the most part. His first phase of FTO with Becker left a bad taste in his mouth. He stated he'd never felt so humiliated or degraded at a job or anywhere in his life.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Did not feel there was enough training on Brazos, LERMS, Mobile, and the actual things officers need to know when they start FTO. Things like trips to a fire station are a waste of training time. Didn't feel he was allowed to observe and learn much during FTO in phase one and was just expected to immediately start "doing it". After phase one it was better. He stated he actually received a 1 in the report writing category during phase one for misspelling Snapchat as two words.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   Amount of paperwork for simple arrests and complaints is ridiculous compared to what he is used to and an effort should be made to simplify that.

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   He would. He's talked to his son, who is in the Air Force in Minot about working at the PD in Minot.

10. Any comments you would like to add?
    He believes the beard policy should be changed to allow beards; people are still upset about that not actually changing. Believes it would increase morale and would cost nothing. As far as awards are concerned, patrol often feels slighted because members from other divisions always receive the officer of the quarter awards or maybe officer of the year. There doesn't seem to be a lot of interaction between patrol and detectives, which creates a divide. Patrol feels some of the investigators see themselves as up on pedestal.

1. Why are you leaving the agency?

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Probably communication. Evertel was supposed to fix that problem, but don't think it did, just one more thing I had to check. Stuff sometimes happens and nobody knows about it.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Ya, can't say I had issues talking to anybody here.

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Seems to be an excessive amount of complaining at the department, but everybody, from the Chief on down would be willing to help you out if you had a problem, professionally or personally.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   I would say yes.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Kind of answered this question when describing the culture of the department question.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   No, only because he feels law enforcement as a profession doesn't train enough. This department isn't falling behind other departments, but law enforcement as a profession doesn't put enough attention on training.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   Try and find a way to do more training. Never received any weapons training after starting other than weapons instructor school.

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   -Going back to school to switch career fields
   -Was told she was replaceable and decided that she was ready to leave at that point.
   -Patrol wasn't going to work for her, so when she was going to have to leave investigations she was done at the department.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   Accountability, supervision. Believes supervisors should know how to do their subordinates jobs. Believes the department breeds laziness and allows it to happen. People who put forth effort and do work are the ones in hot water, the lazy people tend to skate and nothing ever happens to them.

3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Did not feel comfortable talking to her direct supervisor, felt more comfortable talking to the other supervisor in the division. She did feel comfortable talking to the lieutenant and the captain, but follow through was lacking.

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Almost like high school, there are various cliques. If one division tries to fix a problem it becomes a personal attack to the other division, when in all reality it just trying to fix an issue, but no one can effectively communicate.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes and no. Felt input was requested, but if her input mattered, she was uncertain.

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Majority of the time everyone works well together.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   When she got to go to training.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   -Start with effective supervisors and provide them with proper training to lead people. Have only had two extremely good supervisors who have known what they were doing, given constructive criticism when wrong, and supported her when she was right, Sgt. Schoenrock and Sgt. S. Johnson.
   -Ensure your employees know they are being heard.
   -Follow through with things.
   -Poor work performance should not be rewarded; recognition and awards should be from doing the extraordinary not the bare minimum.

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   No

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   Yep. Was a good job with good pay and benefits.

10. Any comments you would like to add?

Exit Interview

Employee: Erin Bonney

1. Why are you leaving the agency?
   Erin stated she was leaving the agency to be closer to her home, daughter and for more money.

2. What do you think our agency can do better?
   - Erin believed the sergeants could do a better job reviewing the work product of their officers. She felt the sergeants were not supervised properly and allowed mistakes and incomplete work to be done.
   -She also specifically stated Sgt. G. Johnson was a "terrible" supervisor. She stated nobody in investigations goes to him, everybody goes to S. Johnson.
   -Erin also mentioned some of the FTOs should not be FTOs and are not teaching new employees properly.
3. Did you feel comfortable talking with your supervisor(s)?
   Definitely

4. How would you describe the culture of our department?
   Erin described the culture as "improving". She stated moral was improving and much better than a couple of years ago. She also stated pay had improved.

5. Did you feel that you were part of a team and that your input mattered?
   Yes

6. How would you describe the overall working relationships and environment at the police department?
   Patrol and investigations get along well. There is a division between employees and administration.

7. Do you feel that you received adequate training to effectively perform your assigned duties and roles with the department?
   Sure did, got enough.

8. Do you have any recommendations for how we can be a more effective/efficient department?
   Erin thought she'd covered this in previous questions

9. Would you recommend our agency to others?
   Would not if they've ever been a cop somewhere else. With no prior experience she would.

10. Any comments you would like to add?
    It wasn't bad, wasn't looking to leave, just decided to move home.

Re: Response to FOP Lodge #7 "No Confidence" Letter
Our File No.: 044500.24018

Dear Mr. Stewart:

I have been retained to represent Minot Police Department ("MPD") Chief John Klug. On September 23, 2024, MPD Office Kenton Kossan, under the auspices of the Souris Valley FOP Lodge #7 ("Lodge #7), sent an "Open Letter of Vote of No Confidence" to Council Member Rob Fuller, vaguely asserting "Chief Klug's conduct during his tenure leaves us with few options."

While responding to inarticulate generalizations of this nature presents substantial challenges, I wish to bring the following concerns to your attention. The composition of the "majority vote" of Lodge #7 members is notably unclear, but the complaints contained therein suggests individual grievants pursuing personal agendas from a group forum. The ambiguity of the allegations, coupled with the demand for termination, is startling and should be given little or no weight. We respectfully ask you to carefully consider the exceedingly vague nature of the allegations and not to accept the fundamentally flawed invitation to remove the Chief on the demand of a nameless few disgruntled officers.

The letter vaguely aggrieves a "degradation of morale" within the MPD. Leadership has repeatedly inquired into concerns regarding morale and culture, using various formal and informal tools. The general feedback leadership has received concerning culture and morale is that a few disgruntled officers are dragging down the morale of the force. We have genuine concerns that the generalized grievances from the complaining individuals reflects only the disgruntled minority view. It is not representative of the majority view of the dedicated men and women who make up the department.

That said, there are recent, reliable, and measurable data sources the City should weigh heavily against the letter's broad and dubious allegations. In 2023, the MPD formed a Peer Support/Wellness team, to monitor the wellbeing of the force and to provide collateral support to individual MPD officers. We recommend consultation with that team to obtain a clear understanding of the contextual background and issues underlying the letter's generalized grievances. We also recommend a careful review of the Center for Public Safety Management ("CPSM") investigation report published earlier this year. Following a rigorous and searching assessment the CPSM concluded, "that the department is doing an outstanding job – considering the challenges of policing in today's environment – with a staff dedicated to the department's mission of providing quality police service." The CPSM report also makes a number of recommendations. Chief Klug has been working diligently with MPD leadership, and the City, to pursue the targeted improvements recommended by CPSM. The CPSM assessment specifically cautioned that, "it must be recognized that this process will not take just weeks or even months to complete but perhaps years. The recommendations are intended to form the basis of a long-term improvement plan for the city and department." While disgruntled individuals within the MPD may be pursuing self-serving agendas, Chief Klug and the leadership team, with the insight of stakeholders and City resources, have been actively pursuing an agenda for the betterment of the Department. The City should not accept the invitation to remove the Chief based on the generalized grievances of the few who disagree with the course charted by City and Department leadership. While these broad generalizations lack sufficient detail upon which a meaningful response can be articulated, I bring the following to your attention.

Concerning the vague allegation of communication breakdowns, it should be noted that aside from occasional requests for patrol car displays at FOP events, Lodge #7 leadership has only reached out to Chief Klug on one single substantive issue during his tenure. Then, former president and MPD Officer Aaron Moss and then vice-president and MPD Officer Kenton Kossan, met with Chief Klug concerning the balance, variety, and length of career assignments within the MPD. Officer Moss argued rotating assignments are disruptive to officer's personal lives, and the MPD's career assignment plans should be reconsidered. Chief Klug explained that the MPD's career assignment plans are intended to present cross-training opportunities to strengthen the Department and would continue, but he offered to discuss the matter and the Department's rationale in more detail. Officer Moss's approach was confrontational and became unnecessarily personal to a disrespectful degree. A follow-up meeting was scheduled with Lodge #7 membership and interested non-members. During that meeting Chief Klug answered questions and articulated the Department's rationale behind the career assignment plans. After the meeting, Officer Kossan came to Chief Klug's office and apologized for the tone of the meeting and said he did not intend the meeting to become confrontational and unprofessional.

Another generalized concern aggrieved by the complaining individuals is the allegation of "unfair/unequal enforcement of discipline standards." Chief Klug and MPD leadership have taken this concern very seriously. Prior inquiries revealed general impressions of some officers and staff concerning a lack of accountability. Chief Klug and MPD leadership, with the aid of the City Human Resources and the City Attorney's offices, have worked diligently to improve the consistent and fair enforcement of MPD policies. Merit principles have recently been integrated into promotion and performance reviews. A few individuals oppose the integration of merit principals into promotion systems. The intent of the change is to weigh strong performance and experience heavily to ensure a strong bench of future leaders and competent senior officers. Recently, MPD leadership implemented a disciplinary matrix to ensure improved consistency and accountability across the force. The truth is, no career advancement or internal disciplinary decision is made in a vacuum. Chief Klug and MPD leadership rely on their shared knowledge and experience, as augmented by insight and support from the City Human Resources department, and City Attorney's office. A few individuals may oppose these changes when they have not worked to their individual benefit, but the intent of City and Department leadership has been to promote transparency, consistency, and fairness to ensure the competence and professionalism of the MPD for years to come.

The grieving individuals end the letter indicating a desire to approach challenges, "side by side with department leadership as a team." This sentiment stands in stark contrast to the broader message of the complaining individuals. As is clearly demonstrated in Chief Klug's approach, and that of the MPD leadership, the Department desires meaningful input and cooperation from all stakeholders. Candidly, the personal nature of the grieving individual's approach, lack of clear statement of concerns or recommendations, and unsupported assertion of "no confidence" do not evidence any desire to work side by side with City or Department leadership. It is an ultimatum to City leadership. It is not a meaningful request for cooperation, it is a demand inviting termination of the Chief in the absence of immediate concessions. The City should not accept this bad faith invitation.

On behalf of Chief Klug, I thank you for your time and consideration and welcome further discussion.

Respectfully,

Jesse H. Walstad

ICMA

Exclusive Provider of Public Safety Technical Services for International City/County Management Association

ABOUT THE ASSOCIATION AND THE COMPANY

INTERNATIONAL CITY/COUNTY MANAGEMENT ASSOCIATION (ICMA)

The International City/County Management Association (ICMA) is a 109-year-old, non-profit professional association of local government administrators and managers, with approximately 13,000 members located in 32 countries.

Since its inception in 1914, ICMA has been dedicated to assisting local governments and their managers in providing services to their citizens in an efficient and effective manner. ICMA advances the knowledge of local government best practices with its website, www.icma.org, publications, research, professional development, and membership.

CENTER FOR PUBLIC SAFETY MANAGEMENT (CPSM)

The ICMA Center for Public Safety Management (ICMA/CPSM was launched by ICMA to provide support to local governments in the areas of police, fire, and Emergency Medical Services.

The Center also represents local governments at the federal level and has been involved in numerous projects with the Department of Justice and the Department of Homeland Security. In 2014, as part of a restructuring at ICMA, the Center for Public Safety Management (CPSM) spun out as a separate company and is now the exclusive provider of public safety technical assistance for ICMA. CPSM provides training and research for the Association's members and represents ICMA in its dealings with the federal government and other public safety professional associations such as CALEA, PERF, IACP, IFCA, IPMA-HR, DOJ, BJA, COPS, NFPA, etc.

The Center for Public Safety Management, LLC, maintains the same team of individuals performing the same level of service that it had for ICMA. CPSM's local government technical assistance experience includes workload and deployment analysis using our unique methodology and subject matter experts to examine department organizational structure and culture, identify workload and staffing needs, and identify industry best practices.

We have conducted more than 400 such studies in 46 states and provinces and more than 275 communities ranging in population size 3,300 (Lewes, DE) to 800,000 (Indianapolis, IN).

Thomas Wieczorek is the Director of the Center for Public Safety Management.

SECTION 1. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Center for Public Safety Management, LLC (CPSM) was commissioned to review the operations of the Minot Police Department (MPD). While our analysis covered all aspects of the department's operations, particular areas of focus of this study included identifying appropriate staffing of the department given the workload, community demographics, and crime levels; the effectiveness of the organizational structure; and efficiency and effectiveness of division/unit processes.

We analyzed the department workload using operations research methodology and compared that workload to staffing and deployment levels. We reviewed other performance indicators that enabled us to understand the implications of the service demand on current staffing. Our study involved data collection, interviews with key operational and administrative personnel, focus groups with line-level department personnel, on-site observations of the job environment, data analysis, comparative analysis, the development of alternatives and recommendations, and engagement with key city stakeholders.

Based upon CPSM's detailed assessment of the Minot Police Department, we conclude that the department is doing an outstanding job—considering the challenges of policing in today's environment—with a staff dedicated to the department's mission of providing quality police service. Throughout this report, we will strive to allow the reader to look inside the department to understand its strengths and challenges. We sincerely hope that all parties constructively utilize the information and recommendations contained herein to improve the operations of the Minot Police Department to provide an even higher level of service to the community.

As part of this Executive Summary, we offer general observations that identify some of the department's more significant issues. We also list key recommendations for consideration; we believe these recommendations will enhance organizational effectiveness. Often, these types of recommendations require a substantial financial commitment. It is important to note that this report will examine specific sections of the department and offer a discussion of our observations and recommendations for each.

The list of recommendations is extensive. Should the Minot Police Department choose to implement any or all recommendations, it must be recognized that this process will not take just weeks or even months to complete but perhaps years. The recommendations are intended to form the basis of a long-term improvement plan for the city and department. Though lengthy, this list of recommendations is standard in our operational assessments of agencies around the country and should not be interpreted as an indictment of the department. While all of the recommendations are important, we suggest the Minot Police Department, in conjunction with the City Manager and community members, decide which recommendations should take priority for implementation.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS

- The employees of the Minot Police Department spoke very highly of the Minot community. Employees cited tremendous community support for the officers of the department as well as law enforcement in general. Many employees cited this dynamic as being among the greatest draws to wanting to work in the City of Minot.
- The Minot Police Department is a mid-sized police department in a mid-sized community. However, in many respects it is a large police agency in a large community by North Dakota standards. As such, the department performs functions and is equipped better than most of its comparable peer-sized agencies around the country. This makes sense considering the department's role in policing within the northwestern area of the state. However, in other ways the department is similar to smaller departments and communities where everybody knows one another and most employees perform multiple roles for the operational success of the agency.
- As with any police department, there is always concern about the welfare and morale of the workforce. Although some employees cited concerns about many of the common complaints we normally hear (staffing, communication, leadership, etc.) during an assessment, we found the MPD employees to be professional and positive during our interactions, interviews, and group sessions. This is not to imply we conducted a survey of morale and asked specifically if employees were happy. However, we have conducted many of these assessments, and MPD employees were generally positive compared to most assessment projects.
- This report will make some limited recommendations for additional personnel. However, in general we found the Minot Police Department to be well-staffed to manage the patrol and investigative workload of the agency.
- The department is well-equipped and possesses most of the modern technology that is present in contemporary police agencies.
- The management team of the MPD is professional and engaged and appeared to be taking steps to either move the agency toward positive change or keep the agency contemporary in modern policing principals.
- There are some long-term planning concerns that should be addressed by the department and the City of Minot. This includes a decision on the future home of the department, the future management structure of the community's consolidated dispatch center, and staffing considerations associated with the Minot International Airport.

KEY RECOMMENDATIONS

Section 3. Department Overview

(See pp. 12-25.)

1. CPSM recommends the Minot Police Department engage in a facilitated strategic planning process.
2. We recommend that MPD establish a succession planning document that will outline necessary and desired training for employees in key positions in the department.
3. We recommend the MPD include an effective date and an expiration date when issuing a department directive.
4. We recommend that MPD establish a process whereby long-term directives are added to the department's policy manual.
5. We recommend that MPD establish a process whereby employees acknowledge receipt of department directives as required by policy.
6. We recommend MPD update the department's organizational chart that accurately depicts current operations and functions.
7. CPSM recommends that MPD convert one captain position to a deputy/assistant chief position.
8. We recommend the department add an FTE administrative assistant to the department organizational structure.
9. We recommend that MPD take steps to clarify its personnel rosters and keep those rosters updated on a regular basis.
10. We recommend a printable complaint form be offered on the police department's website.
11. We recommend the department take steps to separately classify, investigate, and track service complaints against the department.
12. We recommend that MPD take steps to involve sergeants in low-level internal investigations.
13. MPD should conduct an audit of all internal investigations going back three years to ensure all investigations were completed as required by policy.
14. CPSM recommends that MPD explore off-the-shelf software solutions for tracking and maintaining internal investigations and other personnel matters.

Section 4. Administration

Community Outreach

(See pp. 26-27.)

15. We recommend that MPD enhance overall community engagement with training afforded to employees on expectations of community engagement and interaction.

Recruitment, Hiring, and Training

(See pp. 27-28.)

16. We recommend that recruitment, hiring, and training functions be denoted on the department organization chart.
17. CPSM recommends that MPD explore the various changes to the recruitment and training efforts outlined in our discussion.

Property and Evidence

(See pp 29-34.)

18. CPSM recommends MPD develop a strategic plan for the P&E Unit and begin to transition sworn personnel to a civilian property and evidence administrator and evidence technicians.
19. CPSM recommends an after-hours and emergency process be documented in the Lexipol policy system for organizational reference.
20. CPSM recommends that MPD continue to develop the section manual as a usable guide for P&E personnel. CPSM also recommends that MPD ensure that all members assigned to the P&E Unit become formal members of the IAPE and use IAPE resources to continue to update and expand the section property manual.
21. CPSM recommends MPD consider developing a "Property Staff and Activity Report" to measure productivity in Property and Evidence. IAPE can provide guides for developing an activity report that meets the standards expected of a P&E section.
22. CPSM recommends MPD consider using part-time (sometimes retired personnel) as evidence technicians to provide the extra effort to improve systems and provide "back-up" for the current evidence technician.
23. It is recommended that the MPD develop an audit schedule annually or bi-annually that produces an administrative report of activity.
24. CPSM recommends that MPD complete the workspace study and initiate a process to reduce the number of property room storage locations.
25. CPSM recommends a written check-in and check-out signature board at the entry/exit points of the main property rooms.
26. It is recommended that MPD seek professional assistance and when appropriate purchase a design storage system that will reduce the backlog and create open space in a legal and proper method. This will reduce the chances of misplaced items, improve the ability to track and locate evidence, and guard against workplace injuries.
27. CPSM highly recommends MPD utilize the capabilities of the records management system to develop a regular monthly report that documents incoming and outgoing items, and how many items are disposed of each month. This approach is highly recommended by IAPE and will reduce liability exposure while improving risk management.
28. CPSM recommends MPD strongly consider a temporary task force comprised of part-time (trained) personnel to conduct a complete audit of the property room and dispose of unneeded items.
29. MPD should seek out a formal property room audit through IAPE once the workspace project is completed in 2024.

Records Unit

(See pp. 34-38.)

30. It is recommended that MPD begin to develop a multiyear plan to transition the sergeant and master officer positions to professional (civilian) staff to oversee the Records and the Property and Evidence Units.
31. CPSM strongly supports the current approach by MPD to cross-train the Records staff to achieve the outcomes identified in this report.
32. CPSM recommends MPD use its RMS system and other systems to provide a monthly statistical report on the total tasks the Records staff perform.

33. CPSM recommends the MPD consider an online reporting system to decrease the need for patrol officers to respond to "report only" calls for service.

34. CPSM recommends MPD increase training and develop skill levels among the records technicians; MPD should establish an in-house training system to meet mandated training requirements for all new Records personnel by using a training matrix.

35. It is recommended that Records supervisors use national organization membership to participate in webinars and learn contemporary methods that may help solve current and future challenges.

36. CPSM recommends MPD consider hiring part-time records personnel to offset the increasing workload and increase the current number of full-time staff.

Section 5. Operations

Patrol

(See pp. 39-58.)

37. CPSM recommends that MPD establish a training matrix for patrol officers and sergeants that includes the benefits of patrol officers being proactively engaged with the community and other modern policing strategies.

38. CPSM recommends that Minot PD divide up its geographic beat structure into a greater number of beats that are smaller in size than its existing beats.

39. We also recommend the department establish smaller reporting districts that will aid in future crime analysis work.

40. We recommend MPD adjust some officers on the evening (mid) shift from reporting for duty from 4:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m. to reporting for duty from 2:00 p.m. until midnight in order to increase the number of available officers during peak call volume times.

41. CPSM recommends that MPD explore the expansion of the use of civilian, non-sworn employees to assist the patrol division. This includes the reclassification of the Parking Control Officer (PCO) to a Community Service Officer (CSO) and adding one FTE civilian CSO.

42. We recommend MPD pursue an online reporting option.

Tactical Team (SWAT)

(See pp. 61-63.)

43. CPSM recommends Minot increases its SWAT team training to 16 hours per month in compliance with NTOA.

44. MPD should consider equipping patrol officers who are SWAT team members with SWAT resources in order to have trained tactical officers available to immediately respond to a critical incident. Additionally, we recommend allowing SWAT officers to check out their assigned department-issued SWAT rifle daily to be secured in their assigned patrol vehicle rather than the shared patrol rifle.

45. We recommend MPD train sergeants in the use of less-lethal munitions and equip the supervisor vehicles with less-lethal force options.

K-9 Operations and Bomb Team

(See p. 63.)

46. CPSM recommends MPD assign one of the K-9 teams to the Focused Enforcement Unit.

Focused Enforcement Unit

(See p. 64.)

47. CPSM recommends MPD assign one of the K-9 teams to the Focused Enforcement Unit.

48. CPSM recommends at least one police officer be assigned full-time to the Focused Enforcement Unit.

49. We recommend MPD develop a policy for the Focused Enforcement Unit outlining the mission of the unit, specific goals, and procedures for deployment and use. This policy should clearly specify intelligence-led policing initiatives that will be used to make the Focused Enforcement Unit effective.

Police Patrol Fleet

(See pp. 64-65.)

50. CPSM recommends MPD assign no more than two officers to each marked police vehicle and purchase additional marked police vehicles to allow for this.

51. We recommend officers check-out a patrol rifle daily and it be inspected at the beginning and end of each shift. The rifles should be zeroed in on the range regularly.

Animal Control and Parking Control

(See pp. 65-66.)

52. CPSM recommends MPD reclassify the Parking Control Officer position to Community Service Officer (CSO). The CSOs can be cross-trained for animal control, parking enforcement, traffic control, vehicle impounds, driver information exchange on non-reportable, minor vehicle accidents, handling report-only lower-level criminal offenses that are not in progress, and a variety of other administrative tasks currently handled by patrol officers. The CSO positions can also assist the Community Outreach sergeant with community events.

53. One additional CSO position is recommended in FY 25 by converting the fleet manager position from part-time to full-time and reclassifying it as a CSO.

54. We recommend cross-training the Animal Control Officers (ACO) as Community Service Officers (CSOs) in addition to their ACO duties for use during peak times on patrol and as a force multiplier.

Section 6. Investigations

(See pp. 67-88.)

55. CPMS recommends the MPD expand its current investigator (600) policy to include specific assignments within CID and define the position of senior/master officer positions.

56. CPSM recommends MPD expand Policy 600 and provide a written matrix of detective rotation assignments and the process of how investigators are selected.

57. CPSM recommends CID consider a detective rotation schedule of three to five years, with the ability to extend individual rotations based on investigative needs.

58. With the constant changes in BWV laws, redacting software, and new technologies by Axon, MPD will need to invest and possibly expand the evidence technician position. CPSM recommends MPD increase the training level of the evidence technician and provide ongoing professional development.

59. CPSM recommends CID establish an SOP, inclusive of templates and resources to further the professional development of all personnel.

60. CPSM recommends MPD's CID develop a more comprehensive list of professional training through a training matrix and evaluate the need for additional courses as CID develops new specialized assignments in the future.
61. CPSM recommends that CID develop an Excel spreadsheet or other document to track special operations and search warrants involving CID personnel.
62. CPSM recommends that as the workspace project is completed MPD should seek out the ability to provide private workspace for sexual assaults and domestic violence detectives with consideration for the sensitive nature of their victim relationships and types of investigations.
63. CPSM recommends the MPD consider the reassignment of personnel to structured areas of investigations such as violent and property crimes as well as into smaller workgroups such as burglaries, robberies, sex crimes, thefts, and homicides.
64. CPSM recommends MPD to use its RMS system to develop a 30- or 60-day reporting system to track updates and progress of investigations.
65. CPSM recommends the Minot Police Department develop a database (preferably with RMS) to track and report on the number of cases assigned to each detective and the number of investigations closed by patrol officers.
66. CPSM also recommends that MPD seek out a solution to ensure that the arrests made by warrant service are entered into the RMS system and updated in the county system to better track clearance rates related to warrant arrest. This may be a feature best accomplished by a full-time crime analyst position as recommended in this report.
67. CPSM recommends MPD develop a policy with the assistance of Lexipol to guide the Bomb Unit and define operational standards and protocols that meet and exceed industry standards.
68. It is recommended that CID assign the narcotics unit to an intelligence-led unit of detectives trained to use 21st-century policing strategies to focus on career criminals, crime trends, and violent crimes.
69. It is recommended that MPD utilize one to two former (retired) police officers with investigative experience to assist in evaluating and reviewing unsolved homicides and missing persons cases on an annual and as-needed basis.
70. Based on the number of Part I crimes and the number of police officers, CPSM recommends that MPD consider the addition of one full-time or part-time civilian analyst.
71. CPMS recommends that the crime analyst receive ongoing professional training from the IACA and other entities.
72. CPSM also recommends that MPD continue to develop and advance the role of the evidence technician position by advancing their annual training to include national conferences and out-of-state training with entities such as the Secret Service in order to advance MPD's capabilities.
73. CPSM recommends that MPD continue to assign personnel to regional, state, and federal task forces and attempt to ensure full-time commitment when resources are available.
74. CPSM recommends MPD assign one full-time investigator to the ICAC task force to fulfill its task force obligation while promoting the ICAC initiative throughout the region.
75. CPSM recommends that CSRU develop an ongoing training matrix to ensure ongoing professional development.

76. CPSM recommends that MPD consider developing a standalone crime scene (civilian) technician unit in support of the continued use of the CSRU component.

77. CPSM recommends the MPD restructure CID in striving for an intelligence-led policing model suggested by IACP and PERF to pursue career criminals and known suspects through intelligence-led strategies.

78. MPD should seek out national leadership training courses for frontline personnel and which are focused on self-leadership, fortitude, and providing an understanding of today's policing challenges.

SECTION 2. METHODOLOGY

Data Analysis

CPSM used numerous sources of data to support our conclusions and recommendations for the Minot Police Department. Information was obtained from the FBI Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program, Part I offenses, along with numerous sources of internal information. UCR Part I crimes are defined as murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny-theft, and larceny of a motor vehicle. Internal sources included data from the computer-aided dispatch (CAD) system for information on calls for service (CFS).

All data, analysis, and recommendations, especially for patrol operations, are based upon CPSM's examination of 32,206 CAD events during the period of October 1, 2022, through September 31, 2023, which are those calls handled by the department's patrol officers. Of those 32,206 calls noted, 22,413 were community-initiated calls requiring service, and 9,197 were calls initiated by MPD police officers.

Interviews

This study relied extensively on intensive interviews with personnel. Remote (Zoom meetings), on-site, and in-person interviews were conducted with people throughout the organization and the city.

Focus Groups

A focus group is an unstructured group interview in which the moderator actively encourages discussion among participants. Group discussion permits greater exploration of topics. For the purposes of this study, focus groups were held with a representative cross-section of employees within the department.

Document Review

CPSM consultants were furnished with numerous reports and summary documents by the Minot Police Department. Information on planning, personnel staffing, deployment, monthly reports, annual reports, operations manuals, evaluations, training records, and performance statistics were all reviewed by project team staff. Follow-up emails and phone calls were used to clarify information as needed.

Operational/Administrative Observations

Numerous observations were conducted over the course of the evaluation period. These included observations of general patrol operations, investigations, and administrative services such as records, property and evidence, professional standards, and administrative functions. CPSM representatives engaged in all facets of department operations from a "participant observation" perspective.

Staffing Analysis

In virtually all CPSM studies, we are asked to identify appropriate staffing levels. That is the case in this study as well. This report will discuss workload, operational and safety conditions, and other factors to be considered in establishing appropriate staffing levels. Staffing recommendations are based on our comprehensive evaluation of all relevant factors.

SECTION 3. COMMUNITY AND DEPARTMENT OVERVIEW

COMMUNITY

The City of Minot is located in the north-central part of the State of North Dakota. It is the county seat for Ward County and is the fourth most populous city in North Dakota. The city was founded in 1886 during the construction of the Great Northern Railroad and today serves as a primary city of the Minot micropolitan area, consisting of McHenry, Renville, and Ward counties. The city is within 50 miles of the United States–Canada border.

U.S. Census data places the city size at 27.2 square miles, which represents a growth of 10 square miles from the city's geographic size in 2010 (17.4 square miles).

The city is well known as the home of Minot Air Force Base, which is located 13 miles north and is the city's largest employer. The Minot AFB is among the most important military installations in the United States because of its role in the national nuclear capabilities. The community is also home to Minot State University, the third-largest university in the State of North Dakota, and a campus of the North Dakota University system. The oil industry is also a significant employer and economic driver for the Minot community. While many in this industry live in Minot, the industry also has a significant transient workforce that impacts the population of the community.

Minot's climate is known for very cold winters with an average snowfall of 42 inches and almost 40 days annually of below-zero temperatures, while summers are warm to moderately hot with frequent thunderstorms.

Minot uses a council-manager system of government with seven council members elected from within the city's seven wards. The city's mayor is separately elected. The city manager handles the city's day-to-day business.

Demographics

According to the U.S. Census, the estimated population in Minot was 47,759 in 2022. That is a slight decline from the 2020 census, which showed the population to be 48,377. Since 1980, the city has experienced moderate growth, including 18 percent growth between 2010 and 2020 (40,888 to 48,377).

The following table provides a breakdown of select demographic data in Minot compared to Ward County, the State of North Dakota, and the United States.

The Minot Police Department is a full-service law enforcement agency and is the primary law enforcement agency serving the City of Minot. Due to the department's size and geographic remoteness, it is among the larger police agencies in North Dakota and provides assistance to many agencies and communities in the region when requested. Although the Ward County Sheriff's Department is headquartered in Minot, it is much smaller and relies on the MPD for assistance when needed.

We inquired with MPD staff about who it might rely on in a mutual aid event. The department said Ward County Sheriff and the State Patrol would be the most capable to assist but both agencies are far more limited with their available assets to assist. There are also smaller communities with police departments around the greater Minot area, but most are very small agencies that would be unlikely to offer any significant assistance.

Neither the local school district nor Minot State University have police departments; both rely on MPD for all law enforcement services to their campuses. Minot Air Force base does have security and police services but because these are military assets, their ability to aid MPD is very limited.

Uniform Crime Reports / Crime Trends

While communities differ from one another in population, demographics, geographical landscape, and socioeconomic distinctions, comparisons to other jurisdictions can be helpful in illustrating how crime rates in Minot measure up against those of other North Dakota communities as well as the State of North Dakota and the nation overall.

The FBI's Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program assembles data on crime from police departments across the United States; the reports are utilized to measure the extent, fluctuation, and distribution of crime. For reporting purposes, criminal offenses are divided into two categories: Part 1 offenses and Part 2 offenses. For Part 1 offenses, representing the most serious crimes, the UCR index is split into two categories: violent crimes and property crimes. Violent crimes include murder, rape, robbery, and aggravated assault. Property crimes include burglary, larceny, and motor vehicle theft. Crime rates are expressed (indexed) as the number of incidents per 100,000 population to allow for comparison.

The following tables and figures include the most recent information that is publicly available at the national level. This includes crime reports for 2013 through 2022 and clearance rates for 2021 and 2022.

In comparing Minot data with other North Dakota jurisdictions, one can see that MPD reports a violent crime rate similar to the North Dakota average and a property crime rate significantly lower than the state average. Both categories of crime numbers are significantly lower than the national average.

The following figure visually represents the violent and property crime rates for Minot from 2013 through 2022. Violent crime has remained static, while property crime overall has declined considerably over that period of time.

The next figure shows that prior to 2017, the overall crime rate in Minot was above the North Dakota average, yet by 2019–2020, the overall crime rate fell below the North Dakota average. This also occurred at a time when overall crime in the state was declining.

The following tables show the reported crime clearance rates for the Minot Police Department in 2021 and 2022. In general, Minot shows a clearance rate that is on par with or better than the state and national average for those crime categories with a higher volume of reported crimes (assault, burglary, larceny, and vehicle theft).

Strategic Planning

Strategic planning is an organizational management activity that is used to set priorities, focus energy and resources, strengthen operations, ensure that employees and other stakeholders are working toward common goals, establish agreement around intended outcomes/results, and assess and adjust the organization's direction in response to a changing environment. It is a disciplined effort that produces fundamental decisions and actions that shape and guide what an organization is, who it serves, what it does, and why it does it, with a focus on the future.

Effective strategic planning articulates where an organization is headed, and the actions needed to make progress and how it will know if it is successful.

The MPD does not have a written strategic plan. Most planning done by the department is made at the management level and is often an informal process connected to the annual budget process. Contained within this report will be a number of suggestions and recommendations; some of the recommendations may require long-term planning. We encourage the Minot Police Department to engage a cross-section of the department as well as community stakeholders to chart a path forward in a facilitated strategic planning process. A process that involves long-term planning with measurable goals and objectives is the most effective manner of strategic planning, and a process that involves a cross-section of the community, including elected officials, facilitates a commitment to an agreed-upon plan.

Recommendation:

- CPSM recommends the Minot Police Department engage in a facilitated strategic planning process. (Recommendation No. 1.)

Succession Planning

For many smaller and mid-sized police departments, such as the Minot Police Department, succession planning is difficult and often informal. Oftentimes, resources can be scarce, and it can be difficult to have key management personnel away for any length of time for professional development.

MPD does not have a written succession plan. Nor does the department have an established training matrix for employees in key positions to ensure professional development for the benefit of both the employee and the city. We encourage the MPD to establish a succession plan in the form of a training matrix that will commit personnel to a professional training and development plan. An effective plan should successfully position key personnel for future positions and leadership within the department and the policing industry.

Recommendation:

- We recommend that MPD establish a succession planning document that will outline necessary and desired training for employees in key positions in the department. (Recommendation No. 2.)

A succession plan should not be confused with "succession of command." MPD does have a succession of command document that outlines the department authority structure in the absence of key command personnel.

Minot Police Department Mission Statement

The Mission Statement of the Minot Police Department is as follows:

> The Minot Police Department will provide excellent police services to the citizens and guests of the City of Minot. We will strive to reduce and prevent crime, instill a sense of safety and security, and to work in partnership with our community to preserve a high quality of life. We will use our training and resources along with our values of honor, integrity, and trustworthiness to serve our citizens. Our goal is to make Minot a better place for all to live through our commitment to our profession.

Department Policy Manual

The Minot Police Department uses a subscription-based policy service provided by Lexipol. In our experience, subscription-based services for department policy manuals are an industry best practice. Departments that manage their own policy manuals struggle to keep up with timely updates as changes in the law enforcement profession occur; additionally, any policy that gets created or updated should be legally vetted to ensure the policy will stand up to outside scrutiny if and when litigation occurs. Subscription-based services provide these up-to-date changes in a timely manner with industry best practice policies that have been legally reviewed.

Services such as Lexipol will provide an agency with an off-the-shelf manual that requires minimal customization. Some agencies elect to adopt the manual "as is" with minimal customization (i.e., inserting the agency name where appropriate). However, the implementation process allows agencies to modify the Lexipol policy as much as they like to either fit their operational culture or to match past policies out of a previous manual. When modifications are made, those modifications are not typically vetted by Lexipol's legal services and are, therefore, potentially outside the policy's original intent. We discussed this with MPD staff and learned that modifications to the Lexipol policy were made, but up to this point, any updates distributed by Lexipol have not resulted in any significant conflicts.

In addition to the policy, Lexipol also offers a policy attestation tool that creates a record that all employees have reviewed and understood the policy. The service also offers a training tool called Daily Training Bulletins (DTBs) that challenge an employee's understanding and application of policy through scenario-based training. The Minot Police Department uses this module of the Lexipol service.

MPD also uses a "Department Directive" method of disseminating information about a temporary change in procedure or practice. This is very common in agencies; in the MPD it is covered in department Policy 201, Departmental Directives. The policy states that the department will ensure that employees receive and acknowledge receipt of the department directive; additionally, policy states that long-term department directives should be added to the permanent policy manual at some point. There is ambiguity regarding when directives expire or should be converted into policy. We could not find evidence of this policy being followed consistently. Some employees expressed frustration at not always being aware of changes and some changes were reported to happen by word of mouth versus a written directive. An example was given that COVID protocols implemented in 2020 technically never went away; employees reported that they simply stopped doing some of the practices such as wearing masks.

We believe this situation can be mitigated by including an effective date and an expiration date on the directives when issued. Management should then be cognizant to either extend the directive as the expiration date approaches, add the directive into the department policy manual as a permanent practice/procedure, or allow the directive to expire. The department also needs to establish a procedure of ensuring employees have received department directives as outlined in policy.

Recommendations:

- We recommend that MPD include an effective date and an expiration date when issuing a department directive. (Recommendation No. 3.)

- We recommend that MPD establish a process whereby long-term directives are added to the department's policy manual. (Recommendation No. 4.)
- We recommend that MPD establish a process whereby employees acknowledge receipt of department directives as required by policy. (Recommendation No. 5.)

Accreditation

Law enforcement agency (LEA) accreditation is a self-initiated process of adopting and maintaining standardized policies and procedures. LEAs operate within a specific set of state- and/or nationally recognized standards that are determined and defined by an accreditation body.[1]

Within the United States, one nationally recognized accreditation program called the Commission on Law Enforcement Accreditation (CALEA) applies to a municipal police department such as the Minot Police Department. In many states, there is a separate accreditation process either through a state police chiefs association or through the state itself. North Dakota does not have a state accreditation program, meaning that options for North Dakota police departments, including Minot PD, are limited to the CALEA process. In our experience, agencies that have pursued accreditation through CALEA have found the process to be labor intensive and costly. Yet, some agencies have reported positive organizational change that has resulted from these processes.

MPD has not pursued accreditation through CALEA, and it is unclear if past administrations ever evaluated the need to pursue accreditation. Due to the department's embrace of Lexipol to ensure policies are up to date, and based on our observations of the department, we do not see a need to specifically recommended that MPD pursue accreditation. However, this is a department choice and being an accredited agency can provide an additional layer of confidence to the community that their police department is contemporary and embracing the most up-to-date concepts of constitutional policing. The decision about accreditation should be regularly evaluated by the agency, with the benefits weighed against the cost and operational impact.

Department Structure / Chain of Command

The Minot Police Department is led by a police chief and is divided into three divisions, each led by a police captain. The three captains, as well as the professional standards lieutenant, report directly to the Police Chief. The three divisions are Operations (Patrol), Administration, and Investigations.

The organizational chart that follows is a functional chart created by CPSM and based on a Microsoft Excel document "chart" provided by the department. The department's chart showed individual employees such as each officer position in patrol but not necessarily every position in the department. The department chart also showed some functions that did not include FTE employees, and not all functions were listed. One example is bike patrol is included under Operations even though bike patrol is only a part-time function staffed by certain officers as time, weather, and staffing permit; at the same time, personnel and training, a function that is a vital part of the department's day-to-day business, was not included as a function.

1 https://cops.usdoj.gov/LEA_accreditation

Finally, there were listings found on the department's chart that had either been moved to another area of department operations or had been eliminated from the department. For example, court services were included in the department's chart under the administration captain, yet these services are no longer managed by the department. School resource officers were listed under Operations, yet they had been moved under Community Outreach several months prior to this assessment.

As noted above, this chart was compiled by CPSM, not the police department. It includes the functions that were on the department's chart, but not all functions in the department are listed. MPD should have an up-to-date and accurate organizational chart (similar to what is depicted above) on hand at all times. Organizational charts should be dated and archived when updates are made.

Recommendation:

- We recommend MPD update the departmental organizational chart to accurately depict current operations and functions. (Recommendation No. 6.)

Overall, the number of managers and supervisors for an agency the size of MPD is appropriate for proper management and supervision. However, we do have some concerns with the management structure. There is a significant imbalance in personnel within the agency and who commands those personnel. Because most department personnel fall under "Operations," the Operations captain is tasked with significantly more oversight than the other two captains.

We believe a solution to this is to convert one captain position to a Deputy Chief/Assistant Chief position in the organization. This Deputy Chief would serve as department's number 2, and under normal circumstances, the Chief and Deputy Chief would never be away from the agency at the same time, thereby always ensuring a police leadership position is present in the city at all times. The Deputy would fall directly under the Chief on the organizational chart, and would manage the day-to-day functions of the Operations and Investigations Divisions of the department. Additionally, the department's administrative functions and professional standards would report directly to the Deputy. This structure should allow the Chief an enhanced ability to focus on community needs and external relationship building, which we believe would benefit the organization.

An additional administrative element that we see lacking in MPD is the presence of an administrative assistant. Administrative assistants perform a wide variety of tasks, organizing the administrative needs of an agency.

Agencies use these positions to maintain organizational needs and department records, take meeting minutes, and keep administrative records up to date. In MPD, the typical duties of an administrative assistant is a shared responsibility between the Chief and the various managers in the department. With this situation we often see that institutional knowledge is lost when members transfer or retire. A professional and talented administrative assistant will establish protocols and workflows that will translate to future assistants; by virtue of the job classification, administrative assistants remain in their positions far longer than police managers, who spend a majority of their career climbing the police career ladder before reaching department administration near the end of their career.

This need was apparent during our interaction with department staff. There were a number of times where questions were asked of staff, who in turn needed to confer with others on matters that should be clearly documented. Small examples included up-to-date personnel rosters, up-to-date organizational charts, the lack of meeting minutes, project assignment flowcharts, and the maintenance of personnel records. Ultimately, MPD was able to produce what we asked for but that process is far more streamlined when agencies have a professional administrative assistant on staff.

Recommendations:

- CPSM recommends that MPD convert one captain position to a deputy/assistant chief position. (Recommendation No. 7.)
- We recommend the department add an FTE administrative assistant to the department organizational structure. (Recommendation No. 8.)

Department Staffing

The Minot Police Department is currently authorized for 84 sworn officers and 14 civilian employees. The sworn position breakdown and numbers of filled positions are noted in the following table.

TABLE 3-6: MPD Sworn Officer Staffing

Position	Authorized	Funded	Actual
Captain	3	3	3
Lieutenant	5	5	5
Sergeant	14	14	14
Sworn Officers*	61	58	52
Totals	84	81	75

Note: *Includes MPOs, Sr. Officers, Officers, and Detectives.

The above information was provided by MPD. It was compiled by extracting personnel information from different documents and through discussions with MPD staff to clarify information. There were discrepancies in the information that was provided by the department that required clarification. For instance, there is a document that lists all sworn personnel and some of the civilian personnel; this document shows each employee by assignment (patrol shift, detectives etc.). That document had the same personnel included two times in different places. The document did not show where the vacancies were being carried in the department, clarification on those numbers was obtained through discussions with MPD staff. There was no list that included the same information for civilian employees.

It was obvious to us that certain members of the MPD management team had the information that was needed either in memory or in various other databases and records, but it did not exist in one location / report that was simple to access. An effective way of managing this information is to have a roster of all positions in the department including vacant positions, who is occupying the position, the date of hire, and the date of their current position / rank. Another document should exist that shows the assignments of every position in the department, including where the identified vacancies are being carried.

Recommendation:

- We recommend that MPD take steps to clarify its personnel rosters and keep those rosters updated on a regular basis. (Recommendation No. 9.)

Department Budget

The following table shows the 2021, 2022, and 2023 budget figures as provided by MPD.

TABLE 3-7: MPD Budget, 2021–2023

Year	Total MPD Budget	MPD Budgeted Overtime	Actual Overtime Usage
2021	$10,183,876	$169,998	$203,431
2022	$11,438,892	$185,997	$310,742
2023	$11,944,699	$204,596	$322,120 (YTD 1/6/23)

The MPD follows a calendar-year budget. The overtime budget amount comes from general fund overtime funds available to the department. The actual overtime usage includes grant-funded overtime (reimbursable to the department) and staffing backfill that was offset by salary savings connected to unfilled positions. MPD did not exceed its overall budget amount in any of the years noted.

Professional Standards

The department's professional standards (internal affairs) function is managed by a lieutenant who reports directly to the Police Chief. All personnel complaints are routed through the professional standards lieutenant, who either investigates the matter or refers the investigation to the appropriate manager or supervisor in the department for investigation.

Personnel complaints are covered in Department Policy 1005, which states in part that the department will accept and address all complaints of misconduct in accordance with policy and the law. This policy also states that complaint forms are available in the public lobby as well as through the department website.

We tested the availability of the form, and we were able to navigate to a portal that allowed for general city complaints. It required clicking on a city link from the department's webpage and then clicking on "requests" (not apparent unless you saw those instructions on the department webpage). From requests, the user clicks on "create a request," where a login page appears. That requires a user to create an account to proceed. There is an option to "create anonymously." After several steps, we followed the prompts and came to a page that allowed for a typed entry of one's "service requests" that included a drop-down menu for police matters, including a complaint. Without completing the process to "file a complaint," we concluded that the portal appears to work as intended and meets the policy of the department.

However, the system does require several steps and may not be considered very user-friendly by many. We believe the department should also offer a form one can print directly off the department website and mail to the department. This would allow for a simpler option for many in the community who may find technology frustrating.

Recommendation:

- We recommend a printable complaint form be offered on the police department's website. (Recommendation No. 10.)

Personnel Complaints vs Service Complaints

In reviewing the complaint matrices provided by MPD, we noticed that tracked complaints were personnel complaints in nature. None of the complaints were service-level complaints against the agency. In discussing this with the agency, we learned that there was no distinction within its process. Furthermore, if a service-type complaint were received it would likely be handled informally versus under the established personnel complaint process. Most agencies separate these types of complaints and track them separately from personnel complaints. An example found in the department records occurred earlier this year where there was a documented investigation of a citizen that "did not get the result they wanted." Three employees were listed in this investigation and the outcome stated that "no policy violation observed." This investigation likely should have been classified as a service complaint and not a personnel complaint against department employees.

For clarification, a service complaint is when a citizen is unhappy about the service level provided by the department but does not allege misconduct by an employee. Examples might include slow response times, unhappy with an investigation outcome, etc. MPD should take steps to formalize and track service complaints made against the department. Formally tracking this metric and ensuring there is a process to investigate these concerns properly may yield management benefits by being able to recognize operational or procedural shortfalls that should be addressed.

Recommendation:

- We recommend the department take steps to separately classify, investigate, and track service complaints against the department. (Recommendation No. 11.)

Investigative Process and Case Summaries

As noted, the professional standards lieutenant receives all complaints, assigns a case number, and distributes those investigations appropriately to an assigned investigator. Although investigations can be disseminated to other lieutenants, most are investigated by the professional standards lieutenant. For investigations that involve someone above the rank of sergeant, the investigation is assigned to a captain (in one case, the Chief conducted an investigation). Data provided by the department indicated that since 2021, the Police Chief investigated one internal case, captains handled seven cases, and lieutenants handled the balance (43) of cases investigated by the department. The department's past practice has been to not involve sergeants in internal investigations. The department should consider involving sergeants in lower-level internal investigations. Doing so on minor allegations will expose sergeants to the process, better prepare them to understand the role if/when they are promoted to lieutenant, and will allow the department to see the administrative capabilities of its sergeant workforce. At minimum, that type of exposure works to expand a supervisor's knowledge base of what to look for when they are tasked with receiving a citizen complaint.

Recommendation:

- We recommend that MPD take steps to involve sergeants in low-level internal investigations. (Recommendation No. 12.)

We were provided a department matrix of complaints investigated by MPD since 2021. The matrix included the date the complaint was received, the nature of the complaint, the source of the complaint (internal/external), the file number, redacted employee names, who the investigation was assigned to, and what the outcome of the investigation was determined to be. This matrix was developed internally and intended to provide a quick snapshot of open and past investigations. On the surface, the matrix may serve its intended purpose, but looking more closely at the report, we see inconsistencies that may not meet the policy intent of the department.

For instance, not all cases had sensible file numbers. Most had a sequential number that should be aligned with an IA process, some had no number and had a note that it was referred to a lieutenant in patrol (unknown if an investigation was even done), and others had what appears to be a crime report number from a different source. Not all of the entries had an outcome and none of the cases had a close date. Therefore we don't know if or when the investigation was completed.

The department should audit all internal cases for the past three years and complete the matrix to ensure all cases were appropriately investigated and closed. Future records should include the close date.

Recommendation:

- MPD should conduct an audit of all internal investigations going back three years to ensure all investigations were completed as required by policy. (Recommendation No. 13.)

The department's internal tracking mechanism for complaints and other reporting areas, such as the use of force tracking, is done on department-generated spreadsheets. This is not unusual for agencies in the size range of MPD. Large police agencies have been forced to develop more sophisticated tracking procedures to ensure accuracy, consistency, and completeness. Many agencies in the size category of Minot have been able to adjust accordingly and incorporate tracking in a more rudimentary form because the volume of incidents and cases is not as high. The existing spreadsheets and investigations are on a shared department drive with access limited to all department managers.

However, we have highlighted some problematic areas in MPD's tracking documents and observed some similar concerns in other internal reports. There are off-the-shelf software programs that MPD could use for tracking all aspects of complaints and investigations. Software platforms such as IA Pro[2] offer solutions that can streamline the process and provide operational insight into areas of MPD's operations that need to be addressed.

These programs will digitally track and store all cases and evidence associated with internal investigations. They can be used to categorize cases, provide summary reports, provide reminders and alarms when cases have been open too long, and provide a tracking mechanism of who has accessed a case file. Additionally, data such as use of force incidents, pursuits, employee injuries, etc., can all be tracked on these platforms, which provides department leadership insights into employee performance or concerns that should be addressed.

MPD should perform an assessment of the products available for this purpose and determine what platform works best for the department. MPD should improve its internal tracking and reporting and have better control over file access, regardless of the platform used.

Recommendation:

- CPSM recommends that MPD explore off-the-shelf software solutions for tracking and maintaining internal investigations and other personnel matters. (Recommendation No. 14.)

2. We are not promoting any one product; IA Pro is used as an example since the author is familiar with the workflow of this program. Other similar products exist, and MPD should perform its own evaluation.

SECTION 4. ADMINISTRATION

The Minot Police Department's administrative commander is a police captain who oversees the following department functions:

- Community Outreach.
- School Resource Officers.
- Property and Evidence.
- Records.
- Personnel, Training, Hiring.

The existing organizational chart also lists the municipal court function under the administrative commander, but this function was moved under the city manager in early 2023. The existing organizational chart has not been updated to reflect this change.

With the municipal court being moved out of this division/department, the administration division has the fewest direct reports in the department. We suggest the functions of this division should be merged into other areas of department operations and/or the proposed Deputy Chief, as outlined in this report.

COMMUNITY OUTREACH

The MPD organizational chart has a section titled Community Outreach. The section includes one "administrative sergeant" and one community outreach officer. Currently, one of the police officer vacancies in the department is being held within this unit, leaving one sergeant to fulfill the department's community outreach efforts.

In our discussions with MPD about community outreach efforts, we learned that limited proactive community outreach is taking place, largely a byproduct of the department culture and because of limited staffing dedicated to the effort. The department will intentionally host one to two "coffee with a cop" events per year and plan efforts around events such as National Night Out and other opportunities that may present themselves. Outside of those efforts, the remaining official outreach involves responding to community requests to be present at community discussions about policing issues or for a specific request, such as a police station tour. In this case, the community outreach sergeant may solicit other members of the department to assist.

The department also employs a civilian position that manages community messaging through traditional public information officer duties and social media engagement. This employee shares their work time between the police and fire departments and largely works out of an office in City Hall. In reviewing the department's social media posts on Facebook, it appears that as of late, there are regular posts occurring that balance crime news and positive "get to know your police department" type posts. The Facebook contributors include the PIO mentioned above and the administrative sergeant managing community outreach.

We also learned that the expectations of other employees throughout the department in relation to community outreach were mixed. The patrol workload was deemed to be too busy to allow for engagement beyond the calls they were dispatched to handle, and culturally, many in those other assignments felt that community outreach was more of the responsibility of the community outreach unit (i.e., one sergeant) rather than a collective effort of all employees. This is not to imply there is any lack of professionalism in the department as officers interact with the public, just an observation of ownership of "community outreach" responsibilities.

This report will have some recommendations designed to realign some staffing within the agency to allow for a greater personnel investment within "community outreach." However, we believe the department is missing an opportunity for better community interaction, and improvements should be made. Specifically, there should be a better understanding of how all employees play a critical role in community outreach and engagement and that all employees have that responsibility within their work expectations. This should be done through an outline of department expectations as well as training on what the department expects, including examples of desirable conduct and ownership of engagement and outreach efforts.

Recommendation:

- We recommend that MPD enhance overall community engagement with training afforded to employees on expectations of community engagement and interaction. (Recommendation No. 15.)

Additionally, the department told us it desires to have the police officer position that is assigned to community outreach permanently moved to patrol and have the community outreach coordination function done by a civilian employee. This function is commonly performed by civilian employees in police organizations nationwide and this change would serve the department well.

RECRUITMENT, HIRING, AND TRAINING

The MPD administrative sergeant who manages community outreach spends most of her workday dedicated to the department's recruitment, hiring, and training process. These functions are not outlined on the department's organizational chart. One may argue that the current organizational chart is more aligned with identifying personnel and their chain of command; however, in reality, it outlines many units and functions that do not have FTE employees (CSRU, Bomb, SWAT, Bike Patrol, etc.).

Recommendation:

- We recommend that recruitment, hiring, and training functions be denoted on the department organization chart. (Recommendation No. 16.)

MPD engages in a hiring process that, per the department, is defined and limited by the city's civil service rules. The department will have three to four recruitment periods per year during which it accepts applications. Once that application period closes, it will process those applicants through various traditional policing hiring processes. Prospective employees who successfully pass the process and are offered employment with the department enter into an internal training program that the department manages.

The internal training program consists of in-house classroom training provided by MPD employees and is followed up by the field training program. Police officers, at some point, will leave the MPD training program within their first year on the job to attend a state-certified academy. In our experience, most departments around the country will first send a new police officer to an academy before allowing them to enter into a field training program and serve as a sworn police officer. However, we understand that MPD and the State of North Dakota have a dynamic different from many states, and there are simply limited academy training dates and classes available, thereby necessitating the current practice. We agree with MPD's approach of ensuring that all new employees attend their in-house program before working in uniform on the streets.

MPD cited concerns over its inability to garner a larger pool of candidates and reach "full staffing." In discussions with the department, we found it believes it has identified many issues and where it may be falling short in recruiting. For instance, the Air Force base and the university should be fertile recruiting grounds. Many of the current employees of the department have come from one of these recruitment feeders. However, the department cited COVID-19 as a disruptor in the Air Force recruitment program, and the relationship it previously enjoyed with the university is not as strong as it has been.

From an outside perspective, we see some structural issues that might be hindering the department's efforts. For instance, the primary employee who runs these programs and recruiting efforts is the administrative sergeant. Her time and efforts are stretched thin with her multiple responsibilities. The function is important, yet, as noted before, it does not appear on the department organizational chart, and at best it is an ancillary responsibility within the department's day-to-day business.

We have already suggested that one captain (administration) be upgraded to a Deputy Chief position. Making this change should allow for that Deputy Chief to handle most day-to-day business, thereby allowing the Police Chief to focus on certain external relationships, such as with the Air Force and the university, to improve those recruitment programs. We also believe the department should consider merging the professional standards lieutenant with the administrative functions of the department. The IA function itself is not that busy and the lieutenant position appears to have excess capacity that could be better utilized elsewhere. There is a natural relationship between the training function and the professional standards of a department. For efficiency, the functions could be merged, thereby adding capacity to both functions.

Finally, the department does not have a streamlined process for lateral applicants that may present themselves outside of the traditional recruitment periods. MPD cited the civil service process as being the hinderance that does not allow it to separately process and expedite those applicants through the hiring / training process. The department did not have data available on how many laterals may become available at any given time outside the recruitment period or how many it may be losing because of the internal process. But we believe there should be a process for those applicants that already have attended a state academy and can be expedited into an FTO program. MPD should ensure that this is possible.

Recommendation:

- CPSM recommends that MPD explore the various changes to the recruitment and training efforts outlined in our conclusions. (Recommendation No. 17.)

SCHOOL RESOURCE OFFICER PROGRAM

MPD has a relationship and MOU with the local school district for school resource officers. In our review of the program we did not determine any issues of concern and it appears that the best practices are in place (including a funding component from the school district). Currently, the SRO program is supervised by the administrative sergeant. This is a recent structural change that has more to do with her relationship with the program (past SRO herself) and less to do with where the SROs may be best positioned within the department structure.

We have made structural recommendations that would impact the administrative division of the department. If the department follows those recommendations we believe the SRO program should be moved back to operations.

PROPERTY & EVIDENCE SECTION

Property management is one of the most important jobs in the entire police operation. Increased drug law enforcement, the use of DNA testing, and other developments have greatly complicated the task of logging, tracking, storing, and inventorying evidence in recent years. The two biggest challenges in operating a property room are avoiding occurrences of mismanagement and incidents such as missing monies or drugs that appear to indicate corruption. To oversee the property function effectively, managers must understand the management procedures, be aware of the liabilities, and continually search for ways to improve the system. Property rooms are usually overcrowded, so unnecessary items should be purged regularly. Safeguards include proper packaging, lockers, and security measures. Computer software and other technology are available to automate parts of the property management system. Police agencies should also have clear policies and procedures regarding property room management. The intake, processing, storage, and disposal of evidence and property are important and high-risk functions of any law enforcement agency. It is especially true for weapons, narcotics dangerous drugs, currency, and jewelry.

Police agencies across the country regularly face consequences of mismanaged property and evidence sections, and which result in terminations and arrests of police employees, from janitors to police chiefs, for thefts of narcotics, cash, jewelry, guns, and other items of value. In some cases, audits that revealed unaccounted-for property and evidence have led to the termination of police executives, though they were not suspected of being implicated in the theft/loss of the evidence. Controlling access to the property and evidence areas, inventory control, and regular audits are critical to the effective management of the property and evidence function to ensure community trust and confidence.

National organizations such as the International Association of Police Chiefs, the U.S. Department of Justice, and the International Association for Property & Evidence (IAPE) offer reports, training, and other material to ensure a high quality of professional standards in property & evidence sections. During this assessment, CPSM found several areas of concern regarding the storage and condition of the MPD's Property and Evidence (P&E) Section. Although these issues are not directly related to the current management or oversight by the evidence technician or the Command staff, MPD will need to address several issues that can lead to larger risk management issues if not properly handled soon.

Staffing and Operation

Property and Evidence (P&E) is under the command of the Criminal Investigations Division captain; staffing includes one full-time police sergeant, one master officer position, and one professional staff technician. Each of these positions is also assigned responsibility for the administrative functions of the Records Unit. The P&E Unit administrator is the current police sergeant who recently transferred to the P&E assignment. While CPSM understands MPD's need to assign sworn personnel to P&E during this transitional period for operational improvements and enhancements, a long-range strategic plan should be developed. CPSM recommends MPD develop a strategic plan for the P&E Unit and begin to transition sworn personnel to a trained civilian property and evidence administrator. This approach is highly suggested by the Police Executive Research Forum (PERF) as well as IAPE as a contemporary and modern approach to property and evidence management.

The operational hours of P&E are from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and appointments are made as needed for the public. In case of an emergency after hours, the P&E sergeant or master officer is available for response. This process is not memorialized in any official documents or authorities. CPSM recommends an after-hours and emergency process be documented in the Lexipol policy system for organizational reference.

Policy & Administrative

Policies for the Property and Evidence Section govern general procedures, such as how officers book evidence and property into the system. MPD's Lexipol policies guide property room management as well as how evidence is processed into the evidence room. We found related policies were properly up-to-date and reflected current minimum law enforcement standards; however, higher industry standards are recommended to prevent future evidence-related issues from occurring. In support of the Lexipol policies, the property room custodian has created a usable and well-prepared "how to" manual that meets industry standards.

CPSM recommends that MPD continue to develop the section manual as a usable guide for P&E personnel. CPSM also recommends that MPD ensure that all members assigned to the P&E Unit become formal members of the IAPE and use IAPE's available resources set to continue to update and expand the section property manual. By achieving these objectives, the evidence technician can offer industry-standard recommendations for the command staff as well as develop proven methods to resolve property-related issues that emerge.

Industry-standard administrative and operational functions are a core principle for P&E sections; MPD utilizes the Tyler RMS that integrates into other department domains such as "Evidence.com." Axon's "Evidence.com" can create an audit trail of every single action around digital evidence; however, currently, MPD does not utilize this function.

During CPSM's query of various functions in P&E, some relevant information was readily available, while some was not. The evidence technician primarily uses the records management system (RMS) to track, manage, and purge evidence and limits the use of off-shelf products or the need to use Excel spreadsheets to manage property. MPD's approach is a national standard that is highly recommended, as many police departments often use off-shelf products.

We found the RMS offers a property and evidence management feature, and it is effective in managing evidence/property as well as activity reports. CPSM recommends MPD consider developing a "Property Staff and Activity Report" to measure productivity. IAPE can provide guidance on developing an activity report that meets the standards expected of a P&E section. The report should include data on P&E requests, discovery, lab runs, destruction/purging, property intake, clerical activities, and staffing. It was evident that the MPD has produced usable reports and systems; however, considering the need to exceed minimum standards, MPD should enhance its P&E audit and report systems.

The most pressing need in Property and Evidence is to hire and train permanent personnel and to provide assistance when there is only one evidence technician. CPSM recommends MPD consider preparing part-time (sometimes retired personnel) evidence technicians to provide the extra effort to improve systems and provide "back-up" for the current evidence technician. During this assessment, it was determined the P&E/Records staff spend about 70 percent of time managing the property and evidence room and another 30 percent overseeing the Records Unit and other responsibilities. It would benefit MPD to evaluate the need for additional personnel to divide the responsibilities between the workgroups.

The department should develop a formalized system to ensure all the evidence technicians are trained annually in critical topical areas and adequately document the training. This will ensure that industry standards will continually be sought to avoid potential problems.

Audits

MPD is not under state POST mandates or internal timelines to conduct audits and reviews of P&E; however, the current P&E staff has recently conducted inventories in order to legally destroy adjudicated case evidence, re-package items, and reorganize several of the six areas of property and evidence storage. There are no recent audits that CPSM was able to review nor any written guidelines on how the process is to be conducted. However, the P&E Unit is conducting ongoing, in-depth reviews and assessments. CPSM conducted a physical walk-through of the various property storage areas and viewed photographs taken before the current effort to reorganize P&E. There was a notable improvement in how evidence is processed, stored, and managed. CPSMs found that the current approach to managing the P&E Unit meets industry standards as recommended by IAPE, PERF, and IACP; however, there is a need to continue the current effort to improve operations, administrative systems, and storage.

It is recommended that the MPD develop an audit schedule annually or bi-annually that produces an administrative report of activity. The audit report should consider the following suggested items:

- Intake, recording, and storing all property booked by police employees.
- Safeguarding property.
- Releasing evidence to detectives for court.
- Releasing property to the public.
- Missing or misplaced items.
- Destruction plan for evidence and property.
- Compliance with state law and policy regarding the disposition and purging of property.
- Evaluation of ventilation and proper storage of chemicals and other hazardous item.

Security & Physical Assessment

MPD's P&E has video cameras installed in the main evidence storage area and the evidence processing area where officers have access to the two-way locker system to book and store property 24 hours a day. The current staff was unable to answer questions as to whether the cameras were operational or how the system was managed. CPSM recommends that MPD develop a written procedure or Lexipol update that provides an overview of the system and how it is managed. The equipment is positioned in areas that are expected and would record any improper behavior or performance issues when entering and exiting the property room.

However, it was unknown at the time of CPSM's visit if the cameras were operational or where saved videos are maintained. It is recommended that MPD follow the IAPE recommendation and ensure a 24-hour monitoring video system for when personnel enter the storage areas, with recordings maintained for up to two years.

The physical property rooms include the following areas of storage:

- The main property room allows officers to package and store items in two-way lockers that connect to a secured area, with an access door combination code for P&E staff to enter and process evidence.
- A secondary storage area of secured guns and drugs to include a separate area for marijuana evidence.
- A secured area in the "SWAT Bay" for evidence and long-term evidence storage.
- Two secured evidence refrigerators for sexual assault evidence, blood items, and other evidence that needs to be refrigerated.
- An off-site, outside storage area for larger items, with the capability to temporarily store hazardous items and fireworks.

Having various locations for evidence storage is not recommended by CPSM or other national organizations such as IAPE. CPSM understands that MPD is currently conducting a workplace study regarding workspace, storage, and potential structural upgrades. CPSM recommends that MPD complete the study and initiate a process to reduce the number of property storage locations. As an example, the evidence refrigerators can be relocated into the main property intake area, allowing both officer and P&E Unit personnel access. CPSM recognizes this approach cannot be undertaken until the workspace study is completed in 2024.

The International Association of Property and Evidence (IAPE) provides valuable training and technical support for guidance in building a professional and secure security and video monitoring system. IAPE's website features links to sample policies and procedures as well as additional resources to improve security. As an example, CPSM was required to check in or out at any of the entry points to the various property rooms. CPSM recommends a written check-in and check-out signature board at the entry/exit points of the main property rooms.

The door to the property room does not require any authentication to access and the door is not designed to withstand forced entry. MPD should upgrade its systems to provide for double authentication for entry. The evidence room lacks a gun safe to store guns and narcotics; however, the security conditions of the property room with security doors and videos prevent unauthorized entry or removal of property. However, this issue remains a concern. In the rear of the property room there is a large open container with rifles and other long guns stored in the area.

Based on IAPE best practice recommendations, it is preferred to have a secured and ground-bolted gun, monies, and narcotics safe for higher level security and storage. It is recommended that MPD consider the purchase and installation of a commercial-grade safe to store all firearms. The P&E room was safe from dangerous chemicals, fireworks, and other dangerous items and, per policy, these items are required to be safely and securely stored in the evidence garage. CPSM inventoried the evidence garage and found the area to be safely secured, with the proper precautions to avoid health issues. The property room faces a challenge with the backlog of found and safekeeping items and this has produced a storage space issue for the MPD.

MPD has taken initial steps to resolve this issue and should be commended for its current effort. As the workspace project is finalized the storage space issue will need to be rectified with the new design system. The room was previously overcrowded and it was hazardous to access needed evidence. The current storage and space design has reduced overcrowding and the potential for work-related injuries. It is recommended that MPD seek professional assistance and when appropriate purchase a design storage system that will reduce the backlog and create open space in a legal and proper method. This will reduce the chances of misplaced items, increase the ability to track and locate evidence, and guard against workplace injuries.

Overall, without significant improvement in property purging, the department will likely see maxed-out storage space in two to three years. Fortunately, MPD has taken significant steps over the past six months to improve storage space by relocating evidence and purging items. Unfortunately, during the CPSM visit, the P&E staff was unable to supply a report of property checked in, items processed into the P&E area, or the amount of overall property disposed of per year. CPSM highly recommends the MPD utilize the capabilities of the RMS to develop a regular monthly report that documents incoming and outgoing items and how many items are disposed of each month. This approach is highly recommended by IAPE and will reduce liability exposure while improving risk management.

The internal system tracks items temporarily checked out for court purposes and the property custodian manually tracks items released for court purposes. The manual process ensures accountability, but the MPD should begin to build a barcoded system under the current RMS system for improved long-term accountability.

Currently, MPD is pursuing methods to improve space, tracking of evidence, and auditing but the efforts are limited until the workspace project is completed.

CPSM recommends MPD strongly consider a temporary task force comprised of (trained) personnel to conduct a complete audit of the property room and dispose of unneeded items. Space must be freed up in the property room and there must be a more organized system to intake property and evidence. It is also recommended that MPD seek out a formal property room audit through IAPE once the workspace project is completed in 2024.

Property and Evidence Section Recommendations:

- CPSM recommends MPD develop a strategic plan for the P&E Unit and begin to transition sworn personnel to a civilian property and evidence administrator and evidence technicians. (Recommendation No. 18.)
- CPSM recommends an after-hours and emergency process be documented in the Lexipol policy system for organizational reference. (Recommendation No. 19.)
- CPSM recommends that MPD continue to develop the section manual as a usable guide for P&E personnel. CPSM also recommends that MPD ensure that all members assigned to the P&E Unit become formal members of the IAPE and use IAPE's available resources to continue to update and expand the P&E manual. (Recommendation No. 20.)
- CPSM recommends MPD consider developing a "Property Staff and Activity Report" to measure productivity. IAPE can provide guidance on developing an activity report that meets the standards expected of a P&E section. (Recommendation No. 21.)
- CPSM recommends MPD consider using part-time (sometimes retired personnel) as evidence technicians to provide the extra effort to improve systems and provide "back-up" for the current evidence technician. (Recommendation No. 22.)

- It is recommended that the MPD develop an audit schedule annually or bi-annually that produces an administrative report of activity. (Recommendation No. 23.)
- CPSM recommends that MPD complete the workspace project and initiate a process to reduce the number of property room storage locations. (Recommendation No. 24.)
- CPSM recommends a written check-in and check-out signature board at the entry/exit points of the main property rooms. (Recommendation No. 25.)
- It is recommended that MPD seek professional assistance and when appropriate purchase a design storage system that will reduce the backlog and create open space in a legal and proper method. This will reduce the chances of misplaced items, improve the ability to track and locate evidence, and guard against workplace injuries. (Recommendation No. 26.)
- CPSM highly recommends MPD utilize the capabilities of the RMS to develop a regular monthly report, documenting incoming and outgoing items, and how many items are disposed of each month. This approach is highly recommended by IAPE and will reduce liability exposure while improving risk management. (Recommendation No. 27.)
- CPSM recommends MPD strongly consider a temporary task force comprised of part-time (trained) personnel to conduct a complete audit of the property room and dispose of unneeded items. (Recommendation No. 28.)
- MPD should seek out a formal property room audit through IAPE once the workspace project is completed in 2024. (Recommendation No. 29.)

RECORDS

The MPD Records Unit is the central repository of incident, traffic accident, and related reports and reviews; the unit also classifies incident reports according to the FBI National Incident-Based Reporting System (NIBRS) standards. The MPD's Records Unit falls under the command of the Criminal Investigations Division.

TABLE 4-1: MPD Records Unit Staffing, 2023

Rank	Authorized	Actual	Vacant

Records Specialist Supervisor	1	1	0
Records Master Officer	1	1	0
Police Specialists/Technicians	4	4	0
FOIA Clerk	1	1	0
Total	8	8	0

Source: MPD Records Staffing

Policy and Structure

The Records Unit functions as a support unit for the Minot Police Department. All incident reports written by officers are entered into a computer system and maintained by state law. The Records Unit is responsible for all records functions, criminal warrant files, police statistical data, and preparation of police reports.

The Records Unit is properly structured with personnel trained to review and classify police reports while classifying incidents by the National Incident Reporting System (NIBRS). Records also includes a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) clerk to process all incoming requests made by the public as well as by the judicial system.

CPSM noted the records policy exceeds national expectations and the procedural manual maintained by the Records Unit provides a foundation to encourage professional growth. CPSM also noted that the Records Unit is mostly digital and does not file or store hard copies of reports or other documents. This is an achievement most police agencies never attain.

The structure of the Records Unit includes sworn positions at the sergeant and master officer ranks. It is recommended that MPD begin to develop a multi-year plan to transition the sergeant and master officer positions to professional (civilian) staff to oversee the Records and the Property and Evidence Units. The integration of professional staff will reduce costs and enable MPD to repurpose these sworn personnel to more essential operational positions. MPD may consider developing the positions as administrators and managers who can oversee the Records and Property & Evidence Units.

Work Schedules & Public Access Hours

Records Unit personnel work a five-day workweek that covers Monday through Friday with a schedule of 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The regular (public) operating times are from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Records Duties & Processing Volume, 2021–2023

The Records Unit maintains statistical recordkeeping that is consistent with contemporary law enforcement agencies in the United States. CPSM reviewed the Records Unit's procedures, management, and report filing. We found a growing pace of incidents including police report entries and public information requests. MPD Records does not track the number of police reports, incoming phone calls, or the number of public counter visitors to MPD for various requests such as obtaining copies of reports, taxi permits, vehicle-related reports, or other public services. CPSM recommends MPD use its RMS and other systems to develop a monthly statistical report on the total tasks the Records staff perform. This will assist the MPD in estimating proper staffing levels and other trending issues related to performance.

Information on MPD Records Unit tasks for 2021, 2022, and 2023 is limited to the data found in the following table.

	2021	2022	2023
Incident Reports	38,085	38,180	39,180
FOIA Requests	3,049	3,268	3,064

Source: Minot Police Records Unit

CPSM found that the total number of FOIA requests exceeds typical levels for a department the size of Minot Police Department. FOIA requests have increased over the past several years. The MPD should be concerned with the growing number of FOIA requests increasing each year, specifically the number of requests by the District Attorney Officer and defense attorneys. MPD utilizes one defined digital evidence technician to complete duties related to body-worn camera video and in-car video content as well as all FOIA requests. CPSM recommends MPD continue its cross-training efforts to enable additional personnel to perform FOIA duties. CPSM also recommends MPD consider part-time personnel to assist with the FOIA requests.

There is a vast array of duties performed in police records units that can be overwhelming. The table above reflects a limited view of the total annual activity as well as the average number of these tasks per category. CPSM found that the Record's staff is performing a high level of daily records tasks, but MPD does not track the entirety of these daily efforts. Some agencies choose to assign specific duties to individual employees who serve as specialists and perform those duties. MPD attempts to cross-train personnel to assist in other areas. CPSM strongly supports the current approach by MPD to cross-train the Records staff to achieve the outcomes identified in this report.

The duties performed in Records include the following:

- Review and process citations and incident reports.
- Conduct criminal history checks and background checks.
- Answer telephone calls related to the operation of the records.
- Handle walk-in customers at the front desk.
- Organize and maintain reports in various databases.
- Respond to document, video, and/or photographic image requests from the public and law enforcement/criminal justice community.
- Accept fees for vehicle releases, copies of reports, and taxi licenses.
- Prepare morning paperwork, including affidavits from officers, served warrants, and citations to be sent to municipal court and city attorneys.
- Monitor and respond to requests received through the agency's central email box
- Respond to requests for the release of various documents/tapes/ photographs as required under the Public Records Act (PRA).
- Receive and distribute incoming and outgoing mail.
- Merge and review officer entries from the Enterprise Law Enforcement Mobile program to the internal tracking program.
- Prepare statistical reports monthly.
- Dictate officers' narratives and statements.
- Enter orders of protection manually into the RMS.
- Create and print taxi licenses.
- Warrant processing, entering, and dismissing of warrants.

The MPD does not use a self-service model (online) reporting system. Such a system enables citizens to make a report over the telephone for any past offense that does not require an officer to go to the scene. These types of services are becoming more common in police departments and are considered a best practice in decreasing the need for patrol officers to respond to specific types of "report-only" calls for service. CPSM recommends the MPD consider an online reporting system to decrease the need for patrol officers to respond to "report-only" calls for service.

The department's records management system, commonly referred to as the Tyler Technology system, allows officers to upload their reports from the in-car computers directly into the records management system through wireless transmission. The RMS increases officers' in-car access to updated information and speeds up the tracking of items turned in as property or evidence.

Nationally, challenges with RMS products are being experienced by contemporary law enforcement organizations; however, MPD has overcome similar challenges by integrating the RMS system into daily operations.

- MPD regularly migrates the CAD data into the RMS system for effective statistical reports and trend identification.
- MPD has a regional dispatch center and has fully integrated the RMS system into the regional platform for other police agencies to utilize.
- MPD's successful integration allows the ability to obtain CFS trends and fully integrate data for CompStat and other crime-fighting strategies when needed.

The challenge for MPD is ensuring ongoing training for all personnel and ensuring a continued reduction in off-shelf products and Excel spreadsheets to manage data. MPD serves as a model for utilizing its RMS system in administrative and operational data reports.

CPSM recommends MPD increase training and develop skill levels among the records technicians to advance the usage of the RMS. MPD should establish an in-house training system to meet mandated training requirements for all new Records personnel by using a training matrix of skill development. It is also recommended that the Records management and supervisors use national organization membership to participate in webinars and learn new contemporary methods that may help solve current and future challenges. As an example, the National Association of Government Archives and Records Administration (NAGARA) offers membership, training, conferences, and webinars for municipal records management staff and frontline professionals to advance their skill sets.

FBI UCR Reporting / Clearance Rates

Annually, the Federal Bureau of Investigation produces a Uniform Crime Report (UCR) that provides comprehensive crime and other law enforcement data for agencies across the country. This data is provided by states after each state collects and processes data received from local agencies. CPSM maintains that while preventing a crime is of utmost importance to any law enforcement agency, solving crime should have parity. The solving of crimes which results in the prosecution of offenders not only prevents future crime, but it also provides much-needed closure to crime victims.

Clearance rates, as defined and measured by the FBI Uniform Crime Report (UCR), are the benchmark for a department's effectiveness in solving crimes. MPD has maintained accurate and industry-standard-level reporting mechanisms for crime and clearance rates. In addition, the FBI has transitioned from its traditional UCR reporting to a more comprehensive model, the National Incident-Based Reporting System (NIBRS) and MPD has also made the transition. Many U.S. police departments have not made the transition for various reasons, and this is another positive example of the diligent work performed by MPD's Records Unit.

Overall, the MPD Records Unit is functioning at a positive level of professionalism and operational excellence that is not attained by departments of equal size. However, it should be noted that the number of tasks and operational tempo are quickly increasing, and the size of the Records Unit may need to be expanded in the coming years. CPSM recommends MPD consider hiring part-time records personnel to offset the increasing workload and increase the current number of full-time staff.

It is notable that in CPSM's review of the Records staff, the number of task items is steadily increasing, yet the staff has not allowed a backlog of entries or shown an inability to perform the volume of work. This is not the case in most agencies, as backlogs are growing and becoming a challenge for records units. MPD's Records staff has also been able to integrate Tyler Technologies with no interface issues reported with other internal systems.

Records Unit Recommendations:

- It is recommended that MPD begin to develop a multiyear plan to transition the sergeant and master officer positions to professional (civilian) staff to oversee the Records and the Property and Evidence Units. (Recommendation No. 30.)
- CPSM strongly supports the current approach by MPD to cross-train the Records staff to achieve the outcomes identified in this report. (Recommendation No. 31.)
- CPSM recommends MPD use its RMS and other systems to provide a monthly statistical report on the total tasks the Records staff perform. (Recommendation No. 32.)
- CPSM recommends the MPD consider an online reporting system to decrease the need for patrol officers to respond to "report only" calls for service. (Recommendation No. 33.)
- CPSM recommends MPD increase training and develop skill levels among the records technicians; MPD should establish an in-house training system to meet mandated training requirements for all new Records personnel by using a training matrix. (Recommendation No. 34.)
- It is recommended that Records supervisors use national organization membership to participate in webinars and learn new contemporary methods that may help solve current and future challenges. (Recommendation No. 35.)
- CPSM recommends MPD consider hiring part-time records personnel to offset the increasing workload and increase the current number of full-time staff. (Recommendation No. 36.)

SECTION 5. OPERATIONS

The most visible members of most police departments in America are officers assigned to uniformed patrol functions. Patrol is considered the "backbone" of American policing. Bureau of Justice Statistics indicates that nearly all police departments in the U.S. in the same size category as the Minot Police Department provide uniformed patrol. Patrol commands the largest share of resources committed by the department. It is critical for the allocation of patrol resources to be focused on having officers available to respond to calls for service and provide law enforcement services to the public.

Staffing decisions, particularly for patrol, must be based on actual workload. Once the actual workload is determined the amount of discretionary time is determined and then staffing decisions can be made consistent with the department's policing philosophy and the community's ability to fund it. The MPD's philosophy is to address essentially all requests for service from the community. This is typically done in a reactive style of policing based on the demands for police services. MPD does engage in some community policing initiatives such as Coffee with a Cop; Citizens Police Academy; and National Night Out. However, team members observed that patrol personnel do not generally see community policing efforts as part of their job duties. Most believe proactive policing involves making traffic stops or drug arrests. Effective community policing is an organizational philosophy and not a program. The balance among reaction to calls for service, community policing, and proactive patrol strategies is best accomplished when officers have ongoing training opportunities to broaden their understanding of modern policing best practices. We recommend that MPD establish a training matrix for patrol officers and sergeants that includes the benefits of patrol officers being proactively engaged with the community at all levels.

Understanding the actual workload (the time required to complete certain activities) requires review of the total reported events within the context of how the events originated. This includes events originating through directed patrol, administrative tasks, officer-initiated activities, and citizen-initiated activities. The charts and tables in this section outline this information.

Understanding the difference between the various types of police department events and the resulting staffing implications is critical to determining deployment needs. This portion of the study looks at the total deployed hours of the police department with a comparison to the current time spent to provide services.

The "Rule of 60" can be applied to evaluate patrol staffing. This rule has two parts. The first part states that 60 percent of the sworn officers in a department should be dedicated to the patrol function (patrol staffing) and the second part states that no more than 60 percent of their time should be committed to calls for service, which includes all activities that occupy an officer's time, including calls from the public, self-initiated work, and administrative tasks. This commitment of 60 percent of their time is referred to as the Patrol Saturation Index.

The Rule of 60 is not a hard-and-fast rule, but rather a starting point for discussion on patrol deployment. Resource allocation decisions must be made from a policy and/or managerial perspective through which costs and benefits of competing demands are considered. The Patrol Saturation Index indicates the percentage of time dedicated by police officers to public demands for service and administrative duties related to their jobs. Effective patrol deployment would exist at amounts where the saturation index was less than 60 percent.

The Rule of 60 for patrol deployment does not mean the remaining 40 percent of time is downtime or break time. It is a reflection of the extent that patrol officer time is saturated by calls for service. The time when police personnel are not responding to calls should be committed to management-directed operations. This is a more focused use of time and can include supervised allocation of patrol officer activities toward proactive enforcement, crime prevention, community policing, and citizen safety initiatives. It will also provide ready and available resources in the event of a large-scale emergency.

From an organizational standpoint, it is important to have uniformed patrol resources available to undertake activities such as proactive enforcement, community policing, and emergency response. Patrol is the most visible and available resource in policing, and the ability to harness this resource is critical for successful operations.

From an officer's standpoint, once a certain level of CFS activity is reached, the officer's focus shifts to a CFS-based reactionary mode. A reactionary mode shifts a patrol officer's mindset from one that looks for ways to deal with crime and quality-of-life conditions in the community to one that continually prepares for the next call. After saturation, officers cease proactive policing and engage in a reactionary style of policing. The outlook becomes "Why act proactively when my actions are only going to be interrupted by a call?" Any uncommitted time is spent waiting for the next call. MPD personnel advised CPSM team members during peak demand times they shift to a reactionary mode.

RULE OF 60 – PART 1

According to the MPD's personnel data, patrol is authorized 55 sworn officers (2 Lieutenants, 9 sergeants, and 44 Police Officers). These 55 of the approximately 84 sworn officers represent 65 percent of the sworn officers in the Minot Police Department. When CPSM team members were onsite, MPD had approximately seven vacancies in the patrol division.

This part of the "rule" is not hard-and-fast. Taken on its face, however, this part of the "rule" must be considered when examining the operational elements of the department when staffing recommendations are taken into consideration. The data presented by the department indicates that overall authorized staffing is just above the 60 percent recommendation. This does not imply that fewer people as a percentage should be assigned to the patrol function, it merely shows that the department is assigning an appropriate number of officers to the function.

The second part of the "Rule of 60" examines workload and discretionary time and suggests that no more than 60 percent of time should be committed to calls for service. In other words, CPSM suggests that no more than 60 percent of available patrol officer time be spent responding to the service demands of the community. The remaining 40 percent of the time is the "discretionary time" for officers to be available to address community problems and be available for serious emergencies.

It is CPSM's contention that patrol staffing is optimally deployed when the saturation index (SI) is in the 60 percent range. An SI greater than 60 percent indicates that the patrol manpower is largely reactive and overburdened with CFS and workload demands. An SI of somewhat less than 60 percent indicates that patrol manpower is optimally staffed. SI levels much lower than 60 percent, however, indicate patrol resources that are underutilized.

Departments must be cautious in interpreting the SI too narrowly. One should not conclude that SI can never exceed 60 percent at any time during the day, or that in any given hour no more than 60 percent of any officer's time be committed to CFS. The SI at 60 percent is intended to be a benchmark to evaluate overall service demands on patrol staffing. When SI levels exceed 60 percent for substantial periods of a given shift, or at specific times during the day, then decisions should be made to reallocate or realign personnel to reduce the SI to levels below 60 percent.

Resource allocation decisions must be made from a policy and/or managerial perspective through which costs and benefits of competing demands are considered. The patrol saturation index indicates the percentage of time dedicated by police officers to public demands for service and administrative duties related to their jobs. Effective patrol deployment would exist at amounts where the saturation index was less than 60.

The CPSM data analysis in the second part of this report provides a rich overview of CFS and staffing demands experienced by the Minot Police Department. The analysis here looks specifically at patrol deployment and how to maximize the personnel resources of the department to meet the demands of calls for service while also engaging in proactive policing to combat crime, disorder, and traffic issues in the community.

WORKLOAD ANALYSIS

The following section represents workload, staffing, and the "saturation" of patrol resources in the MPD during the two months (seasons) on which we focused our workload analysis. The figures represent the manpower and demand during weekdays and weekends during the period of January 4, 2023, to February 28, 2023 (winter) and July 7, 2023, to August 31, 2023 (Summer). Examination of these figures permits exploration of the second part of the Rule of 60.

Workload v. Deployment – Weekdays, Winter

Avg. Deployment	7.8 officers per hour
Avg. Workload:	2.9 officers per hour
Avg. % Deployed (SI):	37 percent
Peak SI:	61 percent
Peak SI Time:	7:45 p.m.

The figures above and the following figures on workload represent a great deal of data. The "Deployment and All Workload" figures show the relationship of all on-duty police officers that were factored into the workload analysis and what work is represented by those officers throughout the course of the day. For weekdays in winter, average deployment throughout the day was 7.8 officers. The average saturation index (SI) was 37 percent, and the peak SI was 61 percent at 7:45 p.m. These figures would suggest that MPD was optimally deployed on the weekdays during the winter months in 2023.

Now for the remainder of the remaining workload figures for the periods analyzed.

Avg. Deployment:	8.7 officers per hour
Avg. Workload:	3.8 officers per hour
Avg. % Deployed (SI):	43 percent
Peak SI:	63 percent
Peak SI Time:	9:30 p.m.

Observations:

Winter:

- Community-initiated work:
  - During the week, the workload reached a maximum of 41 percent of deployment between 6:45 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. and between 9:30 p.m. and 9:45 p.m.
  - On weekends, the workload reached a maximum of 49 percent of deployment between 7:15 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.
- All work:
  - During the week, the workload reached a maximum of 61 percent of deployment between 7:45 p.m. and 8:00 p.m.
  - On weekends, the workload reached a maximum of 68 percent of deployment between 7:15 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Summer:

- Community-initiated work:
  - During the week, the workload reached a maximum of 51 percent of deployment between 6:30 p.m. and 6:45 p.m.
  - On weekends, the workload reached a maximum of 47 percent of deployment between 2:45 p.m. and 3:00 p.m. and between 6:00 p.m. and 6:15 p.m.
- All work:
  - During the week, the workload reached a maximum of 64 percent of deployment between 6:00 p.m. and 6:15 p.m. and between 6:30 p.m. and 6:45 p.m.
  - On weekends, the workload reached a maximum of 63 percent of deployment between 9:30 p.m. and 9:45 p.m.

As indicated earlier, the figures and data represented above are from two 8-week periods during winter and the summer of 2023; the data is broken down by weekdays and weekends. In evaluating the workload against the available staffing in the MPD patrol division it "appears" the division is properly staffed.

We know from conducting assessments involving departments throughout the country that these workload numbers do not represent all work being done in the department. Police culture by its very nature does not encourage 100 percent accounting of an officer's time. Beat integrity is a cultural element in all departments and beat integrity encourages officers to be available to handle any service call or crime report in their area of responsibility. As a result, officers tend to remain "available" in the department's CAD system and not record all activity such as report writing and other administrative tasks.

It is important to point out that the data that CPSM used to create the above figures was based entirely on information from the computer-aided dispatch (CAD) records. The importance of officers accurately tracking their time cannot be understated. If Minot desires to move into the direction of being a data-driven department and to staff according to real workload, then the real workload must be measured.

Minot PD, like many departments, has its officers voice dispatch themselves whenever they are involved in any activity. This is done so that other officers hear it on the radio and are aware of where their colleague is working and what they are doing. It is deemed a basic safety principle for officers. However, along with that safety protocol, many departments have established protocols where officers can place themselves on a call within their mobile data computer (MDT) in the patrol car to alleviate unnecessary radio traffic. These are all best practice decisions for the agency.

Regardless of what MPD elects to do we encourage it to ensure that all officer activities are accurately captured in CAD. Additionally, not just enforcement work or citizen contact should be captured but administrative time should also be tracked. Examples of administrative time would be meal breaks and report writing when those reports cannot be tracked within the original call. MPD indicated to CPSM team members that all activities of officers are accurately captured in the CAD. Observations by team members during the site visit supported this. We compliment MPD for using best practices in tracking officer activities.

Note: Percentages are based on a total of 32,206 events.

TABLE 5-1: Events per Day, by Initiator

Initiator	No. of Events	Events per Day
Community-initiated	22,413	61.4
Police-initiated	9,197	25.2
Zero on scene	596	1.6
Total	32,206	88.2

Observations:

- 2 percent of the events had zero time on scene.
- 29 percent of all events were police-initiated.
- 70 percent of all events were community-initiated.
- There was an average of 88 events per day or 3.7 per hour.

The above data shows the percentage of activity occurring daily within MPD. As can be seen there is an average of 61.4 calls for service per day that are initiated by the community (calls into dispatch either through the business line or through 911) representing nearly 70 percent of all workload while officer-initiated activity (primarily traffic stops) represent 28 percent of all workload, or 25.2 calls per day. The zero on-scene category are simply CAD entries that amounted to so little time that they were largely excluded from the analysis.

In many cases with other agencies, we see officer-initiated and community-initiated ratios that are similar to the Minot data. It is common for officer-initiated activity to represent approximately 30 percent of the workload while community-initiated activity typically commands a much larger percentage of an officer's total workload.

The following table and figure further break down the daily events experienced by MPD. The emphasis on traffic-related stops and enforcement plus the directed patrols mentioned in the workload section above are detailed.

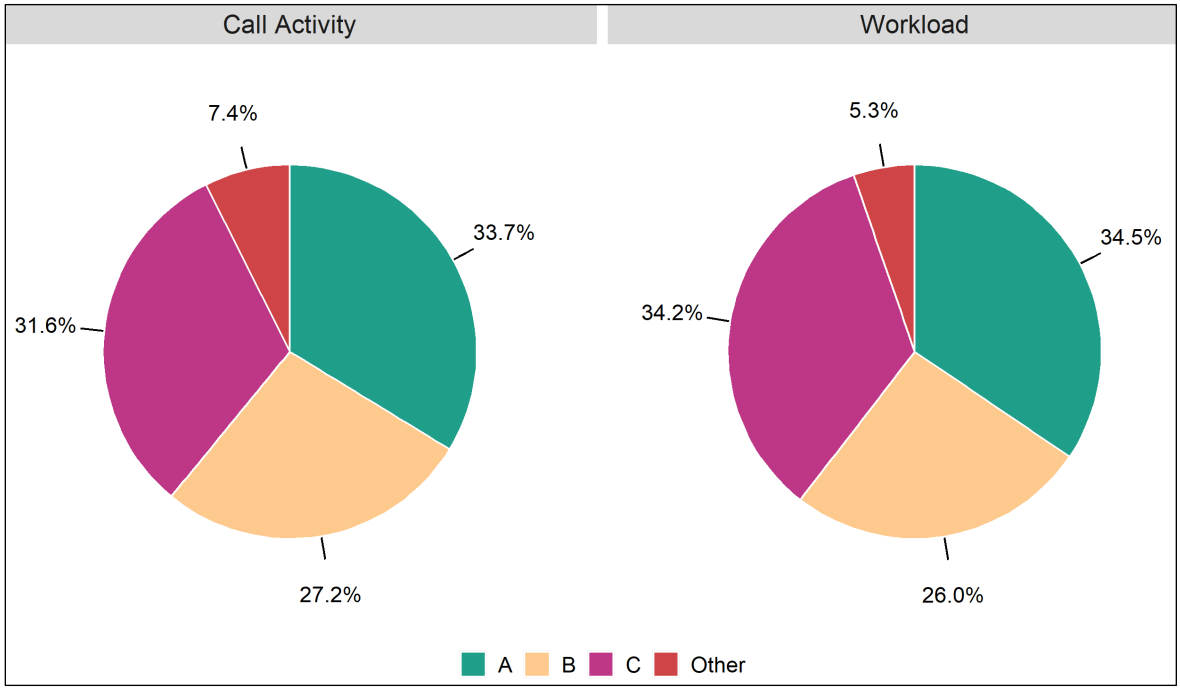
POLICE BEATS AND WORKLOAD DISTRIBUTION

The Minot Police Department divides the city into three beats. Beat A is the northern half of the city. Beats B and C divide the southern half of the community. The 'beats' are historical in nature; they are large by municipal policing standards. Call volume is comparable among the beats, with Beat A generating the most calls for service by a small margin compared to Beat C. Patrol command staff advised team members they do not typically utilize all three beats to deploy staff, but rather assign officers to either north (Beat A) or south (Beat B/C). This actually makes the beats exceptionally large when treated as just two for the entire community for deployment purposes. Additionally, it impacts the ability to garner detailed statistics for smaller quadrants of the community, such as specific neighborhoods. Analysis of crime and other statistics allow for improved strategic deployment of patrol resources to address specific problems.

Many law enforcement agencies divide a community into smaller beats or divide up larger areas of the city into reporting districts (RDs) to allow for data-driven decisions to address crime and other public safety issues. Having large beats for deployment as MPD does can increase response times due to officers gathering in one area of the larger geographic north or south deployment or tending to roam the entire larger area. Beat integrity refers to officers remaining in their assigned beat or geographic area. It is an integral part of effective patrol deployment and enhances response times.

Minot State University (MSU) is located in the city limits of Minot. MSU does not have its own police department and relies on the Minot Police Department for police services. MSU does have a security department comprised of 10 security officers. The security officers handle patrol of the campus. Criminal calls and investigations are referred to MPD.

FIGURE 5-11: Percentage Calls and Work Hours, by Beat



Note: The "other" category includes calls at headquarters, miscellaneous beats, and calls missing beats. About 94 percent of calls in the miscellaneous category were in beat "P2," which is the Ward County Sheriff's Office beat in the Minot area.

TABLE 5-3: Calls and Work Hours by Beat, per Day

Beat	Per Day
	Calls	Work Hours
A	28.3	23.6
B	22.8	17.8
C	26.5	23.4
HQ	4.0	2.2
Miscellaneous	1.7	0.9
Unknown	0.5	0.5
Total	83.9	68.5

Observations:

- Beat A had the most calls, which accounted for approximately 34 percent of total calls.
- Beat A and C had larger workloads than beat B, with each accounting for approximately 34 percent of the total workload.

We believe that MPD should restructure its beat boundaries and increase the number of beats to make them smaller and more manageable. We also suggest that within those beats, smaller areas be broken down into separate reporting districts. Considering the area that Minot encompasses and the call volume, Minot could easily be broken down into six to eight beats, with multiple reporting districts within those beats.

It is important to point out that a "beat" does not imply that a single officer must always be assigned that beat 24-7. A beat should be thought of as a geographic area that is manageable in size and that allows for patrol resources to be optimally deployed throughout a wider jurisdiction. Beat integrity becomes a cultural and policy expectation that officers remain in their geographic area unless priority service needs arise to have them leave that area. Ideally, beats would be designed to have reasonably similar workload and calls.

The existing three-beat configuration does not allow the department to strategically assign officers to specific areas where crime or public safety issues are prevalent. Smaller beats can also improve response time (see note below about the beats in the Response Times section). The practice of deploying officers using a two-beat, north and south, plan spreads existing on-duty officers throughout the city. This can also increase the likelihood of officers clustering in a small geographic area rather than be spread throughout the community. Officers could still be optimally deployed with existing staffing. When daily staffing exceeds the number of beats due to workload, the department could simply double-up busier beats or create rover units to provide assistance citywide. During times when staffing is not adequate to cover all beats, officers could take more than one beat per shift or have officers share beats with common borders.

Reporting districts (RD) serve an altogether different purpose. RDs should be relatively small and numerous. Breaking down areas into smaller RDs will enable better data analysis in the future. Smaller, defined areas make crime spikes easier to spot and help enable a faster solution to those problems. Smaller reporting districts would allow the department to track the impact of certain types of development and housing more carefully.

PATROL SCHEDULE

The department's main patrol force consists of patrol officers operating on 10-hour shifts starting at 7:30 a.m., 4:00 p.m., and 10:00 p.m. The police department's main patrol force deployed an average of 6.3 officers per hour during the 24-hour day in winter 2023 and an average of 7.0 officers per hour in summer 2023. When patrol sergeants are included, the department averaged 7.9 units per hour during the 24-hour day in winter 2023 and 8.6 units in summer 2023.

MPD advised team members it has a minimum staffing requirement of six units (officers) per shift. Patrol sergeants are often used to attain the minimum staffing of six. We were informed sergeants do not routinely take reports or dispatch as primary units on CFS, even when used to achieve the minimum staffing level for patrol.

The 10-hour shifts are very popular with patrol personnel. We do believe MPD's 10-hour shifts limits the number of officers available for shift coverage. A 10-hour schedule does typically require more resources than a traditional 8- or 12-hour schedule. The 10-hour shifts are popular with officers and the overlapping evening (mid) shift bolsters resources. We recommend MPD adjust the schedule of at least two officers per day on the evening (mid) shift from reporting for duty from 4:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m. to reporting for duty from 2:00 p.m. until midnight. This will increase the number of available officers during peak call volumes.

OUT-OF-SERVICE ACTIVITIES

Workload activity is divided into three distinct categories. Community-initiated work involves calls for service that officers are dispatched to handle. For instance, when someone calls 911 to report a crime and an officer is sent to investigate, then it will be classified as a community-initiated call. Self-initiated or self-directed work is also self-explanatory. An officer who makes a traffic stop and takes whatever appropriate action deemed necessary will have that call classified as self-initiated. About 38 percent of all other work recorded in a department CAD system gets classified as being administrative in nature or as this category implies, "out-of-service" activity.

The following table is a breakdown of all out-of-service activity which CPSM extracted from MPD's CAD data.

TABLE 5-4: Activities and Occupied Times by Description

Description	Occupied Time	Count
Out of Service	33.3	2,563
Repairs	5.1	4
Reports	24.6	44
Training	100.6	204
Administrative - Weighted Average/Total Activities	38.0	2,815
Personal - Lunch	28.1	2,663
Weighted Average/Total Calls	33.2	5,478

When looking at the overall activity level of MPD officers, the most common administrative description was "out of service." There are no indications that out-of-service activity is being misrepresented or misused. However, unless properly monitored by field supervisors to ensure accountability, the use of this time categorization can become problematic.

There are some areas of this data that were further explored:

- "Out of Service" was further explored to determine if the activities being undertaken in this description are better suited in one of the other administrative descriptions. MPD staff advised CPSM team members "out of service" is most often used for officers calling out "10-6" (busy) on the radio which is keyed in CAD as "out of service" They go "10-6" for some training tasks, court appearance, restroom breaks, and some administrative tasks.
- Lunch and short breaks are noted at the bottom of the table. Typically, department policy gives an allowable lunch break period (often 30 minutes) and policy also allows for a limited number of shorter breaks, such as two 15-minute breaks during an officer's shift. Patrol SOP 1011 (Meal Periods and Breaks) outlines what is allowable. This policy establishes that meal breaks are cleared through dispatch and officers are on call while on a break.
- The fact that report writing is present and is being used at some level is encouraging; it demonstrates that officers are to some extent recording this very important administrative activity. We would suggest that to the extent possible, report writing time be captured within the originating call to be able to measure the true workload of those call categories. This may actually be occurring due to the lower count under report writing.
- The other administrative activity of note was the longest average timed activity was described as "training." It is common to have training time lasting more than one hour.

The importance of accurately capturing the use of administrative time is important. There should be a management expectation that field supervisors are actively managing the shift to ensure officers are being judicious with their time and to the greatest extent possible in their assigned beats handing community concerns. This can only be done when supervision has an accurate picture of what every officer is doing.

WORKLOAD MITIGATION STRATEGIES

Whenever evaluating the workload within any patrol force there should always be the question of what workload could be mitigated or achieved more efficiently. Minot's existing workload is manageable with current staffing. However, there are peak times during which workload demands are high. There are opportunities for some alternative ways of handling service demand that could be used for efficiency and for dealing with peak demands. Additionally, the following strategies can help ensure that on-duty capacity can be in place to handle larger incidents or at least two to three labor-intensive (two or more officers) calls for service at the same time.

By the very nature of what police officers do and the potential danger and liability associated with their actions and responsibilities, the sworn officers within any agency will be the among the most expensive labor a city will invest in. There comes a point in every organization where the use of technology and less expensive labor becomes a commonsense necessity.

Response to Traffic Collisions

Investigating traffic collisions represents a significant workload for any police department. In MPD's case it accounts for 4.4 calls per day or 1,596 calls annually (calls labeled "Accident" and "Accident–Criminal"). In most cases, collisions require multiple units and can be time-consuming at nearly 45 minutes of labor per incident in these cases.

Serious crashes involving injuries or criminal conduct (DUI, etc.) certainly require a police response. However, most crashes are minor in nature and do not involve injuries or criminal prosecution. In many of those cases, departments can either seek an alternate response or elect not to respond at all since these incidents are often deemed to be civil in nature. Non-injury crashes can be handled by the involved parties exchanging information and managing the process through their auto insurance companies.

This is a difficult decision for many organizations because it is deemed a reduction in customer service and there will likely be community push back. But if the department modifies its response now it may pay dividends in the future as this workload increases. We often recommend that departments modify their response to these types of service demands. Please see note below for use of civilian, non-sworn personnel as a method to handle information exchange on minor traffic collisions.

Use of Civilian Employees

Use of civilian, non-sworn employees in patrol work is found in departments across the nation and is deemed a best practice for departments seeking to deliver service in the most efficient manner. When deployed effectively these resources can be a force multiplier by handling nonhazardous, time-consuming patrol duties, thereby freeing up sworn officers to handle more critical functions as well as direct their efforts to community problem solving. Another benefit of utilizing civilians in the patrol workforce is the lower training threshold in comparison to sworn officers. The level of training for civilian employees is much less than that of a sworn police officer. They do not need to attend an academy; however, we encourage that all employees receive proper training for the jobs they are tasked with performing. Extensive training should be provided to civilian employees working in the patrol function. Civilian employees can typically be hired and trained internally at a much faster rate that a regular police officer. This can be a benefit when a department is struggling to fill existing vacancies.

We do believe the addition of civilian employees into the patrol workforce would be beneficial for MPD. The re-classification of the Parking Control Officer (PCO) to a Community Service Officer (CSO) and one additional FTE civilian CSO is recommended (see note below about the part-time Fleet Manager position). The CSOs can be cross-trained for parking enforcement, traffic control, vehicle impounds, driver information exchange on non-reportable, minor vehicle accidents, handling report only lower level criminal offenses that are not in progress, and a variety of other administrative tasks currently handled by patrol officers. The CSO positions can also assist the Community Outreach sergeant with community events. The CSOs should work staggered schedules to make their impact effective during the early evening hours in addition to daytime hours when patrol-related administrative tasks are the highest. Due to the relatively low volume of animal control calls per day (1.7), the ACOs could be cross-trained as CSOs.

Alternative Reporting Options

Responding to service calls for very basic police reports is not an efficient use of sworn officers' time. Aside from using civilian employees for basic service calls, many agencies have turned to technology to offset the workload. There are off-the-shelf software solutions that provide the ability for citizens to create their own police reports through online portals or mobile applications. Many of these platforms integrate into a department CAD / RMS system for streamlined workflow. Additionally, some CAD / RMS vendors offer these solutions as well when paired to their existing systems.

MPD allows for some reports to be taken over the phone; however, this is done by a patrol officer on the street. Many of these phone reports could be handled by a civilian CSO employee mentioned above or through an online portal when for crimes or issues not in progress. We recommend MPD pursue an online reporting option through its current RMS vendor or another software vendor that specializes in online reporting. Many vendors offer kiosk-type solutions for police station lobbies in addition to reporting options on the department's website. Typically, lower-level, not in progress, property crimes and some issues needing a police case number (e.g., lost property) are the only police reports permitted to be done online.

False Alarm Mitigation

Mitigating false alarm calls is another area where agencies could be more efficient with a streamlined response and internal control mechanisms to mitigate unnecessary calls. We made inquiries to the MPD process and found it is are adhering to best practices. Minot has an industry best practice municipal code that requires all alarms in the city to be registered. The city has a model false alarm ordinance in place requiring a permit for alarm systems, and a mechanism to levy a fine for a certain number of false alarm responses by MPD.

During the evaluation period of this report MPD responded to 807 alarms, about 2.2 events per day. A majority were undoubtedly false. Although that number does not seem high it is important to point out the number will increase over time and for every alarm call there is typically a two-officer response for safety reasons. Officers responding to a call that is likely false means they are unavailable to respond to or manage a more serious community concern.

Patrol Recommendations:

- CPSM recommends that MPD establish a training matrix for patrol officers and sergeants that includes the benefits of patrol officers being proactively engaged with the community and other modern policing strategies. (Recommendation No. 37.)
- CPSM recommends that Minot PD divide up its geographic beat structure into a greater number of beats smaller in size than its existing beats. (Recommendation No. 38.)
- We also recommend the department establish smaller reporting districts for the purpose of future crime analysis work. (Recommendation No. 39.)
- We recommend MPD adjust the schedule for some officers on the evening (mid) shift from reporting for duty from 4:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m. to reporting for duty from 2:00 p.m. until midnight in order to increase the number of available officers during peak call volume times. (Recommendation No. 40.)
- CPSM recommends that MPD explore the expansion of the use of civilian, non-sworn employees to assist the patrol division. This includes the re-classifications of the Parking Control Officer (PCO) to a Community Service Officer (CSO) and adding one FTE civilian CSO (see note below about the part-time Fleet Manager position). (Recommendation No. 41.)
- We recommend MPD pursue an online reporting option. (Recommendation No. 42.)

RESPONSE TIMES

The Minot Police Department is served by Minot Central Dispatch, which is the public safety answering point (PSAP) and dispatch center for all public safety agencies in Ward County.

We analyzed the response times to various types of calls, separating the duration into dispatch processing and travel time, to determine whether response times varied by call type. Response time is measured as the difference between when a call is received and when the first unit arrives on scene. This is further divided into dispatch processing and travel time. Dispatch processing is the time between when a call is received and when the first unit is dispatched. Travel time is the remaining time until the first unit arrives on scene.

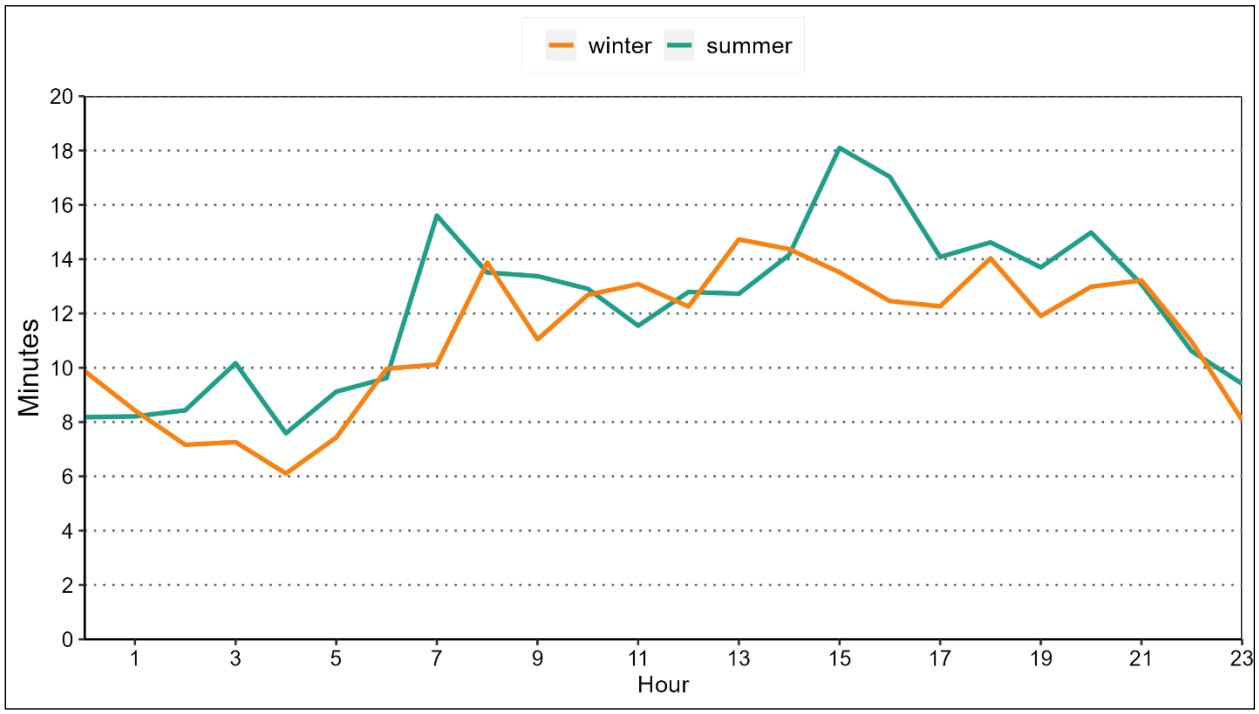
We begin the discussion with statistics that include all calls combined. We started with 3,962 calls in winter and 5,745 calls in summer. We limited our analysis to community-initiated calls, which amounted to 2,788 calls in winter and 4,045 calls in summer. In addition, we removed the calls lacking a recorded arriving unit, a few calls located at headquarters, as well as calls not in Minot PD beats. We were left with 2,182 calls in winter and 2,977 calls in summer for our analysis. For the entire year, we began with 30,615 calls and limited our analysis to 22,179 community-initiated calls. With similar exclusions, we were left with 17,005 calls.

Our initial analysis does not distinguish calls based on priority; instead, it examines the difference in response to all calls by time of day and compares summer and winter periods. We then present a brief analysis of response time for high-priority calls alone.

All Calls

This section looks at all calls without considering their priorities. In addition to examining the differences in response times by both time of day and season (winter vs. summer), we show differences in response times by category.

FIGURE 5-13: Average Response Time and Dispatch Processing, by Hour of Day, Winter and Summer, 2023



The above figure shows the consistency in department response times at different times of the year (winter and summer). Many agencies we analyze show lower response time during the early morning hours with times steadily increasing as it gets later in the day and calls get heavier. This pattern shows the MPD response times also vary significantly by the hour of the day. In the winter, the longest response times were between 1:00 p.m. and 2:00 p.m. with an average of 14.7 minutes. The shortest response times in the winter were between 4:00 a.m. and 5:00 a.m., with an average of 6.1 minutes. The longest response times in the summer were 18.1 minutes between 3:00 p.m. and 4:00 p.m., with the shortest response times being 7.6 minutes again between 4:00 a.m. and 5:00 a.m. The longest and shortest response times of the day in the winter and summer correlate to the call volumes during those same times.

The following table shows response times by season to the various types of calls received.

Note: The total average is weighted according to the number of calls per category.

MPD's fastest overall response time is associated with alarm calls. The longest response times for both winter and summer were to general noncriminal calls.

Next we will examine the response to calls based on priority. Police departments will divide call types by priority as a means to ensure more pressing calls receive a faster response than more routine calls. MPD divides calls into four priority levels; "high" for the highest-priority calls, "medium" for the next priority, "low" for the lowest-priority calls, and "follow-up" for calls not requiring a quick response. Also, we studied injury traffic accident responses. One reason we look at injury collision calls is because agencies typically consider that call some level of an emergency response and they will be among the faster response times in these categories.

Note the 90th percentile category simply shows the response time 90 percent of the time versus the average noted in the first columns.

TABLE 5-6: Average and 90th Percentile Response Times, by Priority

Priority	Minutes			Calls	90th Percentile Response Time, Minutes
	Dispatch	Travel	Response
High	2.8	4.6	7.4	4,418	12.4
Medium	7.6	6.1	13.8	6,169	31.2
Low	8.9	6.2	15.1	3,496	34.0
Follow-up	7.9	6.2	14.1	2,922	32.4
Total	6.7	5.7	12.4	17,005	27.1
Injury Accident	1.8	3.2	5.0	121	7.6

Note: The total average is weighted according to the number of calls within each priority level.

The dispatch time noted is the total time from the moment a 911 call is received, entered into the CAD system, and sent to a patrol unit for a response. The travel time is self-explanatory; it begins the moment a call is received by the officer and continues through the time it takes to drive to the location of the call.

Ideally, departments strive to have a response time of five minutes or less to critical, in-progress calls that may pose a threat to life. In the case of MPD, the highest category of calls is "High" and the average response time to those calls is well over the five-minute target.

Agencies often have multiple call types included in the highest priority responses and which may not be as serious as many true emergencies are; therefore, the totals in this call category can be misleading. However, injury collisions are serious and almost always garner a fast response. MPD's response in this area is right at the industry standard goal of five minutes.

The highest priority calls had an average response time of 7.4 minutes, which was lower than the overall average of 12.4 minutes for all calls. For high-priority calls, the longest response time occurred between 3:00 p.m. and 4:00 p.m., with an average of 9.6 minutes. The shortest response times for high-priority calls were between 1:00 a.m. and 2:00 a.m. and 5:00 a.m. and 7:00 a.m. with an average of 5.7 minutes.

We believe one of the reasons MPD does not meet a standard of close to five minutes is primarily due to the current officer deployment strategies into two large beats (A and B/C). Dividing the city into more beats that are geographically smaller and assigning an officer to each should reduce response times by having officers closer to calls occurring in their assigned smaller area of responsibility.

SPECIAL WEAPONS AND TACTICS (SWAT)

The Minot Police Department has a tactical team operated as a regional Special Weapons and Tactics (SWAT) team. The team is made up of officers from MPD, deputies from the Ward County Sheriff's Office, and tactical medics from the Minot Fire Department. The team is comprised of 15 tactical operators, 4 snipers, 7 tactical medics, and a physician serving as a tactical doctor. The team is under the command of a patrol sergeant who reports to the Operations Division Captain.

Due to MPD being one of the larger law enforcement agencies in North Dakota and the largest agency in the region, it provides SWAT resources for a large section of northwestern North Dakota. North Dakota has just six SWAT teams in the state. If MPD needs additional tactical resources, one or more of the other five tactical teams would respond in a mutual aid capacity. MPD receives grant funding from the State of North Dakota to support its regional response as a tactical team.

CPSM team members were very impressed with the quality of equipment and resources the MPD SWAT has. It is equipped at a level that matches many larger metropolitan police departments. All of the equipment for SWAT team members including their vests, helmets, and rifles are kept in the SWAT storage room or on the SWAT bus. This is a great strategy for a full team deployment outside of Minot. However, in a critical incident, a patrol officer who is also a SWAT team member does not have any tactical equipment with them while on duty. If SWAT resources or less-lethal munitions (bean bag shotgun, 40mm rounds, Pepperball) are needed, a SWAT officer would need to return to the police station and enter a code in at least three door or lockers to access the equipment.

MPD should consider purchasing "go bags" for SWAT team members assigned to patrol. This would allow them to carry their helmet, vest, and other personal tactical equipment with them while on duty to provide an immediate tactical resource in an emergency. Additionally, we recommend SWAT officers be permitted to carry their department-issued rifle while on-duty for patrol rather than relying on a shared rifle assigned to each patrol vehicle. As mentioned in the Fleet section of this report, the shared rifles have limitations. Trained tactical officers properly equipped on police patrol can contain an emergency situation and provide responding SWAT command with important on-scene intelligence while awaiting a full SWAT team deployment.

CPSM was advised that SWAT maintains all less-lethal force options. Less-lethal force options often include, but are not limited to, bean bag shotguns, 40mm launcher, and Pepperball launchers. Less-lethal force options can be an effective response to persons armed with weapons other than firearms. For MPD to deploy less-lethal in an emergency, an officer trained in less-lethal would need to go to the police station and obtain the less-lethal tools from the SWAT vehicle. We recommend MPD train sergeants in the use of less-lethal munitions and equip the supervisor vehicles with less-lethal options. This will allow for a faster response to a critical incident where a less-lethal option may prevent the need to utilize deadly force.

The current SWAT team policy (403) is a model tactical team policy and covers the basic elements of tactical team operations, selection, and training. While MPD SWAT is training an average of 12 hours per month, this does not meet the National Tactical Officers Association (NTOA) standards for a SWAT team. Because of the highly technical and complex nature of SWAT team operations, the training required is extensive. The danger, stress, and liability associated with SWAT or SRT teams also demand rigorous training standards. According to the NTOA, teams should train at least 16 hours per month. We recommend MPD increases its tactical team training by 4 hours a month for a total of 16 hours per month to meet NTOA standards.

In 2020, the SWAT team was utilized 4 times and two times in 2021 and 2022. There has been one callout of the team in 2023. We were advised MPD has reduced the use of SWAT for narcotics search warrants, which is a national trend and best practice. This explains the reduction in the number of callouts. Many law enforcement agencies are moving away from dynamic entries for narcotics search warrants due to the high risk of this type of use of SWAT.

TABLE 5-7: SWAT Team Callouts / Use

Callouts	4	2	0	1

MPD does have a Crisis Negotiation Team (CNT) made up of eight trained negotiators. This is a regional team with members also from the Ward County Sheriff's Office. All of the negotiators have at least level two training in crisis negotiations, and some have achieved level three training. CNT deploys with the SWAT team on callouts. They also train with the SWAT team.

MPD does have a formal after-action review (AAR) process for critical or major incidents. The AAR process allows for a major incident or event to be debriefed where lessons learned can be implemented. This fosters discussion that improves response to future events and addresses safety concerns and other lessons learned. We applaud MPD for utilizing a formal AAR process.

Tactical Team (SWAT) Recommendations:

- CPSM recommends Minot increases its SWAT team training to 16 hours per month in compliance with NTOA. (Recommendation No. 43.)
- MPD should consider equipping patrol officers who are SWAT team members with SWAT resources in order to have trained tactical officers available to immediately respond to a critical incident. Additionally, we recommend allowing SWAT officers to check out their assigned department-issued SWAT rifle daily to be secured in their assigned patrol vehicle rather than the shared patrol rifle. (recommendation No. 44.)
- We recommend MPD train sergeants in the use of less-lethal munitions and equip the supervisor vehicles with less-lethal force options. (Recommendation No. 45.)

K-9 OPERATIONS AND BOMB TEAM

MPD has utilized police service dogs for more than two decades. It currently has three dogs assigned to patrol with their trained police officer handler. The police dog and their handler comprise a K-9 team. One dog is trained in explosive detection as a "bomb dog" and tracking. The other two dogs are trained in narcotics detection and tracking. All dogs are trained for suspect apprehension and handler protection. MPD utilizes recognized K-9 trainers to acquire their police dogs.

The K-9 Unit policy (309) is a model K-9 operations policy that covers training, when the use of a police dog is authorized, and handler responsibilities. The K-9 Unit trains together 16 hours a month. They often train with other K-9 teams in the region. There have been no bites by the police dogs since 2016. MPD does an excellent job of recordkeeping of K-9 deployments and training. The K-9 teams were utilized 233 times in 2023, with a nearly equal distribution of tracking uses and narcotics detection. K-9 teams are assigned a marked, take-home police vehicle. The One K-9 team is currently assigned to each of the three patrol shifts. We recommend at least one narcotic detections K-9 team be assigned to the Focused Enforcement Unit.

MPD receives federal funds to maintain a Bomb Team. MPD's explosive detection K-9 team is assigned to the Bomb Team. The bomb team is made up of MPD officers, a Ward County Sheriff's deputy, and a member of the Minot Fire Department. The team averages 10 to 15 deployments a year across a large response region of the state. Bomb sweeps by the K-9 team are a majority of the deployments.

K-9 Operations and Bomb Team Recommendation:

- CPSM recommends MPD assign one of the K-9 teams to the Focused Enforcement Unit. (Recommendation No. 46.)

FOCUSED ENFORCEMENT UNIT

MPD recently created a street crimes-style team to proactively address crime trends. It refers to the team as the "Focused Enforcement Unit." Special units such as this can be effective to augment patrol, as a force multiplier, and to address specific crime trends. However, these units are only effective when their activities are led by effective intelligence. Deployment should be based on analysis of crime data and trends. The unit needs to be given specific goals and a detailed mission for maximum effectiveness.

The Focused Enforcement Unit is currently staffed with one police sergeant. Other officers are assigned to the unit when staffing permits. For the unit to be most effective, it needs to have dedicated personnel. Additionally, an MPD crime analyst should play a role in providing the crime data and hot-spot locations for the unit to address. As noted above in the K-9 section, we recommend one K-9 team (handler and dog) trained in narcotics detection be assigned full-time to the Focused Enforcement Unit. An additional police officer should be assigned full-time to the unit. Additional resources can be added to the team for mission-specific purposes on a temporary basis.

We recommend MPD develop a policy for the Focused Enforcement Unit outlining the mission of the unit, specific goals, and procedures for deployment and use. This policy should clearly specify that intelligence-led policing initiatives will be used to make the Focused Enforcement Unit effective.

Focused Enforcement Unit Recommendations:

- CPSM recommends MPD assign one of the K-9 teams to the Focused Enforcement Unit. (Recommendation No. 47.)
- CPSM recommends at least one police officer be assigned full-time to the Focused Enforcement Unit. (Recommendation No. 48.)
- We recommend MPD develop a policy for the Focused Enforcement Unit outlining the mission of the unit, specific goals, and procedures for deployment and use. This policy should clearly specify intelligence-led policing initiatives that will be used to make the Focused Enforcement Unit effective. (Recommendation No. 49.)

POLICE PATROL FLEET

Minot PD has approximately 25 marked police vehicles in its fleet. The fleet is predominately Ford Explorer SUVs. Other than K-9 team members, vehicles are not assigned to specific officers, groups of officers, or shifts. Marked police vehicles are checked out daily by officers at the beginning of their tour of duty. Since all marked vehicles are in the fleet pool for patrol, an officer may have a different vehicle assigned to them each workday. The marked police fleet appears to be well-equipped with modern police equipment.

"Hot seating" cars (that is, 24-hour continuous use) in a fleet pool structure such as MPD uses causes cars to not be as well cared for, equipment in the car to not be as well maintained, and officers to not take a sense of ownership in something they are not assigned to for a longer term. Additionally, the cars have little down time between shifts, making their lifespan shorter. We recommend MPD permanently assign no more than two officers to each marked police vehicle. This may require the purchase of some additional marked police vehicles in order to maintain several pool cars that can be utilized when an officer's assigned car is down or in for scheduled maintenance. Assigned vehicles will be better cared for, last longer, create a sense of ownership by officer in the vehicle assigned to them, and add a level of accountability for the condition of the vehicle and the equipment assigned to it.

A patrol rifle is assigned to each marked patrol unit. The rifle is secured in a locked mount between the front seats and the in-car camera system is activated anytime the rifle is removed from the secure mounting system. The patrol rifles are equipped with rail mounted electronic optics. Team members were advised that the patrol rifles are inspected monthly and seldom are they fired at the range or the optics zeroed in. At least one of the patrol rifles mounted in a marked police vehicle was observed to be covered in a layer of dust. Monthly inspection of this important piece of equipment is not a best practice.

We recommend officers check-out a patrol rifle daily and it be inspected at the beginning and end of each shift. The rifles should be zeroed in on the range regularly. If the above recommendation of assigning no more than two officers to each marked patrol vehicle is implemented, then the rifle could be assigned to that specific vehicle and still be inspected daily by each of the assigned officers when they begin their tour of duty. These same assigned officers could also be responsible for zeroing in the rifle assigned to their car and for making sure the rifle is always in a state of readiness.

MPD maintains police patrol bicycles for use during warmer weather months. Bike Patrol is utilized for special events or specific missions seasonally. Officers are permitted to take a police bike with them on patrol utilizing a bicycle rack on the back of their patrol vehicle. This gives them the flexibility to park their police vehicle and switch to bike patrol in a specific area of the community.

A part-time fleet manager is employed by MPD to coordinate fleet related activity. This includes scheduling or regular maintenance on police vehicles and arranging for the vehicles to be dropped off at a repair facility.

Police Patrol Fleet Recommendations:

- CPSM recommends MPD assign no more than two officers to each marked police vehicle and purchase additional marked police vehicles if needed to allow for this. (Recommendation No. 50.)
- We recommend officers check-out a patrol rifle daily and it be inspected at the beginning and end of each shift. The rifles should be zeroed in on the range regularly. (Recommendation No. 51.)

ANIMAL CONTROL OFFICERS AND PARKING CONTROL OFFICER

Animal control services for the City of Minot are handled by two Animal Control Officers (ACO) who work in the Minot Police Department under the Operations Division captain. Animal control handled 632 animal-related calls in the year studied, or 1.7 calls per day. Minot does not have its own animal shelter but rather contracts with the Minot Veterinary Clinic. The Minot Veterinary Clinic handles animal sheltering and impounds of dogs and cats, pet adoptions, and euthanasia. When team members were onsite, one ACO position was vacant.

MPD has one Parking Control Officer (PCO) position. The PCO handles the enforcement of parking time limits in the downtown area and other parking complaints in Minot. The PCO and ACOs also assist patrol officers with vehicle impounds, traffic control, and other administrative tasks not requiring a sworn police officer response. The use of the PCO and ACO positions to assist patrol is a force multiplier and best practice.

As previously mentioned in the section on patrol, we do believe the addition of civilian employees into the patrol workforce would be beneficial for MPD. The reclassification of the Parking Control Officer (PCO) to Community Service Officer (CSO) would be a step in that direction. The CSOs can be cross-trained for parking enforcement, traffic control, vehicle impounds, driver information exchange on non-reportable, minor vehicle accidents, handling report-only, low-level criminal offenses that are not in progress, assisting ACOs, and a variety of other administrative tasks currently handled by patrol officers. The CSO positions can also assist the Community Outreach sergeant with community events. One additional civilian CSO is recommended in FY 2025. This could be accomplished by converting the part-time fleet manager position to a full-time CSO. Additionally, MPD should consider converting the ACOs to CSOs and cross-training them to assist in CSO duties during peak times.

Animal Control and Parking Control Recommendations:

- CPSM recommends MPD reclassify the Parking Control Officer position to Community Service Officer (CSO). The CSOs can be cross-trained for animal control, parking enforcement, traffic control, vehicle impounds, driver information exchange on non-reportable, minor vehicle accidents, handling report-only, lower-level criminal offenses that are not in progress, and a variety of other administrative tasks currently handled by patrol officers. The CSO positions can also assist the Community Outreach sergeant with community events. (Recommendation No. 52.)
- One additional CSO position is recommended in FY 25 by converting the fleet manager position from part-time to full-time and reclassifying it as a CSO. (Recommendation No. 53.)
- We recommend cross-training the Animal Control Officers (ACO) as Community Services Officers (CSOs) in addition to their ACO duties for use during peak times on patrol and as a force multiplier. (Recommendation No. 54.)

SECTION 6. INVESTIGATIONS

This segment of the report reviews the operations of the Minot Police Department Criminal Investigations Division (CID) and the various units as well as the functions related to investigation efforts. The Criminal Investigations Division includes the following workgroups:

- Detective Unit.
- Intel Analyst.
- Bomb Unit (Collateral Assignment).
- Crime Scene Response Unit (Collateral Assignment).
- Regional Task Force Teams.

Other collateral work units that include CID investigators include two investigators assigned to the Crisis Negotiation Team and four with the department's Peer Support Team. MPD investigators can also participate in the CSRU, SWAT, and the Bomb Unit.

In many fundamental respects, the investigation process has changed significantly over the past decade because of technological advances, the emergence of cybercrimes, drug epidemics such as the fentanyl crisis, and the increasing gun violence plaguing American communities. Equally, the complexity and length of police investigations have an impact on resources. Investigations are compounded by the public expectations for investigative accountability, the application of software systems, and the prolonged time needed to upload and review various types of video recordings. Law enforcement agencies must also conduct fair and equitable investigations leading to the arrest and subsequent conviction of criminal offenders while increasing public trust in the process.

The Criminal Investigations Division (CID) is led by a captain. The CID lieutenant reports to the captain and utilizes two police sergeants to supervise CID operations. CID utilizes the title of police investigator to define the role of an officer assigned to CID. While the position is not a promotion or civil service position, all candidates are interviewed and approved by the Chief of Police for the position of Investigator.

In this review, CPSM is committed to offering best practice recommendations through examinations of overall detective performance, operations, advanced management concepts, and collaboration with nonprofits and the community at large. This review will assess the following areas of MPD's Criminal Investigations Division to include the various investigative workgroups and the Bomb Unit:

- Crime reduction strategies and various statistics.
- Staffing levels, training plans, and administrative processes.
- Case assignment, case intake, and closure rates.
- Policy analysis and structure of the bureau.
- Detective functions.

STAFFING

CID is appropriated 17 full-time personnel including two professional (civilian) specialists and 15 sworn police officers, led by a police captain, managed by a police lieutenant, and supervised by two sergeants. The staffing shortage during the CPSM assessment includes two investigators and two TFOs. The shortage of two personnel is related to retention and recruitment challenges facing most American law enforcement organizations. The challenge of replacing vacant investigator positions becomes more difficult as senior personnel cannot transfer until new officers are hired, attend an academy, and complete the Field Training Officer Program.

TABLE 6-1: CID Staffing

2023 Position	Budgeted	Actual	Vacant

The Minot Police Department participates in the two regional task forces, namely the Ward County Narcotics Taskforce with two of four officers currently deployed with the unit, and one collateral officer with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms (ATF). The MPD also assigns four investigators to the regional Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force (ICAC) on a collateral (as needed) basis.

To fill vacant CID positions, the department announces investigative openings to all members. MPD officers can submit emails of intent and interviews are conducted with all candidates before CID positions are chosen. The CID investigator candidates are based on achieving senior/master officer levels through performance and years of service merits. MPD has seven available slots with five slots currently filled with limitations due to vacancies. All officers chosen for investigator positions are not provided compensation for the assignment; however, take-home vehicles are provided for all investigators. CPSM staff reviewed the structure and operating procedures and concluded the protocols set in place are antiquated in areas such as the lack of civilian opportunities and the generalization of detective workgroups. CPSM recommends the MPD expand its current investigator (600) policy to include specific assignments within CID and define the position of senior/master officer positions.

Per operational protocol, investigators are chosen for CID positions with no written procedures for a rotational schedule; however, in 2022 the MPD Chief of Police authorized all sworn officers to rotate every five years to improve proficiency and skills while preventing stagnancy. The CID investigators rotate every five years; however, two of the seven positions are classified as "long-term" assignments within CID. CPSM recommends MPD expand Policy 600 and provide a written matrix of detective rotation assignments and the process of how investigators are selected. An expanded investigative policy to include rotation schedules and a selection process is recommended by the International Association of Police Chiefs (IACP) and the Police Executive Research Forum (PERF).

As a more contemporary approach to detective assignments, the IACP recommends a detective rotational schedule to expand the breadth of knowledge throughout an organization. This approach moves the experience throughout an organization and maintains a positive work culture as others can be assigned to detective positions. CPSM recommends CID consider a detective rotation schedule of three to five years, with the ability to extend individual rotations based on investigative needs. A defined MPD policy defining the rotation process and assignment will reduce misperception of how the rotation process functions.

Based on the number of sworn personnel and the various working groups within the division, CPSM evaluated the span of control, which is defined as the number of personnel a supervisor is responsible for directing, guiding, and communicating with daily. CPSM found the current supervisor-to-officer ratio to be sufficient and to meet national expectations and best practices. Assigning the appropriate number of supervisors for personnel benefits the quality of work while reducing the risk of liability exposure for the Criminal Investigations Division. This recommendation is based on best practices by the Internal Association of the Chiefs of Police as well as the U.S. Department of Justice, Office of Justice Programs. Research literature recommends one supervisor for every six police officers and many versions and research models are recommending up to eight police officers for one police supervisor to manage. The actual number depends on several factors that each organization must consider.

For this assessment, CPSM recommends MPD redefine the responsibility of each Investigative sergeant to better equip the unit with well-trained, experienced supervisors. As an example, MPD would benefit from assigning one sergeant to one group of investigators and another sergeant to a second workgroup. The current detective structure includes various responsibilities from reviewing non-fatal overdoses to conducting investigations regarding gangs, organized crime, and narcotic dealers with the likelihood of seizing narcotics and money. A direct narcotics supervisor would minimize the liability exposures related to narcotics investigations and tactical operations.

CID Work Schedule

The 2023 work schedule for the detective staff is designed in the following format: Administrative Schedule, Monday through Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Based on a review of the detective work schedule and responsibilities, CPSM acknowledged the need for various functional shifts as well as the collateral assignments of selected detective personnel.

Policy

The Criminal Investigations Division is guided by policy 600 (Investigation and Prosecution) and procedure that is managed through the Lexipol service.

It is a law enforcement officer's commitment to the community they serve to uphold their responsibility to incorporate the most contemporary policies regarding traditional and emerging issues. Policies that serve as operational guidelines are critical to the effective and efficient management of any organization. Given the mission of law enforcement and ever-changing laws that regulate the performance of such, a comprehensive and current policy manual is vital. Few law enforcement agencies, including the Minot Police Department, have resources available to maintain a comprehensive, up-to-date policy manual.

The most useful policies are developed with clear and firm guidance for preferred operational outcomes. Yet, no model policy meets all the needs of any police agency nor fits every incident imaginable. Instead, the development and assessment of policies is an ongoing process that requires adherence to U.S. Supreme Court rulings, federal/state statutes, local ordinances, regulations, and judicial and administrative decisions. Policies must also include guidelines and procedures for an array of operational challenges while considering an understanding of political and community perspectives and customs, as well as aligning with provisions of collective bargaining agreements. Policy development must also include consultation from an agency's legal advisors before implementation. Therefore, agencies must decide how to maintain up-to-date policies that incorporate national standards and model policies with general order manuals.

Through MPD's annual subscription with Lexipol, the department has access to a full library of customized, state-specific law enforcement policies that are automatically updated in response to new state and federal laws to include court decisions. Lexipol also offers online training bulletins, videos, and other platforms to meet police training mandates. A police department is offered various levels of services based on pricing and annual contracting agreements that MPD should continue with. MPD's policy development and analysis are provided by Lexipol and approved by the Chief of Police and the command staff along with legal consultation from the city's legal advisors. This approach is a best practice for police organizations.

The Minot Police Department incorporates a national best standard in its use of the Lexipol Enforcement Policies and Procedures and has contracted to use Lexipol's Knowledge Management System (KMS). KMS provides electronic policy acknowledgment by all MPD employees, tracking automatic archiving of prior policies, and training for all department personnel. MPD has yet to use the full services of Lexipol in its policy development and training bulletins, which would reduce the department's workload while ensuring all members of the department receive training bulletins as well as acknowledge policy changes.

Eight MPD policies were reviewed as part of our assessment of the CID and which have a direct nexus to the efforts of training, documenting, and reviewing cases within the department. CID policies that were reviewed are:

- 600 - Investigation and Prosecution.
- 603 - Asset Forfeiture.
- 602 - Informant Management.
- 603 - Eyewitness Identification.
- 604 - Brady Information.
- 605 - Sexual Assault Investigations.
- 606 - Warrant Service.
- 607 - Operations and Deconfliction.
- 609 – Crime Scene Response Unit.

The policies and written procedures reviewed by CPSM meet basic industry standards; however, MPD would benefit from seeking resources from IACP and expanding its current policies to include detective responsibilities and accountabilities in tracking supplemental reports and the timeline for submitting investigative updates regarding active cases. Case reviews and tracking are undertaken by MPD but are not included in the policies CPSM reviewed.

Policy 600 guides detectives in evaluating criteria for determining whether to conduct follow-up investigations and when to deactivate investigative efforts. The investigations policy should mandate case progress reporting and the need for detectives to provide updated reports at least once a week or more frequently if needed as well as case file management instructions. These recommended aspects of the policy provide performance expectations for detective personnel to follow.

CID Body-Worn Video Program

The MPD utilizes a Body-Worn Video program. There are many public and organizational benefits of a BWV program such as resolving what would otherwise be unprovable allegations while providing clarity in many encounters involving the police and the public including CID special operations and critical events such as officer-involved shootings. BWV enhances community trust and credibility through accountability and a commitment to transparency. MPD utilizes a Records Unit digital evidence technician to assist with maintaining digital evidence to include BWV footage. The use of the evidence technician position provides a best-practice approach to managing a BWV program.

An interview with the evidence technician provided quality insight and the exceptional work being performed in this position. With the constant changes in BWV laws, redacting software, and new technologies by Axon, MPD will need to invest and possibly expand this position. CPMS recommends MPD increase the training level of the evidence technician and provide ongoing professional development. MPD is commended for using a non-sworn professional staff position as an evidence technician.

MPD requires all CID personnel to wear their BWC devices when conducting field investigations and the performance of special operations, search warrants, and high-risk situations. Investigators are also required to wear BWC devices when wearing a police uniform and donning body armor vests.

Training & Section Manual

In our policy review, CPSM compares a section's "how-to" manuals with department policies to ensure there is a more specific procedure manual that establishes better practices for all personnel. CPSM found that CID does not have a division or unit manual specific to the Criminal Investigations Division.

MPD does not have a specific operational CID section manual to further professional development through resources, templates, or written procedures on detective operations. However, MPD has adopted operational procedures that provide some of the guidance of an operational manual with search warrant templates. Examples of these procedures are included in policies 606 (Warrants) and 607 (Operations Planning and Deconfliction). These policies offer safety measures, review processes, debriefs, and training requirements. To further this effort, it would benefit CID to develop a section manual that includes resources and templates for personnel. CPSM recommends CID establish an SOP, inclusive of templates and resources, to further the professional development of all personnel. This section manual should also include a list of required training courses and those that are preferred for each detective assignment. The manual should include common forms, search warrant samples, tactical planning for detectives, and operational guidelines. These operational manuals benefit new detective staff and supervisors and can ease the transition into Investigations. It should also include an expanded list of training courses offered by the state, regional association courses, as well as internal courses developed for detectives.

The MPD should include written guidance for the CID detective training plan, which is comprised of mandatory and encouraged courses for professional development. There are no state mandates for training and legal updates; however, CID requires all investigators to attend the Advanced Investigations Techniques courses provided by the State's CIB. CID ensures each detective receives internal training for detective orientation.

Training is a key component to ensure that personnel are qualified to perform the duties and responsibilities of a detective/investigator and those training and performance expectations are listed in the policy and procedures order. MPD ensures all new detectives are assigned to seasoned detectives to advance their professional development and also provides training topics, equipment, and other needs. CPSM recommends MPD's CID develop a more comprehensive list of professional training through a training matrix and evaluate the need for additional courses as CID develops new specialized assignments in the future. It is suggested that MPD search for statewide and national courses focused on self-leadership, and resilience in improving the understanding of today's policing challenges. This will assist MPD in preparing for future challenges while continuing to manage the present issues that developed from the national pandemic and social change movement that altered aspects of American policing.

In our review of CID special operations and the managing of critical events, CPSM found that the MPD provides proper deconfliction with operational briefings, use of risk assessment protocols, and pre-operations planning documents to assist in assuring the safety of all personnel and the community. CPSM recommends that CID develop an Excel spreadsheet or other document to track special operations and search warrants involving CID personnel. This process will allow CID to track all events, dates, and outcomes while also providing the ability to assess trends or any issues involving critical events.

DETECTIVE FUNCTIONS

The Investigations Division serves as the core (traditional) investigative body of the department. Its purpose is to investigate the most serious and significant of crimes, regardless of the category, At times, Patrol officers will respond and handle initial report complaints and the shift patrol lieutenant is responsible for reviewing cases. The Patrol lieutenant will then decide to allow patrol officers to continue with the field-level investigation if it does not substantially burden the patrol officers and interfere with their primary function. This is an important distinction in that the patrol division decides at the initial first level the type of cases the patrol officer will investigate at the field level.

CPSM reviewed the case intake, assignments, and function of the detective ranks for all units of work for the Criminal Investigations Division. All CID personnel are expected to be well-trained detectives with specialized expertise in various areas to conduct effective investigations in the following areas.

- Interviewing skills (for interviewing victims, witnesses, and offenders).
- Developing and managing informants.
- Conducting covert surveillance, including the use of advanced surveillance technologies.
- Identifying and locating potential witnesses and sources of intelligence.
- Preserving and developing evidence.
- Preparing cases for prosecution and liaising with prosecutors in the lead-up to, and management of, a trial.

- Protecting, managing, and preparing witnesses for trial.
- Sequencing of investigative steps in an inquiry to optimize chances of success.
- Maintaining knowledge of, and in some cases relationships with, criminals and criminal groups.

One of the challenges facing the Minot Police Department is the growing need for additional resources as the population continues to expand and this would require redistributing workloads for each working detective. CPSM recommends the MPD consider the reassignment of personnel to structured areas of investigations such as violent and property crimes as well as into smaller workgroups such as burglaries, robberies, sex crimes, thefts, and homicides.

Case Management & Clearance Rate

Clearance rates are an important measure of an individual detective's performance and can lead to the identification of training needs, additional supervisory oversight, and in some cases reassignment from the unit. CPSM found that CID is responsible for maintaining information on clearance rates, managed by the records administrators. CPSM maintains that while preventing a crime is of utmost importance to any law enforcement agency, solving crime should have parity. The solving of crimes which results in the prosecution of offenders not only prevents future crime; it provides much-needed closure to crime victims. The crime rates in the City of Minot are slightly increasing as the population begins to reach 50,000 residents. The overall crime rate (indexed per 100,000) crime rate is consistent with state-wide crime averages and significantly lower than national averages. The City of Minot has benefited from contemporary crime fighting and prevention strategies that have assisted in maintaining and managing crime trends in Minot.

Clearance rates, as defined and measured by the FBI Uniform Crime Report (UCR), are the benchmark for a department's effectiveness in solving crimes; however, the Criminal Justice Information Services (CJIS) developed new standards on crime reporting beginning in 2021.

Some cases are not assigned to a detective and can be closed based upon a lack of solvability factors or closed with an arrest by patrol officers. For most calls, the responding officer will be responsible for conducting the preliminary investigation and completing the report. There are instances when officers may be responsible for follow-up investigations and in these types of investigations, the detective sergeant monitors the case investigation to ensure accountability.

At the MPD, all crime reports are entered into the Records Management System (RMS) for tracking purposes. The RMS system is used to manage cases and the progress of investigations. All investigators are required to submit update reports into the RMS system; however, there is no required period for the updates. The Patrol lieutenants and sergeants monitor follow-up via the records management system. The follow-up may be assigned by the investigations Lieutenant on occasion with notations for the handling detective to complete additional investigative tasks. MPD does not require a timeline for investigators to submit updates; however, the supervision team (Sergeants, Lieutenant, and Captain) meets once a week to discuss case progress.

Of note is the department's robust use of the RMS system to manage all investigative reports assigned to the detectives with supervisor review and approval. The RMS enables supervisors to view and track all open and pending investigative cases assigned to detectives; however, the system is not used to its fullest potential.

Per CID policy and procedures, all actions taken during an investigation are required to be documented in the investigative narrative or supplemental reports, specifically stating why an offense is closed/cleared. The RMS tracks cases assigned, the submission of supplemental reports, and how and when cases are considered closed. The system provides basic case review and management but lacks some management accountability features.

CPSM found the RMS tracking system does not provide automatic notifications when detectives have not closed or updated cases within a specific time. As an example, more robust systems provide notifications to supervisors and detectives when supplemental reports have not been updated within a set period of time. CPSM recommends MPD use its RMS to develop a 30- or 60-day reporting system to track updates and progress of investigations. Most RMSs allow for this type of reporting and the system usually provides audit reports regarding specific cases that have not received updates for long periods.

Using the U.S. Department of Justice (US DOJ) and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) standards of how crime reports are classified, CPSM evaluated the process of identifying solvability factors, how cases are closed, and how detectives enter narratives into the RMS. CPSM also assessed how CID reviews case entries with the ability to return supplement reports for corrections or other reasons. National industry standards and U.S. DOJ and FBI require the closure factors listed below; CID investigators regularly consider these factors in all investigations. However, these closure factors are not enumerated in MPD in policy nor written in procedures or protocols. CPSM highly recommends that these factors be written in Policy 600 or that a separate policy be developed for CID investigators to follow.

- The suspect is named.
- The suspect can be identified.
- The address of the suspect is known.
- The suspect can be located.
- The license plate number of the vehicle used in the crime is known.
- The vehicle can be identified.
- There was traceable stolen property.
- There were identifiable latent fingerprints lifted from the scene.
- There was potentially identifiable forensic/biological evidence collected.
- A significant modus operandi has been recognized in the case.
- It is reasonably suspected that there was a limited opportunity to commit the crime.
- There is reason to believe that further investigative efforts will lead to the solving of the crime.

The Criminal Investigation Division's investigative cases are considered closed under the following classifications and these classifications written in Policy 600.5. These standards meet the requirements of the Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) system established by the FBI.

- All reasonable investigative efforts have been exhausted, no reasonable belief that the person who committed the crime can be identified, and the incident has been documented appropriately.
- The perpetrator of a misdemeanor has been identified and a warning is the most appropriate disposition.
  - In these cases, the investigator shall document that the person was warned and why prosecution was not sought.

- Warnings shall not be given for felony offenses or other offenses identified in this policy or by law that require an arrest or submission of a case to a prosecutor.

- The case has been submitted to the appropriate prosecutor, but no charges have been filed and further investigation is not reasonable and/or has not been requested by the prosecutor.
- The case has been submitted to the appropriate prosecutor, charges have been filed, and further investigation is not reasonable, warranted, or requested.
- Suspects have been arrested, there are no other suspects, and further investigation is either not warranted or requested.
- The investigation has proved that a crime was not committed (see the Sexual Assault Investigations Policy for special considerations in these cases).
- The Domestic Violence, Child Abuse, Sexual Assault Investigations, and Adult Abuse policies may also require an arrest or submittal of a case to a prosecutor.

Review of Clearance Rates

CPSM reviewed the MPD's solvability factors and concluded these are consistent with industry practices among contemporary law enforcement agencies. While these fall within generally accepted elements of case management, other important elements of an effective case management system are not included. These include automated notification to supervisors of investigations exceeding normal completion periods and/or case updates, and clearance rate percentages by individual detectives.

The following tables show the overall 2021 and 2022 clearance rates of the MPD. It is worth noting that MPD maintained clearance rates on average with state levels and well above the national averages for each year. MPD's clearance rates of 72 percent in 2021 and 64 percent in 2022 for aggravated assaults are valuable statistics for the City of Minot, as many assaults reflect ongoing alcohol, drug, gang, and youth crimes that routinely occur and commonly begin with aggravated assaults. MPD has one of the highest clearance rates for this crime across the country and serves as a national model.

Vehicle Theft	132	28	21%	1,999	428	21%	953,827	87,140	9%

According to the Marshall Project, a decrease in historical clearance rate percentages began during the pandemic and has continued as police departments struggle with public trust and confidence, combined with the challenges of police officer recruitment and retention in specialized assignments such as investigations.

A closer examination of the types of crimes being investigated by CID detectives provides an examination of the relative workload and the association with staffing challenges. The following table shows all cases assigned and average workload per detective for 2021 and 2022. The data below was derived from the UCR report; however, these totals also include investigations assigned to patrol officers closed by an arrest. Considering this challenge, it was difficult for CPSM to define the actual number of cases assigned to detectives, and does not represent the actual number. CPSM believes the actual number of cases to be lower than the data in the table.

TABLE 6-5: Cases per Detective, 2021 and 2022

Source: Plymouth Police Department

There are no absolute standards to determine an appropriate caseload for a police detective; however, the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) suggests a detective caseload between 120 and 180 cases per year (10 to 15 per month) is manageable. The average number of cases per detective can be less or more depending on their area of expertise. Compounding the challenge is the increased complexity of investigative work and the need for technology systems to assist in clearing cases. As an illustration, CID had one sexual crime investigator responsible for investigating all rape investigations and other sexual crimes in 2021 and 2022 but does not include the part-time assignment or caseloads with the Human Trafficking taskforce.

In review, CPSM estimated the total number of cases per detective was lower in 2022 than in 2021; as the approximate number of detectives was seven. As stated, at the time of this assessment, the number of detectives had decreased to five detectives based on current vacancies.

It is also a national policing challenge to confront the increasing time required to investigate cases with pursuable leads. The use of technology, changes in new laws, and the need to view hours of video footage have added to the average investigative time for detectives.

Considering these challenges CPSM reviewed the case management aspect with the following observations:

- From 2020 to 2023, CID has staffed 13 investigators in various assignments with five to seven detectives assigned as core CID detective functions, not to include the narcotics workgroup or others.
- In 2021 and 2022, the detective workloads were higher than national averages but had decreased in 2021, demonstrating MPD's challenges to maintaining appropriate staffing levels in CID
- The detective unit uses a records management system that provides a usable report as to the number of cases assigned to each detective.
- CID maintains an active database to track the number of cases assigned per detective with minimal research effort to produce the data. This is not often the case in police organizations throughout the Nation.
- CPSM noted a challenge for MPD and the Criminal Investigations Division to properly track and clear the number of arrests made by warrant service. The current county-wide system does not allow the MPD to reconcile warrant arrests with the county-wide system, causing inaccuracy in reporting overall data. MPD will need to research further efforts to resolve this issue.

These observations reflect national best practices and measurements that demonstrate the accomplishment by MPD in ensuring the investigative efforts are supported by the RMS. The observations also highlight the challenges facing MPD in ensuring the proper clearance data is tracked and reported. MPD should pursue solutions to the challenges identified by CPSM and these include:

- MPD will need to develop a tracking mechanism either through the RMS or a "log" to track patrol cases assigned to officers. The number of cases cleared by patrol arrests is not regularly tracked by the RMS and doing so would assist in defining end-of-year clearance rates.
- CPSM also recommends that MPD seek out a solution to ensure that the arrests made by warrant service are entered into the RMS and updated in the county system to better track clearance rates related to warrant arrest. This may be a feature best accomplished by a full-time crime analyst position as recommended in this report.

Overall, the Criminal Investigations Division's Detective Unit provides a supervisor and management review of investigative cases as well as mechanisms for assuring case clearance accountability. In addition, CID management and supervisors properly utilize the RMS to track and monitor case investigations. CPSM recommends the Minot Police Department develop a database (preferably within the RMS) to track and report on the number of cases assigned to each detective and the number of investigations closed by patrol officers.

BOMB UNIT

CPSM recognizes that the MPD operates the Bomb Unit in cooperation with the Federal Bureau of Investigations (FBI), with a joint Memorandum of Understanding (MOU). MPD currently has four sworn personnel including one police K-9 sergeant assigned to the Bomb Unit as auxiliary positions. The Minot Police Department's participation in the North Dakota Bomb Squad Association requires an approved Memorandum of Understanding with the Federal Bureau of Investigations, other regional police agencies, and the United States Air Force (Minot Air Force Base). The guiding documents that allow MPD to participate in this unique initiative are the North Dakota Bomb Squad Association's Standard Operating Procedure and the FBI's MOU regarding the regional bomb unit initiative.

CPSM reviewed both documents and found the MOU was renewed in July 2023 and the Bomb Unit's SOPs remain relevant with current information. However, in our review, CPSM found that MPD does not have a current Lexipol policy regarding the Bomb Unit's purpose, structure, and internal guidelines for operations. As such, CPSM recommends MPD develop an internal Lexipol Policy regarding the operations and guidelines for the Bomb Unit. This should include an on-call process, take-home vehicles, equipment, an activation process, and a notification protocol as well as other unique features of this regional agreement with local police agencies and the FBI.

One of the primary goals of the FBI MOU is to ensure that jurisdictions that do not maintain their own Bomb Squads could have access to a Bomb Squad in their area to assist them if needed. As a result, the State of North Dakota has been divided into four separate geographical areas of responsibility, with each Bomb Squad responding to assist municipal, county, state, and federal jurisdictions within their area. This includes the Minot Response District.

The Minot Response District is the responsibility of the Minot Police Department Bomb Squad and consists of 15 counties and approximately 45 local jurisdictions located in the north-central area of North Dakota. The Minot Response District includes the Minot Air Force Base, which as an ordnance disposal team and operates with the Minot (PD) Bomb Unit.

In establishing a uniform criterion for individual bomb squads to meet to be recognized by the North Dakota Bomb Squad Association and the North Dakota Peace Officers Association Special Operations Committee, the North Dakota Bomb Squad Association maintains a commitment to follow the recommended guidelines for bomb squad certification as established by the FBI Explosives Unit-Bomb Data Center and the National Guidelines for Bomb Technicians. These guidelines set forth requirements in the areas of bomb squad personnel, training, and equipment.

CPSM also recognizes that MPD is currently researching and writing a policy for the Bomb Unit operations and currently the FBI MOU serves as the primary document structuring the purpose, operational guidelines, and technical aspects of the unit. The Bomb Unit is a specific agreement with the Minneapolis FBI field office as well as other police entities in Minnesota and North Dakota. The MOU covers the following points and authorities:

- Legal Authorities.
- Specific Responsibilities.
- Personnel & Equipment.
- Operations & Equipment.
- Joint Investigations.
- Federal Deputations & Cross Deputations.

- Liabilities.
- Press Releases.
- Training.

All police agencies in the MOU agree to share available personnel, equipment, resources, and expertise in the State of North Dakota, regarding Render Safe Procedures (RSPs) (including weapons of mass destruction and explosives and the disposal of or disassembly), and investigation of explosive-related incidents as necessary. Each agency agrees to designate and train one alternate certified bomb technician in addition to its Department Coordinator and is required to maintain this minimum level of support as staffing and personnel assignments permit. The MOU provides the training guidelines to ensure joint training ventures and provide a collective effort of resources involving any relevant threats in the region.

CPSM conducted an onsite visit of the Bomb Unit equipment and vehicles including a quick response truck and a larger bomb technician vehicle. All equipment, storage, and accountabilities exceeded industry standards. In addition, CPSM found the documentation of training days, training curriculums, and actual callouts/deployments exceed industry standards. CPSM recommends MPD develop a policy with the assistance of Lexipol to guide the Bomb Unit and define operational standards and protocols that meet and exceed industry standards.

UNSOLVED (COLD CASE) MURDERS

The use of the term unsolved murder cases, also known as "cold cases," continues to be part of CPSM's review of investigative practices. The purpose of this effort is to assure communities that justice will be served for those who have lost loved ones to violent crimes or continue to be classified as missing persons. The Minot Police Department is committed to this national priority and as an example recently made an arrest in the only unsolved murder in the City of Minot. In addition, the North Dakota Bureau of Criminal Investigation is also committed and works with law enforcement agencies across the state on unsolved missing persons and homicide cases. These cases are referred to the Cold Case unit by the law enforcement agency and Minot PD has an excellent reputation with this state-level unit.

CPSM recommends that MPD include the priority of unsolved murders and missing persons in policy. Examples of a policy would include the definition of a "cold case" and its nexus to the state's effort on unsolved investigations. The policy can also include how a case becomes an unsolved investigation that has been suspended, usually due to the exhaustion of investigative leads or evidence and an organizational procedure for managing these critical investigations. Other elements included in a policy triggering a cold case investigation would be:

- New evidence in the case has been discovered.
- New technology is available which may provide new leads in the case.
- A witness in the case has come forward.
- A victim's body has been found.

The Chief of Police may also determine that a case should be reopened based on any of the following criteria:

- The nature of the crime.
- The nature and weight of the new evidence.

- The age of the case.
- The availability of witnesses.
- The likelihood of a successful prosecution.

In each case where a cold case is reviewed and a determination is made to reopen the case, a supplement shall be made to the report of the fact that the case has been reopened as well as any investigative activities. Many of the unsolved murder investigations will generally be tracked and investigated with the assistance of the State's BCI Division. The department has committed to investigating unsolved homicides on an as-needed basis and is to be commended for its efforts in making an arrest in a Minot unsolved murder case.

It is recommended that MPD utilize one to two former (retired) police officers with investigative experience to assist in evaluating and reviewing unsolved homicides and missing persons cases on an annual or as-needed. CPSM understands that the Minot Police Department would need to coordinate efforts with the State Police to investigate unsolved murders.

VIOLENT CRIME & COMPSTAT

Many American communities are struggling with gun and youth violence (14 to 24 years of age), and while poverty is usually a large factor in youth crime, there are other ailments and socioeconomic issues at the core of violent crime. The CompStat model is a process used to identify and develop public safety priorities and communicate the priorities to all frontline personnel. The CompStat concept is a crime analysis approach that seeks to reduce crime through accountability discussions and deploying resources where needed. It was created in the early 1990s by the New York City Police Department and has evolved into many national variations. MPD does not specifically use a CompStat model but does integrate elements of the model with regular staff and frontline discussions about crime trends and violent incidents that occur in Minot and the region.

The reality is that the CompStat process is not a single state-of-the-art computer equipped with a special software program. In general terms, the CompStat process is a method of management accountability and a philosophy of crime control. It is less about procuring state-of-the-art equipment and more about adopting a state of mind that police do count in reducing crime. The MPD delivers crime stats and critical conversations through weekly engagements with the Chief of Police and the Command staff but does not include frontline personnel or operational sergeants. The information is later transferred to patrol and detective personnel via roll call and other briefings. CPMS recommends that MPD embrace CompStat principles and establish a monthly meeting with frontline investigators, operational sergeants, support staff, and lieutenants. This engagement forum allows open discussion regarding crime trends and allows the crime analysis process to be led by a review of data. This decentralized approach allows for robust interactions with frontline personnel as command staff attends and listens to real-time crime issues and recommendations for their consideration and approval.

The MPD's strategic crime meeting is valuable to the organization and vital to the overall safety of the community. CPSM reviewed the homicide and gun violence statistics for 2021, 2022, and 2023 YTD, and that data follows. It should be noted that MPD does not readily track the number of gunshot victims due to the low number of critical events, but steps should be taken to track annual violent crime and shootings on a dashboard for the monthly crime stat review.

Homicide Totals (source: Minot Police Department):

- 2020: 9 (7 murders, 1 fatal hit and run, 1 Justifiable homicide).

- 2021: 3 (3 murders).
- 2022: 3 (3 murders).
- 2023 YTD: 5 (4 murders, 1 undetermined).
- Total of Unsolved (Cold Cases) Murders: 0.

Again, the Minot Police Department is to be commended for outstanding investigative work in arresting those responsible for murder and other violent crimes in the community. The violent crime in Minot is significantly less than in most cities in the region; however, violent crime does occur, requiring policing strategies to mitigate crime. The increase in murders in 2023 is an example of the national trends and challenges most American communities are grappling with and the Minot Police Department is confronting those challenges. The Minot Police Department has provided outstanding policing service to reduce potential violent crime, and this can be measured in the low violent crime activity as well as the arrest of those committing violent crimes.

INTELLIGENCE ANALYST & EVIDENCE TECHNICIAN

Currently, MPD utilizes one CID professional (civilian) position who also performs crime analysis to assist with research on specific cases as needed as well as an evidence technician to conduct forensic investigations. The crime intelligence analyst supports tracking elements of an investigation to include suspect information for investigators and provides intelligence to patrol and investigators on an as-needed basis. Additionally, the position provides a direct link between CID investigators and patrol officers regarding crime trends and linking information with department personnel. MPD's approach to crime intelligence is an excellent platform to advance its effort to establish a standalone Crime Analyst Unit. In combination with the evidence technician, MPD has positioned itself for the future and established a platform for a national policing model, that few agencies of equal size can establish.

CPSM recommends the Minot Police Department develop wider crime strategies and adopt a regional approach to crime reduction in Minot. The use of full-time crime analysts is a national model that produces positive outcomes. IACP and the International Association of Crime Analysts (IACA) recommend that all police agencies develop a crime analyst program as a standalone unit or at least in conjunction with local or regional agencies. IACA recommends that law enforcement agencies have one analyst for 1,500 Part I crimes or one per 1,800 NIBRS group A crimes. In addition to this metric, IACA also recommends one analyst per every 70 police officers or one for every 30,000 calls for service (CFS). Based on the number of Part I crimes and the number of police officers, CPSM recommends that MPD consider the addition of one full-time or part-time civilian analyst. CPMS recommends that the crime analyst receive ongoing professional training from the IACA and other entities. This approach will help develop an improved CompStat model for the Minot Police Department and free up sworn personnel to focus on case investigations.

CPSM also recommends that MPD continue to develop and advance the role of the evidence technician position by advancing their annual training to include national conferences and out-of-state training with entities such as the Secret Service in order to advance MPD's capabilities. The mandated training for the evidence technician and the crime analyst should be included in the recommendation to establish a CID training matrix for all positions.

TASK FORCE INVESTIGATIONS

It is a difficult commitment for Chiefs of Police to commit local resources to a countywide or regional task force, but it is a critical initiative to ensure community safety to reduce cyber fraud and stop human trafficking as well as other organized crime. Task force participation also encourages regional and state communication and helps to maintain professional relationships with all local, state, and federal law enforcement agencies. The Minot Police Department is committed to this national priority and ensuring homeland security for its community.

The Minot Police Department participates in two regional task forces including the Ward County Narcotics Taskforce, currently with two CID Task Force Officers (TFO) assigned to the task force. The MPD has four authorized positions for the task force; however, due to vacancies it currently assigns only two personnel. In addition, the MPD allows officers to participate in regional mutual aid working groups such as SWAT and motorcycle deployments and this effort should continue in order to support local events and emergencies. MPD is to be commended for its commitment to the local task forces and CPSM recommends that participating in the task forces should continue.

All narcotics detectives are trained in the following areas but there is no state POST mandate to require this training:

- Drug Law Enforcement Training Program – Homeland Security.
- Undercover Operations.
- Informants Management.
- Search Warrant Management.
- Latest Legal Development in Drug Enforcement.
- Basic Narcotics School.

The primary challenges facing the narcotics unit involve the national epidemic of fentanyl overdoses and the criminal enterprises using press pill machines to produce illegal tablets. The MPD narcotics investigators are trained to conduct reviews of overdose investigations that are mostly handled by patrol officers. The level of work required for non-fatal overdose investigations can be staggering and requires ongoing professional training to ensure detailed investigations. This requires MPD investigators to maintain a strong relationship with regional narcotic task forces and ensure participation in the task force efforts.

The challenge for the Minot Police Department is balancing the need to conduct overdose investigations and allowing the investigators to pursue drug organizations and other types of narcotic-related crimes through the regional task forces. This can only be achieved by the MPD by participating in the regional task force efforts.

MPD also assigns collateral personnel (investigators) to the Alcohol, Tobacco, & Firearms (ATF) Violent Crimes Task Force and four investigators to the Internet Crimes Against Children (ICAC) Task Force. These task forces have the mission to seek out local criminal enterprises and dismantle these organizations, which have ties to both domestic and international groups. These task forces have been recommended at the Presidential level of the United States and continually offer local agency training, resources, and higher-level networks to focus on these criminal enterprises. CPSM recommends that MPD continue to assign personnel to regional, state, and federal task forces and attempt to ensure full-time commitment when resources are available.

Specific to ICAC, the pressing national issue of internet-related sex crimes involving children and the growing number of incidents reported to local police is rising. The U.S. DOJ's annual report to the U.S. Congress in 2023 cited a substantial increase between 2019 and 2021. DOJ anticipates the crimes to also increase in 2022 and 2023. The following table shows the scope of these increases across the United States.

TABLE 6-6: 2023 U.S. DOJ Report to Congress on the National Strategy for Child Exploitation & Prevention

Reporting Category	2019 Reports	2020 Reports	2021 Reports
Extraterritorial Child Sexual Abuse	683	955	1,624
Child Sex Trafficking	11,798	15,879	16,032
Child Sexual Molestation	4,747	11,770	12,458
Online Enticement of Children for Sexual Acts	19,174	37,872	44,155

Source: United States Department of Justice

In Minot, the number of sex crime cases requiring ICAC support or investigation is growing; however, MPD's work with ICAC is currently on an as-needed basis. Based on the activity in the region, CPSM recommends MPD assign one full-time investigator to the ICAC task force to fulfill its task force obligation while promoting the ICAC initiative throughout the region.

CRIME SCENE RESPONSE UNIT

Recent Supreme Court decisions have resulted in placing tremendous value on physical and corroborative evidence. These court decisions have created a demand for a higher degree of technology on the part of the police laboratory. Therefore, the development of new physical aids, techniques, and methods of analysis has resulted in meeting this need. A laboratory unit is a crucial link in the processing of physical evidence for presentation in the courts since much of the evidence collected in a criminal investigation is sent to the laboratory for analysis and evaluation. However, it is a frequent occurrence that material analysis, or improper packaging methods, destroy valuable evidence.

The two most basic police functions are the protection of lives and property and the maintenance of peace. The third basic job is the investigation aimed at bringing the violator before a court of law with sufficient evidence to convict. The content of this procedural instruction represents the department's efforts to provide guidelines and procedures to facilitate the recognition, collection, and preservation of physical evidence until properly submitted to the proper department unit for analysis and evaluation; thereby assisting in the prosecution of the violator. The following information serves as guidelines to overcome any inadequacies that may be present in the recognition, collection, and preservation of physical evidence.

The Crime Scene Response Unit (CSRU) has been established to provide specialized support to the Investigations Division. The CSRU's function is the documentation, collection, and processing of evidence at the scene of major incidents. MPD utilizes investigators in a collateral capacity utilizing the proper equipment and industry-standard practices to process crime scenes thoroughly and consistently.

MPD's use of the CSRU is initiated by the watch commander and approved by the Investigations Division Commander. In turn, the Investigation's Division Commander will notify and confer with the CSRU Commander for coordination and response (as per Policy 609.2.2). Personnel chosen for this position are based on job knowledge, and skill sets during an interview process by the CSRU commander. All unit members are required to attend ongoing training related to crime scene investigations; however, there is no documented training matrix nor a state mandate to do so. CPSM recommends that CSRU develop an ongoing training matrix to ensure ongoing professional development. MPD can request additional assistance at major crime scene investigations from the McHenry County Sheriff's Office and the State Attorney General's Bureau of Criminal Investigations (BCI) also offers investigative resources related to Officer Involved Shootings, Force Encounter events, and crime scene investigations with additional resources and specialized equipment.

In a review of the CSRU policy 609.6, we found policy contained the operational essentials for ensuring unit structure, selection, and retention of personnel, as well as activation procedures for on-call personnel. The unit maintains equipment essential for crime scene management and it is overseen and managed by the CID's CSRU sergeant.

The CID lieutenant manages MPD's crime scene duties and is collateral responsibility for CID investigators and other MPD personnel assigned to this unique and specialized team. The CSRU is comprised of officers and detectives from the Minot Police Department. CSRU is capable and equipped to respond to and manage all major crimes, including homicides. CSRU has the authority to request assistance from the State's BCI Unit as an addition to CSRU crime scene investigation resources. These requests are usually limited to supplementing crime scene-related equipment. The North Dakota State Lab is the sole crime lab in North Dakota and every state agency must utilize this for lab services and all crime scene processing is completed by the Minot Police Department's CSRU team.

The responsibilities handled by the county and state resources include:

- Crime scene documentation.
- Collection and processing of evidence at major crime scenes.
- Crime scene photography and evidence processing.
- Recovery of latent fingerprint, footwear, and tire track evidence.
- Homicides.
- Armed robberies.
- Sexual assaults.
- Suspicious deaths.
- Motor vehicle accidents.
- Burglary (breaking & entering).

MPD investigators receive training in the following areas from the Ward County Sheriff and the State's Bureau of Criminal Investigations (BCI):

- Crime Scene Investigations and Evidence Collection.
- Sexual Assault Investigations and Evidence Collection.
- Digital Photography.
- DNA Swabs.

- Fingerprint collection.

CPSM found that CID does not track the number of crime scene responsibilities nor maintain a database of evidence collected; however, these aspects of crime scene investigations are documented in the investigative and supplemental reports.

There are several national associations of crime scene investigations including the Crime Investigation and Forensic Science, Association for Crime Scene Reconstruction, and Forensic Science Association, all of which provide national industry standards in crime scene investigations. These associations highly suggest developing professionally trained personnel (civilian-based) who can respond, collect, and process evidence while working with both the state and county evidence labs. These associations have supported the contemporary approach of developing crime investigators and evidence technicians as standalone units of operations.

Based on current national trends and requirements, CPSM recommends that MPD consider developing a standalone crime scene (civilian) technician unit in support of the continued use of the CSRU component. CPSM found that the CSRU is an industry best practice that advances the professional development of personnel and establishes a skilled workforce capable of managing advanced crime scenes. This recommendation is based on the continually changing legislation, increasing industry standards, and the ongoing impact of new case law involving crime scene investigations combined with the innovations at MPD with the CSRU.

It should be noted that CPSM's review of the CID crime scene investigations, supplemental reports, and activity of work did not produce any negative outcomes or system failures. The recommendations offered in this segment are based on the development of contemporary investigatory services and best practice recommendations by the International Association of Chiefs of Police as well as the growing importance of crime scene investigator certifications and advanced college degrees in this specific and growing field of professionals.

COMMUNITY OUTREACH AND VICTIM ASSISTANCE

Community outreach and victim assistance can often be overlooked, but it is an important part of police work. The relationship between police and their special community organizations is a vital priority in ensuring victims are protected and can be rehabilitated from the harm done to them. Across the United States, individual officers engage in outreach, and many police departments also employ specific programs dedicated to outreach. The importance of community outreach leads to many positive outcomes such as:

- Building trust.
- Decreasing overall crime.
- Combating domestic violence & child abuse.
- Reducing sexual crimes.
- Addressing substance abuse.
- Stopping human trafficking.

The positive impact of community outreach cannot be overstated and should be a top priority for all police organizations. As part of this review, CPSM assessed MPD's use of outreach and counseling services for victims of crimes who oftentimes are unequipped to search for special services on their own.

CPSM found that the Minot Police Department works closely with several community-based organizations and often MPD personnel serve on the boards of these community organizations. CPSM spoke with two organizations and their response was very positive about the Minot Police Department and its officers and investigators. Examples of the organizations are the Minot Domestic Violence Crisis Center and the Northern Plains Children's Advocacy Center. These organizations provide specialized outreach, trauma support, and counseling for victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, child abuse, and human trafficking. The Minot Police Department must continue to develop partnerships with local community organizations that provide outreach, support, and counseling to the special victims in the region. The MPD should be very proud of its outreach efforts and the ongoing efforts to maintain positive and professional relationships with outreach organizations.

CID CONCLUSION

In the final analysis, CPSM suggests the Minot Police Department undertake a restructure of CID investigator assignments to become more consistent with 21st-century policing strategies to improve public safety practices, reduce crime, and enhance crime prevention strategies. It is recommended that investigators be assigned as specialists to violent and major crimes as well as specialized teams of officers to confront unique crimes and utilize modern intelligence-led strategies.

CPSM recommends the MPD restructure CID in pursuing an intelligence-led policing model suggested by IACP and PERF to pursue career criminals and known suspects to reduce crime. This includes using advanced technology, surveillance techniques, and regional partnerships to leverage resources to reduce violence and stop crime. Finally, MPD should seek out national leadership training courses for frontline personnel, with these courses focused on self-leadership, fortitude, and providing an understanding of today's policing challenges. This will assist in establishing a durable and resilient workforce for the future.

Criminal Investigations Division Recommendations:

- CPMS recommends the MPD expand its current investigator (600) policy to include specific assignments within CID and define the position of senior/master officer positions. (Recommendation No. 55.)
- CPSM recommends MPD expand Policy 600 and provide a written matrix of detective rotation assignments and the process of how investigators are selected. (Recommendation No. 56.)
- CPSM recommends CID consider a detective rotation schedule of three to five years, with the ability to extend individual rotations based on investigative needs. (Recommendation No. 57.)
- With the constant changes in BWV laws, redacting software, and new technologies by Axon, MPD will need to invest and possibly expand the evidence technician position. CPSM recommends MPD increase the training level of the evidence technician and provide ongoing professional development. (Recommendation No. 58.)
- CPSM recommends CID establish an SOP, inclusive of templates and resources, to further the professional development of all personnel. (Recommendation No. 59.)

- CPSM recommends MPD's CID develop a more comprehensive list of professional training through a training matrix and evaluate the need for additional courses as CID develops new specialized assignments in the future. (Recommendation No. 60.)
- CPSM recommends that CID develop an Excel spreadsheet or other document to track special operations and search warrants involving CID personnel. (Recommendation No. 61.)
- CPSM recommends that as the workspace project is completed MPD should seek out the ability to provide private workspace for sexual assaults and domestic violence detectives with consideration for the sensitive nature of their victim relationships and types of investigations. (Recommendation No. 62.)
- CPSM recommends the MPD consider the reassignment of personnel to structured areas of investigations such as violent and property crimes as well as into smaller workgroups such as burglaries, robberies, sex crimes, thefts, and homicides. (Recommendation No. 63.)
- CPSM recommends MPD to use its RMS to develop a 30- or 60-day reporting system to track updates and progress of investigations. (Recommendation No. 64.)
- CPSM recommends the Minot Police Department develop a database (preferably with the RMS) to track and report on the number of cases assigned to each detective and the number of investigations closed by patrol officers. (Recommendation No. 65.)
- CPSM also recommends that MPD seek out a solution to ensure that the arrests made by warrant service are entered into the RMS system and updated in the county system to better track clearance rates related to warrant arrest. This may be a feature best accomplished by a full-time crime analyst position as recommended in this report. (Recommendation No. 66.)
- CPSM recommends MPD develop a policy with the assistance of Lexipol to guide the Bomb Unit and define operational standards and protocols that meet and exceed industry standards. (Recommendation No. 67.)
- It is recommended that CID assign the narcotics unit to an intelligence-led unit of detectives trained to use 21st-century policing strategies to focus on career criminals, crime trends, and violent crimes. (Recommendation No. 68.)
- It is recommended that MPD utilize one to two former (retired) police officers with investigative experience to assist in evaluating and reviewing unsolved homicides and missing persons cases on an annual and as-needed basis. (Recommendation No. 69.)
- Based on the number of Part I crimes and the number of police officers, CPSM recommends that MPD consider the addition of one full-time or part-time civilian analyst. (Recommendation No. 70.)
- CPMS recommends that the crime analyst receive ongoing professional training from the IACA and other entities. (Recommendation No. 71.)
- CPSM also recommends that MPD continue to develop and advance the role of the evidence technician position by advancing their annual training to include national conferences and out-of-state training with entities such as the Secret Service in order to advance MPD's capabilities. (Recommendation No. 72.)
- CPSM recommends that MPD continue to assign personnel to regional, state, and federal task forces and attempt to ensure full-time commitment when resources are available. (Recommendation No. 73.)

- CPSM recommends MPD assign one full-time investigator to the ICAC task force to fulfill its task force obligation while promoting the ICAC initiative throughout the region. (Recommendation No. 74.)
- CPSM recommends that CSRU develop an ongoing training matrix to ensure ongoing professional development. (Recommendation No. 75.)
- CPSM recommends that MPD consider developing a standalone crime scene (civilian) technician unit in support of the continued use of the CSRU component. (Recommendation No. 76.)
- CPSM recommends the MPD restructure CID in striving for an intelligence-led policing model suggested by IACP and PERF to pursue career criminals and known suspects through intelligence-led strategies. (Recommendation No. 77.)
- MPD should seek out national leadership training courses for frontline personnel, and which are focused on self-leadership, fortitude, and providing an understanding of today's policing challenges. (Recommendation No. 78.)

SECTION 7. SUMMARY

Overall, our assessment team had a very favorable opinion of the Minot Police Department. We believe it is a department striving to be contemporary and to provide service in a professional manner that suits the needs of the community it serves.

We have made a number of recommendations in this report that we believe will enhance the operational effectiveness of the MPD. Some recommendations can be implemented with minimal effort, while others may require significant effort and investment. The fact that there are a large number of recommendations is in no way an indictment of the department. As noted, we have a high opinion of MPD; we simply make recommendations that we believe will improve the department overall.

These reports are always intended to identify proper staffing. Although this report makes a few recommendations regarding staffing and positions, in general we believe the department is appropriately staffed; at minimum, the workload and policing dynamics are manageable with the current staffing figures. As always, we encourage the department to work to fill its vacancies and thereby increase the level of service it can provide.

We further recognize that implementing many of the recommendations in this report, should the Minot Police Department choose to do so, will take weeks, months, and in some cases years. We would encourage the city and department leadership to work together on identifying those recommendations that are most critical. Also, we would make ourselves available to consult as necessary and appropriate.

Additionally, a comprehensive data analysis report follows. While the more pertinent aspects of that analysis are embedded in the preceding Operational Assessment, readers are encouraged to review the data analysis report in its entirety.

SECTION 8. DATA ANALYSIS REPORT

This data analysis on police patrol operations for the Minot Police Department focuses on three main areas: workload, deployment, and response times. These three areas are related almost exclusively to patrol operations, which constitute a significant portion of the police department's personnel and financial commitment.

All information in this analysis was developed using data from the police department's computer-aided dispatch (CAD) system.

CPSM collected data for one year from October 1, 2022, through September 30, 2023. The majority of the first section of the report, concluding with Table 8-9, uses call data for one year. For the detailed workload analysis, we used two eight-week sample periods. The first period is from January 4 through February 28, 2023, or winter, and the second period is from July 7 through August 31, 2023, or summer.

WORKLOAD ANALYSIS

When CPSM analyzes a set of dispatch records, we go through a series of steps:

- We first process the data to improve accuracy. For example, we remove duplicate patrol units recorded on a single event as well as records that do not indicate an actual activity. We also remove incomplete data, as found in situations where there is not enough time information to evaluate the record.
- At this point, we have a series of records that we call "events." We identify these events in three ways:
  - We distinguish between patrol and nonpatrol units.
  - We assign a category to each event based on its description.
  - We indicate whether the call is "zero time on scene" (i.e., patrol units spent less than 30 seconds on scene), "police-initiated," or "community-initiated."
- We then remove all records that do not involve a patrol unit to get a total number of patrol-related events.
- At important points during our analysis, we focus on a smaller group of events designed to represent actual calls for service. This excludes events with no officer time spent on scene and directed patrol activities.

In this way, we first identify a total number of records, then limit ourselves to patrol events, and finally focus on calls for service.

As with similar cases around the country, we encountered several issues when analyzing Minot's dispatch data. We made assumptions and decisions to address these issues.

- 596 events (about 2 percent) involved patrol units spending zero time on scene.
- The computer-aided dispatch (CAD) system used approximately 106 different event descriptions, which we condensed into 22 categories for our tables and 11 categories for our figures (shown in Chart 8-1). Table 8-20 in the appendix shows how each call description was categorized.

Between October 1, 2022, and September 30, 2023, the communications center recorded approximately 32,206 events that were assigned call numbers, which included an adequate record of a responding patrol unit as either the primary or secondary unit. When measured daily, the department reported an average of 88.2 patrol-related events per day, approximately 2 percent of which (1.6 per day) had fewer than 30 seconds spent on the call.

In the following pages, we show two types of data: activity and workload. The activity levels are measured by the average number of calls per day, broken down by the type and origin of the calls, and categorized by the nature of the calls (crime, traffic, etc.). Workloads are measured in average work hours per day.

Police-initiated	9,197	25.2
Zero on scene	596	1.6
Total	32,206	88.2

Observations:

- 2 percent of the events had zero time on scene.
- 29 percent of all events were police-initiated.
- 70 percent of all events were community-initiated.
- There was an average of 88 events per day or 3.7 per hour.

Note: Observations below refer to events shown within the figure rather than the table.

Observations:

- The top three categories accounted for 58 percent of events:
  - 26 percent of events were traffic-related.
  - 19 percent of events were crimes.
  - 13 percent of events were assists.

Total	30,615	83.9

Note: The focus here is on recorded calls rather than recorded events. We removed 596 events with zero time on scene and another 995 directed patrol activities.

Observations:

- On average, there were 83.9 calls per day, or 3.5 per hour.
- The top four categories accounted for 59 percent of calls:
  - 27 percent of calls were traffic-related.
  - 20 percent of calls were crimes.
  - 13 percent of calls were assists.

Observations:

- The number of calls per day was lowest in December.
- The number of calls per day was highest in July.
- The months with the most calls had 64 percent more calls than the months with the fewest calls.
- April had the most police-initiated calls with 161 percent more than December, which had the fewest.
- July had the most community-initiated calls with 62 percent more than January, which had the fewest.

Note: Calculations were limited to calls rather than events.

Observations:

- The top three categories averaged between 53 and 62 percent of calls throughout the year.
  - Traffic calls averaged between 14.7 and 27.6 calls per day throughout the year.
  - Crime calls averaged between 12.5 and 24.5 calls per day throughout the year.
  - Assist calls averaged between 7.7 and 15.4 calls per day throughout the year.
- Crime calls accounted for 17 to 23 percent of total calls.

Note: The information in Figure 8-6 and Table 8-6 is limited to calls and excludes all events that show zero time on scene. A unit's occupied time is measured as the time from when the unit was dispatched until the unit becomes available again. The times shown are the average occupied minutes per call for the primary unit, rather than the total occupied minutes for all units assigned to a call. Observations below refer to times shown within the figure rather than the table.

Observations:

- A unit's average time spent on a call ranged from 10 to 58 minutes overall.
- The longest average times were for police-initiated crime calls.
- The average time spent on crime calls was 36 minutes for community-initiated calls and 58 minutes for police-initiated calls.

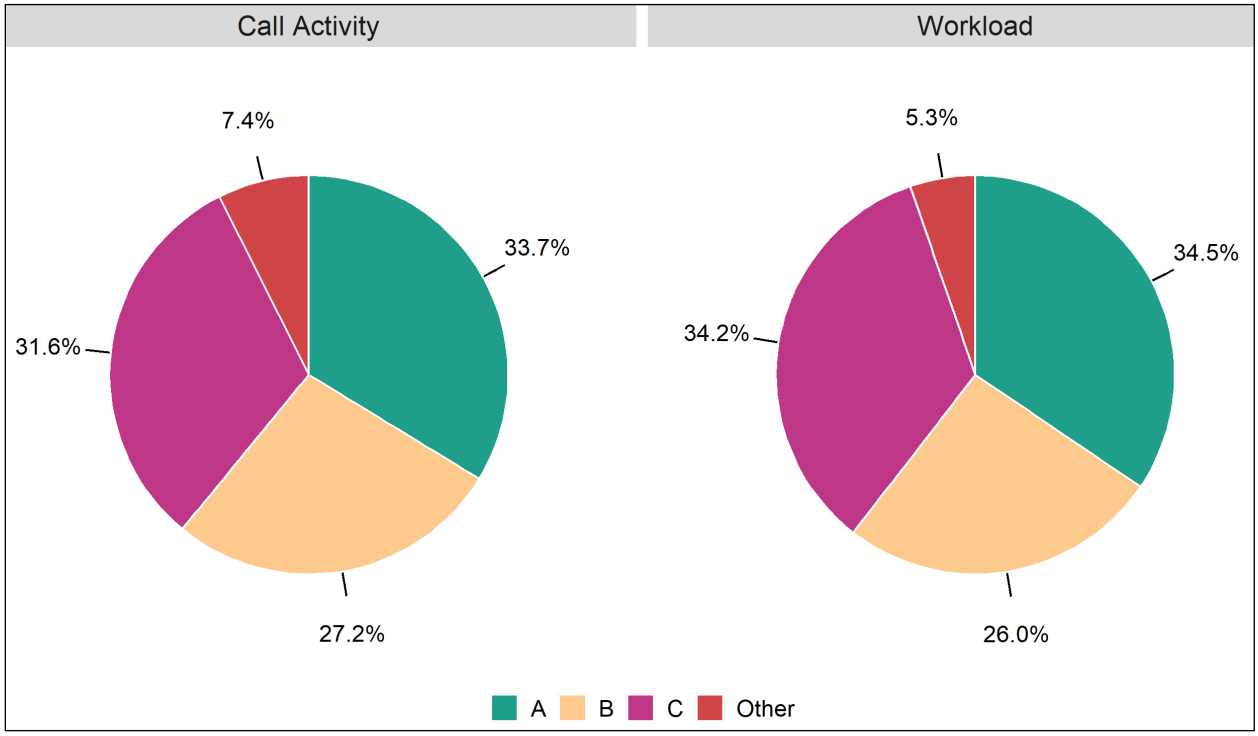
Observations:

- The overall mean number of responding units was 1.8 for police-initiated calls and 2.0 for community-initiated calls.
- The mean number of responding units was as high as 2.6 for disturbance calls that were community-initiated.
- 41 percent of community-initiated calls involved one responding unit.
- 34 percent of community-initiated calls involved two responding units.
- 25 percent of community-initiated calls involved three or more responding units.
- The largest group of calls with three or more responding units involved crimes.

FIGURE 8-9: Percentage Calls and Work Hours, by Beat



Note: The "other" category includes calls at headquarters, miscellaneous beats, and calls missing beats. About 94 percent of calls in the miscellaneous category were in beat "P2," which is the Ward County Sheriff's Office beat in the Minot area.

Observations, Winter:

- Total calls averaged 71 per day or 2.9 per hour.
- The total workload averaged nearly 60 hours per day, meaning that on average 2.5 units per hour were busy responding to calls.
- Traffic calls constituted 28 percent of calls and 12 percent of workload.
- Crime calls constituted 20 percent of calls and 33 percent of workload.
- Assist calls constituted 11 percent of calls and 10 percent of workload.
- These top three categories constituted 60 percent of calls and 55 percent of workload.

Total	102.6	78.4

Note: Workload calculations focused on calls rather than events.

Observations, Summer:

- The average number of calls per day and the average daily workload were higher in summer than in winter.
- Total calls averaged 103 per day or 4.3 per hour.
- The total workload averaged 78 hours per day, meaning that on average 3.3 units per hour were busy responding to calls.
- Traffic calls constituted 27 percent of calls and 14 percent of workload.
- Crime calls constituted 19 percent of calls and 31 percent of workload.
- Assist calls constituted 14 percent of calls and 12 percent of workload.
- These top three categories constituted 61 percent of calls and 57 percent of workload.

NONCALL ACTIVITIES

In the period from October 1, 2022, through September 30, 2023, the dispatch center also recorded activities that were not assigned incident numbers. We focused on those activities that involved a patrol unit. We also limited our analysis to activities that occurred during shifts where the same patrol unit was also responding to calls for service. There were a few problems with the data provided and we made assumptions and decisions to address these issues:

- We excluded activities that lasted less than 30 seconds. These are irrelevant and contribute little to the overall workload.
- After these exclusions, 5,478 activities remained. These activities had an average duration of 33.2 minutes.

In this section, we report activities and workload by descriptions. In the next section, we include these activities in the overall workload when comparing the total workload against available personnel in winter and summer.

DEPLOYMENT

For this study, we examined deployment information for eight weeks in winter (January 4 through February 28, 2023) and eight weeks in summer (July 7 through August 31, 2023). The department's main patrol force consists of patrol officers, operating on 10-hour shifts starting at 7:30 a.m., 4:00 p.m., and 10:00 p.m. The police department's main patrol force deployed an average of 6.3 officers per hour during the 24-hour day in winter 2023 and an average of 7.0 officers per hour in summer 2023. When patrol sergeants were included, the department averaged 7.9 units per hour during the 24-hour day in winter 2023 and 8.6 units in summer 2023.

In this section, we describe the deployment and workload in distinct steps, distinguishing between winter and summer and between weekdays (Monday through Friday) and weekends (Saturday and Sunday):

- First, we focus on patrol deployment alone.
- Next, we compare "all" workload, which includes community-initiated calls, police-initiated calls, directed patrol activities, and out-of-service activities.
- Finally, we compare the workload against deployment by percentage.

Comments follow each set of four figures, with separate discussions for summer and winter.

Observations:

- For Winter (January 4 through February 28, 2023):
  - The average deployment was 7.8 units per hour during the week and 8.1 units per hour on the weekend.
  - Average deployment varied from 5.6 to 12.4 units per hour on weekdays and 5.4 to 14.1 units per hour on weekends.
- For Summer (July 7 through August 31, 2023):
  - The average deployment was 8.5 units per hour during the week and 8.7 units per hour on the weekend.
  - Average deployment varied from 6.1 to 13.7 units per hour on weekdays and 5.5 to 15.1 units per hour on weekends.

Note: Figures 8-19 to 8-22 show deployment along with all workloads from community-initiated calls, police-initiated calls, directed patrol work, and out-of-service work.

Observations:

Winter:

- Community-initiated work:
  - Average community-initiated workload was 2.0 units per hour during the week and 2.2 units per hour on weekends.
  - This was approximately 25 percent of hourly deployment during the week and 26 percent of hourly deployment on weekends.
- All work:
  - Average workload was 2.9 units per hour during the week and 3.1 units per hour on weekends.
  - This was approximately 37 percent of hourly deployment during the week and 38 percent of hourly deployment on weekends.

Summer:

- Community-initiated work:
  - Average community-initiated workload was 2.6 units per hour during the week and 2.7 units per hour on weekends.
  - This was approximately 31 percent of hourly deployment during the week and 31 percent of hourly deployment on weekends.
- All work:
  - Average workload was 3.7 units per hour during the week and 3.8 units per hour on weekends.
  - This was approximately 44 percent of hourly deployment during the week and 43 percent of hourly deployment on weekends.

Observations:

Winter:

- Community-initiated work:
  - During the week, the workload reached a maximum of 41 percent of deployment between 6:45 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. and between 9:30 p.m. and 9:45 p.m.
  - On weekends, the workload reached a maximum of 49 percent of deployment between 7:15 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.
- All work:
  - During the week, the workload reached a maximum of 61 percent of deployment between 7:45 p.m. and 8:00 p.m.
  - On weekends, the workload reached a maximum of 68 percent of deployment between 7:15 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Summer:

- Community-initiated work:
  - During the week, the workload reached a maximum of 51 percent of deployment between 6:30 p.m. and 6:45 p.m.
  - On weekends, the workload reached a maximum of 47 percent of deployment between 2:45 p.m. and 3:00 p.m. and between 6:00 p.m. and 6:15 p.m.
- All work:
  - During the week, the workload reached a maximum of 64 percent of deployment between 6:00 p.m. and 6:15 p.m. and between 6:30 p.m. and 6:45 p.m.
  - On weekends, the workload reached a maximum of 63 percent of deployment between 9:30 p.m. and 9:45 p.m.

RESPONSE TIMES

We analyzed the response times to various types of calls, separating the duration into dispatch processing and travel time, to determine whether response times varied by call type. Response time is measured as the difference between when a call is received and when the first unit arrives on scene. This is further divided into dispatch processing and travel time. Dispatch processing is the time between when a call is received and when the first unit is dispatched. Travel time is the remaining time until the first unit arrives on scene.

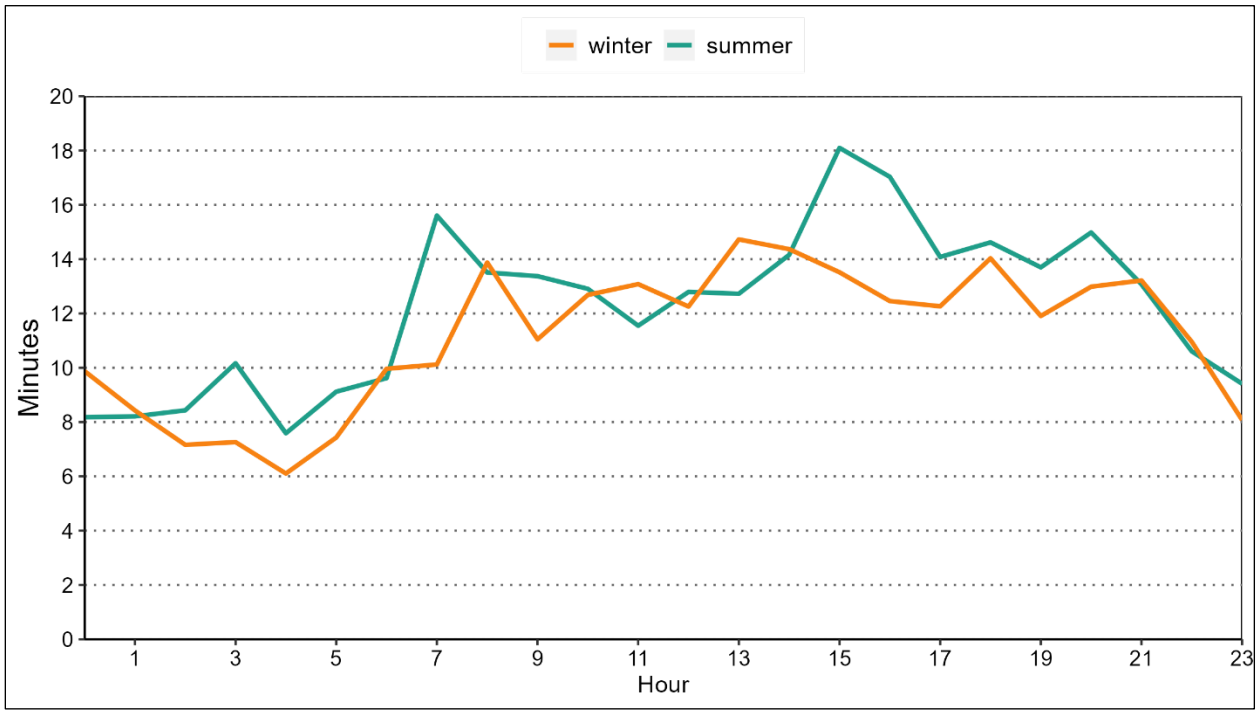
We begin the discussion with statistics that include all calls combined. We started with 3,962 calls in winter and 5,745 calls in summer. We limited our analysis to community-initiated calls, which amounted to 2,788 calls in winter and 4,045 calls in summer. In addition, we removed the calls lacking a recorded arriving unit, calls located at headquarters, as well as calls not in Minot PD beats. We were left with 2,182 calls in winter and 2,977 calls in summer for our analysis. For the entire year, we began with 30,615 calls and limited our analysis to 22,179 community-initiated calls. With similar exclusions, we were left with 17,005 calls.

Our initial analysis does not distinguish calls based on priority; instead, it examines the difference in response to all calls by time of day and compares winter and summer periods. We then present a brief analysis of response time for high-priority calls alone.

All Calls

This section looks at all calls without considering their priorities. In addition to examining the differences in response times by both time of day and season (winter vs. summer), we show differences in response times by category.

FIGURE 8-27: Average Response Time and Dispatch Processing, by Hour of Day, Winter, and Winter 2023



Observations:

- Average response times varied significantly by the hour of the day.
- In winter, the longest response times were between 1:00 p.m. and 2:00 p.m., with an average of 14.7 minutes.
- In winter, the shortest response times were between 4:00 a.m. and 5:00 a.m., with an average of 6.1 minutes.
- In summer, the longest response times were between 3:00 p.m. and 4:00 p.m., with an average of 18.1 minutes.
- In summer, the shortest response times were between 4:00 a.m. and 5:00 a.m., with an average of 7.6 minutes.

Note: A 90th percentile value of 24.3 minutes means that 90 percent of all calls are responded to in fewer than 24.3 minutes. For this reason, the columns for dispatch processing and travel time may not be equal to the total response time.

Observations:

- In winter, the 90th percentile value for response time was as short as 9 minutes (for alarms) and as long as 33 minutes (for general noncriminal calls).
- In summer, the 90th percentile value for response time was as short as 8 minutes (for alarms) and as long as 50 minutes (for general noncriminal calls).

- All three beats share a similar average response time, with beat A having the shortest average response time of 12.0 minutes.

High-Priority Calls

The department assigned priorities to calls with priority "high" as the highest priority. Table 8-19 shows average response times by priority. Also, we studied injury accidents to see if these provided an alternate measure for emergency calls. These calls were identified based on their call descriptions: "accident w/injuries" and "hit and run - injury."

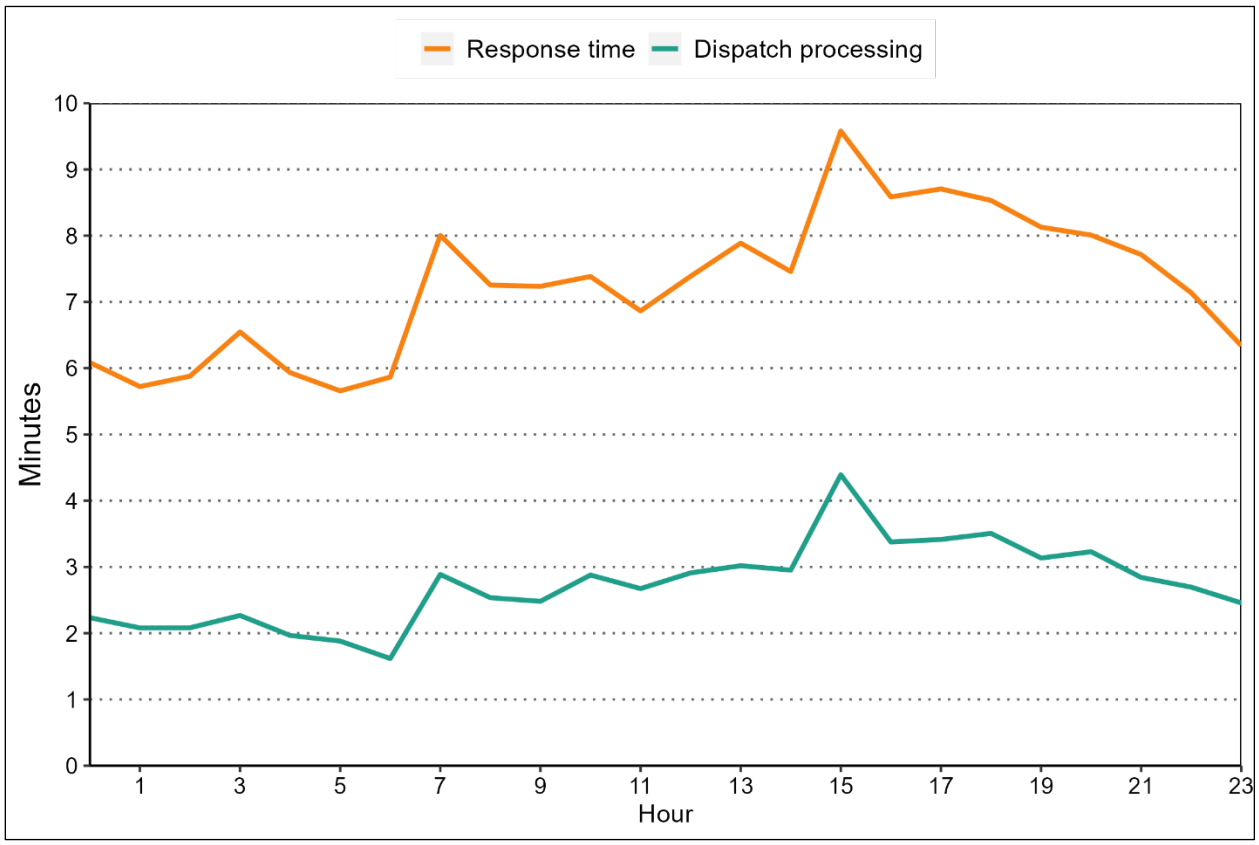
FIGURE 8-31: Average Response Times and Dispatch Processing for High-priority Calls, by Hour



Observations:

- High-priority calls had an average response time of 7.4 minutes, lower than the overall average of 12.4 minutes for all calls.
- Average dispatch processing was 2.8 minutes for high-priority calls, compared to 6.7 minutes overall.
- For high-priority calls, the longest response times were between 3:00 p.m. and 4:00 p.m., with an average of 9.6 minutes.
- For high-priority calls, the shortest response times were between 1:00 a.m. and 2:00 a.m. and between 5:00 a.m. and 7:00 a.m., with an average of 5.7 minutes.
- Average response time for injury accidents was 5.0 minutes, with a dispatch processing of 1.8 minutes.

APPENDIX B: UNIFORM CRIME REPORT INFORMATION

This section presents information obtained from Uniform Crime Reports (UCR) collected and reported by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) or on the North Dakota State Government website. The tables and figures include the most recent information that is publicly available at the national level. This includes crime reports for 2013 through 2022, along with clearance rates for 2021 and 2022. Crime rates are expressed as incidents per 100,000 population.

Thank you for your assistance in this important process. Please contact HR with any questions you may have.

RATING SCALE

5 - Exceptional	Performance is consistently superior and significantly exceeds position requirements.
4 - Highly Effective	Performance frequently exceeds position requirements..
3 - Proficient	Performance consistently meets position requirements.
2 - Needs Improvement	Performance meets some, but not all position requirements.
1 - Unsatisfactory	Performance consistently fails to meet minimum position requirements; employee lacks skills required or fails to utilize necessary skills.
N/A - Not Applicable	This item is not applicable to the employee's position.

QUESTIONS

Instructions

Conducting employee performance appraisals is a productive and meaningful activity that positively contributes to the success of our organization. For each of the questions or key performance indicators, you should measure the productivity of the employee and how he/she builds relationships across all levels of your organization to assist with effective and coordinated work.

1 - List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Category - Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

John is making a concerted effort to change and improve the Department. He cares deeply about his officers and staff. He has the courage to speak out when he has concerns. Has brought valuable resources and training to his department.

2 - List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Category - Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

Chief seems to struggle with a heavy workload, resulting sometimes in extended timeframes for completing projects.

3 - In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to besuccessful?

Category - Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

I think John is at the peak of his career as the Chief and has enough responsibility modernizing the department.

4 - What comments, ideas or suggestions would you add to your review?

Category - Employee Comments Employee only question

Employee Response

I would like to add that I appreciate the patience of the City management team while I worked through a very challenging year in the police department. Although I didn't realize the impact my actions and inactions had on the team, we successfully continued forward with the business end of our professional transactions. After successfully airing our some conflict within some of the management team, and going through a period of self-reflection, I think we are in a much better place and a stronger team than we were 6 months ago.

Reviewer Response

Reviewer response is not required as this is an Employee only Question.

5 - What can the City do to promote a better sense of overall employee satisfaction (i.e., training, communications, participation, growth opportunities)

Category - Employee Comments Employee only question

Employee Response

I think there is a fairly significant investment in the employees through advanced training and growth opportunities if employees are willing to take them on. There are also more opportunities than ever to get involved with the City team and participating in various events. I think the one area we need to focus on is recognizing that not all employees can be treated equally, but they can be treated fairly. Many of the concepts presented to address the police officer shortages have been met with the challenge of implementing the concepts of recruiting police officers in all other areas of the city, even through the same level of shortage does not exist. I think the City needs to address the problems, not try to create a systemic solution that compounds the expenses and complexity of possible solutions.

Reviewer Response

Reviewer response is not required as this is an Employee only Question.

6 - What can be done to better serve the customers/citizens of Minot by the City:

Category - Employee Comments — Employee only question

Employee Response

One of the concepts introduced through the 2024 budget process was implementation of stationary traffic cameras at key points within the City of Minot to help gather data for use in our investigations. This is being implemented in many communities with a high degree of success. It is a force multiplier for our "eyes" on the city and I think it would benefit the citizens through increased identification of suspects and decrease the length of time to make arrests stemming from some crimes within Minot.

Reviewer Response

Reviewer response is not required as this is an Employee only Question.

7 - What can be done to better serve the customers/citizens of Minot by Your Department:

Category - Employee Comments — Employee only question

Employee Response

I have been working hard with the other leaders in the police department to change the culture of our department. I think this change could lead to a more customer focused response and decrease our officer complaints and use of force incidents over time. This will not occur quickly, but I think there has been progress in the area of customer service.

Reviewer Response

Reviewer response is not required as this is an Employee only Question.

8 - What can be done to better serve the customers/citizens of Minot by You:

Category - Employee Comments — Employee only question

Employee Response

I need to find more time to interact with organizations outside of the law enforcement and emergency services agencies. I need to attend more community conversations about what is happening in Minot and what we need to make Minot a safer place to live and raise our families.

Reviewer Response

Reviewer response is not required as this is an Employee only Question.

9 - What can your supervisor do to help you reach your professional potential?

Category - Employee Comments — Employee only question

Employee Response

Continue to support my decisions even when they do not seem popular to some employees. As we have seen, this has proven beneficial based on the experience I bring with the issues being addressed. I think the understanding shown and willingness to work with me to work through tense work relationships has proven beneficial. Our ability to work with each other by explaining our needs and understanding of our roles should continue into the future. This communication ensures we both know what is happening in a very busy world of organizational management.

Reviewer Response

Reviewer response is not required as this is an Employee only Question.

10 - Other questions/comments:

Category - Employee Comments — Employee only question

Employee Response

Although we do not always see eye-to-eye, I would like to thank Harold for his understanding and support. Although I do not do well at showing my appreciation in the moment, I recognize he has a busy schedule and knowing that he trusts my decisions makes my job easier. I know I was a difficult employee for a portion of this year, and I hope the adjustments I made over the past couple months show my willingness to change through reflection on my role in the organization.

11 - Skill and proficiency in carrying out assignments	Weighted at 5%
Category -	Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

3 - Proficient

Assignments are carried out once Chief is able to dedicate the time to them. Projects can take longer at times than preferred. Examples would include helping resolve the parking ticket issue, negotiating the jail contract with the county, and renewal of the Animal Shelter contract.

12 - Possesses skills and knowledge to perform the job competently	Weighted at 5%
Category -	Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

4 - Highly Effective

John brings significant law enforcement experience and knowledge to the position. He is fairly well attuned to new methods and approaches to the profession.

13 - Skill at planning, organizing and prioritizing workload	Weighted at 5%
Category -	Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

3 - Proficient

I am not completely sure if some of the struggles in this area are a result of the amount of work Chief has to get done, a need to delegate, a need to do a better job prioritizing, or some combination of each. Chief has done a good job with his team planning and assessing needs for the police administration building, and transitioning the Dispatch Center.

14 - Holds self accountable for assigned responsibilities; sees tasks through tocompletion in a timely manner	Weighted at 5%
Category -	Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

3 - Proficient

I would give a rating of 4 on this category simply on the amount of accountability John has accepted this year, however the completing tasks in a timely manner makes a rating of 3 more appropriate.

15 - Proficiency at improving work methods and procedures as a means toward greaterefficiency	Weighted at 5%
Category -	Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

4 - Highly Effective

John and his team have made significant strides in implementing changes in procedures and approaches within the department to improve efficiency and sustainability. Implementing a rotation and updating the Axion equipment are some good examples.

16 - Communicates effectively with supervisor, peers, and customers	Weighted at 5%
Category -	Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

3 - Proficient

I believe Chief has done a good job communicating issues the Mayor and I need to be aware of in a timely manner. He communicates with some department heads better than others. I think regularly scheduling communication meetings with Legal, Finance and HR as outlined during our facilitated conversation this last year will enhance and improve some of the recent communication challenges.

17 - Ability to work independently	Weighted at 5%
Category -	Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

3 - Proficient

John has a significant workload and is self motivated to keep progressing.

18 - Ability to work cooperatively with supervision or as part of a team	Weighted at 5%
Category -	Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

3 - Proficient

As Chief alluded to in his comments he had a tough patch for a period this year. Once he recognized he was struggling, took some time off, and listened to some advice of those around him he has greatly improved over the last few months. He has been a better communicator, a better leader, and a better contributor to the management team. I appreciate his willingness to share his perspective and opinion in management team meetings.

	Weighted at 5%

19 - Takes specific steps to create and develop their diverse workforce and to promotean inclusive environment.

Category - Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

3 - Proficient

I don't think everyone in his department has bought into what he is trying to do, but I do believe John is trying to create a better and more inclusive environment. There has been turnover and a struggle to recruit new staff, but this is a struggle throughout the State and country. I have definitely appreciate his intentional efforts regarding mental health.

20 - Willingness to take on additional responsibilities Weighted at 5%

Category - Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

N/A - Not Applicable

John has enough on his plate with his current responsibilities and department needs.

21 - Reliability (attendance, punctuality, meeting deadlines) Weighted at 5%

Category - Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

3 - Proficient

No concerns, communicates well when he needs to be absent or late.

22 - Adeptness at analyzing facts, problem solving, decision-making, and demonstrating good judgment — Weighted at 5%

Category - Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

3 - Proficient

I believe he has a good grasp and understanding on these principles. We usually agree on the priorities of his department, though perhaps the ranking of those priorities is where we sometimes don't see eye to eye on.

23 - Operation, Maintenance and Care of Department Equipment — Weighted at 5%

Category - Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

3 - Proficient

Has done a good job getting vehicles on contract and trying to save money over the long run. I think the change of having equipment installed professionally before delivery was also a wise change. I would still like to see how we could reduce accidents and damage involving patrol vehicles.

24 - Safety Habits, Use of personal protective equipment, Reports hazards	Weighted at 35%
Category -	Reviewer Only Question

Employee Response

Employee response is not required as this is a Reviewer only Question.

Reviewer Response

3 - Proficient

No concerns at this time.

OVERALL COMMENTS

Employee Response

2023 has been very challenging for the police department and for the law enforcement community. The financial challenges faced by the City of Minot while also experiencing steady growth will take work by all, including the citizens. Tough decisions will have to be made, but we cannot stop advancing our services with hope that they will be less expensive or unneeded in the future, that will not happen. Communication will be key in these situations, as we saw with our presentation of PD space needs and the community focus group and open houses.

Reviewer Response

Overall Rating
3 - Proficient

John and his department have had some very difficult situations and some great successes this last year. The losses have weighed heavily on John this last year, but I believe he has found renewed strength and is in a better place now. This last year we have also made significant progress on rebuilding a stronger foundation for a better department in the future. These have included the Dispatch Center (which the transition was almost as flawless as could be hoped for), the space needs assessment for the administration building, and beginning the CPSM assessment. With these pieces coming online, and our focus on the potential Public Safety Tax, 2024 is positioned to be one of the most pivotal years in the history of the department. John's leadership and our ability to work together will be crucial to capitalizing on the potential of 2024.

City of Minot

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Chief and his team have been striving to change the culture and efficiency of the department. Although he doesn't necessarily agree with some organizational changes I appreciate he accepts them and works towards success.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Projects can tend to take significantly longer than the time frames Chief provides. Would like to see better engagement with his staff and shifts as I think this will build more unity and connection with his department. Use direct feedback in conjunction with what he hears from his supervisors.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Is there a leadership institute or training for police chiefs?

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

- Develop department mission and values.
- Develop a wellness plan, implement in phases.
- Continue to change the culture of negativity within the department.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

- Attend IACP and/or FBINAA conferences.
- Research other leadership institutes and training geared for police chiefs. Present in 2024 budget proposal.

Employee Comments

1. What comments, ideas or suggestions would you add to your review?

I would like to see the Council reach out with questions when approached by citizens, prior to acting on what may not actually be a problem. I have seen several reactions to information where it is assumed we are not doing our job or supporting the community. In most of these situations, we just have to know what the complaint was and we can explain why something was or was not done.

Additionally, I have been targeted on several occasions by "unknown" or "anonymous" email writers, who also try to gain the attention of the media. I appreciate the support of the Council who have taken time to meet with me to let me explain who I am. It means a lot that they value what I have to say.

2. What can the City do to promote a better sense of overall employee satisfaction (i.e., training, communications, participation, growth opportunities)

The City needs to continue to support our department's training plan in the coming years. We struggle to get our officers to quality training, but my plan is to focus on leading the charge with hosting training, affording more opportunities to our staff members without the added travel expense. We plan to supplement the plan with State funding and other grant type funds.

3. What can be done to better serve the customers/citizens of Minot by:

a.) The City:

b.) Your Department: Support the Command Team in our actions and decisions. We have a lot of experience and my team is in a great position with our communication.

c.) You:

4. What can your supervisor do to help you reach your professional potential?

Continue to support my requests to attend conferences and training for professional development.

Additional performance competencies for employees with supervisory responsibilities

14. Displays fairness towards all subordinates. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: I believe Chief treats is staff fairly and appropriately. He holds everyone accountable equally.

15. Identifies performance expectations, gives timely feedback and conducts formal performance appraisals. — N/A

Brief explanation: I will be able to assess better upon the completion of the 2021 Performance evaluations

16. Helps employees to see the potential for developing their skills; assists them in eliminating barriers to their development. — N/A

Brief explanation: I will be able to assess better upon the completion of the 2021 Performance evaluations

17. Delegates responsibility where appropriate, based on the employee's ability and potential. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Chief appropriately delegates responsibility. I have not heard of any unreasonable expectations by the Chief for his department.

18. Takes timely and appropriate corrective/disciplinary action with employees. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Chief deals with corrective/disciplinary issue promptly and appropriately.

19. Takes specific steps to create and develop their diverse workforce and to promote an inclusive environment. — 4-Highly Effe

Brief explanation: Maintaining and recruiting police officers and staff has been difficult in the recent past. Chief is open to new approaches and methods, and I believe wants to foster an inclusive environment. While there is always room for improvement, Minot has one of the most diverse Police Departments I am aware of.

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Chief is honest and loyal. He is also very dedicated and passionate about his profession. I think he is doing a good job involving his staff in fostering appropriate changes in how the PD conducts business.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

There have been a few errors that Chief has taken accountability for. I think better systems of checks and balances need implemented within his department to prevent breakdowns prior to their needing involvement of the Chief. One of the most significant challenges for the Police Department is recruiting and retaining quality staff.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

I am not sure Chief needs increased responsibility as his position already has a significant amount. I would like Chief to research the requirements for potentially becoming a CALEA certified department.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

Develop goals and performance measures that correlate with the Community Survey results.
Research CALEA Certification
Work with Derek Hackett on developing a Public Information plan within current resources
Develop RFP for Minot Pound Contract Bid
Bid out the City Towing Contract

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

Develope new police department mission statement and values. Ensure it compliments the City Mission Statement.
Engage employees with the new City Mission Statement.
Develop better organizational skills to ensure tasks are completed in a timely manner.
Work to communicate clearly with the City Manager and other members of the Management Team.
Identify and clearly present department needs during budget process.
Continue independent self-improvement in various areas of leadership (reading/research).
Develop my Command and Leadership Teams to for increased responsibility and involvement in City administrative processes.

Police Department

July 24, 2020

To: Master Officer Kevin Cory

Ref: Investigation of Use of Force Concerns (Internal Case #20-5)

On December 2, 2019 Officer Cory arrested Willie Jackson Jr. (19-38060) and Jackson was ultimately charged with charges in Municipal and District Court. I received a call from an Assistant Ward County State's Attorney in March 2020 after taking over as Chief of Police. They were concerned about what they saw when they watched the video of Officer Cory dealing with Jackson. I reviewed the video and had concerns, but by itself, I did not proceed with an internal investigation.

On May 3, 2020 I assigned Lt. Matt McLeod to the Office of Professional Standards, a new position created for the Minot Police Department. In that role, one of his first tasks was to work on a way to better track officers' use of force incidents. Through that process, Lt. McLeod identified Officer Cory had a higher occurrence of reporting use of force. That information paired with the recent report of concern with Jackson and the discipline Officer Cory received in August 2019 for an incident, I requested Lt. McLeod review his use of force cases in 2019 and 2020 to see if there were any other concerns.

Lt. McLeod reported back to the command staff in June and informed us that there were 5 cases of concern from 2019, which all had potential violations of Minot Police Department policy. The details of those incidents and investigations into the incidents are documented in Lt. Matt McLeod's report for his investigation.

Some of the cases from 2019, if considered individually, may not warrant significant discipline against an officer. However, in viewing the cases collectively, it is clear that Officer Cory exhibits a pattern of excessive force and/or abuse of authority. There have been prior attempts to correct this behavior, but those attempts did not resolve or alleviate the issues. Further corrective actions will not likely be an effective method for Office Cory.

Although the facts surrounding 20-5.1 fit the written definition of Policy # 300.3.1 and 322.5.9, it appears Officer Cory attempted to stop the subject just after he entered the house and that attempt pulled him beyond the threshold of the door and into the residence. The arrest was made as he grabbed onto the subject and was pulled into the residence while taking him into custody and handcuffing him. I find these violations are not sustained.

In 20-5.2 the attempt to control and detain a person who may have been the driver in a motor vehicle crash led to Officer Cory forcefully slamming the subject to the roadway, then delivering a knee strike to his back. The male was not cooperating, but to that point he was not under arrest and was not physically resisting the officers. I agree with all three policy violations in this case and find Officer Cory was in violation of Policy # 300.3.1, 300.3, and 322.5.9.

Case # 20-5.3 led to a confrontation with a person who was a passenger in a car and had a warrant for his arrest. During this incident, Officer Cory reached into the vehicle to grab a beer bottle the subject was about to take a drink out of and after grabbing the bottle away from the subject, went back to grab him and the window began going up. Officer Cory said his arm was "stuck" in the window; however, upon review of body camera video, Officer Cory is clearly striking the subject in the face and his arm is not stuck. He then stepped away from the vehicle and tried breaking the window with his flashlight. He then radios that he was assaulted. The evidence shows there was not an officer assaulted. I agree Officer Cory violated Policy # 322.5.8(a), 322.5.9(c), and 300.3.1. In this case I tend to find 300.3 to be not sustained as the violation of 300.3.1 covers the unreasonable force in this case.

Case # 20-5.4, Officer Cory responded with other officers to the report of a possible domestic violence call. When officers arrived, they could hear a female screaming and a male yelling and they attempted to breach the door due to fear that the female was being assaulted. The male subject opened the door and he was completely naked. He was immediately taken to the ground and handcuffed. He was taken into the hallway where they put a pair of pants on him. I believe, given the circumstances, everything to this point was handled within policy. Then, while in the hallway, the subject leans toward Officer Cory and makes a few comments. Officer Cory grabs the male by the back of the neck and throws him to the ground. At this point I agree that he violated Policy 322.5.9(b), (c), and (f). Additionally, I find Officer Cory in violation of Policy # 322.5.8(a) because of the video evidence and his description of the incident to Sgt. Johnson when he arrived on scene and what he describes in his report.

Case # 20-5.5 Officer Cory responded to a report of a male in the roadway yelling. Officer Cory approached the male without a cover unit and was told by the subject that he was on the phone. Officer Cory forced the point of trying to identify the male even though there was no other enforcement action to take at that point. I agree Officer Cory violated policy 322.5.9(c) and (f) in this case. I do not think there is enough evidence to find he violated subsection (b) in this case.

In addition to the first five cases I also feel it is necessary to outline another case that occurred in 2019 about one month after Officer Cory used excessive force against a male on a traffic stop which ultimately led to disciplinary action and suspension. In 20-5.6 officers responded to a disorderly conduct call at My Place hotel. This incident was reported as a fight and when officers arrived there was not an active fight. Officers Cory and Shaide stayed on scene and eventually, one of the males became agitated and started arguing with officers. This incident ultimately ended with the male being tased and arrested for disorderly conduct and preventing arrest. In this case, Policy # 300.3.1, 300.3, 322.5.9(b), (c), and (f) are all sustained based on the facts of the case. In reference to Policy # 322.5.8(a), I also sustain this violation based on the inconsistency of the video evidence, verbal description to the field supervisor, and written report for the case.

Finally, I had also directed Lt. McLeod to look at all cases from 2020 in which Officer Cory was involved in a use of force. There were two incidents reported and one of the two (20-5.7) was a traffic stop of a vehicle during which the driver got out of the vehicle upon coming to the stop. Officer Cory immediately pulls his gun and orders the subject to his knees, handcuffs him, and detains him and there is nothing to support this response. I sustain the violations of Policy # 300.3 and 322.5.9(b), (c), and (f) in this incident.

Findings: In the seven (7) cases listed above I have confirmed there are several policy violations. The following policy violations are sustained and are basis for the disciplinary action in this case.

- Policy 300 – Use of Force
  - 300.3 – Use of Force
    - Officers shall use only that amount of force that reasonably appears necessary given the facts and circumstances perceived by the officer at the time of the event to accomplish a legitimate law enforcement purpose.
  - 300.3.1 – Use of Force to Effect an Arrest
    - An officer may use reasonable force to effect an arrest if, after notice of intention to arrest the person, the person either flees or forcibly resists (N.D.C.C. 29-06-13)
- Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct
  - 322.5.8 – Performance
    a. Failure to disclose or misrepresenting material facts or making any false or misleading statement on any application, examination form, or other official document, report, or form, or during the course of any work-related investigation.
  - 322.5.9 – Conduct
    b. Unreasonable and unwarranted force to a person encountered or a person under arrest.
    c. Exceeding lawful peace officer powers by unreasonable, unlawful, or excessive conduct.
    f. Discourteous, disrespectful, or discriminatory treatment of any member of the public or any member of this department or the City.

Decision: As a result of these findings I am ordering the following:

- Kevin Cory's employment with the City of Minot – Police Department is to be terminated unless he chooses to resign.
- If Kevin Cory chooses termination, any grievance or appeal will follow the process set aside in the City Employee Manual, Chapter 7.

To: Master Police Officer Joshua Lund

Ref: Internal Investigation # 20-9

This letter is a summary and order of discipline resulting from Officer Lund's performance while under a formal performance improvement plan. Capt. Sundheim has forwarded a summary of investigation for my review on September 24th, 2020 (attached). I have reviewed the report as well as any video available for review pertaining to Officer Lund's driving and emergency driving and the concerns expressed by his supervisors and I agree with the findings.

In addition to the cases outlined I conducted a random review of several fleet videos on file of Officer Lund and I found additional video that showed clear violations of policy. These are not included in the summary or this letter, but only mentioned to show that there appears to be a continual problem with Officer Lund's driving, and something must be done to correct the problem.

As stated earlier, Officer Lund is currently on a performance improvement plan (PIP) to address concerns about his driving. This PIP was originally put in place on January 16, 2020. It was adjusted on August 1, 2020 to incorporate specific driving concerns and it is monitored by Sgt. Jared Foley and Lt. Shane Haug. Officer Lund had previously been disciplined for driving related issues as follows:

- February 19, 2019 – Written reprimand for pursuit / driving related policy violations.
- October 3, 2019 – Received a 3-day (30 hour) suspension without pay for driving related to a pursuit on June 23, 2019.

Findings: The actions by Officer Joshua Lund during his many attempts to stop traffic violators and respond to calls put the community we serve at increased risk of accident or injury. The failure to use emergency equipment and/or excessive speeds traveled are unacceptable. I find the following policy violations are all sustained and are basis for the disciplinary action in this case.

- Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct
  - 322.5.10 – Safety
    (f) Unsafe or improper driving habits or actions in the course of employment or appointment.

- Policy 308 – Officer Response to Calls
  - 308.2 – Response to Calls - Officers responding to an emergency call shall proceed immediately. Officers shall continuously operate emergency lighting equipment and, if appropriate, sound the siren (N.D.C.C. § 39-10-03). Responding with emergency lights and siren does not relieve the officer of the duty to drive with due regard for the safety of all persons and property and does not protect the officer from the consequences of reckless disregard for the safety of others.
    a. In pursuit or apprehension of a violator or suspected violator.

b. Dispatched or otherwise in response to a reported emergency involving a possible personal injury, death, or damage to property.

Discipline: As a result of these findings I am ordering the following for Master Officer Joshua Lund:

- Officer Lund will be suspended without pay for a period of 16 days (160 hours).
  - Josh will honor all subpoenas during this suspension. The subpoena fee will be his compensation for attending court.
- Officer Lund's pay will be deducted 5% effective Sunday, September 27, 2020 for a period of 24 weeks (168 days).
- Officer Lund will not receive his 2021 pay plan step increase.
- Officer Lund will complete a review of 10 assigned videos and assess his driving behaviors and policy violations. He will complete a written report outlining his observations to the Chief of Police.
- Officer Lund will undergo remedial training with Lt. Matt McLeod where he will further discuss the videos outlined above as well as discuss department policy, procedures, and best practices.
- A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Joshua Lund at the City of Minot Human Resource Office.

Any future violations of policy may result in progressive disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

INTERNAL INVESTIGATION

Minot Police Department

Internal Case File 20-9

EMPLOYEE: Josh Lund

DATE OF INCIDENT: May 2020-Sept 2020

INVESTIGATION PERFORMED BY:

Capt. Justin Sundheim

DATE OF COMPLAINT/INVESTIGATION: 09.22.20/09.24.20

SYNOPSIS:

Officer Lund is under a performance improvement plan (PIP) to include monitoring emergency driving situations. During that review, Sgt. Foley documented several incidents that were of concern. Those incidents, as well as past incidents where Officer Lund was verbally counseled were investigated to better understand a totality of the situation.

SUMMARY OF INVESTIGATION:

Lt. Haug discussed an incident of concern with me where Officer Lund was traveling over 100 mph in pursuit of a speeding vehicle. Lt. Haug issued a letter of counseling on 09.22.20 regarding the incident. Upon review of the video, (20-26602) Officer Lund passes one vehicle on the right over 100 mph (without emergency lights). A separate vehicle is at an intersection and pauses after beginning to enter the roadway. Driver appears to have noticed Lund's speed as he approached.

A further discussion with Lt Haug revealed that Sgt. Foley had documented several incidents of concern during the course of the PIP review. (list is attached)

09.22.20-I met with Officer Lund and Lt. Haug in my office. Lt. Haug counseled Officer Lund on the above mentioned incident (20-26602). Copy of counsel attached.

I gave Officer Lund notice of investigation in regards to this case. (attach) He was informed multiple incidents will be reviewed in regards to adhering to driving relating policies.

09.24.20-I reviewed the following incidents.

20-14088 (05.20.20). Accident call. Unable to review video as it has expired. See Sgt. Foley documentation (attached) for detailed description. Sgt. Foley indicated Officer Lund was traveling 40/25 without lights or siren initially. Upon activation of lights, Officer Lund then proceeds to travel speeds up to 51 mph in a residential area (1100-1400 blk of 3rd St SE)

----Upon review of the radio dispatch, it is reported as a "possible" Injury accident as the reporting party just wanted her 5 yr old checked out as they "bumped" their head.

Minot Police Department

20-20276 (07.15.20) Officer Lund begins to respond to assist Officer Wilkerson who is at the Sportsmans Loft. Wilkerson is investigating a recovered stolen firearm case. The situation begins to escalate and Officer Lund begins to respond. At least one other unit is in the area with Officer Wilkerson. In the review of the Fleet video and radio traffic, the follow was determined.

---Officer Lund was southbound on S. Broadway in about the 800 blk when he radios, he will respond. He begins to accelerate and approaches 55 mph (35 zone) before lights and eventually siren was activated.

---Officer Lund does a good job at slowing at intersections but is traveling consistently around 60 mph (64 max) in the center turn lane. It is 1000 AM on a weekday with relatively heavy traffic.

---Officer Wilkerson radios that responding units can slow their response. Officer Lund acknowledges, but continues to travel in the middle no-travel portion of the road, opposite side of road, passing multiple cars in in speeds of 35-50 mph. This occurs from 2000 blk-2800 blk of S. Broadway.

20-22903 (08.08.20) Officer Lund is initiating a traffic stop on a speeding vehicle. Officer Lund is initially traveling southbound in the 2200 N. Broadway and turns around at that intersection. Officer Lund travels at speeds between 75-80 mph (40 and 55 zone) attempting to get behind the vehicle. Traffic is moderate so Officer Lund must negotiate 3 separate vehicles and lane changes before getting behind the vehicle in question.

20-24871 (08.27.20) Officer Lund is responding to a medical call. As Officer Lund is negotiating the bridge curve (near Valley on 27th St SE), he travels in the middle lane and even encroaches into the opposite lane. There is another vehicle approaching the same curve from the opposite direction.

20-27370 (09.18.20) Officer Lund initiates apprehension of a traffic violator. Officer Lund turns around at 8th St NW/3rd Ave and begins to travel westbound to catch up to the vehicle. As Officer Lund negotiates the curves (as it transitions to 4th Ave), he travels into eastbound traffic lane in speeds of excess of 50 mph. (51-56 mph)

Based on the facts gathered during this investigation, violations in regard to MPD Policy STANDARDS OF CONDUCT 322.5.10 SAFETY are SUSTAINED.

(f) Unsafe or improper driving habits or actions in the course of employment or appointment.

Minot Police Department

Violations in regard to MPD Policy OFFICER RESPONSE TO CALLS 308 are SUSTAINED.

308.2 Officers responding to an emergency call shall proceed immediately. Officers shall continuously operate emergency lighting equipment and, if appropriate, sound the siren (N.D.C.C. § 39-10-03). Responding with emergency lights and siren does not relieve the officer of the duty to drive with due regard for the safety of all persons and property and does not protect the officer from the consequences of reckless disregard for the safety of others.

Officers should only respond to a call as an emergency response when (N.D.C.C. § 39-10-03(2)):

(a) In pursuit or apprehension of a violator or suspected violator.
(b) Dispatched or otherwise in response to a reported emergency involving a possible personal injury, death or damage to property

05.20.20 (20-14088) Officer Lund is responding to a possible injury accident, however dispatch distinctly informs responding units that the reporting party just wanted her 5 yr old "checked out". Emergency response is not proper or needed for this type of call.

07.15.20 (20-20276) Officer Lund is responding to a call for assistance. Even though policy allows officer discretion for emergency response, Officer Wilkerson had notified other officers (per policy 308.4) to slow response. As a result, Officer Lund's response is in violation of policy specifically 308.

08.27.20 (20-24871) Officer Lund is responding to a medical call. Officer Lund travels in and crosses over the middle turn lane and unnecessarily encroaches into the opposite lane of traffic. Oncoming traffic is visible. Although using part of the middle turn lane may be useful/safe when responding code as it could increase reaction time, the vehicle should not encroach into oncoming traffic unnecessarily, as in this incident.

09.18.20 (20-27370) Officer Lund is attempting to stop a suspected traffic violation. In doing so, before he activates his emergency lights, he travels in the opposite side/traffic on a curve, in excess of 20 mph over the speed limit.

CONCLUSION:

It appears Officer Lund has difficulty determining when activation of emergency lights is appropriate, required, or allowed. It also appears Officer Lund consistently and unnecessarily goes into potential oncoming traffic lanes while either responding to calls or pursuing a traffic violator.

Forwarded to Chief Klug for further review.

Officers shall continuously operate emergency lighting equipment and, if appropriate, sound the siren (N.D.C.C. § 39-10-03). Responding with emergency lights and siren does not relieve the officer of the duty to drive with due regard for the safety of all persons and property and does not protect the officer from the consequences of reckless disregard for the safety of others.

City of Minot

Police Department

December 15, 2020

To: Master Police Officer Joshua Lund

Ref: Internal Investigation # 20-14.1

This letter is a summary and order of discipline resulting from Master Police Officer Lund's performance resulting from an incident that occurred on November 15, 2020. Lt. Matt McLeod was assigned the investigation into an incident wherein he responded to the north city limits on Highway 83 to be in the area as a Ward County Deputy approached Minot in pursuit of a vehicle.

Officer Lund heard the radio traffic of the Ward County Unit and called the Shift Commander to request permission to respond to the area of North Highway 83 to be in the area and assist if needed. The call to the desk was answered by Master Police Officer Erik Laudenschlager who was the field supervisor and filling in for Sgt. Jared Foley while he was away from the police department. During the call Officer Laudenschlager told Officer Lund he could respond to the area and help if needed, but he did not have permission to spike the vehicle. Officer Lund acknowledged the message delivered to him by Officer Laudenschlager. This was confirmed with video obtained from the Ward County Sheriff's Department from the in-car video from the pursuing deputy's patrol car.

Officer Lund is currently on a performance improvement plan (PIP) to address concerns about his driving. This PIP was originally put in place on January 16, 2020. It was adjusted on August 1, 2020 to incorporate specific driving concerns and it is monitored by Sgt. Jared Foley and Lt. Shane Haug. Officer Lund had previously been disciplined for driving related issues as follows:

- February 19, 2019 – Written reprimand for pursuit / driving related policy violations.
- October 3, 2019 – Received a 3-day (30 hours) suspension without pay for driving related to a pursuit on June 23, 2019.
- September 25, 2020 – Received a 16-day (160 hours) suspension without pay, 5% deduction in pay for 24 weeks (168 days), loss of 2021 pay increase, and remedial training pertaining to emergency driving.

In addition to the points made above, I met with the supervisors who are assigned to Day Shift (Lt. Shane Haug, Sgt. Jared Foley, Sgt. Jason Bambenek, and Sgt. Joshua Noyes) and work with Officer Lund. All expressed concern with Officer Lund's judgement and decision making and they have lost confidence in his ability to perform at the level of a Master Police Officer with the department. The supervision on the shift has adjusted their decision making to allow less control by Officer Lund when they know he is on a higher priority call to try to mitigate any increased risk of liability caused by the pattern of poor decisions and policy violations. The latest policy violations, which are addressed in this letter, occurred on Officer Lund's 12th day of work since returning from a 16-day suspension.

Findings: The actions by Officer Joshua Lund during this incident violated multiple Minot Police Department policies. A full report and explanation of these violations are outlined in Lt. McLeod's investigative summary. I find the following policy violations are all sustained and are basis for the disciplinary action in this case.

- Policy 307.8 – Pursuit Intervention
  - 307.8.1 – When Use is Authorized – Whenever practical, an officer shall seek approval from a supervisor before employing a pursuit intervention tactic.
  - 307.8.3 – Intervention Standards
    (b) Tire deflation devices should be deployed only when it is reasonably apparent that only the pursued vehicle will be affected by their use. Prior to the deployment of spike strips, the officer should notify pursuing units and the supervisor of the intent and location.

- Policy 420 – Mobile Audio/Video
  (a) All field contacts involving actual or potential criminal conduct within video or audio range. (3) Vehicle Pursuits
  (b) All self-initiated activity in which an officer would normally notify Minot Central Dispatch
  (e) Any other circumstance where the officer believes that a recording of an incident would be appropriate.

- Policy 422 – Portable Audio/Video Recorders
  - 422.9 – Activation of the Audio/Video Recorder
    (c) Self-initiated activity in which a member would normally notify Minot Central Dispatch.

- Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct
  - 322.3 – Directives and Orders – Members shall comply with lawful directives and orders from any department supervisor or person in a position of authority, absent a reasonable and bona fide justification.

The report provided by Lt. McLeod outlines the violations of policies 307 – Pursuit Intervention, 420 – Mobile Audio/Video, and 422 – Portable Audio/Video Recorders. His report did not outline the violation of policy 322 – Standards of Conduct as it pertains specifically to policy 322.3 – Directives and Orders. All were violated by Officer Lund when he deployed the spike strips against the direction of the Field Supervisor in charge at the time and did not notify the pursuing deputy of his intention to do so. Officer Lund also failed to activate his in-car and body camera video during the incident. One reason provided was that the incident happened too fast and he did not have time. That is clearly not the case as any of these would have taken just a few seconds to perform to be compliant with department policy.

Discipline: As a result of these findings, I am ordering the following for Master Officer Joshua Lund:

- Officer Lund's employment with the City of Minot – Police Department is to be terminated unless he chooses to resign. Any appeal of this decision will follow the City of Minot policy.
- A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Joshua Lund at the City of Minot Human Resource Office.

Summary of Investigation:

On the morning of November 16th, I was notified by Lt. Haug and Sgt. Foley of an incident that occurred the day before. The Sheriff's Office had been involved in a pursuit that ended up coming to Minot. Officer Lund responded to the north end of town. He subsequently attempted to use tire spikes on the suspect vehicle. I was advised that not only had he not been given permission to spike by the supervisor, he was told specifically not to. I was further advised that the only video of the incident was a 2-minute body cam video from Officer Lund, after the subject had crashed and he was talking to deputies.

I pulled the phone call that Officer Lund made to Officer Laudenschlager at the shift commander's desk. Officer Lund advised him of the county pursuit and requested permission to head up to the north side of town and 83 to be in position to deploy spikes. Officer Lund was told that he could head up there but was specifically told that he was not authorized to put out strips. There was no further phone communication or radio traffic between Officer Lund and Laudenschlager until after the attempt to spike was made. The call was added to the file

I checked on Evidence.com for video of the incident. As told, the only thing there was a short video from Officer Lund after the incident ended. In that video, I saw that Officer Lynn had been on scene as well. I contacted Capt. Kraft from the Sheriff's Office to request their video. A while later I received the video from Deputy Wyatt Smith's car. As the pursuit was southbound towards Minot, Officer Lund's patrol car can be seen parked in a crossover without its emergency lights. The suspect driver realized what was going on and drove through the ditch and into the northbound lanes. Officer Lund could be seen trying to get over to those lanes and throwing the spike strip. He was not successful. The suspect driver subsequently crashed his car into a light pole and rolled the car. The in-car video was added to the file as well.

In the video from Deputy Smith, Officer Lund can be seen moving to the northbound lanes, and deploying the spike strip after the suspect car, drove through the ditch and into the northbound lanes. The spike deployment was not successful. This was done without requesting permission from supervision.

307.8.3(b) Intervention Standards – Tire deflation devices should be deployed only when it is reasonably apparent that only the pursued vehicle will be affected by their use. Prior to the deployment of spike strips, the officer shall notify pursuing units and the supervisor of the intent and location. Officers should carefully consider the limitations of such devices as well as the potential risk to officers, the public and occupants of the pursued vehicle.

Officer Lund set up at a cross-over north of 46th Ave NW. He did not radio to dispatch or to pursuing officers of his location and intent to deploy spikes.

#420 MOBILE AUDIO/VIDEO

420.4.1(a)3(b)(e) Required Activation of the MAV – This policy is not intended to describe every possible situation in which the MAV system may be used, although there are many situations where its use is appropriate. An officer may activate the system any time the officer believes it would be appropriate or valuable to document an incident.

In some circumstances it is not possible to capture images of the incident due to conditions or the location of the camera. However, the audio portion can be valuable evidence and is subject to the same activation requirements as the MAV. The MAV system should be activated in any of the following situations:

(a) All field contacts involving actual or potential criminal conduct within video or audio range.

3. Vehicle Pursuits

(b) All self-initiated activity in which an officer would normally notify Minot Central Dispatch.

(e) Any other circumstance where the officer believes that a recording of an incident Would be appropriate.

The in-car system was not activated during this incident. Officer Lund did not use emergency equipment in his response to the location on N 83, therefore the system would need to be manually started. That should have taken place after he arrived at his location.

#422 PORTABLE AUDIO/VIDEO RECORDERS

422.9(c) Activation of the Audio/Video Recorder - This policy is not intended to describe every possible situation in which the MAV system may be used, although there are many situations where its use is appropriate. An officer may activate the system any time the officer believes it would be appropriate or valuable to document an incident.

The portable recorder should be activated in any of the following situations:

(c) Self-initiated activity in which a member would normally notify Minot Central Dispatch.

The body cam for Officer Lund should have been activated while en-route to the location on N 83, or at the latest when he arrived there. The spiking of a pursued vehicle is a high liability event and certainly falls under the parameters of events to be recorded. While Officer Lund

Ref: Internal Investigation 21-13.1

This is a summary and order of discipline resulting from an investigation into the use of door codes to access Minot Central Dispatch. I had issued a directive in August 2020, limiting access to Minot Central Dispatch to ensure their safety and health due to an increase in COVID cases in the Minot community. On August 19, 2021, I reissued the mask directive and suggested to my command staff that we consider removing officer codes from the dispatch door. On August 30, 2021, Captain Justin Sundheim sent an email stating... effective immediately, most personnel will not have access to enter dispatch. Supervisors will have continued access but are expected to only enter dispatch when absolutely needed. Capt. Sundheim was informed that Officer Kircher was seen in dispatch, and it was noted that he used a code that was not his to enter the room. When asked by PSAP Manager Margaret Haugan, Kircher did not provide the name of the person whose code he used. The investigation was opened on September 20, 2021. Upon completion of the initial interviews, I determined there was an obvious inconsistency between the statements given by Officer Kircher and the one given by Sergeant Wilk.

I redirected Lt. McLeod to interview all officers on Afternoon Shift to determine if Sgt. Wilk had given them his code. This was due to Sgt. Wilk saying he did not give the code during his initial interview, and again when I asked him specifically if he had given his code to Kircher and he said "No". My conversation with Sgt. Wilk occurred on October 5th around 4:45 PM in my office. I had also spoken with Officer Kircher, and he was detailed in how he asked Sgt. Wilk for his door code later the same evening that he witnessed Sgt. Wilk give his code to the door to multiple officers who were in the shift commander's office. Kircher said when he got to the door, he paused and asked Sgt. Wilk, what's the code for the door again, and Sgt. Wilk said the code out loud, and Officer Kircher entered dispatch.

Officer Kircher began his employment with the Police Department on April 12, 2021 and was on probationary status with the City of Minot until his termination on October 11th, 2021. His termination was due to multiple policy violations stemming from this incident and as a probationary employee, I thought it in the best interest of the Police Department and City to do so.

Lt. McLeod interviewed twelve (12) additional officers assigned to afternoon shift on October 7th and 8th and submitted his report. Those interviews indicated that more officers were either given Sgt. Wilk's code directly from him or they witnessed Sgt. Wilk give the code to another officer.

On October 9th, 2021, at about 4:00 PM, I met with Lt. Shane Haug and Sgt. Kevin Wilk in my office, and I placed Sgt. Wilk on paid administrative leave. On October 11th I received a text from Sgt. Wilk asking if I could give him a call as he had questions about the administrative leave. I called Sgt. Wilk that afternoon and he asked if he was under investigation. I told him that due to the inconsistencies reported in the original statements and in some of the others that had been completed, that he was now the subject of an internal investigation, and that Captain Dale Plessas was assigned to complete the remaining tasks I found necessary. I further explained that Capt. Plessas would likely be reaching out on October 12th to conduct a follow up interview with Sgt. Wilk. He said that answered all of his questions and started to explain his position and the fact that he knows he violated policy and was "misleading" when he spoke to me. Sgt. Wilk went on to explain that he thought he was misleading because when I asked him directly if he gave Kircher his door code so he could enter dispatch he said "no" and he should have said I don't remember. He kept trying to explain and I cut him off and explained I didn't want to go any further with the conversation and that I was not going to ask him any questions. I again explained that Capt. Plessas was assigned to conduct the remaining portion of the investigation and he would take a follow up statement from him. Our conversation lasted about 7 minutes and happened via cell phone so there is no recording of that call.

Another question asked of Sgt. Wilk was whether he remembered seeing officers in dispatch in violation of the directive. Sgt. Wilk said he had not seen any officers going in dispatch or being in dispatch. Even if Sgt. Wilk "can't remember" giving his code to multiple officers; it is not likely that he also can't remember officers violating a directive that had recently been readdressed by Capt. Sundheim. Sgt. Wilk acknowledges knowing about the directive, but it is also well known that it is not a popular rule among officers. Officer Andrade said in her statement that Sgt. Wilk gave her his code so she could go into dispatch and get some pizza and he accompanied her in. He should certainly remember that taking place, but that was only one officer who used his code.

Capt. Plessas informed me on October 12th that he had completed the three interviews I had asked for and was working on his report and said he should have it completed the following day. He explained that the recordings were available in the internal file on the server. That evening I asked for a link so I could submit the audio files for transcription, which I did the morning of October 13th. I listened to the audio recording of Sgt. Wilk being interviewed by Capt. Plessas and I was disappointed to hear Sgt. Wilk continue to be untruthful and misleading about giving out his code. The difference in the follow up interview was that Sgt. Wilk was now being non-committal to a solid answer and continually said he can't or doesn't remember giving Kircher or any other officers the code to the door. He also explained that the only reason he would give the code to an officer was if there was "some kind of emergency" in dispatch and he doesn't remember there ever being an occasion that was like that.

Two of the additional interviews that I asked for were Sgt. Matt Pappenfus and Sgt. Tyler Ruelle. This was because Sgt. Wilk stated in his first interview with Lt. McLeod and again when I spoke to him that he gave his code to Sgt. Pappenfus because he was a sergeant, and his code was not working. In addition, while speaking to me Sgt. Wilk said he couldn't remember if it was Sgt. Pappenfus or Sgt. Ruelle that he gave his code to but said they couldn't get in with their code. Sgt. Pappenfus said he did get a code from another sergeant, and he was pretty sure it was Sgt. Wilk, but that it was back in June or July right after he got promoted and he used it to access a storage closet, not dispatch. Sgt. Ruelle said his code wasn't working, but that he did not get the code from Sgt. Wilk and just used the window or called into dispatch if he needed something until he was given his access back.

Based on all of the information provided through the interviews and door audits, I believe Sgt. Wilk is not being truthful about his involvement in giving out the door code to other officers. His misleading statements and untruthfulness show a lack of integrity and will damage his credibility in the law enforcement profession. Upon determining that my intent was to discipline Sgt. Kevin Wilk for his misleading and false statements in this investigation, I spoke with the Ward County State's Attorney, Roza Larson, and asked if this disciplinary action would in fact damage his credibility and be necessary to disclose under Brady/Giglio in all future court proceeding and she said it would.

Based on the information provided throughout both investigations, I find the following violations of policy and state statute.

Findings: The investigation into the use of the door code led to obvious inconsistencies in the statements provided by Sgt. Kevin Wilk and Connor Kircher. Multiple officers indicated Sgt. Wilk provided his code to them or other officers to use to access the dispatch center. A full report of all findings in this internal investigation was submitted by Capt. Dale Plessas and will provide more details into this investigation. All recordings and transcripts of several interviews were also used for my findings of the following violations of policy which are all sustained and are basis for the disciplinary action in this case.

- Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct
    - 322.3 DIRECTIVES AND ORDERS

  Members shall comply with lawful directives and orders from any department supervisor or person in a position of authority, absent a reasonable and bona fide justification.
  - 322.5 CAUSES FOR DISCIPLINE
    - 322.5.1 LAWS, RULES, AND ORDERS

    (b) Disobedience of any legal directive or order issued by any department member of a higher rank.

    (c) Violation of federal, state, local, or administrative laws, rules, or regulations.
    - 322.5.2 PERFORMANCE

    (c) Failure to participate in an investigation, or giving false or misleading statements, or misrepresenting or omitting material information to a supervisor or other person in a position of authority, in connection with any investigation or in the reporting of any department-related business.
    - 322.5.10 SAFETY

    (a) Failure to observe or violating department safety standards or safe working practices.

The facts obtained through this investigation clearly shows that Sgt. Wilk provided his door code to officers so they could access dispatch in violation of the directive. There was no purpose for their access to be granted as they could have accomplished any business from the shift commander's office. Allowing the officers to use his code jeopardized the safety of the dispatchers working as they do not wear protective masks due to the nature of their job. Sgt. Wilk promoted the violation of the directive by his subordinates by providing the code and letting them enter the dispatch center.

- Policy 1005 – Personnel Complaints
  - 1005.6.2 ADMINISTRATIVE INVESTIGATION PROCEDURES

    (j) All employees shall provide complete and truthful responses to questions posed during interviews.

Based on the statements provided by the officers assigned and working with afternoon shift, it is clear that Sgt. Wilk provided his code directly to several of the officers with the intent to allow them enter dispatch. Sgt. Wilk originally answered "no" when asked about giving out his code. He then changed his answers to... I can't remember... after being questioned again. I also needed to know if Sgt. Wilk was being untruthful in his statement since he is not only a police officer, but also a supervisor. Both of those positions require high integrity, honesty, and trust.

- ND Century Code: 109-02-05-01 – Peace Officer Code of Conduct
  - 4(e) To willfully lie, provide false testimony, provide misleading information or falsify written or verbal communications in reports when the information may be relied upon by the courts, state's attorneys, or other law enforcement officials.

All officers are required to read and sign acknowledgement of the ND Peace Officer Code of Conduct every 3 years when they renew their license. It is well known in the law enforcement profession that honesty is the key to a successful career. Knowing there were statements made by Sgt. Kevin Wilk that were not accurate and truthful requires the following disciplinary action.

Discipline: As a result of these findings, I am ordering the following for Sergeant Kevin Wilk:

- Sgt. Wilk's employment with the City of Minot - Police Department be terminated unless he chooses to resign. Any appeal of this decision will follow the City of Minot policy.
- A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Kevin Wilk at the City of Minot Human Resource Office.

Date of Complaint / Investigation:
9/20/21 – 10/8/21

Summary of Investigation:

I was notified by Capt. Sundheim that he wanted me to look in to a situation with officers going into dispatch to socialize. He told me that Officer Kircher had been confronted about being in dispatch that previous night. The matter was being discussed with him by Lt. Haug and PSAP Manager Haugen, when Lt. Haug had to step away to speak with Capt. Sundheim. During that time, Manager Haugen asked Officer Kircher how he had gotten in to dispatch as all officer codes had been removed from the door. His response was he had a code from a sergeant and a dispatcher. When she asked him for their names, his response was again a dispatcher and a sergeant.

I contacted Officer Kircher and told him to come see me before he reported to briefing. He came in a little before 1600. I served the notice of investigation on him and advised him why I called him in. He did admit to being in there for an unknown period of time. He said that he had been in there at least once a shift for the past couple days, he later clarified that it has been going on for a while. When I asked whose code he had used he told me that it was Dispatcher Van Hill's code. He added that he had been given Sgt. Wilk's code some time ago. He said that he wasn't quite sure when or why he gave it to him.

When asked, Officer Kircher did acknowledge receiving and reading the email from Capt. Sundheim on August 30th that reiterated the Chief's previous directive for officers to stay out of dispatch. When asked, Officer Kircher did admit to not answering the direct question asked of him by PSAP Manager Haugen, saying that he had been speaking with Lt. Haug previous and wasn't sure of the chain of command. I asked him if he was aware of Manager Haugen's position as the boss in dispatch. He told me that he knew she is a supervisor, but he is still new and learning. (it should be noted that Officer Kircher was previously with the Surrey PD for several years and that agency is dispatched by PSAP. Officer Kircher should have familiarity with the staff in there)

Officer Kircher went on to say that he wasn't sure who else got a code from Dispatcher Van Hill or anyone else, but officers in dispatch has become pretty common when command staff is not around. Before ending the interview, I made it clear that he is to stay out of dispatch.

The interview was added to the case file.

I came in early today to meet with Dispatchers Van Hill and Schoen. I found that Dispatcher Schoen was off, so I had Dispatcher Van Hill come to my office. She was given notice of investigation prior to speaking with me.

She did admit to giving her code to Officer Kircher, but she couldn't quite remember when. I asked if there was anyone else, and she told me that a while back she yelled her code to an officer at the door but couldn't remember who. She remembered being tied up on the phone and the radio at the same time the officer was trying to get her attention.

She too is aware of the orders for officers to stay out of dispatch and acknowledges the reason behind it. She said to her its more of a morale thing as they are stuck in that room for 12 hours, usually short staffed and the friendships with the officers are very important to her.

The interview was added to the case file.

I met with Sgt. Wilk in my office this afternoon. I gave him notice of investigation and asked if he had any questions before starting. I informed Sgt. Wilk of why I called him in and told him that while speaking with Officer Kircher was told that he had given his door code to Officer Kircher. Sgt. Wilk told me that he had not given him his code and couldn't think of a reason why he would give it to him. The only thing Sgt. Wilk could recall was one day Sgt. Pappenfus' code wasn't working on the door, so he told him what his was. He couldn't remember who else was in the shift commander's office at the time. We talked about the dispatchers giving their codes out so that officers will come talk to them. Sgt. Wilk indicated to me that he wasn't aware of it still happening since the directive came out again.

I asked if he had heard about this investigation, and he said that he had heard something from Sgt. Wheeler due to Officer Kircher and PSAP Manger Haugen getting into it. He was not aware of how Sgt. Wheeler found out.

The interview was added to the file.

I spoke to Dispatcher Schoen this morning in my office. She was given notice and advised of the matter being looked at. When asked about giving out her code, she said that one night she wrote it out on paper and held it up against the window going into the shift commander's office. She told me that she could not remember who was in the room at the time. I asked her if it is still common for officers to hang out in dispatch and she said that it has really died off recently, although some come in to get abstracts and Triple I's.

Schoen did express her disagreement with the officers not being allowed in there, such as the need for work related visits, and they are the same friends that they do stuff with outside of work. I asked her if Officer Kircher had spoken to her about this since I had him in my office. She said there are several people that are in a group snapchat, and she remembered seeing something about him getting called in but that he could not talk about it. She added that she was off last week and had family in town, so she was a little disconnected.

The interview was added to the file.

I had Officer Kircher come in again today to discuss the information I had received so far. I told him that after we had spoken on the 20th, I heard quite a bit of chatter that dispatchers and officers had been discussing and complaining about the fact that there was an investigation taking place. As he was the only person I had spoken with, I asked him how that was possible. He said that a bunch of officers were asking why he had been talking to me, but that he told them he couldn't discuss it. I asked if he had posted something on the group snapchat that had been mentioned by Dispatcher Schoen. He claimed he didn't remember exactly what, but said he put something about not being able to talk about it.

I told him that Sgt. Wilk told me that he did not give him or any officers his code for the doors. Only that he could remember giving it to Sgt. Pappenfus one day when his wasn't working. He re-iterated that Sgt. Wilk gave his code directly and that he also said it to a group of officers when he was present. I asked for details on how that came about and who was present. The only details he would give were that there was a group in the shift commander's office. The conversation was one that they were complaining about the order to stay out of the room. He said that Sgt. Wilk gave his code to be used. Officer Kircher again claimed that he could not remember who was present as "it wasn't a significant event".

Interview added to case file.

10/7/21

I spoke to Officer Gunsch in my office this afternoon. I gave him notice and explained why I was speaking with him. He was asked directly if Sgt. Wilk had ever given him his access code. He said that he had not. I also asked if he had been given a code by Sgt. Wheeler or Sgt. Foley, and he said he had not. He did say he is aware that some officers have Sgt. Wilk's code and he said that he has seen Officer Washington go into dispatch but does not know whose code he used. Officer Gunsch denied that he has gone into dispatch since the directive was given and does his business by phone or at the window. Officer Gunsch did say that he has heard conversations surrounding the directive and that it is un-popular.

The interview was added to the file.

I met with seven officers from the afternoon shift in my office this evening; Officer Becker, Officer Andrade, Officer Hathaway, Officer Olson, Officer Washington, Officer Jensen, and Officer Shaw. They were all asked specifically about what if anything they had heard about the investigation, and whether they had been given a door code by anyone. Also, whether they had used the code if given one. Below is a summary:

Officer Becker had heard there was an investigation ongoing, possibly by Sgt. Foley but she wasn't sure. She was never given a code from anyone, but Shanlya asked her to go in to dispatch through the window. She said she refused as Sgt. Foley had made it clear the officers were to stay out.

Officer Andrade said that she has heard about an investigation from Officer Bjork. She also mentioned "side chatter" between Officer Kircher and Dispatcher Van Hill but they said they could not discuss it. She said that she was given the code by Sgt. Wilk. The reason was that there was being that was brought to the PD and it had been placed in dispatch, he gave her his code to go in there and get some. She also said that she was aware of Sgt. Wilk giving his code to Officer Kircher. She told me that Dispatcher Schoen had tried to give her code through the window, but she told her she didn't want it. Officer Andrade said that she has been in dispatch maybe three times total during this time, but two of those times the dispatchers let her in.

Officer Hathaway said that he has heard there was an investigation over people using other's codes to get in to dispatch. He has not personally seen anyone in there since the officer codes were removed from the door. He said that he has not been given a code by anyone and has not gone into dispatch.

Officer Olson told me that he heard about an investigation by Officer Kircher, but he said that he could not talk about it, and later officer Kenny told him that it was likely about officers in dispatch. Officer Olson said he has not been given a code by anyone and has not gone into dispatch.

Officer Washington has heard the rumors about the investigation. He said during a conversation at the PD amongst several people, the topic of going in to dispatch came up and he said that Officer Kircher said that he couldn't discuss it. He said that he was given "a code" by Officer Kircher to access dispatch. He also said that Shanlya give him her code to the door. Officer Washington said that he has gone in to dispatch about 5 times. He said that Officer Kircher told him he had been given the code by Sgt. Wilk to use if they wanted to go in. He said there was a group in the room when Officer Kircher gave the information (Kenny, Wheeler, Kircher, and himself).

Officer Jensen was not given the code but said that she witnessed Sgt. Wilk give his code. She said that Officer Washington asked Sgt. Wilk for his code to the door and he gave it to him. She said she has not used anyone's code and has not gone into dispatch.

Officer Shaw was aware of something with Sgt. Wilk and Officer Kircher as of the 6th. He said that Officer Kircher made a comment about Sgt. Wilk not being happy with him. When Officer Shaw asked why, he was told that he wasn't allowed to talk about it. He said that one time a dispatcher gave him their code to come in because they were too busy to speak with him at the window. He said it could have been Schoen or Van Hill but he couldn't remember. That was the only time he has gone into dispatch.

I continued with interviews today of the afternoon shift officers. Officer Pollman was set to come in but contacted me saying that he was ill. It was decided to do his interview by phone. I went through the notice form with him and he acknowledged that he understood. He said that he has known nothing of the investigation. He said that he has not been given a code, nor has he been in dispatch.

Officer Knutson came in to my office. When I asked what he knew about the investigation he said that both Officer Kircher and Dispatcher Van Hill had told him they could not discuss the matter. When I asked for clarification he said that a group (Kircher, Van Hill, Andrade, Altenhofen, and himself) had gone to Schatz for breakfast. The conversation turned to the investigation in some capacity. He said that both Kircher and Van Hill said they had been told not to discuss it. Officer Knutson claimed he could not remember how it came up or what was said exactly. This would have taken place the week of Sept. 20th. Officer Knutson said that he has not been given the code by anybody nor has he used a code and gotten into dispatch.

Officer Kenny stated that the only thing he knew of an investigation was that he had seen Officer Kircher leaving the chief's office one day and asked him what was up. He said that Kircher told him he wasn't allowed to discuss it. Officer Kenny said that nobody has given him their code to use for dispatch. He did admit to going in there a couple times but followed a Sgt. through the door.

Officer Altenhofen was asked what if anything she knew about this investigation. She spoke of the breakfast at Schatz and how both Kircher and Van Hill said they could not talk about it. She too said that she could not remember how it came up or exactly what was said. She also told me that she recently made a comment about it to Officer Sommerville. They were by the officer workstation with Officer Kircher and the topic again came up somehow that she cannot remember. Kircher said he could not discuss it and Altenhofen said that she told Somerville he was being investigated. When asked directly, she said that she has not been given a code by anyone, nor has she gone into the dispatch room since the order was put out on August 30th.

Applicable Policies:

Information Technology Use

323.1 PURPOSE AND SCOPE

The purpose of this policy is to provide guidelines for the proper use of department information technology resources, including computers, electronic devices, hardware, software and systems.

323.5 RESTRICTED USE

Members shall not access computers, devices, software or systems for which they have not received prior authorization or the required training. Members shall immediately report unauthorized access or use of computers, devices, software or systems by another member to their supervisors or Shift Commanders.

Members shall not use another person's access passwords, logon information and other individual security data, protocols and procedures unless directed to do so by a supervisor.

Kircher indicated that he has used the code(s) of Dispatcher Van Hill and/or Sgt. Wilk at least once a shift for some time now to access the dispatch center.

Standards of Conduct

322.3 DIRECTIVES AND ORDERS

Members shall comply with lawful directives and orders from any department supervisor or person in a position of authority, absent a reasonable and bona fide justification.

On August 30th, 2021 Captain Sundheim sent out an email to all PD staff re-affirming the COVID directive and informing staff that access to dispatch was being removed from everyone but supervisors, and that they should only enter as needed. Officer Kircher did acknowledge receiving the email and did indicate that he has continued to go into dispatch "at least one time per shift"

On September 20th, 2021 PSAP Manager Haugen asked Officer Kircher directly who gave him their code to enter dispatch. He refused to answer saying only a dispatcher and a sergeant. She asked a second time and received the same response.

In doing interviews with afternoon shift officers, most have knowledge that there has been an investigation on-going. Although nobody has said specifically any certain person told them, four employees knew as they were given notice and all four were given the same order to not discuss the matter. There should be no general knowledge amongst the department members of the investigation. Clearly it has been talked about, the depth of those conversations is unknown.

322.5.1 LAWS, RULES AND ORDERS

(b) Disobedience of any legal directive or order issued by any department member of a higher rank.

1005.6.2 ADMINISTRATIVE INVESTIGATION PROCEDURES

The following applies to employees conducting administrative investigations:

(j) All employees shall provide complete and truthful responses to questions posed during interviews.

When interviewed, Sgt. Wilk denied giving his code to any officers, saying that Sgt. Pappenfus was the only one and that there was likely some officer s present in the office at the time. Statements of Officer Kircher, Officer Andrade, Officer Jensen, and Officer Washington contradict that in that they either reported receiving the code directly from Sgt. Wilk or having direct knowledge of it happening.

Lt. Matt McLeod

City of Minot

Police Department

October 11, 2021

To: Officer Connor Kircher

Ref: Internal Investigation 21-13

This letter is a summary and order of discipline resulting from an investigation into the use of door codes to access Minot Central Dispatch. I had issued a directive on August 16, 2021 limiting access to Minot Central Dispatch to ensure their safety and health due to an increase in COVID cases in the Minot community. Lt. Matt McLeod was assigned the investigation into an incident wherein Officer Kircher was known to have used a code to get into dispatch that was not his own, and when asked about the code by a supervisor he would not provide who the code belonged to. The investigation was opened on September 20, 2021.

Officer Kircher began his employment with the Police Department on April 12, 2021 and is currently on probationary status with the City of Minot.

During the investigation, Officer Kircher provided minimal information to Lt. McLeod, which resulted in a second interview being necessary. The exchange of the code took place between August 30, 2021 when the codes were removed from the door and a reminder of the existing directive was sent to employees by Captain Sundheim, and September 20, 2021 when a complaint was made about Kircher being in the dispatch center.

Upon completion of the investigation into the use of the door code by Officer Kircher, it was found that he was in violation of the following policies.

Findings: The investigation into Officer Kircher using the door code of another employee to access an area he is not allowed to be due to the directive violated two policies. A full report and explanation of these violations are outlined in Lt. McLeod's investigative summary and all other documents pertaining to this internal investigation are on file in the internal case file. I find the following policy violations are all sustained and are basis for the disciplinary action in this case.

- Policy 323 – Information Technology Use
    - 323.1 PURPOSE AND SCOPE: The purpose of this policy is to provide guidelines for the proper use of department information technology resources, including computers, electronic devices, hardware, software, and systems.
    - 323.5 RESTRICTED USE: Members shall not access computers, devices, software, or systems for which they have not received prior authorization or the required training. Members shall immediately report unauthorized access or use of computers, devices, software, or systems by another member to their supervisors or Shift Commanders.
      Members shall not use another person's access passwords, logon information and other individual security data, protocols and procedures unless directed to do so by a supervisor.

    - 322.5.1 LAWS, RULES AND ORDERS: (b) Disobedience of any legal directive or order issued by any department member of a higher rank.

It is my belief that Officer Kircher willingly withheld information from this investigation to protect himself from possible disciplinary action and only provided information when he was pressured by Lt. McLeod on the second interview. He then provided similar information to me when I spoke to him on August 5, 2021, but had a little more detail included. The fact that he was not forthcoming and would not answer the original question by the PSAP Manager or be completely forthcoming in the initial interview makes me believe there is a lack of integrity, and I will not allow that behavior from a member of the Minot Police Department.

Discipline: As a result of these findings, I am ordering the following for Officer Connor Kircher:

- Officer Kircher's employment with the City of Minot - Police Department be terminated unless he chooses to resign. Any appeal of this decision will follow the City of Minot policy.
- A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Connor Kircher at the City of Minot Human Resource Office.

Investigation Performed By:
Lt. Matt McLeod

Date of Complaint / Investigation:
9/20/21 – 10/8/21

Summary of Investigation:

I was notified by Capt. Sundheim that he wanted me to look in to a situation with officers going into dispatch to socialize. He told me that Officer Kircher had been confronted about being in dispatch that previous night. The matter was being discussed with him by Lt. Haug and PSAP Manager Haugen, when Lt. Haug had to step away to speak with Capt. Sundheim. During that time, Manager Haugen asked Officer Kircher how he had gotten in to dispatch as all officer codes had been removed from the door. His response was he had a code from a sergeant and a dispatcher. When she asked him for their names, his response was again a dispatcher and a sergeant.

I contacted Officer Kircher and told him to come see me before he reported to briefing. He came in a little before 1600. I served the notice of investigation on him and advised him why I called him in. He did admit to being in there for an unknown period of time. He said that he had been in there at least once a shift for the past couple days, he later clarified that it has been going on for a while. When I asked whose code he had used he told me that it was Dispatcher Van Hill's code. He added that he had been given Sgt. Wilk's code some time ago. He said that he wasn't quite sure when or why he gave it to him.

When asked, Officer Kircher did acknowledge receiving and reading the email from Capt. Sundheim on August 30th that reiterated the Chief's previous directive for officers to stay out of dispatch. When asked, Officer Kircher did admit to not answering the direct question asked of him by PSAP Manager Haugen, saying that he had been speaking with Lt. Haug previous and wasn't sure of the chain of command. I asked him if he was aware of Manager Haugen's position as the boss in dispatch. He told me that he knew she is a supervisor, but he is still new and learning. (it should be noted that Officer Kircher was previously with the Surrey PD for several years and that agency is dispatched by PSAP. Officer Kircher should have familiarity with the staff in there)

Officer Kircher went on to say that he wasn't sure who else got a code from Dispatcher Van Hill or anyone else, but officers in dispatch has become pretty common when command staff is not around. Before ending the interview, I made it clear that he is to stay out of dispatch.

The interview was added to the case file.

I came in early today to meet with Dispatchers Van Hill and Schoen. I found that Dispatcher Schoen was off, so I had Dispatcher Van Hill come to my office. She was given notice of investigation prior to speaking with me.

She did admit to giving her code to Officer Kircher, but she couldn't quite remember when. I asked if there was anyone else, and she told me that a while back she yelled her code to an officer at the door but couldn't remember who. She remembered being tied up on the phone and the radio at the same time the officer was trying to get her attention.

She too is aware of the orders for officers to stay out of dispatch and acknowledges the reason behind it. She said to her its more of a morale thing as they are stuck in that room for 12 hours, usually short staffed and the friendships with the officers are very important to her.

The interview was added to the case file.

I met with Sgt. Wilk in my office this afternoon. I gave him notice of investigation and asked if he had any questions before starting. I informed Sgt. Wilk of why I called him in and told him that while speaking with Officer Kircher was told that he had given his door code to Officer Kircher. Sgt. Wilk told me that he had not given him his code and couldn't think of a reason why he would give it to him. The only thing Sgt. Wilk could recall was one day Sgt. Pappenfus' code wasn't working on the door, so he told him what his was. He couldn't remember who else was in the shift commander's office at the time. We talked about the dispatchers giving their codes out so that officers will come talk to them. Sgt. Wilk indicated to me that he wasn't aware of it still happening since the directive came out again.

I asked if he had heard about this investigation, and he said that he had heard something from Sgt. Wheeler due to Officer Kircher and PSAP Manger Haugen getting into it. He was not aware of how Sgt. Wheeler found out.

The interview was added to the file.

I spoke to Dispatcher Schoen this morning in my office. She was given notice and advised of the matter being looked at. When asked about giving out her code, she said that one night she wrote it out on paper and held it up against the window going into the shift commander's office. She told me that she could not remember who was in the room at the time. I asked her if it is still common for officers to hang out in dispatch and she said that it has really died off recently, although some come in to get abstracts and Triple I's.

Schoen did express her disagreement with the officers not being allowed in there, such as the need for work related visits, and they are the same friends that they do stuff with outside of work. I asked her if Officer Kircher had spoken to her about this since I had him in my office. She said there are several people that are in a group snapchat, and she remembered seeing something about him getting called in but that he could not talk about it. She added that she was off last week and had family in town, so she was a little disconnected.

The interview was added to the file.

I had Officer Kircher come in again today to discuss the information I had received so far. I told him that after we had spoken on the 20th, I heard quite a bit of chatter that dispatchers and officers had been discussing and complaining about the fact that there was an investigation taking place. As he was the only person I had spoken with, I asked him how that was possible. He said that a bunch of officers were asking why he had been talking to me, but that he told them he couldn't discuss it. I asked if he had posted something on the group snapchat that had been mentioned by Dispatcher Schoen. He claimed he didn't remember exactly what, but said he put something about not being able to talk about it.

I told him that Sgt. Wilk told me that he did not give him or any officers his code for the doors. Only that he could remember giving it to Sgt. Pappenfus one day when his wasn't working. He re-iterated that Sgt. Wilk gave his code directly and that he also said it to a group of officers when he was present. I asked for details on how that came about and who was present. The only details he would give were that there was a group in the shift commander's office. The conversation was one that they were complaining about the order to stay out of the room. He said that Sgt. Wilk gave his code to be used. Officer Kircher again claimed that he could not remember who was present as "it wasn't a significant event".

To: Kristian Shaide, Master Police Officer

Ref: Damaged Windshield

This letter is a summary of the incident surrounding the damage caused to the windshield of patrol vehicle #5 on June 27, 2024. I was made aware of the incident on that day and told it would be reviewed along with past incidents of damage or loss of department owned property. I received the report outlining past disciplinary actions and a recommendation for progressive discipline based on all facts and circumstances.

The letter provided by Officer Shaide explains his frustration with the computer's connectivity and cell phone locking up that led to the "tossing" of his cell phone. The cracked windshield had to be replaced and that cost was absorbed through the department budget. This action by Officer Shaide violated two Minot Police Department policies and led to the patrol vehicle being unavailable while it was being repaired.

I would further add that Officer Shaide needs to educate himself on "why" the authentication systems are in place and who mandates those systems. His lack of understanding paired with the lack of control of his emotions, lead to his failure to take responsibility for his actions.

Supporting Documentation:

- Letter of explanation from Officer Shaide.
- Letter outlining findings from Capt. Sundheim to Chief Klug.
- Copy of previous letter of reprimand from 2023.

Findings: The actions of Kristian Shaide were determined to be violations of Minot Police Department Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct and Policy 700 – Department-Owned and Personal Property. I find the following policy violations are sustained and are basis for the disciplinary action in this case.

- Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct
  - 322.5.9 – Conduct
    (i) Unauthorized possession of, loss of, or damage to department property or the property of others, or endangering it through carelessness or maliciousness.
- Policy 700 – Department-Owned and Personal Property
  - 700.4.1 – Care of Property
    Members shall be responsible for the safekeeping, serviceable condition, proper care, use and replacement of department property that has been assigned or entrusted to them. Intentional or negligent abuse or misuse of department property may lead to discipline including, but not limited to, the cost of repair or replacement.

Discipline: As a result of these findings, I am ordering the following for Officer Kristian Shaide:

- Officer Shaide will be suspended without pay for a period of two days (20 hours).
- A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Kristian Shaide at the City of Minot Human Resource Office.

Any future violations of policy may result in progressive disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

Each incident affected fellow team members as damaged/lost equipment was placed out of service as a result of his actions. Each of these incidents has been avoidable and caused a financial commitment from the department to repair/replace.

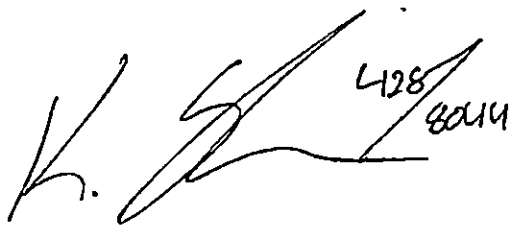
Progressive discipline, escalated from written reprimand is recommended. Report forwarded to Chief Klug for final disciplinary review.

To whom it may concern –

On 06/26/2024, I had arrived back at the Police Department after having served a search warrant with Task Force on a trailer house in Edgeview. I was attempting to log into the computer through the plethora of multi-factor authentication methods we have decided to use in our systems when my personal phone suddenly froze. After approximately 30 seconds, it became operational again but every authentication program I had running at that time crashed. I attempted a second time and my phone froze a second time. When this happened, I got frustrated and tossed my phone towards the dashboard. The phone hit the corner of the dashboard, ricocheted upwards, and struck the windshield of car #5, causing a spider-web-like crack to form. I immediately notified Sgt. Ruelle of the damage.

I understand any potential consequences and take full responsibility for my actions. I will practice methods to control my emotions in the future.

- K. Shaide 428/8044



Lt. Wegner –

On 10/16/2023, I responded to 318 5th Ave. NW for a call regarding an assault. A juvenile male reportedly assaulted an adult male at Minot Youth for Christ Church. Upon arrival, I took car #18 phone inside to speak with the adult who was assaulted with the intention of taking photos of his injuries. During my investigation, I determined no photos were needed due to the fact that the adult did not want to press charges at the time and no physical injuries were visible. I took the car phone outside to speak with the juvenile suspect and either placed the phone on the back of the car near the trunk, or on the hood of the vehicle. I continued about my patrol duties until working a crash on N Broadway. I had to call a family member of the suspect and found the phone was missing out of the cupholder where I usually put it. I briefly looked for the phone around the patrol car but did not locate it.

I went about my normal duties until I was able to clear the call. After this, I went back to the area of 318 5th Ave. NW as this is the last area I remembered having the phone. I got out on foot and walked to Broadway and back, searching the sides of the road for the phone, but I was unable to locate it. I also searched areas I had been inside the station but was also unsuccessful. At this point, I met with Sgt. Wheeler and informed him of my situation. I returned to 318 5th Ave. NW a second time and performed the same search, but was unable to locate the phone. I also double-checked areas in the station where I thought the phone could be but I was unable to locate it. I informed Sgt. Wheeler that I was unable to locate the phone and did not know where it was.

I take full responsibility for my mistake and will be sure to take more care in knowing where my phone is and making sure the phone is on my person at all times when needed on a call. This includes putting it in my vest/pocket when needed. I believe these measures will ensure that this will not happen again.

DATE OF INCIDENT/EVENT: December 15, 2022

DESCRIPTION OF INCIDENT(S):

During blizzard like conidtions, Officer Shaide attempted to drive a police patrol vehicle on a roadway that had not been plowed and was covered in thick snow. Officer Shaide proceeded to get Patrol Car #12 stuck in the snow. Officer Shaide then attempted to shovel out the car prior to having a citizen attempt to pull the vehicle out. When these measures failed, Officer Shaide had a city plow utilize their plow blade to push the patrol car out of the snow. This caused significant damage to the rear end and hatch of car #12. Officer Shaide did not attempt to contact a tow truck nor did he contact a supervisor regarding this incident until after the vehicle was damaged.

Officer Shaide needs to be more cautious and attentive when driving especially during difficult driving conditions. Should Officer Shaide get stuck to the point he is unable to correct the issue through conventional means, a supervisor must be contacted to report the issue.

Ref: Suspension – Standards of Conduct

This is a summary and order of discipline resulting from Senior Officer Amanda Somerville's conversation with Sgt. Matthew Pappenfus on September 12, 2022. This conversation was reference a call for service covered by Officer Somerville on August 8, 2022 (22-24208) pertaining to a theft from a vulnerable adult. Sgt. Pappenfus conducted follow up on the information provided by Officer Somerville and determined it appeared she was not truthful about the follow up calls she received from the complainant on the call.

During the investigation conducted by Lt. Matt McLeod, Officer Somerville admitted she denied receiving voicemails from the complainant on the call, even though she knew she had just deleted them. She stated the reason for not saying she did not return the calls was because she was embarrassed about not following up with the complainant as she stated she would. When I spoke to Sgt. Pappenfus, he agreed that her response was likely due to embarrassment about her work performance, and not a direct attempt to be deceitful about the call itself. Investigative report of Lt. Matt McLeod is available for further details of the investigation.

Regardless of the intent, dishonesty with superiors cannot be tolerated. Additionally, victims and others reporting crime deserve the respect and responsiveness of police department staff pertaining to their complaint; therefore, I find the following violations of policy and have set discipline based on the seriousness of the violations, which are all sustained and are basis for this disciplinary action.

- Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct
    - 322.5.7 EFFICIENCY
        (a) Neglect of duty
        (b) Unsatisfactory work performance including, but not limited to, failure, incompetence, inefficiency or delay in performing and/or carrying out proper order, work assignments, or the instructions of supervisors without a reasonable and bona fide excuse.
        (c) Concealing, attempting to conceal, removing or destroying defective or incompetent work.
    - 322.5.9 CONDUCT
        (m) Any other on- or off-duty conduct which any member knows or reasonably should know is unbecoming a member of this department, is contrary to good order, efficiency or morale, or tends to reflect unfavorably upon this department or its members.

Discipline: As a result of these policy violations, I am ordering the following for Senior Officer Amanda Somerville:

- Officer Somerville will be suspended for a period of eight days (80 hours) without pay.
- A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Amanda Somerville at the City of Minot Human Resources Office.

To: Daniel Batteiger, Master Police Officer

Ref: 23-12, Chief's Letter of Discipline

This is a summary and order of discipline resulting from the investigation of Master Officer Daniel Batteiger reference internal administrative investigation 23-12 regarding the missing narcotics from the canine training kit.

On December 14, 2023, it was discovered that 15.7 grams of heroin, packaged for training canine teams for narcotics detection, was missing. Upon being notified, I assigned the administrative investigation to Capt. Dale Plessas. The full investigative report is available in the internal file and will be maintained for reference. The investigation was to determine if the narcotics were misplaced or taken by one of the four employees with access to the storage location.

The result of the internal investigation showed that the last person to sign out the heroin samples was Officer Batteiger. The night of December 13, 2024, the heroin kit was retrieved by Officer Connole from Officer Batteiger's vehicle, which was parked at Batteiger's residence. The kit was not inventoried, but it remained sealed until the evening of December 14, 2023, and it was at that time that Sgt. Taylor Jensen found the 15.7 gram sample was missing from the kit.

With Officer Batteiger being the primary handler to check the narcotics out from the locker and the handler who had most recently checked it out, I find that most of the responsibility for the missing sample lies with him.

Based on the results of the investigation, I find the following violations of policy and have set discipline based on the seriousness of the violations which are all sustained and are basis for this disciplinary action.

- Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct
    - 322.5.1 LAWS, RULES, AND ORDERS
      (b) Disobedience of any legal directive or order issued by any department member of a higher rank.
        - Maintained possession of heroin training kit beyond the time allowed by the directive issued by Lt. Dave Chapman.
    - 322.5.7 EFFICIENCY
      (b) Unsatisfactory work performance including, but not limited to, failure, incompetence, inefficiency, or delay in performing and/or carrying out proper orders, work assignments or the instructions of supervisors without a reasonable and bona fide excuse.

- Failure to maintain minimum training requirements.
- Failure to inventory samples when checked out for training.
- Maintaining possession of sample beyond the allotted time allowed.

- 322.5.9 CONDUCT
  (i) Unauthorized possession of, loss of, or damage to department property or the property of others or endangering it through carelessness or maliciousness.
  - Maintained the samples of heroin with poor practices of inventory and accountability.

My concerns about this incident are inflated by the history of disciplinary actions with Officer Daniel Batteiger. He has been counseled for errors made while instructing the deployment of our spike systems, policy violation associated with the pursuit of an off-highway vehicle, and failure to maintain the required level of training with his canine as established by the department. Officer Batteiger has also been suspended for a Standards of Conduct violation, which was largely reflective of poor judgement.

Discipline: As a result of these policy violations, I am ordering the following for Master Officer Daniel Batteiger:

- This letter will serve as a letter of reprimand for the violations of the Standards of Conduct policy.
- Officer Dan Batteiger will be removed from his position as a canine handler and surrender Cyrus to the Canine Coordinator by the date and time set by the Chief of Police.
  - Date: 2/26/2024 Time: 1730
- Officer Batteiger will no longer instruct Emergency Vehicle Operations Courses for the Department or its' members.
- A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Daniel Batteiger in the Office of the Chief of Police.

Administrative Investigation 23-12

RE: The loss of control of narcotics from the canine training allocation

ADMINISTRATIVE INVESTIGATION

Introduction:

Employee:	Lt. David Chapman, Sgt. Taylor Jensen, M.O. Daniel Batteiger, and S.O. Michael Connole
Source of Complaint:	Notification from Lt. David Chapman
Interviewed:	Lt. David Chapman, Sgt. Taylor Jensen, M.O. Daniel Batteiger, and S.O. Michael Connole
Complaint Date:	December 14, 2023
Investigation Date:	December 20, 2023
Investigator:	Capt. Dale Plessas – Minot Police Department

Synopsis:

On December 14, 2023, at 1630 hours members of the Minot Police Department K9 team, to include Lt. Chapman (coordinator), Sergeant Jensen (handler), and S.O. Michael Connole, met with two handlers from McHenry County Sheriff's Department for bimonthly K9 training. Master Officer Batteiger was not present for this training as he was home sick.

The training was conducted at the Minot Police Department in the old City Council Chambers. The training was a drug detection training where drugs were to be hidden in specialized K9 popper boxes. While placing drugs in popper boxes, Sgt. Jensen discovered that the 15.7-gram sample of heroin was missing. She immediately alerted Lt. Chapman. Lt. Chapman conducted a limited search for the drugs and then contacted Capt. Sundheim to report the discrepancy.

Chief John Klug assigned this investigation with focus on the following questions:

- Who signed out the narcotics?
- Who accessed the drugs during that time?
    - Voluntary hair follicle testing of all with access.
- Were current policies/procedures followed?
- Were additional attempts to locate since the initial report?

Summary of investigation:

During this investigation, I interviewed each of the members of the K9 team starting with Master Officer Daniel Batteiger, Senior Officer Michael Connole, Lieutenant, Dave Chapman, and finishing with Sergeant Taylor Jensen. I later found it necessary to re-interview M.O. Batteiger and S.O. Connole to clarify some items. I began my interviews by orientating myself on the K9 drug kit make up and process of the K9 team. I learned that the K9 drug kit is made up of 4 types of narcotics to include Methamphetamine, crack cocaine, cocaine, and heroin. Each of these drugs were received via the DEA laboratory and were sent in 1 oz samples or roughly 28 grams (see: 2023 K9 forms -DEA Request). The samples were then broken into three smaller samples by the K9 team. This was done by breaking the sample in half and then breaking one of the halves in half again. The largest of the Samples of heroin was measured at 15.7 grams. These smaller samples were then placed individually in canvas bags with a label that indicated the size of the sample. The three samples of a drug type were then placed in a small glass jar, similar to a baby food container. Each of the narcotic samples undergo the same process and are stored in a pelican case that is referred to as the K9 drug kit. This kit generally would be stored in a locked locker located in a basement storage room at the Minot Police Department. The storage room has limited access among police personnel and the locked K9 locker has a combination lock that limits access to members of the K9 team. Members who assist the K9 team, commonly referred to as decoys, do not have access to this locker. The K9 locker has a paper log, titled Drug inventory Log, that is used for tracking the K9 drug kit usage (I took pictures to illustrate each of these storage locations and log, Images 1 – 8). LT. Chapman indicated in his statement that he developed a digital log but acknowledged that it is not used with any consistency. He indicated that this is ironic as members of the team wanted the digital log, but they do not use it. In my review I determined that M.O. Batteiger and S.O. Connole do not use the digital log. Connole indicated that he has not been able to get the log to work on his cell phone. Sgt. Jensen does regularly use the digital log when accessing training aids.

It appears that inventories of the K9 drug kit are inconsistent at best. In interviews with Lt. Chapman and M.O. Batteiger it was determined that there is no formal process in place for inventory of drug samples in the K9 kit. Lt. Chapman and M.O. Batteiger acknowledged that they do not formally inventory the kit prior to taking or upon returning the kit to the locker, beyond ensuring all of the bottles are inside. M.O. Batteiger said it is not part of his process to take a physical count or inventory of the K9 kit. S.O. Connole indicated that it is his experience that an inventory is done after each training event. Despite this statement, he acknowledged that he retrieved the kit in from M.O. Batteiger's patrol vehicle in preparation for the December 14, 2023, training, but did not do an inventory. Each indicated that during training, sometimes they take a sample out of the bottle and use them individually, and sometimes they use the full sample, in and out of the bottle. Each indicated that they should notice if a sample is missing but could not be certain of this.

Further complicating tracking of these drugs is inadequacies in training documentation. The K9 team utilizes the Packtrack system for monitoring training. The system provides a great means of monitoring all of the various training activities by members of the K9 team. The System permits the K9 handler to be very detailed in documentation of training. The inadequacy comes with documenting specific training aid being used. While S.O. Connole seems to document the specific size of sample he utilizes, M.O. Batteiger often indicates "1 item" when the full sample is not used. This makes it difficult to determine when the 15.7-gram sample was last used. The last recorded date that the 15.7-gram sample was listed in training is Jun 23, 2023, at MSU (see: Excersize-Detail-Report-9328-vBaoL hrp Pg28). There were multiple times where 28 grams, or 1 ounce, was listed, but it is difficult to know if the handler observed all three samples, or simply used the whole jar and considered it the full sample. Sgt. Jensen indicated that she handled placement of one of the 6-gram sample (the Packtrack log shows 6.4 grams) of heroin on November 12, 2023, and felt confident that if the 15.7-gram sample was missing, she would have noticed, but could not be certain of this.

M.O. Batteiger stated that after, former K9 handler, Sgt. Pappenfus left the Minot PD, Batteiger's dog was the only narcotics dog left, so he commonly left the K9 kit in his vehicle. This is documented on the drug inventory log as M.O. Batteiger checked the full kit out from February 28, 2023, to November 13, 2023 (ref image 2). According to Lt. Chapman storing the drugs in a patrol car long term, was consistent with how he and other past drug detection K9 handlers operated. Nevertheless, Lt. Chapman acknowledged that he knew this was not good practice, so he put out an order stating that the K9 kit could only be checked out of the locker for three days at a time for the full kit, and 7 days at a time for a partial kit. If more time was necessary, the handler would need approval of the K9 coordinator. Samples were not to be split apart (partial odors from the same drug type) at any time (See: Minot Police Department Unit Expectations). This order was distributed at the first training in November. M.O. Batteiger stated that after this order was given, he checked the kit back into the K-9 locker, but he and Officer Connole split the kit apart. He took the heroin with the intent of training with it. The Drug Inventory Log showed that the M.O. Batteiger checked the heroin sample out of the locker on the same date that he checked the full kit back in, November 13, 2023. The log also showed that S.O. Connole checked a partial kit containing methamphetamine, crack cocaine, and cocaine out, thirteen days later, on November 26th, 2023, and returned it on November 29, 2023.

A noteworthy discrepancy shows that M.O. Batteiger logged the heroin sample back in on November 26, 2023, but heroin was absent from S.O. Connole's check out of the partial kit on November 26, 2023. M.O. Batteiger stated that he recalls placing the sample in the kit and did not leave the lone heroin container in the locker. He also indicated that he did not give it to S.O. Connole. With the indications on the log, this explanation is not possible. Also noteworthy is that the handwritten "2" in the number 26, in M.O. Batteiger's log check in date, appears modified, potentially from a "1". If the date was listed as "1" the check in date would have been November 16th, 2023, which would have been consistent with Lt. Chapman's directive. M.O. Batteiger acknowledged that the date listed was November 26, 2023, which he acknowledged put him in violation of Lt. Chapman's directive. He indicated he could have been wrong on his date that they split the drugs. Also noteworthy was that S.O. Connole logged training on November 26, 2023, and listed cocaine and methamphetamine but did not utilize heroin. After refreshing his memory with the use of the drug inventory log and Packtrack training log, S.O. Connole recalled that he had checked out the kit on November 26, 2023, to train with Sgt. Jensen and M.O. Batteiger but said that Batteiger indicated that he had possession of the heroin sample, so Connole did not check that sample out nor use it in training.

Sgt. Jensen pointed out that Lt. Chapman had instructed M.O. Batteiger, via e-mail, that she should be involved in the process of replacement of the K9 kit (See: DEA Narcotics – e-mail from Lt. Chapman). She said Batteiger went forward with the process without her. Sgt Jensen found out about this when she received a DEA certificate forwarded to her from Lt. Chapman (see: DEA Cert – e-mail to Sgt. Jensen). She then asked Batteiger about this and he said he did not want a headache for the both of them. In their interviews, both Sgt. Jensen and S.O. Connole made mention that it was a red flag that M.O. Batteiger had sent the paperwork in to the DEA to have the drugs destroyed and shortly after Sgt. Jensen discovered that the heroin sample was missing. Officer Connole said M.O. Batteiger had advised him the kit was out of use for up to six weeks because the drugs were being destroyed. In fact, Officer Connole pointed to the December 5th, 2023, training and indicated that he took a fentanyl training aid (a pseudo-odor) because he was under the belief that the K9 drug kit was destroyed. Officer Connole said it was a surprise to him on December 7th, 2023, training to see the kit was still available. At this training Lt. Chapman did utilize the 1 Ounce sample of heroin but indicated that he did not know for sure if the full sample was there, and indicated in hindsight, something seemed to be off. He equated his feeling to a situation where you feel like something is off, but just cannot put your finger on it. He acknowledged that he did not inventory the drugs, so he does not know for sure. M.O. Batteiger acknowledged that he did tell S.O Connole that he was destroying the drugs. He said replacing the k9 drug kit was a new process to him and he didn't know that he would need to wait for a letter from the DEA before he could destroy it. M.O. Batteiger said he had a conversation with Sgt. Foley to determine the process to destroy the drugs but learned that he needed to wait for the letter, after that conversation. Sgt. Foley recalled having a conversation with Batteiger but could not give a specific date other than to estimate it was roughly the end of November or beginning of December.

It was determined that Lt. David Chapman, Sgt. Taylor Jensen, Master Officer Daniel Batteiger, and S.O. Michael Connole were the only people to have access to the drug kit. Each was asked to submit to a voluntary drug test. Since I was unable to pinpoint the date that the heroin went missing, a decision to utilize hair follicle testing was made. The hair follicle test provides the best results for a long length of time (up to 90 days). Julie Eidemiller, from Trinity Occupational Medicine, advised that the 5-panel test was recommended for opioid screening. This was the test selected. Lt. Chapman, Sgt. Jensen, M.O. Batteiger, and S.O. Connole each separately agreed to provide a sample for testing. They were individually directed to Trinity Occupational Medicine where they provided a sample. Each screening resulted in negative results for all five panels (see attached file: City of Minot PD K9-Hair -Connole, Chapman, Jensen, & Batteiger).

When Lt. Chapman was informed of the missing narcotics on December 14, 2023, he went to the last location where he knew the drugs had been used in training. He returned to John Hoeven Elementary and Minot State University. After failing to locate the missing heroin, he contacted Capt. Sundheim and informed him of the missing drugs. Sgt. Jensen and S.O. Connole searched the K9 kit to ensure it was not inadvertently placed in the wrong jar. On December 15, 2023, Lt. Chapman sent an e-mail to K9 handlers Daniel Batteiger and Michael Connole with a list of training logs pages from Packtrack. He instructed them to start working backwards through each of the locations where heroin was used in training (see: E-mail string from Officer Connole). S.O. Connole searched most of these locations to include searching the administrative vehicles used in hides (see: Note-Michael Connole, 1 & 2) while M.O. Batteiger searched other locations.

- Who signed out the narcotics?
    - Since the last known time that the 15.7-gram sample was in use (June 23, 2023, training at MSU) M.O. Batteiger was the only handler to check the heroin out. S.O. Connole checked the kit out on November 26, 2023, but only signed for Meth/CC/Coke.
- Who accessed the drugs during that time?
    - Since June 23, 2023, each of the handlers of the K9 team, to include Lt. Chapman, Sgt. Jensen, M.O. Batteiger, and S.O. Connole had access to the K9 kit and used it in training in some way.
    - Voluntary hair follicle testing of all with access.
        - All submitted voluntary hair follicle samples for testing. All tested negative for drug use.
- Were current policies/procedures followed?
    - See the applicable policy section.
- Were additional attempts to locate since the initial report?
    - Each member contributed to searches for the missing heroin. Lt. Chapman directed his team to search every location that the drug was used since the last known possession (June 23, 2023), to no avail.

Conclusion:

The 15.7-gram training aid sample was discovered missing on December 14, 2023, but it most certainly had been missing prior to that date. The last record of this sample's use was six months prior, on June 23, 2023, at a K9 drug detection training at Minot State University. While the drugs were consistently stored in M.O. Batteiger's locked car, and less commonly in the K9 locker, there was never any indication of theft from either of these locations. The K9 team has no formalized procedure for inventory on the K9 drug kit. Heroin had been used in at least six training sessions from June 23, 2023, to December 14, 2023. The K9 training system, Packtrack, would have been a great resource for tracking the sample use, if proper sample descriptions were consistently used. This was not the case as M.O Batteiger often listed "1 item" instead of using product weight in the amount section of the report. As a result, it is unclear when the 15.7-gram sample of heroin went missing. What is clear is that M.O. Batteiger was the only handler to check out the heroin samples from the locker, and he possessed them exclusively, from February 28, 2023, (he checked the other three drug samples back in on November 13, 2023, but kept the heroin sample), until at least November 26, 2023, when he signed the heroin sample back into the locker. This return date is also in question as S.O. Connole checked the kit out on the same day (notably absent the heroin sample) that M.O. Batteiger indicated he had returned it. In his second interview M.O. Batteiger acknowledged that this entry could not be accurate if S.O. Connole had the case in his possession at that time, but he could not give any explanation for the discrepancy. He surmised that he may have listed the wrong date on the log. Further adding suspicion to this situation was the timing of all of this. M.O. Batteiger was in the process of having the kit destroyed for the impending replacement samples. He did this unilaterally and without the knowledge or involvement of Sgt. Jensen, as he was instructed by Lt. Chapman. In fact, S.O. Connole was under the belief that this process had already happened as per a conversation he had with M.O. Batteiger. M.O. Batteiger acknowledged having this conversation with Connole but indicated at the time he did not understand that he had to wait for a letter from the DEA to destroy the kit. The kit was not permissible to be destroyed, so it was returned to training on December 7th, 2023. The heroin sample was not noticed missing on that date, but an inventory was not completed. Lt. Chapman did indicate that he felt something was off regarding the heroin sample at that training. While these circumstances are suspicious, no evidence of theft of the heroin was found in this investigation. Each of the K9 handlers voluntarily submitted to drug screening and all resulted in negative tests.

Applicable Policy:

I reviewed the following applicable policies:

Policy 309- Canines

Policy 322 - Standards of Conduct

Police 324 – Report Preparation

Policy 700 – Department-Owned and Personal Property

Policy 309 - Canines

309.4 CANINE COORDINATOR

The canine coordinator shall be appointed by the Chief and directly responsible to the Patrol Commander.

The responsibilities of the coordinator include, but are not limited to:

(a) Reviewing all canine use reports to ensure compliance with policy and to identify training issues and other needs of the program.
(b) Maintaining accurate records to document canine activities.
(c) Not reviewed.

Lt. David Chapman is the K9 Coordinator.

(a) There is evidence that Lt. Chapman reviewed all the K9 training reports as they all show that he signed off on them. Lt. Chapman identified a procedure issue and adjusted it based on his evaluation that it was improper for a K9 handler to maintain control of the K9 kit for an extended period (See: Minot Police Department Unit Expectations).

(b) While the accuracy of M.O. Batteiger's reports should have been better, the reports were not inaccurate. Good records are kept via the Packtrack system which documents K9 training activities apart from M.O. Batteiger's neglecting to add weight to describe samples being used.

309.9 TRAINING

Before assignment in the field, each canine team shall be trained and certified to meet current nationally recognized standards or other recognized and approved certification standards. Cross-trained canine teams or those canine teams trained exclusively for the detection of narcotics and/or explosives also shall be trained and certified to meet current nationally recognized standards or other recognized and approved certification standards established for their particular skills.
All canine training should be conducted while on-duty unless otherwise approved by the canine coordinator or Patrol Supervisor.

309.9.3 TRAINING RECORDS

All canine training records shall be maintained by the canine handler and the canine's training file.

Training records are maintained in the Packtrack system. The K9 Coordinator and the K9 team members have access to review these records. The K9 Coordinator finalizes the reports when he signs off on them.

309.9.4 CONTROLLED SUBSTANCE TRAINING AIDS

Officers acting in the performance of their official duties may possess or transfer controlled substances for the purpose of narcotics-detection canine training in compliance with state and federal laws (N.D.C.C. § 19-03.1-16; 21 USC § 823(f)).

The Chief of Police or the authorized designee may authorize a member to seek a court order to allow controlled substances seized by the Minot Police Department to be possessed by the member or a narcotics-detection canine trainer who is working under the direction of this department for training purposes, provided the controlled substances are no longer needed as criminal evidence.

As an alternative, the Chief of Police or the authorized designee may request narcotics training aids from the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA).

These procedures are not required if the canine handler uses commercially available synthetic substances that are not controlled narcotics.

The Chief of Police has authorized and made a request for the use of training aids provided by the DEA. The K9 Team was properly registered to maintain these narcotics (See: 2023 K9 forms -DEA Request).

309.9.5 CONTROLLED SUBSTANCE PROCEDURES

Due to the responsibilities and liabilities involved with possessing readily usable amounts of controlled substances and the ever-present danger of the canine's accidental ingestion of these controlled substances, the following procedures shall be strictly followed:

(a) All controlled substance training samples shall be weighed and tested prior to dispensing to the individual canine handler or trainer.
(b) Blank
(c) Blank
(d) All controlled substance training samples may be inspected, weighed, and tested. The results of the quarterly testing shall be recorded and maintained by the canine coordinator with a copy forwarded to the dispensing agency.
(e) All controlled substance training samples will be stored in locked, airtight, and watertight cases at all times, except during training. The locked cases shall be secured in the trunk of the canine handler's assigned patrol vehicle during transport and stored in an appropriate locked container.
(f) All DEA obtained controlled substance aids shall be destroyed in accordance with DEA procedures. All other controlled substance training aids shall be destroyed in accordance with department controlled substance destruction procedures.

The investigation found:

(a) All controlled substance training samples were weighed upon receipt and broken to smaller sample sizes.
(b) blank
(c) blank
(d) There is no record of the substances being inspected, weighed, or tested nor did any of the handlers make any indication that this was a practice. This section indicates," substances training samples may be inspected, weighed, and tested". The failure to do so may be poor practice but is not a violation of this policy.
(e) All samples, except for the missing sample, were stored in an airtight, and watertight pelican case. This case is not locked as required by this policy. The case was stored for extended periods of time in the back of M.O Batteiger's locked patrol vehicle. This policy does permit a locked case, secured in the trunk of a K9 handler's car during transport, but Batteiger had an unlocked case in the back of his patrol car for approximately 8 and ½ months. Furthermore, this goes well beyond transport of the drugs and the intent of this policy. It should be noted that storage of the drugs in a patrol car was an accepted procedure at the time and up until Batteiger returned the drugs on November 13, 2023, but at that time he was directed by Lt. Chapman not to store them beyond 3 days. He was again in violation when he stored heroin in his car outside of the locked pelican case, for up to 13 days, between November 13, 2023, to November 26th, 2023.
(f) M.O. Batteiger was in the process of starting the destruction of the drugs in this kit when he learned that he was required to wait until receiving a letter, permitting their destruction, by the DEA. He did suspend his effort to destroy these drugs, so as to be in compliance with DEA procedures.

Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct

322.2 POLICY

The continued employment or appointment of every member of the Minot Police Department shall be based on conduct that reasonably conforms to the guidelines set forth herein. Failure to meet the guidelines set forth in this policy, whether on- or off-duty, may be cause for disciplinary action.

322.3 DIRECTIVES AND ORDERS

Members shall comply with lawful directives and orders from any department supervisor or person in a position of authority, absent a reasonable and bona fide justification.

On or before November 13 Lt. David Chapman, the K9 Coordinator, gave the K9 team a document titled Minot Police Department K9 Unit Expectations. This document was as a lawful order to the K9 team. In section 10 of this document Lt. Chapman directs the team to "treat and maintain training aids properly".

As part of this order, he made modification to the procedure of checking out and maintaining drugs outside of the K9 locker. In this order he required the K9 handlers to check the training aids via the digital app. He limited the time the handler could maintain training aids to three days (or 72 hours) for a full kit, or 7 days (or 168 hours) for half of a kit. After this order was given, M.O. Batteiger admitted that he returned the K9 drug kit to the locker, but immediately checked out the heroin sample for an additional 13 days, in disregard for this order.

322.5 CAUSES FOR DISCIPLINE

The following are illustrative of causes for disciplinary action. This list is not intended to cover every possible type of misconduct and does not preclude the recommendation of disciplinary action for violation of other rules, standards, ethics and specific action or inaction that is detrimental to efficient department service.

322.5.1 LAWS, RULES AND ORDERS

(a) Violation of, or ordering or instructing a subordinate to violate any policy, procedure, rule, order, directive, requirement or failure to follow instructions contained in department or City manuals.

(b) Disobedience of any legal directive or order issued by any department member of a higher rank.

(c) Violation of federal, state, local or administrative laws, rules or regulations.

M.O. Batteiger disobeyed Lt. Chapman's order by maintaining the K9 kit outside of the K9 locker for 13 days.

Police 324 – Report Preparation

324.1 PURPOSE AND SCOPE

Report preparation is a major part of each employee's job. The purpose of reports is to document sufficient information to refresh the employee's memory and to provide sufficient information for follow-up investigation and successful prosecution.

324.1.1 REPORT PREPARATION

Employees should ensure that their reports are sufficiently detailed for their purpose and reasonably free of errors prior to submission. It is the responsibility of the assigned employee to complete and submit all reports taken during the shift before going off-duty, unless permission to delay submission of the report has been approved by a supervisor. Generally, reports requiring prompt follow-up action on active leads or arrest reports where the suspect remains in custody should not be delayed.

324.2 REQUIRED REPORTING

Written reports are required in all of the following situations on the appropriate department-approved form unless otherwise approved by a supervisor.

324.2.2 NON-CRIMINAL ACTIVITY

Whenever the employee believes the circumstances should be documented or at the direction of a supervisor

Lt. Chapman, as well as MPD Policy 309, expressed the importance of maintaining records to show that the K9 team members are appropriately trained. To this end, he initiated the Packtrack training log system. This log permits K9 handlers to submit detailed reports about their activities. Lt. Chapman has instructed his handlers to log their reports within 24 hours of the event. Policy 324.1.1 requires the reports be "sufficiently detailed for their purpose". M.O. Batteiger appears to be the only handler to neglect to document the weight of the training sample. This proved to be problematic when trying to narrow down when the 15.7-gram sample was last used, resulting in substantially more effort being expended in searching for the missing sample.

Policy 700 – Department-Owned and Personal Property

700.1 PURPOSE AND SCOPE

The policy addresses the care of department-owned property and the role of the Department when personal property, the property of another or department-owned property is damaged or lost.

700.3 POLICY

It is the policy of the Minot Police Department that members shall properly care for department property assigned or entrusted to them...

700.4 DEPARTMENT-ISSUED PROPERTY

All property and equipment issued by the Department shall be documented in the appropriate property sheet or equipment log; receipt shall be acknowledged by signature...

A drug inventory log is maintained, to track when K9 handlers have access to the K9 drug kit. Maintaining an accurate log is essential as any discrepancies in the log leads to questions of impropriety. A discrepancy was observed in the November 26, 2023, entry where M.O. Batteiger noted returning the heroin sample to the kit, but a subsequent entry by S.O. Connole, checking the kit out on November 26, 2023, shows that the heroin was not present in the kit (see: Image 2). M.O. Batteiger acknowledges that his entry cannot be accurate. It is also note worth that the entry appears to have been altered from a "1" in the day, to a "2" (changing the day from 11/16/23 to 11/26/23). Lt. Chapman indicated that he created a digital log that could not be altered, but the log was not used by M.O. Batteiger or S.O. Connole.

700.4.1 CARE OF PROPERTY

Members shall be responsible for the safekeeping, serviceable condition, proper care, use and replacement of department property that has been assigned or entrusted to them. Intentional or negligent abuse or misuse of department property may lead to discipline including, but not limited to, the cost of repair or replacement.

(a) Members shall promptly report, through their chain of command, any loss, damage to, or unserviceable condition of any department-issued property or equipment assigned for their use.

1. A supervisor receiving such a report shall conduct an investigation and direct a memo to the appropriate Division Commander, in circumstances where misconduct or negligence caused the loss, damage or unserviceable condition.
2. A review by command staff should determine whether additional action is appropriate.

It is not clear when the 15.7-gram sample of heroin when missing, but M.O. Batteiger is the only K9 handler to sign this sample out of the locker. As a result, he took responsibility for this sample and should have accounted for it. He acknowledged that he does not regularly maintain inventories of the K9 drug kit as part of his process. Lt. Chapman reported asking M.O. Batteiger if he had everything at the end of the December 7th, 2023, training. It was at the next training that the sample was learned to be missing. S.O. Connole did not check the K9 kit out of the locker but acknowledged taking the kit from M.O. Batteiger's car in preparation for the December 14, 2023, training. S.O. Connole should have inventoried the kit at that time to ensure that he had the whole kit in his possession.

Ref: Use of Force incident review - CFS 17-15463

On May 27th, 2017 there was a disorderly conduct call to a residence in SW Minot (CFS 17-15463). Officers James Jabara and Jessica George responded to the call initially and Senior Officer Steve Kenny arrived later in the call as an additional officer.

A 28 year old male subject was arrested for Preventing Arrest and Disorderly Conduct during the course of the call. Officer Jabara utilized his Taser on the subject multiple times during the arrest procedure.

After the review of the Use of Force report form and other case documents/evidence the decision was made to convene a Use of Force review board to exam the incident. The board was convened to review the incident to identify any policy violations as well as training or other recommendations.

Sergeant Matt McLeod submitted a written report from the Use of Force review board detailing the analysis of the incident including a number of policy violations and training recommendations.

After reviewing this report and the case documents/evidence I concur with the findings of the board regarding the listed policy violations.

Findings: (See the attached Use of Force Review Board report for a detailed list of policy violations).

Additional Findings:

1. I disagree with the Use of Force Board's opinion that the force used meet the reasonableness standard. It is my opinion that the subject could have been restrained and resistance overcome without utilizing the Taser by the use of empty hand tactics by the three officers present. It appeared that had two officers each grabbed one of the subject's arms to apply the handcuffs the resistance would likely have been overcome.

As a result of these findings I am ordering the following:

1. This letter is considered a Letter of Reprimand for Officer Jabara's policy violations.

2. Within the next 6 weeks Officer Jabara will successfully complete the recommended training by the Use of Force Board. Documentation of this training and successful completion will be submitted to the Chief of Police by the Administrative Commander.

3. Officer Jabara's paperwork and in particular his narrative reports will undergo additional review and scrutiny by his Shift Lieutenant for a period of at least one month until he is satisfied that his reports are within the expectations and standards required by this department.
4. A copy of this letter and Use of Force Board report will be placed in Officer Jabara's personal file.

Supplement to August 3rd letter to James Jabara

After the review of the records of the incident by Officer Jabara. He spoke with me concerning the appearance in the Use of Force Review Board report that the subject that Jabara utilized his Taser was actually shocked by the Taser 8 times. The Taser record indicates that there were 4 Arc activations followed by 3 Trigger activations and an additional Arc activation of Jabara's Taser during the incident. However, it is unclear how many times the subject was actually shocked. The first set of probes may have missed the subject entirely. In my observation on the video I saw the subject seem to react to being shocked on two separate occasion. Several times when the Taser can be heard the subject did not seem to react.

Officer Jabara requested that this be noted in the permanent record which is the purpose of this supplement to my report.

Use of Force Review Board Recommendation
CFS #17-15463

Sgt. Matt McLeod
Sgt. Kevin Wilk
Sr. Officer Titus Clouse
Det. Robbie Sumlin
Dep. Samantha Kaul

After reviewing the reports from the three officers on scene and watching the body cam footage, the board's recommendation is that Officer Jabara receive remedial training in the areas of Taser, Use of Force, and report writing. However, we defer to the Chief's discretion to increase that to disciplinary action due to any previous filings in Jabara's personnel file unknown to this board. The decision was based on the violations of department policy listed below.

Conducted Energy Devices:

304.4.4 – Multiple Application of the Taser
-Use of force standards and current training practices require every activation of the Taser be justified by its own set of circumstances. In this case there was no justification articulated to begin with however the only thing noted was "deployed my Taser".
-After downloading the Taser firings on Jabara's Taser, there were 8 activation of the Taser in a span of 1 minute 5 seconds. That was 4 presses of the ARC switch, 3 trigger firings, and another press of the ARC switch.

304.5.1 – Reports
-Officer Jabara's narrative does not address that the subject was struck in the neck with one of the darts and that Community Ambulance responded and removed the probes. On the use of force report he did check the box that the subject was injured but checked he was not treated even though ambulance responded.
-During training all officers are instructed that anytime dart strike a sensitive area, photographs are to be taken before and after probe removal and those probes are to be entered into evidence. No photographs were taken and the probes were not put in evidence.

304.6 – Medical Treatment
-Policy requires that any subject exposed to multiple applications be examined by medical staff and be medically cleared prior to booking. There is no documentation of his refusal of medical care or what steps were taken.

The board found that Officer Jabara's report was grossly insufficient not only in articulating the elements of a crime but in justifying the force used in this matter. It is seriously lacking in any detail and in a couple cases in contradicted by what is seen on video.

The board felt that while the report written did not articulate the need for the force that was used, upon reviewing the video, it showed a scene that could cause a reasonable officer in those circumstances to use that level of force. Officer Jabara should receive training on use of force concepts, legal precedents, and what factors should be included in reports. Further, he should attend defensive tactics training so he can get more exposure to, and more comfortable with lesser force options to avoid becoming "Taser dependent" in all situations.

To whom it may concern,
Over the past four months since our shift schedule changed. I have come to realize my direct super vision is impairing my job performance and duties as a sworn officer. Sgt Burns consistently questions, demoralizes, and demeans not only my job performance but also my decisions while on and off duty. With the shift schedule being assigned in its current manner I am subjected to working with Sgt Burns 5 days a week .this in turn affects not only my moral but how new officers perceive me and Sgt Burns in our working relationship. For this purpose, I am requesting that my time be limited with Sgt Burns. I have attempted multiple times to adjust to his expectations however, no matter the effort or situation it seems as though I am always wrong .I am not requesting to be removed from his shift completely, simply that my time be limited as before . I understand sometimes I make mistakes but I do not feel that this current hostile work environment is beneficial to the department, my career, and my leadership as pertaining to new officers entering the department.

Thank you for your time in reviewing this matter

Ref: Internal Investigation – Improper Relationship

On November 17th, 2017 I received information that Officer James Jabara had visited a female in the custody of the North Dakota Department of Corrections (DOCR) who was living in a half-way house in Mandan. DOCR staff felt that this visit seemed odd and raised some concerns. The information was forwarded to Minot PD by DOCR. I assigned Capt. John Klug to conduct an internal investigation into the matter.

I have concluded my review of Capt. Klug's report. On 12/12/17, I met with Officer Jabara in my office along with Captains White, Klug, and Sundheim and Lt. Whitesell. The purpose of the meeting was to clarify with Officer Jabara some of the items in Capt. Klug's report prior to drafting this letter.

I make the following findings and proposed plan for disciplinary action. Officer Jabara will be presented with this letter and have the option of responding orally or in writing within five days to the findings and proposed disciplinary plan.

Findings of fact:

1. Officer Jabara first made contact with the female while working as a Patrol Officer. He took the female into custody and served a warrant on her for a probation revocation.
2. During the arrest process, Officer Jabara had a conversation with the female in which she made an admission to him that she was a methamphetamine user.
3. During the booking process, Officer Jabara obtained the female's phone number and had a conversation with her which indicated that he wanted further contact with her once she got out of jail.
4. Officer Jabara exchanged text messages with the female and once met with her by a laundromat.
5. Officer Jabara heard that the female had been picked up on another warrant and assumed that she went to prison as he didn't have contact with her for a number of months.
6. The female contacted Officer Jabara by way of text message indicating that she had been in prison but was currently residing at a half-way house in Mandan.
7. Officer Jabara discussed via text message using his police badge and status as a police officer to be allowed to visit her at the half-way house instead of following the routine procedure for visitors which entailed her listing him as a visitor and waiting for an approval process.
8. During an approximately two hour visit at the half-way house on November 15th, 2017, Officer Jabara held hands with and hugged the female.

Officer Jabara used his position as a police officer to gain easier access as a visitor to the half-way house where the female was incarcerated for the purposes of continuing to develop an intimate relationship with a person in the custody of ND DOCR.

Officer Jabara was not forthright in his statements during the internal investigation as to the nature of his relationship with the female inmate.

The following Minot Police Department policy violations by Officer Jabara are found to have occurred:

Policy 323 – Standards of Conduct

323.5.2 Ethics

(a) Using or disclosing one's status as a member of the Minot Police Department in any way that could reasonably be perceived as an attempt to gain influence or authority for non-department business or activity.

323.5.4 Relationships

(c) Establishing or maintaining an inappropriate personal or financial relationship, as a result of an investigation, with a known victim, witness, suspect or defendant while a case is being investigated or prosecuted, or as a direct result of any official contact.

(e) Associating on a personal, rather than official basis with persons who demonstrate recurring involvement in serious violations of state or federal laws after the member knows, or reasonably should know of such criminal activities, except as specifically directed as authorized by this department.

323.5.8 Performance

(a) Failure to disclose or misrepresenting material facts, or making any false or misleading statement on any application, examination form, or other official document, report or form, or during the course of any work-related investigation.

(c) Failure to participate in an investigation, or giving false or misleading statements, or misrepresenting or omitting material information to a supervisor or other person in a position of authority, in connection with any investigation or in the reporting of any -department-related business.

Policy 1006 – Personnel Complaints

1006.6.2 Administrative Investigative Procedures

Whether conducted by a supervisor or a member of the Patrol Operations Commander, the following applies to employees:

(j) All employees shall provide complete and truthful responses to questions posed during interviews.

9. Officer Jabara later exchanged texts with the female which included some sexual inferences. One text indicated that he was sexually aroused when he hugged her.
10. It is clear by the nature of the text messages between Officer Jabara and the female that their relationship is personal and includes a discussion about sexual habits and future intimate encounters between the two.
11. Officer Jabara and the female made plans for him to visit again which included plans to get a pass for her to be able to go to Walmart.
12. The female tested positive during a drug test at the half-way house and had her privileges suspended. During this period her cell phone is searched by DOCR or ND BCI staff. This search reveals numerous text messages between Officer Jabara and the female many of which are sexual in nature.
13. One of the texts includes a comment by the female to Officer Jabara that she is a convicted felon. The female asks if that is an issue for him. Jabara replies that it isn't "a deal breaker" but that drug use on her part would be.
14. Officer Jabara is interviewed by Capt. Klug as part of the internal investigation. During the interview Officer Jabara insists that the relationship with the female was one of "mentoring". He stated that the female reminded him of his sister who had similar problems with methamphetamine usage.
15. Officer Jabara acknowledges that he knows how it might look bad for a police officer to be seeking out and getting into a relationship with a known convicted felon and meth user. He said that he is partially familiar with the MPD policy prohibiting such relationships. He said that he thought it was okay to be a "mentor".
16. Officer Jabara acknowledged through the Minot PD Lexipol KMS policy website that he had read and understood Policy #323 on Standards of Conduct on 04/16/17. He acknowledged Policy #1006 Personnel Complaints on 08/05/16.
17. Officer Jabara admits that he: knew of two warrants for the female including a warrant for a probation revocation, that she was an admitted meth user, and that she had been in prison. He states that he was not completely familiar with her complete criminal history and that "I didn't want to know too much".
18. The female in this case has a lengthy criminal record including six felony convictions on charges such as: Possession of a Controlled Substance, Possession of Drug Paraphernalia, Reckless Endangerment, Possession of Stolen Property, Fleeing or Eluding a Police Officer, and Bail Jumping. This criminal history information is available in easily accessible public records through the ND Courts website.
19. Officer Jabara admitted that he was previously spoken to by Capt. White after a complaint arose about him using his position as a Minot Police Officer to contact a female that he was interested in pursuing a relationship with.

Summary of Findings:

Officer Jabara exercised very poor judgement when he willfully sought out and continued to develop a personal relationship with a female who he knew or reasonably should have known was a methamphetamine user and convicted felon.

Officer Jabara choose to continue this relationship despite knowing that the female was in the custody of ND DOCR for her criminal offenses.

Officer Jabara may exercise his option to give an oral or written presentation in way of response. If he does so the appointment to do so will be on 12/18/2017 at 0830 hours in the Chief's office.

Proposed Disciplinary Plan:

As a result of these findings I am ordering the following:

Ref: Internal Investigation 19-7.1

Ref. CFS #2019-19017

Summary:

The Minot Police Department received a complaint on June 24th, 2019 from a subject who had been injured during an arrest which had occurred on June 19th, 2019 (Case #19-19017).

The incident was assigned to Captain Justin Sundheim to conduct an internal investigation.

The incident was also examined by a Use of Force Review Board consisting of five law enforcement officers of various rank and including one from Ward County Sheriff's Office.

The Use of Force Review Board examined the case file documentation including body camera and in-car camera videos. The findings (copy attached) of the UOF Review Board were that the use of force, specifically the closed fist strikes to the subject's face by Officer Cory during the arrest, were not reasonable and were not within the Department's training or policy.

Capt. Sundheim completed the internal investigation. He supplied his written summary to the Chief of Police (copy attached). The summary report concluded that Officer Cory violated the Minot Police Department - Use of Force policy; in that his use of force in delivering closed fist strikes to the subject's face were not reasonable under the circumstances.

Capt. Sundheim' s report included documentation of Officer Cory's training on both use of force techniques and Minot Police Department policy which indicated that Officer Cory had been properly trained in both physical control tactics and use of force policies.

The case file and results of the internal investigation were supplied to Officer Cory. He was given a week to review the material and the option of providing a response to the Chief of Police.

On July 30th Officer Cory met with Capt. John Klug, Lt. Scot Redding and Chief Jason Olson to provide his response. Officer Cory gave a verbal response as well as a written response.

Officer Cory explained that the reason that he delivered strikes to the subject's face was that while attempting to get the subject out of the car he saw the subject raise his hand and felt that he was about to assault Officer Jay Bloyer. Officer Cory said that he used closed fist strikes to the subject's face because he had "reverted back to what I know, which is boxing". He acknowledged that this technique differs from what he was trained on by the Minot Police Department.

Capt. Sundheim had raised a concern that Officer Cory may have violated department policy by watching the body camera video prior to writing his report on the incident. I am satisfied with Officer Cory's explanation that he was directed by Lt. Redding to watch the video with Lt. Redding who was reviewing the incident. Lt. Redding explained that he was having problems with accessing the video through his own log on and had asked Officer Cory to access and review the video with him.

Findings:

After examining the incident documentation including Capt. Sundheim's report I make the finding that Officer Cory violated Minot Police Department - Use of Force policy by his use of closed fisted strikes to the subject's face. I find that his actions exceeded the reasonableness standard required for use of force by a police officer to control an arrestee.

Disciplinary Action:

1. Officer Cory will be suspended from work without pay for a period of six (10 hour) work days, with a loss of pay of 60 hours.
2. Officer Cory will be required to complete a training course on de-escalation techniques.
3. Officer Cory will be placed on a performance improvement and monitoring plan for a period of at least six months.
4. Officer Cory will not train on the subject of Taser during the period of his current certification.

0820 hrs-I met with Officer Cory in my office. He was given a Notice of Investigation regarding this incident. (attached)

06.28.19

0900 hrs- I met with the Use of Force (UOF) Board and provided them with documentation and video of the incident. Lt. McLeod was the Chair of the Board (Policy 301.4.2) See attached summary report from the UOF Board for their findings.

07.03.19

PSAP McPeak downloaded the officer radio traffic for the incident. The digital file is attached.

07.05.19

0800 hrs-I met with Officer Bloyer in my office. Summary of interview is as follows:

1) He had stopped PASKE for suspicion of DUI
2) PASKE was acting "pretty belligerent"
3) Due to PASKE'S actions, he wanted to further the DUI investigation
4) He had informed PASKE multiple times to get out of the car and informed him consequences if he didn't.
5) PASKE had eventually unlocked the car door and he opened it.
6) (officer) Cory had opened the door and he heard "strikes" or "fighting".
7) He grabbed ahold of PASKE and told him to get out.

8) He pushed PASKE "back into the seat" and pulled it (seatbelt) off of him.

9) He "pinned" PASKE back in as there was some "scuffling" going on.

10) He didn't recall seeing what happened initially (in the car between Cory and PASKE) He was focused on PASKE

0835 hrs-I met with Officer Cory in my office. Summary of interview is as follows:

1) He was the cover officer for Officer Bloyer on the traffic stop.

2) He could hear PASKE and Officer Bloyer going back in forth verbally and Officer Bloyer wanting PASKE to step out of the vehicle.

3) The door became unlocked and that's when opened up the passenger door.

4) He stated that PASKE had the seatbelt buckled into the passenger buckle, not the driver's buckle.

5) He hit the (buckle) at the same time Officer Bloyer started to attempt to pull (PASKE) out of the vehicle.

6) He saw Officer Bloyer reach in and, "try to pull (PASKE) out and (PASKE), instead of going out of the vehicle, pushed backwards and I was already halfway into the vehicle so I started trying to push (PASKE) out through the passenger side."

7) He stated that PASKE was seated at an angle (45 degrees) away from him.

8) He stated he "tried to push him out and then he started pushin' again against me"

9) He saw (PASKE)'s "Hand start-what I thought he was getting ready to punch Bloyer. And so I grabbed on to my hand and struck him in the face, um, attempting to disorientate or disorientate-oh I can't even speak. Disorientate him from, you know, that-basically just throw him off."

10) He stated that "all I could see was his right hand and it was in a circular movement towards Bloyer that appeared to be striking or-or that he was attempting to strike or hit Bloyer.

11) He used a closed fist (to strike PASKE)

12) He didn't believe he had anything in his right hand. (used to strike PASKE)

13) He was "aiming for the nose" and then the "cheek area". "The nose is just one that I know it-basically just shuts down the senses" and "It gets pretty much the fight out of people."

14) He believed he hit PASKE three (3) times.

15) He stated that there "wasn't really any reaction other than he was still flailing his arm and saying "he's hitting me" and still pushing back against me".

16) He doesn't remember any one striking PASKE with a knee or kicking PASKE.

17) When asked if he was trained on the strikes to disorientate, he stated "we weren't trained on closed punches" "Closed fist punches"

07.08.19

Request of PASKE's medical records was sent via email.

07.15.19

Training records were received from Capt. Sundbakken earlier in the investigation and were reviewed. (copies attached)

--Officer Cory had completed 14 Daily Training Bulletins from 04.29.15 to 3.24.19 that were related to Use of Force to include "Reasonableness" "Excessive" and "Factors to Consider"

--Policy 300 (Use of Force) was reviewed and acknowledged on 06.07.16 and 4.11.18 by Officer Cory.

--Officer Cory completed Force on Force training on 12.10.18 and Minot PD Defensive Tactics on 08.08.17

--POST Records are attached

--Minot PD Training profile is attached

--Sr Defensive Tactics instructor Sgt. Wilk indicated that Officer Cory completed the 40 hr in house defensive tactics course when he began employment with the PD.

07.17.19

An audit (attached) was performed on the two body camera videos (Cory and Bloyer). Officer Cory's login was used to access and stream his body cam footage twice after the incident. Once at 02:00:16 and a second time at 02:15:16.

A check of Officer Cory's supplemental report shows he began his supplemental report at 03:50:46 and submitted it at 03:57:27. Considering the length of the report, the report may have been copied and pasted to the supplement from a separate word document.

Dispatch log shows Officer Cory clearing the DUI call at 0039:08. Officer Cory did respond to a medical call from 01:24:15 to 01:40:04 later that morning.

07.18.19

Report will be forwarded to Chief Olson for review. PASKE has not contacted me again to this date. Medical records are still pending.

SUMMARY OF VIDEO REVIEW

Officer Bloyer informs PASKE 11 times to get out of the vehicle before going hands on with him. Officer Bloyer explained to PASKE on at least 3 separate occasions why he needed him to get out of the vehicle prior to the door being opened. Officer Bloyer told PASKE 2 more times (13 total) to get out of the vehicle as he was physically trying to remove him. On the 13th time, Officer Bloyer told PASKE he was under arrest.

Video from bodycams do not show anything other than a scuffle ensuing and provide a time frame of altercation. Video does not show PASKE being struck or what he is or isn't doing once officers are inside. Audio from video indicates PASKE is being struck multiple times (minimally 3 times).

Dashcam video is poor in quality. It shows officers entering the car and PASKE eventually being taken into custody outside the driver's door. It is not high enough quality to be able to ascertain what is happening inside the vehicle.

SUMMARY OF INVESTIGATION AND APPLICABLE POLICIES

Based on the information gathered during this investigation, the following policies were reviewed for applicability: Minot PD Policy 300 (USE OF FORCE) Policy 422 (PORTABLE AUDIO/VIDEO RECORDERS)

300.3 USE OF FORCE

> "Given that no policy can realistically predict every possible situation and officer may encounter, officers are entrusted to use well-reasoned discretion in determining the appropriate use of force in each incident."
> "Officers may find it more effective or reasonable to improvise their response to rapidly unfolding conditions that they are confronting. In such circumstances, the use of any improvised device or method must nonetheless be reasonable and utilized only to the degree that reasonably appears necessary to accomplish a legitimate law enforcement purpose."

Officer Cory's use of closed fist strikes to the face do not appear to meet this standard as set forth. Although deviation from training methods may be allowed under certain circumstances, this situation does not appear to meet that criteria. PASKE was verbally confrontational, but had not given indication of being physically confrontational. In addition, Officer Cory was not alone on this call, as he had another officer with him that he was assisting.

300.3.2 USE OF FORCE FACTORS USED TO DETERMINE THE REASONABLENESS OF FORCE

> "When determining whether to apply force and evaluating whether an officer has used reasonable force, a number of factors should be taken into consideration, as time and circumstances permit. These factors include but are not limited to":
> (a) Immediacy and severity of the threat to officers

PASKE was seated in the driver's seat of his vehicle. (see subsection (k) for additional detail)

> (b) The conduct of the individual being confronted, as reasonably perceived by the officer at the time.

PASKE was verbally argumentative and refusing a general order to exit the vehicle.

> (c) Officer/Subject factors (age, size, relative strength, skill level, injuries sustained, level of exhaustion or fatigue, the number of officers available vs subjects)

Bloyer and Cory are both younger (age), experienced officers that could be described as reasonably physically fit. Their skill level in regards to physical/defensive tactics are relatively high as Officer Bloyer is a SWAT officer and Officer Cory is a Taser instructor.

(d) The effects of drugs or alcohol

PASKE was suspected of being under the influence of alcohol but did not exhibit any other threatening behavior other than being argumentative.

(e) Subjects mental state or capacity
(f) Proximity of weapons or dangerous improvised explosive devices

There were no weapons that were perceived or articulated to be a concern.

(g) The degree to which the subject has been effectively restrained and his/her ability to resist despite being restrained.
(h) The availability of other options and their potential effectiveness.
(i) Seriousness of the suspected offense or reason for contact with the individual

Suspected DUI (misdemeanor criminal offense)

(j) Training and experience of the officer

Officer Cory is a 5 yr officer with the department and is a Taser instructor.

(k) Potential injury to officers, suspects, and others.

Although there is a possibility of the vehicle being put into drive and potentially injuring officers while they are attempting to control PASKE, Officer Cory did not articulate that was ever a concern for his use of force, nor did PASKE ever give any indication of doing so.

The potential for injury for officers is always a concern, however, PASKE was in a seated position with two officers that are hands on with him. The potential for injury to officers had not presented itself in this situation other that PASKE bringing his hands up from a seated position.

(l) Whether the person appears to be resisting, attempting to evade arrest by flight or is attacking the officer

Officer Cory indicated he thought PASKE was about to strike Officer Bloyer. Officer Bloyer indicated that he knew a struggle was ensuing with PASKE and Officer Cory. It is reasonable to assume the "struggle" may have been a result of PASKE being struck in the face.

(m) The risk and reasonably foreseeable consequences of escape
(n) The apparent need for immediate control of the subject or a prompt resolution of the situation

Office Bloyer indicated he was going to "negotiate" with PASKE some more once the door was open, however when Officer Cory went in the vehicle, his actions transitioned to going hands on with PASKE.

(o) Whether the conduct of the individual being confronted no longer reasonably appears to pose an imminent threat to the officers or others
(p) Prior contacts with the subject or awareness of any propensity for violence
(q) Any other exigent circumstance

The Use of Force board that was convened found Officer Cory to be in violation of Policy 300 (USE OF FORCE). Given the totality of the circumstances as detailed above, the amount of force that was used does not appear to meet the reasonableness standard for use of force. Each use of force application in itself must be justified. In this case, each strike must be justified. Therefore, I agree with the board's decision based on the above factors, thus Officer Cory's action(s) in regards to violation of Policy 300.3 Use of Force and 300.3.2 Factors to Consider are SUSTAINED.

CONCLUSION:

In addition to the listed summary and findings for the allegation made by PASKE, the investigation revealed that Officer Cory was also in Violation of Policy 422.7.

422.7 PORTABLE AUDIO/VIDEO RECORERS (REVIEW OF RECORDED MEDIA FILES)

> "When preparing written reports, members shall not review their recordings as a resource prior to filing their report. After the written report is filed, a member may review their recordings."

An audit of Officer Cory's body camera footage from this incident shows Officer Cory's login was used to stream the video twice. Once at 02:00:16 and a second time at 02:15:16. Officer Cory did not submit his supplemental report until 03:51:27 hrs.

End Report

Captain Justin Sundheim

June 28th, 2019
Use of Force Review Board Findings
Ref. CFS #19-19017

Lt. McLeod
Sgt. Wilk
Sr. Officer Casarez
Officer Bjork
Capt. Kraft (WCSO)

On the 28th of June, a review board was assembled to review the listed incident. The scope of the review was to determine whether the actions of Officers Bloyer and Cory were reasonable and within department policy.

The board reviewed both the policy on review boards; 301, as well as the department Use of Force policy; 300. The case reports and use of force reports filed by both officers were read prior to viewing dash cam footage and the body cam footage from both officers. The discussion centered around 4 specific sections of the policy: 300.2.1 / 300.3 / 300.3.2 / 300.3.3 which will be explained in more detail.

The findings of the board are that Senior Officer Jay Bloyer's actions were reasonable and within department policy. The board found unanimously that the actions of Senior Officer Kevin Cory were not reasonable and were not within department policy. Senior Officer Cory entered the vehicle and struck the subject several times with a closed fist causing serious injury to his face.

300.3 Use of Force

While at the time force was implemented, the subject had not been advised he was under arrest, Officer Bloyer was attempting to conduct a DUI investigation and gave numerous lawful commands to exit the vehicle.

300.3.2 Factors to Determine Reasonableness of Force

Officer Bloyer's actions were reasonable in that he utilized empty hand controls by grabbing on to the subject by the left arm and the collar of his jacket to remove him from the vehicle.

Officer Cory's actions were not reasonable for the resistance encountered based on the subsections below.

a. There was no immediate threat to either officer or others at the time force was used. Neither officer articulated a threat and Cory's report contradicts the possibility in that Officer Bloyer was outside the car with control over the subject's left wrist. Officer Cory stated he thought Bloyer was getting assaulted or may get assaulted, yet the subject was seated in the driver's seat facing either forward or toward Officer Cory at the time. Officer Cory's statement that the subject "brought his hands to the front of his body" does not articulate a perceived threat.

b. The conduct of the subject at the time was defiant and resistive in that he was refusing to exit and resisting efforts to remove him from the car. At no time was there mention of an active assault or even statements of the nature.
f. There was no known weapons at the time of the incident. Officer Bloyer noted in his report that the subject had a cell phone in one hand and a vaporizer in the other.
h. Lower levels of force were not even attempted by Officer Cory. Options such as OC spray and/or Taser, while still an intermediate weapon, would be far safer options than strikes to the face.
i. The crime being investigated at the time force was used was DUI (class B misdemeanor)
j. Both officers on scene are senior officers with the department, with more training and experience
k. there was no articulated potential for injury to the officers on scene or a fear of a risk to the public.

300.2.1 Duty to Intercede

We looked at whether Officer Bloyer would have had a duty to intercede and found that based on the circumstances, he could not see what actions Officer Cory had taken, and would not have had time to intercede if he had. Therefore we found no violation of this policy.

Another factor discussed by the board was the actual fist strikes. Officer Cory noted in his report that he struck the subject several times to disorient him. This was discussed with Sgt. Wilk and no force curriculum being taught by the Minot PD teaches using a closed fist strike to the face for the purpose of disorienting or distracting.

Ref: Internal Investigation ref. Case #2017-2330

On November 28th, 2017, Captain John Klug reported that there was a request by a Federal Prosecutor to MPD Records Division for some evidence from Case # 2017-2330, namely a video from surveillance cameras at a grocery store.

An arrest had been made of a subject on January 23rd, 2017 in the parking lot of the store. The events were captured by the store's video camera system. The video had not been located by Records staff and a follow up inquiry with Senior Officer Titus Clouse revealed that he was in possession of the evidentiary video from the case.

The video was subsequently entered into evidence. Officer Clouse had made a comment when turning it in that led to suspicion that the video had been intentionally held out of being entered into the Department's evidence storage due to the contents of the video which portrayed the arrest procedure of the male subject.

During the arrest, the subject had resisted and force was used by Officer Tim Gates, Officer Charles Shane Johnson and BCI SA Craig Sandusky. Officer Clouse also assisted with controlling the subject.

Capt. Klug was tasked with conducting an internal investigation into the matter. The report of his investigation is attached to this letter. After examining the entire documentation including Capt. Klug's report I note the following events.

Events:

1. Officer Johnson first attempted to arrest the subject in the parking lot of the grocery store. The subject was fleeing on foot and attempting to get away from Johnson's gasp.
2. Officer Timothy Gates (formerly employed by MPD) tackled the subject and flung him to the ground.
3. As the struggle with the subject continued, Officer Gates changed his hold of the subject from around the subject's waist to a hold around the subject's neck.
4. SA Sandusky joined the melee to lend assistance in getting the subject controlled.
5. During the struggle, a handgun was seen in the subject's waistline which was communicated to the other officers by SA Sandusky.
6. SA Sandusky was able to remove the handgun from the subject and secure it.
7. Officer Gates continued to hold the subject by the neck in what appears to be a lateral vascular neck restraint type of technique until the subject was successfully handcuffed.
8. Officer Johnson delivers two slaps or strikes with his right hand to the facial area of the subject, the first of which came just as the subject was handcuffed and the second of which came several seconds after the subject was handcuffed and already under control.
9. Officer Johnson did not file a Use of Force report.

10. Officer Gates obtained a copy of the surveillance video on a USB flash drive from the grocery store on the same date as the incident (01/23/2017) but did not enter it into MPD evidence as per policy and standard procedure nor did he document it in any reports.
11. Officer Gates and Clouse viewed the video and had a discussion about the appearance of the force used indicating that it may not look good in light of what is currently going on in this country regarding police and use of force.
12. On the date of the incident, Officer Gates made a recording of a portion of the video on his cell phone and forwarded it to several officers.
13. Officer Gates retained the USB flash drive containing the video for a period of days or weeks instead of entering in as evidence.
14. It is unclear as to how long Gates retained the video but at some point prior to his departure from MPD to his new job in Minnesota he gave the flash drive containing the video to Officer Clouse.
15. Officer Clouse did not enter the video in as evidence but instead held on to the video in his patrol car until 09/28/17 when a MPD records technician asked him if he had it.
16. Officer Clouse made a statement to the technician to the effect that Officer Gates did not want the video entered into evidence unless it was requested. Officer Clouse maintains that is not the reason it was not entered into evidence but rather because he forgot about doing it.

Initial Findings:

1. Officer Johnson's second strike which occurred several seconds after the subject was secured with handcuffs was unreasonable and without justification by MPD policy.
2. Officer Johnson did not file a Use of Force report.

As a result of these findings I am ordering the following:

1. Officer Johnson will be suspended from work without pay for a period of 5 work days with a loss of pay of 40 hours.
2. Officer Johnson will be required to submit a comprehensive written report outlining the potential implications of use of force such as occurred in this incident on both the officer and the department.
3. Any disciplinary actions will be effective once the appeal processes are either waived or exhausted.

Opened: November 28, 2017

December 6, 2017

On November 28, 2017 Sgt. Jessica Sundheim and Evidence Technician Rebecca Heringer came to me office and told me they needed to talk to me. Sgt. Sundheim told Rebecca to explain what happened and she provided information about a surveillance video.

Rebecca said she was contacted by Jeremy Ensrud from the Federal Prosecutor's Office who asked about a surveillance video in reference to case number 17-2330, which involved the arrest of Alexander Galindo. When she researched the case she couldn't find a surveillance video listed in evidence. She noticed the primary officers on this call were Tim Gates, who now works for an agency in Minnesota, and Officer Titus Clouse. She went to the shift commander's office and Officer Clouse was sitting at the desk and was the only one in the room. She asked him about the video and Clouse said he had the video, but Gates didn't want it turned in unless it was requested for the case because of the chokehold used by Gates.

On November 28, 2017 at about 4:41 PM I conducted an interview of Officer Titus Clouse in my office. Prior to beginning the interview I provided a Garrity Warning form and told him to read it and if he agreed, sign and date it. He did so and we proceeded with an interview. I had him explain his involvement in the case and then asked about the video. When asked specifically about the video he told me it was given to him just prior to Gates leaving Minot PD for his new job in Minnesota and he forgot it on the dash. I then asked him about his conversation with Rebecca about it not being turned in until requested because of the choke hold Gates used on Galindo. Officer Clouse's face turned red and there was hesitation in how he answered. I asked follow up about the conversation Gates and Clouse had about the video and he said there was discussion about not turning the video in because of what was shown on the video.

After completing my interview with Officer Clouse, I immediately called Tim Gates in an effort to obtain accurate information from him about the video prior to any conversation Clouse may have with him about the video. Gates said he obtained the video because he had made the request from the store and they told him when it was done. He said he gave it to Clouse shortly after obtaining it from the store because Clouse told him the gun charge was going to go Federal. He also said Clouse filed all of the charges against Galindo and that's also why he gave the video to Clouse. Gates did say that the choke hold wasn't as much a topic of conversation as the "slam", also referred to as "suplex". On November 29th Tim Gates contacted Chief Jason Olson and wanted to talk about the video. Chief Olson spoke to Gates and the call was recorded. Gates reiterated what he had told me, however, unlike the first day when I spoke to him, he said that "we knew he had a gun", but that wasn't mentioned in the report with exception to after one of the officers yelled "gun" while they were wrestling with him and it became exposed, which is after Gates slammed him to the ground.

After obtaining a copy of the B&D surveillance video that was turned into evidence, I watched the video to try to understand what happened and why the video may not be turned in. While watching the video I noticed there were two (2) strikes delivered to Galindo's head by Officer Shane Johnson. This raised suspicion that Clouse may not have turned the video in to try to prevent Officer S. Johnson from facing discipline for his actions following the arrest of Galindo.

On November 29th, 2017 I interviewed Officer S. Johnson at 4:13 PM after providing the Garrity warning. I asked him about the video and he said he didn't know much about the video, but assumed it was turned in because he saw the video the day of the incident and said he thought it was good evidence in the case because it showed the gun being removed from Galindo. He also alluded to the fact that Officer Clouse had called him about being put on administrative leave and told him that a "conversation may have taken place between Titus and Tim... a while back." I asked Officer S. Johnson if he remembers striking Galindo after he was handcuffed and in custody and he said he didn't. I asked if he watched the video and he said not since January when he was initially showed the video. I paused the recording while preparing the video and watching it with S. Johnson. I pointed out the strikes and he said he didn't remember hitting him, but he couldn't deny it because it was on the video. Officer S. Johnson also said he didn't have an explanation about why he struck him and said even that wouldn't prevent him from turning in the video. He maintained that he was never part of a conversation about not turning in the surveillance video.

On December 2nd, 2017 I obtained a copy of the video sent to SA Sandusky and asked if he also knew when he had received it from Officer Gates. SA Sandusky said it appeared he received it at 5:16 PM on January 23, 2017 and it was submitted with his report to his supervisor on January 24, 2017. I watched the video which Gates recorded with a cell phone off of his in car computer and sent to SA Sandusky. A call was dispatched at the end of the video, which was determined to be an alarm call (Inc# 17-2350), and that call occurred at 17:16 on January 23, 2017. This confirms that the video was in the possession of Tim Gates before the end of his shift on January 23, 2017. If this wasn't turned over to Officer Clouse prior to the end of their shift on January 23rd, the next date they both worked patrol together would have been January 30th, 2017.

Tim Gates also said during every conversation with myself and Chief Olson that he had the video and turned it over to Officer Clouse as soon as he heard the case was going federal. In an effort to try to develop a potential timeline for the evidence I called Jeremy Ensrud (Federal Prosecutor) to ask for any details about when he decided to charge this case in Federal Court. He offered that he attended a meeting at the Drug Task Force and it was mentioned by Officer Shane Johnson and SA Craig Sandusky. He said he sent an email to Ward County State's Attorney Roza Larson on February 8th, 2017 to inform her of his interest to charge Alexander Galindo in Federal Court. He then received the report from SA Dan Mehlhoff with ATF on March 16, 2017 with the case information and it was submitted for arraignment in Federal Court in the week to follow. Using this information, the statement from Clouse, and the statement from Gates, it is more likely that Gates had the video until at least February 8th, but possibly until a couple days just prior to Gates leaving Minot PD to start his new job in Minnesota.

The policy violations in this case are as follows:

- Policy 802 – Property and Evidence

  802.3 Property Handling
  Any employee who first comes into possession of any property shall retain such property in his/her possession until it is properly tagged and placed in the designated locker or storage room, along with the property form. Care shall be taken to maintain the chain of custody for all evidence.

  802.3.1 Property Booking Procedure
  All property must be booked prior to the employee going off-duty. Employees booking property shall observe the following guidelines:
  a. Complete the property form describing each item separately, listing all serial numbers, owner's name, finder's name and other identifying information or markings.
  f. Evidence that requires processing shall be placed into property storage after it has been processed.

The violation of the above mentioned policy is sustained for Officer Titus Clouse and for Tim Gates while acting in his position as an officer with our department at the time of the incident. Through both of their statements, Titus Clouse and Tim Gates both admit to having the video past the end of the duty day when they took custody of the flash drive, which they both identify as evidence in the case in question.

- Policy 1006 – Personnel Complaints

  1006.6.2 Administrative Investigative Procedures
  Whether conducted by a supervisor or a member of the Patrol Operations Commander, the following applies to employees:
  j. All employees shall provide complete and truthful responses to questions posed during interviews.

The violation of the above mentioned policy is sustained for Officer Titus Clouse. (This policy does not apply to Tim Gates as he is no longer employed by Minot PD.) Officer Clouse provided information in his interview that he forgot about the evidence (flash drive), but when specifically questioned about not turning in the evidence because of what it showed, he said that was a conversation had. When considering all information obtained during the investigation, it is apparent that a conversation was had between Tim Gates and Officer Titus Clouse wherein they discussed the appearance of the force used and shown on the video and not turning the video in as evidence unless it was requested. Officer Titus Clouse and Tim Gates both had a part in maintaining custody of the evidence for a period totaling a little over ten (10) months prior to it being turned in as evidence by Officer Clouse. It is apparent that the information provided by both is not complete or truthful.

This policy violation is also a violation of the Peace Officer Code of Conduct 109-02-05-01 wherein it is a violation under subsection (e) "To willfully lie, provide false testimony, provide misleading information or falsify written or verbal communications in reports when the information may be relied upon by the courts, state's attorneys, or other law enforcement officials.

- Policy 300 – Use of Force

300.5 Reporting the Use of Force
Any use of force by a member of this department shall be documented promptly, completely and accurately in an appropriate report, depending on the nature of the incident. The officer should articulate the factors perceived and why he/she believed the use of force was reasonable under the circumstances.

300.3.2 Factors Used to Determine the Reasonableness of Force
When determining whether to apply force and evaluating whether an officer has used reasonable force, a number of factors should be taken into consideration, as time and circumstances permit. (There are a list of 17 factors (a-q) listed within this section.)

300.5.1 Notifications to Supervisors
Supervisory notification shall be made as soon as practicable following the application of force in any of the following circumstances:

b. The application would lead a reasonable officer to conclude that the individual may have experienced more than momentary discomfort.
c. The individual subjected to the force complained of injury or continuing pain.
h. An individual was struck or kicked.

The violation of the above mentioned policies are sustained for Officer Shane Johnson. Although he stated he didn't remember delivering two strikes to the face/head area of Alexander Gilando, it is apparent on the video that he did so. These strikes served no purpose in taking Gilando into custody and were delivered following him being in control and handcuffed. Additionally, Officer S. Johnson was involved throughout the incident and should have known Gilando experienced pain and heard his complaints of being hurt and in pain. The presence of these circumstances should have led to Officer S. Johnson filing a "Use of Force" report in this incident. Additionally, in considering the reasonableness of the force, none of the seventeen (17) factors were present at the time of the strikes. Officer S. Johnson could not remember or explain why he delivered the strikes.

I have included a list of all transcribed statements, recorded phone calls, videos, and reports obtained as a part of this investigation. Please see the itemized list in the attached reference page.

Ref: Use of Force review – Taser usage

I received a report (copy attached) from Capt. John Klug that Officer Lund violated Policy 304 on Taser usage during an incident on August 19th, 2019.

I have reviewed the report and body camera video. I concur with the conclusion that Officer Lund violated the policy by utilizing a Taser on a fleeing motor vehicle theft suspect for mere flight in order to apprehend the suspect.

Findings:

1. Officer Lund utilized his Taser to apprehend a subject who was fleeing on foot from him. The subject did not display any assaultive type behavior towards Officer Lund but was merely fleeing on foot. This type of usage of the Taser device is specifically prohibited by policy 304.4.1.

304.4.1 APPLICATION OF THE TASER DEVICE
The TASER device may be used in any of the following circumstances, when the circumstances perceived by the officer at the time indicate that such application is reasonably necessary to control a person:

(a) The subject is violent or has demonstrated, by words or action, an intention to be violent or to physically resist, and reasonably appears to present the potential to harm officers, him/herself or others.

Mere flight from a pursuing officer, without other known circumstances or factors, is not good cause for the use of the TASER device to apprehend an individual.

As a result of these findings I am ordering the following:

1. This letter of reprimand is issued to Officer Lund who has been warned that his actions were in violation of policy on Taser usage.
2. Officer Lund will undergo remedial training and policy review regarding the Taser device.

Officer Lund understands that any future violations of this nature could result in additional suspension without pay or termination of employment.

Policy Violation
Reference: Use of Force
Officer Joshua Lund

August 20, 2019

On August 19, 2019 I was notified by Lt. Dale Plessas that he was looking at a use of force wherein Sgt. Foley had some concerns. This use of force was a Taser deployment by Senior Officer Joshua Lund on August 17, 2019. The Taser was deployed on a male subject who was a suspect in a vehicle theft who began running away from Officer Lund when he told him he was being detained and to put his hands behind his back. After a short distance and no verbal warning, the subject was tased in the back while running.

I have attached the letter from Lt. Dale Plessas which outlines the policy violations committed by Officer Lund during this incident. The violations of Policy 304 surrounding the use of Conducted Energy Devices (Taser) put the suspect at undue risk of injury when tased while fleeing from Officer Lund.

Because this is the first incident surrounding a use of force by Sr. Officer Lund, I would recommend a letter be placed in his personnel file and that he be ordered to take a full refresher course on the Taser to include training on Policy 304

Respectfully,

Captain John Klug

August 20, 2019

Capt. Klug,

On August 17, 2019, Sgt. Foley contacted me with concerns to a use of force by Officer Lund. I reviewed Officers Lund's Use of Force Report, his Body Camera Footage, and talked to him about incident 19-26084. I believe Officer Lund's use of the Taser device is contrary to the Minot Police Department Policy for Conducted Energy Device 304.2, 304.4.1, and 304.4.2 (f).

On August 16, 2019, Officer Lund observed a stolen vehicle and two subject he believed were involved in the possession of this stolen vehicle. He approached the subjects and after a brief interview advised one of the subjects, he was going to detain him by placing him in handcuffs (approximately 5:29 on Officer Lund's Body Camera video). This Subject immediately fled on foot from Officer Lund. Officer Lund pursued the subject. Officer Lund deployed his Taser device without giving any verbal warning to this subject. Furthermore the subject was actively running. The subject fell to the ground and Officer Lund places him in handcuffs without further altercation. This incident occurred in Oak Park in the area of the dike for the Mouse River.

Officer Wilkerson was also on scene at the time of this incident. When the subject fled from Officer Lund Officer Wilkerson detained the second subject prior to assisting Officer Lund in apprehension of the fleeing subject. Officer Wilkerson did not participate in the use of the Taser devise, but assisted in handcuffing the subject after deployment. Sgt. Wheeler also responded to the scene as the supervisor.

Upon completion of my review, I note the following Policy violations:

1. At no time during this incident did the subject give any indication that he presented harm to Officer Lund or any other person. He gave no indication that he was violent or potentially Violent.
2. The Subject was actively fleeing from Officer Lund.
3. It appears form the video and Officer Lund's report that his only reason for deployment was apprehension.
4. The individual's position or activity may have resulted in collateral injury.

On August 19, 2019, I talked to Officer Lund about this incident. Officer Lund conceded that his only reason for deploying his Taser was for apprehension, and the subject was not actively violent. When I asked him if the deployment was only to apprehend the subject, he said "yeah. I wasn't thinking".

I advised Officer Lund that MPD Policy indicates that the use of the Taser is intended to control Violent or potentially violent subjects. I advised him that there was no indication that this subject posed any threat. I also advised him that policy specifically indicates that that mere flight is not a good reason to use his Taser. Officer Lund indicated that he understood.

I provided Officer Lund a copy of MPD Policy 304 – Conductive Energy Devices via e-mail. He was also advised that he needed to review it prior to going on patrol on his next workday and he will confirm doing this with Sgt. Foley, his assigned supervisor. Sgt. Foley was advised to insure that he understands the policy and answer any questions he has.

304.2 POLICY
The TASER device is intended to control a violent or potentially violent individual, while minimizing the risk of serious injury. The appropriate use of such a device should result in fewer serious injuries to officers and suspects.

304.4.1 APPLICATION OF THE TASER DEVICE
The TASER device may be used in any of the following circumstances, when the circumstances perceived by the officer at the time indicate that such application is reasonably necessary to control a person:

(a) The subject is violent or has demonstrated, by words or action, an intention to be violent or to physically resist, and reasonably appears to present the potential to harm officers, him/herself or others.

Mere flight from a pursuing officer, without other known circumstances or factors, is not good

304.4.2 SPECIAL DEPLOYMENT CONSIDERATIONS
The use of the TASER device on certain individuals should generally be avoided unless the totality of the circumstances indicates that other available options reasonably appear ineffective or would present a greater danger to the officer, the subject or others, and the officer reasonably believes that the need to control the individual outweighs the risk of using the device. This includes:
(a) Individuals who are known to be pregnant.
(b) Elderly individuals or obvious juveniles.
(c) Individuals with obviously low body mass.
(d) Individuals who are handcuffed or otherwise restrained.
(e) Individuals who have been recently sprayed with a flammable chemical agent or who are otherwise in close proximity to any known combustible vapor or flammable material, including alcohol-based oleoresin capsicum (OC) spray.
(f) Individuals whose position or activity may result in collateral injury (e.g., falls from height, operating vehicles).

Lt Plessas,

In regard to 19-26084, Sr Officer Lund completed a Use of Force report for a taser deployment on 08/16/19. After reviewing the report and the body camera video, I have some concerns about the force that was utilized to take the suspect into custody and with the report that was completed detailing the event.
Officers were in Oak Park and located a stolen vehicle with two individuals next to it. The individuals were subsequently located and detained in Camp Oweti. As Sr. Officer Lund was going to detain the male half, the male fled on foot. Sr. Officer Lund gave chase while reaching for his taser. Sr. Officer Lund subsequently deployed his taser while running after the suspect. The suspect fell to the ground after the taser probes made contact and he was subsequently taken into custody. My concern is that there were no verbal warnings given for the suspect to stop nor did Sr. Officer Lund attempt any other control tactics prior to deploying the taser. It appears that by watching the video, Sr. Officer Lund was "losing the race" if you will, and utilized the taser to keep the suspect from gaining more ground on him. It was determined the individual had warrants and was subsequently arrested on those and possession of the stolen vehicle as well as false information and refusal to halt.
The report, which was signed by the shift commander after I had gone home for the evening, does not detail reasons for why Sr. Officer Lund deployed the taser, just that he deployed it when the suspect fled. It does not go much into detail in general and is vague about the incident that unfolded, but does detail where the probes hit and how the male went to the ground. I subsequently reviewed the UOF and taser policies and believe there there are some issues with the force applied.
Only by listening to the radio was I informed that a taser had been deployed when the information was given to dispatch. Sgt. Wheeler subsequently went to the scene after learning of this but I was not directly informed of the deployment by the officers on scene.
Maybe Im looking into this to be more than it is but I would like to discuss it with you this next week after you've had a chance to review everything yourself.

Ref: CFS #2019-19434 – Pursuit Review

This letter is in reference to a review of a pursuit that occurred on 6/23/19 (CFS 19-19434). Captain John Klug reviewed the pursuit and forwarded a report (copy attached) of his findings along with his recommendation for disciplinary action. I have reviewed the report as well as the case file, videos and audio from the pursuit.

Summary: Officer Lund responded to the reported attempted robbery/break-in call at the Ranch Apartments – 2816 E. Burdick Expy, from the Police Department along with several other officers. While responding Officer Lund went through the intersection of 3rd St SE and East Burdick Expressway eastbound at a rate of speed between 60 and 64 mph. The light at the intersection had turned to red prior to Lund entering the intersection.

Officer Lund got to the call location along with several other officers. A motor cycle fled the scene which was pursued by Officer Sandusky as it went north on 27th St SE from E Burdick Expy. Officer Lund followed Officer Sandusky as the second unit involved in the pursuit. Officer Lund drove about 74 mph into the oncoming lane nearly passing Officer Sandusky for no apparent reason other than possibly to get a better look at the fleeing motorcycle before getting back behind her vehicle. Numerous times throughout the lengthy pursuit Officer Lund drives into the oncoming lane of traffic for little apparent reason. The pursuit turns west on Ward County road 10A. When it reaches the intersection of North Broadway the motorcycle turns southbound. Officer Lund takes the lead position in the pursuit going southbound in the northbound lanes of North Broadway through a road construction zone. The pursuit continues into oncoming traffic until it reaches 20th Ave NW with Officer Lund behind the motorcycle. There were three Minot PD patrol cars and two Ward County SO deputies following in the proper southbound lanes paralleling the pursuit. At 20th Ave NW Officer Lund turns into the southbound lanes while the motorcycle continues into oncoming traffic becoming the third unit in the line of pursuing patrol cars. After going to 16th Ave SW, west to 16 St SW, north to 4th Ave NW, north on 6th and 8th St NW the motorcycle finally crashes into a pickup truck at University Ave West and 8th St NW. There are several more instances during the pursuit when Officer Lund and other patrol cars pass through intersections at speeds that are unsafe while they pursue the motorcycle.

After the motorcycle crashes there is a short foot pursuit. The suspect is apprehended by Officers Lund, Laudenschlager and Noyes. The suspect is partially searched and a loaded handgun is located in his waistband. He is then placed in Officer Lund's patrol car where he proceeds to get a cellphone out of his pocket. The suspect uses the phone to make a call and send texts for about 8 minutes until an officer takes the phone away from him. Officer Lund's written report contains wording indicating that the original information on the call indicated that the suspect was armed with a gun. This is not supported by the radio and dispatch traffic.

Findings: Officer Lund violated Minot PD Policy on Officer Response to Calls (#308) in his response to the call, specifically on E Burdick Expy at 3rd St SE by going too fast through the intersection which has limited visibility.

Officer Lund's driving throughout the pursuit violated the Vehicle Pursuits policy (#307) in more than one aspect. He drove into oncoming traffic lanes repeatedly, passed the lead officer without reason, and chased the suspect into oncoming traffic lanes in a construction zone creating unwarranted dangers to the general motoring public.

Officer Lund's report is inaccurate in stating that the original report was that the suspect was armed with a gun. This violates the Report Preparation policy (#324)

Discipline: As a result of these findings I am ordering the following:

Officer Josh Lund will be suspended from duty for three days (30 hours) without pay.

A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Officer Lund at the City of Minot Human Resources office.

Any future violations of policy may result in progressive disciplinary steps being taken.

September 10, 2019

On June 23, 2019 at 18:41 officers were dispatched to 2816 East Burdick Expressway for a report of a possible burglary in progress. Several officers responded and a motorcycle with the possible suspect driving fled the scene as officers arrived. A pursuit was initiated and went through several areas of Minot, lasting approximately 16 minutes. The pursuit was approved by Sgt. Dan Wheeler who was at the shift commander's desk at the time. During the pursuit information was passed on to the units that the incident may have been an armed robbery.

There were several issues addressed with the officers concerning their driving while participating in the pursuit. These issues did not rise to the level of a policy violation, but recommendations were made by Lt. McLeod about how to better handle the situations.

There was one violation of policy 307.4.4 that must be addressed formally. This was the driving by Senior Officer Joshua Lund while pursuing the motorcycle. At the intersection of 46th Avenue and North Broadway, the motorcycle turns southbound into the northbound lanes of North Broadway. At the time, this was also a construction zone with one lane of traffic. Officer Lund also turned into the northbound lane and pursued the motorcycle into oncoming traffic. This continued until 20th Ave where Lund then got in the correct lane of travel.

At several times during the pursuit, Officer Lund entered the oncoming lane of travel. This served no functional purpose, but does increase risk to other motorist. Some of the areas this occurred was on 16th Ave. SW, 16th St. SW, and 3rd Ave. NW.

The policy violation for Sr. Officer Josh Lund is sustained for the following violation

- Policy 307 – Vehicle Pursuits

  307.3 Officer Responsibilities

  The driver of a class A authorized vehicle may:

  - Disregard regulations governing direction of movement or turning in specified directions so long as the officer does not endanger life or property.

  Officers shall drive with due regard for the safety of all persons.

307.4.4 Pursuit Driving Tactics

(c) As a general rule, officers should not pursue a vehicle driving the wrong way on a roadway, highway or freeway. In the event the pursued vehicle does so, the following tactics should be considered.

2. Maintaining visual contact with the pursued vehicle by paralleling on the correct side of roadway.

Sr. Officer Joshua Lund has a letter in his file dated February 19, 2019 wherein he was one of 3 officers formally disciplined for driving without their emergency lights on while attempting to find a vehicle for the Drug Task Force.

Based on the risk placed on other motorists and the prior violation, I would recommend Sr. Officer Joshua Lund be suspended for a period of 1 day (10 hours).

Capt. Klug forwarded documentation to me concerning a preliminary hearing which you failed to appear at on November 27th, 2019 at 1530 hours (see attached report). Unexcused absences from court or hearings has been a repeating problem for you (see attached letter dated October 2nd, 2019).

Findings:

1. Officer Lund failed to appear for a scheduled preliminary hearing for which he had been provided notice. The absence is without excuse or justification. Sustained policy violation (Policy 323.5.5 – Attendance).

Disciplinary Action:

1. Officer Lund will be suspended without pay for 1 day (10 hours).
2. Captain Klug will work with Lt. Plessas to establish a performance improvement plan for Officer Lund.

Officer Lund understands that any future violations of this nature could result in additional suspension without pay or termination of employment.

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Officer Roach can communicate effectively with difficult individuals, where other may struggle. This is huge for a police officer. His propensity to remember and recall minute details make him a benefit to the organization. He is intelligent and articulate and truly cares about the people he works with and for the public he serves. It was mentioned previously, but Officer Roach has distinct knack for this job.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Officer Roach can let things that are out of his control affect his performance. For instance court issues or disagreements with the States Attorneys Office or police administration can make him highly frustrated and has a tendency to show in his attitude and performance. Roach has improved in this but he still can use a bit of improvement, making sure all the little things that he doesn't feel are that important are accomplished. While assigned to investigations Officer Roach struggled with attention to detail on several case reports often requiring the supervisor to make corrections

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Officer Roach can do anything he puts his mind to. Upon his return to patrol he should be ready and able to be a leader. People follow and respect his ability. Officer Roach should strive to become an FTO, he has the ability to thrive in that role. It was indicated Officer Roach did well in investigations and should consider a return for a permanent position in the future. Seeking out training for investigations would be great for him and advantageous for the department.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

- Officer Roach should start where he left off on patrol as a leader and go to officer.
-Increase overall productivity: traffic enforcement, DUI, supplemental reports, video labeling, etc.
-Maintain a positive attitude with all personnel in the department. Don't let small things cause frustration.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

-Work towards becoming a full fledged FTO. Officer Roach has completed MOI, now seek out FTO training course and work with department training sergeant.
-Continue to seek out training in investigative skills in anticipation for a possible future reassignment to a detective position.
-Continue to express interest and apply for specialty positions within the department.

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Officer Roach can communicate effectively with difficult individuals, where other may struggle. This is huge for a police officer. His propensity to remember and recall minute details make him a benefit to the organization. He is intelligent and articulate and truly cares about the people he works with and for the public he serves. It was mentioned previously, but Officer Roach has distinct knack for this job.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Officer Roach can let things that are out of his control affect his performance. For instance court issues or disagreements with the States Attorneys Office or police administration can make him highly frustrated and has a tendency to show in his attitude and performance. Roach has improved in this but he still can use a bit of improvement, making sure all the little things that he doesn't feel are that important are accomplished. While assigned to investigations Officer Roach struggled with attention to detail on several case reports often requiring the supervisor to make corrections

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Officer Roach can do anything he puts his mind to. Upon his return to patrol he should be ready and able to be a leader. People follow and respect his ability. Officer Roach should strive to become an FTO, he has the ability to thrive in that role. It was indicated Officer Roach did well in investigations and should consider a return for a permanent position in the future. Seeking out training for investigations would be great for him and advantageous for the department.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

- Officer Roach should start where he left off on patrol as a leader and go to officer.
-Increase overall productivity: traffic enforcement, DUI, supplemental reports, video labeling, etc.
-Maintain a positive attitude with all personnel in the department. Don't let small things cause frustration.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

-Work towards becoming a full fledged FTO. Officer Roach has completed MOI, now seek out FTO training course and work with department training sergeant.
-Continue to seek out training in investigative skills in anticipation for a possible future reassignment to a detective position.
-Continue to express interest and apply for specialty positions within the department.

Good evening Team,

As some of you have already experienced, I have started the process of meeting with each of you one-on-one during the course of your scheduled work day. I plan to continue these meetings on a steady schedule over the course of the next 2 weeks with the hope of meeting with every PD employee by the first week in April.

This meeting was intended to take place last year, but… YOU KNOW…. COVID HAPPENED! 😊

Anyway, there is nothing magical or mysterious about this meeting. I want to know a little bit about each of you so I have a better perspective of who makes up our department. I will share some insight on our changes that went into place the beginning of the year and look for anything you can tell me that may help me make decisions and shape our future as a department. This is not recorded or formal and if you have anything to offer me about how I can better serve you as Chief, I welcome the input.

This is truly a casual conversation about our department based on your experience. I look forward to meeting with each of you in the coming days.

See ya soon!

Subject: One on One -- Update

Good morning Team,

Over the past few weeks, I have not accomplished connecting with any of you in a one-on-one setting. It was brought to my attention on a couple occasions over the past couple weeks that there is some criticism of my failure to connect and to only offer a vague explanation of "issues in my personal life", which has apparently not validated my absence from this commitment. I don't think I OWE anyone an explanation, but as I prepare to ramp up my efforts to start these meetings, I want to be 100% transparent in the "WHY" I haven't met with many of you. To be clear, my Captains (your commanders) ALWAYS know what I am dealing with personally and professionally so they can help with answering questions if I am unavailable – don't hesitate to ask them if I am not available.

So, 6 weeks ago my mother-in-law was diagnosed with terminal brain cancer and my wife went to South Carolina to help take care of her and spend her final days with her mother. I stayed in Minot to care for our dog and continue a very important part of my responsibilities as Chief – budget for 2022. Now that my mother-in-law is dead, I only have to find time to make a trip to SC to pick up my car and drive back to ND with my wife. This will happen the beginning of July.

I had to have the final budget submitted last Friday – the day after my mother-in-law's death. A little distracted, I put the finishing touches on my requests and submitted it to Finance. On May 27th, about one week earlier, we had to give a "Budget Tour" to the Mayor and City Council explaining what we did with 2020 Budget, what we are doing with 2021 Budget, and what we want to do with 2022 Budget; this took a considerable chunk of my time because I wanted to get it right and ensure nothing was missed. To give a little insight, we are operating in 2021 with $10.1 million. In 2022, I have requested several personnel and equipment upgrades and submitted an $11.6 million budget – an increase of $1.5 million. I know there will be cuts requested, but I will fight for every "need" in the budget, especially the additional personnel.

I am not laying out the information above to make excuses – but to offer an explanation. I own the responsibility for my commitment I have made to you and could not have predicted the devastating turn in my personal life.

Lastly, and most importantly, I will never turn you away from my office (within reason – such as if I am already in a meeting). Even if my door is closed – please knock. I will pause to talk to you and if I need some time to complete another critical task, I will ensure to set up a time we can meet that works for both of us. If you have an emergency you need to speak to me about – lead with that information when you talk to me. Each of you are my priority. The one-on-one conversations have been a great experience and very enjoyable conversations have been had. This process is important and each of you are important to our mission. Please, be patient. Some of your co-workers have talked for almost 2 hours. I have not cut off one conversation once we start.

Thank you for your time and attention and I will speak to you soon! Have a great – and safe – day!

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Officer Hugg is a very intelligent officer. His willingness to learn and ability to adapt are his greatest strengths. He has a knack for police work and has a positive attitude. He is a team player willing to go the extra mile for his team.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Officer Hugg seems to have a short fuse in some instances. He lets himself get a little carried away with fowl language which could effect him negatively in the future if he doesn't get a handle on it. I believe Officer Hugg will find a solution to this problem.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Officer Hugg will have the opportunity to take on a mentoring role in this new year with all of the young officers on shift. I believe Officer Hugg will rise to the challenge. I t would benefit him to get to a street survival school or verbal judo course. Would also like to see Officer Hugg get MOI, I believe he has what it takes to be an FTO in the future.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

Would like to see Officer Hugg take on a little more traffic enforcement. Would be good for Officer Hugg to continue to try and find a specialty team to be on.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

Getting Officer Hugg to some schools would be beneficial in this new year. Help him find a specialty he is interested in and focus on attaining that.

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Offier Hugg best attribute is that he is very well rounded. He shows a high level of performance when dealing with situations in the field. He is as comfortable with traffic as he is with calls. Officer Hugg has matured a lot in 2021. Officer Hugg is very smart and uses that to his advantage. Officer Hugg cares about his performance and wants to be the best at the things he does.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Though Officer Hugg is good at interacting with victims and witnesses he needs to continue to work at staying calm when dealing with uncooperative subjects. Officer Hugg needs to communicate more effectively with supervision when something is bothering him. Self initiated activity needs to improve and Officer Hugg's report writting could use refinement. Grammar, spelling and sentence structure needs to be concentrated on more.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Officer Hugg should consider becoming a field training officer. Officer Hugg has completed the Methods of Instruction course and should now begin looking to attend one of the field training officer courses.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

-Officer Hugg should continue to step up and fill the role as an informal leader on night shift.
-Self initiated field activity needs to increase as well as more attention to detail on paperwork.
-Attitude towards other parts of the department needs to improve. Do not look at night shift as the team, the organization is the team and night shift is only a part of that team.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

Officer Hugg should apply for trainings that interest him and will benefit the department. Officer Hugg should continue to pursue his goal of becoming part of a specialty team. Officer Hugg should also pursue becoming a field training officer in the next year.

POST Board Hearing – Shannon Lackey (21-005) 2:10 p.m.

The ND POST Board received a voluntary termination from Minot PD on February 27, 2021, stating that Shannon Lackey resigned upon the initiation of an internal investigation following an off-duty incident on February 26, 2021.

On February 26, 2021, Lackey arrived at the Bootlegrz Bar in Minot, ND, intoxicated and was involved in a physical altercation with another female at the bar along with a male individual who tried to step in.

Video obtained from the bar shows Lackey punch a female on the back between the shoulder blades three times and then Lackey puts her arm around the head of the female pulling it into lackey's body. During that altercation, a male individual was kicked in the groin by Lackey. Another male individual tried to intervene as he knew Lackey. At that point, Lackey slapped his phone out of his hand causing damage to the phone. None of the victims wanted to press charges against Lackey.

Chairman Haugen opened the hearing and read an opening statement. Lackey was present and was sworn in by the Chair.

Lackey provided testimony and answered questions from board members.

Motion

Jesse Jahner made a motion that Shannon Lackey did violate the Peace Officer Code of Conduct specifically 109-02-05-01(4c) and that Lackey's conduct has a direct bearing on her ability to perform peace officer duties. Paul Lies seconded the motion. Erik Dietrich, Dan Haugen, Jason Ziegler, Lyn James and Tom Falck voted no. Joe Cianni, Jesse Jahner and Paul Lies voted yes. John Klug abstained. The motion did not carry due to a 5-3 vote.

Dan Haugen relinquished the chairman position back to John Klug.

Once again Stanley tried to determine if John Pagano was on the meeting through Teams or call-in. There was no response. After discussion with the Board and legal counsel, a decision was made to proceed with the hearing.

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Cameon's prior job knowledge has made her an asset to the department. As long as she keeps building and evolving her intelligence programs, the sky is the limit. Cameon has been creating relationships with the other intel analysts across the state and using their input to help promote and grow what works best for her at the Minot PD.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Communication to her supervision is an aspect that needs improvement. Providing a clear supervision structure and Cameon's move to investigations should help with this issue. Cameon should build her position with the assistance of constructive feedback from her supervision. This type of feedback is designed to improve performance and operations but can often require great introspection. It is important to avoid passive aggressive responses to this feedback as it will hamper healthy communication and development. Cameon will need to build relationships with officers and investigators to establish a trust relationship that will result in optimal collaboration.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Cameon will have increased responsibility in almost all of the programs as she is developing and evolving throughout the intel analyst position. She will also have increased responsibility during the implementation of the bulletin board system. This increased responsibility is necessary, but Cameon must be mindful of the limitations of her duties and understand the importance of relying on others to implement and put to use the intelligence that is gathered.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

Keep on top of the programs that have already been established so they do not fail and continue to establish new programs for the intel analyst position. Make sure your supervision knows where you are and what you are doing.
Developing and launching the bulletin board / forum for patrol.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

Continue IALEIA certification, keep attending on-line webinars, and look outside the box on new and exciting things for the intel analyst position. Maintain and foster the relationships you have created with other intel analysts throughout the state and use their knowledge to help you in your role at the Minot Police Department. Look outside the state, to other states or possibly federal agencies to see what types of programs and trainings they use, then use that knowledge to expand your intel position at the Minot Police Department.

This annual performance review will become part of your City of Minot personnel file.

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Cameon's prior job knowledge has mede her an asset. As long as she keeps building and evolving her intelligence programs I think the sky is the limit. Now that Cameon has attended more trainings and has a better grasp on the functions of the job I believe she is ready for more responsibility. I would recommend Cameon be removed from her one year probationary period.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Communication to her supervision. This has been addressed with Cameon.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Cameon will be having increased responsibility in almost all of the programs she is creating and evolving throughout the intel analyst position. She has also been provided increased responsibility with the departments social media platforms.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

Keep on top of the programs that have already been established so they do not fail and continue to establish new programs for the intel analyst position!

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

Training, training, training. Look at taking another trip around the state now that the job is more established.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST ACKNOWLEDGMENT FORM

This briefing provides initial Conflict of Interest training and applies to anyone who is an employee, agent, consultant, officer, elected/appointed official of the City, or who is part of an affiliate/subsidiary organization to the City. Applicable references are: 2 CFR 200.318 (c) and 24 CFR 570.489 (g)(h) for CDBG funds.

No employee, officer, or agent may participate in the selection, award, or administration of a contract supported by a Federal award if he or she has a real or apparent conflict of interest. [2 CFR 200.318(c)(1)] No such person may have any financial interest or benefit, or other interest in a contract, subcontract, or agreement concerning Federally-funded activities or the proceeds from these activities "either for themselves or those with whom they have family or business ties, during their tenure or for one year thereafter." [24 CFR 570.489 (h)(2)]

If you, an immediate family member, or someone with whom you have business ties is applying for Federal grant assistance or may have financial gain through Federally-funded grants, contracts or subcontracts, you must notify your supervisor and complete the Conflict of Interest worksheet. Immediate family members are defined as: (1) a spouse or partner; (2) a child, grandchild, parent, grandparent, sibling, uncle, aunt, nephew, or niece, or the spouse of any such person; (3) a person having a step-relationship described in (2) above; (4) a parent-in-law or a brother- or sister-in-law; or (5) any other person who resides in the same household as the trustee, officer, or employee. You should also list anyone else that a "reasonable person" would consider a conflict due to your relationship with that individual.

If at any point during the performance of your duties, you become aware of a situation that would fall under the paragraphs above, it is your duty to immediately report the situation to your supervisor so an assessment can be made. Failure to do so may result in disciplinary action.

Annual refresher training will be provided electronically by the Federal Compliance Officer, who can be reached regarding questions or concerns at (701) 857-1553.

Subject: Intelligence Analyst Position

Dear Brittany Ballantyne,

Please accept the attached resume and application for the position of Intelligence Analyst with the Minot Police Department. I've had the pleasure of working with members of Minot Police Department when I served as a Ward County Reserve Sheriff Deputy. I believe my background in forensic anthropology, experience as GIS Analyst, and extensive involvement in research and data management would serve well in this position.

As a geospatial analyst with concentrations in forensic anthropology and historical research, my credentials provide me with a distinctive range of experience. Daily, I collect and evaluate information from a variety of sources to assist local, state, and federal entities with making informed and objective decisions regarding resources. My research often results in a comprehensive report of all information that identifies, explains, and evaluates potential problems and available solutions.

Prior to returning to North Dakota, I worked in conjunction with the Federal Bureau of Investigation conducting research in forensic science. Parts of this research and analysis is considered Top Secret, which required a high level of confidentiality concerning all data and forensic findings. My background has allowed me the opportunity to work with a variety of law enforcement agencies. I have conducted forensic investigations in Kansas, Virginia, Minnesota, and North Dakota. Some of these activities include crime scene analysis and reconstructions, human remains identification and reconstructions, and coordinating and managing GPS surveys of crime scenes and Civil War sites.

As a Minot native, I have attempted to use my unique expertise to better serve the community. I volunteered as a Ward County Reserve Sheriffs Deputy for 4 years, where I received training in report writing, narcotics, criminal law, search and seizure, rules of evidence, building/area searches, and accident investigations. I routinely volunteered to ride with deputies to assist them with their law enforcement duties. While on Minot AFB, I routinely assisted the 91st Missile Wing with real-time GIS data and potential security threat analysis within the emergency operations center to deter potential dangers against nuclear assets. Based on my experience and strong commitment to our local community, I know I will add significant value to the team.

I look forward to discussing my capabilities in more detail and am available for a personal interview at your convenience. If I can provide you with any further information on my background and qualifications, please let me know. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Very Respectfully,

Cameon Eisenzimmer

PROFILE

I am a professional forensic anthropologist and GIS Analyst with substantial experience in predictive modeling, research and analysis, imagery interpretation, and database management. With more than 15 years experience working and volunteering with various federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies, I have widespread knowledge in conducting extensive and comprehensive research to assist with operational and policy decisions regarding crime analysis. I have a passion for helping communities in need and volunteer with GISCORPS and Team RUBICON to provide GIS services to areas facing disasters, emergencies, and crime analysis. Activities associated with these organizations include crowdsourcing information, data collection/creation, data mining, disaster response, image processing/analysis, open-source data verification, spatial analysis, and spatial data processing and quality control. My unique background in forensic anthropology, GIS analysis, and archaeology allows me to gather and interpret large quantities of data while supplying leadership with quantitative results to make informed decisions.

Performance Improvement Plan

This plan is meant to promote employee growth and development in meeting performance expectations. This tool is designed to identify performance concerns and steps to improve performance. In addition, it provides a process for follow up procedures between employee and supervisor to encourage continued communication about performance.

DESIRED PERFORMANCE: (Describe the desired performance expectations. Give specific examples of productivity, efficiency, teamwork, quality, attendance, conduct, other.)

As the Intelligence analyst, Cameon must collect and maintain intelligence information from multiple sources. It is also expected that she should act as a bridge of information, connecting all divisions and officers of the department together. It is desired that Cameon should function as a force multiplier, ensuring that accurate and appropriate information is dispersed to department members who will use this information to improve the effectiveness and quality of their work product, thereby improving department performance. This requires that Cameon develops accurate information, recognizes who should receive the information, and ensure that the information is relayed in an appropriate and timely manner. It is critical that she build relationships with those who receive information. They must be able to trust the source and quality of the information so they can use it to make appropriate decisions. The goal is to utilize intelligence-led policing so that we can accomplish more, with less. The following are desired performance expectations to achieve these goals:

Productivity – It is desired that tasks be completed without delay. Intelligence is a continuous process of developing information. It is critical that Cameon stays on top of current intelligence and disperses this information when appropriate. Individual assignments must be completed in a clear, concise, and timely manner. The intelligence analyst position was created to support sworn staff in the completion of their duties. As such, when approached for assistance or information, a response must be made to the team members in a reasonable timeframe. Assignments must be completed.

Accuracy and comprehensiveness - It is desired that accurate and complete information be distributed to appropriate members of the team. Team members must be able to trust the information that Cameon provides because that information becomes the basis for their decision-making process. It is critical that the information that is provided be full and accurate and truly describe what is happening in the community and/or region. It is expected that care will be taken to prevent personal biases from distorting the information being transmitted. It is also important that the methodology for obtaining this information be available for review so validity and reliability of the information can be assessed by the team member.

Judgment – It is desired that good judgment be used. An intelligence analyst is expected to make judgment calls on the importance and weight of information obtained. Making good decisions on what information needs to be addressed, and who is most appropriate to address it, is an essential function. Important information can be lost if good judgment is not used.

Proper system usage – It is desired that Cameon learns and properly uses information systems to gather data and disperse intelligence appropriately. Cameon must develop an expertise with systems, to include the department records management system. This expertise is necessary to extract accurate information for her duties. Department members must be able to trust the validity of information that she extracts from systems. Cameon has many information systems to choose from, but it is appropriate to focus attention on the systems that best fit the goals of the intelligence function at hand. Communication systems that have been established must be used properly to ensure the dispersal of information and intelligence to appropriate members of the department.

Teamwork – It is desired that Cameon functions as a force multiplier by improving the work product of the department. As the intelligence analyst, Cameon must function in the team framework to support all members of the department. She must work closely with members of the team to ensure that she is providing the support that is necessary to improve their overall work product. For this to be the case, there must be mutual respect within the team framework.

Communication – It is desired that Cameon participate in open and honest communication. As the intelligence analyst, receiving, analyzing, and dispersing information is arguably her primary function. It is important that Cameon recognizes who to communicate with in any given situation. As the intelligence analyst she must ensure proper distribution of information. If information is not sent to the right member of the department, that information is effectively lost. It is important that Cameon recognizes who needs the information and ensures they receive it. Open and honest communication with team members and supervision team is essential for this function to be successful.

ACTUAL PERFORMANCE: (Describe the employee's current performance. Give specific examples of productivity, efficiency, teamwork, quality, attendance, conduct, other.)

Cameon performance is hampered by Multiple factors that affect many levels of desired performance. Her current performance results in ineffectiveness as a force multiplier. She is currently not functioning to benefit the department by improving the performance levels of the staff she supports. The following are contemporaneous examples of performance issues that hamper her effectiveness:

Productivity – Cameon has failed to develop and/or relay appropriate information to personnel in a timely manner. Those who need the information did not receive it:

Examples:

In April the police department launched the use of the Evertel system. This system is a communication software that permits targeted messaging via the use of chat rooms. The main purpose of launching this CJIS compliant software was to create a legal and secure mechanism for sharing intelligence information to appropriate groups or members of the department. As part of the system, we created two intelligence rooms called Intel-general and Intel-drugs. As the Intelligence Analyst it is reasonable to assume that Cameon would be the top contributor to these rooms as it is her responsibility to gather, analyze, and disseminate intelligence. In auditing her usage of the intelligence sharing rooms she contributed an average of 3 posts per month in intel-general, and 1 post per month in Intel-drugs. These posts resulted in minimal information being distributed to members of the department. Her failure to contribute to this system has resulted in a lack of support for members of the Police Department.

Examples of intelligence that could appropriately have been disseminated, but were not:

November 7th, 2023, Cameon sent an e-mail to her direct supervisor and division commander about juveniles committing acts of criminal mischief. The message focused more on the patrol's lack of generating a criminal complaint and indications that juveniles were getting away with these crimes. While the critique of patrol is outside of her function and responsibilities, the observations about who was involved in these complaints are clearly useful information to patrol officers. Officers may respond to this type of incident in the future, and they would have information to give them a head start in these investigations. The information would have been ideal for Evertel Intel-General. It was never shared on this platform.

On November 30, 2023, there was a Swatting Call at an address in Southwest Minot. Cameon was involved in assisting on this call from the beginning, so she had good operational understanding of what occurred. Cameon prepared a brief of this incident for NDSLIC, but nothing was ever covered for in house officer. Those who were not working at the time would not know any of the details of this incident. The details of this incident would be appropriate for Intel-General. It was never shared on this platform.

On December 8th, 2023, there was another Swatting call at the same address as listed above. Cameon advised the Operations Commander of this incident in conversation but did not pass this incident on to her leadership, the investigator who was responsible for the initial case, or any patrol officers or dispatchers who would respond to this type of call in the future. The details of this incident would have been appropriate for Intel-General. It was never shared on this platform.

Many of the pass on information from the Intel-briefing should appear on the Intel-General site. The intel-briefing should be posted to this site or create another intel site for easy access by officers.

Intelligence from other agencies such as NDSLIC should regularly be shared on Evertel Intel-general. For example, Cameon should give a brief synopsis of NDSLIC weekly intel overviews, hot sheets, and pass ons in the Intel-general thread. She should then place the document as an attachment to permit a full resource.

Supervisors have reported that Cameon has failed to provide information that is requested or provides inaccurate and often delayed information.

Examples:

- Failed to provide accurate data.
The Training and Outreach Sergeant asked Cameon for data on overdose for a presentation. This Sergeant received data from Cameon, but approached the investigations commander because she did not believe the data was accurate. In review of the data the investigations commander observed that overdose deaths were clearly wrong. Cameon had previously been instructed to only use data from a shared spreadsheet on overdose deaths, to maintain accuracy and uniformity.

- Failed to provide data in a timely manner and to the appropriate person.
The Professional Standards Lieutenant was tasked with compiling data for a study being conducted to review the Minot Police Department. He requested data from Cameon. After waiting two weeks and a couple of prior inquiries for the data, he again asked her about it. She informed him that she had sent all the data to the Investigations Commander. As the Investigations Commander, I had also asked for data pertaining to the same study. Cameon sent all the requested data to me, without explanation indicating that some was for the Standards Lieutenant. As a result, I did not know that the Standards Lieutenant was supposed to receive a portion of this data. As a result, it was not passed on to him in a timely manner.

- Failed to be analytical when providing information or defining a problem.
On October 23rd, 2023, Cameon sent an email to the Investigations Lieutenant and Captain indicating that Northeast Minot had had an issue with possible drug activity and suspicious individuals for most of the summer. She indicated the area was suffering from an “uptick” in calls, individuals running from law enforcement, and possible drug activity. She provided no data to support her concerns. She indicated she intended to put a map in the intelligence brief to display her concerns. Because the information she provided had very little analytics included, I could not tell if her conclusion was based on qualitative analysis or simply assumptions. I sent Cameon an e-mail requesting very specific information. I told her I needed her to be more analytical and provide evidence of the problem, rather than just claiming there was one. These questions were never answered, and the map was never used.

Accuracy, comprehensiveness, judgment, and proper system usage – Cameon exhibits several communication barriers. She has provided information of questionable accuracy, has difficulty in understanding and utilizing procedures to ensure validity and reliability of the information, displays difficulty in determining who the information should be conveyed to or what systems of communication are appropriate.

Intelligence meeting – Cameon often makes the statement, “there is an uptick in crime” or “a trend” that she is seeing. Despite being directed to, she failed to provide adequate information to establish these claims. She also fails to provide important data that permits the receiver to follow up on information.

Example:

As stated above, On October 23rd, 2023, Cameon sent an email to the Investigations Lieutenant and Captain indicating that Northeast Minot had had an issue with possible drug activity and suspicious individuals for most of the summer. She indicated an “uptick” in calls in the area. She intended to add a map of “trouble” areas, at the next intelligence briefing. I observed that the map lacked proper analytical data to verify her claims.

Cameon often indicates that a particular incident occurred, or report was made but neglects report important data such as reporting party or origin of information. Without this information the receiver is unable to develop the information further.

Cameon has provided misleading and inaccurate information without proper investigation into its validity and/or reliability.

Example:

- Made indication of an attempted homicide without proper analysis of the information available.
  On November 16, 2023, Cameon sent an email to the investigations Lieutenant and Captain, and reported in her intel briefing that Trinity Security called about a man who impersonated an officer, to get his significant other removed from a ventilator. This information was shocking. What she described would reasonably be considered attempted murder. The Investigations commander immediately assigned a detective supervisor to evaluate this information further. In less than two hours and only using information that was available to Cameon at the time of her e-mail, the investigator reported back that the subject of this e-mail had power of attorney over the patient and there was no evidence that he attempted to impersonate an officer or take the patient off life support. A police officer who responded and investigated appropriately did not file a criminal complaint in this situation. Cameon reported information based on a docket entry with very limited facts, despite having the ability to evaluate the information further or talk to the responding officers to gain clarification.

- Made claims indicating lack of action by patrol with limited and inaccurate information.
  On November 7th, 2023, Cameon sent an e-mail to the investigation Lieutenant and Captain. The e-mail indicated that there were multiple calls where items were thrown at vehicles causing damage. Her e-mail appeared to focus on the patrol officers’ lack of action. She said there were multiple calls and indicated that the vehicle and suspects were positively identified. She stated, “As road conditions deteriorate during winter and they continue to get away with damaging property, chances increase they could cause a serious accident.” This information was passed on to the Patrol Lieutenant for follow-up. During follow up the Patrol Lieutenant determined that in the only case that had information directly linking a suspect, the victim did not want to file charges. While this information was good intelligence for officers in the field or for future incident investigation, the information that Cameon provided was not properly verified and was determined by the lieutenant to be inaccurate and misleading.

Cameon has failed to pass information to the appropriate parties and often appears to lack understanding of who should appropriately receive information or what system is appropriate for sending information.

Example:

- Failed to recognize urgency and appropriate communication of emergency message.
  On November 2, 2023, Cameon forwarded a message to the investigation's lieutenant and Captain via e-mail, regarding a message she received from the NDHP. This message was from a subject indicating "Help I'm being held at Elison in Minot. Rita Johnson room 104 my husband Harlan Johnson". This message was clearly high priority, but Cameon did not seem to recognize the importance of the message. In her e-mail to the Lt. and Capt. she stated, "I just got this. I'm in ASL class. Thought someone should look into this ASAP." She never followed up with a text or call to ensure the message was received or followed up on. In past conversations with Cameon, I have advised her that e-mail is not the appropriate form of communication for emergency or high priority messages. In this situation it appears she assigned this message low priority. She did not provide any context to indicate that knew it was otherwise. Proper action would have been to contact patrol or dispatch to receive immediate action, but this did not happen.

- Neglected to pass useful information to those who could use it.
  On December 12, 2023, I came to my attention that Cameon passed on information pertaining to a Swatting call to the Operations Commander. This information should have been passed on to the investigator who was handling the case, patrol, and dispatch to better prepare them for the potential of future calls. This information should have been passed on via the Evertel intel system.

- Failed to recognize that information was useful and to relay it to all members who could benefit by it, and by the most effective means.
  On December 12, 2023, the department focus enforcement sergeant passed on drug intelligence to the investigation division. This information was both investigative and safety related information that would be important for patrol officers to have as well. Cameon did not send the information on to patrol but added more intelligence to the investigations division. While the information was applicable and important to investigations officers, Cameon appears to have missed the value of the information to patrol. As a result, they were not linked in on this intelligence. I instructed her to send the information to patrol and she responded indicating that she was concerned about diluting the message. She said she has difficulty knowing if she should be sending the information via Evertel or adding it to her weekly intelligence brief.

Proper system usage – Cameon demonstrates a lack of understanding of how to properly utilize the Law Enforcement Records Management System (LERMS) system to obtain data.

Example:

Information was requested on violent offenses committed by use of a firearm. Cameon sent a message indicating that she did not know how gunshot would be coded. I pointed out that violent offenses have coding to indicate weapon types so that data is clearly accessible somewhere.

Teamwork – There have been instances when others have approached Cameon for information and failed to get the information or she was unwilling to provide full context of information. This resulted in mistrust and frustration among staff.

An investigations Sergeant reported that he requested vehicle information pertaining to an investigation he was working on. He indicated that his request was never filled, and no explanation was ever given.

A detective indicated that Cameon was asked for address information on a subject being investigating. The address Cameon provided was old or inaccurate. Cameon was asked where she got the information and advised that she could not give up her source information. This created frustration within the division.

Cameon often provides incomplete information that causes more work for the receiver. For example, Cameon sent a message on October 2, 2023, indicating that there has been an unusually large number of deaths in the past 5 days. Very little context is provided with this e-mail so the receiver must research and analyze each death, to determine links. This process should be a part of an intelligence analysts' duties, but often minimal information is forwarded, and the information receiver is left doing the analytical work so that they can take the appropriate action.

PERFORMANCE IMPROVEMENT: (Describe the difference between the actual and desired performance.)

Cameon's performance and communication barriers resulted in barriers to accomplishment of the goal of being a force multiplier for the department.

Productivity – Cameon is currently posting minimum information on Evertel. It would be reasonable to expect that Cameon would go from two or three posts per month to multiple posts per week or even every day. The information being contributed must be trustworthy, true, and useful to the end users of the intelligence group. The information must come from any number of sources but should be appropriately vetted to ensure that it does not mislead the end user in any way.

Intelligence information is often received by Cameon but is not recognized for its importance and is not distributed to the appropriate end user. It is desired that information should be recognized and appropriately distributed to end users who can put the information to work to best fulfill the department's mission.

Cameon receives multiple requests for information from members of the department. Many have reported that they have not received a return, received delayed returns, and/or receive inferior or untrustworthy information in return. Members of the department should be able to trust that information that is requested will be returned in a timely manner and that the information will accurately reflect the request made. If a request cannot be accommodated, the requestor should understand immediately in order to make other arrangements.

Accuracy and Comprehensiveness - Cameon provided inferior information. The information, at times, lacked accuracy and/or validity, was not provided in a timely manner, and lacked proper analysis to be useful. The information she provides must be accurate, provided by a deadline, and would have proper analysis with details to ensure usefulness and accuracy of the data.

Judgment - Cameon has rushed to judgment without full analysis of the facts available to her. Releasing inaccurate information can often have more consequences than releasing nothing at all. Cameon must retrieve all the relevant facts available and make a full analysis of this information before making judgments or deciding the best procedure to follow. It is also important that Camion take into account the likely results of any action that she makes and determine if her course of action is appropriate or necessary. Cameon should also make good judgment calls on the best route for information to be transmitted as well as the appropriate personnel to transmit to. Both of these factor in on the effectiveness of the information in completion of departmental goals and objectives.

Proper system Usage – Cameon lacks expertise in utilizing records management systems. This system is very complex and can be used to filter data in many ways which will result in different results. It is reasonable to expect that Cameon should develop an expertise in this system so that data that is obtained from the system can be trusted, as a true measurement of what is being studied.

Teamwork – For various reasons listed in this plan Cameon has failed to work as a team player resulting in failure to function as a force multiplier. It is desired that Cameon should work to make all members of the department more efficient in their duties by providing them with information that permits them to be more effective. To do this, all members of the department must trust the information she provides as well as her intent in providing that information.

ACTION PLAN: (Identify actions to help improve performance. Utilize SMART goals in establishing plan.)

Productivity –

Evertel - Cameon will work to develop and filter useful information that will be released as regular intelligence posts on Evertel. Information posted will be properly verified and vetted and full disclosure will be given, so that the end user can assign appropriate value to the information. Intelligence information will be made in a format that is easy for the end user to read and evaluate. More comprehensive information can be included in attachments to the thread post.

Assignments and information requests - Cameon will develop a procedure to ensure that information requests from members of the department are documented and a deadline is established. She will develop a procedure to ensure all requests are completed with due diligence and processed in a timely manner. She will have open and honest communication with any member of the department and inform them when she does not believe she can complete a request, at the time of the request, so that they can make alternative arrangements.

Accuracy and comprehensiveness –

All intelligence information will be accurate and comprehensive. Cameon will ensure intelligence that she disseminates is evaluated with a critical eye and properly verified. She will investigate information she receives to ensure that it is useful and accurate. She will provide source, data, and/or associated information to ensure that the end user is able to make their own analysis. The end user must be able to trust the information she is providing. For example, if Cameon is providing information that a person has been accused of being involved in several instances of criminal mischief, Cameon should include case numbers as well as the names of those making the accusations. She should not draw her own conclusions without demonstrating and explaining why she came to that conclusion.

Judgment –

Good judgment will be used in the information that is disseminated and the means by which it is disseminated. Intelligence information will be judged and given due diligence regarding its importance. Intelligence information will only be disseminated to those who may have a reasonably need for, and benefit by it (on a need-to-know basis). Those who need information will not be deprived of the information. Information will be transmitted in an appropriate manner, with due regard given to priority of the information.

Proper system Usage –

Intelligence work requires accurate data. To gain access to this data it is critical that Cameon properly utilize any system that is at her disposal. Cameon will gain a mastery of all system she utilizes but especially the records management system. She will develop contacts with the system provider, to answer questions and develop answers to problems as they arise. She will seek out training to develop a better understanding of the system. She will recognize when there are discrepancies in the results she is receiving and learn ways to trouble shoot these.

Teamwork –

Building trust is the first step to building relationships that result in strong teamwork. First Cameon must ensure that data and information she provides is accurate and trustworthy. Cameon must provide her team with background information that permits her team to easily analyze the work that she has provided. They should be able to draw conclusions by evaluation and replication of the information provided. This will help them to develop trust in her methodology. She should make special efforts to be open to criticism to develop better methods. She should be cognizant of communication barriers and work to overcome them. Cameon Should consistently reach out to members of investigations, patrol, and administration to build relationships and better understand their needs.

MEASUREMENT: (Specify how desired performance will be measured. Give examples of timelines or milestones that will show achievement of desired performance level.)

Productivity –

Evertel - Cameon will make a combined minimum of four posts per week on the Evertel intel sites (Intel-General and Intel-Gang/Drugs). These posts must contain useful and vetted information. They can consist of information developed by Cameon, through other intelligence sources, or from other police personnel. The Investigations Lieutenant will make a quantitative and qualitative evaluation of posts made on the Evertel system, to ensure these criteria are met, on a bi-weekly basis (once every two weeks). The quantitative and qualitative analysis must be in total compliance for this measurement to be met.

Assignments and information requests – Cameon will establish a written procedure to document all assignments and requests that are made of her (to be referred to as tasks). This written procedure will be evaluated by the Investigations Lieutenant and attached to this PIP document. She will work on each task on a regular basis to ensure the process is moving forward and tasks are being completed. She will meet with the Investigations Lieutenant on a bi-weekly basis to ensure these tasks are properly documented and progress is being completed. Any task that Cameon can not complete must be evaluated for reasonableness by the Investigations Lieutenant. The Investigations Lieutenant will make a qualitative analysis of productivity. The qualitative analysis must be in total compliance for this measurement to be met.

Accuracy and comprehensiveness –

Intelligence Information – Intelligence information can be transmitted in many ways. Cameon will cc the investigations Lieutenant on emails where intelligence is disseminated. She will provide the Investigation's Lieutenant with any report, power point, or correspondence where intelligence information is disseminated. All intelligence information will be evaluated by the Investigation's lieutenant on a bi-weekly basis. All instances were incomplete, inaccurate and or misleading information has been disseminated, will be documented. The Investigations Lieutenant will make a qualitative analysis of accuracy and comprehensiveness. This qualitative analysis must be in total compliance for this measure to be met.

Judgement –

Cameon will show good judgment in handling of intelligent information in its various forms. The Investigations Lieutenant will evaluate the dissemination of information, to ensure proper judgment is being used, on a bi-weekly basis. Any lapse in judgement will be documented. The Investigations Lieutenant will make a qualitative analysis of Judgment. This qualitative analysis must be in total compliance for this measure to be met.

Proper system Usage –

Cameon will take steps to show the Investigations Lieutenant that she is gaining a mastery of the systems that she utilizes. She will demonstrate that she has made contact with New World LERMS support on issues she has with the LERMS system. She will put in for appropriate training as it becomes available. Cameon will provide the Investigations Lieutenant with a comprehensive list of all programs and systems she utilizes in her duties. She will demonstrate a mastery of systems she utilizes. The investigations Lieutenant will make a qualitative analysis of system usage. This qualitative analysis must be in total compliance for this measure to be met.

Teamwork –

The investigations Lieutenant will meet with Cameon on a bi-weekly basis. The investigations Lieutenant will document the effects or consequences of any inaccurate, misleading, or incomplete intelligence information that was documented (per the accuracy and comprehensiveness section). The investigations Lieutenant will document any instances where misleading or inaccurate information deteriorated relationships or had a negative bearing on teamwork. Cameon will document the work she does with others (per productivity section requirements) and discuss this with the Investigations lieutenant bi-weekly. The investigative lieutenant will make a qualitative analysis of teamwork. This qualitative analysis must be in total compliance for this measure to be met.

OUTCOMES: (Identify positive and negative outcomes with the employee regarding meeting or not meeting expectations. If termination is a possibility, it should be clearly communicated in the plan document.)

Cameon will meet with the Investigations Lieutenant on a bi-weekly basis. During this meeting the investigation lieutenant will evaluate work product as specified in this document and provide constructive feedback. The Investigations Lieutenant will document progress in regard to meeting or not meeting expectations.

Cameon will meet with the Investigations Lieutenant and Captain on a bi-monthly basis (every two months). Progress in terms of this PIP will be evaluated at this meeting. If expectations are being met and/or substantial progress is being made, the Investigations Commander will determine if the PIP should continue or completed. If there is failure to meet expectations or lack of substantial progress, the Investigations Commander will decide viability of future success of the PIP. If the Investigations Commander sees a path to success, the PIP will be extended. If the Investigations Commander does not see a path to success, a recommendation for termination will be made to the Chief of Police.

Minot Police Department
ATTN: Chief Klug

To Whom It May Concern,

It is with unfortunate circumstances that I offer this letter as my resignation notification as well as my exit interview.

In 2015 when I was hired on to the Department, never did I dream I would be quitting in 5 short years. My goal was to be a K9 officer, now, that is a distant memory and dream that I find that I am not quite ready for.

As such, my end date with the City of Minot Police Department will be July 10, 2020, where I'll then be working in Corrections with the Ward County Jail.

Listed below will be some points I wish to address in lieu of my exit interview.

- I have come to appreciate this career. While visibly thankless and easy to lose sight of those in appreciation for what I do in my day to day, I have noticed that there is more support, more of a community family, even friendships present in the City of Minot than I ever dreamed of. I could not have been luckier to serve such a kind community's streets.
- I've learned that the blue line spreads across the country, even countries overseas. I have made many connections, networks, and friendships with my other brothers and sisters in blue that I have met from several areas.
- I've learned time and time again that I am tougher than I give myself credit for. I am also more emotional that I am willing to admit and I have seen that come in handy when talking to people, especially victims, who need a shoulder.
- I've learned that teamwork is essential. Simply, #TeamWorkMakesTheDreamWork.
    - But working with other Agencies, such as Highway Patrol, Border Patrol, and Ward County Sheriff's Deputies, is often frowned upon on. If Officers, such as myself, utilize the special deputy exception we are sworn under to assist another agency, we are called off and told it is not our problem. BUT as soon as our Officers are bogged down with calls, our supervisors request other agencies assistance AFTER telling them to get out of city limits.
- I've learned that policy is gold and very little else matters. If it isn't for the good of the policy, it isn't for the good of the order and that policy seems to only apply to certain people and only certain people

- Do not mistake, I understand policy is to protect us, the department, and the community; but does it really hurt to take photographs with other individuals in the community, each other, or family and post it to social media?

- I've learned that many times it is someone's way or the highway and that it is easier to just bend and do it that way, until another someone comes along and then it is only that way. But there are many ways to describe a Lion as well as paint one.
- I've learned that 'big brother' is everything Officers were promised it would not be. Because of that, we watch over our shoulder and anticipate the reprimand, constantly.
- I've learned that those who do no self-initiated work, take little to no calls, and overall 'ghost' during shift get very little consequences and seem to never make mistakes. BUT as soon as an officer who is always out there, making stops, taking the reports, being the community officer we need; they are wrong, make several mistakes, and are often on a formal plan for whatever mistake was made.
- I've learned that as soon as a mistake is made, often it is not addressed immediately, but addressed weeks, and months later.
- I've learned that mental health, while talked about, is not trained for. My best help was my coworkers and shift partner.
- Many aspects with this department is still a 'good ol boys club' and if you're not a part of it, you're wrong, outcast, and often run out of the department. I've seen many good Officers experience this and leave.

This career is hard, thankless on the surface, mentally taxing, emotionally grueling, family disconnecting, dark, sometimes perverted, the product that every salesman must sell but no one wants and passionate.

I truly hope, in the future, that these concerns never come up again. I truly hope our supervisors will lead us and not manage us. I truly hope that this department will be as supportive of the officers as the community is. I also hope that this department will be fun, uplifting, caring, understanding, practical, and rational when those changes come around.

My home and door is always open to any Officer who needs a place, needs a break, is wanting an ear or a shoulder and doesn't mind taking a short drive because I live way out there. I will always be that blue sister to any of the siblings at this department.

Sincerely,

Heather Summers

To whom it may concern,

Please accept this letter as my resignation from the Minot Police Department.

My last day with the police department will be July 10,2020.

Sincerely,

Jacob Olson

Sgt. Strandemo and I have became aware of faltering FTO performance by MPO Olson. Among the issues were

- Attitude
- Performance-Behavior
- Quality of Work Product

Sgt. Strandemo, myself and MPO Olson held a meeting in Sgt. Strandemo's office around 0615 hours on 5/8/2022. We discussed the issues outlined below. The decision was made to remove Master Police Officer Olson as a Field Training Officer and subsequent removal of the Field Training Officer Program.

Attitude:

It has became overbearingly obvious that MPO Olson speaks disparagingly about other department members in such a way that would discredit this department and/or its members in direct violation of Minot PD Policy #322.5.8(e); Performance: Disparaging remarks or conduct concerning duly constituted authority to the extent that such conduct disrupts the efficiency of this department or subverts the good order, efficiency and discipline of this department or that would tend to discredit any of its members.

It has come to our attention, as FTO Coordinator (Sgt. Strandemo) and FTO Supervisor (myself), that MPO Olson had spoken to his trainees in this regard and had in fact inappropriately been speaking disparagingly about department members (talking negatively about others behind their backs). Recent trainees had expressed being uncomfortable with this behavior, as it confuses them and they might not always agree with what was being said by MPO Olson, but felt compelled to go with the flow so as to make their phase go-on. This is a concept that it not new to MPO Olson. He has a long track history of talking negatively behind other department member's backs. Seemingly, just as he has finished talking negatively of one person, he is onto the next. MPO Olson has been counseled by Sgt. Schoenrock on this very issue. It was my understanding that these counseling sessions were not extravagantly official and no official documentation was prepared. Sgt. Schoenrock has counseled MPO Olson on numerous occasions while MPO Olson was assigned to Night Shift.

It has been explained to MPO Olson that when he speaks disparagingly to an officer in confidence, about another department member, and then does so with another officer and another, eventually establishes a track record within the agency and would be cause for concern for any officer not to think he would do the same to them. Talking disparagingly about other department members diminishes the integrity of trust we should have in each other and certainly with his character. The damage is even more significant when considering this is being done while he is training new hires. These newly hired officers are susceptible to inferences made by an otherwise seemingly influential training officer. These officers are being shown what is acceptable behavior, how we treat each other and how we operate within the chain of command structure. Behavior such as this diminishes the institutional integrity one should expect from a well established police department of over 100 years.

Performance-Behavior and Quality of Work:

MPO Olson also fails to accept responsibility for his actions, rationalizes his mistakes and becomes argumentative with constructive criticism and defiant with a directive that he disagrees with. Moreover, MPO Olson will illustrate his disagreement, or express his defiance with a supervisor's directive to enhance the self-image of himself to his trainee in violation of:

Minot PD Policy #322.5.8(e); Performance: Disparaging remarks or conduct concerning duly constituted authority to the extent that such conduct disrupts the efficiency of this department or subverts the good order, efficiency and discipline of this department or that would tend to discredit any of its members.

Minot PD Policy #322.5.9(m); Conduct: Any other on- or off-duty conduct which any member knows or reasonably should know is unbecoming a member of this department, is contrary to good order, efficiency or morale, or tends to reflect unfavorably upon this department or its members.

Minot PD Policy #322.5.7(b); Efficiency: Unsatisfactory work performance including, but not limited to, failure, incompetence, inefficiency or delay in performing and/or carrying out proper orders, work assignments or the instructions of supervisors without a reasonable and bona fide excuse.

Minot PD Policy #600.0.1; Initial Investigation-Officer Responsibilities: Speaking with any witnesses or complainants, completing a cursory examination for evidence, preserve the scene and any evidence as required to complete the initial and follow-up investigation, collect any evidence and complete and submit the appropriate reports and documentation.

MPO Olson has been counseled by myself and other supervisors about the scope of patrol's investigations. On the surface, he was seemingly receptive to constructive criticism that I've given him in the past however would turn cheek rather quickly. On one occasion with an email thread between MPO Olson and myself around March 26, 2022, I laid out issues with submitted casework and tickets that were submitted by his trainee. I explained what needed to be fixed and my expectations. In the email response he stated "Daws fixed the tickets and is in the process of fixing the case. I appreciate the clear and direct instructions that were given in this matter. Daws' paperwork will reflect this standard moving forward as will mine. I have covered the reasons why with him."

In the next paragraph he changes the tune and clearly illustrates his unwillingness to listen to constructive criticism. The response was as follows:

"I would also point out that I am very mindful of the unwavering tenacity it takes to train people. I would like to think that all the employees that I had a hand in training are not terrible. The suggestion that I am allowing below acceptable work while our new recruits are in training offends me. I may have taken this the wrong way as well, if so I apologize. I find it easier to explain a trainees mistake when the work is in front of us then replicating what I would do. I try to entertain the idea of promoting critical thinking. I do have to admit that I rely heavily on my peers for help in writing because I have issues sometimes putting thought to paper correctly. I will make every attempt in doing a better job."

MPO Olson also had a discussion about a burglary case with Lt. Dyke. MPO Olson was defiant with Lt. Dyke, failed to listen to his constructive criticism and was argumentative with Lt. Dyke in the presence of his trainee. I spoke to Lt. Dyke about the issues with the initial investigation, the issues with the casework and MPO Olson's attitude. MPO Olson failed to take leads on basic preliminary investigative duties such as obtaining video footage, collecting statements and properly documenting as such. Attempts to follow up on this case were not completed, hence another issue. It seems to be the belief of MPO Olson that it is the job of the investigator to follow up with these cases.

With the casework I had emailed him about, common grammatical errors littered his report. The report failed to identify date and time. The sole complainant and only witness was identified as "Lady working the counter". Little to no attempts to positively identify the suspect or follow-up was documented in the report. The report failed to include mention of their intent to follow-up with this case to it's completion. MPO Olson also failed to ensure that a statement was taken and proactive steps at collecting video footage.

I was also made aware that MPO Olson did not train basic navigational skills to his phase I trainee such as the main thoroughfares, city center and how to navigate even vs. odd building numbers. He was provided with forms/templates that were obsolete. He admittedly did not work on report writing, as he identifies report writing to be one of his shortfalls and knew the next FTO (MPO Bjork) was much better at report writing than he was.

Citations that were submitted by his trainee contained grammatical errors, clerical errors such as wrong subject name on citations and insufficient officer narratives for the traffic tickets, most of which had rather short narratives. Some has one or two sentences. The quality of the work product MPO Olson allowed his trainees to submit was less than satisfactory and was unacceptable.

To: Kristian Shaide, Master Police Officer

Ref: Damaged Windshield

This letter is a summary of the incident surrounding the damage caused to the windshield of patrol vehicle #5 on June 27, 2024. I was made aware of the incident on that day and told it would be reviewed along with past incidents of damage or loss of department owned property. I received the report outlining past disciplinary actions and a recommendation for progressive discipline based on all facts and circumstances.

The letter provided by Officer Shaide explains his frustration with the computer's connectivity and cell phone locking up that led to the "tossing" of his cell phone. The cracked windshield had to be replaced and that cost was absorbed through the department budget. This action by Officer Shaide violated two Minot Police Department policies and led to the patrol vehicle being unavailable while it was being repaired.

I would further add that Officer Shaide needs to educate himself on "why" the authentication systems are in place and who mandates those systems. His lack of understanding paired with the lack of control of his emotions, lead to his failure to take responsibility for his actions.

Supporting Documentation:

- Letter of explanation from Officer Shaide.
- Letter outlining findings from Capt. Sundheim to Chief Klug.
- Copy of previous letter of reprimand from 2023.

Findings: The actions of Kristian Shaide were determined to be violations of Minot Police Department Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct and Policy 700 – Department-Owned and Personal Property. I find the following policy violations are sustained and are basis for the disciplinary action in this case.

- Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct
  - 322.5.9 – Conduct
    (i) Unauthorized possession of, loss of, or damage to department property or the property of others, or endangering it through carelessness or maliciousness.
- Policy 700 – Department-Owned and Personal Property
  - 700.4.1 – Care of Property
    Members shall be responsible for the safekeeping, serviceable condition, proper care, use and replacement of department property that has been assigned or entrusted to them. Intentional or negligent abuse or misuse of department property may lead to discipline including, but not limited to, the cost of repair or replacement.

Discipline: As a result of these findings, I am ordering the following for Officer Kristian Shaide:

- Officer Shaide will be suspended without pay for a period of two days (20 hours).
- A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Kristian Shaide at the City of Minot Human Resource Office.

Any future violations of policy may result in progressive disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

Radio Equipment issues

From Justin Sundheim <justin.sundheim@minotnd.org>
Date Mon 9/13/2021 4:29 PM
To PD-Patrol <PD-Patrol@minotnd.org>

Officers-

I'm going to apologize in advance for the lengthy email, however due to some misconceptions that are floating around, several things need to be addressed.

Recently two of our officers were involved in a situation where a 10-78 was called and no one heard the call until several minutes into the incident. Thankfully, no one was seriously hurt.

After extensive testing from Mid States this past week that included the radio towers and the portable radios, it was found there were no issues that would have affected the ability to transmit from that location. The tower and radio itself were found to be operable. What the problem likely was is the 2 wire system that leads to the radio.

There has been talk about the new radio system that will be put into place in the next several months. What needs to be realized is that this new system will not solve the problem that occurred during this incident. The 2 wire system is not part of the "radio system", it is a piece of equipment that is used as an add on to the radio. These systems have their drawbacks (as well as pros) however, one of the drawbacks is strain on the connection. Whether your wire "pulls" on the connection (because it is wrapped through vest too tight), or the constant connecting/disconnecting (which in turn causes bent wires that may or may not break—thus causing transmit issues), both will eventually cause failure, either intermittently or permanently at the connection point. You should eliminate taking the connection apart when possible. (i.e. taking battery off radio to charge instead of disconnecting everyday, etc) Officers should also do a visual inspection for bent wires, loose connection. The other main issue is inability to hear. This is normally caused by obstruction/condensation in the ear piece system. Visual inspection and daily blow outs will assist with this issue. If you "swap" radios out with someone, you may not notice either of these problems right away, but if you use the same connections/accessory pieces, eventually the same problems will happen. It is not the radio itself or system's failure. I take responsibility if this information has not been getting to officers. I took for granted that these parts of your daily maintenance/troubleshooting were known.

We will always look at better ways to equip officers, but we need your say in what that should be. You are the end user of the equipment. The best way to do that is through budget requests. To my knowledge we have never received any radio equipment related requests for budget consideration.

During one of the patrol officer meetings, concerns over radios came up. I requested officers take the next step in identifying the problem, which was documenting what the exact issues were such as which radio, location, etc, so a pinpointing of the problem could hopefully lead to a solution. Until this issue came up last weekend, I had not received any additional communication to date in regards to the problem(s). Simply saying the radios don't work doesn't do us or Mid States any good in trying to solve the problem. Understand that dispatch is not the entity that can fix any portable or mobile radio issue. Report any issues through the chain of command. Lt. Wegner is very much willing to look at issues and attempt to solve any equipment problem.

Do not be overly reliant on any one piece of equipment. Whether it is your taser, radio, ability to communicate, firearm, each one of your tools can fail, and usually due to Murphy's law, it will be at the most inopportune time. Know the functions of your radio, such as how the side activation works separately from the 2 way mic and the emergency button. Each one of these things provide a separate ability to communicate with dispatch outside of your 2 wire mic.

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Officer Shaide is a very intelligent officer that is constantly educating himself to improve his performance. Shaide is a hard worker with a great attitude. Offficer SHaide has shown very good leadership skills and the ability to adaspt to any type of call or situation. He is excellent at thinking on his feet, showing sound judgement. Shaide needs little guidance, but comes to supervision to let us know whats going on and to run by us what he is thinking. This add to his effectiveness.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Officer Shaide has improved greatly with his self confidence, but still needs to work on that area of himself. He sometimes lets self doubt creep in and it can affect his performance. He second guesses himself and it will take him a bit to let that go. Officer Shaide tends to let things outside of his control upset him quite a bit. For instance court proceedings or the States Attorneys Officer decisions. This can get Shaide spun up and out of focus at times. Officer Shaide should remember to evaluate all situations and look for ways to improve. No situation/call is conducted perfectly, there is always room to improve.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Officer Shaide has taken a leadership role more in 2021 and should continue with that. He shows great apptitude for it. Officer Shaide would be well suited at this point in his career to become an FTO, he has the ability and patience to become an excellent FTO.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

As previously mentioned, Officer Shaide should continue to take on more of a leadership role. Officer Shaide should continue on his path of being a well rounded officer, with the ability to do traffic as well as calls and more complicated investigations. Officer Shaide should begin learning his new role on the MPD SWAT team as well.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

-Focus on becoming an FTO, this will help Officer Shaide develop in his role as a leader.
- Attend training related to investigations or leadership.
-Attend training related to SWAT.

This annual performance review will become part of your City of Minot personnel file.

In my 3 years with the investigations unit he has never executed a search warrant on a residence for any purpose.

I have written and executed 26 warrants this year alone for residences, phones, facebook, textnow etc.

Detectives avoid asking for his assistance executing warrants because he just stands around on scene and conducts sloppy searches when he does participate.

Detectives avoid having him review their paperwork because he just signs off and does not carefully review and offer suggestions on their work.

Sgt. Greg Johnson Report

1. On December 30, 2022 at 0230 hours I was contacted by Captain Plessas and informed of a shooting homicide that occurred at the Lamplighter bar. I was told that patrol units had the suspect in custody. I was asked to come in to assist Sgt. Charles Johnson and Detective Hanks.
2. When I arrived at the Police Department I was told that Detective Hanks and C. Johnson were already at the scene. I met up with Detective Asham who was waiting for another Crime Scene Unit person to show up before heading to the scene. I then drove to the Lamplighter bar and met up with the Detectives there.
3. I was asked by C. Johnson to photograph the license plates of the vehicles in the bar parking lot and the Arrowhead shopping center so we could run the plates later to attempt to find the suspects' vehicle.
4. The last plate I took photos of was ND plate 494BJL. I asked Officer Roach to run the plate thru Minot Central Dispatch and it came back as being registered to the suspect Justin McDermott's father. Olson's Towing was contacted to tow the vehicle back to the police department to be searched later.
5. A notebook with writing on it was located in the parking spot directly to the south of the suspects' vehicle. I photographed the notebook and collected it and placed it into evidence. It did not appear to belong to the suspect but there was no way to show that it did not either.
6. I stayed at the Lamplighter to assist the Crime Scene Unit in processing the scene. I did not help with the processing of the scene. I left the Lamplighter at 0510 hours when the CSRU finished up with the scene investigation.

Subject: Assignments & Development
Attachments: APPLICATION FOR SPECIAL ASSIGNMENT.pdf

Importance: High

All Sergeants and Officers,

Over the past several years, the various administrations have considered how we could be ensure our personnel are experienced in as many areas of the department as possible. In other words, how do we get officers to experience all of the Patrol shifts as well as the various Special Assignments available? How do we get the best people in the right positions? And, how do we capitalize on the training and experience our officers get as a result of these assignments?

After much consideration, we are implementing the following plan for Sergeants, Master Officers, Senior Officers, and Officers:

- The longest consecutive period of time on any shift is 4 consecutive years.
  - The 4 years is retroactive and will be considered for the bid period for 2023 calendar year.
  - Special assignments are generally 5 years, but can change based on department need or Chief's decision to change.
  - Consideration will be given to those who provide proof of an extreme hardship due to the proposed reassignment in writing to the Chief of Police.
- Must move to another shift or special assignment for at least 1 calendar year (bid period).
- After one full year of regular duty assigned to another shift, the original shift can be re-bid.
- Decisions on timing of reassignments will be made by Lieutenants and Captains for each division and approved by the Chief of Police.
- The reassignments will not be made in a manner that has a negative impact on the effectiveness of any shift, division, or position within the department.

In addition to the above information, I wanted to notify each of you of the opportunity to experience a special assignment within the Police Department. The following positions are open, and I have attached the Application for Special Assignment for your convenience. Once you have completed your application for special assignment, turn it over to your Lieutenant along with your letter of interest so they can sign off and submit it to the appropriate Division Commander. Here are the positions open at this time, but the timing of them being filled will be prioritized based on staffing levels.

- Records Sergeant (current sergeants)
- Property & Evidence Officer (Senior & Master Officers)
- Drug Task Force Officer (Senior & Master Officers)
- Community Outreach Officer (Senior & Master Officers)

If you are interested in any of the Special Assignments, please have your application submitted by Wednesday, October 12th at 10:00 AM.

All of the Executive Team are informed about this change and can help answer any questions you may have. The shift bid information and process will be posted in the near future.

NARRATIVE

NARRATIVE REPORT

Case #24-23085
Matter(s) Investigated: CRIMINAL MISCHIEF
Person(s) Investigated: UNKNOWN
Officer Daniel Batteiger

On August 4, 2024 at about 0800 hours, I responded to 1740 13th Street SE for the report of several apartment garages which had been broken into. Later on after gathering information from 1740 13th Street SE, I was dispatched to 3318 8th Street NE for several more apartment garages which were damaged and where ultimately related.

Upon arriving at 1740 13th Street SE I observed sever damage to garage units 103, 107, 208, and 309. I met with Lacy Westwood the occupant of unit 103. Westwood stated she was notified by her neighbor. The overhead door was completely caved inwards and personal property had been clearly run over by a vehicle. Westwood was concerned that some of her personal property had been stolen. Ultimately in the case of all the garage units at both locations no items had been stolen.

I completed photographs beginning from east to west starting with the two garage units belonging to 1720 13th Street SE (208 &309). I was unable to inside unit 208 and there was no current record of it being assigned to anyone. Located directly in front of the door was skid mark associated with a vehicle tire. Directly across from 208 was 309. 309 had a clear dark red mark at point of impact. Furthermore inside was two vehicle with unknown damage.

Both vehicle were later identified around 1733 hours. (ND 787DJX & 851DBC) after owners had maintenance remove the door. The damage to the white Ford Escape (ND787DJX) was scuffs on the rear bumper and a dent on the right side of the lift gate. The damage on the black Honda Civic was paint transfer from the overhead door. Ford owner Maria Franco and Honda owner Tyler Dery were provided Marsy Cards.

Next photographs were completed of 1740 13th Street SE units 103 and 107. Inside 103 I located arear taillight lens pieces as well as more skid marks. One lens piece had a MOPAR stamp along with a partial part number. At the time it was unknown if a vehicle was inside of unit 107.

I provided Westwood with a business card referencing the case number before clearing and ultimately responding to 3311 8th Street NE.

I arrived and located garage doors 301, 306, 208, and 102 damaged. I met with Allison Sanford and Travis Kamphuis at unit 301. I began photographs from east to west starting with unit 208. 208 belonged to Dakota Tackett and parked inside his Hyundai Santa Cruz (OH JWE7467). The garage door did appear to come into contact with the Hyundai which was confirmed once inside.

Continuing with unit 306 which belonged to Austin Childress and located inside was his Kawasaki ER650 (ND M31538) which had fallen onto its side when the garage door was rammed. There was a dent on the fuel tank, damage to the front end and rear all on the left side of the motorcycle. Also located inside was a gold Porsche (ND 861DVN) which belonged to his friend, Jhrad Russell. The Porsche did not appear to have any recent damage to it.

Unit 301 was crumpled inwards and visible damage occurred to the Toyota Tacoma (VIN 5TFCZ5AN2JX158939) belonging to Sanford and damage to the GMC Sierra (ND 509BKB) belonging to Travis Kamphuis. After Kamphuis removed the garage door it was pointed out the Toyota was struck hard enough to move it backwards (approximntyl 2') and it ultimately rested against a grill which was in the back of the garage. The Toyota had front end body damage and the tailgate had a dent and cracks to the left taillight. The GMC had minor damage to the front end. Located infront of unit 301 a mostly full taillight which matched that located at 1740 13th Street SE. Also the garage doors again had dark red paint transfer on them.

Unit 102 was located a few rows to the north and was unoccupied. Involved parties received Marsy Cards. I also met with property maintenance employee Nick Lee.

On August 5, 2024 I met and spoke with Meredith Pfenning, the property manager for 3311 8th Street NE. Pfenning was advised of the ongoing case and was provided contact information to send repair costs once she received them.

I then called and spoke with Myah Tessenadorf and employee with IMM in regards to 1740 13th Street SE. Tessenadorf was advised of the damages to the units. Tessenadorf advised me of another unit which was not initially reported. I responded and located unit 107 assigned to building 1720. The garage door was like the others destroyed. I completed photographs as well as observed the same dark red mark on the door.

Body camera footage available from camera #4.
No vehicle camera footage available.

Harold,

Here is a copy of the communication received from Cass County. I also received a call from Grand Forks PD who received a similar email through their PIO email address. As I stated in the phone conversation, we are opening an investigation into the allegation of Lt. McLeod asking subordinates to cover for him during the time he was cheating on his wife. There are bits and pieces of this email that are true, however, much of the information is speculation and rumor that have developed over years of disgruntled employees putting their spin on my past. My Command Team and I are more than capable of making unbiased decisions and holding every member of our department accountable, including ourselves. Part of the reason I am still employed was that I was forthcoming about incidents of misjudgment in my past and have told the truth when questioned. I have nothing to hide about the truth about my past.

I'd be happy to sit down and discuss this information when you return to work. I think a face-to-face meeting would show you I have nothing to hide.

What's going on at the Minot Police Department? So here's a story for all.

Who is going to investigate the cop that investigates cops? Yes, that's right the Minot Police Department has a dedicated a lieutenant who conducts internal investigations on other police officers and his name is Matt McLeod. So why does McLeod need to be investigated? Well it all started 3 or 4 years ago. McLeod, who is married and has 3 children, and is still married, his wife knows, had an affair with another woman. I could reveal her name so you could fact check it but I do not believe she or her family need to be blown up by McLeod's poor judgement. If anyone can provide a good reason for such justification, I am willing to listen. Moving forward, during this time McLeod was a sergeant assigned to the investigations division along with being the SWAT Commander. As the SWAT commander he supervised the entire SWAT team along with the Negotiations team and any officer who fell under SWAT's command in any given incident. That being said his position has a lot of supervisorial reach and influence.

McLeod would frequently tell the officers that he directly supervised (investigators and SWAT operators) and those who he supervised as a SWAT Commander to cover for him. What he would do is tell those who he supervised, "I had lunch with you on Friday," or any particular day of the week, even though they did not have lunch with McLeod at all. This was because he was with the woman he was having the affair with and he did not want his wife or anyone else to know. So, to be factual McLeod is a supervisor that told his subordinates to lie for him. That is a direct order that must be followed even though it is immoral but not illegal. How does a Police supervisor in such a highly regarded position do such a thing? How many times did this happen? How many different officers did McLeod put in this disgusting position? Did they feel forced to lie for their supervisor? Or were they forced to lie by their supervisor? Is this a policy violation or a violation of the oath McLeod took? Or both? This action is immoral, lacks character, and is not something a tax paying citizen should expect from a supervisor at the Minot Police Department of such high regard.

So what was McLeod doing on those lunch breaks that he needed a subordinate officer to lie for him? It was an affair, so was he having sexual intercourse? Isn't that behavior unbecoming of an office of the law to have sexual intercourse on his lunch break while being paid by tax payer dollars? Or at least a policy violation? It is definitely unbecoming of an officer to tell a subordinate to lie for you so you can do something immoral. At least these have to be policy violations worthy of nothing but righteous consequences. So who is holding McLeod accountable?

McLeod was promoted to Lieutenant and assigned to the patrol division. The affair ended because one of McLeod's kids found his second cellular phone that he used to contact the "other woman" he left in the bathroom and gave to McLeod's wife. McLeod was then assigned to the standards Lieutenant who investigates other cops for misconduct, illegal acts, immoral acts, and policy violations. A cop assigned to this position should be of the highest moral regard and character. Having an affair with a married woman, being married himself, and ordering his subordinates lie for him does not strike me as in high moral regard and character, or in any position to investigate other officers.

So who is going to investigate McLeod? The captain of investigations? That captain is Dale Plessas, McLeod's brother in-law. That's Definitely a conflict of interest. The Captain of Patrol? That captain is Justin Sundheim who was the SWAT Commander before McLeod. McLeod was Justin's right had man for several years when Sundheim was the commander. That's Definitely a conflict of interest. How about the chief at the Minot Police Department? John Klug? Let's talk about Klug. In 2005 Klug was a Sr. Patrolman assigned to the Ward County Task Force (WCTF). Klug was assigned to have a work vehicle as a part of his assignment to the WCTF which is an under-cover investigator position. Klug was known to drink alcoholic beverages and drive his government vehicle and did this on several occasions. I believe this is illegal and most definitely a policy violation. And how many times did this happen? Several times!

One fateful night Klug was intoxicated driving from Minot hotel to Minot Hotel looking for Maggie Tygart. Klug wanted to have a relationship with Tygart and Tygart was reportedly at a party at one of the hotels in Minot this fateful night. Klug would drive while intoxicated to each hotel, get out and pull out his official Minot Police Department issued Badge and present it to the Hotel clerk and ask if Tygart had rented a room at their hotel. What sort of investigation was Klug conducting? Klug would need to be conducting an investigation or witnessing a criminal act to use official police powers or using his badge and asking for confidential information. You guessed it, there was no investigation and Klug was breaking the law along with actions unbecoming of an officer.

How many policy violations were violated as well? This happened at several hotels in Minot that fateful evening. At some point one of the hotel clerks thought this was wrong and called the Minot Police Department to report this criminal act. Minot Police Department officers responded to several hotels trying to catch up with Klug on his drunken rampage. Finally, Dave Chapman caught up with Klug at a Minot hotel and had a confrontation with Klug who was uncooperative. Klug did in fact get into the back Chapman's patrol car. Chapman was transporting Klug back to the Minot Police Department as ordered by the shift commander. Chapman happened to stop at the intersection by the Ward County Court House. Klug, while still intoxicated, jumped out of Chapman's patrol car and was more than uncooperative. Klug then brandished his pistol in a manner so much so that Chapman drew his service pistol and ordered Klug to put his gun down. I am not sure if Klug actually pointed his gun at Chapman or how exactly Klug brandished his pistol to Chapman, but I do know Chapman drew his pistol on Klug. This fact means Chapman must have felt threatened enough to the extreme point to draw his pistol on another cop. How incredibly insane and unimaginable is it that Chapman, while in uniform and on duty had to draw his duty pistol on a fellow officer from the same department? That's hard to believe!!!!

How many laws did Klug break that fateful night? How many policy violations did he commit? How does Klug still have a job? Why wasn't Klug charged? How could Klug put Chapman in such a disturbing position? How can Chapman ever trust Klug again? How can anyone trust Klug again? Why would Klug pull/brandish his gun on another officer?

Chapman is well respected and is a high moral and high character officer with the Minot Police Department. Why did Klug do this to him? It is still extremely wrong for Klug to pull/brandish his pistol on any law enforcement officer of any stature, but Klug made the decision to pull/brandish his pistol on a highly regarded and respected Minot Police Department Officer. Why? What does that say about Klug? Is that completely and unconsciously reckless? At least one could say Klug's actions where dangerous, rash, and out of control. Is that what the City of Minot needs as a chief? Does any city or town anywhere want a chief like that?

Steve Whitesel was the shift commander that evening and ordered Chapman to bring Klug back to the Minot Police Department. Whitesel contacted Jeff Balentine (captain of Patrol at the time and then later became chief) to inform Balentine of the situation. Scot Redding was working this evening and has direct knowledge of the incident. Furthermore, the hotel calling into the police department would have generated a docket entry of the incident which is public knowledge and must be saved. It is illegal to delete any of this information. It can be made private for criminal cases or medical purposes or special situations but the public has a right to look at the docket entries. Contact them fact check me, please. Furthermore, here is a list of law enforcement that have knowledge of the incident, Scot Redding, Steve Schoenrock, Curt Smith, Shannon Lackey, Cassidy Halseth, Margie Ziets, Steve Whitesel, Steve Kukoski, Paul Burns, Mike Marcus, Chad Eagleson, Jordan Thompson, Rob Brown, Willy Gram, Fred Debowey, Al Hanson, Bill Brown, Steve Nieber, Jeff Budda, Travis Anderson, Dan Strandberg, Scott Weston, TJ Huber, Dave Goodman, Howard Fisher, Daren Dyke, Cole Strandemo, Craig Sandusky, Brock Laskosky, Charles Johnson, Jason Olson, Jason Sundbakken, Bob Bernard, Steve Kenny, Shane Haug, Shawn Wegner, Tyler Ruelle, Levi Lockrem, Rob White, Winston Black, Larry Haug, Barb McPeak, and many more that are currently employed by the Minot Police department and are afraid of losing their jobs. (Redding, Whitesel, and Kukosky work at Spartan Arms if you need help getting into contact with them) I would like you to fact check me and discover the truth. Just think this is our chief of Police in Minot. Shouldn't the Chief of Police in any city be someone of the highest moral and professional regard?

Furthermore, Klug was at an out of town training with a few other Officer's in another city. Klug was rushed to the hospital in an emergency as he was overdosing on wine and prescription drugs (pain pills). Regardless if the prescription medications that were prescribed to Klug or not, Klug needs to have the moral integrity and knowledge to know NOT to mix alcohol and prescription medications. Common sense right? At least common sense for a chief of police? Is this behavior expected and condoned at any time for someone who is aspiring to be the chief of police? Is this good decision making to mix prescription drugs and alcohol no matter who you are? Even if it was a mistake, this action is still very poor judgement. There are labels on prescription medications saying to not mix with alcohol! Is this the kind of judgment the city of Minot expects of the Chief of Police? Fact check me, call or meet with those guys listed about.

Finally, Klug was at the North Dakota Police Officer's Association (NDPOA) annual training. Once a year the NDPOA puts on a law enforcement training for law enforce at a specific town or city over a specific period of time. As you guessed it Klug was drinking alcohol again at this training. Now, this incident was after training hours, so Klug was "off the clock" but still in representation of the Minot Police Department. Several officers were also drinking alcohol at a designated location where alcohol could be consumed legally. Klug was drinking alcohol with his subordinates. Generally speaking, it is not good moral and professional practice to consume alcohol with subordinates within the police profession let alone any other profession. Is this a good decision but a supervisor?

Soon after, Klug got into an argument with one of his subordinates who was also consuming alcohol. The argument almost leads to a physical fight, with Klug refusing to back down, but the potential fight was broken up by other officers. When Klug returned to the Minot Police Department, Klug tried to have the other officer fired over the incident.
Now that doesn't seem right? What was Klug doing drinking alcohol with a subordinate? Is that a policy violation? Is that behavior unbecoming of an officer in a supervisorial position? Or is it just poor judgement? Is this who we want as a Chief? Well the officer was not fired and was able to tell his side of the story which was substantiated with Klug's history of drinking too much alcohol and having poor judgement while being employed and representing the Minot Police Department.
So should Klug investigate McLeod when he put McLeod in the position of being charge of investigating other cops? Is Klug even morally, ethically, integrally in position to even be employed by the Minot Police Department? I wonder if Klug disclosed any of the above noted incidents during his interviews as he was promoted through the years? More over did Klug disclose this information during his interviews for Chief? What else is Klug hiding? What other poor judgements on Klug's part do the citizens of Minot need to know about?
Once again fact check this information and release it to the public and the proper authorities so that a fair and legal investigation can be conducted. Outside agencies have tried to conduct fact finding investigations in the past but have not revealed the truth. It is clear this cannot be investigated by the Minot Police Department. I would love to reveal my identity but I am afraid of retaliation along with losing my job. Conduct your investigation, interview the above listed as they may have information to any or some of the facts listed above. Release it to the public they have a right to know and contact the BCI or the attorney general as some of these acts are criminal and they would be the best investigate these matters. I would guess the mayor and city council of Minot have no idea what's going on in their largest city department. Once again the docket is a record that is open to the public and could reveal even more people with first hand and direct knowledge of these incidents. Why things were swept under the rug is beyond me. And why Klug was allowed to advance to the level of Chief is unbelievable! Fact check me!!!!!!!Please!!!!

I have sent this letter to several media outlets, act on it quickly, and I hope that competition will breed a good and factual release of information to the public!!!!I just want the truth to be revealed and justice brought to those that deserve. The people of Minot deserve better. The people of Minot deserve the truth.
Find the truth and tell 100% the truth.

Mayor, Council Members, City Manager, and HR,

First, I would like to thank Mr. Stewart for providing the email you all received and allowing me the opportunity to respond to the items that were "vented" to each of you. I spoke to this officer the day he turned in his resignation letter as I heard he had some issues with the leadership within the department and I wanted to hear firsthand what those issues were. I, of all people, do not throw stones as none of us are perfect, and I truly wish he would have given us all the opportunity to understand his issues before he had already decided to leave the department. I will also leave his name out of this email and speak to any of you individually if you'd like to know who it is that sent the email. I will go one section at a time to ensure I cover each issue thoroughly and as completely as possible.

- This officer was with our department for 2 years 8 months and did not have prior law enforcement experience. He has served in the Army Reserve in the capacity of First Sergeant, so he does have some life experience, but does not have the unique understanding that law enforcement brings by way of leadership challenges. In his early days with the department, he was identified as a "chronic complainer" by his peers, first line supervisors (sergeants), and middle managers (lieutenants). He regularly complained about the way fellow city employees were parking in the parking lot, confronted them, and threatened to write tickets. (We did have an issue with parking, but that was being handled through the department heads and City Manager and has gotten much better.) In my conversation with him, he told me he wanted his supervisors to tell him he was doing a good job on a regular basis and not just tell him what he does wrong. He claims he "did everything right" and he received the shotgun emails about what officers needed to fix. I would question that he did do everything right, but even if he did, some issues are addressed by explaining the problem and new procedure going forward (if something changes).

- To the point of our "very large paychecks" I would challenge that we conduct pay studies, market surveys, and have come a long way to competitively pay all of our employees. We do make more money as exempt employees, but we also do not get compensated with time or pay when we work extra hours, and every member of my Executive Team falls into this category and works more than 40 hours per week. I do not get any complaints from them, much like the City Manager does not get any complaints from me about the number of hours I work.

- The officer workspace is in the process of an upgrade, which is why the previous counter was torn out. We have a stainless-steel table ready for installation, but the stainless-steel wall covering that was supposed to be fabricated to assist in making it easy to clean and disinfect was not readily available as the vendor told us. Therefore, the project is on delay until that comes in. The fact that this officer would say that this space was for storing lunch boxes and "drugs are weighed" is exactly what we are trying to prevent. With the increase of fentanyl in our community, it is a terrible idea to store your lunch where you process your evidence and drugs. The possibility of contamination is high and that is a dangerous situation for all. We are putting in the stainless-steel table so any drug residue can easily be wiped off after completing the evidence processing.

- The carpet in the Chief and Captains offices was replaced in 2021, one year later than originally planned. This was due to areas damaged and frayed to the point it could no longer be vacuumed without wrapping strands of carpet into the vacuum cleaner. This was a hard decision for me to make as I wanted to avoid the perception, we are more important than our officers and other staff, but it was done out of necessity, not to make our area better than theirs. Quite the contrary, we have delayed projects because we don't want to invest a lot of money into the building not knowing what may have to be remodeled when we take control of the entire complex.

- To the point of our lack of visiting with those among the ranks to solicit their input, this officer forgets that for 2 years of his 2 years and 8 months, we have been dealing with the Covid pandemic. This has caused eliminating briefings at various moments in time, reducing the meetings, and social distancing. These "meetings" take place in informal settings around the PD daily. Many days when I have plenty of work in my "cushy office" I choose to lead by wandering. This concept allows me to interact with my employees in their space and ask for feedback. During the process of deciding to remove the counter and deciding what was needed in that space, the 3 captains and I visited with a few officers who passed through the area, and we asked them what they needed and what would be better for them. That is leadership. The fact that he was not the one we asked does not diminish our efforts to solicit information in the moment of decision-making.

- Many times, leadership and management go hand in hand. I recently defined the levels of supervision within our department to ensure that everyone understood who the supervisors are. My Executive Team, made up of myself, 3 captains, 5 lieutenants, and the PSAP Manager, are at the level where we must both lead and manage daily. We cannot completely abandon the duty to manage our personnel and staffing or we would run the divisions into the ground and the service to the community would fail. The lieutenant has worked a number of days and nights and been on the street with his officers in that capacity. This occurred on days and times they should have been off, but was done to ensure the adequate coverage of patrol to the city, but again, I don't know that this officer was working the same day to witness that taking place. The "patrol commander", which is actually the Operations Commander, was also prepared to put on his duty gear and go to work where needed (part of his job) as we hit a spike in Covid cases in January when I address the Council about the situation at the Police Department. And, if needed, every one of my commanders and senior staff members know that I will drop what I am doing to lend a hand to accomplish our mission. To that end, each person in the department has their role to fill. They do their job as it has been assigned to them without question. Earlier this week I was on my way to refuel my vehicle and a welfare check was dispatched just a few blocks away. I could have easily continued with my plans, but instead, I responded with another officer and spoke with the person suffering from a medical condition. This is not uncommon for me, but one thing that is common when I make this decision is for an officer or sergeant to show up and say "take off, I got this" or something along those lines.

- Since there is a large paragraph about leadership, management, supervision, and promotion; I will try my best to cover this topic. All of you were briefed about the situation with the lieutenant who resigned her position with our department following an incident in a bar. This was not predicted or expected, she simply self-destructed and chose to move on to another career outside of law enforcement. That lieutenant had many good qualities and one of them was holding people accountable, which is the very thing this officer says isn't happening. The reason some people did not like her was because they were held accountable. Then reading further into this officer's complaint about leadership he talks about bringing issues to his current lieutenant and they go nowhere; the opposite to the previous issue and he's also not happy with that response. I know all of you are aware that there are many types or styles of leadership. I firmly believe that our department is great because all our leaders are a little different. My Command Team each bring a variation of leadership qualities. My Executive Team also has a range of styles and qualities. Every leader is a person first, some have more experience, and some have less. I know you are also all aware that our department is young and inexperienced. The "kid" that he refers to was promoted to sergeant later in his career than Sgt. Noyes, who is referred to as one of the leaders he thinks is great. Both officers started their careers on the same day. I hired them both and know their potential. They will both be great leaders as they learn their role in the department.

- I think this officer speaks out of both sides of his mouth in reference to the lieutenants on patrol. First, he complains that the 2 lieutenants (under the old schedule) worked the overlap together and didn't do anything except sit in the office and visit. I will admit, in some cases this was true, and we saw this as a waste of leadership. Lieutenants are administrators when they reach that level. At that time there were 3 lieutenants, one on each shift, and it seemed there was more middle management than needed to manage the Patrol Division. The lieutenants help schedule our personnel, manage personnel issues, address complaints from officers about workflow and equipment needs, and help make decisions that provide direction for our entire department. They are not patrol officers, but they will fill that role if necessary. Each department across the state and nation is a little different in how they operate, so I don't think an outsider observing for a few hours really has the full scope of what our department is about. Now, there are 2 patrol lieutenants who work Monday – Friday and manage all day to day needs of the Patrol Division. They are not assigned to the Administration Division, but they are in an administrative role within the department. The sergeants are responsible for the supervision of the officers in the field and have been given the authority to make decisions, supervise, and lead their officers, a power that was stripped from them over the years and it is now being shifted back to them, so we truly utilize them as supervisors and leaders.

- The professional standards position was put in place shortly after I took over as Chief in 2020. This position is not outward facing. That lieutenant works directly for me and does more than review use of force reports. Some of his other duties include background checks of new employees, internal investigations, research and review of citizens complaints, policy review and recommendations, and exit interviews. He also works on projects as I assign them to him. If he ever hits a point where he doesn't have something to do, which is rare, he will ask me if I have anything that needs to be done. He is also the SWAT Commander, and that position allows him some time to ensure his team and their equipment is ready to go when needed.

- To the point about mental health, you all heard my desires for more funding in this area so we can ensure our officers get the care they need. Multiple meetings were held by the Operations Commander (who oversees patrol and dispatch) at various times and days where ONLY patrol officers were allowed to attend and speak with him. This officer did not attend any of those meetings.

- In this email he says "department training is laughable"; however, when he met with the Professional Standards Lieutenant for his exit interview, he said he feels the training he received was good. It appears he is either exaggerating how bad things are in the department or he really was not willing to address issues face-to-face within the department the way he claims he did. He never came to me with his problems or concerns, and all employees are told how the chain of command works. If their issue is not being addressed at the lowest level, elevate it to the next. If it's a serious issue that is not being addressed, talk to the chief. It's simple and I have never turned an employee away.

- To the point about comp time, the ability to earn comp time is not accurate. We have recognized that not controlling comp time only compounds our problem as the more time we give officers off when they are scheduled to work, the more overtime we pay to cover those shifts. Our supervisors do not deny staff from using their comp time unless it is requested near their scheduled shift and a replacement cannot be found to backfill their shift. Most officers look at the schedule and assume if their shift is at minimum, they choose on their own to not make the request. That is usually done out of respect for their fellow officers. All employees are under the same guidance pertaining to comp time and even through they may not get compensated with time, they are compensated with overtime pay. They are fairly compensated for their time worked.

- I would argue his point about lack of recognition by supervisors to the point that I had a plaque from the ND Peace Officers Association on my desk that I had just received earlier this week. This award was applied for by one of his patrol lieutenants and had just been granted by the NDPOA Board. I presented that award to him at the end of our conversation as I knew a more public or formal setting would not be possible since he was turning in his equipment the next day. Along with that, during the process of preparing his personnel file for HR, I also found other letters of recognition addressed to him.

- Last, but not least, this officer has made our department out to be a terrible place to work. So bad, it drove him to quit without having serious conversation with any of his supervisors. Most of his complaints were done in passing without having a direct conversation about the problem. His supervisors thought he was venting his frustration with some minor issues, not looking for solutions. To his point about his peers who could not provide him a reason someone should work here over another organization. I do not know the context that question was posed or who was asked, but as I stated earlier, he has been considered as a chronic complainer by even his peers. Maybe they did not want to provide a reason or maybe they have never taken time to ponder that question because they enjoy their employment here. That, we will never know. I can say this for sure. On January 31, 2022, we hired 3 new officers who are currently in training. All 3 of those officers came to us from other agencies in the State of ND. If it is so bad here, why would they choose Minot PD. Why give up the 7 years you already have vested in another agency? In the past few years, we have also hired a sergeant from Devils Lake PD, a deputy from Ward County SO who also had prior law enforcement experience, a trooper from the ND Highway Patrol, and a detective from the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Office. So again, I would ask each of you, if it is so bad here, why do they choose Minot PD for a career?

Once again, I would like to thank the City Manager for allowing me to provide each of you my point of view on the email you received. One thing he told me during my conversation on Wednesday was "This was never going to be my retirement gig. I'm done being a hero." This was disturbing to me, and I simply told him if he was not happy here, then it was time for him to move on and find something that he was satisfied with. I have never thought I was a hero, and never will, regardless of what may happen the rest of my career.

I always welcome each of you into the Police Department at any time to observe how we operate. If any of you want to observe a meeting of my Executive Team or Command Team, please let me know and I will inform you as they are scheduled. My department does not function with one person or one division in mind. We each have important roles and responsibilities and many times those around us do not know every detail of our daily tasks. This officer focused on himself and patrol, but we have support staff, detectives, municipal court, dispatch, and many other responsibilities. I consider each of them when making my decisions to ensure the benefit of any change or decision is greater than the risk of making things worse. Have I gotten it wrong? Yes, I have, and I have adjusted and moved on to make it better. Sometimes failure is how we achieve success.

Thank you for your time and my apologies for such a lengthy letter of explanation, but I am very passionate about the police department, and I need to stand up for the great officers, staff, and leaders I get to work with every day.

Sincerely,

John Klug
Chief of Police

Hello everyone,

I would like to start off by saying that Minot is a fantastic and underrated community. The purpose of this message, while seeming like a bitch session is to help the city and the department fix what can be hopefully easily fixed. With that being said, the Minot Police Department is in desperate need of some help. While my time has been short, it is been sadly disappointing. From the start, I was able to easily identify that employees were not valued by supervisors and staff. If you wanted to feel as easily replaceable as a french fry cook at McDonald's, that is what working at the Minot Police Department feels like. Unlike McDonalds, they actually at least pretend that they are concerned with retention of employees, whereas at the MPD, our so called "leadership" could care less. That is as long as they collect their very large paychecks, don't have to leave their cushy offices with their flat screen televisions mounted to the wall for god knows what, with their new carpeting in their areas. That doesn't sit well with many of the regular officers, who had their only designated work area, literally a hallway, partially demolished. The table where evidence is processed, their printer was kept, drugs are weighed, patrol gear is gone through and set up, people's lunches boxes get stored, was removed and has been gone now for weeks. Why remove this critical work area, if they are not ready to immediately replace it? Finally someone at least had the common sense to find a small table to make do. I would guarantee that if you went into any supervisor or "leaders" office and removed their desk, they would immediately start complaining. Patrol just gets to "deal with it" as several officers were told by their supervisors when they asked about the table being removed and not replaced. Of course all the equipment that was in the patrol hallway, printer, phone, scanner, scales, and many other things then got placed into the already overflowing patrol officers storage and equipment room.

Onto the self proclaimed "leadership." Lets not mince words, the top brass at the police department are at best "management." To be blunt, they don't lead whatsoever. If leading is sending out the occasional email, and attending several meetings then I guess that would qualify, but it doesn't. Hearing stories of other well run departments where the Chief and other command staff come down and regularly visit the ranks and ask for input is amazing. They know their people, what their needs are, and things that need their attention from the bottom up. Not here in Minot, even the "Patrol Commander" hasn't actually patrolled or worked the streets in almost a decade. It's hard to have your finger on the pulse of the division you are supposed to run if you have no idea what is going on. Sure you can read reports but that isn't nearly the same as experiencing it. I just find it strange that other agencies top leadership can gear up and go out on the road but not here in Minot. Agencies with three times the number of personnel can make it happen, it might have to do with the people in charge making it a priority to stay connected to their personnel. I would assume that the supervisors in charge of the street department go out on occasion and see how the streets are? The same with the water, traffic, and other departments. The Cass County Sheriff in Fargo went in and worked Christmas since they were shorthanded. That is an agency well over twice the size of MPD. This is also not unique circumstance for them or other certain agencies across the nation. With how shorthanded Minot PD has been lately, I never saw any of our "leadership" outside of in the hallways, let alone seeing them volunteer to help with manpower and do "police work." Instead patrol officers were and still are forced to stay on and work mandatory overtime over and over again. This has not helped morale in the department which is quite low. I asked 9 other officers in the MPD why someone should work for the Minot Police Department over any other agency, and not one had an answer. I would challenge any of the so called leaders to name three personal things about those in the lower rank in their chain of command. If it wasn't posted on a social media site, I would strongly doubt many would know much about the officers they work with and should obviously know, unless they were friends before they promoted.

On that same line, MPD has no coherent recruitment plan. The pamphlets they have are nice but this isn't the old days pre-internet. The department booth set up at the State Fair was a joke. Anyone could sign up, and many slots were filled by people that were not exactly putting the department's best foot forward. The social media accounts of the department are mediocre at best. This is what people who are looking at the department as a possible place of employment would likely go to research. It would seem that these sites are being managed by someone stuck in the past and more comfortable with a typewriter, than a computer. If you haven't seen Fargo PD's fantastic recruitment video, you should look it up. It is also located on "their recruitment" social media sites.

There are many people within the Minot PD that have great ideas and things that would benefit the department. When several of these people have mentioned that there isn't a way for them to submit their ideas up the chain of command, they were told by superiors that the last thing the department needs is to have their unsolicited ideas put forth. It would only cause more issues. This killed their motivation to help the department. Instead the department relies on meetings of "supervisors." These meetings are not open to non supervisors and pretty much useless according to the supervisors themselves. They are highly unproductive and turn into bitching sessions. Even then, top leadership usually already has their mind set and so the meetings appear to be pointless. The results of these meetings very rarely improves anything with the rank and file and often makes things worse. Now the supervisors themselves are not necessary the optimal people in the department. There are quite a few that would make poor Senior of Master Officers but due to high turnover and lack of interested people in testing for supervisor(over half of qualified candidates) they have been promoted. If you ask around the same names will come up over and over again. I won't even touch on the disaster one of the last lieutenant was that everyone apparently saw coming. I was not very familiar but If you ask around or look on certain social media sites you will find out. The video of that particular person threatening to use their power to close down a bar, fight fellow patrons, and then kicking a state trooper in the groin was a favorite. From what I heard no one that knew that officer was surprised, only that the obviously worst candidate for the lieutenant was selected. That apparently caused shock throughout the lower ranks of the department, that someone who was notoriously hostile and abusive towards other officers was selected over more qualified candidates. On the same topic of lieutenant's, officers were surprised on a good note when they were told that the shift commander's desk would no longer have to be manned 24 hours a day. This had made no sense to many as phone calls can be transferred to cellular phones easily and reports could be reviewed on the same in car computers that officers usually use to write them on. It ended up being someone hanging out watching YouTube or as other officers had said, two lieutenant's on overlap would just sit around chatting and not having to do any work. If someone would come into the department to file a report, they would literally call a third officer in to take the complaint. I heard the story of a senior leader from another major agency, that did a ride along observed, it appeared as though the MPD supervisors promoted out of being police officers and into being "lazy f*cks." That leader stated that the lieutenant's should turn in their badges and go work next door at water billing if they want to sit around and not do police work any longer. This is not a unique situation and has been the case apparently for well over a decade. Supervisors are here are not the same as many other departments. Other agencies such as Grand Forks and Fargo even lieutenants would regularly go out and make traffic stops and make the occasional arrest. That hasn't happened in Minot according other officers for a decade or longer. Why should they put in the extra work and put themselves at risk when it isn't required? The easy answer would be that would be what a real leader would do instead of placing their comfort and safety above that of the people they are in charge of. Even many of the sergeants often don't take reports, push arrests off on lower ranking officers, and enjoy many perks of their positions, essentially promoting out of doing difficult work, instead of having to work harder and earning the extra pay with the responsibilities. Some officers have said that there have been as many as four supervisors hanging out in the office not doing anything but the minute someone comes in and needs a report filled, they call an officer off the road to take it. The excuse was just in case they needed to supervise an incident. Well that excuse apparently didn't apply to weekends, as the lieutenant's made the shift schedule and like all good "leaders" chose to give themselves every weekend off. Since they worked the same length of time as regular patrol officers, they got to enjoy three day weekends, every weekend. Lead from the back, the way far back. Well back onto the "new plan." When the desk was no longer to be manned 24 hrs a day, officers expected that the lieutenant's, shift commanders, would come out onto the road and work patrol with them. This brought excitement as they thought that it would help the lieutenant's experience the issues they were facing everyday. Instead the department was shocked when the lieutenant's were removed from the patrol shifts altogether. There were assigned to the administrative division and basically turned into highly overpaid secretaries. Two of the lieutenant's now do the job one decent administrative assistant could perform for 1/4 of the pay. The other was assigned to the "office of professional standards." No one is quite sure what this lieutenant does with the extra 38 hours of his time every week that isn't spent reviewing use of force incidents and pushing out canned policy training bulletins. Once again this position has no reason to be a full time position and could easily be an additionally duty for one of the high paid lieutenant's. Instead the department has saw fit to expand the bureaucracy and create more office jobs, that took valuable positions away from patrol. There are a few, really good strong leaders within the department, but unfortunately they are a minority, and will likely burn out or will gravitate to becoming like the others who do more harm than good to the department. These care more about ticket counts, their personal standard on the narratives on reports, and other useless things. Officer development no, mental health and wellbeing here is an email and an occasional meeting that few can attend, department training laughable and only meant to check boxes, proper working area for patrol_ enjoy your hallway and stay out of records and the supervisor areas, properly set up patrol cars no get used to the hodge podge of recycled equipment and who cares of you can't drive a police car like you are being trained to due to poor mounting of equipment in the vehicles, can't access the rifles or shotguns due to them being wedged behind poorly placed things well that is just too bad.

Getting rid of the ability to earn comp time for things in lieu of pay was a major blow to morale. As workloads and mandatory overtime has increased, people that are already forced to miss birthdays of children, family holiday gettogethers, anniversaries, and are so on, valued more time with loved ones than money in most cases. Now in an effort to make things easier on the city, this ability to earn time to do these things has been diminished. While yes people still have vacation time, when you work every weekend for a month, you miss a lot of quality time with family and friends. This adds to the extreme stress these people experience on a daily basis. It was mentioned that it costs extra money to pay people overtime to come in and cover this compensation time, but rarely has that been the case, as many supervisors refuse to allow it to be taken when scheduled manning doesn't allow it. Have to take time out of your day off to attend court, mandatory training, administrative hearings, and other things well here is some money to replace your valuable time. Money can't buy time back. This was a very poor decision that has caused significant morale issues and beaten down people already down.

On the topic of supervisors, it's pretty sad that the last promotion for SGT was given to someone who assaulted a handcuffed prisoner, an incident that the investigation apparently led to the firing of another officer. He was also known for not getting along with others so why not pick him. I mean striking a handcuffed person is a very tough situation to control. They obviously will do well with the pressure of supervising and managing others. The one promoted before that, is an immature "kid" who has exactly zero leadership qualities. From speaking to others, this person was only selected because he has been around for a while and tested multiple times, so he became familiar with the process. There are several brand new hires that display more potential. I guess it fills a spot, so why shouldn't the department continue on with it's mediocre qualities. This isn't to say that the patrol officers are not great, many are fantastic and represent the best of the community. They just deserve so much better than how they are treated. I would expect the majority of them to become burnt out and bitter over the course of the next few years at the rate things are going.

Kelly,

I concur that a frank and discrete conversation, probably involving the 5 of us, is needed at this point (probably also including the mayor).

Thanks for reminding me of a previous complaint- my admittedly foggy recollection was that this was regarding general morale and management issues, as opposed to direct accusations of specific misconduct. I will go back and read through the previous communications, however.

As a prelude to scheduling, please be advised that I have some significant absences coming up in the next couple of weeks (for surgery and follow-up care, in Fargo). I will be unavailable from 7/20 through 7/23, and then again from 7/28 through 7/30. I can work around other things, but not this.

Parenthetically, my original email to you was cc'd to Paul in his capacity as Council president (given the seriousness of some of the allegations); I took it for granted that Harold was already in contact with the mayor. This is one of those few times where a Council "executive committee" might be of use, to facilitate preliminary discussion of a sensitive matter (without violating the open meetings law, yet allowing for some consideration of a variety of viewpoints).

Steve

Alderman Podrygula,

Thank you for your email. And thank you for your diligence in not including a quorum of the city council on your response; please continue to refrain from discussing this matter with a quorum of the city council in order to avoid an inadvertent meeting violation.

As you're aware, we received an identical (or nearly identical) email back in February 2022 (see attached).

I think it makes sense to schedule a conversation when Harold is back in the office. If everyone agrees, we can get something arranged.

Thank you,

Kelly

Dear Mr. or Ms. "Truth Teller":

This is to acknowledge the receipt and reading of your email alleging various improprieties in our police department, particularly on the part of John Klug, our chief.

I'm very concerned about what you are saying and am formally asking Harold Stewart, our city manager, in conjunction with Kelly Hendershot, our city attorney (and de facto risk management expert), to prepare a response (for the Council) as to how we might address your allegations.

To be perfectly candid, some of the things that you bring up (e.g., extramarital involvements, alcohol use off the job) seem like matters of personal conduct that are not relevant to performance as a city employee and don't merit further inquiry (at least not in my opinion). Others (e.g., using one's official position for private advantage, reckless drawing of a firearm, intimidation of subordinates), if true, would be very relevant and worrisome. Still others (e.g., "fraternization" with subordinates) fall into an intermediate category, suggesting poor judgment but probably not official misconduct. What people do off the job is their business, although, at some point, if the conduct is flagrant enough we might become concerned (particularly if a person in a position of public trust, such as a law enforcement officer, is involved).

As you point out, an agency really can't investigate itself, probably for anything beyond a violation of routine policies and standards. That's why I am asking Harold and Kelly to suggest an appropriate institutional response. Potentially, this might Include referral to another law enforcement agency, for alleged violations of the law, or the city engaging the services of an independent outside investigator (like we did in the case of our former city manager, whose contract we terminated). I'll leave it up to Kelly (and Lisa Jundt, our HR director) to recommend whether we have "reasonable suspicion" or even "probable cause" to pursue this, and, if so, exactly how.

Although I certainly worry about what you are saying, and very much agree that we need to maintain high standards, let me offer a bit of unsolicited advice regarding the scattershot nature of your allegations and the large number of individuals you are transmitting them to. While I am certainly "willing to listen" to just about any concerns a citizen might raise, I am not favorably inclined to take seriously allegations including personal and private matters (e.g., off the job romantic relationships). Similarly, if a person has a grievance or complaint, I will always encourage them to follow the "chain of command", which you are doing by bringing this to the attention of the city manger and Council, but not share it with others who really have no responsibility or authority regarding the matter(e.g., other city employees, other elected officials, et al., although the news media could be an exception, given their vital role in helping protect against official misconduct).

I will try to keep you posted as to how this develops.

What's going on at the Minot Police Department?

Who is going to investigate the cop that investigates cops? Yes, that's right the Minot Police Department has a dedicated a lieutenant who conducts internal investigations on other police officers and his name is Matt McLeod. So why does McLeod need to be investigated? Well it all started 3 or 4 years ago. McLeod, who is married and has 3 children, and is still married, his wife knows, had an affair with another woman. I could reveal her name so you could fact check it but I do not believe she or her family need to be blown up by McLeod's poor judgement. If anyone can provide a good reason for such justification, I am willing to listen. Moving forward, during this time McLeod was a sergeant assigned to the investigations division along with being the SWAT Commander. As the SWAT commander he supervised the entire SWAT team along with the Negotiations team and any officer who fell under SWAT's command in any given incident. That being said his position has a lot of supervisorial reach and influence.

McLeod would frequently tell the officers that he directly supervised (investigators and SWAT operators) and those who he supervised as a SWAT Commander to cover for him. What he would do is tell those who he supervised, "I had lunch with you on Friday," or any particular day of the week, even though they did not have lunch with McLeod at all. This was because he was with the woman he was having the affair with and he did not want his wife or anyone else to know. So, to be factual McLeod is a supervisor that told his subordinates to lie for him. That is a direct order that must be followed even though it is immoral but not illegal. How does a Police supervisor in such a highly regarded position do such a thing? How many times did this happen? How many different officers did McLeod put in this disgusting position? Did they feel forced to lie for their supervisor? Or were they forced to lie by their supervisor? Is this a policy violation or a violation of the oath McLeod took? Or both? This action is immoral, lacks character, and is not something a tax paying citizen should expect from a supervisor at the Minot Police Department of such high regard.

So what was McLeod doing on those lunch breaks that he needed a subordinate officer to lie for him? It was an affair, so was he having sexual intercourse? Isn't that behavior unbecoming of an office of the law to have sexual intercourse on his lunch break while being paid by tax payer dollars? Or at least a policy violation? It is definitely unbecoming of an officer to tell a subordinate to lie for you so you can do something immoral. At least these have to be policy violations worthy of nothing but righteous consequences. So who is holding McLeod accountable?

McLeod was promoted to Lieutenant and assigned to the patrol division. The affair ended because one of McLeod's kids found his second cellular phone that he used to contact the "other woman" he left in the bathroom and gave to McLeod's wife. McLeod was then assigned to the standards Lieutenant who investigates other cops for misconduct, illegal acts, immoral acts, and policy violations. A cop assigned to this position should be of the highest moral regard and character. Having an affair with a married woman, being married himself, and ordering his subordinates lie for him does not strike me as in high moral regard and character, or in any position to investigate other officers.

So who is going to investigate McLeod? The captain of investigations? That captain is Dale Plessas, McLeod's brother in-law. That's Definitely a conflict of interest. The Captain of Patrol? That captain is Justin Sundheim who was the SWAT Commander before McLeod. McLeod was Justin's right had man for several years when Sundheim was the commander. That's Definitely a conflict of interest. How about the chief at the Minot Police Department? John Klug? Let's talk about Klug.

In 2005 Klug was a Sr. Patrolman assigned to the Ward County Task Force (WCTF). Klug was assigned to work vehicle as a part of his assignment to the WCTF which is an under-cover investigator position. Klug was known to drink alcoholic beverages and drive his government vehicle and did this on several occasions. I believe this is illegal and most definitely a policy violation. And how many times did this happen? Several times!

One fateful night Klug was intoxicated driving from Minot hotel to Minot Hotel looking for Maggie Tygart. Klug wanted to have a relationship with Tygart and Tygart was reportedly at a party at one of the hotels in Minot this fateful night. Klug would drive while intoxicated to each hotel, get out and pull out his official Minot Police Department issued Badge and present it to the Hotel clerk and ask if Tygart had rented a room at their hotel. What sort of investigation was Klug conducting? Klug would need to be conducting an investigation or witnessing a criminal act to use official police powers or using his badge and asking for confidential information. You guessed it, there was no investigation and Klug was breaking the law along with actions unbecoming of an officer.

How many policy violations were violated as well? This happened at several hotels in Minot that fateful evening. At some point one of the hotel clerks thought this was wrong and called the Minot Police Department to report this criminal act. Minot Police Department officers responded to several hotels trying to catch up with Klug on his drunken rampage. Finally, Dave Chapman caught up with Klug at a Minot hotel and had a confrontation with Klug who was uncooperative. Klug did in fact get into the back Chapman's patrol car. Chapman was transporting Klug back to the Minot Police Department as ordered by the shift commander. Chapman happened to stop at the intersection by the Ward County Court House. Klug, while still intoxicated, jumped out of Chapman's patrol car and was more than uncooperative. Klug then brandished his pistol in a manner so much so that Chapman drew his service pistol and ordered Klug to put his gun down. I am not sure if Klug actually pointed his gun at Chapman or how exactly Klug brandished his pistol to Chapman, but I do know Chapman drew his pistol on Klug. This fact means Chapman must have felt threatened enough to the extreme point to draw his pistol on another cop. How incredibly insane and unimaginable is it that Chapman, while in uniform and on duty had to draw his duty pistol on a fellow officer from the same department? That's hard to believe!!!!

How many laws did Klug commit that fateful night? How many policy violations did he commit? How does Klug still have a job? Why wasn't Klug charged? How could Klug put Chapman in such a disturbing position? How can Chapman ever trust Klug again? How can anyone trust Klug again? Why would Klug pull/brandish his gun on another officer?

Chapman is well respected and is a high moral and high character officer with the Minot Police Department. Why did Klug do this to him? I mean it is still extremely wrong for Klug to pull/brandish his pistol on any law enforcement officer of any stature, but Klug made the decision to pull/brandish his pistol on a highly regarded and respected Minot Police Department Officer. Why? What does that say about Klug? Is that completely and unconsciously reckless? At least one could say Klug's actions where dangerous, rash, and out of control. Is that what the City of Minot needs as a chief? Does any city or town anywhere want a chief like that?

Steve Whitesel was the shift commander that evening and ordered Chapman to bring Klug back to the Minot Police Department. Whitesel contacted Jeff Balentine (captain of Patrol at the time and then later became chief) to inform Balentine of the situation. Scot Redding was working this evening and has direct knowledge of the incident. Furthermore, the hotel calling into the police department would have generated a docket entry of the incident which is public knowledge and must be saved. It is illegal to delete any of this information. It can be made private for criminal cases or medical purposes or special situations but the public has a right to look at the docket entries. Contact them fact check me, please.

Furthermore, Klug was at an out of town training with a few other Officer's in another city. Klug was rushed to the hospital in an emergency as he was overdosing on wine and prescription drugs (pain pills). Regardless if the prescription medications that were prescribed to Klug or not, Klug needs to have the moral integrity and knowledge to know NOT to mix alcohol and prescription medications. Common sense right? At least common sense for a chief of police? Is this behavior expected and condoned at any time for someone who is aspiring to be the chief of police? Is this good decision making to mix prescription drugs and alcohol no matter who you are? Even if it was a mistake, this action is still very poor judgement. There are labels on prescription medications saying to not mix with alcohol! Is this the kind of judgment the city of Minot expects of the Chief of Police? Fact check me, call or meet with those guys listed about.

Finally, Klug was at the North Dakota Police Officer's Association (NDPOA) annual training. Once a year the NDPOA puts on a law enforcement training for law enforce at a specific town or city over a specific period of time. As you guessed it Klug was drinking alcohol again at this training. Now, this incident was after training hours, so Klug was "off the clock" but still in representation of the Minot Police Department. Several officers were also drinking alcohol at a designated location where alcohol could be consumed legally. Klug was drinking alcohol with his subordinates. Generally speaking, it is not good moral and professional practice to consume alcohol with subordinates within the police profession let alone any other profession. Is this a good decision but a supervisor?

Soon after, Klug got into an argument with one of his subordinates who was also consuming alcohol. The argument almost leads to a physical fight, with Klug refusing to back down, but the potential fight was broken up by other officers. When Klug returned to the Minot Police Department, Klug tried to have the other officer fired over the incident.

Now that doesn't seem right? What was Klug doing drinking alcohol with a subordinate? Is that a policy violation? Is that behavior unbecoming of an officer in a supervisorial position? Or is it just poor judgement? Is this who we want as a Chief? Well the officer was not fired and was able to tell his side of the story which was substantiated with Klug's history of drinking too much alcohol and having poor judgement while being employed and representing the Minot Police Department.

So should Klug investigate McLeod when he put McLeod in the position of being charge of investigating other cops? Is Klug even morally, ethically, integrally in position to even be employed by the Minot Police Department? I wonder if Klug disclosed any of the above noted incidents during his interviews as he was promoted through the years? More over did Klug disclose this information during his interviews for Chief? What else is Klug hiding? What other poor judgements on Klug's part do the citizens of Minot need to know about?

Once again fact check this information and release it to the public and the proper authorities so that a fair and legal investigation can be conducted. Outside agencies have tried to conduct fact finding investigations in the past but have not revealed the truth. It is clear this cannot be investigated by the Minot Police Department. I would love to reveal my identity but I am afraid of retaliation along with losing my job. Conduct your investigation, interview the above listed as they may have information to any or some of the facts listed above. Release it to the public they have a right to know and contact the BCI or the attorney general as some of these acts are criminal and they would be the best investigate these matters. I would guess the mayor and city council of Minot have no idea what's going on in their largest city department. Once again the docket is a record that is open to the public and could reveal even more people with first hand and direct knowledge of these incidents. Why things were swept under the rug is beyond me. And why Klug was allowed to advance to the level of Chief is unbelievable! Fact check me!!!!!!!Please!!!!

Find the truth and tell 100% the truth. Everyone is accountable for their actions. Elected officials must take action.

Colleagues,

Some potential new things for you to be aware of: reference to possible discrimination, and potential retaliation. Obvious HR and legal complications could be present, hence my officially alerting you to this.

I'm not aware of any prior investigation - perhaps this refers to our former city manager, but maybe not - but if there was one, I'd like to see the results (prior to our just scheduled meeting next Tuesday, which I presume is regarding this matter).

Mr. or Ms. TTT,

I appreciate the position you feel you are in (e.g., as a clinical psychologist, I've worked with many individuals who've struggled to cope with what they perceive to be unfairness, or even worse, at work) and promise to take your concerns seriously.

You are right, this is ultimately the Council's responsibility to investigate, and I have already shard my concerns with the president of the Council and senior city staff.

Thank you for getting back to me so quickly I hope you understand that I have spoken to my direct supervisors many times about this matter and nothing was done. I spoke to their supervisors about this matter and nothing was done. I am afraid to lose my job and career over this. I don't know what else to do. The formal process and chain of command did not work and in my opinion is broken.

McLeod and Klug have committed many serious policy violations (conduct unbecoming of an officer, unlawful orders to subordinates, public intoxication, etc.) Such violations have lead to former employees dismissals. That does not seem right they can do it and others cannot. I wonder how many employees over the years have been "let go" over such standards yet Klug and McLeod are not held to those same standards? The state Legislators that I have spoken to about this matter have stated that this is the City Council's responsibility to investigate. The last time the City used an outside agency to investigate discrimination to include gender bias discrimination nothing happened other then Klug cracking down even harder on any officer for speaking out. As stated above I fear the formal process and chain of command are broken and your job will be difficult. Please Get them all on the record and see if they will tell the truth.

This is to acknowledge the receipt and reading of your email alleging various improprieties in our police department, particularly on the part of John Klug, our chief.

I'm very concerned about what you are saying and am formally asking Harold Stewart, our city manager, in conjunction with Kelly Hendershot, our city attorney (and de facto risk management expert), to prepare a response (for the Council) as to how we might address your allegations.

To be perfectly candid, some of the things that you bring up (e.g., extramarital involvements, alcohol use off the job) seem like matters of personal conduct that are not relevant to performance as a city employee and don't merit further inquiry (at least not in my opinion). Others (e.g., using one's official position for private advantage, reckless drawing of a firearm, intimidation of subordinates), if true, would be very relevant and worrisome. Still others (e.g., "fraternization" with subordinates) fall into an intermediate category, suggesting poor judgment but probably not official misconduct. What people do off the job is their business, although, at some point, if the conduct is flagrant enough we might become concerned (particularly if a person in a position of public trust, such as a law enforcement officer, is involved).

As you point out, an agency really can't investigate itself, probably for anything beyond a violation of routine policies and standards. That's why I am asking Harold and Kelly to suggest an appropriate institutional response. Potentially, this might Include referral to another law enforcement agency, for alleged violations of the law, or the city engaging the services of an independent outside investigator (like we did in the case of our former city manager, whose contract we terminated). I'll leave it up to Kelly (and Lisa Jundt, our HR director) to recommend whether we have "reasonable suspicion" or even "probable cause" to pursue this, and, if so, exactly how.

Although I certainly worry about what you are saying, and very much agree that we need to maintain high standards, let me offer a bit of unsolicited advice regarding the scattershot nature of your allegations and the large number of individuals you are transmitting them to. While I am certainly "willing to listen" to just about any concerns a citizen might raise, I am not favorably inclined to take seriously allegations including personal and private matters (e.g., off the job romantic relationships). Similarly, if a person has a grievance or complaint, I will always encourage them to follow the "chain of command", which you are doing by bringing this to the attention of the city manger and Council, but not share it with others who really have no responsibility or authority regarding the matter(e.g., other city employees, other elected officials, et al., although the news media could be an exception, given their vital role in helping protect against official misconduct).

I will try to keep you posted as to how this develops.

What's going on at the Minot Police Department?

Who is going to investigate the cop that investigates cops? Yes, that's right the Minot Police Department has a dedicated a lieutenant who conducts internal investigations on other police officers and his name is Matt McLeod. So why does McLeod need to be investigated? Well it all started 3 or 4 years ago. McLeod, who is married and has 3 children, and is still married, his wife knows, had an affair with another woman. I could reveal her name so you could fact check it but I do not believe she or her family need to be blown up by McLeod's poor judgement. If anyone can provide a good reason for such justification, I am willing to listen. Moving forward, during this time McLeod was a sergeant assigned to the investigations division along with being the SWAT Commander. As the SWAT commander he supervised the entire SWAT team along with the Negotiations team and any officer who fell under SWAT's command in any given incident. That being said his position has a lot of supervisorial reach and influence.

McLeod would frequently tell the officers that he directly supervised (investigators and SWAT operators) and those who he supervised as a SWAT Commander to cover for him. What he would do is tell those who he supervised, "I had lunch with you on Friday," or any particular day of the week, even though they did not have lunch with McLeod at all. This was because he was with the woman he was having the affair with and he did not want his wife or anyone else to know. So, to be factual McLeod is a supervisor that told his subordinates to lie for him. That is a direct order that must be followed even though it is immoral but not illegal. How does a Police supervisor in such a highly regarded position do such a thing? How many times did this happen? How many different officers did McLeod put in this disgusting position? Did they feel forced to lie for their supervisor? Or were they forced to lie by their supervisor? Is this a policy violation or a violation of the oath McLeod took? Or both? This action is immoral, lacks character, and is not something a tax paying citizen should expect from a supervisor at the Minot Police Department of such high regard.

So what was McLeod doing on those lunch breaks that he needed a subordinate officer to lie for him? It was an affair, so was he having sexual intercourse? Isn't that behavior unbecoming of an office of the law to have sexual intercourse on his lunch break while being paid by tax payer dollars? Or at least a policy violation? It is definitely unbecoming of an officer to tell a subordinate to lie for you so you can do something immoral. At least these have to be policy violations worthy of nothing but righteous consequences. So who is holding McLeod accountable?

McLeod was promoted to Lieutenant and assigned to the patrol division. The affair ended because one of McLeod's kids found his second cellular phone that he used to contact the "other woman" he left in the bathroom and gave to McLeod's wife. McLeod was then assigned to the standards Lieutenant who investigates other cops for misconduct, illegal acts, immoral acts, and policy violations. A cop assigned to this position should be of the highest moral regard and character. Having an affair with a married woman, being married himself, and ordering his subordinates lie for him does not strike me as in high moral regard and character, or in any position to investigate other officers.

So who is going to investigate McLeod? The captain of investigations? That captain is Dale Plessas, McLeod's brother in-law. That's Definitely a conflict of interest. The Captain of Patrol? That captain is Justin Sundheim who was the SWAT Commander before McLeod. McLeod was Justin's right had man for several years when Sundheim was the commander. That's Definitely a conflict of interest. How about the chief at the Minot Police Department? John Klug? Let's talk about Klug.

In 2005 Klug was a Sr. Patrolman assigned to the Ward County Task Force (WCTF). Klug was assigned to work vehicle as a part of his assignment to the WCTF which is an under-cover investigator position. Klug was known to drink alcoholic beverages and drive his government vehicle and did this on several occasions. I believe this is illegal and most definitely a policy violation. And how many times did this happen? Several times!

One fateful night Klug was intoxicated driving from Minot hotel to Minot Hotel looking for Maggie Tygart. Klug wanted to have a relationship with Tygart and Tygart was reportedly at a party at one of the hotels in Minot this fateful night. Klug would drive while intoxicated to each hotel, get out and pull out his official Minot Police Department issued Badge and present it to the Hotel clerk and ask if Tygart had rented a room at their hotel. What sort of investigation was Klug conducting? Klug would need to be conducting an investigation or witnessing a criminal act to use official police powers or using his badge and asking for confidential information. You guessed it, there was no investigation and Klug was breaking the law along with actions unbecoming of an officer.

How many policy violations were violated as well? This happened at several hotels in Minot that fateful evening. At some point one of the hotel clerks thought this was wrong and called the Minot Police Department to report this criminal act. Minot Police Department officers responded to several hotels trying to catch up with Klug on his drunken rampage. Finally, Dave Chapman caught up with Klug at a Minot hotel and had a confrontation with Klug who was uncooperative. Klug did in fact get into the back Chapman's patrol car. Chapman was transporting Klug back to the Minot Police Department as ordered by the shift commander. Chapman happened to stop at the intersection by the Ward County Court House. Klug, while still intoxicated, jumped out of Chapman's patrol car and was more than uncooperative. Klug then brandished his pistol in a manner so much so that Chapman drew his service pistol and ordered Klug to put his gun down. I am not sure if Klug actually pointed his gun at Chapman or how exactly Klug brandished his pistol to Chapman, but I do know Chapman drew his pistol on Klug. This fact means Chapman must have felt threatened enough to the extreme point to draw his pistol on another cop. How incredibly insane and unimaginable is it that Chapman, while in uniform and on duty had to draw his duty pistol on a fellow officer from the same department? That's hard to believe!!!!

How many laws did Klug commit that fateful night? How many policy violations did he commit? How does Klug still have a job? Why wasn't Klug charged? How could Klug put Chapman in such a disturbing position? How can Chapman ever trust Klug again? How can anyone trust Klug again? Why would Klug pull/brandish his gun on another officer?

Chapman is well respected and is a high moral and high character officer with the Minot Police Department. Why did Klug do this to him? I mean it is still extremely wrong for Klug to pull/brandish his pistol on any law enforcement officer of any stature, but Klug made the decision to pull/brandish his pistol on a highly regarded and respected Minot Police Department Officer. Why? What does that say about Klug? Is that completely and unconsciously reckless? At least one could say Klug's actions where dangerous, rash, and out of control. Is that what the City of Minot needs as a chief? Does any city or town anywhere want a chief like that?

Steve Whitesel was the shift commander that evening and ordered Chapman to bring Klug back to the Minot Police Department. Whitesel contacted Jeff Balentine (captain of Patrol at the time and then later became chief) to inform Balentine of the situation. Scot Redding was working this evening and has direct knowledge of the incident. Furthermore, the hotel calling into the police department would have generated a docket entry of the incident which is public knowledge and must be saved. It is illegal to delete any of this information. It can be made private for criminal cases or medical purposes or special situations but the public has a right to look at the docket entries. Contact them fact check me, please.

Furthermore, here is a list of law enforcement that have knowledge of the incident, Scot Redding, Steve Schoenrock, Curt Smith, Steve Whitesel, Mike Marcus, Steve Kukoski, Paul Burns, Rob Brown, Willy Gram, Fred Debowey, Al Hanson, Bill Brown, Chad Eagleson, Steve Nieber, Jeff Budda, Travis Anderson, Dan Strandberg, Scott Weston, Margie Ziets, TJ Huber, Dave Goodman, Howard Fisher, Daren Dyke, Cole Strandemo, Craig Sandusky, Brock Laskosky, Charles Johnson, Jason Olson, Jason Sundbakken, Jordan Thompson, Bob Bernard, Steve Kenny, Shane Haug, Shawn Wegner, Tyler Ruelle, Levi Lockrem, Rob White, Winston Black, Larry Haug, Barb McPeak, Shannon Lackey, and many more that are currently employed by the Minot Police department and are afraid of losing their jobs. I would like you to fact check me and discover the truth. Just think this is our chief of Police in Minot. Shouldn't the Chief of Police in any city be someone of the highest moral and professional regard?

Furthermore, Klug was at an out of town training with a few other Officer's in another city. Klug was rushed to the hospital in an emergency as he was overdosing on wine and prescription drugs (pain pills). Regardless if the prescription medications that were prescribed to Klug or not, Klug needs to have the moral integrity and knowledge to know NOT to mix alcohol and prescription medications. Common sense right? At least common sense for a chief of police? Is this behavior expected and condoned at any time for someone who is aspiring to be the chief of police? Is this good decision making to mix prescription drugs and alcohol no matter who you are? Even if it was a mistake, this action is still very poor judgement. There are labels on prescription medications saying to not mix with alcohol! Is this the kind of judgment the city of Minot expects of the Chief of Police? Fact check me, call or meet with those guys listed about.

Finally, Klug was at the North Dakota Police Officer's Association (NDPOA) annual training. Once a year the NDPOA puts on a law enforcement training for law enforce at a specific town or city over a specific period of time. As you guessed it Klug was drinking alcohol again at this training. Now, this incident was after training hours, so Klug was "off the clock" but still in representation of the Minot Police Department. Several officers were also drinking alcohol at a designated location where alcohol could be consumed legally. Klug was drinking alcohol with his subordinates. Generally speaking, it is not good moral and professional practice to consume alcohol with subordinates within the police profession let alone any other profession. Is this a good decision but a supervisor?

Soon after, Klug got into an argument with one of his subordinates who was also consuming alcohol. The argument almost leads to a physical fight, with Klug refusing to back down, but the potential fight was broken up by other officers. When Klug returned to the Minot Police Department, Klug tried to have the other officer fired over the incident.

Now that doesn't seem right? What was Klug doing drinking alcohol with a subordinate? Is that a policy violation? Is that behavior unbecoming of an officer in a supervisorial position? Or is it just poor judgement? Is this who we want as a Chief? Well the officer was not fired and was able to tell his side of the story which was substantiated with Klug's history of drinking too much alcohol and having poor judgement while being employed and representing the Minot Police Department.

So should Klug investigate McLeod when he put McLeod in the position of being charge of investigating other cops? Is Klug even morally, ethically, integrally in position to even be employed by the Minot Police Department? I wonder if Klug disclosed any of the above noted incidents during his interviews as he was promoted through the years? More over did Klug disclose this information during his interviews for Chief? What else is Klug hiding? What other poor judgements on Klug's part do the citizens of Minot need to know about?

Once again fact check this information and release it to the public and the proper authorities so that a fair and legal investigation can be conducted. Outside agencies have tried to conduct fact finding investigations in the past but have not revealed the truth. It is clear this cannot be investigated by the Minot Police Department. I would love to reveal my identity but I am afraid of retaliation along with losing my job. Conduct your investigation, interview the above listed as they may have information to any or some of the facts listed above. Release it to the public they have a right to know and contact the BCI or the attorney general as some of these acts are criminal and they would be the best investigate these matters. I would guess the mayor and city council of Minot have no idea what's going on in their largest city department. Once again the docket is a record that is open to the public and could reveal even more people with first hand and direct knowledge of these incidents. Why things were swept under the rug is beyond me. And why Klug was allowed to advance to the level of Chief is unbelievable! Fact check me!!!!!!!Please!!!!

Find the truth and tell 100% the truth. Everyone is accountable for their actions. Elected officials must take action.

Captain Sundbakken,

On 6/30/20 at approximately 2335 hours, I received a phone call from Marcie Lee Pfeifer. Ms. Pfeifer informed me she wished to make a complaint against Lieutenant McLeod. Ms. Pfeifer said she was upset that Lt. McLeod has been promoted because; 25 years ago, he raped her. Ms. Pfeifer said that the incident occurred 25 years ago in Valley City when she was 15 years old and he was 17 years old. Ms. Pfeifer said she has no proof or evidence of the allegation.

Ms. Pfeifer said that Lt. McLeod had a "blatant disregard for her" at the time of the incident. She described they were in a dating relationship at the time of the incident. She said Lt McLeod came over and they started making out. She said he kept trying to "go down town". Ms. Pfeifer said she resisted his advances for approximately ten minutes and then gave in because he was persistent.

Ms. Pfeifer said that the next day she and her friends made Lt McLeod admit to the rape from the previous day. She said she has been scared for 25 years and that he should not have done it. She is now pissed off he is a Lieutenant.

I told Ms. Pfeifer I would pass the complaint on to you and she may receive a phone call. I did not make any promises to her and she said she appreciated my transparency.

Redacted pursuant to N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18.7

Her phone number is [redacted]

I have also attached the notes I made when speaking with Ms. Pfeifer.

Sincerely,

Sgt Tyler Ruelle

Employee: Lt. Matt McLeod

Date of Incident: Summer of 1992

Investigation Performed By:
Captain Jason Sundbakken

Date of Complaint / Investigation:

Synopsis:

Marcie Lee Pfeifer filed a formal personnel complaint against Lt. Matt McLeod in which she alleged that Lt. McLeod raped her when she was 15 years of age. At the time Lt. McLeod was 17 years old and the two were involved in a dating relationship. The incident allegedly took place in Valley City, ND where they both lived at the time.

Report

7-1-20

I was contacted by Chief John Klug regarding a personnel complaint against Lt. Matt McLeod. Chief Klug indicated that he was approached by Lt. McLeod in reference to Facebook messages from an individual named Marcie Pfeifer. According to Lt. McLeod, Ms. Pfeifer had posted messages alleging that he had raped her in Valley City, where they both lived at the time, when he was 17 years old and she was 15. At the time when Lt. McLeod approached Chief Klug there had not yet been a Personnel Complaint filed or requested by Ms. Pfeifer.

On 6-30-20 Sgt. Tyler Ruelle received a call from Ms. Pfeifer about the allegations. Sgt. Ruelle took an personnel complaint from Ms. Pfeifer via the telephone related to the allegations. That report was immediately forwarded to Chief Klug by Sgt. Ruelle. This report was provided to me by Chief Klug on 7-1-20 (Item 2).

After speaking with Chief Klug and receiving the report from Sgt. Ruelle I immediately contacted Lt. McLeod and met with him in my office. I informed Lt. McLeod that he was the subject of an internal investigation. I had him read, initial, sign, and date the Notice of Internal Investigation/Garrity Advisement (Item 1) form and acknowledge that he understood. I briefly advised him of the nature of my investigation and advised him that he was not to speak with anyone regarding the allegations, with the exception of his family and an attorney. I did not obtain a statement from Lt. McLeod at that time but advised him that I would do so after speaking with Ms. Pfeifer regarding the allegations. Lt. McLeod advised me that he would be seeking legal council related to Ms. Pfeifer posting allegations on Social Media. He provided me the two separate social media messages that he had obtained from a Facebook friend related to the allegations (Item 4 and Item 5)

I contacted Marcie Pfeifer via the phone number she provided to Sgt. Ruelle. I informed Ms. Pfeifer that we were investigating the allegations she had made against Lt. McLeod. We arranged to meet on 7-8-20, at the Fargo Police Department, to allow her the opportunity to provide a statement and any relevant information related to the allegations.

7-2-20

I was put in contact with Lt. Dana Rustebakke from the Valley City Police Department. He advised me that Ms. Pfeifer had contacted him regarding Lt. McLeod and two other individuals. He had originally planned to meet her in Fargo, but she opted to come to Valley City today to speak with him and a NDBCI Agent regarding the allegations. Lt. Rustebakke provided me additional social media messages related to the allegations that he had received from one of Ms. Pfeifer's Facebook friends (Item 6).

7-5-20

I was contacted by Lt. Rustebakke from the Valley City Police Department. He advised me that he and Agent Jim Shaw from the NDBCI interviewed Ms. Pfeifer at the end of last week. He indicated that she referred to three individuals who she alleged had raped her during approximately the same period of time. One of the three individuals she referred to was Matt McLeod. The account of the incident, provided by Ms. Pfeifer, occurred in 1992 at her parent's residence and involves Matt McLeod allegedly digitally penetrating her with his fingers. Lt. Rustebakke indicated that Ms. Pfeifer came to the Valley City Police Department to file a complaint against the three male individuals. He will be forwarding the information to his Prosecutor for review. He also indicated that he would send me any reports or applicable information related to his investigation.

Chief Klug spoke with the City Prosecutor as well as the Human Resources Director regarding the allegations. They indicated that from an H.R. perspective there is no legal ability to take any type of action due to McLeod's age at the time and the number of years that have passed since the incident. In addition, the City Attorney indicated that the Statute of Limitations has expired to pursue any criminal charges against McLeod related to the incident. Chief Klug asked that I contact Ms. Pfeifer and advise her that we will not interview her on 7-8-20, as previously arranged, but we will let the Valley City Police Department conduct their investigation. Once they have completed their investigation, they will forward any reports available and we can decide about opening a formal Internal Investigation at that point.

I contacted Ms. Pfeifer and verified that she had filed a report with the Valley City Police Department. I advised her that we would be letting Valley City conduct their investigation so-as-not to interfere or duplicate any of the investigative processes. I also advised Ms. Pfeifer that we would be receiving all the applicable reports. She agreed and understood.

7-12-21

I was contacted by Chief Klug regarding this case. He indicated that Ms. Pfeifer had emailed the City Manager, (2) City Council Members, and himself regarding these allegations. He asked that I contact the Valley City Police Department to learn their status and to possibly expedite anything possible. I contacted Lt. Rustebakke from the VPD. He indicated that Ms. Pfeifer had contacted them as well regarding the allegations. He said that Ms. Pfeifer had sent the emails when Bill Cosby was released from jail on his charges. Lt. Rustebakke said that he will contact his State's Attorney's Office this afternoon and speak with them about his case. He will contact me as soon as he learns any new information. According to Lt. Rustebakke he didn't feel as if there were any possibility of charges being filed on Lt. McLeod due to lack of evidence and/or actual witnesses.

I brought Lt. McLeod to my office and advised him of the contacts that had been made with the City Manager, City Council Members, and Chief Klug. He aware of the email to the Chief, and other Social Media posts that have been made regarding the allegations.

11-15-21

I received an email from Lt. Rustebakke from the Valley City Police Department. He advised me that their State's Attorney had decided to decline prosecution in the case and cited lack of evidence. He forwarded me the email from the State's Attorney's Office stating this as well.

I contacted Lt. McLeod and advised him of the case decision in Valley City. I also forwarded the information to Chief Klug. Chief Klug requested that I do an Open Records Request for the Valley City Investigative file for their case.

11-16-21

I emailed the Valley City Police Department Records Division in reference to an Open Records Request for their case file. The email was sent to: asuhr@valleycity.us. Later that day I received an email back from Andrea Suhr from the Valley City Police Department. She attached a copy of the incident report, the investigative report, the social media posts related to the complaint, and the non-prosecution letters for all three individuals named by Ms. Pfeifer. These documents will be attached to this case file under items 7-11.

SUMMARY

The following points can be drawn from the Criminal Investigation conducted by Valley City Police Department as well as interviews obtained from Lt. McLeod and Ms. Pfeifer:

- The alleged offense occurred at some point during the summer of 1992, which was over 29 years in the past.
- When the alleged incident occurred, Ms. Pfeifer was a juvenile (15) years of age and Lt. McLeod was a juvenile (17) years of age.
- There are no witnesses to either corroborate or dispute Ms. Pfeifer's claims or Lt. McLeod's denial of the claims.
- A criminal investigation into the matter was conducted by another law enforcement agency.
- A criminal complaint was forwarded to the Barnes County State's Attorneys Office for review. After their review their position was that the case lacked evidence and therefore they declined prosecution.

Upon reviewing Minot Police Department Policy, City of Minot Policy, and North Dakota Statute the following determinations can be made:

- If this alleged offense did occur, Lt. McLeod was a juvenile at the time. In addition, there may be issues with the Statute of Limitations related to a potential offense.
- This alleged offense took place years before Lt. McLeod began his career in Law Enforcement or with his employment at the City of Minot Police Department.

- This report was vetted by our department, investigated by a separate agency, and reviewed by a Prosecutor's Office who did not feel the case had enough evidence to prosecute.

CONCLUSION-

There is no identifiable violation of Minot Police Department and/or City of Minot policy. The basis for this is due to the length of time that has passed since the alleged offense, the fact that Lt. McLeod was a minor at the time, the complete lack of evidence or corroboration, that fact that he did not work for our agency at the time of the alleged offense, and also that after a law enforcement investigation a prosecutor's office has declined prosecution. The City of Minot Human Resources Director has also indicated that there is no basis for further investigation or discipline due to these same set of facts.

What I'm about to write is absolutely going to make you uncomfortable. I promise you. I used to be embarrassed about what happened to me but I'm no longer ashamed.

Here's one of the reasons why I hate trump. You've all, I assume, read how he said he would love to grab any good looking woman by the pussy; how they would love it because he's a star (I'm paraphrasing). This is the biggest thing I have an issue with. Keep reading (where you're about to become uncomfortable).

I was a teenager. I loved my boyfriend, Matt McLeod. We went out one night. He came over and he date raped me. Now, it wasn't what you'd think of when you think of rape but he put his hands and fingers where I didn't want them and I said no dozens of times. He didn't relent. I finally just let him cause I didn't know what to do. He's now a detective. He raped me but he's now a member of law enforcement.

A year after maybe I met Todd Pederson. He worked at the bowling alley in town. I had a huge crush on him. He started showing me interest. Long story short, he groomed me. He was in his 20's and I didn't see it as wrong. I saw it as wow, a cute guy loves me. He did things to me that hurt and I hated but I didn't know they were wrong. He was my chaperone on a bowling tournament. You can imagine how that turned out. I was 16.

Kathy, thanks ma'am! I just know that my family worries about me when I spew this shit cause they think I'm sitting home and drinking and getting all mad.

Yes. I'm mad but it's not alcohol fueled. It's oh my god can we not have a piece of shit in charge fueled.

I shouldn't be embarrassed. I am sometimes. I'm more mad cause the day after Matt McLeod raped me, me and two of my friends picked him up and made him admit he raped me. Those two friends don't remember this and also wouldn't delete him as a friend 20 years later when I asked. I would love to call the police station in Minot and report him but I have no proof. He's a fucking detective now. I don't think it takes a genius to figure out how he would respond to a date rape.

Dawn, I don't know how to answer that. Yes. I'm okay but no I'm not in terms of it took me 25 goddamn years to even think I was okay to report it. But now? I'll go down fighting if that's what it takes. Erin Tombarge and Stephanie Berg picked him up, with me, the next day and made him admit what he did was rape. Those two conveniently don't remember any Marcie Pfeifer I'm sorry. That is terrible and is unfortunately what usually happens. It becomes the woman's word against the man, I'm so sorry your acquaintances are so spineless. I'm sure they're afraid since he's in a position of power, but thank God you reported him because who knows what else he has done and may still do in the future. I would be perfect if he was punished somehow for his actions, but even if he isn't, you let the right people know he is dangerous to women. Who knows all the women you just helped.

Here's the thing. We are silenced. We are hushed. We are told not to be dramatic. I'm done being nice. I'm done. Matt raped me. Guess what? I'm coming after Todd Pedersen and Shane Beauregard next. I'm done caring if you think I'm stirring the pot. My insides were stirred with with a penis or fingers...isn't that enough? Nah. Fuck the rapists. We have been way too quiet. We are coming for you.

I know some of you are probably thinking oh man, she's gone off the rails and maybe I have. It's just infuriating to know that women aren't believed or if they are, questions like well, what was she wearing, was she drinking, etc come into play. That's is not okay. And the more I think about it, the angrier I am. I will go down swinging if need be, in terms of Matt. He raped me in my downstairs living room on a bench while my parents were upstairs. He's had zero complications from it where as that messed me up. I let him do it instead of fighting because I didn't know what to do. Nah. Maybe I'm off the rails but like I said, I'm going down swinging. I'm tired of women getting the shaft and it's about time I helped instead of doing nothing.

Desiree, yes. This is why I spoke up FINALLY and reported it. I'm aware nothing will happen but at least his precinct will know he's been accused of rape. He's a person of power, being a lieutenant. Maybe he's never done anything wrong since me. Maybe. But. He's got power and he raped a teenage girl. That's why I'm speaking up. I've wanted to for years but was afraid of the repercussions but now? Bring it. I'll rake my own life and bad decisions over the coals. I've decided to be that loud thorn in the side of any man who has been a wretch. I'm over worrying about people think.

Change of plans. I'm going to valley city today to give my statement about Todd. I can't wait for both until next week. I'm too much of a wreck. And now I sit with the knowledge that I'm going to have to relive every detail of his grooming me and knowing I don't remember a ton. Having to tell a man, in explicit detail, what he did to me and my body is beyond terrifying but I'm going to do it. It's time. I'll be alone as I don't know who to ask to come with me but I'll be okay I think.

I know I've asked this before but let me try again. Does anyone have contact information for Todd Pederson? He lived in valley, sexually groomed me, and worked at Sky Lanes. If I reported Matt, I may as well do what I can with him. I've tried finding him over the years and haven't been successful. I know he worked at a bowling alley in fargo because I ran into him once. I guarantee he's ruined many girls' lives, as he did mine, and I'm tired of not being a huge thorn in their side. Can anyone help me locate him? He was maybe 21 when I was 16 back in 1993 or so.

Also. I just want you to know that if you come forward and say someone raped you and want your friends to delete them as a friend, I will delete delete delete their ass. I've lost quite a few "friends" by asking them to delete the piece of shit now lieutenant rapist and I won't do that to you. It felt horrible when my friends were like um let me talk to him first, I'm sure there was a misunderstanding or it's just Facebook, I won't delete him. Just thinking about it makes my stomach turn. Yes. Matt McLeod raped me. He's now a lieutenant in the Minot police force. He and I were dating when I was 15. He kept trying to go down my pants (at my parents' house, downstairs) and after about 20 times of saying no, I let him. It did not feel good. It hurt. He continued. That's my introduction to sex. Being forcibly fingered by someone I thought cared about me.

You think I'm crazy for posting this super uncomfortable shit? I'm every woman. We all have a story to tell. This is just one of them.

He is coming Wednesday at 2pm. I don't know that I'm strong enough to make the statement but I'm going to try.
Here's the rough draft. Matt and I had gone out (maybe a movie?) and he came over. We made out (living room at my parents" house). He kept trying to go down my pants (I think we were on our church bench by the front door) and I kept moving his hand away cause I didn't want it. He persisted. I kept moving his hand (I don't think I actually said the word no, I just kept moving his hand). I finally let him. It hurt.
My two friends and I picked him up the next day and he admitted he raped me. My "friends" however have no memory of this but we drove around and made him apologize, admit he raped me, and promised never to do it again.
He's now a lieutenant and that horrifies me. How many domestic or sexual assault cases has he responded to where he's like, meh, it's not that bad.
I've never felt brave enough before to report him but I am now. I'm finally able to say burn the place down cause he raped me and has faced zero repercussions because of it. He hurt me and affected my upbringing. I was a teenage girl when he did it.
So. Here's me taking back my life. Here's to me saying fuck you to the rapists and abusers. Here's to me not being silent anymore.

Okay. I feel like a buttface doing this but I am going to start intensive outpatient treatment for PTSD and alcohol abuse disorder on Monday. The treatment to address 35+ year old trauma is going to cost me $8000. At least. I have insurance but the deductible and out of pocket is almost $9000 and then I'm still responsible for more. I've treated my ptsd with alcohol for decades. I've tried to do one or the other, treatment wise, and it doesn't work (shocking). I'm going to do this regardless because I don't want to die (the suicidal thoughts have been fucked since the whole kavanaugh bullshit started; probably a fourth of my trauma is sexual abuse, going back to when I was FIVE. I had repressed a lot of it and seeing how people responded made them come flooding back.) I want to live. And I need your help. This is mortifying to put out there but it is what it is. Thank you in advance.

Back story. In addition to the horrible sexual abuse, my first real boyfriend died when I was 17. My Mom died when I was 18. More sexual abuse. I broke my neck in a car wreck when I was 19. My dad is amazing now but he kicked me out after my surgery because he met a woman who hated me. I moved out of town and there was a horrible flood; I lost half my belongings to looters. I met a guy who was "great," and he ended up being an abusive monster. I'm not even 21 at this

Okay. Tomorrow is the day. First, thank you everyone who has donated. My heart sometimes can't process the love and gener osity, especially since I feel like such a damn failure. I appreciat e everything! Every cent, every kind wish and every share.
I found out it's not intensive outpatient; it's partial hospitalizat ion so a bit more intense than IOP. Which, honestly, I think is b etter. The more I think about the trauma, the more that keeps getting added. Most people knew I had a bad stalker (one who tried to run me off a highway) but I had one when I was 17 who tried breaking into where I worked and then months later, bro ke into my apartment (I only left for about 15 minutes so he wa s watching me). Nothing police could do. I had another one wh en I was 21. I moved away and changed my number. He found i t and left messages all the time about wanting to slit my throat, that he knew where I lived, and even called on Halloween (my mom's death anniversary) to tell me he was going to dig up my mom and fist her wormy ass, and then bury my dead, raped bo dy next to her. Police could do nothing. He also stole my car, w hich unthefuckfortunately, had my mom's wedding dress in the trunk. I never got it back. This is some of the stuff I have been s tuffing down with beer. How does one process shit like that? R epeated shit?

Anyway, that's just another moment in the traumatic life of Ma rcie, for which I am truly trying to escape. So. Thank you. From the bottom of my still beating heart! Please feel free to contin ue sharing and if you can, donating! Well. Don't donate twice. That would be silly; you know what I mean!

- OCTOBER 19, 2018 by Marcie Pfeifer, Organizer

I'm going to find a responsible adult to link their bank account the th e funds. If a worst case scenario happens, and I don't get sober, I do n't want to use any money towards beer because if I did that, I would 100% die by suicide out of shame. I can only image the hesitancy so me of you may have, wondering if I will use it for beer. And the answ er is a hard no. I will make it so I can't because, like I said, I want so ve ry much to live. I just can't take the flashbacks and nightmares and c onstantly being on edge, the anxiety and depression that comes fro m ptsd and that's the only thing (drinking) that has, in its own way, h elped. I hope treatment will help me conquer (fuck even manage) bot h.

VALLEY CITY POLICE DEPARTMENT

DATE: July 1, 2020
CASE #: VC-20-00366
OFFICER: Lt. Dana Rustebakke
SUSPECT: Todd Pederson VICTIM: Marcie Lee Pfeifer
INCIDENT: Sexual Assault

NARRATIVE

1. On July 1, 2020 I Lt. Dana Rustebakke was advised Marcie Pfeifer had called the Valley City Police Department to report a sexual assault which occurred approximately 25 years ago. Marcie Pfeifer's contact information was provided to me.

2. At approximately 15:47 hours I contacted Marcie Pfeifer by telephone. I identified myself to Marcie Pfeifer and asked what I could do for her. Marcie Pfeifer stated she was the victim of sexual grooming and rape approximately 25 years ago. Marcie Pfeifer stated she has been searching for the person who raped her and stated she discovered it is Todd Pederson and he possibly lives in Fargo, ND at this time. Marcie Pfeifer commented she finally gained the courage to report the incident. While speaking with her, she was emotional and at times it was difficult for her to talk.

3. I asked Marcie Pfeifer where the incident happened and she stated it was at his house in Valley City. Marcie Pfeifer also commented about an incident where she was away for a bowling trip where Todd Pederson was the chaperon. She stated Todd Pederson gave alcoholic beverages to the other girls on her team so they would go away. I asked Marcie Pfeifer approximately how old was she when the incidents occurred and she replied 16. I asked if she has ever reported the incidents to law enforcement in the past and she replied no.

4. I explained to Marcie Pfeifer I would like to meet with her to interview her. We agreed to meet on 7/6/2020 in Fargo, ND. This case remains open at this time.

1. On July 2, 2020 I Lt. Dana Rustebakke received a phone call from Marcie Pfeifer at the Valley City Police Department. Marcie Pfeifer and I were going to meet in Fargo, ND on 7/6/2020 but she stated she no longer wants to wait that long.

Marcie Pfeifer stated she was going to travel to Valley City, ND to meet with me. It was agreed we would meet at the Valley City Police Department at approximately 14:00 hours. I contacted S/A James Shaw of the North Dakota Bureau of Criminal Investigation and asked if he would assist with the investigation.

2. S/A Shaw and I met with Marcie Pfeifer in the interview room of the Valley City Police Department. Marcie Pfeifer was sitting with Kasey Skalicky who is an advocate with the Abused Person Outreach Center (APOC). I introduced S/A Shaw and myself to Marcie Pfeifer.

3. The interview began by Marci Pfeifer explaining how she has been trying to track down Todd Pederson for years. She stated he use to work at Sky Lanes in Valley City when she was teenager. Marci Pfeifer stated she believes Todd Pederson as possibly sexually groomed other girls. She also stated it has taken her 25 years to come forward.

4. Marci Pfeifer was asked to explain what happened with Todd Pederson. She stated he worked at Sky Lanes and she was in a bowling league. Todd Pederson was 21 years old at the time, and Marcie Pfeifer was 16 years old. Marcie Pfeifer stated he would give her alcohol. She explained an incident where he pulled her into a back room and kissed her. Marcie Pfeifer stated Todd Pederson also worked at the Valley City Country Club, and was in the pro shop. When he would work there, Marcie Pfeifer would go visit him there.

5. Marcie Pfeifer stated Todd Pederson lived with his parents in Valley City. Marcie Pfeifer explained and incident where she went to his house to hang out. While there, Marcie Pfeifer's father called and found out she was at the residence. Marcie Pfeifer was asked what happened at the residence. She stated they were making out, and at one point she was nude. Marcie Pfeifer stated Todd Pederson wanted to show her how to have sex, and told her she would grow into it. Marcie Pfeifer stated, "It hurt."

6. Marcie Pfeifer also explained how Todd Pederson volunteered to chaperon a bowling trip. Marcie Pfeifer did not remember what town they were at, but stated they stayed at a hotel. Marcie Pfeifer stated Erin Tombarge, and Gina Malone were also on the bowling trip as they were on the same team. Marcie Pfeifer explained Todd Pederson provided the other girls alcoholic beverages, and she stayed in his room for the night.

7. Marcie Pfeifer started a relationship with a Carleton Hough after the incident during the bowling trip. Due to this relationship, she had limited contact with Todd Pederson. She stated Todd Pederson would continue to provide alcohol for her. She also commented on how older men like her. Marcie Pfeifer explained she last saw Todd Pederson working at the bowling alley in the late 1990's. Marcie Pfeifer stated a friend of hers provided a picture of Todd Pederson to help track him down. I asked if she has ever reported this in the past and she replied no. Marcie Pfeifer stated she has been in counseling in the past, and also has been in some legal trouble. Marcie Pfeifer was asked if she disclosed the incident while in counseling, and she replied yes. She also stated she reported sexual harassment when she was in school.

8. Marcie Pfeifer was asked if she remembers when the incidents occurred, and she believes it was during the spring and winter of 1993. Marcie Pfeifer explained the first incident happened at the bowling alley, and the second incident happened at the hotel. She stated she does not remember what town they were in, or what hotel they stayed at.

9. Marcie Pfeifer was asked to explain the first incident further. She described Todd Pederson as a nice-looking guy. She stated she loved the attention he gave her. Marcie Pfeifer stated Todd Pederson asked her to come in the back room of the bowling alley. Once there, he grabbed her, and they started kissing. Marcie Pfeifer explained Todd Pederson put his arms around her, and described it as embracing. Marcie Pfeifer stated she loved the kiss, and thought Todd Pederson was her boyfriend. Marcie Pfeifer was asked to describe the room they were in. She stated it was a small room, had an ice chest, and was poorly lit. Marcie Pfeifer stated she believes she told Erin Tombarge, Jenner Bushman, and Linda Tran (Knutson).

10. Marcie Pfeifer talked about an incident when she reached out to Erin Tombarge. Marcie Pfeifer stated Erin Tombarge had picked someone up, and made him admit he sexually assaulted Marcie Pfeifer. Marcie Pfeifer commented this person is now a Lieutenant with the Minot Police Department.

11. Marcie Pfeifer then talked about Todd Pederson when he worked at the Valley City Country Club. Marcie Pfeifer stated she would talk with him on the phone every night. Marcie Pfeifer stated she felt everything was mutual between them, and commented she was in love with him. Marcie Pfeifer stated she would sneak over to his residence, but thinks her parent knew what she was doing.

12. Marcie Pfeifer was asked to explain going over to Todd Pederson's residence. She stated she lived on Chautauqua Boulevard in Valley City. Marcie Pfeifer explained she would lie to her parents about where she was going, but would go to Todd Pederson's residence who lived in the North West part of Valley City. Marcie Pfeifer state Todd Pederson lives in the basement of his parents residence. She thought there may have been a separate door to get to the basement, but could not remember for sure. Marcie Pfeifer was asked what happened when she was there, and she replied sexual stuff. Marcie Pfeifer explained she was at his residence on at least 2 occasions. She thought she would park around the corner when she was at his house.

13. Marcie Pfeifer was asked what she meant by sexual stuff happened. She explained she would be naked on the bed. She stated the bed was in the middle of what she thought was a living room area in the basement. Marcie Pfeifer stated Todd Pederson would undress her. Marcie Pfeifer commented Todd Pederson would go down on her, and finger her. Marcie Pfeifer stated, "He would rub my clit." She was told by Todd Pederson he was teaching her how to like it with older men.

14. Marcie Pfeifer was asked how it ended, and she stated she did not remember. Marcie Pfeifer stated she would get dressed and go home. Marcie Pfeifer was asked if Todd Pederson was clothed during the incident, and she stated he was nude. Marcie Pfeifer was asked if they ever had sexual intercourse, and she replied no. Marcie Pfeifer was asked if Todd Pederson ever ejaculated, and she explained she does not remember if he finished himself off, or if she did. Marcie Pfeifer was asked if Todd Pederson had any distinguishing marks on his body, and she stated she does not remember. Marcie Pfeifer was asked if Todd Pederson's penis was circumcised, and she again stated she does not remember. Marcie Pfeifer was asked how long the relationship lasted, and she thought it was approximately 6 months. Marcie Pfeifer commented she thinks Todd Pederson may have started to date someone else.

15. Marcie Pfeifer stated she did keep a journal during the time. In the journal she documented the relationship with Todd Pederson. Marcie Pfeifer stated a later boyfriend in her life found the journal, and made her throw it away. Marcie Pfeifer commented again, Erin Tombarge knows about the relationship. Marcie Pfeifer stated she never confided with any adults about what happened. She did tell a boyfriend she had, and he was upset and commented on how he wanted to kill Todd Pederson. Marcie Pfeifer was asked where that boyfriend is today, and she stated he is deceased.

16. Marcie Pfeifer explained after her relationship with Todd Pederson, her mother was dying at the time. She stated her family later found about her relationship with Todd Pederson. Marcie Pfeifer stated her brother, James Pfeifer knows about the incident. Marcie Pfeifer was asked what kind of outcome she was looking for, and she replied she did not know.

17. Marcie Pfeifer explained the research she has done on Todd Pederson. She knows he is married and living in Fargo, ND. Marcie Pfeifer has reached out to Facebook friends looking for information. She commented a Roxanne Drake knows what happened also, but she died in 2013. Marcie Pfeifer stated a friend of hers provided her a picture of Todd Pederson, and she identified him through the picture. Marcie Pfeifer was asked who provided the picture, and she said her friend does not want to help, therefore she was not going to provide a name. Marcie Pfeifer explained she has been sharing information on Facebook to her friend.

18. Marcie Pfeifer was asked about the person living in Minot, ND for which she had mentioned. Marcie Pfeifer stated his name is Matt McLeod, and he is a lieutenant with the Minot Police Department. Marcie Pfeifer commented she was raped by him when she was 15 years old. She stated she has reached out to Minot Police Department about the allegation. Marcie Pfeifer stated she spoke with a Captain there but could not recall the name. Marcie Pfeifer also mentioned there is a third suspect named, Shane Beaurerard. She stated there was an incident with him when she was 18 years of age.

19. Marcie Pfeifer was asked to describe what happened with Matt McLeod. She stated she was date raped by him.

Marcie Pfeifer stated the incident occurred during the fall of 1992, and Matt McLeod admitted it to her. She explained the incident happened at her house, and they were in the living room area. They were sitting on a piece of furniture she described as a church bench. Marcie Pfeifer explained they were making out, and he kept trying to finger her. At one point, she stated she finally let him.

20. Marcie Pfeifer was asked if anybody knows of the incident. She replied Stephanie Berg and Erin Tombarge know of the incident. Marcie Pfeifer was asked if she ever reported the incident. She stated reported it on June 30, 2020 and she reported it to Minot Police Department. Marcie Pfeifer was asked how the incident ended, and she said he just stopped and left. Marcie Pfeifer commented she is pissed off because he is a lieutenant now with the Minot Police Department. Marcie Pfeifer was asked how old he would have been at the time of the incident and she replied, “Seventeen.”

21. Marcie Pfeifer explained the next day after the incident, Stephanie, Erin Tombarge, and her picked up Matt McLeod. They drove around Valley City and admitted to them he sexually assaulted Marcie Pfeifer. She reached out to Stephanie and Erin Tombarge recently, and they told her they do not remember the incident.

22. Marcie Pfeifer stated she was dating Matt McLeod for approximately 3 months. She believes she was in the 8th grade when they first started dating. Marcie Pfeifer stated her family found out about the incident later in life. She commented Matt McLeod and James Pfeifer were not friends back then.

23. Marcie Pfeifer began to talk about the third suspect, Shane Beaurerard. Marcie Pfeifer spelled out his last name but was not sure if it is the correct spelling. Marcie Pfeifer was asked what happened and she stated it was a date rape. She explained the incident occurred fall to winter of 1996. She explained they went out drinking, and they wanted to have sex. Marcie Pfeifer stated Shane Beaurerard did not have a condom. It was at this time she stated she did not want to have sex with him due to not having a condom.

24. Marcie Pfeifer was asked where the incident happened. She stated it was at his residence. She stated she cannot remember where exactly, but it was in the north part of Valley City. Marcie Pfeifer did comment that during this time in life, she was promiscuous. Marcie Pfeifer stated she found out the contracted HPV, and believes Shane Beaurerard gave it to her. Marcie Pfeifer was asked about how much they had to drink the night of the incident. She described herself as being impaired, and he was drunk at the time. Marcie Pfeifer was asked what kind of sexual contact they had. She described vaginal sexual intercourse, and anal sex.

25. Marcie Pfeifer stated she went to the Doctors office in Jamestown, ND. She described having genital warts, and was ripping the warts off her body. Marcie Pfeifer explained she did have to have surgery due to complications. Marcie Pfeifer was asked when she had surgery, and she replied it was the winter of 1996. Marcie Pfeifer stated she had the surgery in Fargo, ND.

26. Marcie Pfeifer commented she does not want anything to happen to Shane Beaurerard due to him going through a traumatic incident approximately 6 months after the incident with Marcie Pfeifer. She stated the traumatic incident was his roommate committed suicide inside their residence. Marcie Pfeifer also commented she thinks the incident was her fault. Marcie Pfeifer stated she is not sure at this time if Shane Beaurerard gave her the sexually transmitted infection or not. She stated she was drinking heavily at that point in her life. Marcie Pfeifer explained the last time she spoke with Shane Beaurerard was approximately 1 year ago, and does not know where he is at this time.

27. The interview ended and Marcie Pfeifer was given a Marsy’s Card. She stated she wanted to invoke her rights at this time. This case remains under investigation.

1. On August 5, 2021 I Lt. Dana Rustebakke received a phone call from a male who identified himself as Todd Pederson. I had called Todd Pederson prior and left a voicemail asking him to contact me. I identified myself to Todd Pederson and explained to him I was conducting an investigation where his name was mentioned. I asked him if I could ask him some questions and he said yes. I explained to Todd Pederson he did not have to speak to me and could end the interview at anytime by hanging up the phone.

2. I explained to Todd Pederson I was investigating a case in regards to Marcie Pfeifer. I asked if he knew her, and he replied he knew her when he lived in Valley City, ND. I asked when was the last time he had contact with her, and he stated he does not remember exactly when, but estimated it was approximately 30 years ago. Todd Pederson commented he thought the last time he heard from her was approximately between 1989 to 1991. I asked Todd Pederson how he knows Marcie Pfeifer, he explained he worked at the bowling alley in Valley City, and Marcie Pfeifer was in a bowling league. I asked him to describe their relationship, he stated they were not really friends, but more of an acquaintance. I asked if he ever met up with her or go on a date, and he stated they never met up or go anywhere with each other. I asked when was the last time he talked to her, and he thought it was approximately 30 years ago.

3. I asked Todd Pederson to describe Marcie Pfeifer, and he stated she was outgoing and flirtacious. I asked if he flirted back, and he replied he probable did. I asked if they ever went on a date, and Todd Pederson stated they never went on a date, and he did not want to date her. I asked Todd Pederson if there was ever a bowling trip, and he stated he did take a girls team on a bowling trip. Todd Pederson explained he was not sure what city they went to but believes it was Crookston, MN. I explained to Todd Pederson it was disclosed to me that he purchased alcoholic beverages for the girls and spent alone time with Marcie Pfeifer. Todd Pederson stated this did not happen. I asked if he ever purchased alcoholic beverages for Marcie Pfeiffer, and he explained there was one incident where she approached him and asked him to purchase alcoholic beverages for her and her boyfriend. I asked if he purchased an alcoholic beverages for them, and he replied, "I think I did."

4. I asked Todd Pederson if he ever had any sexual contact with Marcie Pfeifer, and he replied he kissed her once. I asked if there was any sexual contact, and he replied no. I asked if they ever had sexual intercourse, and he replied no. I told Todd Pederson I received a report from Marcie Pfeifer in which she disclosed he sexually assaulted her, and groomed her. I asked Todd Pederson how he felt hearing this, and he replied he is shocked as he would never do that. Todd Pederson commented he has not heard her name in a long time. I asked if any of his friends were around when he was by Marcie Pfeifer, and he replied no. I asked if he remembers who was on the girls bowling team and he recalled two names. He could only remember Erin, and Laura. Todd Pederson thought Laura's last name may have been Stringer.

5. I asked Todd Pederson about the bowling trip and where did they go. He explained they went to Crookston, MN, bowled there, and the next day were in Grand Forks to bowl. I asked if he remembers when the bowling trip was, and he explained it was late winter into early spring but was not sure. He commented it was possibly on a weekend too. I asked if he remembers what hotel they stayed at and he could not remember. I asked what the sleeping arrangements were, and he stated the girls shared a room, and he had a room to himself. I asked if any of the girls came into his room, and he stated it was possible. I asked if he was ever in the room alone with Marcie Pfeifer, and Todd Pederson stated he might have but cannot be certain.

6. I asked Todd Pederson if anything sexual ever happened between him and Marcie Pfeifer, and he stated he might have kissed her. I asked Todd Pederson if the kiss was mutual, and he stated he does not remember her pulling away. I asked if it was a quick kiss or a passionate kiss, and Todd Pederson described it as in between. Todd Pederson commented he probably knew he should not being kissing her.

7. I asked Todd Pederson why Marcie Pfeifer would be making allegations against him, and he replied he did not know. Todd Pederson explained he moved away from Valley City, ND in 1996, and got married. I asked where did he live before moving away, and he replied he was living with his parents. Todd Pederson stated at one point he lived in an apartment near the Valley City State University Football field, and then an apartment near Pioneer Park in Valley City. I asked where his parents house was located, and Todd Pederson stated they still live in the same house located at [redacted]. I asked Todd Pederson where Marcie Pfeifer lived, and he stated he was not sure but thought she may have lived near Mercy Hospital. I asked Todd Pederson to describe his parents house. He stated the attic is unfinished, on the main floor is 2 bedrooms, and the basement is finished with a bedroom. I asked where his bedroom was located, and he stated it was in the basement. I asked if Marcie Pfeifer ever came to his residence, and he stated he did not think so an does not remember her coming over to his place.

Redacted pursuant to N.D.C.C § 40-04-18.7(6)

8. I explained to Todd Pederson that Marcie Pfeifer disclosed she had been at his house. I asked why she would have been at his place, and he stated he did not know why she would have been at his house. Todd Pederson commented he thought Marcie Pfeifer kind of liked him. I asked Todd Pederson if he asked Marcie Pfeifer to come to his house, and he replied he did not think so. I asked Todd Pederson again if anything sexual happened between the two of them. Todd Pederson described himself as promiscuous with females back then. Todd Pederson stated he did kiss Marcie Pfeifer, but cannot remember if anything else happened. I asked if he remembers who he had sex with when he was younger, and he replied he could not remember. This interview concluded at approximately 11:26 hours. I asked Todd Pederson if he remembers anything else, to give me a call or stop by the Valley City Police Department.

9. At approximately 11:42 hours, Todd Pederson called me at the Valley City Police Department. Todd Pederson stated he remembers more about Marcie Pfeifer. I did not conduct an interview at this time as the phone connection was poor and I was unable to hear Todd Pederson at times. I told Todd Pederson I would call him back at a later time.

10. At approximately 12:48 hours I called Todd Pederson. I explained to Todd Pederson during the last phone call I thought he stated he could remember some more information. Todd Pederson stated he does remember more, and stated he thinks there was sexual contact between him and Marcie Pfeifer. He explained when they were at the hotel in Crookston, MN, they were in his room alone. Todd Pederson explained they kissed some and he fondled Marcie Pfeifer's breasts. I asked Todd Pederson if they were in a dating relationship, and he stated they did not date. Todd Pederson commented he never considered them as a dating relationship. Todd Pederson explained most of the flirting between them happened at the bowling alley. Todd Pederson stated he never asked Marcie Pfeifer on a date. I asked Todd Pederson if he ever used force or threats towards Marcie Pfeifer, and he replied no. I asked if Marcie Pfeifer ever threatened him or used for on him, and he replied no.

11. I asked Todd Pederson approximately how long he communicated with Marcie Pfeifer. He explained he thought they would flirt with each other for approximately 3-5 months in length. I asked if he remembers what year it was, and he thought it was 1990 or 1991. I asked Todd Pederson how the relationship ended, and he stated they stopped being acquaintances, and went separate ways. Todd Pederson disclosed while he lived in Valley City, Marcie Pfeifer did come to his parents house. I asked what happened, and he replied they became intimate. I asked if they had sexual intercourse, and he replied yes. I asked if it was consensual, and he replied yes. Todd Pederson explained they had sexual intercourse for a short period of time until Marcie Pfeifer told him to stop. Todd Pederson stated at that time he did stop.

12. I asked Todd Pederson what happened before they had sex, and he stated they were talking. I asked how the sexual intercourse started, and he stated he could not remember. I asked Todd Pederson if he took his clothing off, or Marcie Pfeifer did. Todd Pederson explained he could not remember how either of their clothing came off. Todd Pederson stated after they had sex, Marcie Pfeifer seemed upset, but he did not know why. He stated he tried asking her what was wrong but did not get an answer. I asked if he told any of his friends about the incident with Marcie Pfeifer, and he replied no. I asked Todd Pederson if he knew Marcie Pfeifer prior to them flirting with each other at the bowling alley, and he replied no.

13. Todd Pederson commented to me about our first phone call on this day. Todd Pederson stated when I mentioned he was being accused of grooming, he stated he did not know what that was. Between phone calls, Todd Pederson explained he searched the definition of grooming, and stated that is not what their relationship was. Todd Pederson commented he probably should not have had a relationship with Marcie Pfeifer. I asked why, and he explained he was approximately 21 years of age at the time and she was most likely under 18 years of age due to being in high school. I explained to Todd Pederson I would update my report, and if he has any questions or remembers anything else to contact me. This case remains open at this time.

A captain called me today from Minot police. He is coming here (a 4-5 hour drive) to take my statement. He said he didn't think this should be over the phone when it's something of this caliber.

I know I've asked this before but let me try again. Does anyone have contact information for Todd Pederson? He lived in valley, sexually groomed me, and worked at Sky Lanes. If I reported Matt, I may as well do what I can with him. I've tried finding him over the years and haven't been successful. I know he worked at a bowling alley in fargo because I ran into him once. I guarantee he's ruined many girls' lives, as he did mine, and I'm tired of not being a huge thorn in their side. Can anyone help me locate him? He was maybe 21 when I was 16 back in 1993 or so.

Change of plans. I'm going to valley city today to give my statement about Todd. I can't wait for both until next week. I'm too much of a wreck. And now I sit with the knowledge that I'm going to have to relive every detail of his grooming me and knowing I don't remember a ton. Having to tell a man, in explicit detail, what he did to me and my body is beyond terrifying but I'm going to do it. It's time. I'll be alone as I don't know who to ask to come with me but I'll be okay I think.

I know I shouldn't be surprised but addressing two rapists has me a wreck. I've been sobbing on and off all day. This is almost too much for me.

Also. I just want you to know that if you come forward and say someone raped you and want your friends to delete them as a friend, I will delete delete delete their ass. I've lost quite a few "friends" by asking them to delete the piece of shit now lieutenant rapist and I won't do that to you. It felt horrible when my friends were like um let me talk to him first, I'm sure there was a misunderstanding or it's just Facebook, I won't delete him. Just thinking about it makes my stomach turn. Yes. Matt McLeod raped me. He's now a lieutenant in the Minot police force. He and I were dating when I was 15. He kept trying to go down my pants (at my parents' house, downstairs) and after about 20 times of saying no, I let him. It did not feel good. It hurt. He continued. That's my introduction to sex. Being forcibly fingered by someone I thought cared about me.

You think I'm crazy for posting this super uncomfortable shit? I'm every woman. We all have a story to tell. This is just one of them.

Y'all. I'm doing it. This is one of the most terrifying things ever but I'm not backing down.
He is coming Wednesday at 2pm. I don't know that I'm strong enough to make the statement but I'm going to try.
Here's the rough draft. Matt and I had gone out (maybe a movie?) and he came over. We made out (living room at my parents" house). He kept trying to go down my pants (I think we were on our church bench by the front door) and I kept moving his hand away cause I didn't want it. He persisted. I kept moving his hand (I don't think I actually said the word no, I just kept moving his hand). I finally let him. It hurt.
My two friends and I picked him up the next day and he admitted he raped me. My "friends" however have no memory of this but we drove around and made him apologize, admit he raped me, and promised never to do it again.
He's now a lieutenant and that horrifies me. How many domestic or sexual assault cases has he responded to where he's like, meh, it's not that bad.
I've never felt brave enough before to report him but I am now. I'm finally able to say burn the place down cause he raped me and has faced zero repercussions because of it. He hurt me and affected my upbringing. I was a teenage girl when he did it.
So. Here's me taking back my life. Here's to me saying fuck you to the rapists and abusers. Here's to me not being silent anymore.

Marcie Pfeifer Here's the thing. We are silenced. We are hushed. We are told not to be dramatic. I'm done being nice. I'm done. Matt raped me. Guess what? I'm coming after Todd Pedersen and Shane Beauregard next. I'm done caring if you think I'm stirring the pot. My insides were stirred with with a penis or fingers...isn't that enough? Nah. Fuck the rapists. We have been way too quiet. We are coming for you.

Okay. I feel like a buttface doing this but I am going to start intensive outpatient treatment for PTSD and alcohol abuse disorder on Monday. The treatment to address 35+ year old trauma is going to cost me $8000. At least. I have insurance but the deductible and out of pocket is almost $9000 and then I'm still responsible for more. I've treated my ptsd with alcohol for decades. I've tried to do one or the other, treatment wise, and it doesn't work (shocking). I'm going to do this regardless because I don't want to die (the suicidal thoughts have been fucked since the whole kavanaugh bullshit started; probably a fourth of my trauma is sexual abuse, going back to when I was FIVE. I had repressed a lot of it and seeing how people responded made them come flooding back.) I want to live. And I need your help. This is mortifying to put out there but it is what it is. Thank you in advance.

Back story. In addition to the horrible sexual abuse, my first real boyfriend died when I was 17. My Mom died when I was 18. More sexual abuse. I broke my neck in a car wreck when I was 19. My dad is amazing now but he kicked me out after my surgery because he met a woman who hated me. I moved out of town and there was a horrible flood; I lost half my belongings to looters. I met a guy who was "great," and he ended up being an abusive monster. I'm not even 21 at this

Okay. Tomorrow is the day. First, thank you everyone who has donated. My heart sometimes can't process the love and gener osity, especially since I feel like such a damn failure. I appreciat e everything! Every cent, every kind wish and every share.
I found out it's not intensive outpatient; it's partial hospitalizat

ion so a bit more intense than IOP. Which, honestly, I think is b etter. The more I think about the trauma, the more that keeps getting added. Most people knew I had a bad stalker (one who tried to run me off a highway) but I had one when I was 17 who tried breaking into where I worked and then months later, bro ke into my apartment (I only left for about 15 minutes so he wa s watching me). Nothing police could do. I had another one wh en I was 21. I moved away and changed my number. He found i t and left messages all the time about wanting to slit my throat, that he knew where I lived, and even called on Halloween (my mom's death anniversary) to tell me he was going to dig up my mom and fist her wormy ass, and then bury my dead, raped bo dy next to her. Police could do nothing. He also stole my car, w hich unthefuckfortunately, had my mom's wedding dress in the trunk. I never got it back. This is some of the stuff I have been s tuffing down with beer. How does one process shit like that? R epeated shit?

Anyway, that's just another moment in the traumatic life of Ma rcie, for which I am truly trying to escape. So. Thank you. From the bottom of my still beating heart! Please feel free to contin ue sharing and if you can, donating! Well. Don't donate twice. That would be silly; you know what I mean!

I'm going to find a responsible adult to link their bank account the th e funds. If a worst case scenario happens, and I don't get sober, I do n't want to use any money towards beer because if I did that, I would 100% die by suicide out of shame. I can only image the hesitancy so me of you may have, wondering if I will use it for beer. And the answ er is a hard no. I will make it so I can't because, like I said, I want so ve ry much to live. I just can't take the flashbacks and nightmares and c onstantly being on edge, the anxiety and depression that comes fro m ptsd and that's the only thing (drinking) that has, in its own way, h elped. I hope treatment will help me conquer (fuck even manage) bot h.

To: Lt. Matthew McLeod

Re: Internal Investigation # 24-2

On about January 26, 2024, Lt. Matt McLeod informed Chief Klug that he was notified of a criminal complaint filed against him in Idaho and Montana. I was later contacted by S/A Pat Lenertz from ND BCI, who informed me that they were asked to assist with interviewing Matt McLeod for two other jurisdictions.

After considering the allegations, I decided to place Lt. McLeod on administrative leave pending the outcome of the investigation. I met with Lt. McLeod on January 29th, 2024 in my office and explained my position on this investigation and placed him on paid administrative leave.

On April 23, 2024, I was contacted by Detective Sergeant Anthony Jurenic from the Butte/Silverbow Police Department in Montana. Sgt. Jurenic informed me he had been in contact with the prosecutor and they were denying prosecution.

On June 26, 2024, I was contacted by Detective Shannon Garza from the Ada County Sheriff's Department in Idaho. Detective Garza informed me that their prosecutor's office also denied prosecution.

On June 27, 2024, I received the full investigative report from Ada County Sheriff's Department, which included a confidentiality clause, prohibiting the release of the records they provided. I reviewed all files and requested additional records from ND BCI. I received the files from ND BCI on July 2, 2024, and reviewed all files.

Based on the information provided, I did not have any follow-up questions for Lt. Matt McLeod pertaining to the accusations. I agree with prosecutors from both jurisdictions that there is insufficient evidence to prove this alleged offense happened. I currently find there are no policy violations or any other reason to take any employment action against Matt. I hereby reinstate Lt. Matt McLeod to full duty status effective July 4, 2024.

N/A_Not Applicable	This item is not applicable to the employee's position

	5_Exceptional	4_Highly Effective	3_Proficient	2_Needs Improvement	1_Unsatisfactory	N/A_Not Applicable
1. Skill and proficiency in carrying out assignments		4-Highly Effecti
Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod has the knowledge needed to complete the various assignments he is assigned. This is a direct benefit of having been assigned to various areas of the department such as patrol, records, and investigations.
2. Possesses skills and knowledge to perform the job competently			3-Proficient
Brief explanation: Promoted to lieutenant and assigned to patrol in March 2019. The new assignment as shift commander for afternoon shift required Lt. McLeod to learn another new skill set to manage the day to day duties.
3. Skill at planning, organizing and prioritizing workload		4-Highly Effecti
Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod is organized and plans his tasks accordingly. He handles tasks in order of priority and doesn't get hung up on a small task if something more important presents itself.
4. Holds self accountable for assigned responsibilities; sees tasks through to completion in a timely manner		4-Highly Effecti
Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod meet deadlines and if there are any delays he takes responsibility and works hard to complete the task at hand.
5. Proficiency at improving work methods and procedures as a means toward greater efficiency			3-Proficient
Brief explanation: At this point Lt. McLeod is still learning the personnel side of being a lieutenant on patrol. He has been away from patrol for several years so it will take some time to get caught up on the various changes that have taken place since he left.
6. Communicates effectively with supervisor, peers, and customers			3-Proficient
Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod does a good job of communicating at all levels within the department. Some of the areas that he has struggled in the past seem to be improving and the communication is direct, but appropriate.
7. Ability to work independently		4-Highly Effecti
Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod s able to complete his work independently and also works well as part of a team.

8. Ability to work cooperatively with supervision or as part of a team — 4- Highly Effect

Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod follows direction and participates in conversations about various work methods. As a new lieutenant he ensured understanding of conversations and processes before speaking about them. He plays an important part in the supervision team for patrol.

9. Willingness to take on additional responsibilities — 4- Highly Effect

Brief explanation: SWAT Commander
Taser Instructor
EVOC Instructor

10. Reliability (attendance, punctuality, meeting deadlines) — 4- Highly Effect

Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod is at work well before his shift starts to ensure everything is in order before briefing. He plans his time off and notifies his commander of any changes to his schedule. When given a deadline he tries to get the task accomplished well before the time it is due.

11. Adeptness at analyzing facts, problem solving, decision-making, and demonstrating good judgment — 4- Highly Effect

Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod is the commander for SWAT and is responsible for many important decisions in that position. Much of that experience carries over to his position on patrol where decisions must be made in the moment. I rarely get a call from Lt. McLeod asking what he should do and there are very few problems with the way calls and issues are handled.

12. Operation, Maintenance and Care of Department Equipment — 5- Exceptional Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod ensures equipment in his area of responsibility is in working order.

13. Safety Habits, Use of personal protective equipment, Reports hazards, — 4- Highly Effect

Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod has good safety practices and uses the proper protective equipment when needed. He also ensures his officers do the same.

Additional performance competencies for employees with supervisory responsibilities

14. Displays fairness towards all subordinates. — 4-Highly Effecti

Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod treats all of his employees with fairness. I have no doubt that regardless of the employee he is dealing with they would be given the same opportunities or, in a disciplinary situation, given the same punishment as any other employee.

15. Identifies performance expectations, gives timely feedback and conducts formal performance appraisals. — 4-Highly Effecti

Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod has been exposed to some personnel issues on Afternoon Shift where guidance from leadership was required. Not only is Lt. McLeod effective in this area, but he also ensures his sergeants practice this, lay out expectations and provide feedback when needed.

16. Helps employees to see the potential for developing their skills; assists them in eliminating barriers to their development. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod needs to develop a way to identify his officer's strengths and weaknesses and provide guidance to them on how to improve in those areas. He does well with day to day development, but he is now in a position where he needs to focus more on their long-term development.

17. Delegates responsibility where appropriate, based on the employee's ability and potential. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod has continued the practice of having officers assigned to his sergeants to help with day to day supervision. He seems to have a pretty good handle on delegation, but it seems that he does a lot of work himself that could be put on others, especially when it comes to SWAT.

18. Takes timely and appropriate corrective/disciplinary action with employees. — 4-Highly Effecti

Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod is willing to take corrective action when necessary. He seeks guidance from his commander to ensure the level of discipline is appropriate or if it should be handled differently, but has a plan of action thought out before this conversation.

19. Takes specific steps to create and develop their diverse workforce and to promote an inclusive environment. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Lt. McLeod has stepped up to confront officers or supervisors who, through their actions or words, threaten the morale of his shift or the department.

City of Minot

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Lt. McLeod has a good understanding of many areas in the department due to his assignments in records and investigations. He has good critical thinking skills which he is forced to use during most SWAT call-outs. He continued the concept put in place on afternoon shift where sergeants are assigned a portion of the officers and they assist with developing those officers along with the lieutenant.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Lt. McLeod needs to continue to develop the future leaders of SWAT so there is someone who can effectively step up in his absence and make the difficult decisions. Don't forget to keep open lines of communication with the day and night shift commanders to try to resolve scheduling/manpower issues you face on afternoon shift. Lt. McLeod needs to find a way to pull his shift together as a team and get them focused on holding each other accountable for accomplishing the mission through teamwork.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Lt. McLeod needs a little more time to develop as a lieutenant and gain understanding of how to handle the various personnel issues. I have no problems with his judgment or decision-making, but I think he has some room to grow on the administrative side of his current assignment.
Seek command level training that deals with handling personnel issues and communication.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

Continue to build the leadership team on Afternoon Shift and prepare your sergeants and officers for advancement through promotional opportunities. Make sure your sergeants are included in daily tasks so they can learn the processes with leading projects and change. Develop a plan or procedure on Afternoon shift for conducting periodic inspections of vehicles to ensure they are clean and equipment is in working condition.
Develop 2-3 goals for Afternoon Shift and promote these goals to give your officers a common purpose to work toward throughout 2020.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

Seek command level training.

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Sgt McLeod is an outstanding Detective with tremendous leadership ability. This leadership ability was a strong deciding factor that lead to his selection to the second Sergeant position in the Investigations Division in December 2017. Sgt McLeod is also the SWAT team Commander as well as an instructor in TASER, EVOC, Active Shooter and Use of Force.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Sgt McLeod has upset certain co-workers over the years. While he may have been correct with his assessment of those situations at the time, his message was not always well received by all involved. Sgt McLeod would do well to learn the soft approach to certain situations as apposed to the gruff matter-of-fact stance he tends to take. Be cautious of the words you use. At times Sgt McLeod makes comments that are difficult to decipher if it is made in jest or not and can be construed negatively. Sgt McLeod needs to monitor how he sets the tone in the office. Sgt McLeod needs to voice his concerns and complaints laterally or upward and not to an open audience of subordinates.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Sgt McLeod is ready for the next step in his career to Lieutenant and has a great opportunity to accomplish this in the next year.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

Continue with the development of the Detectives he leads and supervises on a daily basis.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

Continue in a positive direction and promote to Lieutenant.

N/A_Not Applicable	This item is not applicable to the employee's position

1. Skill and proficiency in carrying out assignments — 4-Highly Effecti

   Brief explanation: Matt knew the answers to most records related inquiries. He is able to carry out his daily duties with little supervision.

2. Possesses skills and knowledge to perform the job competently — 4-Highly Effecti

   Brief explanation: see #1

3. Skill at planning, organizing and prioritizing workload — 4-Highly Effecti

   Brief explanation: Matt rarely had work that was left undone. Very good at handling tasks quickly as they came to him.

4. Holds self accountable for assigned responsibilities; sees tasks through to completion in a timely manner — 4-Highly Effecti

   Brief explanation: Matt showed that he can keep tasks under control and admits when he makes a mistake. I didn't have to go looking for information, he normally arrived with an explanation before the issue would surface.

5. Proficiency at improving work methods and procedures as a means toward greater efficiency — 4-Highly Effecti

   Brief explanation: Matt made several changes to the processes involved with evidence and records when problems arose. He would not seek out change unless there was a problem or a more efficient method was discovered.

6. Communicates effectively with supervisor, peers, and customers — 3-Proficient

   Brief explanation: Matt made improvement in this area from last year and took time to think through his written communications before sending them out. There was less emotion and fewer "shotgun" emails used in dealing with problems.

7. Ability to work independently — 4-Highly Effecti

Brief explanation:

16. Helps employees to see the potential for developing their skills; assists them in eliminating barriers to their development. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Make sure you continue to use others to help complete tasks and not take them all on yourself. I saw improvement in this area in 2017, but I think the new position in Investigations will help determine your true ability in this area.

17. Delegates responsibility where appropriate, based on the employee's ability and potential. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation:

18. Takes timely and appropriate corrective/disciplinary action with employees. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Matt made improvement in this area and less "shotgun" emails were sent out. Continue to seek improvement and suggestions on how to effectively communicate with the various personalities who work for you.

19. Takes specific steps to create and develop their diverse workforce and to promote an inclusive environment. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Matt treats everyone fairly and engages most of the employees he has contact with throughout the day.

City of Minot

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Matt is a well trained and highly capable leader. His ability to think under stress compliments his position as SWAT Commander and will serve him well as a supervisor in Investigations.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Matt has made improvements in his written communication by not sending emails immediately to address issues. The problem isn't the lack of communication, but the lack of understanding the whole picture before communicating. There is still improvement needed in this area, but hopefully the new assignment to Investigations will give him a different perspective.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

You need to set goals to help determine your path and future with the department. You are capable of leading effectively, but still need to seek out leadership training that doesn't deal with tactical situations.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

Help with the supervision, management, and increase effectiveness of the investigations team.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

Supervisor / Leadership training courses (preferably not tactical).
Supervisory level courses for investigations.

This annual performance review will become part of your City of Minot personnel file.

Additional performance competencies for employees with supervisory responsibilities

14. Displays fairness towards all subordinates. — 4-Highly Effecti

Brief explanation: Matt is very fair in handling situations with his subordinates.

15. Identifies performance expectations, gives timely feedback and conducts formal performance appraisals. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation:

16. Helps employees to see the potential for developing their skills; assists them in eliminating barriers to their development. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Matt needs to focus on the potential of those around him and not their shortcomings. He has a unique leadership style, but it's effective and people follow him. There are others who can help (especially on SWAT) but he needs to lean on them and test their true ability.

17. Delegates responsibility where appropriate, based on the employee's ability and potential. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: same as #16

18. Takes timely and appropriate corrective/disciplinary action with employees. — 2- Needs Impro

Brief explanation: Matt is timely with taking action, but needs to get away from shotgun emails that are usually in response to his frustrations about repeat problems. Again, the issues should be handled in connection with the supervisor responsible for the problem employee.

19. Takes specific steps to create and develop their diverse workforce and to promote an inclusive environment. — 3-Proficient

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Matt is a well trained and highly capable leader. His skills as commander of the SWAT team serve the position and team well. He is organized and does well with planning the various duties and responsibilities and keeping his coworkers and supervisors informed.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

If Matt can make changes to his communication style from directing people what to do, to a more informative style of communication, he will likely see changes in response from subordinates and peers. The problem isn't the lack of communication, it's the method of delivery and lack of information.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Supervisor and leadership training may help with some of the communication issues listed above.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

Supervisory / Leadership training courses.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

APPRAISER COMMENTS

Noteworthy strong areas of present performance:

McLeod has been instrumental in creating an office manager position in records. His work has made the process very smooth. Maths leadership on the SWAT team is very valuable

Areas requiring improvement in job performance:

What has the employee done to improve performance from the previous review?

McLeod has transitioned from his former position in investigations to his supervisory role as records Sergeant very well

Developmental Plans & Goals:

I would suggest to mcleod that he seek out leadership & management training to further develop his leadership skills

Overall Performance Rating (cumulative): ~~4489~~ Divided by 8 (or 11): 8.1

Circle one category below:

1	2-3	4-5-6	7-8-9
Marginal	Needs Improvement	Fully Satisfactory	Highly Commendable

HIGHLY COMMENDABLE (9-8-7)
Usually outstanding performance. Consistently generates results above those expected of the position with significant contributions to objectives of the department, division, group, or company. Contributes in a superior manner to innovations both technical and functional.

FULLY SATISFACTORY (6-5-4)
Good performance with incumbent fulfilling all position requirements and may, on occasion, generate results above those expected of the position.

NEEDS IMPROVEMENT (3-2)
Performance leaves room for improvement. This performance level may be the result of new or inexperienced incumbent on the job or an incumbent not responding favorably to instruction.

MARGINAL (1)
Lowest performance level which is clearly less than acceptable, and which is obviously well below minimum position requirements. Situation requires immediate review and action. Possible separation or reassignment is in order without significant and immediate performance improvement.

APPRAISER COMMENTS

Noteworthy strong areas of present performance:

SGT. MCLEOD IS ORGANIZED AND FOCUSED ON SEEING THROUGH THE PROJECTS HE TOOK ON IN HIS CURRENT POSITION. HE DOES A GOOD JOB OF INFORMING ME WHAT IS HAPPENING IN RECORDS + SEEKING SUPPORT FOR CHANGES THAT NEED TO BE MADE.

Areas requiring improvement in job performance:

MATT DOES A GREAT JOB WITH SWAT; HOWEVER, I'D LIKE TO SEE THE SAME LEVEL OF MOTIVATION WITH THE RECORDS STAFF. KEEP IN THE LOOP AND HELP THE 6 WHO WORK FOR RECORDS DEVELOP + GROW IN THE ORGANIZATION.

What has the employee done to improve performance from the previous review?

THIS IS MY FIRST EVAL WITH MATT. I THINK HE IS A CRITICAL THINKER WHO WORKS TO IMPROVE THE EFFICIENCY IN RECORDS.

Developmental Plans & Goals:

- CONTINUE TO SEEK OUT TRAINING OPPORTUNITIES IN LEADERSHIP.
- SET GOALS FOR SELF, SWAT, RECORDS
- CONTINUE TO SHARE YOUR KNOWLEDGE OF TACTICS W/ SUBORDINATES.

Overall Performance Rating (cumulative): 88 Divided by 8 (or 11): 8

Circle one category below:

1	2-3	4-5-6	7-8-9
Marginal	Needs Improvement	Fully Satisfactory	Highly Commendable

HIGHLY COMMENDABLE (9-8-7)
Usually outstanding performance. Consistently generates results above those expected of the position with significant contributions to objectives of the department, division, group, or company. Contributes in a superior manner to innovations both technical and functional.

FULLY SATISFACTORY (6-5-4)
Good performance with incumbent fulfilling all position requirements and may, on occasion, generate results above those expected of the position.

NEEDS IMPROVEMENT (3-2)
Performance leaves room for improvement. This performance level may be the result of new or inexperienced incumbent on the job or an incumbent not responding favorably to instruction.

MARGINAL (1)
Lowest performance level which is clearly less than acceptable, and which is obviously well below minimum position requirements. Situation requires immediate review and action. Possible separation or reassignment is in order without significant and immediate performance improvement.

HIGHLY COMMENDABLE (9-8-7)
Usually outstanding performance. Consistently generates results above those expected of the position with significant contributions to objectives of the department, division, group, or company. Contributes in a superior manner to innovations both technical and functional.

FULLY SATISFACTORY (6-5-4)
Good performance with incumbent fulfilling all position requirements and may, on occasion, generate results above those expected of the position.

NEEDS IMPROVEMENT (3-2)
Performance leaves room for improvement. This performance level may be the result of new or inexperienced incumbent on the job or an incumbent not responding favorably to instruction.

MARGINAL (1)
Lowest performance level which is clearly less than acceptable, and which is obviously well below minimum position requirements. Situation requires immediate review and action. Possible separation or reassignment is in order without significant and immediate performance improvement.

APPRAISER COMMENTS

Noteworthy strong areas of present performance: Matt does an excellent job being a leader in high risk incidents.
Matt does high quality work on patrol. He is very dependable and consistent. He does a lot of extra duties especially in the area of SWAT. Matt shows a lot of concern about doing a good job and wants to see progress in the dept.

Areas requiring improvement in job performance:
Matt can have a tendency to be critical of something he disagrees with which can give a negative impression of his attitude. He should try and keep this to minimum. Offer solutions along with criticism.

What has the employee done to improve performance from the previous review?
Matt has been a leader in getting the explosive breaching program going with SWAT. Matt has also been involved as a Taser instructor.

Developmental Plans & Goals:
Matt should pursue any management training opportunities to help prepare him for advancement.

APPRAISER COMMENTS

Noteworthy strong areas of present performance:

Officer McLeod is a strong, steady performer. He has strong operational and tactical skills. His background and training make him an excellent patrol officer. He has worked with the administration to implement new crosswalks for the distribution and maintenance of tasers. His participation and experience with Bike Patrol and SWAT make him an asset to both the shift and the department.

Areas requiring improvement in job performance:

None Noted

What has the employee done to improve performance from the previous review?

Officer McLeod asks questions for clarification and does independent research to broaden his knowledge and experience. He readily accepts suggestions and recommendations.

Developmental Plans & Goals:

Officer McLeod should seek out opportunities for training in advanced applied areas of law for procurement, management and supervision to capitalize on his natural leadership abilities in preparation for upcoming promotional opportunities.

HIGHLY COMMENDABLE (9-8-7)
Usually outstanding performance. Consistently generates results above those expected of the position with significant contributions to objectives of the department, division, group, or company. Contributes in a superior manner to innovations both technical and functional.

FULLY SATISFACTORY (6-5-4)
Good performance with incumbent fulfilling all position requirements and may, on occasion, generate results above those expected of the position.

NEEDS IMPROVEMENT (3-2)
Performance leaves room for improvement. This performance level may be the result of new or inexperienced incumbent on the job or an incumbent not responding favorably to instruction.

MARGINAL (1)
Lowest performance level which is clearly less than acceptable, and which is obviously well below minimum position requirements. Situation requires immediate review and action. Possible separation or reassignment is in order without significant and immediate performance improvement.

HUMAN RESOURCE DIRECTOR REVIEW

Human Resource Director Approval — Date 1-13-06

To: Chief Draovitch 04\19\05
From: Sgt. Redding
Ref: Letter of Commendation

This letter is to congratulate several Officers on a job well done.

At about 0530 hours on 04/02/05, Officers were dispatched to 400 18th Ave. SE, to the report of two white males going through vehicles in the parking lot. Several Officers responded initially, and Officers Lewellyn and McLeod were the first to come into the area.

They both began to talk to one another while they were en route, and this appeared to make a great difference in the final outcome.

Officer Lewellyn began to direct other officers into what he thought were the right places, while he and Officer McLeod both went in to the area on foot. Lewellyn then made visual contact with the suspects, and he directed Officers Fisher and Sandusky into place in the case that this incident turned into a foot chase. Officer Lewellyn continued to keep the other involved officers informed of the suspect's location and direction of travel. When he decided to attempt to make contact, he informed the other Officers of his intentions.

This incident did turn into a foot pursuit, but with the outstanding prior planning and communication, the pursuit lasted less than a block. Both the suspects were apprehended a short distance from where it all began.

I would like to congratulate Officer Lewellyn on this fine piece of Police work. I believe that without the control and communication the outcome may have been much different.

The follow-up to this apprehension brings more outstanding police work. There were several vehicles that appeared to be broken into in the parking lot of the Manor Apartments. Officers searched the area, and eventually found some property that had been dumped by the suspects in the area.

This was not good enough for Officer McLeod. Even though there were several cases closed on that night and early morning, Officer McLeod went beyond what the average Officer would have on the next night.

When Officer McLeod came to work, he informed me that he was going to scour the area and see if he could locate a vehicle that the suspects may have driven to the area. He ran alpha checks on both of the suspects and found three vehicles that they could have driven to the area. He then scoured the area of the auto burglaries, and after quite some time, located one of their vehicles parked about 3 blocks away. He contacted me immediately, and we ended up impounding the vehicle and ultimately closing several more auto burglaries.

Officer Lewellyn and Officer McLeod both exhibited outstanding judgement, maturity and tenacity in every aspect of this incident, and I believe that they each deserve, at a minimum, a hearty "Attaboy" for their efforts.

I request that a copy of this letter be placed in each of their permanent files.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

Performance leaves room for improvement. This performance level may be the result of new or inexperienced incumbent on the job or an incumbent not responding favorably to instruction.

MARGINAL (1)
Lowest performance level which is clearly less than acceptable, and which is obviously well below minimum position requirements. Situation requires immediate review and action. Possible separation or reassignment is in order without significant and immediate performance improvement.

EMPLOYEE PROGRESS APPRAISAL FORM

How to Make an Employee Progress Appraisal

How can you make sure that your employees receive a fair wage that accurately reflects their contribution to the company? This has never been an easy task, largely because of its subjective nature.

Without a uniform standard, pay rates may be set arbitrarily, with little or no supporting evidence. This can leave both the supervisor and the company open to charges of unfairness from angry employees who feel they've been shortchanged.

The Employee Progress Appraisal Form has been designed with this in mind. It provides you not only with a means of measuring employee performance and contribution more accurately, but also with a permanent printed record that can be kept on file and used to chart individual employees' progress. In these times of proliferating government regulations, it's a form no employer should be without.

Filling Out the Chart

Inside this booklet, you will find a chart listing 12 characteristics, each with five behavior statements. Carefully read through each statement and check the box of the one that most closely approximates the behavior of the employee you are evaluating. Cross out any word or words in the box that don't apply.

Make sure you can support each rating you give an employee with complete and accurate documentation of his or her performance.

This is especially important if you give someone a very high or a very low score in any category. You should also note in the "comments" section why you gave the employee an extreme rating.

After you have completed all 12 characteristics and their statements, add up the point values of the boxes you have checked and enter their sum in the Subtotal box across the page. Then add all the subtotals down the column and enter the sum in the Total Point Score box on the right side of the page. The total point score will provide you with a specific figure that you can use, together with a wage or salary scale prepared by your firm, to arrive at a fair dollar amount should a pay increase be in order.

The Human Relations Side

The Employee Progress Appraisal Form helps assure a fairer assessment of performance, but it also has another equally important function. It can help you coach your employees and let them know where their weak and strong points are. This is an important step in improving employee morale and attitudes. Your workers want to know how they are doing, and the Employee Progress Appraisal Form can help you discuss this with them in an objective way.

In an appraisal, your manner toward your employee is just as important as what you say. Be frank and open in your discussion. Try to present criticism constructively and listen to any disagreements your worker may have with your assessment. Show the person how to capitalize on strengths and overcome weaknesses.

Go over the appraisal form with your employee, giving him or her well-thought-out reasons for each behavior standard you have marked. At the end of the session, make sure the employee signs and dates the form in the space provided on the last page. Also allow the person to write down any comments that he or she feels should be a part of the permanent record. At the close of the interview, give the employee a copy of the completed appraisal form for his or her records.

You Can Build Goodwill

Employee performance appraisals are not only valuable as a measure of performance, they can also build goodwill in your department and the company as a whole. How you conduct them shows your workers your attitude toward them and toward the organization. A thoughtful approach lets the employee know that you are interested and need his or her cooperation, and that you will give yours in return.

The Employee Progress Appraisal Form can be an important tool in building the kind of unit or department that works effectively and harmoniously. It's a way to let your workers know that you have sincere interest in them and, at the same time, to build your own and your company's reputation for fairness.

EMPLOYEE PROGRESS APPRAISAL FORM

How to Make an Employee Progress Appraisal

How can you make sure that your employees receive a fair wage that accurately reflects their contribution to the company? This has never been an easy task, largely because of its subjective nature.

Without a uniform standard, pay rates may be set arbitrarily, with little or no supporting evidence. This can leave both the supervisor and the company open to charges of unfairness from angry employees who feel they've been shortchanged.

The Employee Progress Appraisal Form has been designed with this in mind. It provides you not only with a means of measuring employee performance and contribution more accurately, but also with a permanent printed record that can be kept on file and used to chart individual employees' progress. In these times of proliferating government regulations, it's a form no employer should be without.

Filling Out the Chart

Inside this booklet, you will find a chart listing 12 characteristics, each with five behavior statements. Carefully read through each statement and check the box of the one that most closely approximates the behavior of the employee you are evaluating. Cross out any word or words in the box that don't apply.

Make sure you can support each rating you give an employee with complete and accurate documentation of his or her performance.

This is especially important if you give someone a very high or a very low score in any category. You should also note in the "comments" section why you gave the employee an extreme rating.

After you have completed all 12 characteristics and their statements, add up the point values of the boxes you have checked and enter their sum in the Subtotal box across the page. Then add all the subtotals down the column and enter the sum in the Total Point Score box on the right side of the page. The total point score will provide you with a specific figure that you can use, together with a wage or salary scale prepared by your firm, to arrive at a fair dollar amount should a pay increase be in order.

The Human Relations Side

The Employee Progress Appraisal Form helps assure a fairer assessment of performance, but it also has another equally important function. It can help you coach your employees and let them know where their weak and strong points are. This is an important step in improving employee morale and attitudes. Your workers want to know how they are doing, and the Employee Progress Appraisal Form can help you discuss this with them in an objective way.

In an appraisal, your manner toward your employee is just as important as what you say. Be frank and open in your discussion. Try to present criticism constructively and listen to any disagreements your worker may have with your assessment. Show the person how to capitalize on strengths and overcome weaknesses.

Go over the appraisal form with your employee, giving him or her well-thought-out reasons for each behavior standard you have marked. At the end of the session, make sure the employee signs and dates the form in the space provided on the last page. Also allow the person to write down any comments that he or she feels should be a part of the permanent record. At the close of the interview, give the employee a copy of the completed appraisal form for his or her records.

You Can Build Goodwill

Employee performance appraisals are not only valuable as a measure of performance, they can also build goodwill in your department and the company as a whole. How you conduct them shows your workers your attitude toward them and toward the organization. A thoughtful approach lets the employee know that you are interested and need his or her cooperation, and that you will give yours in return.

The Employee Progress Appraisal Form can be an important tool in building the kind of unit or department that works effectively and harmoniously. It's a way to let your workers know that you have sincere interest in them and, at the same time, to build your own and your company's reputation for fairness.

CASE/REPORT #: BCI24-00055/1

Report Title: MATTHEW MCLEOD Sexual Abuse Investigation

Details:

(ALL TIMES ARE APPROXIMATE)

1. On January 23, 2024, the North Dakota Bureau of Criminal Investigation (NDBCI) received a request from the Butte-Silver Bow Law Enforcement Department in Montana (MT), to interview MATTHEW MCLEOD of Minot, North Dakota (ND), regarding a sex offense being investigated by both the Butte-Silver Bow Law Enforcement Department and the Ada County Sheriff's Department in Idaho (ID).

2. S/A Arenz reviewed the reports from the Butte-Silver Bow Law Enforcement Department and the Ada County Sheriff's Department. The Ada County Sheriff's Department report is summarized as follows:

   A. On March 2, 2023, the Ada County Sheriff's Department took a report regarding sexual contact with a minor.

      1) On November 16, 2023, [redacted] reported to the Ada County Sheriff's Department that [redacted] 14-year-old [redacted], [redacted] had disclosed to a counselor that [redacted], MATTHEW MCLEOD, had sexual contact with [redacted] at a residence in Butte, MT.

      2) Kimberly Vo stated that MATTHEW MCLEOD was married to Kimberly Vo's sister, Kristin McLeod, and that MATTHEW MCLEOD was a lieutenant with the Minot Police Department.

      3) Kimberly Vo stated that at the time Kimberly Vo was reporting, [redacted] was at a behavioral health facility in Utah (UT), but when [redacted] came back to Ada County, [redacted] could be interviewed.

   B. On January 2, 2024, The Ada County Sheriff's Department had [redacted] interviewed at the St. Luke's CARES facility in Boise, ID. [redacted] disclosed the following:

      1) When [redacted] was approximately 4 years old, [redacted] was at [redacted] grandfather's residence in Butte, MT, along with other family members.

      2) [redacted] went into the house and was lying on the floor in a guest bedroom playing on a tablet.

      3) MATTHEW MCLEOD came into the bedroom and laid [redacted] on the bed and pulled down [redacted] underwear.

      4) MATTHEW MCLEOD started kissing [redacted] on the mouth and then inserted MATTHEW MCLEOD's penis into [redacted] vagina.

5) [redacted] passed out and woke up when MATTHEW MCLEOD was getting off [redacted]

6) MATTHEW MCLEOD then went upstairs and was drinking with the rest of [redacted].

7) [redacted] also disclosed in 2021 that [redacted] was at [redacted] grandmother's residence in ID, as a lot of the family were there to help move [redacted] grandmother to ND.

8) [redacted] went into the kitchen to get a slice of pizza. While in the kitchen, MATTHEW MCLEOD entered the kitchen. MATTHEW MCLEOD pushed [redacted] against the stove and then took MATTHEW MCLEOD's hand and grabbed [redacted] vagina outside of [redacted] clothing. [redacted] pushed MATTHEW MCLEOD away.

9) [redacted] stated that MATTHEW MCLEOD brushed MATTHEW MCLEOD's hand across [redacted] breasts when MATTHEW MCLEOD hugged [redacted]

C. On January 11, 2024, the Ada County Sheriff's Department sent the Ada County Sheriff's Department report to the Butte-Silver Bow Law Enforcement Department.

3. Please refer to the Ada County Sheriff's Department report and the Butte-Silver Bow Law Enforcement Department report for further details.

CASE/REPORT #: BCI24-00055/2

Report Title: MATTHEW MCLEOD Interview

Details:

(ALL TIMES ARE APPROXIMATE)

1. On January 30, 2024, at 10:00 a.m., Special Agent (S/A) Joe Arenz met with MATTHEW MCLEOD at the North Dakota Bureau of Criminal Investigation (NDBCI) in Bismarck, North Dakota (ND), for an interview regarding the allegations made against MATTHEW MCLEOD. MATTHEW MCLEOD was interviewed in a private room within NDBCI.

2. S/A Arenz explained to MATTHEW MCLEOD that S/A Arenz wanted to speak with MATTHEW MCLEOD about the allegations made by [redacted] S/A Arenz told MATTHEW MCLEOD that the allegations were in reference to sexual contact between [redacted] and MATTHEW MCLEOD that occurred in Ada County, Idaho (ID), and Butte, Montana (MT). MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that MATTHEW MCLEOD was aware of the allegations made in Butte but was unaware of the allegations made in Ada County.

3. S/A Arenz advised MATTHEW MCLEOD that MATTHEW MCLEOD was not in custody and that MATTHEW MCLEOD could leave at any time. S/A Arenz read MATTHEW MCLEOD his rights and had MATTHEW MCLEOD sign an NDBCI Statement of Rights form (please refer to Attachment #1).

4. The following is a synopsis and not a verbatim of the interview with MATTHEW MCLEOD:

   A. [redacted] was MATTHEW MCLEOD's [redacted]. [redacted] was the [redacted] to Kimberly Vo, and Kimberly Vo was Kristin McLeod's sister. Kristin McLeod was MATTHEW MCLEOD's wife.

   B. [redacted] and Kimberly Vo lived in Boise, ID.

   C. The last time MATTHEW MCLEOD saw [redacted] was in 2021, when MATTHEW MCLEOD was in Boise to help Kristin McLeod's mother relocate to ND. It should be noted that MATTHEW MCLEOD provided a timeline of when MATTHEW MCLEOD had been around [redacted] (for details, please refer to Attachment #3).

   D. MATTHEW MCLEOD learned that [redacted] had made allegations against MATTHEW MCLEOD in July 2023. Kimberly Vo told another sister, Kirby Plessas, during a three-way call with Kimberly Vo, Kristin McLeod, and Kirby Plessas.

      1) MATTHEW MCLEOD was told that [redacted] claimed MATTHEW MCLEOD "molested" [redacted] when [redacted] was between the ages of 4 years old and 8 years old in Butte.

E. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that in 2021, MATTHEW MCLEOD's family stayed in a house rental in Boise when MATTHEW MCLEOD's family went to Boise to help move Kristin McLeod's mother.

1) MATTHEW MCLEOD only saw [redacted] for a short time because Kimberly Vo and [redacted] came over for dinner, but Kimberly Vo and [redacted] did not help with the move.

F. It was well known by family that [redacted] and MATTHEW MCLEOD did not get along. [redacted] always looked like [redacted] wanted to punch MATTHEW MCLEOD.

1) MATTHEW MCLEOD always thought [redacted] was spoiled and got everything [redacted] wanted.

2) [redacted] was not nice to MATTHEW MCLEOD's children.

G. MATTHEW MCLEOD was investigated in 2020 by the Valley City Police Department in ND, as a girlfriend from high school accused MATTHEW MCLEOD and other men the girl dated in high school of raping her. MATTHEW MCLEOD was not charged in that case.

H. MATTHEW MCLEOD explained the layout of Kristin McLeod's father's house in Butte, where [redacted] alleged that MATTHEW MCLEOD had sexual intercourse with [redacted]

1) The main level had three bedrooms.

2) The basement was an open area with one bedroom and an attached bathroom.

3) MATTHEW MCLEOD's children slept on an air mattress, and MATTHEW MCLEOD and Kristin McLeod slept on a pullout sofa bed.

4) [redacted] threw temper tantrums if [redacted] did not get the bedroom in the basement. Even if MATTHEW MCLEOD and Kristin McLeod had arrived first, MATTHEW MCLEOD and Kristin McLeod moved out of the bedroom when [redacted] and Kimberly Vo arrived so that [redacted] could have the bedroom.

I. S/A Arenz asked MATTHEW MCLEOD about the allegation that MATTHEW MCLEOD had sexual intercourse with [redacted] on a bed at Kristin McLeod's father's residence in Butte.

1) MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that MATTHEW MCLEOD had never been alone with [redacted] at any time in [redacted] life.

2) [redacted] always slept with [redacted] parents.

3) MATTHEW MCLEOD denied ever having sexual contact with [redacted]

4) Other than hugs that Kimberly Vo forced [redacted] to give MATTHEW MCLEOD and Kristin McLeod, MATTHEW MCLEOD and [redacted] never had physical contact.

5) [redacted] either played with the other kids or was with Kimberly Vo. [redacted] was never alone.

6) [redacted] was a very spoiled kid that MATTHEW MCLEOD did not want to be around.

7) MATTHEW MCLEOD's kids did not even have contact with [redacted]

8) Most of the time, the adults were all together in the living room or on the deck.

9) The family did activities together, but nobody was ever off on their own.

J. MATTHEW MCLEOD was surprised when MATTHEW MCLEOD learned of the allegations made by [redacted] MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that MATTHEW MCLEOD never really had any contact or interaction with [redacted]

K. S/A Arenz asked MATTHEW MCLEOD about when MATTHEW MCLEOD went to Boise to move Kristin McLeod's mother to ND in 2021.

1) Kirby Plessas rented a house that MATTHEW MCLEOD and MATTHEW MCLEOD's family stayed in.

2) MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that MATTHEW MCLEOD and MATTHEW MCLEOD's family arrived in Boise, loaded up the moving truck, stayed the night in the rented house, and had everyone over for dinner. The next morning, MATTHEW MCLEOD and MATTHEW MCLEOD's family drove back to ND.

3) [redacted] and Kimberly Vo did not stay at the rented house but came over for dinner. Kimberly Vo and [redacted] left after dinner.

4) Kimberly Vo and [redacted] showed up at Kristin McLeod's mother's house and stood in the yard but did not come in to help carry things out of the house.

5) MATTHEW MCLEOD denied that MATTHEW MCLEOD had any contact with [redacted]

L. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that there was never any physical contact that could have ever been mistaken as sexual contact.

M. MATTHEW MCLEOD and Kristin McLeod only stayed at Kimberly Vo's residence one time, and that was when MATTHEW MCLEOD learned that [redacted] still slept in [redacted] parents' bed. MATTHEW MCLEOD believed that this was in 2010.

N. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that [redacted] never went off to be by herself, as [redacted] was always with Kimberly Vo.

O. MATTHEW MCLEOD did not know why [redacted] accused MATTHEW MCLEOD of this.

P. MATTHEW MCLEOD believed that [redacted] was just trying to get attention.

Q. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that [redacted] was sexually expressive on TikTok. MATTHEW MCLEOD suggested that the investigator look into [redacted] TikTok account.

R. MATTHEW MCLEOD hoped that [redacted] was never molested, but if [redacted] was molested, it was not by MATTHEW MCLEOD.

S. MATTHEW MCLEOD asked if MATTHEW MCLEOD could take a polygraph to show that MATTHEW MCLEOD did not have sexual contact with [redacted] S/A Arenz advised MATTHEW MCLEOD that S/A Arenz was going to ask the investigator from the Butte-Silver Bow Law Enforcement Department if the Butte-Silver Bow Law Enforcement Department wanted a polygraph administered. S/A Arenz advised MATTHEW MCLEOD that if the Butte-Silver Bow Law Enforcement Department investigator wanted the polygraph, S/A Arenz would schedule the polygraph. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that MATTHEW MCLEOD was available almost any time because MATTHEW MCLEOD had been placed on administrative leave by the Minot Police Department.

5. For details of the interview, please refer to the audio recording in Attachment #2.

6. S/A Arenz was unable to schedule a polygraph due to the NDBCI examiner being unavailable.

CASE/REPORT #: BCI24-00055/3

Report Title: MATTHEW MCLEOD Polygraph

Procedures:

MATTHEW MCLEOD was tested in a private room within the North Dakota Bureau of Criminal Investigation (NDBCI) headquarters building in Bismarck, North Dakota (ND), with standard polygraph procedures being used throughout the examination. MATTHEW MCLEOD signed a waiver of rights form (Statement of Rights) and a polygraph examination liability waiver form (Request for Polygraph Examination). MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that MATTHEW MCLEOD understood that MATTHEW MCLEOD was being asked to submit to a polygraph examination to attempt to determine if MATTHEW MCLEOD was being truthful when MATTHEW MCLEOD said that MATTHEW MCLEOD had never touched MATTHEW MCLEOD's [redacted], [redacted] for sexual pleasure.

Pretest Interview:

1. During the pre-test interview, MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that MATTHEW MCLEOD grew up in Crookston, Minnesota (MN), and currently lived in Minot, ND. MATTHEW MCLEOD was employed as a lieutenant with the Minot Police Department.

2. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that within the past few months, MATTHEW MCLEOD's [redacted] alleged that [redacted] had been molested by MATTHEW MCLEOD in Butte, Montana (MT), between the ages of 4 years old and 8 years old. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that MATTHEW MCLEOD's [redacted] was the [redacted] of [redacted] and that [redacted] and [redacted] family lived in Boise, Idaho (ID). MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that the incident(s) had allegedly occurred at the previous residence of MATTHEW MCLEOD's father-in-law in Butte.

3. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that [redacted] had accused MATTHEW MCLEOD of going into a bedroom, pulling [redacted] pants down, and having sex with [redacted] MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that [redacted] had claimed this incident happened in Butte. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that [redacted] had also said that "a couple years ago," MATTHEW MCLEOD had cornered [redacted] in the kitchen, and MATTHEW MCLEOD had groped [redacted] MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that this incident was alleged to have happened in Boise.

4. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that MATTHEW MCLEOD had been to Boise twice, and the last time that MATTHEW MCLEOD had visited Boise was in 2021 or 2022, when MATTHEW MCLEOD helped MATTHEW MCLEOD's family move MATTHEW MCLEOD's mother-in-law from Boise to ND. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that MATTHEW MCLEOD's wife's family had a family reunion at MATTHEW MCLEOD's father-in-law's residence in Butte nearly every summer. MATTHEW MCLEOD had visited Butte several times since [redacted] was born.

5. MATTHEW MCLEOD denied that MATTHEW MCLEOD had ever had sexual contact with [redacted] MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that "nobody" had ever been alone with [redacted] and [redacted] had slept in the bed with [redacted] parents until age 5, so there was no way that MATTHEW MCLEOD could have ever had sexual contact with [redacted] MATTHEW MCLEOD added that [redacted] [redacted] Kimberly Vo, was always around [redacted] even when [redacted] was playing with other kids.

6. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that MATTHEW MCLEOD did not like [redacted] and [redacted] did not like MATTHEW MCLEOD; therefore, MATTHEW MCLEOD did not like being around [redacted]

7. MATTHEW MCLEOD did not believe that [redacted] had issues with any other family members other than MATTHEW MCLEOD.

8. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that in MATTHEW MCLEOD's entire life, MATTHEW MCLEOD had seen [redacted] approximately 10 times, and MATTHEW MCLEOD had never been alone with [redacted]

Exam Composition:

MATTHEW MCLEOD's polygraph examination consisted of an acquaintance chart followed by three scored relevant question charts. The relevant questions on each of the scored charts were as follows:

Q1: HAVE YOU EVER TOUCHED THAT GIRL FOR SEXUAL PLEASURE?
A1: No

Q2: DID YOU TOUCH THAT GIRL'S VAGINA FOR SEXUAL PLEASURE?
A2: No

Q3: HAVE YOU EVER PUT YOUR PENIS INTO THAT GIRL'S VAGINA?
A3: No

Results:

After examining the charts of MATTHEW MCLEOD's polygraph examination, this examiner found that there was DECEPTION INDICATED when MATTHEW MCLEOD answered "no" to the relevant questions regarding actual physical sexual contact with [redacted]

Post Test Interview (if needed):

1. At the conclusion of the polygraph, S/A Voeltz informed MATTHEW MCLEOD that MATTHEW MCLEOD had failed the polygraph.

2. S/A Voeltz and S/A Arenz conducted a post-test interview with MATTHEW MCLEOD. MATTHEW MCLEOD continually denied that MATTHEW MCLEOD had ever touched [redacted] for sexual gratification. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that the only time MATTHEW MCLEOD had touched [redacted] was to give [redacted] a goodbye hug and only when forced to do so. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated, "I've never touched that child in my life."

3. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that MATTHEW MCLEOD had never been alone with [redacted] in MATTHEW MCLEOD's life.

4. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that [redacted] allegations were "made up" and that [redacted] "had lied."

5. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated that MATTHEW MCLEOD had never been alone with [redacted] and [redacted] was never out of eyesight of [redacted] parents while MATTHEW MCLEOD visited the family in ID.

6. S/A Voeltz asked MATTHEW MCLEOD what [redacted] had to gain by making up a story about MATTHEW MCLEOD. MATTHEW MCLEOD stated, "I don't know why she picked me. It doesn't make any sense."

7. MATTHEW MCLEOD implied that [redacted] father may have molested [redacted] and [redacted] was substituting MATTHEW MCLEOD in place of [redacted] father in [redacted] memory.

8. At the conclusion of the interview, MATTHEW MCLEOD left the NDBCI office.

Description and Custody of Evidence:

1. The video and audio recording from MATTHEW MCLEOD's polygraph examination is in the custody of S/A Scott Voeltz at the NDBCI office in Fargo, ND.

To: Lt. Matthew McLeod

Re: Internal Investigation # 24-2

On about January 26, 2024, Lt. Matt McLeod informed Chief Klug that he was notified of a criminal complaint filed against him in Idaho and Montana. I was later contacted by S/A Pat Lenertz from ND BCI, who informed me that they were asked to assist with interviewing Matt McLeod for two other jurisdictions.

After considering the allegations, I decided to place Lt. McLeod on administrative leave pending the outcome of the investigation. I met with Lt. McLeod on January 29th, 2024 in my office and explained my position on this investigation and placed him on paid administrative leave.

On April 23, 2024, I was contacted by Detective Sergeant Anthony Jurenic from the Butte/Silverbow Police Department in Montana. Sgt. Jurenic informed me he had been in contact with the prosecutor and they were denying prosecution.

On June 26, 2024, I was contacted by Detective Shannon Garza from the Ada County Sheriff's Department in Idaho. Detective Garza informed me that their prosecutor's office also denied prosecution.

On June 27, 2024, I received the full investigative report from Ada County Sheriff's Department, which included a confidentiality clause, prohibiting the release of the records they provided. I reviewed all files and requested additional records from ND BCI. I received the files from ND BCI on July 2, 2024, and reviewed all files.

Based on the information provided, I did not have any follow-up questions for Lt. Matt McLeod pertaining to the accusations. I agree with prosecutors from both jurisdictions that there is insufficient evidence to prove this alleged offense happened. I currently find there are no policy violations or any other reason to take any employment action against Matt. I hereby reinstate Lt. Matt McLeod to full duty status effective July 4, 2024.

Mayor, Council Members, City Manager, and HR,

First, I would like to thank Mr. Stewart for providing the email you all received and allowing me the opportunity to respond to the items that were "vented" to each of you. I spoke to this officer the day he turned in his resignation letter as I heard he had some issues with the leadership within the department and I wanted to hear firsthand what those issues were. I, of all people, do not throw stones as none of us are perfect, and I truly wish he would have given us all the opportunity to understand his issues before he had already decided to leave the department. I will also leave his name out of this email and speak to any of you individually if you'd like to know who it is that sent the email. I will go one section at a time to ensure I cover each issue thoroughly and as completely as possible.

- This officer was with our department for 2 years 8 months and did not have prior law enforcement experience. He has served in the Army Reserve in the capacity of First Sergeant, so he does have some life experience, but does not have the unique understanding that law enforcement brings by way of leadership challenges. In his early days with the department, he was identified as a "chronic complainer" by his peers, first line supervisors (sergeants), and middle managers (lieutenants). He regularly complained about the way fellow city employees were parking in the parking lot, confronted them, and threatened to write tickets. (We did have an issue with parking, but that was being handled through the department heads and City Manager and has gotten much better.) In my conversation with him, he told me he wanted his supervisors to tell him he was doing a good job on a regular basis and not just tell him what he does wrong. He claims he "did everything right" and he received the shotgun emails about what officers needed to fix. I would question that he did do everything right, but even if he did, some issues are addressed by explaining the problem and new procedure going forward (if something changes).

- To the point of our "very large paychecks" I would challenge that we conduct pay studies, market surveys, and have come a long way to competitively pay all of our employees. We do make more money as exempt employees, but we also do not get compensated with time or pay when we work extra hours, and every member of my Executive Team falls into this category and works more than 40 hours per week. I do not get any complaints from them, much like the City Manager does not get any complaints from me about the number of hours I work.

- The officer workspace is in the process of an upgrade, which is why the previous counter was torn out. We have a stainless-steel table ready for installation, but the stainless-steel wall covering that was supposed to be fabricated to assist in making it easy to clean and disinfect was not readily available as the vendor told us. Therefore, the project is on delay until that comes in. The fact that this officer would say that this space was for storing lunch boxes and “drugs are weighed” is exactly what we are trying to prevent. With the increase of fentanyl in our community, it is a terrible idea to store your lunch where you process your evidence and drugs. The possibility of contamination is high and that is a dangerous situation for all. We are putting in the stainless-steel table so any drug residue can easily be wiped off after completing the evidence processing.

- The carpet in the Chief and Captains offices was replaced in 2021, one year later than originally planned. This was due to areas damaged and frayed to the point it could no longer be vacuumed without wrapping strands of carpet into the vacuum cleaner. This was a hard decision for me to make as I wanted to avoid the perception, we are more important than our officers and other staff, but it was done out of necessity, not to make our area better than theirs. Quite the contrary, we have delayed projects because we don’t want to invest a lot of money into the building not knowing what may have to be remodeled when we take control of the entire complex.

- To the point of our lack of visiting with those among the ranks to solicit their input, this officer forgets that for 2 years of his 2 years and 8 months, we have been dealing with the Covid pandemic. This has caused eliminating briefings at various moments in time, reducing the meetings, and social distancing. These “meetings” take place in informal settings around the PD daily. Many days when I have plenty of work in my “cushy office” I choose to lead by wandering. This concept allows me to interact with my employees in their space and ask for feedback. During the process of deciding to remove the counter and deciding what was needed in that space, the 3 captains and I visited with a few officers who passed through the area, and we asked them what they needed and what would be better for them. That is leadership. The fact that he was not the one we asked does not diminish our efforts to solicit information in the moment of decision-making.

- Many times, leadership and management go hand in hand. I recently defined the levels of supervision within our department to ensure that everyone understood who the supervisors are. My Executive Team, made up of myself, 3 captains, 5 lieutenants, and the PSAP Manager, are at the level where we must both lead and manage daily. We cannot completely abandon the duty to manage our personnel and staffing or we would run the divisions into the ground and the service to the community would fail. The lieutenant has worked a number of days and nights and been on the street with his officers in that capacity. This occurred on days and times they should have been off, but was done to ensure the adequate coverage of patrol to the city, but again, I don’t know that this officer was working the same day to witness that taking place. The “patrol commander”, which is actually the Operations Commander, was also prepared to put on his duty gear and go to work where needed (part of his job) as we hit a spike in Covid cases in January when I address the Council about the situation at the Police Department. And, if needed, every one of my commanders and senior staff members know that I will drop what I am doing to lend a hand to accomplish our mission. To that end, each person in the department has their role to fill. They do their job as it has been assigned to them without question. Earlier this week I was on my way to refuel my vehicle and a welfare check was dispatched just a few blocks away. I could have easily continued with my plans, but instead, I responded with another officer and spoke with the person suffering from a medical condition. This is not uncommon for me, but one thing that is common when I make this decision is for an officer or sergeant to show up and say “take off, I got this” or something along those lines.

- Since there is a large paragraph about leadership, management, supervision, and promotion; I will try my best to cover this topic. All of you were briefed about the situation with the lieutenant who resigned her position with our department following an incident in a bar. This was not predicted or expected, she simply self-destructed and chose to move on to another career outside of law enforcement. That lieutenant had many good qualities and one of them was holding people accountable, which is the very thing this officer says isn’t happening. The reason some people did not like her was because they were held accountable. Then reading further into this officer’s complaint about leadership he talks about bringing issues to his current lieutenant and they go nowhere; the opposite to the previous issue and he’s also not happy with that response. I know all of you are aware that there are many types or styles of leadership. I firmly believe that our department is great because all our leaders are a little different. My Command Team each bring a variation of leadership qualities. My Executive Team also has a range of styles and qualities. Every leader is a person first, some have more experience, and some have less. I know you are also all aware that our department is young and inexperienced. The “kid” that he refers to was promoted to sergeant later in his career than Sgt. Noyes, who is referred to as one of the leaders he thinks is great. Both officers started their careers on the same day. I hired them both and know their potential. They will both be great leaders as they learn their role in the department.

- I think this officer speaks out of both sides of his mouth in reference to the lieutenants on patrol. First, he complains that the 2 lieutenants (under the old schedule) worked the overlap together and didn’t do anything except sit in the office and visit. I will admit, in some cases this was true, and we saw this as a waste of leadership. Lieutenants are administrators when they reach that level. At that time there were 3 lieutenants, one on each shift, and it seemed there was more middle management than needed to manage the Patrol Division. The lieutenants help schedule our personnel, manage personnel issues, address complaints from officers about workflow and equipment needs, and help make decisions that provide direction for our entire department. They are not patrol officers, but they will fill that role if necessary. Each department across the state and nation is a little different in how they operate, so I don’t think an outsider observing for a few hours really has the full scope of what our department is about. Now, there are 2 patrol lieutenants who work Monday – Friday and manage all day to day needs of the Patrol Division. They are not assigned to the Administration Division, but they are in an administrative role within the department. The sergeants are responsible for the supervision of the officers in the field and have been given the authority to make decisions, supervise, and lead their officers, a power that was stripped from them over the years and it is now being shifted back to them, so we truly utilize them as supervisors and leaders.

- The professional standards position was put in place shortly after I took over as Chief in 2020. This position is not outward facing. That lieutenant works directly for me and does more than review use of force reports. Some of his other duties include background checks of new employees, internal investigations, research and review of citizens complaints, policy review and recommendations, and exit interviews. He also works on projects as I assign them to him. If he ever hits a point where he doesn't have something to do, which is rare, he will ask me if I have anything that needs to be done. He is also the SWAT Commander, and that position allows him some time to ensure his team and their equipment is ready to go when needed.

- To the point about mental health, you all heard my desires for more funding in this area so we can ensure our officers get the care they need. Multiple meetings were held by the Operations Commander (who oversees patrol and dispatch) at various times and days where ONLY patrol officers were allowed to attend and speak with him. This officer did not attend any of those meetings.

- In this email he says "department training is laughable"; however, when he met with the Professional Standards Lieutenant for his exit interview, he said he feels the training he received was good. It appears he is either exaggerating how bad things are in the department or he really was not willing to address issues face-to-face within the department the way he claims he did. He never came to me with his problems or concerns, and all employees are told how the chain of command works. If their issue is not being addressed at the lowest level, elevate it to the next. If it's a serious issue that is not being addressed, talk to the chief. It's simple and I have never turned an employee away.

- To the point about comp time, the ability to earn comp time is not accurate. We have recognized that not controlling comp time only compounds our problem as the more time we give officers off when they are scheduled to work, the more overtime we pay to cover those shifts. Our supervisors do not deny staff from using their comp time unless it is requested near their scheduled shift and a replacement cannot be found to backfill their shift. Most officers look at the schedule and assume if their shift is at minimum, they choose on their own to not make the request. That is usually done out of respect for their fellow officers. All employees are under the same guidance pertaining to comp time and even through they may not get compensated with time, they are compensated with overtime pay. They are fairly compensated for their time worked.

- I would argue his point about lack of recognition by supervisors to the point that I had a plaque from the ND Peace Officers Association on my desk that I had just received earlier this week. This award was applied for by one of his patrol lieutenants and had just been granted by the NDPOA Board. I presented that award to him at the end of our conversation as I knew a more public or formal setting would not be possible since he was turning in his equipment the next day. Along with that, during the process of preparing his personnel file for HR, I also found other letters of recognition addressed to him.

- Last, but not least, this officer has made our department out to be a terrible place to work. So bad, it drove him to quit without having serious conversation with any of his supervisors. Most of his complaints were done in passing without having a direct conversation about the problem. His supervisors thought he was venting his frustration with some minor issues, not looking for solutions. To his point about his peers who could not provide him a reason someone should work here over another organization. I do not know the context that question was posed or who was asked, but as I stated earlier, he has been considered as a chronic complainer by even his peers. Maybe they did not want to provide a reason or maybe they have never taken time to ponder that question because they enjoy their employment here. That, we will never know. I can say this for sure. On January 31, 2022, we hired 3 new officers who are currently in training. All 3 of those officers came to us from other agencies in the State of ND. If it is so bad here, why would they choose Minot PD. Why give up the 7 years you already have vested in another agency? In the past few years, we have also hired a sergeant from Devils Lake PD, a deputy from Ward County SO who also had prior law enforcement experience, a trooper from the ND Highway Patrol, and a detective from the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Office. So again, I would ask each of you, if it is so bad here, why do they choose Minot PD for a career?

Once again, I would like to thank the City Manager for allowing me to provide each of you my point of view on the email you received. One thing he told me during my conversation on Wednesday was “This was never going to be my retirement gig. I’m done being a hero.” This was disturbing to me, and I simply told him if he was not happy here, then it was time for him to move on and find something that he was satisfied with. I have never thought I was a hero, and never will, regardless of what may happen the rest of my career.

I always welcome each of you into the Police Department at any time to observe how we operate. If any of you want to observe a meeting of my Executive Team or Command Team, please let me know and I will inform you as they are scheduled. My department does not function with one person or one division in mind. We each have important roles and responsibilities and many times those around us do not know every detail of our daily tasks. This officer focused on himself and patrol, but we have support staff, detectives, municipal court, dispatch, and many other responsibilities. I consider each of them when making my decisions to ensure the benefit of any change or decision is greater than the risk of making things worse. Have I gotten it wrong? Yes, I have, and I have adjusted and moved on to make it better. Sometimes failure is how we achieve success.

Thank you for your time and my apologies for such a lengthy letter of explanation, but I am very passionate about the police department, and I need to stand up for the great officers, staff, and leaders I get to work with every day.

Sincerely,

John Klug
Chief of Police

Krysta Becker

Officer 1 (no longer with dept.) – Referred to as officer A

- 9 yr officer – swat, sniper, Master officer
- '21/'22 – after responding to call (back in 2018/2019) – victim died in officer's arms – told by Chief Klug/Captain Sundheim – "if you need help for PTSD – go get it" – Tammy Ness is outside therapist. Ness also offered Chief any counselling help for any officer that needed it after Officer Blanchard's suicide. Chief 'blew her off'.
- Officer A was close friends with Officer Pat Blanchard who committed suicide in '22 as well...which undoubtedly added to PTSD issues.
- Officer A went outside department and found PTSD counselling in '22
- Being short staffed and other work/personal issues contributed to work deficiencies and in summer of '23 asked Chief Klug for mental health help – was given brochure to look in to for help.
- In Nov. '23 officer A had work incident where officer A yelled at citizen on a call about taking care of her child and was turned in by fellow officer...written up and Chief 'suggests' officer A received more help – so they find her a spot in a rehab facility in FL that – doesn't specialize in PTSD, but have counsellors that are trained in PTSD. Suggestion was actually – if you don't go, you won't have a job – kind of suggestion. After being threatened with job – officer A goes to counselling and returns back to work. Officer A received $4,000 bill for 30 day stay at treatment facility that was mainly for alcohol and drug addiction. Department mandated counselling – or officer A would lose job – department doesn't pay for counselling...this seems inappropriate and possibly retaliatory in nature.
- Officer A had confrontational relationship with MO Dan Batteiger – officer A says MO Batteiger is unethical, immoral and lies quite often. Provided multiple instances witnessed at work/during work.
    - This was the first instance from anyone in the Minot PD that I was made aware of MO Batteiger sleeping with a domestic violence victim – in which he was a responding officer to the DV call – within 48 hours of arresting victim's boyfriend/spouse. MO Boettiger's vehicle was at the victim's house at 13:30am 2 days after call...no lights on. Reported to Sgt Noyes. Sgt Noyes askes MO Batteiger about it and is told by MO Batteiger "I was just over there as a friend; I had given her my card and she needed to talk to someone". Sgt Noyes reported up chain of command to Lt. McCloud that two officers had seen MO Batteiger's vehicle at the victim's house, but Batteiger told Sgt Noyes that he wasn't there as anything other than a friend. As it went up the chain (admitted to Chief and Cpt Sundheim that he had in fact slept with the victim) – officer Batteiger was ultimately disciplined with a 3-day suspension from the department for sleeping with victim, but never spoken to about lying to his Sgt.
    - At this point officer A told me about other instances within the department where officers were caught lying and not fired – Summerville instance came up amongst multiple officers I spoke with. All said that Summerville lied multiple times, was written up and suspended, but not fired. All of them, past and present, indicated things like that that happen, hurt moral of the dept as most officers didn't believe this was good behavior for a fellow officer.

  - Officer A brought up ND POST Board Code of Ethics they sign and pointed to instances that, under ND POST Board rules, would be offenses that the POST Board would remove your license for.
  - Officer A also brought up other instances MO Batteiger was counselled, disciplined or suspended for – including failure to adequately train K9 Cyrus for drug detection on a monthly basis, a ATV pursuit complaint in which he lied about how many cars he passed during pursuit (told Sgts 7-8 cars, camera footage showed him passing roughly 80 cars), not following up on cases that are assigned to him and lastly losing of 15.7 grams of DEA grade heroine used for training of our Minot PD drug dogs.
- After the Nov. '23 incident where officer A yelled at citizen about taking care of kids – officer A went to counselling "suggestion" and came back to work. Was suspended for 6 months from Swat team as a sniper, but was told she was NOT in trouble. Chief did say he was disappointed in officer A for "always trying to point out the liars in the department. We are not the morality police". Sgt Strandemo (SWAT Commander) – wrote letter to have officer A removed from team because she spoke with officer who reported her about the yelling (not confrontational – per the officer) and that she pulled out a riot shield during a call – because "it looks bad to use swat gear on a call that doesn't need it". Chief also screamed at officer A for speaking with reporting officer about yelling incident.
- It was at this point that officer A requested to not work with MO Batteiger any further as, in her words, "I didn't feel safe and I didn't know if I showed up on scene, if he was doing something legal or illegal". Officer A was told by Chief (this occurred during counselling for PTSD sessions) "you will work with him or you won't have a job". Officer A was very upset in her own words.
- On 5/3 of this year, Chief requires officer A to take a Fitness for Duty Exam. Outside clinical psychologist Katherine Kuhlman was picked to be the examiner. On or about 5/20 of this year, Chief requires (given in suggestion form again – as in sign this or you won't have a job) officer A to sign 'records release' for all of her outside therapy sessions – including all therapist notes on what officer A said in session. Outside therapist Tammy Ness is upset at request as it ignores patient/client privilege. Why these records would be requested is quite alarming to me...if we have selected someone to judge officer's mental fitness...why would we need other therapist's records?
- Officer A was put on administrative leave while waiting for results for FFDE with Katherine Kuhlman.
- FFDE comes back from Kuhlman and indicates that officer is FIT FOR DUTY – but because of the past PTSD issues, may require 3 accommodations/actions that will help officer A (attached with this document) item 1. Officer A was decorated multiple times by city and department for her work/service. Also held significant amounts of training/certifications/qualifications that we as a city paid for. That is attached as well, item 2.
- I asked officer A if any of the accommodations that were suggested were applied to help – she indicated that nothing Kuhlman suggested was put into place. Instead, Sgt. Ruell was directed to report on all of officer A's daily activities to make sure things were going ok. Sgt. Ruell did the daily reports for a while, but then stopped because officer A was having no issues and so reports were not needed.

- During this same time, Cpt. Sundheim added a letter to officer A's personnel file (not HR but hidden one within the dept.) stating officer A was on a PIP, but it wasn't really a PIP in Cpt's words.
- I asked officer A why she was speaking up now – she said because she had left the department and they couldn't do anything to her any longer and that she still cared very much about the dept and her friends still working there. She indicated other people would speak up – but were worried about retaliation from brass, as they had all seen how Sgt. Schoenrock was treated for speaking up to/against brass.
- Main take-aways from this interview -- officer A reported inconsistent discipline within the department (favorites played), Poor communication from the senior brass, getting into trouble for reporting ethical, moral issues of other officers, no transparency within the depart. And not taking appropriate actions with regards to some officers' unethical behavioral issues.
- At end of interview officer, A also spoke about an incident that happened when Amy Evans (who I believe still works for the city) was hired on. Evans was identified in a hit and run report as the offending party. This was shortly after Evans had been hired by the city as an animal control officer. Officer A was attempting to issue warrant/citation for Evans so other citizen could get insurance claim made. The following morning officer A was pulled into Cpt. Sundbakken's office and told that they would not be pursuing this issue as it would be embarrassing to the city as this was now a city employee. Officer A objected because citizen needed this to get insurance claim filed. There has been some discrepancy about how long after the incident this happened... officer indicated within a few days – brass has told others it was the following month.

5. The following accommodations/actions will help support Ms. Becker in her return to work, as well as her potential to return to SWAT:

    a. If possible, Ms. Becker should be allowed to continue education and training related to SWAT and sniper duties. This will reduce feelings of being ousted, decrease anxiety and feelings of betrayal, and increase confidence. Allowing her to train will also allow supervisors and colleagues to monitor behavior, witness growth, increase their confidence, and identify any concerns in a less risky environment.
    b. In her first three months back, Ms. Becker should be allowed breaks upon return to work if she finds herself anxious or needing to self-regulate. If possible, she should be given time for her appointments with mental health providers.
    c. A member of the Peer Support team should check-in with Ms. Becker weekly for one month, then biweekly for one month, then transition to as needed or upon Ms. Becker's outreach. The individual doing the outreach should be someone that Ms. Becker trusts or can trust but is not a friend.

6. Once Ms. Becker returns to work and maintains engagement in treatment, it should be explained to her that she is therefore responsible for managing her mental health and stress and is therefore responsible for performing the duties of a Master Police Officer.

The information provided in this report was based solely on the psychological interview, psychological testing, and limited collateral information. It is not the purpose of this assessment to make recommendations regarding the RETENTION OF THE INDIVIDUAL BEING ASSESSED. Fitness for duty ratings are not permanent indicators. Fitness can vary based on triggering events and actions taken by the individual or by the Minot Police Department.

This level of Fitness for Duty is based on the assumption that the information provided by Ms. Becker was accurate and honest. If possible, this information should be validated for accuracy. If the Minot Police Department is aware of any discrepancies in Ms. Becker's self-report, then her level of fitness may be different than identified in this report.

The information provided in this report is extremely confidential and should only be released to the individuals named in the release of the information sheet. If this report is distributed to any other people, Ms. Becker should be contacted for her permission.

Re: Concerns and Assignments

Officer Becker,

This letter outlines several concerns with your performance over the past few months, some changes to your roles, and a path forward to help you succeed.

Before going into each area, I think it is important to outline the trust I have instilled in each of your career endeavors. You have been assigned to Crisis Negotiations, SWAT (Sniper Team), and as a Field Training Officer. Each of these requires specialized training to be successful, and my trust in your ability to effectively carry out these roles has been extended.

Concerns:

- Confrontational and rude with members of the public.
- Unwilling to work with officers who you perceive to be "bad officers".
- Lack of humility when speaking with supervisors and peers.
- Inability to separate roles. (sniper tactics in patrol setting)
- Confrontational with supervisors and peers.
- Inability or unwillingness to separate supervisor/friend relationships at work.
- Inability to maintain emotional control when work performance is addressed in work settings.

Action steps:

- Resolve ongoing conflict with supervisors and peers.
- Reflect on your performance conversations with supervisors and peers.
    - Consider outcomes and ask yourself if you could have handled them differently.
- Build professional relationships with coworkers based on trust and respect.
- Talk to members of the public respectfully and with empathy.
    - Remember your negotiations training and active listening skills.

AG-2

Roles & Reassignment:

- Reassigned to Day Shift effective immediately.
- Suspended from SWAT – Sniper/Observer until October 1, 2024
  - Training only (no callouts) until January 1, 2025, or 3 months after suspension is listed.
  - Both timelines are based on an independent evaluation of overall performance and attitude by Sniper Team Leader and SWAT Team Commander.
- Suspended from role as Field Training Officer until October 1, 2024.
  - Timeline is based on an independent evaluation of overall performance and corrections to the areas of concern listed above by FTO Coordinator.

As the Chief of Police, I must be able to trust that the officers I have assigned to high-risk roles are able to perform to their best. To operate in these areas of our department requires a person whose attitude and performance displays a willingness to follow every lawful order issued by those in supervisory roles. At this time, I do not have confidence in Officer Becker in these areas based on my observations and the observations of several of her supervisors. For this reason, I will make the final approval before any suspension is lifted or role reassigned.

On 7/3/24, I assigned Master Officer Becker to the same area as Master Officer Batteiger. Krysta was told by Sgt Schoenrock on 6/28/24 that this was my plan for the day. I spoke with all of the officers during briefing the morning of 7/3/24 and notified of the assignments as I usually do, which is my handing a piece of paper to the nearest officer. Following briefing, I was available in the Shift Supervisors office and I saw Krysta come in and sign out a LiDAR for the shift.

A short while later, Sgt Asham told me she was speaking with Krysta and she may be out of service for a while. Later in the morning, Lt Wegner told me Krysta was going home for the day.

On or around 4/19/2024, I had a discussion with Krysta regarding how I intended to help her succeed. I provided her with a copy of the plan, titled "Key issues.JS revised". Part of this discussion was how to work with other officers regardless of our personal feelings towards them. Additionally, we spoke about perception vs reality in regards to others' personnel actions and to focus what was within our control. I also told her that I would assign her to the same area as Batteiger at some point, but I would tell her before I did so, which is why she was told on 6/28/24.

I told Krysta I expect her to act professional with other officers, but would not require her to be friends with or act friendly with anyone. I was told by Sgt Schoenrock that Krysta indicated to him that she can't trust Batteiger and would hesitate to provide assistance to him if he was in a physical altercation with someone. I chose to assign them to the same area because I need to evaluate her performance with all officers on shift, regardless of personal relationships. Additionally, I need her to trust all other officers while on shift and to know they all trust her. This would be difficult to observe if Krysta's calls for service rarely are shared with Batteiger.

Working through conflict was discussed with her on multiple occasions. This is one area of her performance where I have not seen improvement. Other areas of improvement addressed with her have been at or above acceptable levels, so, I believed this was the next appropriate step.

Master Officer Krysta Becker,

This letter is to outline my understanding of the conversation we had on July 3, 2024, when you came to my office at around 9:10am. You explained you were not able to work with Dan, referring to Dan Batteiger, which led to a conversation that lasted about 45 minutes. I think it is important to put my understanding of the conversation and the outcome into a written response to ensure clarity and understanding of the conversation and outcomes.

You explained that you did not want to share all the reasons you can't work with him as it was your "personal business". I explained that I understood, but I cannot justify any further assignment changes without understanding why you couldn't work with him. You explained that you understood, and that you could work the same shift, but not the same side of town, as you do not trust him (Batteiger).

We continued our conversation, and you said you had looked at other employment opportunities as you wanted to be happy to come to work. After several minutes of conversation, you explained that you really like working for the PD, and the reason you haven't left is that you were holding out for him to "fuck up" because you "know it is going to happen". I mentioned I needed to know all my officers could work together because it was sure to happen whether it was tomorrow or ten years from now. Officer Becker responded clearly that it did not matter, she would never be able to work with Batteiger.

I explained to you very clearly that I could not have employees on the team who could not work with each other, and that I was disappointed in the fact you wanted a fellow employee to fail. I also explained that as a Master Officer, you should be setting an example and coaching others to success, and that you need to step up and put the past behind you.

The reason for this letter is to respond to your request not to be assigned to work in the same area of town as Officer Batteiger. I gave my initial response, but I wanted to let you know this is not a request I can fulfill as we need to be able to work with each other and I cannot guarantee this situation will not arise.

I spoke to you about reviewing the schedule and trying to gain an understanding of the whole situation. Once again, I cannot fulfill any schedule changes at this time.

After we met, I learned that Sgt. Ruelle informed you, through a message relayed by Sgt. Schoenrock, that you would be working with Officer Batteiger on the same side of town on July 3rd. This was also a point he covered with you when he was assigned to help you correct some of the performance issues you had. I also learned that you had once again informed Sgt. Schoenrock that you can't trust Batteiger and would hesitate to provide assistance if he was in a physical altercation with someone. This is something you have also indicated similarly to me in a conversation about your lack of trust in Batteiger.

This was concerning when I first heard about it, but I knew it was a work in progress and at the time you were not working on the same shift, so the risk was low. Hearing that this is still your thought, and you are now working on the same shift, my concern is greater as there is also increased risk.

In my meeting with Sgt. Ruelle, I explained that there needs to be a short break in assigning you to the same side of town, but he needs to continue to evaluate your ability to work with all police employees. This is not only about your trust in another officer, but our need to trust that you will help all officers equally.

In conclusion, here are the key points you need to understand from this letter:

1. There will not be another change to days off or schedules to prevent you from working with Officer Batteiger.
2. You will be assigned to the same side of town in the next several weeks. This will be at the discretion of Sgt. Ruelle.
3. If you fail to respond or assist Officer Batteiger or any other officer, you will be subject to discipline in accordance with department policies and procedures.

If you have any questions or concerns about the information included in this letter, please contact me and we will address them.

RE: Phone call with Master Officer Krysta Becker

HR Generalist Courtney Scott advised Lisa Jundt, HR Director, and myself that Mst Officer Krysta Becker had been in her office and was extremely distraught regarding an emailed memo she received this morning from Chief Klug. Scott said that Becker was crying and upset regarding the statements in the memo about her expected performance and felt she was being forced to work with Mst Officer Batteiger. Scott stated that Becker had left her office to report back to patrol duty. After discussing Becker's disposition upon her exit in more detail, I called Mst Officer Becker to gauge her mental status and ability to perform her duties as a police officer.

When talking to Becker, she was audibly shaken and anxious about information contained in the memo from Chief Klug. I explained to Becker that I was very concerned about her mental well-being and that she should not be working on patrol in her present state of mind. She responded that she had been working in that state of mind for the past several months and was able to "handle it". She told me that work has done this to her and as long as she doesn't have to work with Batteiger everything will be fine. I advised Becker that it was not fine and that she should go home for the day. She again attempted to reassure me that she was capable of working patrol, but as she was still audibly crying and distressed, I said she was not in any condition to respond to calls and that she was to return to the police station and then go home. I advised her I would call the Sergeant on duty and let them know she had been sent home and call her back.

Upon ending the call with Becker, I attempted to call Sergeant Matt McLeod and then Captain Justin Sundheim but was unable to reach either officer. I then called Chief John Klug and relayed to him that I had sent Becker home for the day. He thanked me for the information and stated he would let the Sergeant on duty know. I requested to discuss the situation further with the Chief and we determined that we would talk later that afternoon due to scheduling conflicts in the morning.

I called Mst Officer Becker back and told her that I had notified her supervisor and that I would be looking into the allegations she had made on Friday, July 12th, to Brittany Thurston, Senior HR Generalist.

At approximately 2:00 pm, Chief Klug and Captain Sundheim came to my office and we were joined by Lisa Jundt. We discussed the conversations and recent encounters with Mst Officer Becker and expressed our concern with her well-being and ability to perform her duties on patrol, specifically as it related to any interactions involving Batteiger. We inquired as to the frequency of their working together and any knowledge of past conflict between Becker and Batteiger. Klug and Sundheim confirmed that there were times when Becker and Batteiger were assigned work on the same day and there was no way to guarantee they would not encounter one another during the course of regular duty. They also informed us of prior conversations they had with Becker regarding her attitude at work towards Batteiger as well as other officers. Klug and Sundheim shared our concern about her mental state and conveyed that they didn't know what further adjustments to the schedule could be made without serious detriment to the rest of the department.

Klug acknowledged that Batteiger had performance concerns in the past that had been investigated and addressed. He agreed that Batteiger's past behavior had significant flaws but noted that the Police Department's leadership team felt that Batteiger had made significant strides to correct and repair his job performance. Jundt conveyed that the recent allegations Becker made about Batteiger were serious and that it was the duty of HR to look further into the situation to determine if there was, in fact, wrong-doing on the part of Batteiger as it related to inappropriate sexual conduct with fellow officers.

AJ-2

As a group, we reviewed the patrol schedule for the remainder of the week and noticed that Batteiger and Becker were both scheduled to work on Friday, July 19th. I noted that while we are looking into the allegations, we may want to allow Becker to use PTO for that day if she was uncomfortable working the same day as Batteiger. All parties agreed that would be acceptable if Mst Officer Becker requested the option for July 19th. It was also noted that because the State Fair is in town, there is additional strain on the Police Department and the staffing resources are already sparse. There was no way to prevent either officer from picking up additional shifts that may overlap with the other.

Chief Klug and Captain Sundheim left my office at approximately 2:40.

RE: Phone call with Officer Tatum Stebleton

Officer Stebleton returned my phone call and I advised that I was following up on some concerns regarding fellow officer's interactions with peers and senior officers. I asked Stebleton if she had experienced any interactions that she felt were inappropriate or uncomfortable. She responded that she had not had any encounters that she felt were inappropriate and was not aware of anyone else. She stated she had not noticed any behavior that she felt was out of line and had not had any situations or circumstances that were uncomfortable.

I thanked her for her time and reminded her that if there were ever any concerns, she should report behaviors to either her supervisor or HR.

RE: Meeting with Master Officer Krysta Becker

Master Officer Krysta Becker came to my office to further discuss her discomfort and unwillingness to work with Master Officer Batteiger. She brought her tablet with her to document our conversation and stated she was not recording anything, but wanted to keep notes for herself.

Becker brought forth her examples of Batteiger's misconduct and dishonesty in the past, citing the following situations:

- In 2022, a group of officers were in Albertville for a work-related event. When Becker arrived, Battegier told her to "follow my lead", and made comments to the rest of the group to insinuate that Becker and Batteiger were having a sexual relationship. He also made loud disparaging and derogatory comments about the waitresses at the restaurant the group was eating at that evening.
- In 2022, Batteiger was having an affair with a victim and lied to Becker about the nature of his relationship with her. Becker had video footage from her home showing the victim entering and interacting with Batteiger as Batteiger was living with Becker at the time.
- In 2022, Batteiger lied about officer availability and responded to calls directly involving friends of the victim that he was sleeping with.
- In December of 2022, Batteiger stole money from the night shift fund. Donations had been gathered for Christmas gifts from officers on the night shift and Batteiger took the money, but didn't purchase any gifts.
- In 2023, Batteiger lost drugs and had pulled Becker aside to talk to her after the investigation. He made excuses and tried to convince her it wasn't his fault and Becker felt that his demeanor was "coming at her".
- In 2024, Batteiger has made attempts to be alone with the new female officers in situations such as inviting them to the shooting range for extra help/training when they are off-duty. She noted he had targeted Peggy Pfeiffer, but luckily Tatum Stableton had invited herself along so he wasn't alone with Pfeiffer.

Sergeant Taylor Jensen had documented Batteiger's dishonesty and submitted it to leadership and Becker had also turned in her documentation to Sergeant Josh Noyes. Becker stated that she couldn't continue to be in situations where Batteiger was present and didn't want to be around when he "fucked up" next. She was extremely upset and agitated about the way that situations had been ignored in the past and felt that no one was doing anything about Batteiger.

I asked Becker if there had been any recent issues with Dan as most of the situations she told me about were from months or years in the past and had already been addressed. She stated that she didn't have any other information that she could share. I let Becker know that there was nothing illegal any romantic or personal relationships that were consensual between Batteiger and other officers. I also asked her if there had been any sexual relationship in the past between herself and Batteiger which she emphatically denied. I told Becker that I felt there was information she was not telling me and she confirmed the fact but said she was unwilling to share any more than she already had. I told her I was trying to understand what was triggering her about Master Officer Batteiger and she stated that she couldn't answer me right now. I assured her that my main goal was that everyone was able to work in a professional and respectful manner and that I took her distress very seriously. I expressed my concern for her mental well-being and her ability to continue functioning with such extreme distress.

Becker said that she couldn't do it anymore and needed to find another job. She shared that she had reached out to Ward County and that she just wanted to keep the peace until she had a different job. Becker was adamant that she could not work with Dan at all anymore. She recounted the call from last week, on July 11th, when there was a cyclist/vehicle accident that both she and Batteiger had responded to. She noted that she had almost no interaction with Batteiger but had been unable to stop herself from being "...a dick" to other people on the scene and it was because of Batteiger's presence alone. She also stated that she didn't want to work with him at all and asked about Friday, July 19th as they were both scheduled to work that day. I let her know that I was prepared to offer that day off as PTO and had already anticipated the request. I entered PTO into the schedule for Becker on that day and let her know that we were making the exception for July 19th to allow time to look into her recent allegations, but that I couldn't guarantee that she wouldn't ever be on a call with Batteiger. I reminded her that because the department was already short staffed and with the State Fair coming up the staffing needs were already higher than normal. Becker asked several times what would happen if she refused to work on a day that Dan was scheduled and I advised her that if it came to that, she would be disciplined, most likely with a suspension, but up to termination.

I let Becker know that I would follow up with her before the end of the week and that I would recap our conversation in an email to ensure we had the same understanding. She left my office at approximately 2:30 pm.

RE: Meeting with Sergeant Josh Noyes

I left a message with Sgt Noyes at 12:20 pm today requesting that he call or stop by my office to answer a few questions. At approximately 1:40 pm, he arrived at HR and entered my office. I explained to Sgt Noyes that I was looking for his observations and impressions of the conduct and interactions of some of the PD officers; specifically, Master Officer Dan Batteiger and Master Officer Krysta Becker. I explained that there had been some concerns brought forth about the nature of the interactions between Batteiger and other officers and/or citizens.

I asked Sgt Noyes if he had observed any inappropriate actions or comments on the part of Mst Officer Batteiger. Noyes stated that he had not directly observed any inappropriate behavior between Batteiger and anyone else, however he had indirect knowledge of other forms of misconduct that he felt was highly inappropriate and terminable offenses. Noyes shared that he felt the Police Department in general was slow to make corrections to officer behavior and it often seemed that too many chances were given and/or infractions allowed before any real consequences were enforced. He gave several examples of behavior on the part of Batteiger that he felt had crossed the line and should have been disciplined more severely, including:

- Misuse and deficiencies as K9 officer
- "Stolen" Christmas money with no gifts purchased from night shift donations
- Drugs missing, leading to a DEA investigation
- Inappropriate relationship with victim immediately following service call (within 36 hours)

Sgt Noyes also observed that while he did not agree with the way the situations had been handled, the outcome had been that Batteiger had made significant changes in his behavior and was doing well. He acknowledged that while he did not want to have any connection to Batteiger outside the department, he felt Batteiger was performing well at work and didn't have any continuing concerns about his ability to trust him as an officer of the law. When asked about his willingness to work with Batteiger, Noyes responded that he was confident in Batteiger's assessments and judgement on scene and felt he was a "team player". Noyes mentioned several times that he did not prefer to interact with Batteiger outside of the Police Department, but was completely comfortable working with him.

When asked about his observations on the performance of Mst Officer Becker, Sgt Noyes expressed that he felt conflicted with Becker as they had a friendship outside of work as well as a co-worker and even a direct report relationship within work at one time. He acknowledged that there were some details of Becker's life and performance that were outside the scope of his role as a supervisor/co-worker and he would not share. Noyes stated that he believed Becker to be an excellent police officer but that her mental health had been affecting her performance in the past several months specifically as it related to her interactions with Batteiger. He agreed that there were pieces of information that hadn't been shared that may explain Becker's reaction to Batteiger, but was not able to divulge those details. He was able to disclose that in his opinion, her removal from the sniper role on SWAT had been a major hindrance to her ability to mend her overall performance and attitude at work. He noted that she viewed it as a punishment rather than a tool to reduce stress. When asked about his willingness to work with Becker, Noyes remarked that he felt confident in her abilities as long as Batteiger wasn't around and she wasn't having a bad day. When pressed, he further explained that on her bad days, regardless of who she was working with, she would get "snippy" with people around her whether it was her fellow officers or citizens involved in the scene.

Sgt Noyes agreed that Mst Officer Becker was not able to be objective about Mst Officer Batteiger. He also agreed with Becker's assessment of his Batteiger's past behavior, but felt that the corrective actions taken by Batteiger had the desired results and his performance as an officer was good. Additionally, Noyes stated that he felt that Becker could get back on track with her performance if she continued her current course of treatment and didn't have any future interactions with Batteiger. He also recognized that was unlikely given the size of the department and the current staffing level.

Sgt Noyes also gave examples of other officers within the PD that had lied in the past, which affected their credibility as officers both in the department and in court and cited examples of misconduct that he felt had not been handled properly. Several examples of issues being "swept under the rug", or inconsistent consequences were given. Noyes said that communication was also lacking in regards to follow-up with information/concerns presented, following the chain of command for conflict, and overall interaction with all officers.

He relayed that he felt strongly that the sworn officers took a vow that required a high level of integrity and character that was lacking for some officers which brought down the morale of the entire department. Noyes relayed that he believed he would most likely spend his career at the City of Minot, and was cognizant that while he didn't agree with every decision from leadership, he liked the department overall. He said that there would always be things that could be improved, but he had been able to achieve his goals up to this point and felt he had the resources and opportunities to continue that path forward. His main concerns for the department and areas of improvement were in Communication, Transparency and Consistency.

Sgt. Noyes left my office at approximate 3:10 pm.

Subject: Yesterday's Discussion

Good morning, Krysta.

Thank you for coming to my office yesterday afternoon to speak with me. I wanted to recap our conversation to ensure that we are both on the same page with the current situation and options that we discussed.
Please let me know if there are any areas that you understood differently or have further questions about and we can clarify those together.

You stated that you were uncomfortable with the upcoming shift on Friday as you may encounter Master Officer Batteiger. I advised you that I had anticipated this request and was prepared to enter PTO for you on Friday, July 19th. I had already spoken with Chief Klug about allowing you to use PTO that day as I am still conducting my investigation regarding the concerns you brought forth on Friday, July 12th. While you were in my office, I entered 10 hours of PTO in your schedule for Friday, July 19th. This absence will be considered excused and is not counted as an unscheduled absence. This is a one-time exception and will not be repeated. You asked what the consequences would be if you refused to work on a shift/day that Dan was also scheduled and I stated that you would be disciplined most likely with a suspension or possibly termination.

You were clear that you want to find another job and are requesting that you not have any contact with Batteiger until that time. It is my understanding that currently you and Batteiger are working the same shift, but not on the same days other than a 1 day per week overlap. I have also been advised from Chief Klug that you are not being assigned to the same area of town on those days; however, the limited size of the PD staff and the relatively small size of Minot make it impossible to guarantee that you will not come into contact with him during the regular course of duties. It puts an unreasonable strain on the rest of the department at a time when we are already short staffed with limited scheduling resources. There is no way to ensure that if a situation were to arise that required additional officers, you and Batteiger would not both be present. You expressed concern to me that you would not be able to trust him in a situation like that, yet you have recently stated that you would not assist Batteiger if he were in a physical altercation with someone. I pointed out that you are implying the same behavior in yourself that you are skeptical of in Batteiger. You also stated to me yesterday that you are never sure if he "...has something going on," with some of the criminals you are interacting with and I found that to be very alarming considering there is no evidence provided to support that statement.

As we went over today, the specific interactions at work that you have recounted for me were both situations that occurred several months or years ago and you did not share any negative conduct or exchanges between yourself and Batteiger in the recent months. In addition, after the last exchange several months ago was addressed with Batteiger, there have been no further occurrences that you are able to recount to me. Any interactions that you have had with Officer Batteiger within that time frame were purely coincidental while on duty and you have both kept a wide berth from one another. You also acknowledged that you were not acting professionally while around Batteiger as recently as Thursday, July 11th, during a vehicle/pedestrian accident despite no misconduct or behavior on his part. You were, in your words, "...a dick." I asked what actions or words Batteiger used that was triggering this reaction from you and you told me that you couldn't answer that question. You also admitted that you have other information about Batteiger that you are not willing to divulge. Without all the information, it is impossible for me or anyone else to make the same conclusions that you are reaching. Based on the evidence that has been provided up to this point, any prior concerns have been addressed and there has not been continuing behavior. As much as I would like to understand your position, we can only go off of facts that have been revealed and confirmed.

AJ-9

I would like to receive all of the information in order to do the best job possible at uncovering the truth; however, it is not my intention to coerce or pressure you into revealing information you do not want to share. Your concerns about the integrity and possible sexual misconduct of Master Officer Batteiger are being taken seriously. I will continue to investigate the information you have shared with me so far and will follow up with you again on Thursday, July 18th. The goal of myself and HR is to be able to provide a work environment where you are treated professionally and respectfully by all. I hope that it goes without saying that is the expectation for every officer and employee within the City of Minot.

I am deeply concerned about your well-being, Krysta, and believe that it is in the best interests of the not only you, but the Police Department and the entire City of Minot that we find resolution as expediently as possible. You have shared that you are pursuing employment with the Ward County Sheriff's Office and if that is what you have determined is best for you, I understand and support your efforts. In the meantime, the expectation is that all parties will continue to conduct themselves professionally and follow protocol and policy at all times while on duty.

Once again, please let me know if there is any critical information that I may have missed or misunderstood from our conversations.
I am open to further discussion and want to provide all the resources available to you.

Respectfully,

~Monica

RE: Investigative Summary with Krysta Becker

Mst Officer Krysta Becker came to my officer per my request from Friday, July 19th. I informed Becker that I had concluded my investigation from the previous week and presented her with the Investigative Summary (attached). She read the summary and I asked her if she had any questions. She stated that there was nothing we could do, but that she could do something and that was to get another job and she was working on it.

I let her know that we had talked to multiple people and that it was our determination that there wasn't any substantial or new information to act upon or warrant further investigation. She acknowledged that she knew we had talked with people and completed an investigation. I asked her if she felt she was able to continue working knowing there wouldn't be any changes to the current schedule or staffing. She stated that she was going to continue doing her job regardless of who was working or what the situation was. I noted that during our conversation last week she had not been able to express that same sentiment and it was a "red flag" when she stated she would not work with Mst Officer Batteiger or assist him if he were in trouble. Becker clarified that she would assist anyone who was in trouble or needed help and would perform her duties as an officer of the law.

Becker also stated that she was continuing to seek employment elsewhere and asked about any future time-off requests as it pertained to her schedule. I replied that any future time-off requests would be weighed solely on the staffing needs of the department and whether or not Batteiger was working would play no part in the decision. She asked if I would put that in writing for her and I agreed that I would.

I informed Becker that she was an excellent officer and the City of Minot was losing a wonderful asset, but I understood that she felt she needed to move on. Mst Officer Becker was calm and composed throughout our meeting. Becker thanked me for my time and left my office at approximately 2:10 pm.

Returned Peggy's voicemail and left another message to return call.

2:10 pm

Officer Pfeiffer returned my call. I asked about her overall experience within the police department and if there had been any negative experiences with anyone. She stated that she has had a very positive experience and that several officers stood out as being helpful and good teachers. When asked to identify some of the people that had been positively assisting her, she mentioned two names specifically: Jordan Wilkes as an excellent teacher with a good attitude, and Dan Batteiger. I stated to Peggy that as a police officer, the department was generally dominated by males and I wanted to ensure that she wasn't experiencing any discrimination or harassment. Officer Pfeiffer stated that she had been pleasantly surprised by the atmosphere at the Police Department and had no concerns whatsoever. She said that she appreciated the follow up on the part of HR and was glad we had reached out.

RE: Allegations against Master Officer Dan Batteiger

Beginning on Friday, July 12th, you reported to Brittany Thurston, Senior HR Generalist, that you had concerns about your safety at work and the conduct of Master Officer Dan Batteiger. You restated those concerns to me on Monday, July 15th and again when we met on Tuesday, July 16th. During these meetings, you cited several examples of his behavior that you felt were sexually inappropriate towards yourself and/or other officers. In addition, you indicated a lack of integrity on the part of Batteiger within the Police Department.

All allegations are taken seriously and it is the intention of the Human Resource Department to thoroughly investigate all claims of misconduct as it relates to the employees of the City of Minot. After interviewing the parties involved, there were no assertions by any party of unwanted or inappropriate actions or comments on the part of Batteiger other than your complaint regarding sexual comments made in an isolated incident approximately 2 years ago. In addition, based on all the information provided and upon review of personnel files, we have determined that while Batteiger has had performance and policy violations in the past, all issues have been previously addressed by the leadership team of the Police Department and corrective measures were taken. By all accounts, Batteiger has responded appropriately to these measures. While you may not agree with the decisions made in regards to Mst Officer Batteiger's past performance, there is no evidence to support further corrective or disciplinary action at this time.

In regards to your work assignments and performance management conversations with the leadership team at the Police Department, it has also been determined that the actions taken were in the interests of providing the best possible environment for your success. Your contributions to the Police Department and City of Minot as a whole are valued. It is our expectation that all parties move forward in a professional and mutually beneficial manner.

Sincerely,

July 17, 2024

Discussion with Sergeant Taylor Jensen concerning potential issues with Master Officer Dan Batteiger.

- Sergeant Jensen stated she does not currently work the same shift with Officer Batteiger; however, she has not had any recent issues with him on patrol when she has come into contact with him.
- Sergeant Jensen relayed issues concerning Batteiger's personal/marital problems from the past which have since been resolved. She also mentioned issues concerning Officer Batteiger's relationship with a victim for which he was disciplined, and other issues that he has been disciplined for.
- Sergeant Jensen stated she is aware Officer Battegier has lied to other officers in the past and has several disciplinary actions against him. She does not understand the progressive discipline that was used for Officer Batteiger's past issues and believed it was not severe enough. She stated other officers in the department felt the same.
- She relayed that she had provided documentation in the past to Lieutenant Chapman concerning Officer Batteiger's mishandling of the canine in his care. She knows this has been resolved with the canine no longer in Batteiger's control.
- Sergeant Jensen said she knows Officer Krysta Becker has a high moral standard and has had issues with Officer Batteiger in the past. Sergeant Jensen, however, stated she did not understand why Officer Becker could not find a way to work with Officer Batteiger despite her issues.
- Sergeant Jensen said she is not aware of any other officers having recent issues with Officer Batteiger and/or his work performance.
- Sergeant Jensen said she would not have a problem working with Officer Batteiger and always keeps her interactions professional with all her co-workers.

Lisa Jundt

Lisa Jundt

Officer 2 and Officer 3 (both prior Minot PD officers, current FOP reps) #2 Kirton #3 Aaron Kassian Moss

- During this first meeting I met with the local chapter and state Fraternal Order of Police reps. They spoke about multiple issues within the department – both explained different issues that ultimately forced them to make the decision to leave the department.
- Both of these officers were with Minot PD for a long time – both had no issues prior to Chief Klug taking over the PD. Both previous officers pointed out inconsistencies with discipline, getting in trouble for small things (one of the officers was the community outreach officer and had been for 4-5 years....he received a reprimand for scheduling the PD to be at the second Juneteenth event here in Minot...was called into Cpt Sundbakken's office and told that he needs approval before they get the dept. into events that could be considered controversial – asked why this event would be controversial – no answer given), lack of support for the officers from brass (they just sit in their offices or are never there), poor communication from upper leadership and the 'changing goalposts' that is the promotions board within the department.
- The FOP reps also handed me a letter from the FOP detailing the issues they see with the department. Most of the issues listed on the FOP letter were with regards to officer's wage changes, PTO/OT changes, insurance changes, etc. Item 3 is attached.
- Both prior officers indicated that current brass does not like to be questioned or have to answer any how/why questions. Cited a few personal instances where either of them would ask Chief or Cpt Sundheim about maybe looking at changing something or adding a new policy that would help with efficiency, job duties etc. – always met with "this is the way we've always done it." If they asked to many questions or suggested to "harshly" about why brass didn't think it would work, they would be reprimanded by brass or yelled at.
- Both officers spoke about the lying that went on while they were in the department. Some people would be fired for lying (Clouse and Wilke both fired for lying to chief) and other officers such as Summerville and Batteiger who were not fired for lying but only suspended. They indicated how bad things like this would crush the moral of younger officers.
- Officer #2 worked for the Minot PD for 5 yrs and achieved the rank of MO, with the ND Highway Patrol for 8 years prior and with Bottineau County Sheriff's Dept for the last couple years. He was trained with the NDHP in crash reconstruction. Officer #2 spoke at length about how the 4-year assignment rotation has hurt the department. He mentioned officers Stef Letz (Det) who recently left the department because she was about to be rotated out of her detective assignment and moved back to patrol. He also mentioned Jay Haaland who was forced out of his SRO job and moved back to MN to become a cop. Officer #2 mentioned that the Chief never asked for any input on this policy change when instituted. Had they been asked they would have informed Chief that a lot of officers aren't in favor of it, because "while some officers are great at being a detective or on patrol, others may not be and so when they find a position that they are good at, usually they don't want to transfer out and do something else". I question why we would take a leading detective or patrol officer who is fantastic at their job and doesn't want to do a different job, and force them to do something else...kind of like forcing officers who don't trust each other to work with each other. Seems to be very little regard for what the officers actually think or feel.

- Officer #2 said he ultimately left the department because he could see the lack of communication/support, poor communication and selective promotion process that passed over many good officers. He mentioned that he tested for Sgt. 2 times. The first time he was #4 on the list and they promoted 2 people....so he didn't make it. The second time he was #3 on the list, they promoted 6 people that time, but he was passed over. No reason given, no explanation of deficiencies in officers file or reviews. He said he could see that if you weren't in "Chief's group" you would not make promotion board at Minot PD.

- Officer #2 spoke about inconsistent discipline procedures as well...he spoke about frivolous write ups of Sgts. Jensen and Foley and SO Olsen, but other officers weren't written up or discipline for the same offenses.
- Officer #2 discussed his extensive experience in crash reconstruction and the specialized training he received while serving with the North Dakota Highway Patrol (NDHP). Upon joining the Minot Police Department (PD), he noted that the department lacked expertise in this area. Following a tragic incident involving a pedestrian fatality near Jim Hill, in which Officer #2 was not called upon to assist with the reconstruction, Captain Sundheim requested his help in developing a crash reconstruction policy akin to the NDHP's. Officer #2 dedicated significant time and effort to crafting a policy, largely based on the NDHP's framework, at Captain Sundheim's behest. Although he submitted the policy to Captain Sundheim, it was never discussed further. This situation underscores a concerning lack of follow-through and support from department leadership.

RE: NDPERS Public Safety Pension Plan

To All Concerned:

I write the letter on behalf of the members of the North Dakota Fraternal Order of Police – Souris Valley Regional Lodge #7, who are also employees of the Minot Police Department, in support of adoption of the NDPERS Public Safety Pension Plan.

Nationwide efforts to recruit and retain quality employees in the profession of policing has unquestionably fallen off. In fact, the National Lodge of the Fraternal Order of Police estimated that law enforcement recruiting nationwide was down 60% in 2019. There can be no doubt that 2020 saw similar or worse performance in this area vital to public safety. The Minot Police Department has not been immune to these troubling trends in recruiting and retention. Time-and-again, for those officers leaving employment with the City of Minot, but staying in the profession, the desire to seek better benefits packages in other agencies is a leading reason for an early departure.

While no single compensation/benefit change can be expected to be the magic wand in reversing this trend, improvement in the area of the pension benefits would demonstrate a very real commitment to improvement to employee benefits and send a strong message that our membership's efforts in serving the Magic City are appreciated. To those responsible for making the applicable budgetary decisions, the appearance of immediate savings from slightly less expensive plans can be a strong motivator in adopting less favorable pension programs. However, the perception of savings from this type of decision quickly evaporates when the expenses, in the hundreds of thousands of dollars, of constantly training new police officers and firefighters gets tallied.

Further, with the high rate of turnover experienced by Minot's public safety departments, the median experience level of its police officers and fighter fighters remains low. While keeping employee allotment numbers staffed is a challenge in and of itself, when those positions are filled with inexperienced law enforcement officers, the public simply doesn't enjoy the benefit of the level of policing a more veteran and happier police department provides. Improvement in benefits packages, and in this case adoption of the NDPERS Public Safety Pension Plan, is a step in the right direction in slowing the unfavorable trend of watching the training and experience gained by police officers, paid

HR Director, Lisa Jundt, Response to Officers 2 and 3- Kenton Kossan (2) and Aaron Moss (3) comments

Responses address numbered bullet points from information provided by Officers #2 and 3

1.) Note, Officer Clouse was terminated 12/7/2017 by former Chief Olson. Clouse's personnel file has been destroyed according to state retention records. Sergeant Wilk was terminated on 10/18/2021 by Chief Klug. His Disciplinary record is being provided separate from this response with other disciplinary actions for review and comparison.

2.) Both promotional lists mentioned by Officer Kossan were used for three promotional positions each. The ordinance allows for the top three (3) candidates to be certified for the first vacancy and two (2) candidates for each additional vacancy thereafter. The lists allowed for seven (7) applicants to be certified to select from. The hiring process and ordinance were followed appropriately. See Exhibit AD – Sergeant Promotional list for June 2020. Exhibit AE – Sergeant Promotional list for May 2022. Exhibit AF – Personnel ordinance excerpt.

3.) There are no letters of counseling, letters or reprimand or any disciplinary memos in the personnel files for Sergeant Jensen or Officer Olson so this information is incorrect. Sergeant Foley's discipline has been addressed in the interview complaint he provided as Officer #8.

to each position, based upon the contents of the job description pertaining thereto, including specifically the minimum qualifications stated therein. The tests may be written, oral, physical or in the form of a demonstration of skill or any combination of these. The tests and criteria shall be designed to evaluate elements of training, experience, aptitude, knowledge, character, personality, skill, physical fitness or other qualifications. In any event, the tests and criteria to be administered must be reasonably designed to relate positively to actual job performance with respect to the position for which the tests are given and the criteria applied, in order that the tests shall not serve as a means whereby job applicants are unlawfully discriminated against on the grounds of race, color, religion, sex, age or national origin.

(d) The commission shall rank applicants one against the other based upon the results of the tests referred to in subsection (c) and the list of the names of the applicants set forth in the order of their respective rankings, with the highest ranked first, shall constitute the eligibility list for the position for which the tests were administered. The appointing authority may consider for appointment three (3) names on the list for the first vacancy to be filled, plus two (2) names for each vacancy thereafter, but the names subject to consideration for appointment must be selected in consecutive numerical order commencing with the first.

(e) The commission may provide with respect to certain classes of positions that no tests of the type provided for in subsection (c) be administered, as when, for example, the position requires as a prerequisite that the applicant possess a professional degree or professional credentials. Likewise the commission may provide that certain positions be filled by the appointing authority on the basis of personal interviews only, because the nature of the position does not easily permit the applicant to be evaluated in an objective manner, but rather selection must take into account intangible aspects of character and personality.

(f) If in the judgement of the commission it will promote the efficiency of the service to maintain permanent eligibility lists with respect to some positions it may do so, without prejudice, however, to the right of the appointing authority at any time to require that a new eligibility list be established with respect to a position wherein there is a vacancy which the appointing authority wishes to fill. The permanent eligibility list may either be frozen or floating. That is, a frozen list is one to which no new names are added until some predetermined event occurs such as the number of the names on the list dropping to a certain prescribed level or after the passage of a prescribed period of time. A floating list is one in which names are added and ranked from time to time as persons submit applications for employment and take examinations, which procedure the commission may authorize even though no vacancies may exist in the positions for which employment is sought. If the commission does establish a permanent eligibility list it may strike names therefrom at any time upon its determination that good cause exists to do so. The nature of such good cause shall be established by the commission by appropriate rules and regulations but at a minimum these rules and regulations will provide that the name of a person on a permanent eligibility list shall be struck if that person:

(1) Obtains city employment,

(2) Refuses an offer of city employment,

(3) Can no longer be contacted after a reasonably diligent effort to do so,

(4) Can no longer meet minimum qualifications for the position to which the list refers,

(5) Requests elimination from the list, or

(g) The director shall have the authority to prescribe the contents of job application forms. As part of the initial job application process he may make a determination whether the applicant meets certain minimum employment standards which by way of rules and regulations established by the commission shall be imposed upon all job applicants irrespective of the position applied for. The minimum employment standards may include, by way of example, a requirement that the applicant be literate in the English language or that the applicant shall never have been convicted of a felony. However, such standards must be reasonably job related so that they do not serve as a means of unlawful discrimination against job applicants on the grounds of race, color, religion, sex, age or national origin. An applicant who cannot meet all the minimum employment standards shall not be considered further

Officer #4 (current MPD Sgt) – Referred to as Sgt X Josh Noyes

- 12 yr PD officer – promoted to Sgt. X
- Sgt X spoke about issues he sees within the Minot PD – again – inconsistent discipline (from brass and even some lower-level officers), Absent leadership – never around, no support for lower grades, brass is not open to suggestions or criticism at all, the brass "doesn't seem to have time for lower officers". Chief and Cpt Sundheim do not like to be challenged at all...if officers speak up and they don't like it, will be given shitty assignments, removed from duties/teams they've been assigned to etc. – basically said that bras doesn't want to hear from the lower grade Sgts/officers.
- Sgt X also spoke about the 4-year assignment rotation that was put into place under chief Klug. Indicated it is quite unpopular amongst the officers.
- Sgt X spoke about one particular incident that happened within the department prior to MO Pat Blanchard's suicide. MO Blanchard was at an event at a bar and had been drinking with other officers (I believe it was a going away or retirement party). During the party SWAT was called out and although he had been drinking – MO Blanchard got in his car and headed towards the scene. As he was attempted to drive to the call out, MO Blanchard was involved in an accident where he ran into a building and popped 2 tires on his vehicle. He left the scene of that accident and headed back to the Minot PD garage to attempt to change his tires. While in the garage working on the tires, Sgt Ruell finds him intoxicated and attempting to change his car tires. Sgt Ruell speaks with MO Blanchard, decerns what had happened and reports this all to Lt. Houge. At this point it is believed that Lt. Houge informs brass of what has taken place. The next day Sgt Ruell is called into Cpts office and told they would not be proceeding with DUI, hit and run or any other offenses MO Blanchard may have been involved in from the incident the night before. Officers within the department were stunned he said...as most were aware of what happened and new there should have been some formal punishment. Nobody was told why he wasn't being punished and so they lack of transparency and the 'non punishment' really hit the moral within the PD.
- Sgt X spoke a bit about MO Batteiger and some of the issues and was unsure why we would keep officers with ethical issues on the department. This was the second time the 15.7 grams of DEA heroine that was lost, was brought up. He brought up officer Summerville who had lied numerous times in the dept as well....has been suspended but not fired. I can see the fact that other officers lie really bothers the officers both past and present.
- It was at this point I went and started speaking with Stef Stalheim, the city attorney, and asked what she knew about the missing drugs. She indicated that the Thursday right before Labor Day weekend was the first time she'd heard about this (the drugs were lost somewhere between Feb-Nov. 2023). Stalheim and I asked for the investigation report into the lost drugs and MO Batteiger's personnel file. We read through both and were quite surprised at some things said in the investigation report and the lack of letters of discipline/counselling in his file. As I'd been told there were several write-up offenses. It was at this time we were made aware of 'shadow files' held within the Minot PD by command staff. Stef Stalheim requested all of those MO Batteiger files from Minot PD command staff. Both internal investigation report and Chief's letter of discipline are attached to this file for reference as items 4 and 5. I would also recommend reviewing the write up for MO Batteiger with regard to the 2022 'sleeping with a victim of DV'.

- Sgt. X also mentioned several other write-ups for MO Batteiger, that were known throughout the department – he said there are 6-7 writeups on MO Batteiger that happened before the 'sleeping with the victim' writeup and before the 'lost drugs' incident (timeframe would be 2022-2023. He mentioned that Sgt. Y (another K9 Sgt) had written a letter to Cpt Sundheim and Chief to detail some of the issues and problems with MO Batteiger as related to his K9 training issues. Cpt Sundheim looked at the letter and told Sgt. Y she lacked supervisor maturity for pointing out the issues. Again – made mention of how that affected moral within the department.
- Sgt. X mentioned multiple times the lack of communication within the department. These incidents varied from why certain things were happening within the department to reasons for writeups/discipline to suggestions/committees giving recommendations (asked for by brass) and nothing ever happening. Sgt. X indicated that most of the junior officers don't feel the brass even knows who they are, let alone care about what they think. He told me that 2023 annual personnel reviews had not been done for the department (other than detectives – Cpt Plessus). These would have fallen to Cpt Sundheim and Cpt Sundbakken (to a lesser degree) He said "they don't even care to tell us if we are doing a good job or not..."
- Sgt. X also mentioned that there is no 'follow through' from the senior brass nor much support of any kind.
- I asked Sgt. X what he thought would help fix things within the department. Here were Sgt. X's responses:
    - Clear guidance from brass. Be around/seen and interact with the officers in the dept. Chief micro manages a lot of things and so decisions never get made. NO DECISION CAN BE MADE WITHOUT CHIEF'S OK.
    - Get rid of the politics that happen within the department – it is crushing moral
    - Allow officers to do their jobs, instead of telling them not to take action. Give officers latitude and guidance while allowing to make some decisions.
    - Lay out clear criteria for advancement/promotion instead of the moving target they have now. Quit promoting people that aren't good leaders just because they've been there for 10+ years.
    - Implement some of the CPSM suggestions that were delivered a few months ago. Nothing has been done with those...why did we pay for the study?
- Sgt. X finished up our meeting by telling me about 2 things. First, SWAT is not used at all. Cpt Sundheim will not let SWAT be deployed for anything in the city. "It looks bad to have SWAT running around out there". The training has turned south because they all know nobody will call them out for anything. They used to go serve drug warrants, but that has changed and they have only been called out 3 times in the last 3 years. Nobody understands why they aren't used, but it hurts moral. Sgt. X wondered what the point in having a SWAT department if you never use them?
- Lastly, Sgt. X told me about issues in Dispatch - this was the first time anyone had brought this up. He said if you wonder why the city can't keep any dispatchers, it's because the same thing is happening there that happens in the PD. He mentioned how the PSAP (Margaret) is a very harsh supervisor, she talks poorly about dispatchers to other dispatchers and PD, she retaliates against people and the supervisors have very little training...no guidance from PSAP. He also mentioned that when only two dispatchers are on shift due to staff shortages, they are required to work 12-hour shifts without taking lunch breaks unless they use PTO. To cover their lunch, another dispatcher must be called in, which effectively discourages taking their lunch break. Most stand or sit at their desk and eat while working. This arrangement seems highly questionable, potentially violating labor laws and exposing the city to legal liability,

HR Director, Lisa Jundt, Response to Officer #4– Josh Noyes

Responses address numbered bullet points from information provided by Officer #4

1.) Sergeant Noyes and the rest of the department assume there was not disciplinary action taken against Officer Blanchard for the SWAT call-out related incident. That is incorrect as Officer Blanchard was suspended for 2 days without pay and was removed from his SWAT duty assignment for several months. See Exhibit V-Blanchard Investigation and Disciplinary Action.

Report of Findings and Discipline
Patrick Blanchard, Senior Police Officer
Internal Investigation # 21-9

On May 16, 2021, you responded to a page for a SWAT Team callout and responded to the PD. The page was ultimately cancelled, but you did not receive that information and continued to the police department. While on the way, you experienced a flat tire and drove into the sally port located off the southeast corner of the police department. You began changing the tire and two fellow officers stopped in and were assisting you with the tire.

At some point in that process, Sgt. Ruelle entered the sally port and observed the tire and sensed an odor of an alcoholic beverage coming from your breath. He pulled you into the booking room and conducted a breath test using a preliminary breath test Intoxolizer. Not only did your result show you were still under the influence of alcohol, but you also admitted to consuming alcohol up to about 2 hours prior to the callout being received.

A detailed accounting of all facts in this internal investigation can be reviewed in the attached report completed by Lt. Matt McLeod, Office of Professional Standards. The findings and discipline imposed is outlined below.

Findings: The actions by Officer Patrick Blanchard on May 16, 2021 while responding to report for duty at the police department led to the following violations of Minot Police Department Policy being sustained and are the basis for the disciplinary action in this case.

- Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct
  - 322.5.9 – Conduct

    a) Violation of, or ordering or instructing a subordinate to violate any policy, procedure, rule, order, directive, requirement or failure to follow instructions contained in department or City manuals.

    (b) Violation of federal, state, local or administrative laws, rules or regulations. any member of this department or the City.

    (h) Criminal, dishonest, or disgraceful conduct, whether on- or off-duty, that adversely affects the Member's relationship with this department.

- Policy 1002 – Drug and Alcohol-Free Workplace
  - 1002.2 Policy
    It is the policy of this department to provide a drug- and alcohol-free workplace for all members.

The Guidelines and Procedures for the Minot Police Department Drug and Alcohol Testing program and City of Minot Employee Manual shall be followed.

- Minot Police Department Drug and Alcohol Testing program:

  3. Covered Employees: All Minot Police Department employees are included for safety and security reasons.

  4. Prohibited Substances: No Minot Police Department employee shall use alcohol while on duty or within 4 hours prior to going on duty. Employees who are authorized to consume alcohol as part of a special assignment shall not do so to the extent of impairing on-duty performance. Employees subject to recall are reminded that they are to be in conformance with this policy when reporting for duty.

Discipline: As a result of these findings, I impose the following disciplinary action:

- Officer Blanchard will be suspended without pay for 2 days (20 hours).
- Officer Blanchard is suspended from all SWAT related activities until October 1, 2021.
- Officer Blanchard will be suspended from all SWAT callouts until January 1, 2022.
- A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Patrick Blanchard in the Chief of Police's Office and in the City of Minot Human Resources Office.

John Klug, Chief of Police — Date: 6/4/2021

I have been given a copy of this disciplinary decision.

INTERNAL INVESTIGATION

Internal Investigation 21-9

RE: Complaint and report of misconduct

Employee:	Officer Pat Blanchard
Source of Complaint:	Letter from Sgt. Ruelle
Interviewed:	Pat Blanchard, Tyler Ruelle, Shane Haug, Steve Schoenrock, Jarred Shaw
Complaint Date:	May 16, 2021
Investigation Date:	May 17, 2021 to May 24, 2021
Investigator:	Capt. Dale Plessas – Minot Police Department

Synopsis:

Sgt. Tyler Ruelle wrote a letter to Lt. Haug and Lt. McLeod, reporting his observations regarding Officer Pat Blanchard, reporting to a SWAT call while under the influence of alcohol.

A synopsis of the letter:

> The letter outlined the events leading Sgt. Ruelle to believe that Pat Blanchard drove to the Minot Police Department and was reporting to duty, while under the influence of alcohol. On May 16, 2021 Sgt. Ruelle observed a small white SUV parked in the police department sally port. He also observed Officer Washington, Shaw, Lynn, and Blanchard who were working on changing the right front tire. Sgt. Ruelle approached and asked Blanchard what happened. Blanchard advised him that the tire went flat while he was driving to the Police Department. Sgt. Ruelle indicated that Blanchard was responding to the Police Department due to a SWAT activation. Sgt. Ruelle could smell the odor of alcoholic beverage and could see that Blanchard had blood shot and watery eyes. Blanchard admitted to drinking earlier in the evening at a co-worker's birthday party. After consultation with Lt. Haug Blanchard submitted to a screening test. Sgt. Ruelle reported the results of the test as .11. Sgt. Ruelle instructed Blanchard to get a ride home.

Background:

The Minot Police Department sent out a hyper reach message for SWAT team members to respond to the Minot Police Department on May 16, 2021 at 00:19 hours in reference to an assistance call from the Rolette County Sheriff's Department. A Cancellation message was sent out at 00:29 hours.

Minot Police Department

Some members of the Police Department and SWAT Team attended a surprise birthday party for a co-worker at Saul's Bar on the evening of May 16, 2021. Officer Washington, Shaw, and Lynn were working on patrol and in uniform at the time these events.

Summary of investigation:

I obtained a copy of Sgt. Ruelle's letter outlining this incident. I interviewed Officer Blanchard, Sgt. Ruelle, Sgt. Schoenrock, Officer Shaw, and Lt. Haug. I downloaded and reviewed surveillance footage from the Minot Police Department sally port exterior, sally port, and booking room cameras. I obtained a copy of the incident report for the SWAT Team page (reference 21-13558).

This investigation determined the following:

On May 15, 2021 - 1845 hours - Officers and members of the Minot Police Department SWAT team attended the surprise birthday party of a fellow officer at Saul's Bar located in downtown Minot. Pat Blanchard and Steve Schoenrock attended this party. Blanchard and Schoenrock's statements were consistent in that he arrived around 1845 to 1900 hours.

Blanchard indicated he had not been drinking before arriving but while at Saul's Bar he consumed two Old Forester 1910 Bourbons (both singles), three or four Coors light beers, and a fruity drink of some sort (he did not know what it was). Sgt. Schoenrock indicated he could not remember what Blanchard had to drink but stated "[Blanchard] had a drink in his hand pretty much the whole time and it looked like he was having a decent time." Sgt. Schoenrock indicated he could not tell if Blanchard was intoxicated. He indicated Blanchard was consuming regularly but did not act out of line in any way that would be conceived as intoxicated. Sgt. Schoenrock did not know how long Blanchard was at the bar but stated he was there for "quite a while".

Blanchard stated he stopped drinking at around 2230 hours and left the bar at 2300 hours. He went home and went to bed. He was woken by the SWAT page at 0019 hours. Blanchard knew that this was a SWAT team activation and not a training. He got dressed and took his girlfriend's vehicle with the intent of responding to the Police Department for the SWAT call. Blanchard stated he did not feel intoxicated at this time. Blanchard said while on his way, the vehicle suffered a flat tire while going through a construction zone. He said this was about three blocks from the Police Department, so he decided to limp it in. By the time he arrived at the Police Department the SWAT call had been cancelled. Blanchard did not know that the SWAT call had been canceled until after his arrival at the Police Department.

Blanchard arrived at the Police Department at 00:34 on May 16, 2021. This was roughly two hours after he had consumed his last drink at Saul's Bar. Officer Washington and Shaw assisted Blanchard in replacing the tire. Officer Shaw indicated he did not notice any odor of alcohol on Blanchard but indicated, "I wasn't really looking for it to be honest." While in the process of replacing the tire, Sgt. Ruelle, who was working as a field supervisor, observed the sallyport door was open and a small white car was inside. The car was later determined to be Pat Blanchard's girlfriend's White Nissan Rogue. Sgt. Ruelle observed Officer Lynn, Washington, Shaw, and Blanchard replacing the tire on this vehicle. Sgt. Ruelle entered the sally port at 00:38 hours. Sgt. Ruelle indicated that he asked Blanchard what happened and while Blanchard was explaining, he could immediately smell the odor of alcoholic beverage. Sgt. Ruelle characterized this as "not knock you on your butt strong but strong enough where I noticed it immediately". He said he observed that Blanchard's eyes were glossy and had a redness which he characterized it as a "condensed" redness. He said Blanchard's speech pattern was different. He said it seemed like he was speaking very short, intentionally, to avoid give the appearance that his speech was slurred.

At 00:39 hours Sgt. Ruelle instructs Blanchard to follow him to the booking room. Officer Becker was working on paperwork in this room. Sgt. Ruelle asked her to relocate to a different area. Sgt. Ruelle then retrieved Lt. Haug who was at the department due to the SWAT call.

Lt. Haug asked Blanchard some questions. Blanchard admitted to drinking earlier in the night but indicated he did not feel impaired. Lt. Haug indicated he could not smell any alcohol at this point and did not detect slurred speech. He said Blanchard was a little "Standoffish". Lt. Haug indicated he did not feel that Blanchard was intoxicated. He indicated he asked Blanchard to take a PBT test. Blanchard agreed and he instructed Sgt. Ruelle to complete the test. Lt. Haug left the Briefing room prior to the administration of the test. Sgt. Ruelle completed the test and advised Officer Blanchard that the results were .11. Sgt. Ruelle was uncertain if he showed Blanchard the results but according to Blanchard and the review of video, he did not. Sgt. Ruelle instructed Blanchard to have someone move his vehicle and find a ride home.

Blanchard had Washington park his vehicle and received a ride home from Matt Pappenfus.

Sgt. Ruelle notified Lt. Haug of the results of the PBT.

Applicable Policy:

Based on the facts gathered in the investigation, the listed policies were reviewed for violation:

Policy 306 – Firearms, Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct, and Policy 1002 – Drug and Alcohol-Free Workplace.

Policy 306 – Firearms – Not Sustained

306.4.3 ALCOHOL AND DRUGS

> Firearms shall not be carried by any member, either on- or off-duty, who has consumed an amount of an alcoholic beverage, taken any drugs or medication, or has taken any combination thereof that would tend to adversely affect the member's senses or judgment.

Officer Blanchard indicated he did not have a loaded weapon on him when he responded to the Police Department. He did have his SWAT rifle in the car but did not have ammunition for it. He indicated he had a duty pistol in his duty gear at the station and his normal practice would be to respond to the police Department and get ready upon arrival. Officer Blanchard received the cancelation page after arriving at the station but before obtaining his sidearm or getting ready for the SWAT call.

Lt. Haug, Sgt Ruelle, and Officer Shaw each indicated that they did not observe a firearm on Officer Blanchard. There was no evidence on surveillance video of Officer Blanchard being armed. While it is possible he had the weapon concealed, it is reasonable to conclude that he was not carrying a firearm in violation of policy 306. As a result, this policy violation is not sustained.

Policy 322 – Standards of conduct – Sustained

322.5 CAUSES FOR DISCIPLINE

The following are illustrative of causes for disciplinary action. This list is not intended to cover every possible type of misconduct and does not preclude the recommendation of disciplinary action for violation of other rules, standards, ethics and specific action or inaction that is detrimental to efficient department service. 322.5.1 LAWS, RULES AND ORDERS

(a) Violation of, or ordering or instructing a subordinate to violate any policy, procedure, rule, order, directive, requirement or failure to follow instructions contained in department or City manuals.
(b) Violation of federal, state, local or administrative laws, rules or regulations.

Sgt. Ruelle observed signs of alcohol use and impairment. He indicated, "Based on my observations, there was enough for a DUI investigation and I would investigate had I observed the same indicators on a traffic stop." A subsequent preliminary breath test confirmed Sgt. Ruelle's belief that alcohol was present. This information is not conclusive evidence of violation of DUI law but could reasonably rise to the level of probable cause. Sgt. Ruelle's observations and PBT test results of .11 and Officer Blanchard's candid admission of the amount of alcohol he consumed prior, lead me to conclude he in violation of Policy 322 – standards of conduct due to violations of department policy and state and local law.

Policy 1002 – Drug and Alcohol-Free Workplace – Sustained

1002.2 POLICY

It is the policy of this department to provide a drug- and alcohol-free workplace for all members.

The Guidelines and Procedures for the Minot Police Department Drug and Alcohol Testing program and City of Minot Employee Manual shall be followed.

Minot Police Department Drug and Alcohol Testing program:

3. Covered Employees:

All Minot Police Department employees are included for safety and security reasons.

4. Prohibited Substances:

Minot Police Department

No Minot Police Department employee shall use alcohol while on duty or within 4 hours prior to going on duty. Employees who are authorized to consume alcohol as part of a special assignment shall not do so to the extent of impairing on-duty performance. Employees subject to recall are reminded that they are to be in conformance with this policy when reporting for duty.

As a member of the Minot Police Department and SWAT Team, Officer Blanchard intention was to report for duty in response to a SWAT Team activation. He responded to the Minot Police Department. Although there was a cancellation to this page, Blanchard had not received this information until he was already at the Police Department. As a result, Blanchard had reported for duty.

Statements from Officer Blanchard and Sgt. Schoenrock indicate that Blanchard was consuming alcohol hours prior to the SWAT page. Officer Blanchard was candid in his statement. He indicated that he had consumed a number of drinks and had stopped drinking at around 2230 hours on May 15, 2021. He arrived at the Police Department at 0034 on May 16, 2021. By his statement this is approximately 2 hours after consumption of alcohol.

Officer Blanchard said he went home from Saul's Bar at around 2300 hours and went to sleep. When he received the SWAT page, he did not know how long he had been asleep. He said he did not feel impaired. When I asked him if he had any concern about his impairment he said, "Honestly, not until Sgt. Ruelle pulled me in". He further said "I was extremely surprised by the PBT results. I didn't feel impaired." Officer Blanchard said "If those were my PBT results, which I'm not arguing, I'm apologetic..."

Since Officer Blanchard was reporting for a SWAT call and he had consumed alcohol within 4 hours of responding to the police department, and due to the evidence that his body still contained alcohol, I conclude that he is in violation of Policy 1002 – Drugs and Alcohol-Free Workplace.

Officer #5 (current MPD Sgt) – referred to as Sgt. Y

- 12 yr MPD officer. Bomb commander, K9 handler
- Sgt. Y started our conversation by speaking about all the officers we've lost over the last 24 months. Really good officers according to Sgt. Y. Sgt. Y gave a number of names as examples - Laudenschlager, Fowler, Moss – more were named but I couldn't write fast enough.
- Sgt. Y mentioned the things that she sees as issues within the department – including, but not limited to, inconsistent discipline, poor communication from brass, getting in trouble for speaking up about officers' questionable behavior, no transparency, not disciplining unethical behavior from fellow officers, failing to maintain ethical standards in the department.
- Sgt. Y provided an example of these issues by recounting the case of MO Batteiger, who, while attending K9 training in Minnesota, would drive the department vehicle to Fargo each night to visit his girlfriend—despite being married at the time. Sgt. Y reported this behavior to her superior, Cpt Sundheim, who responded by saying, 'We are not the morality police.' This lack of accountability deeply upset many within the department, as they felt such conduct should have been addressed. Sgt. Y provided further examples of MO Boettiger's infractions that were not 'disciplined'. These have all been mentioned by previous officers in their statements so I will not repeat them as they are the same/similar. Sgt. Y indicated that MO Batteiger had 7 writeups and still worked for the department. These issues were the same as mentioned in Sgt. Xs interview. Sgt. Y spoke of the letter she wrote in 8/2023 to Cpt Sundheim about the deficiencies in training with MO Batteiger and his K9 – Sgt. Y was told "she lacked supervisor maturity" for bringing up such issues, even though it was her job as the Senior K9 officer. The letter/complaint was 'squashed' and not much happened with MO Batteiger – and this was after most of his other writeups.
- Sgt. Y then started talking about the lost 15.7g of Heroine, given to the Minot PD, for training with their drug K9s. Sgt. Y told me that MO Batteiger had check the drugs out of the "locker" in Feb '23 and when they went to use them for some multi department training in Nov. of '23 that the 15.7g package was missing. Because MO Batteiger was the only officer at the time that had a drug K9, he kept the drugs in a case in the trunk of his patrol car at home each night, rather than in the locked room and locker they were normally kept in. Sgt. Y also spoke about the tracking/training system they use in the K9 world – after training with their dogs they have computer program where they log what drugs were used, how the K9 reacted during the training etc. MO Batteiger was the only officer within the K9 division that didn't put the weight of the drugs used in his reports. SOP was to put the weight into the report. It was mentioned in the investigation report by Cpt Plessus that MO Batteiger didn't utilize the program the way it was intended. During this time, MO Batteiger was the only officer to check out this "drug sample". It was used a couple times in the 9 months that MO Batteiger held the sample, but nobody knows for sure when it disappeared. It was noticed in Nov. '23 when they realized right before the multi department training that it was missing. Sgt. Y also mentioned that after the drugs went missing, no investigation was started until after Christmas that same year.
- Sgt. Y continued her story by telling me about how the 'drug kit' gets changed out each year so the drugs don't lose their potency. Lt. Chapman had instructed MO Batteiger NOT to do anything with regard to destroying the drugs without Sgt. Ys help and approval. Most of this is detailed in Cpt. Plessus's investigation report and if you haven't read it in its entirety, I would suggest reading it.

- In Feb. '24 Sgt. Y was called into Chief's office and Cpt Sundheim was in there as well. Sgt. Y was told that the drugs couldn't be found, but they had taken MO Batteiger's K9 from him.
- Sgt. Y also told me of an incident in which MO Batteiger had volunteered to pick up "bobblehead toys" for the brass for Christmas one year. Officers each pitched in $20 and they collected $300 in total. When Christmas arrived MO Batteiger failed to produce any bobbleheads and everyone wanted to know what happened to their money? MO Batteiger made some excuses and just never returned his fellow officer's money. Other officers I spoke with spoke of this incident as well.
- I asked Sgt. X what he thought would help fix things within the department. Here were Sgt. X's responses:
    - Culture change within the dept. "used to be a family, that was taken away when Chief was put in place"
    - Reestablish trust with the rank and file – trust has been lost by Chief, Capt Sundheim and Cpt Sundbakken
    - Let the beard/hair policy be implanted. He started a committee to write/change it all. They put in 4 months work on it and it's been laying on Chief's desk for 8 months. Another example of no decisions being made.
    - Quit covering up for poor officers and/or their unethical behavior.

This info should be for officer #4 sorry Sgt X Josh Noyes

Jared Foley 1

Officer #8 (current MPD Sgt.) – referred to as Sgt. Z

- 14 years with MPD, Community outreach officer, Cadet Program coordinator
- Sgt. Z articulated several concerns regarding departmental issues, including the need for updated equipment—a matter previously unmentioned. He also highlighted a perceived lack of support from senior leadership, noting their frequent absence. Additionally, Sgt. Z expressed frustration with the fluctuating criteria for promotions, which seem to disadvantage qualified individuals not part of the 'favorites' group. He criticized the command staff for their lack of follow-through on commitments and inconsistent discipline within the dept.
- Sgt. Z mentioned that since the change from patrol to evidence he's really noticed the moral issue within the department that comes from the above issues.
- Sgt. Z was forthright about his previous disciplinary issues during his time on patrol, but he described the most recent write-up while assigned to evidence as particularly troubling. In this instance, Sgt. Z proposed an improvement to the drug receiving procedure in the evidence room to his lieutenant. He was instructed to formalize the suggestion and present it to the command staff. Despite following this directive, the proposal was never discussed further. After waiting four months with no feedback, Sgt. Z decided to implement his idea by relocating the vacuum sealing machine from inside the evidence room to outside, aiming to streamline the process by reducing the number of individuals handling evidence before it was sealed. However, upon observation by Chief and/or Cpt. Sundheim, Sgt. Z was reprimanded the following day for 'testing' an unapproved idea. He expressed frustration over the lack of communication during the four-month waiting period. Ultimately, the vacuum sealing machine was returned to the evidence room, and the proposed change was never revisited.
- Sgt. Z provided a detailed account of the lack of support from command staff. He noted that senior officers seldom attend public events or engage with the community, citing the upcoming MSU homecoming parade on Saturday, September 14th, as an example. He questioned whether any of the command staff had volunteered to assist with the parade, given the shortage of officers – this was a rhetorical question as they had not. Sgt. Z contrasted this with previous administrations, where senior leaders were more visible and involved in public affairs.
- As the Cadet Program Coordinator, Sgt. Z reported receiving no support from command staff, although he indicated that this lack of assistance allows him to manage the program according to his own vision. Additionally, he spoke positively about MO Batteiger, commending his consistent willingness to support the cadet program whenever possible.
- Sgt. Z spoke about the change to 4 duty shifts from the 3 that they currently have. He said it upset some officers, because of how short staffed they are. They don't have the people to cover 3 shifts, why would we create another?
- Sgt. Z spoke about the lack of recruiting in the PD...he said we don't utilize MSU, we've stopped going to Lake Region and that we pass over some candidates that could be good cops with some training, but the brass 'doesn't seem to want to train anyone'.
- Sgt. Z took over the evidence room two years ago with minimal training or guidance. Upon assuming the role, he discovered significant disorganization and inefficiencies, including evidence stored improperly and a general lack of systematic categorization. He undertook efforts to rectify these issues, introducing a categorization system that had not previously existed and clearing out obsolete or 'dead' evidence, which created substantial additional space. To further optimize the evidence room, Sgt. Z requested additional shelving to accommodate the improved organization. Noting that extra shelves in the SWAT bay were cluttered with garbage and equipment, he sought permission from command staff to repurpose one of these units. After receiving no response for several months, Sgt. Z took the initiative to clean out the SWAT bay, organize the remaining equipment, and relocate one shelving unit to the evidence room. Sgt. Z finished his clean up and then went on vacation. Upon returning from vacation, Sgt. Z was reprimanded for 'insubordination' due to moving the shelf.

- Sgt. Z highlighted another issue that underscored the lack of guidance and support from command staff. During the spring auction cleanout in 2024, a significant task for which Sgt. Z was responsible as the evidence sergeant, he requested additional help and volunteers. Despite the magnitude of the undertaking, only four officers volunteered, two of whom had to leave early. Although command staff were aware of the staffing shortfall, they neither intervened to assign additional personnel nor offered assistance themselves.
  As a result of the limited help, a few minor errors occurred during the auction, including the sale of evidence that should have been returned to victims. While these mistakes were not entirely Sgt. Z's fault, and were subsequently rectified with items and funds returned to the appropriate individuals, he was nonetheless held accountable and written up for the issues. The problems might have been avoided had there been adequate support during the auction.
- Sgt. Z was subsequently assigned the task of developing a Standard Operating Procedure (SOP) for evidence intake, storage, and auction sales. He meticulously prepared a comprehensive 48-page SOP binder and presented it to his lieutenant and captain. After briefly acknowledging the effort with a "great job," they promptly returned to their discussions, showing little engagement with the document. This response further illustrates the broader issue of inadequate support from senior leadership and a general lack of concern for the perspectives and contributions of officers.

This was the officer that Chief referenced in our meeting when he grabbed the file from his desk, through it on the table and said should I fire this guy too instead of suspending him.

HR Director, Lisa Jundt, Response to Officer #8 – Sergeant Jared Foley

Responses address numbered bullet points from information provided by Officer #8

1.) Sergeant Foley and several other officers have expressed their concern about the change to promotional criteria. The change to promotional criteria has gone through a couple of changes in the last 10 years. The changes to criteria from the June 2015 procedures to the June 2020 procedures were limited and included some additional requirements for training hours as well as clarification for how to review education points for those testing for Sergeant. The reason for the latter change was because it was too difficult to base points on credit hours and years of college because some colleges used quarter credits and some colleges used semester credits. The change was simply indicated to give points based on an associates degree, a bachelors credits or prorated points for credits towards a bachelors degree. In late summer of 2021 we were notified that the promotional tests provided by I/O Solutions would no longer be available. At that time, police command staff decided to go to an assessment model for testing, which is a common practice in law enforcement today, and similar to the model successfully used by the Minot Fire Department. This type of testing is also much more comprehensive and focusses on the overall competency of the candidate rather than just knowing the rules. The assessment center also gave more opportunity to those individuals with less service time to move past a more senior staff because they were shown to be more competent and effective in the potential role. This type of change is new to the Minot Police Department, and has been difficult for department to accept because it isn't the way it has always been done. Sometimes change is difficult but necessary to move forward. See Exhibit W – June 2015 Testing Procedures. Exhibit X – June 2020 Testing Procedures. Exhibit Y – March 2022 Testing Assessment Center Procedures.

2.) Sergeant Foley has expressed concern over the recent disciplinary action he received concerning his responsibility in the spring auction. Foley did meet with City Manager, Harold Stewart and myself to appeal the suspension he received. The issue that we presented to him was the fact that he had already waived his right to appeal through the Civil Service process, and there was not other remedy we had available to us to change the disciplinary action. He stated he was not aware that there was a grievance procedure process. I mention to him that he had been provided with the City Employee Handbook at the time of his hire and with a more recent update, and that he had acknowledged he received and reviewed the document on both occasions. I told him I believed it would be important to review this optional waiver in the police department disciplinary process, since it seems like it is just being signed without understanding what is actually being signed for. See Exhibit Z – Foley most recent disciplinary action. Exhibit AA – Foley discipline from former Chief Olson for comparison. Exhibit AB – 2010 Employee Handbook Acknowledgement, 2018 Employee Handbook Acknowledgement, and Grievance Procedure.

Capt.	x	x	x	x	x

Years of Service, Training Hours, and Education

Each candidate will be given three percentages, one based on years of service, one based on training hours, and one based on education. These three percentages will be averaged (all decimal points will be rounded down) to produce a score out of one hundred points for that candidate. The percentages will vary based on which promotional position the candidate is applying for. The numbers are as follows:

	Years of Service	POST Training	Education
Sgt.	% out of 10 years	% out of 1400 hours	% out of 128 credit hours (undergraduate max)
Lt.	% out of 15 years	% out of 1700 hours	% out of 158 credit hours (128 undergraduate max + 30 graduate)
Capt.	% out of 20 years	% out of 2000 hours	% out of 188 credit hours (128 undergraduate max + 60 graduate)

*Transcripts must be provided for credit hours

128 credit hours are based on ND Board of Higher Education standard for a Bachelors degree.

Formal Interview

The candidates will sit in front of a three-person interview panel (the panel will consist of individuals at the discretion of the Chief of Police) and be asked a series of twenty random questions from a predetermined list. Each panelist will score each question on a sliding scale one through five, with five being the best and one being the worst. At the end the candidates score will be tallied out of a total of one hundred points per panelist. The three panelists' scores will then be averaged (all decimal points will be rounded down) to produce one average score out of one hundred points for that candidate. The twenty random questions will remain the same for each candidate in this promotion cycle, and the three panelists must also remain the same.

- Interview is weighted at 40% of total score.
- May be the same day or different day as inbox/outbox (depending on time and # of applicants)

Y-2

- Consists of PD, City, non-city interview panel

Inbox / Outbox

The candidates will sit in front of a three-person panel (the panel will consist of individuals at the discretion of the Chief of Police) and be given a series of 5 basic inbox/outbox scenarios from a predetermined list. Each scenario must be something that a person that is in the position that is being applied for might encounter during a work day. Each panelist will score each scenario on a sliding scale one through twenty, with twenty being the best and one being the worst. At the end the candidates score will be tallied out of a total of one hundred points per panelist. The three panelists' scores will then be averaged (all decimal points will be rounded down) to produce one average score out of one hundred points for that candidate. The five random scenarios will remain the same for each candidate in this promotion cycle, and the three panelists must also remain the same.

- (3) scenario's- Counselling, Law (State's Attorneys Office), dealing with public, policy, tactical command, delegation (up and down), email/voicemail/in-person prioritizing, importance of data, clerical, computer systems
- Each scenario is 15% of total score (60% total)
- Panel consists of: PD, City, and non City (same as interview)
- Each scenario has a different panel (4 scenarios= 12 people)
- Scenario briefs are short so no prep time is necessary.
- Each scenario given a specific amount of time to complete.
- Develop a score sheet for each individual scenario.

Topical Presentation

The candidates will be given a topical police issue/topic and be asked to give a presentation about that issue/topic. The candidates will be given a specific and limited amount of time to prepare for their presentation. (Ideally candidates would be given the issue/topic in the morning and give the presentation that afternoon). Candidates would give the presentations to a three-person panel (the panel will consist of individuals at the discretion of the Chief of Police) and each panelist would then score the candidate's presentation on a sliding scale from one to one hundred, with 100 being the best and one being the worst. The three panelists' scores will then be averaged (all decimal points will be rounded down) to produce one average score out of one hundred points for that candidate. The topic/issue will remain the same for each candidate in this promotion cycle, and the three panelists must also remain the same.

- Is usually based on a "hot-topic" or issue currently being addressed by Administration.
    - Could be "Importance of Data in modern policing"
- In addition each applicant must provide a report detailing "their story"
    - Who they are, what got them here, what they have done, why are they the right person for the position
    - Must include all of their qualifications as well as specific trainings, etc, that they have.

Program Implementation

Y-3

The candidates will be given specific program and/or system at the that could be changed/implemented at the Minot Police Department. The candidates will be required to write a full plan to change/implement this specific program/system. Plans would be required to include how and why the change is taking place, a plan to rollout the program/system to the entire PD, pre and post system/program rollout plans, and also possible pitfalls that might need to be addressed along the way. Candidates would present these plans to a three-person panel (the panel will consist of individuals at the discretion of the Chief of Police) and each panelist would then be able to ask questions and the candidate would have to defend their plan. At the conclusion each candidate would score the candidate's plan on a sliding scale from one to one hundred, with 100 being the best and one being the worst. The three panelists' scores will then be averaged (all decimal points will be rounded down) to produce one average score out of one hundred points for that candidate. The program/system will remain the same for each candidate in this promotion cycle, and the three panelists must also remain the same.

- Is usually based on a "hot-topic" or issue currently being addressed by Administration.

Conclusion

The candidates final score would be the average of each phase of that ranks assessment process (all decimal points being rounded down). For example: Sgt. candidates would take the average of the scores from the first three phases, Lt.'s from the first four, and Capt.'s from all five.

- FD starts the process with everyone on a level playing field. If they have the minimum qualifications everyone is equal. Time of Service, education, and training hours don't equate for scoring totals. (I disagree with this)

PROMOTIONAL ASSESSMENT CENTER SETUP

Station 1- Interview Panel

- Consists of (3) person panel: (1) PD Employee, (1) City Employee, (1) non city employee
- Each person is given 25 minutes for an interview consisting of 10 questions.
- There will be a 5 minute break between interviews to allow for scoring and necessity breaks
- Average of interview scores

Station 2- Scenario 1- Counselling/Dealing with Public

- Applicant will be provided a scenario in which an employee (actor) will need counselling related to a discipline issue. Alternate scenario: Applicant will be provided a scenario in which a member of the public wishes to complain about a police officer or the police department.
- Consists of (3) person panel: (1) PD Employee, (1) City Employee, (1) non city employee
- Each person is given 20 minutes to complete this scenario
- There will be a 10 minute break between applicants to allow for scoring and necessity breaks

Station 3- Scenario 2- Laws and Ordinances

- Applicant will be addressed by a participant from the Ward County State's Attorneys Office or City Prosecutor's Office related to a specific set of circumstances. Applicant will have to debate with prosecutor regarding law and procedure.
- Consists of (3) person panel: (1) PD Employee, (1) City Employee, (1) non city employee
- Each person is given 20 minutes to complete this scenario
- There will be a 10 minute break between applicants to allow for scoring and necessity breaks

Station 4- Scenario 3- On Scene Command

- Applicant will be provided a scenario which is modelled after an incident requiring the applicant to take command of an incident, formulate a plan to handle the incident, and carry out the plan from a command standpoint.
- Consists of (3) person panel: (1) PD Employee, (1) City Employee, (1) non city employee
- Each person is given 20 minutes to complete this scenario
- There will be a 10 minute break between applicants to allow for scoring and necessity breaks

Station 5- Topical Presentation

- Applicant will be provided a topic chosen by the Chief and Command Staff to research, and present to the panel. Topic will be provided 1 day before the presentation
- Consists of (3) person panel: (1) PD Employee, (1) City Employee, (1) non city employee
- Each person is given 20 minutes to complete this presentation
- There will be a 10 minute break between applicants to allow for scoring and necessity breaks

Station 6- Program Implementation

- Applicant will be provided a policy, protocol, or program currently in place. They will be required to research the topic, write up a full implementation/change plan, and present their ideas to the panel. Topic will be provided within a specified time period before the presentation. Plans would be required to include how and why the change is taking place, a plan to rollout the program/system to the entire PD, pre and post system/program rollout plans, and also possible pitfalls that might need to be addressed along the way.
- Consists of (3) person panel: (1) PD Employee, (1) City Employee, (1) non city employee
- Each person is given 25 minutes to complete this presentation
- There will be a 5 minute break between applicants to allow for scoring and necessity breaks

To: Jared Foley, Sergeant

Ref: Letter of Suspension

This letter outlines the multiple errors and actions taken to correct those errors. Several items were sold at the police auction that took place on May 11th, 2024, that should not have been sold, at least in the manner they were. Those three items were as follows:

- Stolen vehicle from New Town was sold after the owner identified the vehicle was hers. Sgt. Foley entered an agreement with the owner, who agreed any money earned through the auction of the vehicle would be given to her. The proper action would be to remove the item from the auction and work through the proper process for selling the vehicle.
- Two bicycles were sold that had previously been ordered by District Court, to be returned to the person they were seized from. This resulted in a long and time-consuming process with multiple City of Minot personnel to ensure a legal process was followed. Items that are evidence or under court order should be separated from other found property long before the auction to decrease the likelihood of mistakenly selling the property.
- The third item was a vehicle connected to the suicide death of the owner. After the vehicle was sold, an insurance agent contacted the police department to claim the vehicle, once again resulting in us turning over the money to the agent. A search for vehicle leans was not conducted and an assumption was made by Sgt. Foley that this was possibly done by detectives during the investigation.

Because these three incidents happened during the same auction, there was not time for corrective action between the three of them. Therefore, I am removing the Letter of Reprimand issued by Capt. Jason Sundbakken on May 16, 2024, and including that incident as part of my discipline in this Letter of Suspension. These three errors with property were ultimately resolved, but utilized valuable staff time and opened the City up to financial liability.

Findings: I find the following policy violations are sustained and are basis for the disciplinary action in this case.

- Policy 502 – Vehicle Towing and Release
  - 502.3.6 – Records Section Responsibility

    Assigned department personnel shall:

a. Determine the names and addresses of any individuals having an interest in the vehicle through North Dakota Department of Transportation (NDDOT) or CJIS databases. Within 10 days of the impoundment by department personnel, the department shall notify any individual identified as having an interest in the vehicle of the impoundment unless all of the following apply (N.D.C.C. § 23.1-15-04):
    1. The vehicle is more than seven model years of age.
    2. The vehicle lacks vital component parts.
    3. The vehicle does not display a current valid license plate for North Dakota or any other state or foreign country.
b. Send notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, to each individual identified as having an interest in the vehicle. If the identity and address of the registered owner and all lienholders cannot be determined with reasonable certainty, the notice shall be published once in a newspaper of general circulation in the City. The notice shall include (N.D.C.C. § 23.1-15-05):
    1. The date and place where the vehicle was taken into custody.
    2. The year, make, model, and serial number of the abandoned motor vehicle.
    3. The place where the vehicle is being held.
    4. Information for the owner, any lienholders, or secured parties that they have a right to reclaim the vehicle.
    5. A statement that failure of the owner, lienholders, or secured parties to exercise their right to reclaim the vehicle is deemed a waiver of all right, title, and interest in the vehicle and a consent to disposal of the vehicle in accordance with N.D.C.C. § 23.1-15-07.

- Policy 801 – Property and Evidence
    - 801.6.5 – Release of Property – A reasonable attempt shall be made to identify the rightful owner of found or stolen property or evidence not needed for an investigation.

Explanation: It is the duty of Sgt. Foley to ensure that every piece of property released, sold, or disposed of that was in the custody of the Minot Police Department is being done so legally and with the best interest of the owner and department being considered. That did not happen in this situation.

Discipline: As a result of these findings, I am ordering the following for Sgt. Jared Foley:

- Sergeant Foley will be suspended without pay for a period of one day (8 hours).
- Sergeant Foley will not work any volunteer overtime events or off-duty during the same pay period as the day of suspension.

TO: CHIEF JOHN KLUG
FROM: CAPTAIN JASON SUNDBAKKEN
RE: SGT. JARED FOLEY

Information

I was approached on July 12th by Sgt. Jared Foley regarding a vehicle that had been sold at auction. The vehicle, a 2015 Chevrolet Traverse, was impounded due to a suicide that had occurred inside of the vehicle. Sgt. Foley advised me that a vehicle, which had been in our impound lot had been sold at auction on May 11th, 2024.

On July 11th Sgt Foley was contacted by Kevin Gonzalez, from Northstar Community Credit Union who wished to retrieve the vehicle as they held a lien on it. It was at that time that Sgt. Foley realized that the vehicle had been errantly sold at auction. Sgt. Foley provided me a letter of explanation regarding the impoundment and sale of the vehicle at our auction. In the letter Sgt. Foley explained that he later discovered that a registration check on the vehicle, at the time of impound, had not been accomplished which would have shown the lien in question. A vehicle registration check was apparently also not accomplished prior to the sale of the vehicle at impound.

Sgt. Foley contacted Mr. Gonzalez and advised him of the condition of the vehicle (body fluids from the suicide and a broken window caused by emergency services making entry). He also discussed the purchase price of the vehicle ($725) with Mr. Gonzalez and the potential of reimbursement that would have to be arranged by the City Attorney's Office and subsequently the Finance Department. I am unsure what, if anything, has been accomplished regarding this vehicle between Sgt. Foley, our City Attorney's Office, and Finance.

In his letter Sgt. Foley indicates that "by all accounts, we checked everything accordingly on all vehicles and had no other information prior to the auction that there was a lien out on this vehicle." He goes on to accept responsibility for the errant sale of the vehicle. Additionally, in his letter Sgt. Foley lays out his plan to add an "Auction" packet to the training manual he is currently creating. My issue with this statement from Sgt. Foley is that clearly everything had NOT been checked. There should be comprehensive check of all property sold or destroyed by the Records Sergeant (or their designee) prior to any action being taken. This had clearly not been accomplished. Each item in our possession should

This is the 3rd incident involving improperly sold items from our Spring Auction (May 11th, 2024). The (2) prior incidents are:

1. Stolen vehicle from New Town was sold AFTER Sgt. Foley had a conversation with the owner and agreed to pay her the amount the vehicle would sell for. This action was not approved by any supervisor and resulted in follow-up meetings with the City Attorney's and Finance due to improper procedure.
2. Bicycles sold at auction that were reported stolen and were set to be returned to the apparent owner. Four bicycles were taken into impound last year. Two of these bicycles were sold at a prior impound before Sgt. Foley became the Records Sergeant. Sgt. Foley was made aware of the (2) remaining bicycles and had conversations with the apparent owner. The bicycles were meant to be returned but were placed in the same location as other bicycles that were to be sold. The bikes were then inadvertently sold at auction because they had not been placed in a location away from the rest of the bikes or marked in a way to identify them as "No Sale". On May 16th, I issued a Letter of Reprimand to Sgt. Foley for the sale of these bikes.

Prior to these incidents, which all occurred as a result of the May 11th Auction, Sgt. Foley was counselled for errantly destroying property that was not to be destroyed. I also wrote a Letter of Counselling to Sgt. Foley on October 3, 2023 for removing a shelf from the storage area near the police bikes and placing it into evidence. He did so without permission and acknowledged that he needed a shelf, so he took that one without permission.

Sgt. Foley has been personally counselled by Lt. Wegner, Lt. McLeod, and Captain Plessas, all who have been in his position, regarding the destruction of property and required attention to detail. In addition, I have counselled him to slow down and completely ensure details before taking ANY action with property in our possession. During all of these conversations we have stressed the importance of being 100% sure of the details prior to taking ANY action with property. If we are not 100% sure, it costs nothing to hold the evidence. After all these conversations it still seems to be Sgt. Foley's priority to clean out our evidence areas and, in the process, many times miss details due to a lack of attention. This lack of attention to detail has resulted in numerous incidents in which property was disposed of or sold improperly and, as a result, has caused liability to the City of Minot.

I have included Sgt. Foley's letter of explanation regarding the most recent vehicle sold at auction. I have also included copies of the Letter of Counselling, and Letter of Reprimand that I have issued Sgt. Foley in the past.

It is my opinion that additional discipline is required for Sgt. Foley as a result of the latest issue, but also due to the culmination of issues since he has taken over the Records Sergeant position.

Respectfully Submitted,

Exhibit AA-1

City of Minot

Police Department

June 22, 2017

To: Senior Officer Jared Foley

From: Chief Jason T. Olson

Ref: Internal Investigation ref. Facebook post

On June 17th, 2017 information was brought to my attention that Senior Officer Jared Foley allegedly had been posting inappropriate content on the social media site Facebook. I assigned Capt. John Klug to investigate the matter.

On June 20th, Captain Klug, Captain Rob White and I reviewed the results of the investigation.

A citizen emailed Chief Olson on June 17th , 2017 expressing that Jared Foley had posted some comments on his personal Facebook page concerning the not guilty verdict in a criminal case in Minnesota involving a police officer (Jeronimo Yanez) who fatally shot a motorist (Philando Castile). The citizen felt that the post was inappropriate for someone in the Minot Police Department to be sharing in particular an officer who was the "Officer of the Year". There was a number of screen shots that indicated that Jared Foley had shared a "Blue Lives Matter" post and there was a string of comments below the post including several from Jared Foley. Much of the string of comments were apparently a back and forth commentary between Ashley Beall and Jared Foley.

Jared Foley posts "One more waste of oxygen gone, so yea I think it's awesome." And later on a post "Be angry all ya want, but justice was served to a would be cop killer..." And further "my heart is cold and has gone to the dark side... emotion is moot..."

The full Facebook screen shots in context are available in the investigation file.

Captain Klug interviewed Officer Foley who acknowledged the posts were his. He acknowledged how he could see why some people could be offended by the content of his posts even though he states that they were not meant to be offensive. Officer Foley agrees that his post was in violation of Minot Police Department policy on social media use. He also acknowledges that he recently was given policy training on this subject (5.14.17).

Findings: Sustained

Officer Jared Foley did post content on the social media site Facebook which was in violation to include but not limited to the following Minot Police Department policies:

323 Standards of Conduct

323.5.8 PERFORMANCE

(i) Any act on- or off-duty that brings discredit to this department.

323.5.9 CONDUCT

(f) Discourteous, disrespectful or discriminatory treatment of any member of the public or any member of this department or the City.

(m) Any other on- or off-duty conduct which any member knows or reasonably should know is unbecoming a member of this department, is contrary to good order, efficiency or morale, or tends to reflect unfavorably upon this department or its members.

AA-2

1023 PROHIBITED SPEECH, EXPRESSION AND CONDUCT

1023.2 POLICY

Public employees occupy a trusted position in the community, and thus, their statements have the potential to contravene the policies and performance of this department. Due to the nature of the work and influence associated with the law enforcement profession, it is necessary that employees of this department be subject to certain reasonable limitations on their speech and expression. To achieve its mission and efficiently provide service to the public, the Minot Police Department will carefully balance the individual employee's rights against the department's needs and interests when exercising a reasonable degree of control over its employees' speech and expression.

1023.4 PROHIBITED SPEECH, EXPRESSION AND CONDUCT

To meet the department's safety, performance and public-trust needs, the following is prohibited unless the speech is otherwise protected (for example, an employee speaking as a private citizen on a matter of public concern):

(b) Speech or expression that, while not made pursuant to an official duty, is significantly linked to, or related to, the Minot Police Department and tends to compromise or damage the mission, function, reputation or professionalism of the Minot Police Department or its employees.

(c) Speech or expression that could reasonably be foreseen as having a negative impact on the credibility of the employee as a witness. For example, posting statements or expressions to a website that glorify or endorse dishonesty, unlawful discrimination or illegal behavior.

(d) Speech or expression of any form that could reasonably be foreseen as having a negative impact on the safety of the employees of the Department. For example, a statement on a blog that provides specific details as to how and when prisoner transportations are made could reasonably be foreseen as potentially jeopardizing employees by informing criminals of details that could facilitate an escape or attempted escape.

Officer Foley's comment was troublesome from a number of angles:

1. The implications of making a comment in writing on a social media site where once made, can potentially be used against Officer Foley in potential future criminal or civil litigation should he ever be involved in an excessive use of force or deadly force incident demonstrate a lack of understanding and judgement of the potential ramifications and impact it could have on such a case.
2. The lack of understanding, awareness and good judgement as to the volatile current and historical status of racial tensions between African Americans and the police in America and how such reckless statements can undermine any efforts or hopes of improving relationships or building trust between the two communities.

3. The potential negative impact on the reputation of Officer Foley himself and the Minot Police Department as a whole within the community and the effect of the damage done and how difficult it is to rebuild once tarnished.

Disciplinary Action:

As a result of these findings I am ordering the following:

1. Officer Foley will be suspended from work without pay for a period of twenty (20) hours.
2. Officers Foley will receive additional training on the use of social media while employed as a Minot Police Officer.

Future policy violations may involve disciplinary actions up to and including termination of employment with the Minot Police Department.

Any disciplinary actions will be effective once the appeal processes are either waived or exhausted.

1. GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE

The grievance procedure is defined as a procedure whereby any employee who is adversely affected by a decision of his/her immediate Supervisor, Superintendent/Manager or equivalent, or Department Head, may require the decision be reviewed by a person having the authority to reverse the decision. This procedure is as follows:

1. Oral Report: An employee who has a grievance shall first discuss his grievance with his/her immediate Supervisor. If the grievance pertains to a decision made by that Supervisor, the employee may forward the grievance in writing to the next Supervisory level in the department which is generally the Superintendent, Manager or equivalent within the Police and Fire departments.
2. Written Report: The written report must be submitted to the next Supervisory level, as indicated above, within five (5) working days of the initial decision by the immediate Supervisor. Within five (5) working days after receiving a written grievance, the next level of Supervision shall furnish the employee with a written reply to the grievance. If the grievance pertains to a Department Head, the written report must be submitted to the Human Resource Director within five (5) working days of the initial decision.
3. Appeal to Department Head: If the written reply to the grievance is not satisfactory to the employee, he/she may, within ten (10) working days after receiving the reply, submit an appeal in writing to his/her Department Head. The Department Head shall confer with the aggrieved employee and/or his authorized representative and the employee's supervisor before rendering a decision. Such a decision shall be provided in writing and shall be delivered to the aggrieved employee within ten (10) working days of the date on which the appeal was received by the department head.
4. Appeal to Civil Service Commission: If the appeal to the Department Head fails to resolve the grievance, the employee may, within five (5) working days of receipt of decision on the appeal, submit an appeal in writing to the Civil Service Commission. This appeal shall be filed with the Human Resource Office and be referred to the next available meeting of the Civil Service Commission for its review, which shall be final.

Note: The grievance procedure does not apply to: employee terminations related to probationary employment, for just cause or due to a reduction in force; or employee transfers for the good of the service.

Steve Schoenrock 1

Officer #10 (current MPD Sgt.) – referred to ask Sgt. Q

- 19 year MPD officer.
- Sgt. Q has had 4 different Chiefs since starting with MPD. Prior to this Chief, MPD was a family feeling organization. Things changed when Chief was appointed in 2020. Chief Klug and Cpt. Sundheim regularly spoke disrespectfully – talked down to whole staff. "you're all replaceable". I've heard this multiple times from officers...this really upsets employees and it is said quite frequently.

1) - When Chief was promoted, Sgt. Q had been doing Lt. Redding's job, without any type of compensation. He was happy to do it, as Lt. Redding was a good friend and his Lt. who had been med relieved. Sgt. Q thought it was great experience and hoped it would lead to promotion to LT.

- Sgt. Q – is well liked and every other officer I spoke to within the department had nothing but great things to say about him. "He should've been promoted, He's a great cop, I would've left if it hadn't been for Sgt. Q".
- Sgt. Q was/is on the SWAT team for Minot PD – during his career – Darin Egge had been SWAT commander. Egge developed cancer while at the MPD, but continued to show up for SWAT training. Egge would tell them at training, I'll show up until I can't. After Egge could no longer be SWAT commander, Cpt. Sundheim became SWAT commander. He never showed up for training and still doesn't to this day. SWAT is very rarely used within the MPD because of Cpt. Sundheim's urging.
- Cpt. Sundheim has two different domestic violence incidents while working for MPD. One with girlfriend (Christie) and one with current wife Jess. Both incidents were brought to supervisors' attention and squashed. In one of the incidents...Cpt Sundheim allegedly put a gun to his girlfriend's head. Sgt. Q was good friends with Cpt. Sundheim's wife (she was a MPD officer for a while as well). She ended up in the hospital after one incident and when Sgt. Q went to check on her, she said, "He's getting help".
- Sgt. Q spoke about some of the previous discipline at the dept. – specifically speaking about Wilke and another officer who were both fired for relatively minor offenses (one of them for giving out a door code during COVID). There were a number of officers violating COVID policies that were put in place (videos online of officers out partying with no masks etc.) but none of them were let go. Inconsistent discipline.

2) - Some of these issues were brought to Cpt. Sundbakken during this time – it never went anywhere. "if you were part of the in club, you got away with things". Sgt. Q said not many people have confidence in Sundbakken as he rarely follows through with reports up the chain of command. Sgt. Q also told me to look in to the Shannon Lackey incidents – her and Chief were good friends and drinking buddies; he protected her at the department until she punches people drunk in the bar the final time.

- Sgt. Q also mentioned some of the sexism issues at the MPD. Specifically, Lt. Wagner and Lt. Dyke – always saying inappropriate things to female officers. Most weren't too bothered by it...always "oh that's just Wagner" but there were a few incidents where female officers spoke with Sgt. Q about some very inappropriate comments from Lt. Wagner.
- During all of this time the brass never showed up for meetings, they didn't know their officers and most of the MPD officers were upset about these things. Officers were scared during COVID and to not have leadership around bothered almost every officer out on the road. Meetings were called – no Chief, no Cpts. No Lts. Showed up

- As mentioned before Sgt. Q had been doing Lt. Redding's job for almost a year. He was the number 1 Lt. candidate going into the promotions board. He was passed over for Lt. Dyke who was Chief's buddy. Sgt. Q took this personally he admitted.

3) – During 2020-2021 an internal investigation was started into Chief for a few things...including hostile work environment. During this investigation, Cpt. Sundheim called for a 'Free Speak" meeting for the officers. They were told you can speak freely, there will be no consequences. Sgt. Q was running the night shift and his guys approached him to ask if they should speak up or not. Sgt. Q told them, "Just tell the truth, if you don't speak up now, you have no one to blame but us". Cpt. Sundheim 'lost his mind' after the meeting when officers spoke up – he blamed Sgt. Q for this. If asked Sgt. Q if he went to HR with any of this. Sgt. Q said there is a lot of distrust with HR because Lisa Jundt and Chief are friends and have been seen drinking together.

- People who spoke up at Cpt. Sundheim's free speak meeting were given crap details, assignments and basically 'slapped around' for saying something.
- During the COVID and investigation stuff – the night shift guys started 'One PD' slogan with a "Sammy Sosa" kiss to the heavens gesture. Sgt. Q explained it as a moral building thing during COVID and it became popular for all shifts to make the gesture when they saw other officers. Cpt. Sundheim took this as a personal attack, because he was the one who came up with the One Dept. slogan. Lt. McCloud told Sgt. Q that he was stirring the pot by making the gesture at Cpt. Sundheim's urging. Very passive/aggressive behavior from brass after this. A letter of reprimand was put in Sgt. Q's personnel file and he was blamed for the attitude of the 'agitators' who spoke up.
- Sgt. Q was dealing with injuries during the '21-22 years. He had physical issues with his neck, back etc from doing the job.

4) – Sgt. Q spoke about a past officer – SO Bjork. He indicated what a great officer she was and "how we need more like her". SO Bjork went to HR about some of the issues and it was largely ignored. There was a incident between Shannon Lackey and SO Bjork at a fellow officers wedding dance. Lackey attacked Bjork at the dance. The next day Sgt. Q was asked about the incident by Cpt Plessus. He said there were multiple incidents like this with Lackey when she was on the PD...but it was always swept away because of her friendship with Chief. Sgt. Q mentioned during the last 4 years we have lost 'dozens' of officers who we shouldn't have lost because of the way the dept. is run. Indicated we have 'lost 200 years of experience' in 4 years.

5) – When the City Council investigation happened in 2020/21 – nobody reached out to speak with Sgt. Q – and they were told to by other officers.

- Sgt. Q spoke about how all officers deal with external drama everyday – patrol, home life etc..he said 'we have enough drama to deal with, we don't need internal drama at the dept' – it adds to mental stress daily.

6) - Sgt. Q spoke about his 2nd interview for Lt. He was either the top Lt. candidate or second candidate...he couldn't remember. He noted how odd the interview portion of his promotion board was. He was asked questions about what his position was within the PD and who he's in charge of? He was also asked how he'd disseminate information to other officers within the dept. He said "I told them I'd just go talk to them" – Cpt Sundheim's response started with "here's the problem with that". They don't want us talking to the lower grade officers. Sgt. Q said he knew he wouldn't be promoted this time either, because he'd called for an investigation in the Lackey incidents and both Chief and Cpt. Sundheim knew it.

- Sgt. Q spoke with Councilman Pitner a couple years ago when he and Councilman Podrygula were looking into allegations at the MPD. Nothing ever came of it.

HR Director, Lisa Jundt, Response to Officer #10 (Sgt Q) – Steve Schoenrock

Responses address numbered bullet points from information provided by Officer #10

1.) Sergeant Schoenrock commented on the leave issues surrounding Lt. Redding and how he had stepped into the lieutenant's role in Redding's absence. Lt. Redding had sporadic, unplanned absences related to his personal issues. There was not notice during this initial period of Redding's leave for when Schoenrock would have to perform his duties. However when Redding went on an extended FMLA absence in April of 2020, Chief Klug notified HR that Schoenrock would be assuming the role and would receive and increase in pay. See Exhibit A- Email from Klug giving instructions for raise. Exhibit B – Screenshot from HR software noting additional pay was provided.

2.) Schoenrock alleges Chief Klug protected Lt. Lackey in the department because they were friends. Lt. Lackey was with the Minot Police Department for over 20 years. During that time she served under four different police chiefs. In reviewing her personnel file, I found many commendations, notes of recognition and personal thanks throughout her service years. I also found the only disciplinary action ever taken against her was under Chief Klug. In fact, Chief Klug disciplined her on three separate occasions using a progressive discipline approach. The first disciplinary action was a letter of reprimand for Lackey's inappropriate comments to then Officer Jenna Bjork. The second disciplinary action related to another event pertaining to Officer Bjork which took place away from the department. That disciplinary action resulted in a three-day suspension, loss of annual pay increase, and formal referral to the City's EAP provider for performance issues. The final disciplinary action also concerned and incident that happened away from the police department. The disciplinary action for this incident would have resulted in Lt. Lackey's termination had she not chosen to resign. See Exhibit C – Letter of Reprimand. Exhibit D – Second Disciplinary Action including the full investigation. Exhibit E- Formal Referral to EAP provider. Exhibit F – Final Disciplinary Action including statement of termination. Note: Lt. Lackey's entire personnel file is available in the HR department for review.

3.) I would like to make a brief comment concerning Sgt. Schoenrock's accusation of distrusting HR and myself in particular because of my friendship with the Chief. I attended college with Chief Klug and several other MPD officers over 20 years ago. I had not seen Chief Klug, then Captain Klug, in almost a decade when I started with the City of Minot in 2012. My friendship with him is as a peer and co-worker and nothing outside of work. The only time I can recall ever having a drink with Chief Klug has been at a couple of City Christmas parties which were attended by 100+ other employees. I would hardly consider this a reason for distrust.

4.) I vaguely recall Officer Bjork coming to my office in the summer of 2020 to discuss and issue with Lt. Lackey. Since I am not Lt. Lackey's supervisor, and also to follow policy, I would have asked her if she had spoken with her supervisor concerning the issue. If she had not spoken to her supervisor, I would have directed her to do so. I believe she did go to her supervisor concerning the issue as that was the catalyst for Lt. Lackey's first disciplinary action (previously provided Exhibit C). HR cannot be the first line for complaints when the department may ultimately have to conduct a more thorough investigation. The complaint procedure is outlined in the City's Harassment Policy section of the City Employee Handbook which Officer Bjork acknowledged she received and reviewed. See Exhibit G- City of Minot Harassment Policy. Exhibit H -Officer Bjork Employee Manual Acknowledgment Form.

5.) Sgt. Schoenrock stated he was not he was not contacted concerning the City Council Investigation that took place in 2020-2021. I am only aware of the one investigation that took place and Sgt Schoenrock was in fact interviewed by investigator, Michele Sturgell, for the investigation. See Exhibit I- Schoenrock interview acknowledged by Steve Schoenrock.

6.) Sgt. Schoenrock alleges retaliation for reporting a complaint when he was not promoted to the position of Lieutenant. Chief Klug followed the City's personnel ordinance in promoting individuals to the position of lieutenant. The ordinance states that the hiring manager can make their determination from the top three certified individuals. The appointed list must be certified in numerical order, but the final selection does not have to take the placement in any particular order. Former Police Chief Olson, actually selected candidate number 3 over candidate number 1 when he last promoted for the position of Lieutenant. See Exhibit J – Excerpt from personnel ordinance addressing ranking lists. Exhibit K – Certified Lieutenant List from February 2019. Exhibit L – Certified Lieutenant List from June 2020.

Subject: Pay increase

Hello Lisa,

I'm not exactly sure how this works, but I'd like to give Steve Schoenrock a 5% bump in pay as we put him in charge of night shift during Scot Redding's absence. This officially took effect around the time we got notice from Dr. Reeve on April 28th. If possible, I would like to back date this to April 26th as I think that would be the start of a pay period closest to the date of the letter. He had been picking up the slack for about a month prior to that, which is why I think this date is fair.

Please let me know if you have any questions or if there is something else I have to do to make it happen.

Thank you!

Re: Letter of Reprimand

Captain Dale Plessas received a complaint from Officer Jenna Bjork alleging she had made inappropriate comments to her in front of co-workers. She had additional information that comments were also made by Lt. Lackey to another subordinate on the shift and that these comments were made over the last several months.

An investigation into these allegations was conducted by Capt. Plessas (see attached summary of investigation). Of the various policies considered the only sustained violation of policy was Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct. The section of that policy that was violated is 322.5.9 (f) (m) whereas the conduct of Lt. Lackey talking negatively about another officer with a subordinate would be discourteous or disrespectful. The conversation off-duty with one subordinate about another subordinate by a supervisor that discusses performance or appearance would also be inappropriate and unbecoming and does not positively impact the morale and would reasonably reflect poorly on the targeted officer.

Findings:

1. Lt. Shannon Lackey violated sections of Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct, when she made comments and/or had conversations with subordinates, which is outlined in detail in Captain Plessas' report.

Disciplinary Action:

1. This is the first violation by Lt. Lackey so this letter of reprimand will be placed in her personnel file and in the internal investigations file.
2. Lt. Lackey will be required to attend additional training on Supervision which will specifically deal with relationships and/or proper communication with subordinates.

Notice:

1. This letter will also serve as official notice that the conversations, statements, or comments are offensive and demeaning to Senior Officer Jenna Bjork and any additional comments made to or about her will likely be a violation of City Policy referencing harassment and hostile work environment.

John Klug, Chief of Police

I hereby acknowledge receipt of a copy of this letter.

Exhibit D -1

December 1, 2020

To: Lieutenant Shannon Lackey

Ref: Internal Investigation # 20-12

This report outlines the results of a complaint about Shannon Lackey's actions while off-duty and in attendance of the wedding of Stephanie Lentz. This incident occurred on October 16, 2020 and reported to Chief Klug on October 29, 2020. Chief Klug assigned the investigation of the incident to Captain Dale Plessas the same date. For specific information about the allegations and investigation, please refer to Captain Plessas' report of investigation.

In summary, the complaint brought forth some alleged name calling initiated by Shannon Lackey and directed toward Jenna Bjork, both were off-duty attending the wedding reception. There was also an allegation of an assault initiated by Shannon Lackey and directed toward Aaron Bowles. Both specific allegations were either unfounded or not sustained through the investigation.

The investigation did lead to the discovery of some unreported activity by Shannon Lackey that was found to be in violation of Minot Police Department policy and is again outlined with more specific detail in the investigative report. In summary, Shannon Lackey was observed at the event at Sleep Inn in south Minot and was visibly intoxicated. She was observed becoming angry and walking aggressively toward Jenna Bjork but was stopped by her husband and he told her something along the line of, no Shannon we're going... we're not doing this. In this incident, alcohol was a factor in Lackey's behavior and actions.

Information outlined in the full report also outlines the perception of many that Lackey has a history of intoxication that many times leads to undesirable behavior in public. Her role as a police lieutenant and having grown up in Minot makes her well known within the Minot community. Her behavior reflects poorly on the images of her and the Minot Police Department.

It is known to many on the department that Shannon Lackey and Jenna Bjork do not have a positive relationship and the aggressive posture and walk toward Jenna Bjork would have likely led to the incident getting out of control had Shannon not been stopped by her husband.

In a separate complaint made by Jenna Bjork against Shannon Lackey for comments made to other coworkers about her appearance, I issued a letter of reprimand to Lt. Lackey on June 10, 2020. That reprimand was for violation of Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct and was the first documented violation of that policy. The letter or reprimand was placed in her file and the second course of action to be taken was a requirement for Lt. Lackey to attend additional supervision training that would specifically address relationships and/or proper communication with subordinates. This training has not been accomplished due to the barriers caused by the current pandemic making training and travel difficult to achieve safely.

Findings: The actions by Lt. Shannon Lackey while off-duty in attendance of a wedding reception on October 16, 2020 have led to the following violations of Minot Police Department Policy being sustained and are the basis for the disciplinary action in this case.

Exhibit D-2

- Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct
  - 322.5.9 – Conduct
    (f) Discourteous, disrespectful, or discriminatory treatment of any member of the public or any member of this department or the City.
    (h) Criminal, dishonest, or disgraceful conduct, whether on- or off-duty, that adversely affects the Member's relationship with this department.
    (m) Any other on- or off-duty conduct which any member knows or reasonably should know is unbecoming a member of this department, is contrary to good order, efficiency, or morale, or tends to reflect unfavorably upon this department or its members.

Discipline: As a result of these findings I am ordering the following for Lieutenant Shannon Lackey:

- Lt. Lackey will be suspended without pay for a period of 3 days (30 hours).
- Lt. Lackey will not receive a pay advancement previously determined by the 2021 Pay Plan.
- Lt. Lackey is being formally referred to The Village business Institute, Employee Assistance Program to help with establishing appropriate on and off duty behaviors and relationships with subordinates.
- Lt. Lackey will attend the Basic Supervisory Liability course offered online through FBI-LEEDA.
- A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Shannon Lackey in the City of Minot Human Resource Office.

Future violations of policy may result in progressive disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

RE: Employee Standards of Conduct Complaint

Employee:	Lt. Shannon Lackey
Source of Complaint:	Sgt. Paul Burns
Complaint Date:	October 29, 2020
Investigation Date:	October 29, 2020 to November 13, 2020
Investigator:	Capt. Dale Plessas – Minot Police Department

Synopsis:

Sgt. Paul Burns sent an e-mail to Captain Justin Sundheim and Lt. Matt McLeod, outlining concerns he has with Lt. Shannon Lackey. This email focused specifically on Lackey's off duty behaviors while she is drinking.

Synopsis of Email from Sgt. Burns detailing Standards of Conduct Complaint:

On October 16, 2020 Lackey and several other officers attended the wedding reception of off duty Police Officer Stephanie Lentz at the Sleep Inn Motel. At some point during the evening, while Lackey was outside of the banquet hall with other off duty officers, Jenna Bjork walked out of the banquet hall. Lackey reportedly made the statement "Bitch" and "Cunt" at the sight of Bjork. Lackey also reportedly start towards Bjork, but was blocked by Lackey's husband, Ryan Lien. This incident was reportedly witnessed by several off-duty officers; however, Bjork did not know about this incident until later when it was relayed to her.

Also detailed is an incident where Lackey was at The Spot Bar in Minot for its Oktoberfest event. Lackey reportedly wanted to participate in the axe throwing event and was denied by the man in charge of safety due to her level intoxication. Lackey reportedly became augmentative.

Exhibit D-4

Minot Police Department

The final incident detailed occurred on an unknown date at Ebenezer's Bar. Lackey reportedly became belligerent and argumentative with the manager after being stopped for attempting to remove a drink from the premises.

Burns further reports that he has been told that Lackey is "frequently intoxicated", and he believes "she may have a problem".

Summary of investigation:

10-29-2020:

0900 - Chief Klug assigned me to conduct an internal investigation into allegations made by Sgt. Paul Burns in regard to Lt. Shannon Lackey

1256 – Received and reviewed the complaint from Chief Klug via the forwarded e-mail from Paul Burns. This email was originally sent to Capt. Sundheim and Lt. McLeod at 1229 Hours on October 29, 2020.

10-30-2020:

0901 – Sgt. Burns gave me a statement regarding the e-mail complaint he made. In his statement he indicated:

- Burns became aware of the incident when an Officer brought it to his attention. He did not witness these events firsthand. Later when I asked who brought it to his attention, he indicated it was Sgt. Schoenrock.
- Burns said the incident occurred at the wedding reception of Stephanie Lentz being held at the Sleep Inn Suites in one of the banquet halls.
- Burns said Lackey was reportedly out in front of the hall and when Officer Bjork came out Lackey yelled "Bitch" and "Cunt".
- Burns said he confirmed that this occurred by contacting officers who were there at the time. He said he talked to Officers Bjork, Roach, and Bowles.
- Burns said Officer Roach confirmed the comments were made and indicated that Roach knew they were directed to Bjork because they were made when she entered the area and that was the only thing that changed at that time. Burns said it was officer Roach's belief that it was directed at officer Bjork. Roach also saw Lackey strike Officer Bowles.
- Burns said Officer Bjork indicated that she had her back to Lackey and did not know anything happened until later. Her boyfriend, Jesse heard something going on but did not know it was directed at Bjork until later. Bjork did indicate to Sgt. Burns that she has had problems with Lt. Lackey and there was no love lost between the two.
- Aaron Bowles told him he was present at the wedding. He did not hear Lackey make comments but knew she was intoxicated and upset when she saw Bjork. Bowles told Burns that Lackey did start at Bjork, but her husband Ryan put his arm out and stopped her from proceeding forward. Bowles expressed to Burns that Ryan was upset with Lackey.

- Burns indicated he knew Bjork, Roach, Bowles, Hugg, and Reis were present. He did not talk to Hugg or Reis.
- Burns expressed concerns over a couple of events that he heard of, second hand, in which Lackey was intoxicated. He described an incident at the Spot during an Oktoberfest event and Axe throwing contest where Lackey got into an argument with the safety person at the contest. Another incident at Ebenezer's when she wanted to leave with a drink and management would not let her.

Burns later gave me the names of Sherry McLaughlin and Shannon Strutton as witnesses to the events at The Spot. He also said the manager at Ebeneezer's, later identified as Sabrina Deadmond could verify the incident at Ebeneezer's.

11-03-2020:

0741 – Met with Officer Reis. In his statement he indicated:

- Reis was not present at the wedding reception of Stephanie Lentz. He said he was working on patrol at the time.
- Reis believes someone mistook him for Officer Kristian Shaide. Reis said he knows that Shaide went to the party with Officer Hugg.

1041 – Met with Officer Bjork. In her statement she indicated:

- Bjork heard from others (Bowles and Blanchard) that on the night of Stephanie Lentz's reception Lackey was yelling names at her and was trying to physically fight or assault her. Bjork indicated she did not hear the names and was unaware of the incident until the next day.
- Lackey arrived at the reception after dinner. Bjork estimated Lackey's arrival at around 8 pm.
- Others advised Bjork that Lackey called her a "cunt" and "a fucking bitch".
- Bjork indicated she had no interaction with Lackey at all that night. Nothing to instigate this.
- Bjork was accompanied by her boyfriend, Jesse Miller.
- Jesse, Bjork's boyfriend, did hear Lackey's outburst but at the time did not know that it was directed at Bjork.
- Later Bowles approached Jesse at the reception about the outburst by Lackey. Bjork indicated that Jesse believed Bowles was trying to get a feel for how Jesse felt about Lackey's outburst. This is when Jesse realized it was directed towards Bjork.
- Blanchard later talked to Bjork and said Lackey was "acting the fool" and that Lackey's Husband Ryan, stopped Lackey, told her she was going to lose her job if she didn't stop, and asked for help getting her out. Bowles assisted in getting her out.
- Bjork said Lackey was clearly intoxicated when she arrived at the reception. Bjork said Lackey "Mad Dogged" her which she characterized as staring at her with a "mean look" and pointing at her. Bjork indicated that she ignored it.

Exhibit D-6

- When I asked Bjork about her feeling about what occurred she expressed concern with Lackey's drinking and how it affects the reputation of the Minot Police Department.
- Bjork indicated that she cannot work for Lackey. She indicated that Lackey and her only communicate through e-mail.
- Bjork indicated that she did not bring this complaint to us because she did not hear it. She did not feel she had any place bringing the complaint when she did not witness it.
- Bjork expressed that Lackey's behavior is affecting patrol considerably.
- Bjork stated "it's more than just me and Paul Burns who are watching how this is handled"

11-4-2020:

0750 – Met with Anthony Hugg. In his statement he indicated:

- Hugg was at Alex Nelson's wedding reception and later went to Stephanie Lentz's reception. Hugg said he saw Lackey at both dances.
- Hugg said he was heavily intoxicated by the time he got to Lentz's reception and does not remember much.
- Hugg indicated that he knew Lackey was intoxicated at Nelson's wedding but does not recall any of the events from Lentz's wedding.
- Hugg said he was intoxicated to the point where he was throwing up. He said he does not remember being brought home but was later told that Lackey's husband, Ryan, gave him a ride.

11-5-2020:

0742 – Met with Kristian Shaide. In his statement he indicated:

- Shaide went to both Alex Nelson and Stephanie Lentz's wedding receptions. He was with his girlfriend, Lilly.
- Shaide saw Lackey at Alex Nelson's Wedding reception and talked to her briefly. He indicated she did seem intoxicated. Her speech was a little slurred.
- Shaide did see Lackey at Lentz's wedding but had very limited contact with her.
- Shaide did not see anything happen. He later heard others talking about an incident at the wedding and days following.
- He indicated he was kind of intoxicated.

11-10-2020:

0749 – Met with Patrick Blanchard. In his statement he indicated:

- Blanchard was at Stephanie Lentz's reception. He had had brief interactions with Shannon Lackey.
- Lackey was in the hall outside the reception area. Blanchard said he walked out into the hall were other officers were hanging out.
- Indicated Lackey was intoxicated and upset about something.

- He said he felt like he walked in on something, but he did not know what.
- Lackey's husband and Aaron Bowles were trying to get Lackey out. Ryan was saying "Hey, we got to go, we got to go".
- Eventually, Lackey left with her husband.
- Lackey seemed intoxicated due to slurred speech and the way she was acting.
- She asked Blanchard if he were "part of it" and "would you do that to me" but he did not know what she was referring to at the time.
- He did not see any statements directed at anyone else. He indicated he could tell that her behavior was directed at someone at the party that had upset her.
- Blanchard did not see Lackey strike anyone or make any aggressive moves. He said she cusses when she talks but did not see anything directed at anyone.
- He said he does not know specifically who witnessed this incident other than Aaron Bowles but there were other officers in the hallway.

11-11-2020:

1359 – Met with Mikali Talbott. In her statement she indicated:

- Talbott was at the wedding reception. She saw Lackey at the reception.
- Talbott said she did not witness an altercation at the wedding.
- Talbott said Lackey was extremely intoxicated when she arrived at the wedding. Talbott based this opinion on the way Lackey was walking, talking, her slurred speech, her eyes were blood shot.
- Talbott heard about Lackey punching Bowles and Schoenrock at the dance.
- Talbott said she talked to Bowles and Bjork about the altercation.
- Talbott said she heard from others that Lackey called someone a "Stupid Bitch and a Cunt". She indicated that she does not know if those words were directed at Jenna or someone else.
- She indicated that she personally did not hear Lackey say anything other than "No one wants to dance with me".
- Talbott made indication that if Jenna had heard comments directed at Jenna, there would definitely have been a reaction and many people would have been involved.

11-12-2020:

0911 – Met with Aaron Bowles. In his statement he indicated:

- Bowles attended both Alex Nelson's and Stephanie Lentz's wedding receptions.
- Bowles said he arrived at Lentz's reception and Lackey arrived a short time later.
- Bowles indicated that when Burns called him to ask what had happened at the wedding Burns alluded to Lackey assaulting him at Lentz's wedding. He said this did not occur. He said what Burns thought was an assault was Lackey and him joking around and was completely in jest.

Exhibit D-8

- He said the wedding was casual and everything was fine until he saw Bjork and a group of people standing in the hall near the bathrooms. He said Lackey came out and rounded the corner and saw Bjork. Lackey had a visible "negative reaction, and walked towards her and it was, she was dramatic about it." Bowles said Ryan put his arm out and told her to stop that and said something to the effect "you're going to make an ass out of yourself, You're going to get into trouble".
- Bowles was in close proximity to them and did not hear Lackey make any comments. He indicated that Sgt. Burns had told him that he had heard that Lackey called Bjork a bitch or cunt, but he did not hear that. He further said he knows for a fact that Jenna did not hear that.
- Lackey did not make any further attempts to approach Bjork.
- Later in the evening Ryan came to Bowles and asked him to help get Lackey out of there. Bowles knew that Hugg was sick in the bathroom and Bowles felt that this was an opportunity to have Lackey help with Hugg and thus leave the reception.
- Bowles indicated he later messaged Lackey on snapchat asking if Hugg made it home and she indicated he did. She did not mention anything to do with Bjork.
- Bowles indicated Lackey's reaction to Bjork was aggressive and he believed this because she was "shaking her head, speaking under her breath, visibly angry" and further stated "she took an aggressive posture and marched towards Jenna with a purpose".
- Bowles was aware of an issue between Lackey and Bjork. As a result, he was not surprised by Lackey's reaction.
- Bowles could not understand what Lackey was saying from under her breath.
- Bowles did talk to Bjork later and she did not know what happened with Lackey. He told her Lackey was not happy to see her.
- Bowles said Burns called him over a week after the reception. Bowles said he was shocked by Burns indicating that Lackey had struck him, and that Lackey called Bjork a "Bitch and a Cunt". He said Burns information was not accurate, to his knowledge.
- Bowles said he did not talk to Jesse about this incident to his recollection.
- Bowles indicated that Lackey was intoxicated, and he based this opinion on her slurred speech and her candor in general. He said she wasn't holding the walls up or staggering around" but she was drunk like many others at this event.
- He said there was clearly a problem but the way it was pieced together to Sgt. Burns was inaccurate.
- Bowles said he does not hang out with Lackey outside of work.

0936 – Called Andrew Roach at home. In his statement he indicated:

- Roach was at the Stephanie Lentz's wedding. He said he was outside talking to Lt. Dyke and his wife. He said Jenna Bjork walked up and was talking as well. He said after a little bit he looked over and saw "Lackey walking over really fast". She looked like she was angry about something when her husband Ryan stopped her and said something like "no, Shannon were going, were not doing this, we're going, we're leaving, get your shit were going".

- Roach said he looked around to see who else saw this and said no one else reacted to it. Roach said he looked around to see "who she might have been going after, wondering if there was someone on the other side of the pile".
- Roach said he could hear Lackey cussing about something but could not really hear what she said.
- Roach said he did not have much interaction with Lackey that night.
- Roach said he did not see Lackey much after this incident. He said he did not think much of it after it was over and does not believe Bjork knew anything about it.
- Roach indicated he did not hear anyone talking about this after the incident. He thought he was the only one who witnessed it.

1414 – Called Sherry McLaughlin – Owner of The Spot Bar - at 701-240-2001. Sherry indicated having knowledge of why I was calling but did not wish to talk to me about this. She made indication that she likes Lackey and does not want to get involved. She further indicated that she knows were Paul (Burns) is coming from, but he is very black and white. Sherry said I should talk to Sabrina at Ebeneezer's as she could tell me more. She also indicated that Ebeneezer's records everything. Sherry said the only thing she would say is that Lackey should not act the way she does because of the position she is in, but will not say anymore. She did contact Sabrina Deadmond and later provided me with a phone number for Deadmond.

1422 – Called Shannon Strutton – Manager of The Spot Bar – at 701-240-2007. Shannon indicated that she has heard rumors about Lackey but has never seen any of it personally. She indicated that Sherry is the only one she knows of who can tell me first hand information. She said she know Sherry does not want to get involved because she is afraid of backlash. Strutton said, Lackey "is not terrible".

1427 – Called Sabrina Deadmond – Bar Manager for Ebeneezer's Bar – at 720-9650. Sabrina said she was willing to talk to me because she was to the point where she was ready to ask Lackey not to come back.

- Biggest issue Sabrina has had with Lackey was one afternoon when Lackey was getting ready to leave, she asked the bartender for a to-go-cup. When the bartender told her no, Lackey began cussing him out, told him to mind his own business, calling him a big bad ass.
- Deadmond said this occurred a couple of months ago – probably September timeframe.
- Deadmond said this is the biggest issue because she could have been held accountable if Lackey were to leave with alcohol and she knows Lackey is a police officer.
- Deadmond said otherwise Lackey is just rude, especially when bar staff try to card her. She said the bar has a 100 % carding policy. She said Lackey does not like being carded and one-time Lackey did not have her ID on her. The bartender refused to serve her. Sabrina said Lackey threw a fit and said she was a police officer. The bar tender said, "then you should know to carry your ID with you".
- Deadmond said she was not present during these, but her bartenders told her about the incidents.

Exhibit D-10

- Deadmond indicated that she does have a surveillance system, but these instances would have been gone by know as it only keeps footage for about two weeks.
- Deadmond said she has about one more time before she decides Lackey is not going to be welcome back.

I later asked Deadmond to reach out to her bartenders and ask them to talk to me. Deadmond agreed to do so but I have not heard from her bartenders as of the date of this report.

1710 – Met with Shannon Lackey. In her statement she indicated:

- I advised Lackey about the complaint and indicated she was accused of making some aggressive comments towards Jenna Bjork on the night of Stephanie Lentz's weeding reception.
- Shannon indicated that she did not recall making any comments.
- Lackey said she arrived at the wedding at around 2200 hrs.
- Lackey went with her husband and met with Darrin Dyke and his wife Kim.
- Lackey stayed at the reception for about an hour.
- Lackey indicated that she does not remember any instance where she made comments or aggressive movements directed at Bjork.
- Lackey said she does not have ill feelings for Bjork and further indicated that sometimes she forgets that Bjork made a complaint against her.
- Lackey indicated she does not recall using the words "Bitch or Cunt" that night
- Lackey said her husband made a comment to her indicating everywhere Lackey was, it seemed that Bjork was right in her circle. Lackey said he did not understand why, if Jenna had ill feelings towards her, Jenna would be so close.
- Ryan also told Lackey that she really needs to stop going to events.
- Ryan told Lackey that at some point Darren was talking to Bjork and Lackey walked up to Darrin and said "really" and walked away.
- Lackey left early to give Hugg a ride home because he was intoxicated.
- Lackey admitted being intoxicated to the point where she would not drive but she was not out of control.
- Lackey does not recall punching Aaron Bowles.
- Lackey never felt angry at anyone at any point.
- Lackey was at the Octoberfest at the spot.
- Lackey said she was never involved in any augments that evening.
- Lackey indicates she did participate in the axe throw competition and was not denied or turned away from participating. Lackey said it was early in her evening.
- Lackey recalled that she initially walked up with a drink and was told she could not have a drink while participating. She put the drink down and indicated it was a friendly interaction.
- Lackey does not recall any instance when she tried to take a drink out of Ebeneezer's. She did not get into an argument with the bartender. Lackey indicated she knows all the bartenders.

11-13-2020:

Exhibit D-11

Minot Police Department

0742 – Met with Sgt. Steve Schoenrock. I gave Schoenrock a Notice of investigation form and copy of policy 1005. He indicated that he understood both and initialed and signed the Notice of Investigation. In his statement he indicated:

- Schoenrock indicated that he did not personally witness anything at Stephanie Lentz's wedding. He indicated that everything he knows came from another officer who was there. Later Schoenrock said Officer Roach was his source of information.
- Schoenrock said he was told Lackey began yelling obscenities, "You fucking bitch, You fucking Cunt" and "Started going at her (Bjork)".
- Schoenrock said that Ryan had to push Lackey away into the bathroom.
- Schoenrock said Roach indicated that it was overheard by several officers but no one else talked to Schoenrock about it.
- Schoenrock said Officer Bowles was standing right next to Lackey.
- Schoenrock indicated that Roach believed others had to have witnessed this as it was "quite loud". He said it was directed at Jenna from what he could tell.
- Schoenrock talked about an instance where Casarez was showing a video from Snap Chat where Lackey was out partying with others in Bismarck. Schoenrock indicated frustration as this was during the height of COVID when officers were told not to travel.
- Schoenrock told Casarez he should give that video to someone. Schoenrock indicated that he did not know what to do with the video.

1041 - I called Jesse Miller (Bjork's boyfriend). – Miller agreed to talk to me via a phone interview. In his statement he indicated:

- Miller indicated he was at the wedding reception with Bjork. He indicated he is aware of an incident where Lackey was shouting obscenities and wanted to start an altercation with someone. He asked others what the outburst was about and was told that it was in reference to an earlier complaint by Bjork and that is why Lackey was acting out.
- Miller could not remember if Bjork were with him at this time.
- Miller said he was talking to Roach and Dyke and he was located next to the women's bathroom. He could not remember where Bjork was at the time.
- He heard Lackey saying obscenities and trying to forcefully make her way through people.
- Lackey's husband stopped her. She was removed from the area and he went about his night.
- He said he asked either Roach, Bowles, or Blanchard what that was about, and was told it was about Bjork's complaint against Lackey. He said it was directed at Bjork.
- He said he did not go into much detail about it with Bjork that night but did talk about it the next day.

11-16-2020

0749 – Met with Andrew to get some clarification on his earlier statement. In this statement he indicated:

Exhibit D-12

- I asked Roach to clarify what he heard on the night of Lent's reception. Roach said "to me it just seemed like it was a cussword. I am not 100 percent sure what variation it was or anything. Seemed that she was frustrated and threw out a cussword".
- Roach said he does not know for sure if it was directed at Bjork. Roach said he never concluded it was directed at Bjork but through a process of elimination he assumed it was directed at Bjork.
- Roach said he was about 7 feet away from Lackey at this point.
- Roach said he did not see Bowles in the area.

Applicable Policy:

Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct - Sustained

Policy 322 – In part

> 322.1 PURPOSE AND SCOPE This policy establishes standards of conduct that are consistent with the values and mission of the Minot Police Department and are expected of all department members. The standards contained in this policy are not intended to be an exhaustive list of requirements and prohibitions but they do identify many of the important matters concerning member conduct. In addition to the provisions of this policy, members are subject to all other provisions contained in this manual, as well as any additional guidance on conduct that may be disseminated by this Department or a member's supervisors.

The Standards of Conduct policy recognizes it is not possible to specify all actions that fall outside of acceptable standards, but rather give general guidance. While the policy does not specifically state all actions or behavior that are covered by this policy it does require employees to "reasonably conform to the guidelines set forth..."

As Shannon Lackey is a Lieutenant and supervisor, I start my review of policy 322, with Supervisors Responsibilities:

> 322.3.2 SUPERVISOR RESPONSIBILITIES Supervisors and managers are required to follow all policies and procedures and may be subject to discipline for:
> > (d) The unequal exercise of authority on the part of a supervisor toward any member for malicious or other improper purpose.

Unfounded - There is no evidence that Lackey's behavior resulted in an unequal exercise of authority. In her statement Bjork indicated that she did not witness the reported incident and did not know about the allegations until the next day. She indicated she did not report this to command staff because she did not witness it. Even if Lackey's aggression were directed at Bjork, Bjork would need to have had contemporaneous knowledge about the actions for them have exercised any level of authority over her.

322.5.2 ETHICS

(a) Using or disclosing one's status as a member of the Minot Police Department in any way that could reasonably be perceived as an attempt to gain influence or authority for non-department business or activity.

Not Sustained - In reference to the complaint Burns made about Lackey at Ebeneezer's I contacted Sabrina Deadmond, the bar manager at Ebeneezer's. Sabrina stated that Lackey was carded by one of her bartenders one nigh a few months back. Sabrina indicated that Lackey does not like to get carded. Sabrina indicated that Lackey did not have her identification on her at the time and as a result the bartender refused to serve her in accordance with Ebeneezer's policy. Sabrina stated that Lackey threw a fit and said she was a police officer. If true, this instance could be a violation of 322.5.2, but Sabrina admitted that she did not personally witness this occur and indicated that she was given this information by her bartender. I have attempted to reach out to the bartender to get firsthand knowledge but have not been able to make contact. As a result, this complaint cannot be sustained.

322.4 GENERAL STANDARDS

Members shall conduct themselves, whether on- or off-duty, in accordance with the United States and North Dakotan Constitution and all applicable laws, ordinances and rules enacted or established pursuant to legal authority.

...Discipline may be initiated for any good cause. It is not mandatory that a specific policy or rule violation be cited to sustain discipline. This policy is not intended to cover every possible type of misconduct

This investigation has established clear concerns about the standards of conduct of Lt. Lackey on October 16th, 2020. What is also clear is the complaint made by Sgt Paul Burns has several inaccuracies and some of the allegations proved to be inflammatory. It is widely agreed that Lackey was intoxicated at Stephanie Lentz's wedding and the evidence shows that she did become angry and made aggressive movements in the direction of a subordinate officer. What has not been substantiated is the inflammatory language she was accused of using or her intentions in making aggressive actions.

Of all the people who were described as being in the hall at the time of this incident, only Andrew Roach, Aaron Bowles, and Jesse Miller witnessed the incident in question.

Bowles was the closest person to Lackey at the time and indicated that Lackey had a visibly "negative reaction and walked towards [Bjork] and ... she was dramatic about it." Bowles indicated that Lackey did not say anything. He further indicated that she did not call Bjork a "Bitch or Cunt" as was stated by Burns. Bowles stated that Ryan Lien, Lackey's husband, put his arm out and stopped her progression and said, "you're going to make an ass out of yourself, you're going to get into trouble". Bowles indicated that Lackey did not make any further attempts to approach Bjork.

Exhibit D-14

Roach had a similar report indicating that he was talking to a group of people that included Bjork. He said he looked over and saw "Lackey walking over really fast". He said she looked angry when her husband Ryan stopped her. He reported Ryan said something to the effect, "no, Shannon were going, were not doing this, we're going, we're leaving, get your shit were going". Roach indicated that he heard Lackey swearing but admitted that he could not make out what swear words she was saying.

Miller indicated he was with Roach and visiting with others. He heard Lackey saying obscenities and trying to force her way though a group of people. He indicated he did not know what was going on and someone told him it was about Bjork.

While no witness reported hearing, Lackey use the words "Bitch" or "Cunt", almost everyone I talked to reported they heard from someone else, that these words were used. The addition of this language is inflammatory and seems to have originated with Officer Roach telling Sgt. Steve Schoenrock what occurred that night and was passed on from there. When I pressed Roach on the exact language used, he said, "to me it just seemed like it was a cussword. I am not 100 percent sure what variation it was or anything. Seemed that she was frustrated and threw out a cussword". Roach further indicated that he could not be sure that the words were directed at Bjork. Whether embellishment or not, Roach's addition of the words "Bitch" and "Cunt" elevated Bruns's concern to the point where he wrote an email complaint.

Burns also reported an incident that occurred at The Spot on the night of their Oktoberfest event as well as one that occurred at Ebeneezer's Bar. It is doubtful that these allegations would have come to light if it were not for the above listed incident. For these allegations Burns gave me the names of Sherry McLaughlin and Shannon Strutton as witnesses. McLaughlin refused to talk to me about this incident and she further indicated that she knows were Paul (Burns) is coming from, but he is very black and white. McLaughlin seemed annoyed that Burns brought her into this situation but did indicate that Lackey should not act the way she does while in her position. Shannon Strutton indicated that she did not witness what Burns reported and further indicated that Lackey is "not terrible". Sherry indicated the only person she knows of who witnessed Lackey's behavior was Sherry McLaughlin and she was worried about repercussions.

Sabrina Deadmond did talk to me about two incidents that she had been made aware of but admitted that she has not personally witnessed either event. Sabrina said she received reports from her employees that Lackey began cussing her bartender out when he refused to give her a to-go-cup and on another occasion when she was refused service due to not having her driver's license on her. While Sabrina did witness the event personally, she said she is on her last warning with Lackey and if it happens again, she will be banned from Ebeneezer's. Sabrina indicated she would talk to her bartenders and have them contact me if they were willing to contribute to this investigation. As of the date of this report they have not called me.

322.5.9 CONDUCT

Subsections (d), (e), (f), (h), and (m)

(d) Unauthorized or unlawful fighting, threatening or attempting to inflict bodily harm on another.

Not sustained - Bowles indicated that Lackey's reaction to Bjork was aggressive because she was "shaking her head, speaking under her breath, visibly angry" and further stated "she took an aggressive posture and marched towards Jenna with a purpose". Ultimately, she was stopped short by her husband and no altercation occurred. Furthermore, it is impossible to know if Lackey's intention was to inflict bodily harm or otherwise. As a result, this subsection cannot be substantiated.

(f) Discourteous, disrespectful or discriminatory treatment of any member of the public or any member of this department or the City.

Sustained - Bowles and Roach had the closest vantage point. Both believed from Lackey's actions and reactions that she was specifically upset with Jenna Bjork. In terms of Lackey and Bjork's relationship, this would make sense as the two had a documented strain in relationship which was delineated in a complaint Bjork filed against Lackey in April of 2020 and the completed investigation into that complaint. Furthermore, while at the reception, Bjork claimed that Lackey had "Mad Dogged" her, which she characterized as staring at her with a "mean look". In statements from Bowles, Roach, and Miller we have evidence that Lackey's husband had to act to physically stop Lackey from moving forward at Bjork. With all this information it is reasonable to assume that Lackey was upset with Bjork and had some sort of nefarious intentions which she made public by her actions. Lackey showed clear contempt for Bjork which is appropriately categorized as discourteous and disrespectful to her.

(h) Criminal, dishonest, or disgraceful conduct, whether on- or off-duty, that adversely affects the member's relationship with this department.

Sustained – The above listed actions are at least disgraceful conduct, that was witnessed by a minimum of two off-duty police officers. The actions were directed at an off-duty police officer. The results of these actions have become common knowledge throughout the police department. While the rumors that have spread, are more inflammatory than the actual events, it was still actions brought on by Lackey, a supervisor, that lead to this disgraceful situation. As a result, Lackeys actions have adversely affected Bjork's as well as her own relationship with this department.

(m) Any other on- or off-duty conduct which any member knows or reasonably should know is unbecoming a member of this department, is contrary to good order, efficiency or morale, or tends to reflect unfavorably upon this department or its members.

Sustained –There is little question that Lackey was intoxicated at the time of this incident. Even in her statement she admits to being too intoxicated to drive. Lackey's behavior at Stephanie Lentz's wedding reception has been categorized as aggressive by witnesses.

Bowles indicated that Lackey's reaction to Bjork was aggressive because she was "shaking her head, speaking under her breath, visibly angry" and further stated "she took an aggressive posture and marched towards Jenna with a purpose".

Roach expressed similarly that he saw "Lackey walking over really fast". She looked like she was angry about something when her husband Ryan stopped her. Roach said he looked around to see "who she might have been going after, wondering if there was someone on the other side of the pile".

Exhibit D-16

Miller indicated that he heard obscenities and saw Lackey trying to forcefully make her way through people.

Any officer should reasonably know that such behavior is unbecoming and is contrary to good order. Furthermore, this behavior tends to reflect unfavorably upon this department and its members.

City Policy Chapter 5 – Workplace Harassment

Workplace harassment was not considered. It should be noted that Jenna Bjork had previously filed a complaint for workplace harassment against Lackey. In this instance, this policy was not considered as Officer Bjork did not express concerns of harassment. When Bjork was asked how she felt about this incident, as it was reported, Bjork expressed great concern about how Lackey's drinking and how it is affecting the department. Bjork stated, "it's more than just me and Paul Burns who are watching how this is handled". As harassment is in the eye of the beholder and Jenna has not expressed that she feels specifically harassed by Lackey's actions, it is not appropriate to consider this policy as part of this investigation. Despite not considering workplace harassment, the department should be concerned about any potential escalation that could develop into harassment concerns.

Report of Findings and Discipline
Shannon Lackey, Lieutenant
Internal Investigation # 21-5

On Friday, February 26, 2021 I was notified of an incident at bar in southeast Minot involving Lt. Shannon Lackey while she was off duty. She left the establishment prior to officers arriving on scene and no contact was made with her that night. I initiated an internal investigation and assigned her supervisor, Captain Jason Sundbakken, to conduct the investigation.

Capt. Sundbakken initiated the original investigation that night and continued Saturday, February 27th. When Capt. Sundbakken called Shannon to have her come to the police department to give a statement on Saturday, she told him she was going to resign on Tuesday (3/2) when she returned to work since she was scheduled to be off on Monday for a medical appointment.

Capt. Sundbakken called and informed me of this information, and we discussed our policy requiring her to report and give a statement upon request. I contact Shannon via text and informed her she would be facing an additional policy violation if she did not give a statement for our administrative investigation and she said that was not her intent, she just thought it resolved the need for an investigation if she resigned. She told me she would be in route to the police department to meet with Capt. Sundbakken at that time.

On Sunday, February 28th I sent a text to Shannon once again asking if she could come to the police department prior to her appointment on Monday morning so I could place her on administrative leave. She told me at that time that she could not and that she did not understand the reason for the administrative leave because she told Capt. Sundbakken on Saturday (2/27) that she resigned. Capt. Sundbakken said they discussed that she was going to do that on Tuesday, but she did not give him a letter, so he thought she was going to officially resign on Tuesday, March 2nd. I sent her another text and told her I would note her resignation on February 27th for the official date.

I received the final report containing the details of the investigation into Shannon's actions on February 26, 2021. Please refer to Capt. Sundbakken's report for details about the investigation as I will only summarize the activity for the sake of explaining the actions which I believe constitute violations of the Minot Police Department policy.

As reported and confirmed through the statements and video obtained during the investigation, Shannon Lackey was extremely intoxicated and was seen staggering from table to table visiting with several patrons in the bar. After nearly an hour, Shannon approached a table where a long-time friend was sitting and punched her in the shoulder then three times in her side then put her hands around her neck. A male who also knows Shannon stepped in to intervene and Shannon kneed him. She then went to another acquaintance at the table and exchanged words with her. At some point the acquaintance she struck with her knee handed his phone to her and asked that she talk to a former officer and friend of hers and she knocked the phone away causing damage to the subject's cell phone. The owner of the bar then approached Shannon and eventually escorted her from the business where she got into a Lyft and left the area. Her actions listed above, if the victims wished to sign a criminal complaint, could have led to criminal charges for disorderly conduct, simple assault, and criminal mischief.

I listened to the interview conducted with Shannon Lackey about the incident and she denied knowledge of any of her actions. In the prior incident investigated in 2020, Shannon also said she could not remember parts of what happened that evening. Although there is no proof to show she is lying, it appears that she remembers regular occurrences throughout the night, but only forgets the actions that would reflect poorly upon her or be evidence of wrongdoing or policy violations. This inconsistency in memory makes me believe Shannon is not being completely truthful in her statements in both incidents.

Although none of the subjects who would have been victims did not want to sign a complaint, that does not excuse the behavior or reduce the seriousness of her actions. Lt. Lackey was disciplined for an incident that occurred on October 29, 2020, which also involved alcohol consumption and aggressive actions by Shannon while off-duty. The pattern of destructive behavior and excessive alcohol use cannot be tolerated by a sworn police officer, especially a lieutenant with our department who should be setting a good example for her subordinates to follow.

Findings: The actions by Lt. Shannon Lackey while off-duty at a bar on February 26, 2021 have led to the following violations of Minot Police Department Policy being sustained and are the basis for the disciplinary action in this case.

- Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct
  - 322.5.9 – Conduct
    (f) Discourteous, disrespectful, or discriminatory treatment of any member of the public or any member of this department or the City.
    (h) Criminal, dishonest, or disgraceful conduct, whether on- or off-duty, that adversely affects the Member's relationship with this department.
    (m) Any other on- or off-duty conduct which any member knows or reasonably should know is unbecoming a member of this department, is contrary to good order, efficiency, or morale, or tends to reflect unfavorably upon this department or its members.
- North Dakota Peace Officer Standards and Training Board (ND POST), Peace Officer code of conduct (109-02-05-01)
  - Section 4(c) – To engage in conduct that is in violation of the criminal laws of the state or federal government or ordinance of a political subdivision of the State of North Dakota.

Discipline: As a result of these findings and the history of events over the past year would, if Shannon Lackey had not resigned, led to the following disciplinary action:

- Lt. Lackey would be terminated from employment with the City of Minot, Police Department effective immediately.
- A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Shannon Lackey in the City of Minot Human Resource Office.

INTERNAL INVESTIGATION NOTES
INTERNAL #: 21-5
INCIDENT #: 21-5603
EMPLOYEE: LT. SHANNON LACKEY
RESULTS: SUSTAINED

2-26-21

- I was contacted by Captain Sundheim regarding an incident that had occurred at Bootlegrz Bar (515 20th Ave. SE) involving Lt. Shannon Lackey. Lt. Lackey allegedly arrived at the bar intoxicated and was involved in a physical altercation with another female at the bar and a male individual who tried to step in.
- I responded to the police department to begin interviewing Officers who responded to, or had information related to the call.
- I interviewed Sgt. Dave Chapman, who responded to the scene to back up Sgt. Wheeler. Prior to speaking with Chapman, I read through and had him sign a Notice of Internal Investigation (Item 1.1). Sgt. Chapman indicated that he and Sgt. Wheeler had just cleared a call on 19th Ave. SE when dispatch contacted Sgt. Wheeler to patch a call through from the owner of Bootlegrz Bar. Sgt. Wheeler apparently spoke with Dave Humphries and advised him of the incident at his bar involving Lt. Lackey. Sgt. Chapman arrived at Bootlegrz shortly after Sgt. Wheeler. Upon arrival he observed a Lyft (ride-share) leaving the parking lot but did identify who the passenger was. Chapman indicated that Humphries told he and Sgt. Wheeler that Lackey was very intoxicated upon arrival at the bar. At some point Lackey became involved in a physical altercation with another female patrol of the bar. During that altercation, another male individual (who was identified as possibly a former State Trooper) was kicked in the groin by Lackey. Another individual named "Mike" (who was identified as possibly a former Burlington PD Officer) tried to intervene as he knew Lackey. At that point Lackey slapped his phone out of his hand causing damage to the phone. Humphries said he and his staff took nearly 20 minutes to get Lackey out of the building. Once out she left, just prior to officer arrival, in a Lyft. While Chapman and Wheeler were speaking with Mr. Humphries he advised them that Lackey had threatened to have his business surveilled and charged if he called the police. Sgt. Chapman said that the individual name "Mike" was an acquaintance of Rich Lewellyn (former PD officer) and that he would have his contact information. Chapman indicated that Officer Steve Kenny was in the area and observed a Lyft leaving the parking lot of Bootlegrz. He followed that vehicle all the way to Lackey's residence and said it appeared as if it was trying to evade him at times. The recording of Sgt. Chapmans' interview was attached to the internal case file (Item 2.1).
- I interviewed Sgt. Dan Wheeler, who was the first unit on scene and who Mr. Humphries had spoken directly with prior to arrival. Prior to speaking with Wheeler, I read through and had him sign a Notice of Internal Investigation (Item 1.2). Sgt. Wheeler indicated that shortly after clearing a call on 19th Ave. SE he received a radio communication from Minot

Central Dispatch requesting to forward a call to him. A call was forwarded to Sgt. Wheeler's car phone from Dave Humphries, owner of Bootlegrz Bar. Mr. Humphries advised Sgt. Wheeler that they were having issues with "Shannon" who was a Lieutenant at the police department. Wheeler and Chapman responded, and Wheeler arrived first. Upon arrival Sgt. Wheeler said that he made contact with Mr. Humphries at the bar. He was told that Lackey had arrived at the bar with a male individual (not her husband Ryan) and was very intoxicated. At some point Lackey became involved in a physical altercation with another female patrol of the bar. During that altercation Lackey allegedly kicked another male individual in the groin when he tried to intervene. A third individual who knew Lackey also tried to intervene and she allegedly slapped his phone out of his hand causing damage to the phone. Humphries told Wheeler that Lackey had left in a Lyft just prior to his arrival. Humphries told Wheeler that Lackey had threatened to have surveillance on his business and get him in trouble if he contacted the police department. Sgt. Wheeler indicated that he was later advised that Officer Steve Kenny had been in the area and observed a Lyft leaving the Bootlegrz parking lot. He followed the vehicle all the way to Lackey's residence and said that it appeared to be trying to evade him during that time. The recording of Sgt. Wheeler's interview was attached to the internal case file (Item 2.2).

- I interviewed Officer Steve Kenny regarding his involvement and observations. Prior to interviewing him I read through and had him sign a Notice of Internal Investigation (Item 1.3) Officer Kenny said that when the call came out he was nearby, so he began to respond. As he was en route information was relayed over the radio that the individual causing problems had just left in a Lyft. As Officer Kenny arrived at the parking lot he observed a Lyft leaving the lot. He began to follow the Lyft. He said that the driver of the Lyft took 20th Ave. westbound from Bootlegrz and then Broadway northbound. He said that they were travelling faster than the speed limit and appeared to be making attempts to evade him. He continued to follow the vehicle until it pulled into, what he knew to be Shannon Lackey's driveway. He indicated that he did not follow any further due to his relationship with Lackey and the fact that he did not want her to know who was following her. He did not get close enough to be able to identify Lackey as the passenger of the vehicle. The recording of Officer Kenny's interview was attached to the internal case file (Item 2.3).
- I made contact, via telephone, with Dave Humphries (701-720-9940) regarding the incident at his bar (Item 2.5). He said that he has known Lackey for several years. Humphries said that she arrived at the bar very intoxicated with a male individual, who was not her husband Ryan. He said that due to her intoxication they would not serve her, but she was apparently able to get other people to buy drinks for her. At some point Lackey became involved in a physical altercation with another patron, who Humphries named as "Kelly". Kelly was apparently a former bartender. He did not know her last name but said that he may be able to find that out. Humphries said that he and his staff took approx. 20 minutes to get Lackey to the door. She was argumentative and refusing to leave. At some point they got her to the door and Humphries had two male employees block her way back in. He said that

Lackey left in a Lyft just prior to officers arriving. Humphries indicated that he has had several instances of Lackey causing problems in his bar. He indicated that on many occasions Lackey has threatened him with legal problems if he called the police. He said that she made a similar threat during this incident. Humphries said that he did not know what to do regarding the incident, so he contacted his friend Erik Laudenschlager. Laudenschlager advised him to contact the police department which he did (Laudenschlager advised Sgt. Chapman of this call and his advice via text message). I asked Humphries if there was video of the incident inside of the bar. He was not sure that his video would show what occurred in the bar but would check into it. He also agreed to meet with me on 2-27-21 to provide a recorded statement regarding the incident. The recorded phone conversation was attached to the internal case file (Item 2.5)

- I contacted Rich Lewellyn regarding the individual identified as "Mike" that was his acquaintance. He advised me that he had been contacted by Mike Hineman regarding the incident. Mr. Lewellyn was not at the bar when the incident had occurred but was asked by Hineman what he should do. Hineman also told him what had occurred at the bar.
- I left and voice message for Mr. Hineman (701-721-4768) as well as a text message to call me regarding the incident. I was contacted by Mr. Hineman on 2-27-21 at approx. 0700. He said that he had been in the bar when the altercation took place between Lackey and another female patron. Hineman said that he has known Lackey for 20 years and tried to intervene. When he did he said that Lackey slapped his phone out of his hand causing the phone to be damaged. He said that this behavior is out of character for Lackey and that he feels she is having issues of some type. He agreed to meet to speak with me on 2-28-21 at 1200 at the police department. I will obtain a recorded statement from him as well as photograph his broken phone.

2-27-21

- I called Lt. Lackey's work cell phone and left a message for her to contact me. She called back at 1344. I asked Lt. Lackey if she would be available at 1500 to come to the police department and speak with me. At that time, and without being asked any questions, she advised me that she would just be resigning her position at the police department. Lackey acknowledged being at Bootlegrz but said that she did not remember being there or being involved in any incident. She did acknowledge that she was contacted by several friends regarding an incident she was involved in at the bar. Lackey told me that she could not go through another Internal Investigation and wanted to therefor resign. During our conversation I told Lackey not to make this decision rashly or without much contemplation. I also advised Lackey that I could not give her guidance in the matter. At the end of our conversation Lackey reiterated that she would take Monday off and would gather her equipment. She said that she would come in on Tuesday with a resignation letter for the Chief and would turn in all her items at that time.
- Directly after my conversation with Lackey I contacted Chief Klug and advised him of the nature of our talk. He later advised me that he had spoke with Lackey and advised her that she would still need to provide a statement regarding the incident. Lackey agreed to come in and speak with me.

- I texted Lackey and advised her that I was at my office at the police department and she could speak with me if she were able. She indicated she would respond and provide a statement. Upon Lackey's arrival I obtained a recorded statement regarding the prior evening. Prior to interviewing her I read through and had her sign a Notice of Internal Investigation (Item 1.4). I began by asking what she recalled happening and she said that she did not recall anything about being there. She said that initially she was with her husband, nephew, and other friends at The Ranger Lounge. She acknowledged having several drinks at The Ranger Lounge but not to the point of being "blacked out". Apparently after the Ranger Lounge they went to Aces, which is another bar in town. Lackey did not remember being at Aces. She referenced possibly being drugged as she did not feel she drank enough to be blacked out and was acting out of her nature. Her husband left from The Ranger to pick up their children. She acknowledged being at Bootlegrz with her nephew but does not remember much about being at Bootlegrz. She was apparently contacted by several friends about her behavior while at Bootlegrz. One of those people was the person she was involved in the "physical" altercation with, Kelly Siedeman. Ms. Siedeman is her best friend of several years. Lackey said she didn't remember the confrontation but acknowledged that Siedeman was out with a bunch of friends and had not invited her. She said that would irritate her. Lackey did not know about kicking anyone in the groin but acknowledged "Mike" that was at the bar. She told me that she had been contacted by another person telling her about "Mike". She later told me that person was Rich Lewellyn. Lackey did not feel that her and Kelly Siedeman were involved in an actual fight but didn't deny that something likely happened. Lackey said that her nephew had left prior, but she was with another friend. She did not remember the Lyft ride home but did say that is how she got home. I confronted Lackey about prior problems with her in the bar and the allegations of threats. She denied that was the case and said that she never uses her position to her benefit. I offered to speak with the friend that was with her to get his perspective, but she chose not to release his name. Lackey reiterated that she would be taking Monday off and would bring a resignation letter on Tuesday. The recorded statement provided by Lt. Lackey was attached to the internal case file (Item 2.4)
- I contacted Kelli Siedeman and spoke with her regarding the incident at the bar. Siedeman told me that she had been out with a group of friends. When they arrived at Bootlegrz she observed Lackey at the bar and indicated she looked like she had been there all day (very intoxicated). Siedeman said that she knows Lackey does not like the group of friends that she was with and so she was afraid of a confrontation. She and her group of friends sat down at a table and had been talking when Lackey walked up and punched her three times in the back. She said he was hard enough to hurt. At that time Lackey grabbed her around the neck and "choked" her while speaking directly in her ear. Lackey asked her why she was with those people. A short verbal confrontation happened and then Lackey went back to where she had been standing. A short time later Lackey came back to the table and told Siedeman to tell the others that she was her best friend. Lackey then allegedly gave every person at the table the "middle finger" and said, "Fuck you". Another patron of the bar, not with Siedeman's group, apparently requested that Lackey be removed and at that point Dave Humphries and his staff began working at getting Lackey out of the door. Siedeman said that it took a lot for them to get her to leave. Siedeman acknowledged that one of her acquaintances had apparently videotaped over a minute of the incident. I asked if she could request that video be sent to me. I asked Siedeman if she recalled Lackey kicking anyone in the groin. She indicated that person was a former Highway Patrolman and Federal Officer. He was Native American. She did not remember his name. Siedeman indicated that the other person that Lackey was with was Travis Boser. I provided Siedeman my email and desk number and requested that anyone else who has information please contact me. The recorded phone conversation between Ms. Siedeman and myself was attached to the internal case file (Item 2.6)

- I was contacted by Sgt. Wheeler regarding the Ward County anonymous text tip option on their website. He indicated that he was forwarded an email from Habeeb Rafiu from the Ward County Narcotics Task Force. The email had (2) texts from the WCSO website referring to the incident. This email was attached to the case file (Item 3.1)

2-28-21

- I contacted Mike Hineman via telephone and spoke with him regarding the incident at Bootlegrz. He advised me that he had arrived at the bar at 1930-1945. He did not see Lackey arrive and therefore did not know what time she got to the bar. At some point he said that he went to the restroom. When he came out of the restroom he observed the owner, Dave Humphries, and others trying to get Lackey to leave the bar. Due to his knowledge of Lackey he tried to help. When he arrived at the door Lackey was just outside but was trying to get back inside. He said that she was trying to retrieve her coat, but bar staff told her she did not come in with a coat. At some point Hineman said that he called his friend, Rich Lewellyn, who is also friends with Lackey. In an attempt to have Lackey speak with Lewellyn he handed her his cellular phone. When he did that Lackey threw the phone over her back and it landed on the ground. Lackey throwing the phone to the ground caused it to be damaged. A short time after this occurred a Lyft arrived and picked up Lackey. She left the bar and did not return. Hineman said that he has known Lackey for approx. 20 years. He said that he has observed a similar type of behavior only once prior with Lackey while she was drinking. I asked Hineman if he felt, from his prior law enforcement experience, that Lackey was severely intoxicated or if he felt there were other things going on. He indicated that he felt her behavior was due to intoxication. He also said that he feels Lackey's "compass is broken" indicating that she has, to some extent, lost her way in life. I asked Hineman about the third individual, that has been referenced by others, that Lackey allegedly kicked in the groin. He said that individual was more of an agitator. He thought he was prior law enforcement from another state and not local. He said the individual was 60-70 years of age but did not know who he was. The recorded phone conversation between myself and Mr. Hineman was attached to the internal case file (Item 2.7)

- I was contacted by Chief Klug regarding Lt. Lackey's resignation. He advised that she told him via text message that she had resigned. He forwarded their text threat and that was added to the internal case file (Item 3.2). He also requested that I remove Lt. Lackey from the electronic door locks within the Police Department building. I responded back to the PD and removed her from the door locks, as requested.
- I was able to download the body camera footage from Sgt. Wheeler's contact with Dave Humphries and other patrons of the bar. In the video Dave Humphries and other patrons identify Lt. Lackey by name as the individual causing the problems. In addition, Mr. Humphries is heard referencing threats that Lackey has made to him in the past. The footage was saved to the internal case file (Item 4.1)

3-1-21

- Upon my request, Margaret Haugan sent the phone call from Dave Humphries to Central Dispatch (Item 2.8) as well as the radio traffic from Sgt. Wheeler indicating they were en route to Bootlegrz (Item 2.9).
- I received an email from Lindsay Kleven regarding the incident at Bootlegrz. Ms. Kleven indicated that she was at the table with Kelli Siedeman when the incident with Lackey occurred. She reiterated that Lackey was intoxicated and approached the table using vulgarity. In addition, she indicated that Lackey wrapped her hands around Siedeman's neck as well as doing the same to another person at the table. Kleven referenced the male individual who was also struck in the groin by Lackey as they were attempting to get her to leave the bar. Ms. Kleven indicated that Lackey's behavior was not only an embarrassment for her, but also an embarrassment for the department and the community. I added the entirety of Ms. Kleven's email to the documents section of the case file (Item 3.3). In addition to the email, Ms. Kleven also attached two cell phone videos that she took while the incident was happening inside of the bar. In each video you can see Lackey while Dave Humphries is attempting to get her to leave the bar (Item 4.2, Item 4.3).
- I contacted Dave Humphries via cell phone. I asked him about video from the inside of the bar and he agreed to allow me access on 3-2-21. I will respond to the bar and attempt to obtain all relevant video from their system. In addition, he forwarded a cell phone video that was sent to him from another patron in the bar. That video was added to the case file (Item 4.4).

3-2-21

- I received an email from Kristen Mauldin regarding the incident at Bootlegrz (Item 3.4). Ms. Mauldin was seated at the table with Ms. Siedeman and others. She observed the entire incident and described it in detail. Ms. Mauldin has apparently known Lackey for some time. At some point during the incident Lackey allegedly grabbed Mauldin by the face and said "Are you scared of me you little bitch?". Ms. Mauldin left the table to avoid a physical confrontation with Lackey. The email, in its entirety, was copies and added to the case file.

- I received a message from Stacy Humphries regarding video from inside of the bar. She advised me that SRT was able to help them pull video of the incident involving Lackey. I responded to the bar and picked up a flash drive that contained video files.
- Once back at the police department I viewed the video files contained on the drive. In the clip I labeled Table view 1 (Item 4.5) Lackey can be observed staggering near the bar. At some point she walks to the opposite side of the bar and at 28:19 you can observe Lackey approach Kelli Siedeman, who is sitting near the end of the table her party was at. Lackey punches her once in the shoulder and then three times relatively hard in the back. Lackey can be seen putting her hands around Siedeman's neck and speaking directly into her ear just as Siedeman said when I spoke with her. Lackey continues to speak with Siedeman and at one point appears to gesture toward the other individuals at the table. At some point Lackey goes to the other end of the table where Jessie Siedeman was standing. She appears to confront Jessie Siedeman for some time. She spends several minutes at the table between Kelli Siedeman and Jessie Siedeman. At some point Lackey leaves the table but returns several more times. Each time either speaking with Kelli Siedeman or others at the table. She continues this cycle until 54:36 when she is approached by Dave Humphries (bar owner) and escorted to the door. In reviewing the video from near the exit of the bar that I labeled Exit View 1 (Item 4.7). Lackey can be seen being escorted by Dave Humphries and other male individuals to the exit. She speaks with them for some time and they appear to be blocking her entrance back to the table area of the bar. At some point they are able to get Lackey out of the door to the bar. There is no video that shows the outside of the bar or Lackey damaging Mr. Hineman's phone. There are two other video clips from the bar labeled Table View 2 (Item 4.6) and Exit View 2 (Item 4.8). These items were also attached to the case file for information. Table View 2 shows the table from approx. 10 minutes prior to Table View 1. Exit View 2 appears to be corrupted and does not play properly

- 322.5.8(i)- Performance: Any act on, or off-duty that brings discredit to this department
    - Lt. Lackey discredited the department by acting in a volatile way and causing a disturbance in a bar while extremely intoxicated. She was known by numerous people in the bar who identified her as a Lieutenant for the Minot Police Department. In addition, the owner of the bar has alleged that Lt. Lackey used veiled threats to use her position at the police department to cause problems for his business if he called the police due to her behavior. He said that has happened multiple times over the last two years. Lt. Lackey denied this allegation. There is no way to prove this portion of the allegation.

Exhibit F-10

- 322.5.9(m)- Conduct: Any other on, or off-duty conduct which any member knows or reasonably should know is unbecoming a member of this department, is contrary to good order, efficiency or morale, or tends to reflect unfavorably upon this department or its members.
    - Numerous members of the public identified Lackey as a Lieutenant with the Minot Police Department while she was extremely intoxicated in public and acting in a disorderly manner. She used vulgarity directly at individuals in the bar and caused the owner much anxiety by refusing to leave. Staff took approx. 20 minutes to finally get Lackey out of the bar. Once outside, another patron attempted to help as he knew her. He contacted a mutual friend and attempted to hand his phone to Lackey. Lackey grabbed the phone and threw it causing damage to the phone.

1. HARASSMENT POLICY

Statement of Philosophy: It is the policy of the City to provide a positive work environment that is free of discrimination, sexual and all other forms or harassment. This policy is a measure to ensure that all employees will enjoy a safe work place free from unreasonable interference, intimidation, hostility, or offensive behavior on the part of the council, department heads, supervisors, co-workers or visitors. All employees are responsible for compliance with this guideline, as the City of Minot will not tolerate unlawful discrimination or harassment.

A. It is the City policy that sexual and other unlawful harassment of its employees in any form is prohibited and that all employees shall be treated with respect. Actions, words, jokes or comments based on an individual's sex, race, ethnicity, age, disability, religion, sexual orientation or any other legally protected characteristic shall not be tolerated.
B. Employees have the right, under Section 703 of Title VII of the Federal Civil Rights Act of 1964, to work in an environment that is free of conduct that can be considered sexually harassing or abusive. Any employee who engages in, who perpetuates or condones sexual or other unlawful harassment shall be subject to disciplinary action, up to and including termination.
C. The City, in recognizing its obligation to maintain a place of employment that is free of harassing, abusive, or disruptive conduct shall take positive and prompt corrective action where necessary in accordance with this policy.

Definitions:

Unlawful harassment is defined as verbal or physical behavior which relates to an individual's race, color, national origin, religion, gender, age, sexual orientation and/or disability when such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work performance or creating an intimidating, hostile or offensive work environment.

Workplace harassment is defined as any unwelcome conduct, whether, verbal, physical, visual, or innuendos that are derogatory, abusive, disparaging, bullying, threatening or disrespectful types of behavior, even if unrelated to a legally protected status; when such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work performance or creating an intimidating, hostile or offensive work environment.

Sexual harassment is defined as any verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature such as, but not limited to, sex-oriented remarks or jokes, pressures or demands for sexual favors, implied or overt promises or threats, or any unwelcome conduct with sexual or demeaning overtones when:

- Submission to or rejection of such conduct is made, explicitly or implicitly, as a term or condition of employment or advancement;
- Submission to or rejection of such conduct by an individual is used as a basis for employment decisions affecting such individual; or
- Such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonable interfering with an individual's work performance or creates an intimidating, hostile, or sexually offensive working environment.

Exhibit G-2

Unacceptable Conduct Defined: Sexual harassment is a serious offense and is a form of employee misconduct. Sexual harassment does not refer to the occasional non-sexual compliment, but to behavior of a sexual nature that is not welcome, is personally offensive and impairs an employee's work effectiveness or is behavior that creates an intimidating, hostile or offensive work environment.

The following are types of conduct an example of harassment, which are prohibited. These examples do not necessarily represent all ways in which sexual harassment may occur and are not intended to limit the definition of sexual harassment.

A. Verbal comments and gestures of a sexual nature including any suggestive remarks, pictures, jokes and catcalls.
B. Explicit or implicit promises of career advancement or preferential treatment in return for sexual favors. Such promises or preferential treatment may include but are not limited to: hiring, promotion, training opportunities, work schedule, leave approval, performance evaluations and pay increases.
C. Explicit or implicit threats that an employee shall be adversely affected if sexual demands are rejected. Such threats include but are not limited to: lower performance evaluations, denial of promotions, punitive transfers, terminations and altered/increased work assignments.
D. Unsolicited and repeated touching of any kind including: touching, patting or pinching of another person, or repetitive brushing against a person's body.
E. Derogatory remarks about a person's national origin, race, language, accent; disparaging or disrespectful comments.
F. Loud, angry outbursts or loud, angry outbursts of obscenities.

Responsibilities of Employees, Elected Officials, Department Heads and Supervisors:

A. All employees have a responsibility to conduct themselves in a manner, which ensures the proper performance of their job responsibilities and maintains the public's confidence. Employees who experience or witness any type of sexual, workplace or unlawful harassment should follow the steps outlined in the Complaint process to assist in maintaining a workplace environment free of sexual, workplace or unlawful harassment.
B. Department Heads and other department Supervisors have a responsibility to act immediately and take corrective action when they observe behavior that violates this policy. All management representatives must recognize the seriousness and sensitive nature of any sexual, workplace or unlawful harassment complaint brought to their attention and need to follow the procedures outlined in this policy to assist in maintaining a workplace environment free of unlawful discrimination or harassment.

Exhibit G-3

Complaint Procedures

City Employees or job applicants who perceive they have been subjected to sexual harassment have the right to pursue a grievance including an appeal to the Civil Service Commission pursuant to procedures stated in Sections 24-101 through 24-104 of the City of Minot Code of Ordinances. If unreported the City is severely limited in maintaining a workplace free of sexual or other unlawful workplace harassment. Employees are not required to deal directly with an offending individual(s) in seeking a resolution.

A. An employee who feels that he/she has been subject to sexual, unlawful or workplace harassment should clearly state to the individual that his/her behavior is offensive to them.
B. If you are unable to confront your alleged offender or the behavior persists after confronting the alleged offender, go to your immediate Supervisor who shall immediately notify the Department Head and Human Resources.
C. If the immediate Supervisor is involved in the alleged harassment, the incident should be reported director to the Department Head, who shall immediately notify Human Resources.
D. If the complaint involves the Department Head, the incident should be reported directly to the Human Resource Director and/or the City Manager.
E. If the complaint involves a member of Human Resources, the incident should be reported to the Department Head and/or the City Manager.
F. If the complaint involves the City Manager or a member of the City Council, the incident should be reported directly to the Human Resource Director.
G. The Human Resource Director shall be responsible for conducting an investigation in a fair, prompt and complete manner as outlined in the nature and scope of investigation.

Nature and Scope of Investigation:

- Any investigation of a complaint of sexual, workplace or unlawful harassment shall be limited to an inquiry of the truth or falsity of a specific complaint.
- Interviews of all relevant witnesses will be conducted in confidence to the extent permitted by law, and summaries of witnesses' statements and the investigator findings shall be in writing.
- To the extent permitted by law, investigations shall be conducted in a confidential manner; the knowledge of a pending investigation, nor the contents and/or findings of an investigation will not be shared except with the appropriate parties, or otherwise required by law.
- Persons who are asked to cooperate and participate in a pending investigation shall only be informed that a harassment complaint has been brought and that information being sought from the individual is a necessary part of the investigation. Written contents and findings of investigations are done pursuant to the complaint process and shall be maintained by the Human Resource Department in a secure place. However, it must be noted to all employees, that records of the City are public, except certain confidential records in accordance with NDCC 44-04-18.1.

Exhibit G-4

Discipline

- An employee who is found to have engaged in sexual, workplace or unlawful harassment or retaliation, or who is found to have knowingly condoned, encouraged, or perpetuated an act or acts of sexual, workplace, or unlawful harassment or retaliation, shall be subject to disciplinary action: including but not limited to, suspension, loss of salary increment, demotion and termination.
- Any employee who believes they have been unfairly disciplined may follow the City of Minot Grievance Procedure as outlined in the City of Minot Employee Personnel Policy Handbook in Chapter 7.

Dissemination of Policy

Prevention and education are the best tools for the elimination of workplace and sexual harassment. The City will take all steps necessary to prevent harassment in any form from occurring such as:

- Conducting training for Department Heads, Supervisors and Employees to affirmatively raise the subject by reviewing policies, discussing behaviors to be mindful of, and a general awareness of intimidating, hostile, or offensive workplace environments and sexual harassment.
- Informing all City employees of the policy.
- Investigating all claims of harassment, hostile work environment, and/or any unwelcome conduct in a confidential manner.
- Taking appropriate disciplinary action for the prevention of reoccurrence of sexual harassment.

December 23, 2020

I am Steve Schoenrock. I am a Patrol Sergeant with City of Minot Police Department. I have been here for 15 years and 4 months. I supervise approximately 12 -15 employees I usually share that duty with another Sergeant or Lieutenant. I report to Lieutenant Darren Dyke.

One of my strengths at work is that I am approachable and people bring me their problems to me. Between all 3 shifts and all other divisions it is almost daily. I understand nothing is perfect but over the years it has become overwhelming. Most of the people in investigations worked for me at some point in patrol. There is an overwhelming sense of dread for people in investigations. I had addressed some issues in the past with a Captain and I was assured that things would change. Sometimes people tell me one thing and then when they report their concerns to administration they fear reprisal or they feel like they are not heard and are afraid to tell the whole truth. There are 3 women in investigations who worked for me and I never had any issues with them when they were with me in patrol. They have come to me with numerous pproblems. We should never be treating anyone differently. All the detectives brought their problems to administration and had a couple meetings about it. I was told by these same detectives that nothing changed after that and it seems to have gotten worse in some cases. I felt like there was nowhere else to go so I eventually went to Kelly. These are good officers and I want to see them succeed.

A few of the women in investigations are getting piled on when it comes to case assignments. They are getting overwhelmed and they cannot give the cases the full attention partly because they won't say no to the assignments. This is happening to Miki Talbot. She is a people pleaser and a fantastic teammate. She has been handed several of the bigger cases. She is a good detective and hard worker. She is also given extra on call weeks because she doesn't say no. Kristin is another one that won't say no and cares about her job greatly. She has had to deal with a difficult case and a difficult member of the community. She needed support but she wasn't getting it from her superiors or from the State's Attorney's office.

Exhibit I-2

I went to a captain to try and help Kristin because she needed support. The males are getting different case assignments. Some of the men have a bunch of burglaries and shoplifting and the women had the more serious cases. The women are also being talked to about dress code. The females were talked to about dress codes but the males were not even though we have a shaving policy and they were not adhering to. We lost a female officer to the FBI and she had a similar experience. Lt. Wegner is one of the problems as well but he is being moved in 2021. I am not sure if that is going to solve the problems.

The supervisors need to be there for the team and for the group. Especially since we have had so many more homicides this year than most years. Sgt. Wilk would prefer not to get his hands dirty and does not help when he should be helping the team.

Some of the women were being reprimanded for coming in early to try and catch up on their cases and then they were reprimanded for coming in early. They should be praised for their work ethic not punished. We cannot afford to lose these officers. They are good quality officers.

When I went to Kelly I wanted to bring forward the concerns of these female employees as well as some of the men who are frustrated with the lack of the supervision in investigations. There is no reason that these women should not be treated with respect and treated fairly. But I fear when questioned about things the officers hold back from administration. This is because of fear and not being heard in the past. When officers bring things to me they always seem to say that it doesnt matter, nothing is ever going to change.

I have been on night shift for 5 years as a Sergeant. I worked 5 years on nights as an officer then worked narcotics for 5 years before being promoted to Sergeant. I have worked hard to gain the trust and respect of the other officers. The higher the rank the higher standard should be in the department. It has been the opposite within the department. The newer officers are held to be accountable but the higher the rank, it doesn't seem to be that they are held to the same or higher standard. Things are swept under the rug when it comes to issues with rank. The examples are to numerous to mention.

The last few years of one of my night shift lieutenant's career I took over a lot of his tasks because he was going through some major physical problems and was sort of checked out. He had some medical issues and personal issues and I covered his duties for him as much as possible. It was probably 2 ½ years of me covering. When Scott finally left I was made temporary lieutenant. Chief told me he was going to have me do the job while Scott was vacationing out. After Scott's end date was known then they started the process of replacing Scott. I tested and did well and made top 3. I have a lot of experience and have been working this shift for years. It was between me, Sgt. Dyke, and Sgt. Chapman. They ended up choosing Sgt. Dyke. It was brought to my attention that he had an inappropriate sexual relationship with Brittany Balentine from HR. Several officers had told me of this and one Lt., whomlater recanted when I asked him to please bring it up to admin. Brittany is the one who runs the testing for Lt. and proctors the exam and has the information. Sgt. Dyke does not know the patrol end of the job since he had been away from patrol for so many years.Myself and the other shift sergeants had to train the new Lt on the job. Other officers come to me about search and seizure saying Sgt. Dyke doesn't know it. I am not sure how because the Lt. exam was full of questions on search and seizure. Sgt. Dyke was also reprimanded for having a relationship with a former SWAT team member's wife, lied to the Chief of police about it and was demoted as sergeant years ago. Based on his lack of knowledge and lack of ability in this job it seems like there was something going on with Sgt. Dyke's test for Lieutenant. I heard they talked to him about his innappropriate relationship with the HR employee but both denied the allegation and that was the end of it.Based on previous history with Dyke I dont believe thats enough. There should be due diligence in looking into it and actually investigate. I had to get some specific trainings before I could even test for Lieutenant (supervisor training). Darren only got the training after he was promoted. It is not just me but there are questions about Darren's promotion from many other officers. It is hard to watch the promotional process sometimes. It doesn't always seem like they best person is promoted. This is damaging to morale for all of the department as well. They see that there isn't a reward for hard work and an ability to move up.

Are any employees treated differently than other employees? If so, why?
Yes. The females in investigations appear to be treated differently than the males. Additionally, Lt. Lackey treats the female officers differently than the male officers. She seems to have conflict with some of the ambitious women. I am not sure if she is threatened by them but I have heard from some of the female officers that she is very difficult to work with.

Do you feel managers respect employees? If not, why not?
Some of the managers do and some do not. The majority of supervisors are pretty respectful. There are a few old fashioned people who are not respectful of all backgrounds. Lt. Lackey plays favorites and Lt. Wegner is not always respectful as well.

If you had to report an issue about your director or manager to upper level management, would you feel comfortable doing so?
I would feel comfortable doing it but I don't think my voice would be heard. I don't think anything would be done about it. That is part of why I went to Kelly. I have seen instances where things have not been addressed in the past.

Do you feel your manager is approachable?
I would not take anything to Darren. I don't think he has anything to offer as far as patrol. I respect the chain of command but I don't think he knows as much as he should in his position.

Is there anything else related to the management of your work area that you would like to talk about?
On night shift we are often the forgotten group. The night shift is a very tight knit group. What I don't like is that over the years we used to have trainings during the cross over time with the afternoon shift. Also there is no consideration for court appearances because those are during the day and yet we are expected to go back to work the same night. Also there is no shift differential for working nights. Also there isn't going to be a Lieutenant in the overnight shift. It would be nice to see management care more about us (night shift) and take better care of us.

Are there any divisions within the department? If so, what do they seem based on?
There are a few people that pick favorites. Lt. Lackey picks favorites and she treats people differently based upon that. She is moving to administrative lieutenant and hopefully that changes soon. There were some divisions based upon Lt. Lackey and her treatment of others. Everyone knows who the favorites are and that causes division. We are not super cliquey as a department.

What one thing would be most important to improving your work environment?
Trust. Trusting the administration would improve the work environment. I don't currently trust them and that makes it difficult. Some I spoke about and others are character or ethics based. It would be nice to see trust and honor back in the department. We are copying policies from large organizations (like New York or Los Angeles) and they don't necessarily fit with us. We put policy before responsibility and it doesn't make any sense.

The timing of this is difficult now that there is change being made starting 2021. The problem I foresee is that nothing will change as a result of this investigation because the Department is already planning changes and they will think they "fixed" it.

I have heard that you can request a copy of your personnel file and remove anything that is over 5 years old (negative or positive). I am not sure if that is accurate but that is what I heard.

Personnel ordinance

to each position, based upon the contents of the job description pertaining thereto, including specifically the minimum qualifications stated therein. The tests may be written, oral, physical or in the form of a demonstration of skill or any combination of these. The tests and criteria shall be designed to evaluate elements of training, experience, aptitude, knowledge, character, personality, skill, physical fitness or other qualifications. In any event, the tests and criteria to be administered must be reasonably designed to relate positively to actual job performance with respect to the position for which the tests are given and the criteria applied, in order that the tests shall not serve as a means whereby job applicants are unlawfully discriminated against on the grounds of race, color, religion, sex, age or national origin.

(d) The commission shall rank applicants one against the other based upon the results of the tests referred to in subsection (c) and the list of the names of the applicants set forth in the order of their respective rankings, with the highest ranked first, shall constitute the eligibility list for the position for which the tests were administered. The appointing authority may consider for appointment three (3) names on the list for the first vacancy to be filled, plus two (2) names for each vacancy thereafter, but the names subject to consideration for appointment must be selected in consecutive numerical order commencing with the first.

(e) The commission may provide with respect to certain classes of positions that no tests of the type provided for in subsection (c) be administered, as when, for example, the position requires as a prerequisite that the applicant possess a professional degree or professional credentials. Likewise the commission may provide that certain positions be filled by the appointing authority on the basis of personal interviews only, because the nature of the position does not easily permit the applicant to be evaluated in an objective manner, but rather selection must take into account intangible aspects of character and personality.

(f) If in the judgement of the commission it will promote the efficiency of the service to maintain permanent eligibility lists with respect to some positions it may do so, without prejudice, however, to the right of the appointing authority at any time to require that a new eligibility list be established with respect to a position wherein there is a vacancy which the appointing authority wishes to fill. The permanent eligibility list may either be frozen or floating. That is, a frozen list is one to which no new names are added until some predetermined event occurs such as the number of the names on the list dropping to a certain prescribed level or after the passage of a prescribed period of time. A floating list is one in which names are added and ranked from time to time as persons submit applications for employment and take examinations, which procedure the commission may authorize even though no vacancies may exist in the positions for which employment is sought. If the commission does establish a permanent eligibility list it may strike names therefrom at any time upon its determination that good cause exists to do so. The nature of such good cause shall be established by the commission by appropriate rules and regulations but at a minimum these rules and regulations will provide that the name of a person on a permanent eligibility list shall be struck if that person:

(1) Obtains city employment,

(2) Refuses an offer of city employment,

(3) Can no longer be contacted after a reasonably diligent effort to do so,

(4) Can no longer meet minimum qualifications for the position to which the list refers,

(5) Requests elimination from the list, or

(g) The director shall have the authority to prescribe the contents of job application forms. As part of the initial job application process he may make a determination whether the applicant meets certain minimum employment standards which by way of rules and regulations established by the commission shall be imposed upon all job applicants irrespective of the position applied for. The minimum employment standards may include, by way of example, a requirement that the applicant be literate in the English language or that the applicant shall never have been convicted of a felony. However, such standards must be reasonably job related so that they do not serve as a means of unlawful discrimination against job applicants on the grounds of race, color, religion, sex, age or national origin. An applicant who cannot meet all the minimum employment standards shall not be considered further

Dyke promoted - 8/2/20 By King

Chapman promoted - 6/20/21 By King

Officer #11 (Current MPD officer SO) officer Anthony Hugg

- Current patrol officer for the last 6.5 years, current SWAT officer
- Officer 11 started off our meeting by talking about his performance reviews over the last few years. He noted that he received an excellent review in 2019. Then in 2020 no reviews were done because of COVID. In 2021, after speaking out at Cpt. Sundheim's free speak meeting, he was given a poor performance review. He was unsure why as he'd not been in any trouble. He was told by one Lt. and one Sgt. That he wouldn't promote because he needs to work better with the brass. He asked Sgt. Q and Lt Redding if they'd written the review, they both indicated that it wasn't either of them that wrote the review (who it should have been) – Cpt. Sundheim was the only other person who could/would have done the review. 2022's review was slightly better and they have not received their 2023 reviews yet.
- Officer 11 stated that 'brass doesn't want to hear any ideas that could help, changes that would help with policy efficiencies. "If it doesn't come from the brass, it's a dumb idea". Specifically changes to the patrol areas has been brought up and they were asked to give input – nobody listened when they did give input...disappeared down the ivory hall.
- Officer 11 spoke about how he doesn't feel he will be promoted and I asked him to elaborate on that. He said that he was supposed to be given credit for his associates degree from Alex Tech. He spoke to Sundheim about it – but he didn't seem to care. He said the disparity between associate degree credits vs full college credits makes it hard for recruits from say Alex Tech or Lake Region to get promoted. He also stated that is one of the reasons you see you recruits in the 5-7 year phase of their career leave. This new promotion system was implemented under Chief Klug.
- Officer 11 also spoke about the Uniform Committee that the brass put together to review beards, female officer hair, etc. They worked for 4 months on it, came up with what they believed was a great policy and presented it back to the brass. It has sat on Chief's desk since then with no input whatsoever. He said again – even if they ask us to come up with ideas, if it doesn't come from the brass, it doesn't happen.
- In May of '24 they were told the schedule would be changing from 3 shift to 4 shift rotations. Most officers plan their years in January as they know what days they have off, vacation requests, etc. There were some complaints and everyone was told to "just deal with it". Officer 11 was scheduled to get married at the end of May – this had been planned for over a year. With the new schedule he was scheduled to work the day of his wedding. Cpt. Sundheim knew weeks before about officer 11s wedding but didn't do anything to make sure he was off per his vacation request. He mentioned the brass didn't care about how the shift changes affect any of their officers' lives. Whey they announced the shift change mandate, not once was it mentioned to anyone that their days off/hrs/days worked etc would change. – very poor communication. Ultimately officer 11 got his time off for his wedding, but it was "more of a hassle than it should have been".
- Officer 11 spoke at length about a couple of our PD Lts. Specifically, Lt. Houge (internal affairs) and Lt. McLeod (patrol shift commander). He said that Lt. Houge is very similar to Cpt. Sundheim and his leadership is very poor. Yells and screams at people – very little communication with officers unless 'he needs something'. When he spoke about Lt. McLeod, officer 11 did say "McLeod and Chapman are both good Lts.", but questioned how many times an officer can be accused of sexual misconduct with a minor/child and still be with the force. Lt. McLeod was accused of sexual assault of a minor in 202 by the Valley City PD. He was again accused this year (2024) by agencies in MT and ID. He was placed on admin leave in January as the investigation played out. He was on leave for 6 months and a letter of discipline was placed in his file. The department was told don't ask or talk about this and it was never spoken about again within the PD. I suggest we pull the out of state investigation reports from ID and MT, as well as the Valley City incident from 2020. He spoke about how the inconsistent discipline in the department has become a 'joke'. He said brass never seem to get in trouble as the lower officers do.

- Officer 11 did say Cpt. Sundheim helped him last year when he had a brief struggle with alcohol. So he did speak well of Cpt in this instance, but still doesn't think highly of him as a leader. To me this speaks volumes, if someone helps you and you still don't respect them as a leader, why is that?
- Officer 11 mentioned he got in trouble one time for putting some kids in for the life saving award, when they drove their friend who had overdosed, to the hospital. He was reprimanded for this because the kids were underage and high and shouldn't have driven their friend to the hospital, thus they didn't deserve to be put in for the award.
- Officer 11 also spoke about the SWAT team as he is a member of it. He said the SWAT Commander (Sundheim) never shows up for training and that Cpt Sundheim has pretty much put the SWAT team on stand down (3 calls in 3 years) because the "perception in the community is poor." "They don't even use us to serve drug warrants." Why do we train and equip our SWAT team if they don't ever plan to use them?
- I asked officer 11 what he thought needed to be done to help fix the issues within the PD. He said, "get brass involved", they just aren't around". Open up the lines of communication and tell us what is going on and come to the officer briefings. He said he hasn't seen a command staff officer at a briefing in about 3-4 years. He also said maybe be more open to ideas that can help the department – whether that be in a moral or efficiency way.

HR Director, Lisa Jundt, Response to Officer #11– Anthony Hugg Comments

Responses address numbered bullet points from information provided by Officer #11

1.) I previously discussed the new promotional process in my comments from Sergeant Foley's information (Officer #8). I don't believe Officer Hugg is understanding of the assessment center promotional procedure in that the process places more scoring weight on competency components than it does on service/education. Officer Hugg was just promoted to a Master Officer level in May of 2023 to make him eligible for the Sergeant's promotional assessment process. He has yet to experience the process first hand.

Officer #12 (former Minot PD officer) Aaron Bowles

- Minot native, 13 years of LE exp. Worked for MPD from 2017 to 2021. No poor performance reviews or discipline during his time at MPD.
- Left MPD to move back south to be closer to family. He said the culture wasn't the main reason he left, but it made it easier to make the decision to move.
- Officer 12 started by speaking about Chief – his very first comment was "Worst chief he has ever worked for (he worked under Olsen as well at MPD). The reasons for this comment he said was because as soon as the torch was passed to Klug – life at the MPD changed. He distanced all leadership from the officers below them, established the "Ivory Hallway", he was out of touch with what was going on within the department and he alienated lower officers through the other command staff officers. One issue that emerged among the command staff was a 'rules for you, but not for me' mentality. He said they would do the same things they yelled at junior officers not to do. (no examples given). Mentioned how they were told quite frequently "you are all replaceable".
- He said Chief never walked around and spoke with any of the officers – "he led from the keyboard". If he wanted to say something to someone below him, he just sent you an email.
- 1) Officer 12 then spoke about Officer Blanchard's death. He said they were told 'not to speak about his death" – that was a DIRECTIVE from above. He then mentioned that they were told the department would provide counseling for any officer that needed it and through EAP they set up sessions for officers. The counselor that was selected for officers to speak with was Maggie Klug – Chief's wife. He said not many people took advantage of that, as they were worried, she'd tell chief what was said and there would be retaliation. WTF! This is the second person to bring this up...how can the Chief of Police's spouse be the pick for officers to speak with?
- Officer 12 also mentioned that during the first McLeod sexual assault on a minor case, everyone in the department was not allowed to speak about it or ask any questions.
- Officer 12 stated that towards the end of 2020 and into 2021 – heavy turnover started within the department because 'officers just couldn't take it any longer'. He said we were/are losing people that made a conscious effort to be in Minot, whether it was for family, kids, etc – these are people that wanted to work here and it is sometimes hard to find people that do want to live/work in Minot.
- Officer 12 is still close with quite a few officers that work at MPD and officers that have left MPD. He suggested we pull ALL the exit interviews and read them.
- Officer 12 came back to give the Eulogy at officer Blanchard's funeral – he said that many past/present officers came and thanked him for doing such a nice job on the eulogy. He said that Chief never spoke with him nor any other past officer from the department.
- He made mention that Chief never showed up at the department the day/night officer Blanchard killed himself. He couldn't be bothered to come in – people were upset that their Chief wasn't there after an officer died. "He doesn't care about the officers underneath him".
- Officer 12 said that post Officer Blanchard's death, there was no incident stress debrief, as they'd had in the past when officer deaths occur. Again, mentioned Chief not showing up to speak with officers after the death – no support from Chief for subordinates nor their mental health. He mentioned that for officer Blanchard – all the signs were there that there was an issue – officer Blanchard was taking steroids, drinking heavily (mentioned the SWAT call out spoken of before where Blanchard tried to drive drunk to the call), had marital issues and was depressed/embarrassed after being removed from SWAT. Nobody cared or was paying attention.

- Officer 12 stated he believed that officer 7 went to Cpt Sundheim and told him about the issues officer Blanchard had and said he needs help. Other officers also mentioned it to their supervisors – don't believe it went anywhere.
- Officer 12 mentioned that "the PD would operate without the command staff. He said the Sgts. And SO/MO officers run everything every day.
- Officer 12 spoke briefly about Officer 1 and said that what happened to her was sad and that she was a great officer and an honest cop.
- Officer 12 mentioned both Sgt. Z and Sgt. Q – how both were good officers but had been retaliated against and beat down for speaking up and going to bat for their officers. He said both officers have given their life and time to the department and they had both been treated poorly since the "speak freely" meeting in 2020. He said Sgt. Q is the best Sgt he's ever worked for/with in either the military or LE agencies he's been with.

HR Director, Lisa Jundt, Response to Officer #12– Aaron Bowles

Responses address numbered bullet points from information provided by Officer #12

1.) I just want to provide some generally comments surrounding the suicide death of Officer Blanchard and what took place after. Officer Blanchard's death happened over the Christmas/New Years Holiday which made it extremely difficult to find available Critical Incident support services. Chief Klug contacted me in the middle of the night following Officer Blanchard's death on December 29, 2022 and I immediately contacted the City's EAP provider The Village the next morning to request Critical Incident Assistance. The Village organization was already down staff due to vacancies and had several staff out for the holidays so they provided us whatever available services they could. Chief Klug also arranged for several group sessions which included counselors and emotional support animals to assist with staff grief support. I'm sure Chief Klug's wife Maggie, who is a professional counselor, was only wanting to assist in the situation considering she knew the department was struggling, and she knew many of the staff having been a previous police officer with the department. See Exhibit AC-Correspondence and Information during Blanchard death and critical support for staff.

Hi Eric,

I spoke with Police Chief John Klug and he asked that all of the times be reserved for us, although we are not sure how many employees will participate. Chief Klug has already made arrangements for another entity to do a crisis management briefing so that item will not be needed.

I will work with Chief Klug to arrange what is necessary for the virtual sessions. Our office is closed on Monday, but I will be working in the event there are other questions that need to be addressed by our employees.

Please let me know if there is anything else you will need from me.

Thank you for your assistance on this.

Lisa,

Here is what it looks like would be available next week:

Tuesday: 9-11 AM, 1-3 PM, 4-5 PM.
Wednesday: 8-9 AM

The crisis management briefing would take about 30-40 minutes via zoom and would be available to everyone. The virtual counselor on-site would be 1-hour increments and employees would be able to join the zoom room for individual discussions with a counselor. We could plug it into any of these available times.

Please let me know if you need any additional information or have any questions.

John and Staff,

Here is a list of resources available to your staff to help them during this difficult period. Some of the resources are immediately available, and others have some logistics that need to be worked through.

Current Resources:

1.) The Village EAP program is readily available to employees and their families. Participants are able to contact this resource at 1-800-627-8220 to make arrangements.

2.) BCBS City Insurance participants. Virtual Mental Health Therapy through Amwell. Services would be processed through the employee's medical insurance.

- Amwell's team of experienced, licensed psychiatrists and therapists are available 7 days a week, from the privacy of home. They can help with:
  - Anxiety
  - Depression
  - Postpartum
  - Relationships
  - Trauma Loss
  - Screenings
  - Insomnia
- 24/7 Access to Care

Virtual care is a convenient way to get care for many common conditions. Connect with a provider from your computer or mobile device to get a diagnosis, treatment plan and prescription.

- With a virtual care visit, you:

Save time – avoid a trip to the doctor's office and get care from the comfort of your home, work or wherever you are. Initiate the visit at your convenience – no appointment needed.

- Mobile - download the Amwell app
- Web - visit https://patients.amwell.com/
- Phone - call 1-844-733-3627
- GETTING STARTED: Visit patients.amwell.com, Product Key: BCBSND

3.) Additional telephone and online chat resources available:

- Suicide Prevention Call or Text 988 or Online Chat (Flyer attached)
- National Domestic Violence Hotline Call: (800) 799-7233 or Text: LOVEIS to 22522
- National Sexual Assault Hotline Call (800) 656-HOPE (4673) or Online Chat
- Veteran's Crisis Line Call (800) 273-TALK (8255), Text 8388255, or Online Chat

CRISIS HOTLINES & RESOURCES

IF YOU ARE GOING THROUGH TOUGH TIMES, YOU ARE NOT ALONE.
It can be troubling if someone you care about is going through an emotional, mental, physical or behavioral crisis. It can be even more frightening if you find yourself struggling with a crisis, or worse, having thoughts of self-harm. Not taking these feelings seriously can have devastating outcomes; get help that is needed now, you don't need to do it alone.

THE WARNING SIGNS OF EMOTIONAL PAIN OR SUICIDAL THOUGHTS AREN'T ALWAYS OBVIOUS. HERE'S WHAT TO LOOK FOR:

- Talking about suicide and death
- Tidying up his or her affairs: drawing up a will, giving away possessions
- Drastic, sometimes aggressive, changes in behavior
- Withdrawing from social interaction
- Sudden neglect in appearance
- Self-mutilation or doing act of self-harm
- Sudden drug or alcohol abuse
- Expressing feelings of hopelessness and helplessness
- Sudden mood changes
- Anxiety or agitation

If this is an emergency or you think you may harm yourself, please call 911!

Officer #16 (former MPD officer)

- 5 yr MPD officer – Patrol, Investigations
- Officer 16 mentioned that her immediate supervisors were Lt. Houge, Sgt. Burns and Sgt. Wilke; with command officers being Cpt. Sundbakken. Officer 16 said Cpt. Sundbakken is a 'yes' man to Chief Klug and that he has no leadership whatsoever.
- Upon being moved to night shift her supervisors changed to Lt. Redding, Sgt. Schoenrock, Sgt. Ruell and Sgt. Chapman
- Officer 16's career started in 2015 as a patrol officer – she said she'd been paired up with some 'salty, burnt-out officers' but that she'd been trained well and enjoyed patrol. She then went to academy – during which time she was having some health issues – most of it being stress related (not all work stress). She finished academy even though she was having health issues. This was recognized by fellow officers and one commented "you have a lot of will power and determination to finish while sick".
- After academy training was over, officer 16 was assigned to the night shift to finish off her training. For some reason, officer 16 was transferred back to days (I believe they were short staffed). Officers Clouse and Gates were her training officers. Sgt. Lackey was her direct supervisor for a short time. Officer 16 stated how Sgt. Lackey was very 'hard' on the other female officers in the department, stating "that's how she was trained". After finishing her training on days, she started her official assignment on afternoon shift.
- Officer 16 didn't speak much about her time on the afternoon shift, other than to say that she had some issues with Sgt. Wilke – but mentioned not much happened, because if Chief liked a particular officer and you complained, it just disappeared. Sgt. Lackey was still being hard on female officers, so officer 16 spoke with Sgts Burns and Houge about it. Nothing happened. (Lackey and Klug very close friends).
- Officer 16 admitted that her moral started to falter. She spoke with Cpt. Whitesell and was moved from afternoons back to day shift patrol. Sgts. Plessus, Jess Sundheim and Lackey were her direct supervisors. Lackey continued to be very hard on officer 16 and the other female officers in the department. "If Lackey was in charge for the day, everyone knew it was going to be a tough day". Officer 16 was written up by Sgt. Lackey for swearing during an arrest. Sgt. Lackey didn't care if other officers swore during citizen engagements and failed to write up male officers for the same behavior.
- During this time, she worked a lot with Officer Clouse – officer 16 said she wouldn't have made it through if it wasn't for fellow officers Clouse and Lund. She spoke with some of the Sgts. about Lackey's treatment of the female officers. Sgt. Burns looked into it and spoke with all the female officers and the consensus was Lackey 'sucks as a supervisor' and she was harder on female officers than their male counterparts. Sgt. Burns pushed it up to command staff and nothing was every said about it again.
- 2018/2019 Officer 16 was moved to investigations. She had expressed interest in working financial crimes and arson crimes and was told she would be able to do that. After moving over to investigations, based on the notion she'd be able to work the types of crimes mentioned above. She was given almost every domestic violence case that came to the department instead. Officer 16 asked if when she wasn't working a case, could she get some training on the arson and financial crime areas. She was told no by Lt. Wagner. Lt. Wagner also started pressing officer 16 about small mistakes – typing errors, etc. Officer 16 mentioned that her direct reports Lt. Sundheim, Lt. Wagner and Sgt. Wilke overly critical management of her made investigations an 'awful place' to work. "They were critical to the point of causing me mental stress." She was given little to no training and no guidance in investigations, just left to figure it out on her own. Officer 16 mentioned it was apparent the 3 of them "didn't want her in investigations". Lt. Wagner again became quite critical of officer 16 and how she was doing her reports. Officer 16 asked Lt. Wagner what she was doing wrong and how should she correct it. Lt. Wagner couldn't give her specifics, just said "they just aren't right".

- On officer 16's 2018 department review she received all 3, 4 and 5s and was told 'you have some areas to work on'. Shortly into 2018 officer 16 went on maternity leave and when she returned things were much harder. She said the 'culture' in the dept. was awful – the investigators would go to lunch together each week, officer 16 was excluded from these lunches. Officer 16 also said they talked about her quite a bit behind her back and that it usually got back to her. These things made officer 16 was uncomfortable and she went to Lt. Wagner and said "if I'm not a good fit for this department, can I go back to patrol?" The response was, you're doing just fine.
- Officer 16 during her time in investigations like to go out to the crime see and look at it for herself. Officer 16 also liked to follow up with witnesses to make sure she was understanding the whole story. Officer 16 was told 'you are doing things incorrectly. Your job is not to go out there. That's not how you investigate." Officer 16 was confused by these comments. Lt. Wagner also continued to criticize officer 16 about the reports she was writing. Officer 16 mentioned how her immediate supervisor said her reports looked good and how they were similar to other officers' reports. Officer 16 asked Lt. Wagner to explain how he would like her to change the reports, to which he responded "I can't, just meet with Dave (immediate supervisor) more".
- Officer 16 next recounted an incident in June of 2019 where she was investigating a domestic violence situation. Officer 16 recounted how the DV 'victim' wanted to make sure her voice was heard, so officer 16 met with her. After meeting with the female involved in the DV incident, officer 16 issued a warrant for the male DV individual's arrest. After meeting with the female DV individual and then watching the video that the male DV individual had recorded, officer 16 realized she had made a mistake and that the female DV individual was the aggressor in the DV case. Officer 16 admitted she had been struggling some at this point as her baby had not been sleeping well and she was pretty tired. She went to Dave (supervisor) and told him "I messed up". Officer 16 shows Dave the video and he agrees with her assessment. He asked her how she was going to correct it and officer 16 told him she had already retracted the warrant with the SA. Supervisor Dave said 'Ok, finish taking care of it."
- Because of this incident, officer 16 met with Chief Olsen. He told officer 16, "good catch. How are you going to fix this." Officer 16 explained how he had retracted the warrant and taken care of the situation. Chief Olsen and officer 16 spoke about her 'struggles' after coming back from maternity leave. Chief Olsen asked officer 16 if she'd prefer to move back to patrol. She responded with "yes, that'd be great. I've been asking in investigations if I could go back." After this meeting with Chief Olsen, officer 16 met with Supervisor Dave again and recounted the meeting. She mentioned that Chief ok'd her going back to patrol, but Lt. Wagner and Lt. Sundheim would not let officer 16 go back to patrol – no reason was given. Lts Wagner and Sundheim continued to make things very hard on officer 16. This frustrates Officer 16 very much, but she goes back to work.

- Approximately 45 days after the domestic violence incident, Lt. Wagner informed Officer 16 that an internal investigation had been initiated regarding the oversight. Throughout the investigation, Lt. Sundheim and Officer Guerton held several closed-door meetings, during which Officer 16 overheard her name mentioned multiple times. When she inquired with her supervisors about the situation, she was reassured that "everything is fine."
  Sometime later, Officer 16 was summoned to Lt. Sundheim's office, where she was read her Garrity rights. During the meeting, Officer 16 acknowledged her mistake, telling Lt. Sundheim, "I know I made an error, and I took responsibility for it. It's been corrected." Lt. Sundheim then asked her to review the video footage and explain what she observed. During this discussion, Officer 16 questioned why, if the department was dissatisfied with her performance in investigations, they hadn't allowed her to return to patrol as Chief Olsen had suggested. Lt. Sundheim responded, "We don't have the personnel for you to go back. She also asked Lt. Sundheim why the investigation was taking place as she'd already met with Chief Olsen and he was ok with how the situation turned out. No response was given. Other officers within the investigation unit commented to officer 16 after the meeting, "they are focused on you."
- Officer 16 said she left that meeting feeling like Lt. Sundheim was trying to get her fired. The internal investigation went through its process and nothing came of it. Officer 16 said that she received NO support from command staff in investigations.
- After the internal investigation, Officer 16 received her 2019 performance review, in which Lt. Wagner rated her highly in most areas, with scores she recalled being mostly 4s and 5s. However, during the review, she was told, "This is where we are at – we're concerned about your judgment." This comment deeply unsettled Officer 16, shaking her confidence, and it continues to affect her to this day.
  At that time, she was given an ultimatum: either return to patrol willingly or we will force you to go back. Officer 16 expressed frustration, noting that she had been requesting to return to patrol for months. She agreed to the reassignment but asked if she could be placed on a day shift, as she had a newborn at home. Throughout the review, she felt that Lt. Wagner was condescending toward her.
  Disturbed by the comment questioning her judgment, Officer 16 became emotionally upset and asked to take the rest of the day off, citing her mental state. She was granted the remainder of the day off. Officer 16 also mentioned that she felt Lt. Wagner was unsupportive of women in law enforcement, which added to her frustration. This is the second or third time this comment has been made while talking with female officers, both current and previous.
- Officer 16 went back to patrol day shift where she had Sgt. Lackey as her direct supervisor. After Chief Klug took over in 2020, Sgt. Lackey was promoted to Lt – over Sgts. Noyes and Baubeneck, both of whom she said were great. Where did Lackey rank on the promo board vs. Noyes and Baubeneck?

- In January of 2020 officer 16 received an email from Chief Olsen as he was retiring. In the email Chief Olsen spoke about how good of an officer she was and that'd she'd be great for the next Chief.
- The selection process for the next Chief began and officer 16 recalled someone from the city coming in and asking officers who would be their choice for the new Chief – Cpt. Klug or someone from outside the department. Officer 16 responded that she'd prefer someone from outside the department and she noted that most of the other officers responded the same way. Officers told the city official "Klug and Sundheim would wreck the department." Klug was promoted to Chief and she said moral in the department plummeted.
- Officer 16 again recognized she was struggling. She was unable to shake the 'concerned about your judgement' comment and she was still having trouble with her baby (sleeping etc). During one afternoon shift – altered duty (she'd been moved to afternoons because she'd failed her handgun qualifications) Lt. Lackey said something to her about something she'd done (officer 16 admitted – she'd earned the talking to) but Lt. Lackey was very harsh to her and this upset her very much. Sgt. Foley was a good friend of officer 16's within the department and he tried to 'talk her down' from her emotional state.
- Shortly after this incident, officer 16 was called into Chief Klug's office – where Cpt. Sundheim and Lt. Lackey were in attendance as well. Chief Klug's first words were "we don't want you to feel ganged up on." They remediated officer 16 to handgun training with Officer 14. Officer 16 stated that officer 14 was not a good trainer for her and she continued to struggle with her handgun qualifications.
- Afterward, Sgt. Foley spoke with Officer 16 regarding body cam footage that had surfaced during a review. Although Officer 16 didn't specify what the footage contained, she expressed how deeply it upset her, stating that she felt "targeted." In her distress, she turned in her badge and name plate but failed to surrender her firearm.
  At this point, Officer 16 shared that she had been struggling mentally for some time and was contemplating suicide. She went to the briefing room and called her husband, telling him she was going to end her life. Although external factors likely contributed to her mental state, the way Officer 16 was treated at the department must be critically examined. It seems this type of mental stress was being missed at the department.
  Her husband reminded her of a suicide victim she had once saved, and how grateful that person was to Officer 16 for intervening. Reflecting on that moment, she credits her husband with saving her life that day. She further shared how trapped she felt working at the department, especially with a newborn at home and the financial burden of bills. The idea of taking a pay cut to transfer to another department wasn't an option. She also reiterated the ongoing frustration caused by the lack of communication from Chief Klug and Captain Sundheim.
- Between April and May of 2020, during the height of the COVID pandemic, Officer 16 was informed that her stepfather had been diagnosed with terminal cancer. Chief Klug then told her she would not be permitted to visit her stepfather in his final days or attend his funeral. Time passed, and while on duty one afternoon, Officer 16 received a text from her mother, notifying her that her stepfather had passed away. She was on a call with a fellow officer at the time. After completing the call, she informed her colleague that she needed to call her mother and explained the reason. After speaking with her mother, she texted her husband to let him know about her stepfather's death. Upon returning to the department, she informed her sergeants of the situation before heading back out on patrol to finish the remaining six hours of her shift.

Shortly thereafter, Officer 16 was called back to the station for a meeting with Chief Klug, Captain Sundheim, and Sgt. Noyes, who expressed concern for her well-being. Officer 16 found this odd, given that they had already denied her the ability to attend the funeral. She assured them she was fine and asked to return to her patrol duties to finish her shift

- A few weeks go by and officer 16 is called in to speak with Chief Klug again. This meeting is about her suicidal comments a few months back. Chief Klug asks officer 16 if she is ok and she responds with "No, I haven't been ok since 2019. I feel targeted by certain officers (Sundheim, Wagner and Lackey) within the department and I'm still having trouble with things going on outside of work." Chief Klug refers her for counseling with Feely and puts officer 16 on administrative leave. During her counseling sessions, officer 16 and Feely discuss her leaving the department. Officer 16 mentioned that she still to this day sees Feely for counseling.
- Officer 16 takes Counselor Feely's advice and starts looking for jobs outside MPD. There are openings at Ward County Corrections and she is hired on for July start. She puts in her notice on June 23, 2020 and hands Chief a resignation letter. Chief Klug won't accept the letter and she takes it over to City Hall to give to HR. (letter attached) Chief Klug made officer 16 write another resignation letter (which is also attached).
- Officer 16 finished up our meeting with 2 very important points. First, she spoke again about the harassment and mental stress put on officers from some of the command staff and supervisors. Second, that the body cam footage review process is being used against good officers who "aren't part of Chief's group of good ol' boys". She mentioned officers like Cory, Lund, etc). Officer 16 also mentioned that Klug/Sundheim started recording conversations.
- To her credit, officer 16 reached out to both Chief Klug and Cpt. Sundheim in December of 2023 to apologize and take more accountability for some of her behavior. She said that apology was met with "lip service" from the two of them.

Minot Police Department
ATTN: Chief Klug

To Whom It May Concern,

It is with unfortunate circumstances that I offer this letter as my resignation notification as well as my exit interview.

In 2015 when I was hired on to the Department, never did I dream I would be quitting in 5 short years. My goal was to be a K9 officer, now, that is a distant memory and dream that I find that I am not quite ready for.

As such, my end date with the City of Minot Police Department will be July 10, 2020, where I'll then be working in Corrections with the Ward County Jail.

Listed below will be some points I wish to address in lieu of my exit interview.

- I have come to appreciate this career. While visibly thankless and easy to lose sight of those in appreciation for what I do in my day to day, I have noticed that there is more support, more of a community family, even friendships present in the City of Minot than I ever dreamed of. I could not have been luckier to serve such a kind community's streets.
- I've learned that the blue line spreads across the country, even countries overseas. I have made many connections, networks, and friendships with my other brothers and sisters in blue that I have met from several areas.
- I've learned time and time again that I am tougher than I give myself credit for. I am also more emotional that I am willing to admit and I have seen that come in handy when talking to people, especially victims, who need a shoulder.
- I've learned that teamwork is essential. Simply, #TeamWorkMakesTheDreamWork.
    - But working with other Agencies, such as Highway Patrol, Border Patrol, and Ward County Sheriff's Deputies, is often frowned upon on. If Officers, such as myself, utilize the special deputy exception we are sworn under to assist another agency, we are called off and told it is not our problem. BUT as soon as our Officers are bogged down with calls, our supervisors request other agencies assistance AFTER telling them to get out of city limits.
- I've learned that policy is gold and very little else matters. If it isn't for the good of the policy, it isn't for the good of the order and that policy seems to only apply to certain people and only certain people

- Do not mistake, I understand policy is to protect us, the department, and the community; but does it really hurt to take photographs with other individuals in the community, each other, or family and post it to social media?

- I've learned that many times it is someone's way or the highway and that it is easier to just bend and do it that way, until another someone comes along and then it is only that way. But there are many ways to describe a Lion as well as paint one.
- I've learned that 'big brother' is everything Officers were promised it would not be. Because of that, we watch over our shoulder and anticipate the reprimand, constantly.
- I've learned that those who do no self-initiated work, take little to no calls, and overall 'ghost' during shift get very little consequences and seem to never make mistakes. BUT as soon as an officer who is always out there, making stops, taking the reports, being the community officer we need; they are wrong, make several mistakes, and are often on a formal plan for whatever mistake was made.
- I've learned that as soon as a mistake is made, often it is not addressed immediately, but addressed weeks, and months later.
- I've learned that mental health, while talked about, is not trained for. My best help was my coworkers and shift partner.
- Many aspects with this department is still a 'good ol boys club' and if you're not a part of it, you're wrong, outcast, and often run out of the department. I've seen many good Officers experience this and leave.

This career is hard, thankless on the surface, mentally taxing, emotionally grueling, family disconnecting, dark, sometimes perverted, the product that every salesman must sell but no one wants and passionate.

I truly hope, in the future, that these concerns never come up again. I truly hope our supervisors will lead us and not manage us. I truly hope that this department will be as supportive of the officers as the community is. I also hope that this department will be fun, uplifting, caring, understanding, practical, and rational when those changes come around.

My home and door is always open to any Officer who needs a place, needs a break, is wanting an ear or a shoulder and doesn't mind taking a short drive because I live way out there. I will always be that blue sister to any of the siblings at this department.

Sincerely,

Heather Summers

Senior Officer Heather Summers,

On January 30, 2020 you attempted your winter qualification and failed to perform to department standard. In accordance with department policy governing sidearm qualifications, specifically Policy 306.5.1, I am relieving you of your field assignment until you successfully complete the qualification course. Your duty day will consist of firearms training to help you become proficient with your sidearm. When you are not assigned to firearms training, you will conduct non-uniform administrative duties as assigned. While on administrative status you are prohibited from carrying your department issued sidearm on and off duty. You will be given up to one week of remedial training in this non-field assignment status and expected to successfully qualify no later than Friday, February 28, 2020. If you are qualified by that date you will return to your field assignment.

This problem will be addressed further by Lt. Shannon Lackey and Capt. Jason Sundbakken and a plan will be put in place for continued firearms proficiency training.

Chief John Klug — Date: 2/21/2020

I acknowledge understanding of this letter removing me from field assignment. I further acknowledge receipt of a copy of this letter.

Responses address numbered bullet points from information provided by Officer #16

Just as a general comment to the information provided by former Officer Summers. First, I am not aware of her contacting the Human Resource department with any of her issues. Second, in reviewing her file, she was struggling with several issues prior to Chief Klug assuming the role as chief. See Exhibit M-Documentation from Officer Summer File located in the Minot Police Department and not originally included in her City Personnel File in the HR Department.

1.) Sergeants Noyes and Bambenek were not in the promotional round which included then Sergeant Lackey. Sergeant Lackey was the top certified applicant in that round, but was promoted second from the certified list after then Sergeant McLeod. See Exhibit N- Lieutenant Certification list from February 2019.

Capt. Sundheim forwarded a report concerning an internal investigation he conducted following a citizen complaint in the handling of CFS 19-23351.

I have reviewed the investigation (see attached report) and concur with his findings indicating that the investigation was mishandled in violation of Policy 322 (Standards of Conduct).

Findings:

1. Officer Summers lack of thoroughness in handling Case# 19-23351 as documented in Capt. Sundheim' s report was in violation of Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct.

Disciplinary Action:

1. As this is the first such violation by Officer Summers the disciplinary action will be placing this letter of reprimand in her personnel file and in the internal investigation file.

Officer Summer's supervisors will continue to work with her on improvement and monitor her performance in handling her assigned cases.

Date of Incident:	Investigation Performed By:
	Minot Police Department Capt. Justin Sundheim

DATE OF COMPLAINT/DATE OF ADMINISTRATIVE INVESTIGATION:

October 8, 2019/October 8-Nov 15

SYNOPSIS:

On October 8th, 2019, Tiffany BOKO contacted Chief Olson and expressed frustration over how a Domestic Violence call and investigation was handled.

SUMMARY OF INVESTIGATION:

October 8, 2019

Sgt. Goodman met with me in reference this case (19-23351). He briefed me on a DV case that was handled by one of the detectives, Det. Summers. He stated he received information from an acquaintance of concerns regarding an investigation Det. Summers handled. He stated they watched surveillance video from a domestic altercation that occurred on 7-24-19. On this date, Det. Summers changed her mind in how she interpreted the video. She indicated she was going to talk with the prosecutor about having the charge dropped. (DV assault against J. GEIGER) Sgt. Goodman stated he left the decision to Det. Summers, but in only observing the video, agreed that it likely shouldn't have been charged out as a DV assault offense.

[redacted] emailed Chief Olson about concerns regarding how a domestic violence case was handled/investigated.

October 9th, 2019

I met with Chief Olson regarding this case.

October 15th 2019

0820 hrs-I met with Officer Cory in my office. A notice of investigation was given.

October 16th 2019

[redacted] emailed me apologizing for not returning my call. She provided some additional detail of concerns. (See attached email)

October 17th, 2019

I emailed [redacted] explaining process of administrative investigation. (see attached email)

1122 hrs-I met with Det. Summers in my office. Det. Summers was given a notice of investigation and a statement was given. (attached) A summary of statement is as follows:

1) Det. Summers met with [redacted] on 7/26/19. [redacted] had came to the PD in regards to the domestic altercation that occurred previously. [redacted] had obtained video from the residential surveillance that showed the altercation. [redacted] had some injuries that had become apparent since the previous night.
2) Det. Summers met with [redacted] at her desk and began to go through the video surveillance as [redacted] explained what was happening.
3) Det. Summers recorded an audio statement from BOYKO.

I received a response email from [redacted] that included additional concerns as well as her side of the situation that occurred on 7-24-19. A summary of some of the concerns are listed: (full email is attached)

1) Stated the initial report is incorrect (Officer Cory).

Exhibit M-5

Minot Police Department

(a) "The middle statement about him getting on top of me and strangling me I did not say."

(b) "And he did not strangle me on the ground he pinned me against the car while [redacted] ran away and held my throat, after all the punching in the car. And pulling me back in to punch me some more."

(c) "Also the phone he listed as stolen is wrong. It is a 6+ not a 5s" "I told him that night I was calling to press charges on assault and that Jared had took my phone"

2) She was frustrated with the amount of time it took for the assault charge to be processed.

October 21, 2019

I met with the city prosecutor (Pierson) to discuss the case. I showed Pierson the video that was supplied by [redacted] Pierson's opinion was a disorderly conduct charge against both [redacted] and GIEGER may have been the most appropriate. The basis/premise of the charge would be the alarming behavior of both [redacted] and GIEGER, with the child being the victim.

October 30, 2019.

I reviewed the radio traffic that had been sent by PSAP McPeak. Radio traffic from dispatcher relays what [redacted] stated in the original call to dispatch. Dispatcher relays to officer that [redacted] states "her son's father came over, they got into an argument, he threw her to the ground and strangled her. Occurred about 20 minutes ago and she states he also stole her phone. He's no longer there at this time. She's declining medical, as well."

October 31, 2019

Transcription of radio traffic is attached.

November 7, 2019

I reviewed audio of interview between [redacted] and Detective Summers.

Exhibit M-6

Minot Police Department

Based on the facts gathered during this investigation, the listed policies were reviewed; Minot PD Policy 322 (STANDARDS OF CONDUCT), Minot PD Policy 311 (DOMESTIC VIOLENCE).

322.5.8 STANDARDS OF CONDUCT-PERFORMANCE

(a) "Failure to disclose or misrepresenting material facts, or making any false or misleading statements on any application, examination form, or other official document, report or form, or during the course of any work-related investigation."

(b) The falsification of any work-related records, making misleading entries or statements with the intent to deceive or the willful and unauthorized removal, alteration, destruction and/or mutilations of any department record, public record, book, paper or document.

Given the totality of the circumstances, 322.5.7 STANDARDS OF CONDUCT-EFFIENCY was found to be more applicable in this review. There is no reason to believe the misrepresentation of facts was intentional. See details to follow.

322.5.7 STANDARDS OF CONDUCT-EFFIENCY

(b) Unsatisfactory work performance including, but not limited to, failure, incompetence, inefficiency, or delay in performing and/or carrying out proper orders, work assignments or the instructions of supervisors without a reasonable and bona fide excuse.

Det. Summers allowed the victim [redacted] o go through the video with her and explain what was happening. This is not good investigatory practice as an investigator (when practicable) should review video independently first to avoid bias or preconceived dispositions. As a result, SUMMER's articulation of facts in the affidavit do not seem to reflect what the video portrays. Specifically, it does not appear as though [redacted] is pulled into the vehicle. [redacted] enters the vehicle on her own and begins to engage with GIEGER. Once inside, it is inconclusive at best as to GIEGER's "strikes" against her. It appears to become an issue of the two attempting to gain/retain control over the juvenile child. Arms and hands can be seen grabbing and pulling at each other in efforts to maintain/gain control of the child.

By SUMMERS's own actions, 1) reviewing video after warrant issued, 2) asking a supervisor how to undo the case 3) requesting the charge be dismissed, she acknowledges the mishandling of the investigation.

SUMMERS is in violation of this policy as the investigation was inefficient due to lack of thoroughness. SUMMER'S responsibility is to both the parties involved in the incident to ensure accurate facts are articulated and presented to the prosecutor's office so they can make an informed decision.
SUSTAINED.

Exhibit M-7

Minot Police Department

CONCLUSION:

To ensure [redacted] and GIEGER had an independent review of this incident, the city prosecutor, DV specialists, SUMMERS's supervisor (Sgt. Goodman) and myself all reviewed the video. Each came to the same general conclusion as to the ability to proceed with any potential criminal charges against GEIGER. Although actions may have been inappropriate, any criminal application of those actions would be difficult to prosecute.

Forwarded to Chief Olson for review.

Chief Olson,

I am writing you this request letter for my transfer back to day-shift patrol.

I have had the experience and opportunity to learn new tactics, tricks of the trade, understand century code, as well as build relationships with our community members.

Over the last 22 months, I have had some strides and have had some successful cases; however, I have also experienced my own weaknesses in their full light and how I have held myself back from growing as an investigator.

At this time, I feel it is to my benefit to return to patrol and gain more experience, see new things, and meet more people that live in our community. I feel that with the additional experiences, personal growth I expect to continue to come, and tighter bonds with my fellow Officers my career with the Minot Police Department could only benefit and get stronger.

I understand the schedule restraints I have due to my family needs and I understand that not everyone can be accommodated. However at this time, the hours associated with the day shift is what I know my family can accommodate.

Should day shift not be an option, I will speak with my husband and see what we can work out from there.

I cannot thank you enough, along with my supervisors in Investigations, for the opportunity to learn about investigations and what it takes.

I know the topic of long term goals will come up, as I too have thought of this. I feel that I am still too new to the department to specifically have a defined goal. I know I do wish to attempt my hand at Task Force as well as SRO. However, I know with both of those options, I need to wait for an opening and then apply.

Should you have any questions, please let me know. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Heather Summers 4331 7874

To: Officer Kevin Cory

From: Chief Jason T. Olson

Ref: Letter of Reprimand

Captain John Klug gave me a report outlining a pattern of behavior on the part of Officer Kevin Cory regarding tardiness or absence from required court appearances (see attached report).

On 09/05/18, Captain Klug, Lt. Jason Sundbakken and I met with Officer Cory to hear his response to the report. Officer Cory indicated that on the first two occasions when he was late for court he forgot to put the information in his calendar. He was able to get to court, albeit late, in order to testify thanks to delays in cases prior to his case. On the third occasion he said that he had called the State's Attorney Office and spoke to a clerk. He told the clerk that he was going to be on vacation during the court date. Cory stated that the person he talked to said they would take care of notifying the prosecuting attorney. It was reinforced to Officer Cory that unless he is actually released from the subpoena by the prosecutor he was still obligated to respond to it. He was told to make sure there is documentation in any future occasions where he is released from the subpoena.

Findings: Officer Kevin Cory, on three recent occasions, was late for or failed to appear for District Court after having been subpoenaed to make his appearance. These cases of tardiness or absence are without justifiable excuse by Officer Cory.

As a result of these findings I am issuing this letter of reprimand and warning.

Officer Cory understands that any future violations of this nature could result in more severe sanctions such as suspension without pay or termination of employment. This letter will remain in his file for a period of one year from this date after which he may request that it be removed provided that there have been no further similar violations of policy.

Policy Violation
Ref: Failure to Appear in Court When Subpoenaed
Officer Involved: Officer Kevin Cory

September 4, 2018

I have received three (3) email notices from Kelly Dillon at the States Attorney's Office notifying me that Officer Kevin Cory missed a scheduled court appearance for which he was subpoenaed.

- The first occurred on July 19th, 2018 when he missed a preliminary hearing. That hearing was fortunately continued.
- On August 10th, 2018 I received another email informing me that Officer Cory missed another preliminary hearing. In this case, they recalled Officer Cory calling the day before the hearing to find out if it was still scheduled, but didn't show up for the hearing the following day. They called Officer Cory and he arrived 45 minutes passed the scheduled time. Fortunately in this case the hearing before his took a long period of time so his late appearance didn't affect the outcome.
- The last email was received on August 23rd, 2018 in reference to a preliminary hearing. The States Attorney's Office called Officer Cory when he didn't show up for his preliminary hearing. He informed them he was boarding a train and couldn't make it to the hearing.

The pattern of three (3) missed hearings in a five week time frame is unacceptable and leaves the States Attorney's Office in a bad position with the court when the key witness doesn't show up. This behavior not only reflects poorly on Officer Cory, but also on the Minot Police Department and will not be tolerated.

The policy violation in this case is as follows and is sustained for Officer Kevin Cory:

- Policy 323 – Standards of Conduct

323.5.5 Attendance

(d) Failure to report to work or to place of assignment at time specified and fully prepared to perform duties without reasonable excuse.

Hey Kelly –

Not sure if you want to mention this to Klug – but Officer Cory was scheduled for a prelim for Jasmine Massing ill this afternoon at 330pm and apparently is boarding a train to Indiana at the moment. We were sort of saved in this instance because Jasmine is suffering from some sort of mental psychosis and Migdal and the deputies are with her right now, but had she been good to go, we would have had no officer.

This is the second prelim for this defendant and the last time it was continued because Cory wasn't here that time.

To: Officer Jenna Bjork, Joshua Lund and Kevin Cory

From: Chief Jason T. Olson

Ref: CFS #2018-39291 – Patrol Response to WCNTF Request for Assistance

This letter is in reference to a review of the reports and video from an incident that occurred on December 13th, 2018. Officer Jenna Bjork, along with Officers Kevin Cory and Joshua Lund were working as patrol officers when they responded to a radio request from Officers Chad Watterud and Ross Lakoduk, who are assigned to the Ward County Narcotics Task Force, to assist them with stopping a vehicle. The occupants were suspected of being involved in illegal narcotics activity.

Capt. John Klug reviewed the reports and video available from the incident and issued the attached report (see attached report).

Findings: I have reviewed Capt. Klug's report and watched the video from the in-car recorders. I concur with his findings that the listed officers violated department policies as detailed in his report.

Discipline: As a result of these findings I am ordering the following:

Officers Bjork, Lund and Cory are being formerly reprimanded for the policy violations, in particular for failing to activate emergency lights and siren during emergency driving. It is critical that this equipment be used to alert and warn others of the potential danger of getting in the way of emergency vehicles who are in response mode.

A secondary purpose for activating emergency lights and sirens while violating traffic laws such as speeding and going through stop sign and traffic light controlled intersections without stopping is to allow the public to see that there is an emergency taking place which justifies the disregarding of these traffic laws.

Officer Cory is also reprimanded for deactivating his MAV (in-car) recorder prior to the conclusion of the incident and while he was still exceeding the speed limit.

Officers are ordered to review the referenced policies with their respective Patrol Shift Lieutenants to insure that they completely understand the policies going forward.

A copy of this letter will be placed in the personal files of these officers for a period of two years from this date, after such time, if there are no further policy violations of this or a similar nature, the officers may request that the letter be removed.

Any additional violations of policy may result in progressive disciplinary steps being taken.

Use of Force (Pursuit) Review
Incident # 18-39291
Officers Involved: Bjork, Lakoduk, Watterud, Cory, Lund

On December 13, 2018 TFO Lakoduk radioed for assistance from a patrol officer to assist with making a traffic stop. TFO Lakoduk and Watterud continued to follow the vehicle and radio the location to responding officers. Officer Bjork eventually got in a position to make a traffic stop and the vehicle fled. She terminated the pursuit of the vehicle; however, there were several issues with the response by the officers involved.

Officer Jenna Bjork

- Traveled 48 mph without lights activated in about the 8-900 blocks of 19th Ave. SW (residential 25 mph zone) to get caught up to Officer Lakoduk and the vehicle in question.
- Steered toward the vehicle when first making contact on 10th St. SW. Lights were first activated at this time. Vehicle continued to travel south with TFO Ross Lakoduk following behind it.
- It took about 4 blocks for Officer Bjork to get caught up to the vehicle on 20th Ave SW. She turned her lights off while trying to catch up and failed to stop for a stop sign and accelerated to 73 mph (40 zone) while traveling west on 20th Ave. SW to catch up to the vehicle.
- Activated emergency lights just prior to the traffic light to the intersection with the Hwy 2&52 bypass. Terminated the pursuit when the vehicle went through the red light at 16th St. and 20th Ave. SW. Bjork appropriately turned off her emergency lights and made a turn northbound on 16th St. SW.
- There was discussion on the radio about the vehicle possible turning into Western Village or onto Evergreen Ave. or possibly the bypass. Officer Bjork turned into the trailer court to search for the vehicle. She again reached 39 mph without lights on in this residential neighborhood.
- Continued to Evergreen Ave. on the Frontage Road and failed to stop at the stop sign prior to turning onto Evergreen Ave. She then proceeded north on Evergreen and went through that neighborhood at 35-39 mph without emergency lights activated searching for the vehicle.

Officer Joshua Lund

- Camera activated at entrance to Water Treatment Plant on 16th St. SW. U-turn at that location to head south on 16th St. SW.
- Emergency lights not on, reaches speed of 36 prior to stopping for red light at W. Burdick Expy. Stops for several seconds, activates emergency lights and hits air horn and proceeds south through the red light. Turns emergency lights off prior to exiting the intersection and reaches speed of 42 mph prior to stopping for red light at 11th Ave. SW.
- After stopping for red light, once again activates emergency lights for less than a second and proceeds through the red light. Reaches speeds of 53 mph without emergency lights prior to slowing for left turn (eastbound) on 16th Ave. SW.
- Accelerated to 49 mph on 16th Ave. SW. He made a right turn (southbound) on 9th St. SW. Accelerated to 43 mph while traveling south on 9th St. SW along Edison School Property (while school is in session. Made a right turn (westbound) on 18th Ave. SW and accelerated to 40 mph, conducted a U-turn in the area of 13th St. SW and accelerated to 40 mph back to 10th St. SW, where he turned south and accelerated to 41mph until reaching 20th Ave. SW where he made a right turn (westbound) without stopping at the stop sign. He then accelerated to 58 mph on 20th Ave. SW. (Emergency lights still not activated for any driving in this section.)

- Lund also proceeded to the area of Western Village in an apparent attempt to locate the vehicle that fled from Bjork. He resumed normal patrol until the end of the video.

Officer Kevin Cory

- Video starts in the area between the Hwy 2 & 52 split and Schatz Truck Stop with Officer Cory traveling westbound.
- Emergency lights are not activated at this time and patrol vehicle is traveling at 78 mph until it enters the area of the truck stop where the speed increased to 81 mph before slowing to 75 mph as it passed through the intersection with 13th St. SE.
- Officer Cory approaches another vehicle traveling in the inside lane without emergency lights activated, and as he approaches that vehicle, the vehicle is obviously concerned and applies its brakes. Officer Cory was traveling 62 mph at the point the other vehicles brake lights came on.
- He then makes a lane change and accelerates to 73 mph prior to the camera being turned off.
- Officer Cory is heard on the radio traffic calling in for a county unit or HP as he located the vehicle at the intersection of West 2&52 and W. Burdick. Reported that it was multiple traffic violations, almost caused an accident and that he was "just observing".
- He later states the vehicle is going north on the bypass. Passing vehicles on the shoulder. Sgt. Lackey announced that she didn't want PD officers involved in the pursuit. Cory then called TFO Lakoduk on the radio and said he "kept eyes on it from a very far, not pursuing it" and that it continued on the bypass.

Officer Ross Lakoduk

- Although it is likely that the suspect vehicle knew TFO Lakoduk was behind him from Marketplace until the time marked units engaged, there is no video to show his speeds or driving while continuing surveillance on the vehicle. No speeds are mentioned on the radio traffic. After the point Officer Bjork attempts to engage, it appears Officer Lakoduk is exceeding the speed limit with no emergency lights to observe the vehicle. Officer Bjork then passes Lakoduk and none of his driving is observed at that point.

POLICY VIOLATIONS

Policy 420 – MOBILE AUDIO/VIDEO

- 420.4.1 – Required Activation of the MAV
  - (a)(2) – Priority responses
  - (a)(3) – Vehicle pursuits
- 420.4.2 – Cessation of Recording

- Once activated, the MAV system should remain activated until the incident has concluded.

The violation of Policy 420 is sustained for Officer Kevin Cory. Due to his driving in excess of the posted speed limit it is reasonable to believe that he is still attempting to locate or engage in the search for the vehicle that fled from Officer Bjork.

Policy 308 – OFFICER RESPONSE TO CALLS

- 308.2 – Response to Calls
  - Officers responding to an emergency call shall proceed immediately. Officers shall continuously operate emergency lighting equipment and, if appropriate, sound the siren.
  - Officers not responding to a call as an emergency response shall observe all traffic laws and proceed without the use of emergency lights and sirens.

The violation of Policy 308 is sustained for Officer Jenna Bjork, Officer Joshua Lund, and Officer Kevin Cory. Regardless of the type of incident or what the correct response could be, all three officers operated their patrol vehicles without emergency lights activated while not observing numerous traffic laws.

Due to the transition to ADP, Cheryl's role in payroll will be greatly changed. Her job duties/assignments will be changing to adapt to the current needs of the department. Cheryl will likely need to learn new processes and possibly new systems to fill that role. The department will provide her any necessary training and resources to ensure that she can transition successfully to this new role.

Employee Response

Keep cussing out of the workplace and when dealing with citizens. Voices carry throughout the building, cars, down the street. Sometimes one may have to speak such if you are trying to fit into a situation but otherwise it definitely isn't very professional if you want to be respected as a person or an agency / business.

2 - Needs Improvement

Cheryl is, and has been, a part of the Records Division for multiple years. She recently was given her own office due to privacy issues dealing with payroll. She has, however, still not chosen to assist in any of the Records tasks, or be a part of the Records Team. With the new ADP system in place Cheryl will likely have much less input in the payroll system of the city. This should allow her adequate time, going forward, to take up more of the responsibilities the Records Division is tasked with.

   Brief explanation: Cheryl usually does a good job of prioritizing and planning her work load.
4. Holds self accountable for assigned responsibilities; sees tasks through to completion in a timely manner — 4-Highly Effe
   Brief explanation: Cheryl does a good job of completing any task that is given to her, meets deadlines, and holds herself accountable.
5. Proficiency at improving work methods and procedures as a means toward greater efficiency — 2 Needs Impr
   Brief explanation: Cheryl is a very meticulous person. She has, however, had issues and become resistant when processes change from what she is familiar or comfortable with. In addition she has had issues with creating redundant paperwork depite being told it is not necessary by Chief Klug. These things will reduce overall efficiency.
6. Communicates effectively with supervisor, peers, and customers — 3-Proficient
   Brief explanation: Generally speaking, Cheryl communicates effectively. There are times, when Cheryl becomes upset or is asked to change a process that she can be abrasive and/or argumentative. She has improved on these things during the year.
7. Ability to work independently — 4-Highly Effe
   Brief explanation: Cheryl requires little to no daily assistance in her job. She has a vast knowledge of the duties she is responsible for.

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Cheryl has a vast knowledge of payroll and department procedure. She has many duties that are necessary to the function and organization of the police department. She will be an integral part of the new payroll system when it is implemented.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Continue to work on being a part of the Records "Team". The goal in the near future is to have multiple people who are able to fill in and do each job within that office. Work toward being a redundancy for one or more people in Records and also work with Trisha to pass on Payroll knowledge to someone she identifies. This will spread out work load and also allow the mission of the department to continue in anyone's absence.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

The City will be implementing the new payroll system at some point.. Cheryl will be heavily involved in that process and will continue to handle our departments payroll responsibilities. Learn this new program and processes. Identify ways in which this system can improve our current methods and create more efficiency. Continue to learn the Munis system as well to assist in the payment of various invoices within our department.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

Continue to work on integrating yourself into the Records Team and involve yourself in the daily responsibilities. Become an expert in the new payroll system that will be implemented. Work to create workflows within that system that allow for better efficiency than our current methods. Continue to streamline your work and reduce redundancies.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

Attend all trainings related to the new payroll system that will be implemented. Advise your payroll backup of the sessions to ensure that all knowledge and information is shared. Work on creating a "Job Duties" document to allow others to know the things that you are responsible for, and when, in the event you are not able.

This annual performance review will become part of your City of Minot personnel file.

Employee Comments

1. What comments, ideas or suggestions would you add to your review?

When I was moved out of my office and into Records, I asked Chief Klug to specifically write what my duties would be so I wouffd know as I knew there would come a time there would an issue. He emailed me stating, "You handle 'payroll records'.... the currect Records staff handle 'police rcords'. You support us through the personnel side of our mission...paychecks are important..... you will maintain same titlle and role ...."

Payroll is not the only "work" I do. Going through daily paperwork and entering into my daily sheets is time consuming. There is always missing paperwork and well as it needing corrections. Some supervisors as well as Command Staff tend to sign off on paperwork without looking at it to make sure it is correct or verifying if they have leave available. I also have to look at schedules to see who is working. Schedules are not always updated and some are not filled in at all. Some in the department are not on schedules so I just assume they are here and working. Many times paperwork is not received from them until after payroll has been finished. In the records office, I do answer phones when people are busy and also answer the door, etc. Payroll paperwork is scanned onto my computer and I email what H.R. needs once I receive it in full for each payroll.

There were many isssues when I came into records and it didn't lessen. It was not all my doing as I seem to constantly hear. With the two gals no longer present/employed here, much has greatly improve not only for me but the other Records personnel as well. See below #5

2. What can the City do to promote a better sense of overall employee satisfaction (i.e., training, communications, participation, growth opportunities)

Long term employees are tending to receive less and less. They have given years of service to the City of Minot and instead of less it should be more but one only hears how to recruit people and givr them more which is fine but remember those who have been loyal for many years.

3. What can be done to better serve the customers/citizens of Minot by:

a.) The City:

b.) Your Department:

c.) You:

4. What can your supervisor do to help you reach your professional potential?

5. Other questions/comments:

I was brought up to have a good work ethic. I work when at work. I am alwayskrept busy doing my stuff. I am not constantly looking at my phone or googling for whatever on the computer, wandering around visiting or just sitting in other offices. As I enter deaths I do look at local funeral homes and newspaper sites. Sometimes if I have a few minutes of downtown, i will look further on some ND sites. After having my own office for 30+ years, I got used to quiet or quiet music. The Records office is always filled with loud voices aa there are so many employees in it. With that many employees, there is also much sickness - with some coming to work and passing an illness around. am not against learning Records work; however with what I have doew keep me busy. As for doing bills, invoices and the like, Chief Klug in the emailststed he wanted Lts. & Captains to do it and it hs never conme back to me. He also ststed I would be involved in inventory and supplies when I came back after COVID; however, her delegated that to other people.

Employee Performance Evaluation

Note to supervisor performing evaluation: All City of Minot job descriptions can be located on the employee internal website for those of you who choose to reference the job description during the evaluation process.

Performance Competencies (Depending on position, some competencies may be more relevant than others.)

		5_Exceptional	4_Highly Effective	3_Proficient	2_Needs Improvement	1_Unsatisfactory	N/A_Not Applicable
5_Exceptional:	Performance is consistently superior and significantly exceeds position requirements.
4_Highly Effective:	Performance frequently exceeds position requirements.
3_Proficient:	Performance consistently meets position requirements.
2_Needs Improvement:	Performance meets some, but not all position requirements.
1_Unsatisfactory:	Performance consistently fails to meet minimum position requirements; employee lacks skills required or fails to utilize necessary skills.
N/A_Not Applicable	This item is not applicable to the employee's position

1. Skill and proficiency in carrying out assignments — 4-Highly Effecti

   Brief explanation: The past year brought more challenges for Cheryl with time away from work and her involvement in potential changes to the new payroll system for the City. That process of changing systems is now delayed. Cheryl completes assigned tasks on time.

2. Possesses skills and knowledge to perform the job competently — 4-Highly Effecti

   Brief explanation: Cheryl has worked with the current system for many years so the processes are second nature. With a new system in the future, Cheryl will be challenged to learn and adapt to a new system if or when it comes on line for the City.

3. Skill at planning, organizing and prioritizing workload — 3-Proficient

   Brief explanation: Over the past 2 years we have had to move a few people to different offices to adapt to dept. changes. We had to move Cheryl a couple times, but she's now settled in Records. Need to organize this space to maximize a smaller workspace while staying organized with the paperwork she works with daily.

4. Holds self accountable for assigned responsibilities; sees tasks through to completion in a timely manner — 4-Highly Effecti

   Brief explanation: Completes her duties as assigned and ensures she meets any deadlines put in place by HR for payroll due dates/times.

5. Proficiency at improving work methods and procedures as a means toward greater efficiency — 3-Proficient

   Brief explanation: I think there is room for improvement in this area. We need to start filing our payroll documents electronically and eliminate the paper copies. This can be done easily with a little help and coordination with Capt. Sundbakken and IT.

6. Communicates effectively with supervisor, peers, and customers — 4-Highly Effecti

   Brief explanation: Cheryl does a better job of reminding employees and supervisors to get paperwork turned in to ensure payroll can be processed accurately.

7. Ability to work independently — 4-Highly Effecti

   Brief explanation: Cheryl can complete her assigned tasks with minimal involvement from other department members.

8. Ability to work cooperatively with supervision or as part of a team — 3- Proficient

Brief explanation: Cheryl has adapted to the change of space and joining the Admin Team in Records. Make sure you communicate with others if you have some time to help them with a task. I know you are working on a number of updates along with payroll and being out on personal time, but teamwork is essential to maintain a high level of effectiveness and efficiency.

9. Willingness to take on additional responsibilities — 4- Highly Effect

Brief explanation: When asked, Cheryl will complete additional tasks as needed.

Note: We need to consider the possibility of getting you trained and up to date with the Munis system for processing invoices and receipts when needed.

10. Reliability (attendance, punctuality, meeting deadlines) — 4- Highly Effect

Brief explanation: Cheryl is on time and ensures she has her work done prior to deadlines. She plans her time off around work, but needs to start taking her vacation regardless of whether it's payroll week. She will struggle to use the vacation she has earned prior to the end-of-year cutoff to avoid losing the time.

11. Adeptness at analyzing facts, problem solving, decision-making, and demonstrating good judgment — 3- Proficient

Brief explanation: Don't over-analyze the information in front of you. I have different views on some of the payroll and time off than my predecessors. I want to give the employees the most consideration and ensure they are fairly compensated.

12. Operation, Maintenance and Care of Department Equipment — 4- Highly Effect

Brief explanation: Always takes care of department equipment assigned to her.

13. Safety Habits, Use of personal protective equipment, Reports hazards, — 4- Highly Effect

Brief explanation: Cheryl makes sure her work space is clean and sanitized. She wears a mask when visiting other employees work space.

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Cheryl's time with the department allows her to draw on historical knowledge and habit when processing payroll. The delay to changing our payroll system benefited Cheryl as the new system will mean new methods to complete payroll and likely bring some delays until she gets the process down. If this is brought on-line in 2022, Cheryl will have to make sure she takes in every training session possible so she has a good understanding of how it works.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

I'd like Cheryl to find an effective way to file payroll documents (vacation/CT/OT slips, etc) electronically. This will have to be done in an organized manner so documents can be found if needed. I would recommend involving Capt. Sundbakken to help with any coordination, as well as Sgt. Sundheim and Allison since they have experience with electronic record-keeping in their current roles.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Our restructure would have likely meant a different evaluator for Cheryl this year, but I wanted to provide continuity in evaluation and kept this responsibility with me. On top of the electronic filing I proposed in the previous block, I think we need to have Cheryl get trained on the Munis system so she can assist with paying invoices and attaching receipts to purchase card transactions.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

* Work with Allison so she understands the current payroll system.
* Work with Ashley as a new payroll system comes on line so you both understand and have some input.
* Implement the electronic form storage as previously mentioned.
* Ensure you are offering your assistance when the Records Office falls behind or someone is out for personal reasons (sick/vacation, etc.)

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

Attend as many training sessions as possible when a new payroll system is brought on line and keep Ashley informed of the sessions so you both have knowledge in the system.

N/A_Not Applicable	This item is not applicable to the employee's position

1. Skill and proficiency in carrying out assignments	4-Highly Effecti
Brief explanation: Like many others, Cheryl had to adapt to working remotely due to the COVID pandemic. Although this brought challenges and she had to work without many of the conveniences her office offers, she still completed payroll and other tasks efficiently.
2. Possesses skills and knowledge to perform the job competently	4-Highly Effecti
Brief explanation: Cheryl has worked with the current system for many years so the processes are second nature. This will be challenged with a change in payroll systems in process of implementation now and will likely be in use around April 2021.
3. Skill at planning, organizing and prioritizing workload	4-Highly Effecti
Brief explanation: While working from home it would be difficult for Cheryl to effectively or efficiently complete some tasks she would normally handle. This is to no fault of her own. She is still dedicated to ensuring PD staff get paid accurately.
4. Holds self accountable for assigned responsibilities; sees tasks through to completion in a timely manner	4-Highly Effecti
Brief explanation: Completes her duties as assigned and ensures she meets any deadlines put in place by HR for payroll due dates/times.
5. Proficiency at improving work methods and procedures as a means toward greater efficiency	3-Proficient
Brief explanation: If there is one area that Cheryl struggles a little bit, i would say it is with trying to find new or different ways to complete her assigned tasks. Then again, i don't know if she has ever been challenged to think outside of her current methods and processes.
6. Communicates effectively with supervisor, peers, and customers	4-Highly Effecti
Brief explanation: I think Cheryl has gotten better at communicating effectively with all employees over the course of this year. There are only so many ways to ask for someone to turn in receipts or payroll related paperwork.
7. Ability to work independently	4-Highly Effecti
Brief explanation: Cheryl knows what she has to do and gets it done without being prompted by me or other command staff.

8. Ability to work cooperatively with supervision or as part of a team — 4- Highly Effect

Brief explanation: Cheryl has worked from home most of 2020 so "teamwork" is a little difficult to show in that setting. However, a department restructure will keep her with payroll and paying bills when she returns, but it will also put her in a position to help records if she has spare time in her day.

9. Willingness to take on additional responsibilities — 4- Highly Effect

Brief explanation: When asked, Cheryl will complete tasks as needed.

10. Reliability (attendance, punctuality, meeting deadlines) — 4- Highly Effect

Brief explanation: Cheryl is on time whether working from home or in the office. She is punctual and ensures her time is accounted for. Deadlines are met even if that means putting in some time on a weekend or holiday. Always plans time off around work, but to a fault sometimes. This should get better in 2021.

11. Adeptness at analyzing facts, problem solving, decision-making, and demonstrating good judgment — 3- Proficient

Brief explanation:

12. Operation, Maintenance and Care of Department Equipment — 4- Highly Effect

Brief explanation: Always takes care of department equipment assigned to her.

13. Safety Habits, Use of personal protective equipment, Reports hazards, — 4- Highly Effect

Brief explanation: In the early phase of COVID when sanitizing surfaces was one of the critical aspects of mitigation, Cheryl ensured we had sanitizing wipes on hand and took part in wiping off some of the common work areas. She always has others safety in mind when considering work areas and supplies needed for our operation.

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Cheryl has a system for payroll that works for her, but this will look different going into 2021 when the new payroll system for the City is implemented for all departments. Cheryl can be trusted to complete all tasks she is assigned and work as much as she can under current circumstances. I know the time on her time sheet is accurate and that she has filled as much time with work related tasks as possible and doesn't take advantage of the flexible work requirements for non-essential staff.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

2021 will bring many changes to our department. You will have to keep an open mind as we enter into the many areas that are unknown and unfamiliar as we implement the new Tyler (JARVIS) system for the City. Current processes may have to change to increase your efficiency in the area of payroll. You will have to learn the new system for processing invoices, and you will return to a shared office environment as part of our department reorganization and restructure. I know change can be unsettling, but we are not going to leave anyone on an island during this transition period and that is where Cheryl will have to trust the Command staff with decisions being made.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

This is my first year evaluating Cheryl. She has worked around me for several years now and I think her schedule is about as full as it can get. That being said, there may be different roles and responsibilities that will make more sense for her to have instead of working with invoices (paying bills) the way she has in the past. This is one of the areas we don't know about as the change takes place across the City.
Cheryl will need to attend periodic training on the various new systems used by the City. This will ensure she has the ability to step up and help the Captains and Lieutenants as they take on new roles within the organization.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

Take opportunities to learn new City systems to increase effectiveness and efficiency with them.
Work with Ashley O. to share your knowledge and develop new processes for handling payroll in the new system.
Embrace the changes being implemented within the department structure.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

Attend available training opportunities provided for the new Tyler systems so you have full knowledge of the system capabilities as they pertain to working with the new system to process department payroll.

This annual performance review will become part of your City of Minot personnel file.

Dispatcher #2 (former MPD Dispatch)

- 32 yr dispatcher, 4 yrs as PSAP – retired in 2020
- In 2022, a new position was created: Assistant PSAP Manager. This role was designed to support the PSAP Manager, focusing primarily on training, scheduling, and overseeing the dispatchers. Dispatcher 2 expressed interest in the role, as these responsibilities had been her favorite part of her dispatch work. She stated that her goal in applying for the position was 'to help get dispatch back on track, mentor and train someone to take the lead in dispatch, as Margaret lacks leadership qualities." She is just a "yes man" for Klug and Sundheim.
- Dispatcher 2 help write/wrote the training manual for Dispatch during her time there. She also developed an 8- and 10-hour schedule that worked very well. She only lost 2 dispatchers during her time as PSAP. She also came back for a few months after she retired to help cover lunches, as dispatch so short-handed.
  Before applying, Dispatcher 2 met with Margaret three times to assure her that she had no interest in reclaiming her former job as PSAP Manager. Instead, she was seeking to re-engage after retirement, finding the training and scheduling aspects of the new role appealing. All conversations were positive, and Dispatcher 2 believed that Margaret was supportive of her return. Quoting Margaret as saying "she'd be happy to have her back."
- Dispatcher 2 maintains contact with many current and former dispatchers, who reach out to her, to vent and get guidance and while still maintaining some aspect of confidentiality, as Margaret 'tells everyone everything'.
- Dispatcher 2 first applied for the Assistant PSAP Manager position in May 2022. She met with Chief Klug, with whom she had worked side by side for 20 years. However, she described their conversation as somewhat strange, sensing an attitude of 'sure, apply, but you won't be hired.'
  During her second interview for the role, she raised a critical point, stating they 'needed to address why so many people were leaving or quitting.' This interview panel included representatives from MPD, the Ward County Sheriff's Department, and the FD/Ambulance Service. Kraft, from the Sheriff's Department, asked Dispatcher 2 what she had done differently to retain more staff. She highlighted the significant strain that 12-hour shifts, implemented under Chief Klug, were placing on dispatchers.
- At the end of 2023/beginning of 2024 after going through a couple other Asst. PSAP managers, the position opened again. Dispatcher 2 applied again, met with Margaret again to assure her that she just wanted to do the Asst. PSAP job and not take her job. Margaret again was on board and seemed excited to have the help.
- Dispatcher 2 was called by Cpt. Sundheim some time later and told "So Chief offered the job to another candidate and he accepted. That's where we are at." Dispatcher 2 asked why the other candidate had been picked over her, to which Sundheim responded, "I can't tell you why, I wasn't part of the interview process." She was disappointed Chief Klug didn't call her himself. Dispatcher 2 showed me letters of recommendation she had from former Chief Olsen, Sheriff Robert Roed, Larry Haug (former 911 Coordinator) and Lonnie Sather (Asst. Fire Chief, MFD). Attached. Speaking with Lisa Jundt on 9.19.24 in Stef Stalheim's office, Lisa said they knew/know they have a problem with Margaret, yet when Sundheim asked her about dispatcher 2 applying for the Asst. PSAP position earlier this year, Lisa advised against it because it would cause issues with Margaret. If we know we have a problem with Margaret, why are we worried about having issues with her? WTH?

- Dispatcher 2 mentioned how quickly things went downhill in dispatch after Chief Klug took command in 2020. No one was/is allowed to speak with Chief Klug or Cpt. Sundheim any longer, they must speak with Margaret first and she'll decide if they need to be informed. She also said there is no accountability within dispatch, because "if Margaret likes you, you don't get in trouble." Some other dispatchers (Jackie, Jenna, Jean) have brought up concerns and things they think could help fix some of the issues within dispatch. Margaret did not like them speaking up, so some of them were pushed out. Margaret labeled them as trouble makers. "Margaret does not like to be questioned, and is very retaliatory when she is."
- Dispatcher 2 also mentioned how many of our dispatchers both past and present are unhappy with the dispatch center. The center was designed by Cpt. Sundheim without any input from staff....didn't even ask for 'anything you think we need' to anyone. Dispatcher 2 mentioned again how depressing and dark most of the dispatchers think the center is. No windows, etc.
- Dispatcher 2 mentioned how it will take 6-8 months to train the new Asst. PSAP manager and that she could have been up and running in a couple weeks. I will mention, I have heard really good things about he candidate hired, but it is still surprising to see someone with these qualifications passed over.

3)

- Dispatcher 2 closed our conversation by talking about a dispatcher hired while she was PSAP, named Lacey Burgess. She apparently was friends with Chief Klug. Burgess left the scene of an accident in which her friend, who was drinking and driving, needed to be transported to the ER. She was arrested while on shift for doing so...later promoted within the department.

To whom it may concern:

I am pleased to write this letter of recommendation for Barbara McPeak who is applying for the position of Assistant PSAP Manager with the City of Minot. I have known Barbara for over 35 years and worked with her at the Minot Police Department for over 25 of those years. After retiring from the Police Department, I continued working with her for an additional nine years while serving as the 9-1-1 Coordinator for Ward County. During this time I was able to observe her on the job as she expanded her knowledge and experience as a 9-1-1 Dispatcher, and later as the Minot Central Dispatch PSAP Manager.

Barbara has extensive experience in emergency services and has established herself as a person who is insightful and can handle pressure, while at the same time thinking about how to continue improving herself and the dispatch center as a whole. An example are the training manuals she created for new hires in the dispatch center. These manuals, along with policy reviews and revisions, assisted countless individuals who were beginning their careers as dispatchers in the extremely challenging and demanding world of emergency services. Another example of improving the dispatcher center was when she started the work on transitioning from the old style medical emergency cards for the dispatchers to the more modern and upgraded electronic medical dispatching system. This procedure ultimately assisted the dispatchers as well as improved service to the public during medical emergencies. Barbara also has worked on budgeting for the dispatch center

To find a more qualified individual for this position would be, in my opinion, very challenging. Barbara has a proven track record as a successful and resourceful leader in her field. She has extensive working knowledge of the -9-1-1 system, radio and telephone network systems and the overall working environment of a 9-1-1 dispatch center. In addition, Barbara has the ability to work closely with the dispatchers and assist them when they are experiencing difficulties on the job. This can help create a worker friendly environment leading to the retention of qualified individuals.

To summarize, I feel Barbara would be the perfect fit for the position of Assistant PSAP Manager. She checks all the boxes on the list of qualifications, and could assist the PSAP Manager with any duties required. She would also be an effective liaison working with both city administration and the dispatch staff. If you have any questions or would like to visit with me concerning this matter please feel free to contact me at any time. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Larry Haug

Letter of Recommendation

On behalf of Barb McPeak
Date: 04/30/2024

I have been informed that Barb McPeak is applying for the assistant PSAP manager for Minot Central Dispatch. I can think of no other person more qualified for this position. Her years of experience as a dispatcher and former PSAP manager make her a perfect fit for the job.

I have worked with Barb my entire 34-year career in Law Enforcement. From the start, she became the voice I wanted to hear on the other end of the radio. Whether I was dispatched to a call in progress or making a traffic stop, she would strive to stay one step ahead of me. Barb could anticipate the information that I would most likely be asking for and have that information ready for me. This was especially helpful in the years we worked before cell phones and in car computers came into play. Having someone taking initiative and researching made things run so much smoother that having someone just answering the radio and reacting only after I would ask for information. Barb was especially valuable each July while working dispatch in the Command Trailer at the ND State Fair. Again, her experience shined as she was able to answer questions, keep things running smoothly and even teach new deputies a few things about the fair. Our lost and found property was always organized and she took the initiative to research and make calls to reunite people with their property.

As we both move up in our careers, we continued to maintain that positive relationship. When Barb applied for the PSAP manager position, I felt that she was the obvious choice and voiced my opinion at that time. I am again voicing my opinion, as once again I feel she is right for the spot, and to me it would be an easy decision. I have had nothing but positive experiences with Barb whether it be through work or on a personal level outside of work.

To: City of Minot
From: Jason Olson
Ref: Barbara McPeak

I recently learned that Barb McPeak has expressed interest in the position of Assistant PSAP Manager at Minot Central Dispatch. I cannot think of a more qualified and appropriate person to fill this position.

I had the privilege of working with Barb for three decades at Minot Police Department where I had the opportunity to see her career develop. I observed her perform her duties from the time that she began as a Dispatcher until her retirement from the position of PSAP Manager just a few years ago.

Barb has always displayed tremendous passion for her position in public safety along with a true desire to make the dispatch center and its staff the best they can be. She has trained almost countless new dispatchers during her career. She did so in a way that made it most likely for them to succeed. She treated her staff and co-workers with respect. She consistently worked towards improving the Dispatch Center both in keeping up with current trends in technology but also with concern for those she supervised. Barb approaches life with a servant's heart and a positive attitude.

I have absolutely no doubt that Barb would excel in the role of Assistant PSAP Manager. I give her my strongest endorsement.

Please feel free to contact me with any follow up questions if you would like.

Respectfully,

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing in reference to Barb McPeak's application for Assistant PSAP Manager for the City of Minot. I have known Barb for more than thirty (30) years through our positions as dispatcher and firefighter, including later in our careers as administrators within our departments. Through my experiences working with Barb I found her to be a competent and dedicated dispatcher. She was always willing to listen to any issues we experienced involving the communications between our departments and worked well with our staff to find solutions to any problems. As an administrator she worked well in a team environment. I witnessed this as we cross trained our personnel to better our working relationship and improve our responses to emergency situations.

I recommend Barb for this position as I believe her education and experience would be an asset to your department and the training of your dispatchers.

If you require any additional information or more details to the information mentioned above, please feel free to contact me directly at [redacted]

Yours Truly,

HR Director, Lisa Jundt, Response to Dispatcher #2 – Barb McPeak

Responses address numbered bullet points from information provided by Dispatcher #2

Some general comments. My HR staff and I have expressed their concern with Margaret's leadership and management in the past few years. We have done our best to be supportive to Margaret and the dispatch staff including offering guidance to command staff as needed. It's important to note that HR is a support department. We are not, and cannot be the manager of all things people-related in every department.

1.) As the former Public Safety Answering Point Manager (PSAP Manager) Barb McPeak would have been instrumental in hiring her replacement when she retired. When Margaret Haugan was selected she was actually the third certified appointment to the hiring eligibility list, yet the decision was made to promote her to the position. If Margaret was not qualified then to be appointed as the next PSAP Manager, Barb as the current PSAP Manager should have raised that issue with Chief Olson. When the promotional decision was made, Barb would have been the person to train and transition Margaret to be prepared for her new role. Barb was also Margaret's direct supervisor who conducted Margaret's annual evaluations. The last two year's evaluations Barb completed scored Margaret quite high in most categories and even noted that Margaret aspired to be the next PSAP Manager. Now Barb states that Margaret "lacks leadership qualities". This statement seems odd and is a little like back peddling at this late date. Considering Barb worked with Margaret for 14 years, supervised her for 3 ½ of those years, and was influential in her hire, I believe the lack of leadership would have been evident to Barb at the time of Margaret's promotion. See Exhibit O- Certified Hiring list from December 2019. Exhibit P – The last two years of Margaret's employee evaluations completed by Barb McPeak.

2.) When Barb applied for the Assistant PSAP Manager, I did say I thought it would be a bad idea to hire her to the position. There were a couple of reasons that I expressed my opinion on this. First, Barb and Margaret are two very strong personalities and it would be more than likely there would be "butting heads" on authority. Second, Barb had input and influence into Margaret's promotion from the onset. This department issue could probably have been avoided had there been stronger communication in stating there was no one qualified to assume the PSAP Manager position at the time of hiring. I would like to note that my opinion on this was basically irrelevant at the time since the applicants still had to go through the hiring process. In that process the person appointed to the Assistant PSAP position was scored as the number 1 candidate and has been doing an excellent job. See Exhibit Q – Certified Hiring list from September 2023.

3.) There was an incident involving Lacie Bjertness in October 2020. The issue was internally investigated and Lacey was disciplined. Lacey's employee evaluations the two years following this incident were very good, so it seemed like she had learned from her past mistake. When the position for lead dispatcher opened up, Lacey applied for the position and went through the hiring process and was ranked number 1. Note, there were only two applicants for the position which had to be filled by and internal candidate, and the other applicant was under a disciplinary investigation during the hiring process. Lacey was qualified and had the right to apply for the position. There are no grounds, that I am aware of, to hold a disciplinary action against an employee forever when they have corrected the issue and improved their performance. See Exhibit R- Bjertness investigation and discipline. Exhibit S – Bjertness evaluations after discipline and before promotion. Exhibit T-Certified promotional list for July 2023. Exhibit U – Van Hill disciplinary investigation and discipline.

Additional performance competencies for employees with supervisory responsibilities

14. Displays fairness towards all subordinates. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Margaret is fair towards subordinates but annoys easily when discussions arise about the 'clicks" in the dispatch center

15. Identifies performance expectations, gives timely feedback and conducts formal performance appraisals. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Margaret provided more comments this year towards the evaluation process.

16. Helps employees to see the potential for developing their skills; assists them in eliminating barriers to their development. — 4-Highly Effecti

Brief explanation: Margaret listens well to the employees that "vent" and tries to eliminate barriers by advising the PSAP manager of issues.

17. Delegates responsibility where appropriate, based on the employee's ability and potential. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Margaret's type A personality makes delegating difficult. She tends to do the work herself but can delegate when necessary.

18. Takes timely and appropriate corrective/disciplinary action with employees. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Since the leads were recently 'given more authority' she has taken on that responsibility but there has not been any real issues.

19. Takes specific steps to create and develop their diverse workforce and to promote an inclusive environment. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Margaret tries to get others to be more inclusive in all aspects but this is a difficult task.

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Margaret has a very positive attitude when she comes to work. She is conscious of how her peers have viewed her in the past and has upped her game in her dispatching skills and has led by example to quash any ideas of inadequacy others may have felt about her. Her customer service skills are good and she is very professional when speaking to the public to include officers and public visitors to the room. Her helpful nature is a strong quality and is appreciated but can be overbearing sometimes. Margaret can handle a large volume of the workload.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Margaret's leadership skills would benefit it she could keep feelings and assumptions out of the equation when dealing with subordinates. She is fair but needs to work on how much weight she places on the "people pleasing" portion of dealing with people.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Margaret's desire to become the PSAP manager proves she is willing to learn more. She has taken a chair on the board of the NW CRIB for the SIRN project, one she was kind of volunteered for but she took it on with a smile and has done a good job being the secretary.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

Margaret should work on keeping the job at hand, number one even if she is unable to "please" everyone.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

Continue to attend any training available. Seek out training and bring them to the attention of the PSAP Manager for possible approval.

Additional performance competencies for employees with supervisory responsibilities

14. Displays fairness towards all subordinates. — 4-Highly Effectiv

Brief explanation: Margaret has shown improvement in this area. She is fair with her subordinates but needs to learn to let "things go" once they have been addressed. She continues to work on her role as a supervisor

15. Identifies performance expectations, gives timely feedback and conducts formal performance appraisals. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Margaret could provide more feedback on her team. Assistance with evaluations this year was minimal from all leads.

16. Helps employees to see the potential for developing their skills; assists them in eliminating barriers to their development. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Margaret's approach for developing skills in her team can leave them feeling rather frustrated. In the heat of the moment, assist them in how to do things, please remember when time permits to make sure they learn from the incident.

17. Delegates responsibility where appropriate, based on the employee's ability and potential. — 4-Highly Effectiv

Brief explanation: Margaret does not shy from delegating and does know the abilities of the members of the team.

18. Takes timely and appropriate corrective/disciplinary action with employees. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Margaret has the ability to take corrective action but tends to sit back as long as the job is getting done. She needs to remember she is always a trainer and watch for teaching moments.

19. Takes specific steps to create and develop their diverse workforce and to promote an inclusive environment. — 3-Proficient

Brief explanation: Margaret continues to use open discussions with her team to promote a cohesive team.

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Margaret is knowledgeable, reliable, and aims to please. She is respected by the officers. Margaret has good customer service skills, and shows empathy for people. She communicates well with the PSAP manager. She continues to work on earning the respect of her co workers by doing more of the dispatch work.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Margaret should continue to be cognitive of how her actions appear and affect others.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Margaret has voiced interest in the PSAP manager position upon my retirement. Margaret needs to work on her interpersonal relationships. She will need to learn more about the equipment.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

With Margaret coming to day shift, she will have to "re-learn" the tasks of the day shift, find her place to fit in and use good interpersonal skills to build strong relationships.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

With Margaret coming to day shift, it should give her many opportunities to lead in my presence and allow her to learn/use her supervisory skills with immediate feedback for more effective use in the future.

October 13, 2020

To: Dispatcher Lacie Bjertness

Ref: Internal Investigation # 20-11

This letter is a summary and order of discipline resulting from Lacie Bjertness' involvement in a crash involving injury while off duty. This incident happened on the public right of way at the intersection of 93rd Ave SE and 13th St. SE in Ward County. As a result of this accident, the passenger (Lacie's cousin – Jesika Sullivan) was transported to Trinity ER for treatment of her injuries and Lacie drove to Shannon Lackey's residence where she was staying for the weekend and did not report the accident to law enforcement. The investigation started with Ward County Deputy Brasfield and was later taken over by ND Highway Patrol Trooper Chris Olson. Trooper Olson cited Lacie for failure to register an off-highway vehicle and driving without liability insurance. A warrant request for failure to report an accident involving injury was also sent to the Ward County State's Attorneys Office for consideration for Lacie. After speaking with the State's Attorney on October 13, 2020, it is their intent to petition the court to issue a warrant for Lacie for that offense, which is a class A misdemeanor.

During the early phases of the investigation by Ward County Deputy Brasfield, Lacie asked if they could just make a docket entry and say it happened on private property. Deputy Brasfield told her she would not do that as it would jeopardize her career with the Sheriff's Office. Deputy Brasfield told Lacie she needed to meet with her to establish if she had been drinking at the time of the crash and Lacie told her she was at Lt. Lackey's house and didn't have any paperwork with her for the ATV so she would meet with her later when she had it. She also said she hadn't been drinking at the time of the accident.

Upon finding out about this incident I assigned an internal investigation (#20-11) to Lt. Matt McLeod and asked that he conduct an administrative investigation to determine if there were any violations of policy based on the facts surrounding the case. Lt. McLeod conducted his investigation and provided his report to me on October 12th, 2020 (see attached).

Findings: The actions by Lacie Bjertness at the time of the accident and investigation led to violations of Minot Police Department Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct. I find the following policy violations are all sustained and are basis for the disciplinary action in this case.

- Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct
  - 322.4 – General Standards – Members shall conduct themselves, whether on or off-duty, in accordance with the United States and North Dakota Constitutions and all applicable laws, ordinances and rules enacted or established pursuant to legal authority.
  - 322.5.1 – Laws, Rules, and Orders
    (c) Violation of federal, state, local, or administrative laws, rules, or regulations.
  - 322.5.2 – Ethics
    (e) Any other failure to abide by the standards of ethical conduct.
  - 322.5.8 – Performance
    (i) Any act on or off-duty that brings discredit to this department.

Exhibit R-2

- 322.5.9 – Conduct
  (h) Criminal, dishonest, or disgraceful conduct, whether on or off-duty, that adversely affects the member's relationship with this department.
  (m) Any other on or off-duty conduct which any member knows or reasonably should know is unbecoming a member of this department, is contrary to good order, efficiency, or morale, or tends to reflect unfavorably upon this department or its members.

Discipline: As a result of these findings I am ordering the following for Dispatcher Lacie Bjertness:

- Dispatcher Bjertness will be suspended without pay for a period of 2 days (24 hours).
- A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Lacie Bjertness at the City of Minot Human Resource Office.

Any future violations of policy may result in progressive disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

Investigation Performed By:

Date of Complaint / Investigation:

Synopsis:

10/5/20

Case was assigned by command staff.

I contacted the S.O. to see if there was any bodycam footage of their response to the ER to speak with ER staff and the ATV passenger. Lt. Clemens advised there was not. I also contacted Sgt. Huston of the NDHP to find out which trooper was investigating the accident. He told me that Trooper Chris Olson was assigned.

I contacted Bjertness to stop in. We went over the notice of investigation. She was given a copy of the form as well as policy 1005 in its entirety. When we were finished, I took her to the chief's office as he intended to place her on leave pending the investigation.

I met with Lt. Lackey this afternoon. I served her notice of investigation. I had initially intended on speaking with her later, but we ended up discussing what she knew of the incident. She told me that she had agreed to let Bjertness stay at her home for the weekend. That evening, they had gone to the Moose Lodge, but then around 7:00pm Lt. Lackey and her husband went to The Spot, where they remained for the evening. She was not aware of where Bjertness and her friend went at that point. She told me they got a ride home around 2:00am. It was at that point she learned from Bjertness that there had been an accident. Bjertness told her she flipped an ATV at her cousin's place and her passenger was injured. I asked Lt. Lackey if it appeared that Bjertness was under the influence when she spoke to her, and she said she did not (Lt. Lackey did say that she herself felt a little intoxicated). Lt. Lackey was aware of rumors that were going around the PD about what had happened, but she said she couldn't say anything either way, as she had no knowledge of it.

10/6/20

I spoke briefly with PSAP Manager Margret Haugen today. I asked her when Bjertness had notified her of the accident. She said that it was sometime Saturday night. By that time, she said that she had already been notified by Captain Sundbakken and Deputy Brasfield had called her about it as well. Haugen did say that she told both Bjertness and Deputy Brasfield that she was aware of the matter and could not discuss it.

I called Deputy Brasfield. She told me that when she got to the ER with her trainee, they met with Jessica (couldn't remember the last name). She said that she had been there far close to 2 hours, but it had taken that long to get in. That was when she was told that the ATV had been driven by Bjertness and they had been on the roadway when the ATV flipped. I asked if she could tell whether Jessica had been drinking and she said that she couldn't tell (masks were being used). Jessica did tell her that she had not been drinking, but when Deputy Brasfield spoke with the nurse (Devyn Sumlin), she reported that Jessica told her she had been drinking.

Deputy Brasfield called Bjertness at about 0018 hours. They spoke about the matter and Bjertness told her that she had been driving but didn't have any of the paperwork she needed with her and that she was currently at Lt. Lackey's residence. Deputy Brasfield said that she contacted her sergeant, Kossan, with her concerns about a conflict. He instructed her to run with it anyway. She subsequently called Bjertness back. During that conversation, she said that Bjertness asked her if she could just say that it happened on private property and leave it as a docket entry. Deputy Brasfield refused and after that call, it was decided that they would request the highway patrol to work the accident. Deputy Brasfield told me that the SO can download that phone call after the fact and she will have their records office do so. She will get me the recording when its done.

See file for conversation.

I spoke to Devyn Sumlin on the phone today, she was the ER nurse that treated Jessica. I asked if she remembered Jesika telling her that she had been drinking. She remembered her saying something about having a few drinks. She said that there would not have been a tox screen done on Jessica as part of the treatment.

See file for conversation.

I spoke to Dispatcher Shanlya Van Hill today. I was made aware that she had received calls and/or texts from Bjertness regarding this matter. She told me that earlier in the evening she had seen a snapchat from Bjertness where she could tell that she was the passenger of what looked like an ATV. The next she heard from her was when Bjertness tried calling her around noon on the 3rd (Saturday). She was sleeping and did not answer the call. Later in the day she said there were text messages from Bjertness asking for answers to where some rumors had started. Van Hill read the texts to me over the phone. It was clear that Bjertness was upset about rumors and was trying to defend herself, Van Hill was trying to ease her but also told her that she had been told not to discuss the matter.

I asked Van Hill if she would allow me to photograph the messages. She told me that she will, and I said that I would let her know when I stop in during her shift. She will be given notice prior to that taking place.

I met with Van Hill this evening in my office. She showed me the text message thread between her and Bjertness and let me photograph the messages as well. She also showed a screenshot of a snapchat that was sent indicating that Bjertness would start a "shitstorm" of Van Hill was lying to her.

I also met with Jean Alves. She didn't really have much involvement aside from taking the call from the ER. She told me that she had been sent a screenshot from Deputy Brasfield. The message exchange was between Bjertness and Brasfield. Bjertness was asking why there was a rumor at the PD that she had been drinking. In speaking with both Van Hill and Alves, neither one indicated they knew of any rumors nor did they indicate they spoke of it to anyone outside of dispatch. Alves said that she tried to call Haugen to let her know, but did not get an answer, and that is when she emailed Sgt. Schoenrock.

I spoke with Trooper Chris Olson this morning, he was the trooper that investigated the crash. He told me that he met with Bjertness Saturday (3rd) evening regarding the accident. It was reported that the crash took place on the roadway at the intersection of 93rd Ave SE & 13th St SE. Information regarding the crash is contained in the crash report, which is in the file.

The explanation Bjertness gave for not reporting the accident was that she was too concerned for the well being of her cousin. It was noted however that she did not take her cousin to the hospital, or accompany her, instead she went to Lt. Lackey's residence and went to sleep. Bjertness did report to Trooper Olson that she had two beers with dinner earlier in the night at the Moose Lodge, around 1900-1930. The crash occurred at app. 2300 hours. Trooper Olson issued citations to Bjertness for Failing to Register Off-highway Vehicle and for No Liability Insurance. He also indicated that he was filing charges for leaving the scene of an injury accident.

See file for conversation.

I spoke to Jesika Sullivan on the phone today. She told me that earlier in the night she had gone to the Moose Lodge and Bjertness was already there. She said that Bjertness had one drink with dinner, but she doesn't know about what if any she had prior to her getting there. Jesika said they left the Moose and she went to her home, Bjertness came out there after dropping off Lt. Lackey. I asked her if they were drinking while at her house and she said they were not. After the accident she said they tried to get Bjertness to go to the hospital, but she refused to go. She said that her boyfriend was communicating with Bjertness while she was at the hospital. The next time she saw her was for lunch on Saturday (3rd).

See file for conversation.

I received the reports from Deputies Brasfield and Eisenzimmer today, they were added to the file. I also received the in-car video which contains the calls made to Bjertness by Deputy Brasfield. During the call Bjertness did try to deceive Deputy Brasfield on the location of the accident, when confronted with what her cousin had reported, she referred to it as a technicality and tried to convince Deputy Brasfield the since it was in front of the driveway that it should be private property. She also tried to get Deputy Brasfield to do a docket entry and say that it did in fact occur on private property.

See file for audio.

Bjertness came in for her interview today. I had her tell me about her night starting at the Moose Lodge. She did say that she ordered a bucket of beers but only had 2 while there. After leaving the Moose, she ended up picking up the side by side because her friend wanted a ride. Bjertness said they ended up getting it stuck somewhere near 55th St SE. Her cousin and her boyfriend came out to help them. After doing so, she said that she had a "sip" of beer that her cousin had with her.

Bjertness and her cousin took the side by side back to her cousin's residence and when they got there, that is when the accident happened. She told me her concern was to get her cousin to the hospital and that she did not want to go as she does not like going to hospitals. She told me that she didn't think to call law enforcement as she did not think it was needed.

We discussed Bjertness trying to get Deputy Brasfield to say the crash was on private property and leave it at that. She did admit that she was wrong to do so. During the call, Deputy Brasfield told Bjertness that she needed to see her to see if she had been drinking. Bjertness said OK and subsequently informed her that she was staying at Lt. Lackey's place. Deputy Brasfield told her that she would contact her sergeant and get back to her. When she called back, she said they would get a hold of her when they were on shift the next day. They never did meet with her to determine if she had been drinking.

See file for interview.

Summary & Applicable Policies:

-322.4 - General Standards, "Members shall conduct themselves, whether on-duty or off-duty, in accordance with the United States and North Dakota Constitutions and all applicable laws, ordinances, and rules enacted or established pursuant to legal authority": Bjertness operated a vehicle on a public roadway that was not licensed or insured. An accident occurred while on that roadway that resulted in injury to not only Bjertness, but her passenger. Bjertness did not notify law enforcement of the accident but went to the residence of Lt. Lackey while her passenger went to the ER for treatment. When contacted by Deputy Brasfield, Bjertness was deceptive about where the crash took place and tried to get Deputy Brasfield to report it falsely as being on private property. Bjertness did not notify her supervisor of what had taken place until the evening of the next day. Bjertness was cited for two violations surrounding the incident and has a warrant pending for leaving the scene of an injury accident.

-322.5.1(c) – Laws, Rules, and Orders, "Violation of federal, state, local or administrative laws, rules, or regulations": Bjertness operated an un-licensed, un-insured vehicle upon a public roadway in violation of ND Century Code (39-29-02 & 39-08-02(1)). Bjertness left the scene of an accident involving injury without giving proper notice. When she was contacted by deputies, she indicated that she didn't have the proper information with her.

-322.5.2 – Ethics, (a) "Using or disclosing one's status as a member of the Minot Police Department in any way that could reasonably be perceived as an attempt to gain influence or authority for non-department business or activity
(b) "The wrongful or unlawful exercise of authority on the part of any member for malicious purpose, personal gain, willful deceit or any other improper purpose."
(e) "Any other failure to abide by the standards of ethical conduct."
During a phone call between Deputy Brasfield and Bjertness, Bjertness asked Brasfield to say the crash happened on private property and just make a "docket entry" for the event. This would be a mis-use of her position with the police department for ill reasons.

-322.5.8(i) – Performance, "Any act on-duty or off-duty that brings discredit to this department"
Bjertness operated an un-licensed, un-insured vehicle upon a public roadway in violation of ND Century Code (39-29-02 & 39-08-02(1)). Bjertness left the scene of an accident involving injury without giving proper notice. When she was contacted by deputies, she indicated that she didn't have the proper information with her.

-322.5.9 – Conduct, (a) "Failure of any member to promptly and fully report activities on his/her part or the part of any other member where such activities resulted in contact with any other law enforcement agency or that may result in criminal prosecution or discipline under this policy"
Bjertness did not notify any supervisor of the incident until the next evening, when she called PSAP Manager Haugen, who had already been made aware. That call was not made until the evening of the 3rd.

Exhibit R-7

(h) "Criminal, dishonest, or disgraceful conduct, whether on-duty or off-duty, that adversely affects the member's relationship with this department"

During a phone call between Deputy Brasfield and Bjertness, Bjertness asked Brasfield to say the crash happened on private property and just make a "docket entry" for the event. This would be a mis-use of her position with the police department for ill reasons.

(m) "Any other on-duty or off-duty conduct which any member knows or reasonably should know is unbecoming a member of this department, is contrary to good order, efficiency or morale, or tends to reflect unfavorably upon this department or its members"

Bjertness operated an un-licensed, un-insured vehicle upon a public roadway in violation of ND Century Code (39-29-02 & 39-08-02(1)). Bjertness left the scene of an accident involving injury without giving proper notice. When she was contacted by deputies, she indicated that she didn't have the proper information with her.

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Lacie has been a dispatcher for 8 years and uses all of her accumulated knowledge to assist in both her own work, and while training new dispatchers. There aren't many call types she hasn't worked, and for those unusual ones that don't come around very often, she is able to draw on her own training and previous incidents to guide her in a proper response. She is a perfectionist, and demands attention to detail in herself, and in her trainees.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Lacie's biggest area of inconsistency is her performance on medical calls. She is perfectly capable of utilizing Pro QA in the proper manner, as evidenced in multiple High Compliance calls. However, her inconsistency, and tendancy to skip steps for expedience causes far more Non-Compliant calls that there should be. Lacie needs to slow down and follow all instructions in the Pro QA system. This ensures the best possible response level for the patients, and best information for our responders.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Lacie and the rest of the training department will be expanding the scope of service they provide to dispatch in the coming year. Exactly what that looks like is still to be determined, but it will include not only initial training of new dispatchers, but ongoing and refresher training for experienced dispatchers. Lacie will be a large part of shaping what that looks like, and creating the new training system.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

Lacie will work on expanding the training program for Minot Central Dispatch, for the trainees and existing dispatchers. She will formalize her classroom training into a consistent experience for the trainees.
Lacie will also work on increasing her average EMD QA score, eliminating Non-Compliant calls, and increasing her High Compliant calls.
Lacie will be responsible for content and messaging in the trainining, including topic choice.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

Lacie will utilize the Academy of Emergency Dispatchers website to hone her EMD skills, taking available training courses, and applying them to her calls. She will also develop multiple ongoing training modules for the existing dispatchers, in coordination with the other trainers, that can be rolled out on a monthly basis.

This annual performance review will become part of your City of Minot personnel file.

1. Skill and proficiency in carrying out assignments — 4-Highly Effe
   Brief explanation: Lacie understands all aspects of the job and shows this through the skills she uses to to perform the job each and every day. Lacie holds herself to a very high standard when it comes to completing tasks and she makes sure others are also aware of what is on dockets and information is passed on to others coming onto shift.
2. Possesses skills and knowledge to perform the job competently — 4-Highly Effe
   Brief explanation: Lacie has a great working knowledge of the dispatch environment, and is able to apply that knowledge in an efficient manner while working. She is a highly skilled dispatcher and able to perform all job duties effectively. She is meticulous about the work she does and the information in which she passes on to her trainees.
3. Skill at planning, organizing and prioritizing workload — 4-Highly Effe
   Brief explanation: Lacie is able to multi-task and perform her job duties; she follows the training and makes sure new hires checklists are completed and tasks are done to her specifications. She has a plan in place and she sees it through to the end.
4. Holds self accountable for assigned responsibilities; sees tasks through to completion in a timely manner — 3-Proficient
   Brief explanation: Lacie completes all work as it is assigned to her. She takes great pride in all of the tasks in which she is assigned and makes sure they are done in a timely manner.
5. Proficiency at improving work methods and procedures as a means toward greater efficiency — 4-Highly Effe
   Brief explanation: Lacie developed and implemented a classroom training session over the last year, training multiple classes of trainees, and improvong the methods with each group that came through. She is always coming up with new ways to improve not only the training program but also some of the every day challenges on the floor to make work smoother
6. Communicates effectively with supervisor, peers, and customers — 3-Proficient
   Brief explanation: Lacie is always available to anyone for questions, and is comfortable talking to anyone she needs to in the course of her duties. Lacie also was able to find a balance between being a friend and being a Sr/CTO Dispatcher with those in which she works closely with
7. Ability to work independently — 3-Proficient
   Brief explanation: Lacie is able to work well independently and on a 2 person shift. Lacie has been given an ongoing task this year and now has motivation to continually keep herself focused within the Center rather than being on her cell phone during 'down time' as much.

Performance Summary (attach additional pages as necessary)

1. List aspects of employee's performance that contribute to his or her effectiveness.

Lacie has a lot of knowledge and a great willingness to share it. She is always aware of what is going on with all calls in dispatch, and frequently points out items that need to be corrected or clarified to the dispatcher handling any particular item. Lacie is a book of knowledge and resources in which she is very willing to share with all those she comes in contact with. She is diligent in completing her DORs and communicating to the other trainers all information in regards to the trainees progress or issues that they may be having. She also brings many ideas and questions to the the Trainer Meetings so they are able to grow together as a Training Team, and all will have an input or say.

2. List aspects of employee's performance that require improvement for greater effectiveness.

Lacie can work on her medical calls, and following the EMD protocols more exactly. She has greatly improved but there is still room to get better. This year has been a challenge for all in going from our old card sets to the computerized system of Pro-QA.

3. In what way is the employee ready for increased responsibility? What additional training will he/she need to be successful?

Would like to have Lacie reach out to other agencies and set up trainings for not only our new hires but also for our Dispatchers who have been here for some time to get remedial / updated training. I feel Lacie would also be a great candidate to take on the role of overseeing all the training for the Center - keeping track of when they are needing to recertify and also when there are trainings that they should possibly attend to further their knowledge. This is an area I would like to discuss with Lacie and see if she would have an interest in possibly being a co-trainer in building a more advanced Training Program.

Goal Setting and Development Planning

4. List the employee's performance goals for the coming year:

Lacie should continue to lead by example and continue to train herself and prepare for the ever changing environment within the Dispatch Center. Be a positive role model. Continue to build on the training program along with the other CTOs. Lacie should continue to become more adapt to using the new Pro-QA system and breaking the bad habits we all formed over the years; needs to remember to ask the questions - each and everyone of them and follow the script for vebatim. There has been a lot of training in which Lacie and others have taken through the year: Pro-QA, Vesta, 800 MHz Radio Training, city training courses, and having to keep up on certifications of CPR, NCIC, and EMD.

5. List the employee's development goals for the coming year:

Would like to see Lacie continue to build on te training program, as well as eventually take over the tracking of training throughout the Center (aka Master Trainer). Assist in coming up with ways to boost the morale within the Center and a Welcoming of New Hires to the Center. Also would like Lacie to come up with a list of ideas in which she would like to implement into the training program or into the Center on-going training, as well as areas in which may be interested in training to build her knowledge and growth within the Center.

Exhibit 4-1

City of Minot

Police Department

August 31, 2023

To: Senior Dispatcher Shanlya Van Hill

Ref: Internal Case File #23-7.1

This is a summary and order of discipline resulting from the investigation of Shanlya Van Hill surrounding information about extended break periods. The break periods can vary between 30 and 45 minutes depending on the number of dispatchers working at the scheduled time. This investigation originated on June 9, 2023, and it took several weeks to compile information through the investigation.

Upon review of the information provided by Lt. Matt McLeod, I recognize the time abused by Van Hill to be extended break periods. In correspondence with Lt. McLeod, Dispatcher Van Hill commented to the effect that she did not think it was a bad thing to take a 45-minute break if that helped with morale in a stressful environment. On the surface, this seems reasonable, but I look at the fallout of this approach. Someone else is left covering the call volume with less assistance, so it only helps the morale of the one person taking the extended breaks. I also looked at the time periods which ranged from breaks that were 64 minutes to 80 minutes long. This is not a reasonable expectation.

Another email was sent by Dispatcher Van Hill to Lt. McLeod and me, wherein she said if there was a problem with it, her supervisor should have addressed it. Although this is true, the break times are set and are the responsibility of the employee. Any additional time would result in the need to take leave, which should be pre-approved by a supervisor.

There were 4 periods of time that resulted in excess break time for Dispatcher Van Hill. Depending on the break variation of 30 or 45 minutes, led to the loss of work time from Van Hill of 95 to 155 minutes in total. Additionally, Lt. McLeod could only audit a small window of time due to the lack of saved video within the police department.

Additionally, during the 2023 ND State Fair, dispatchers were advised that no time off would be granted during the fair. On July 25th, Dispatcher Van Hill contacted Lead Dispatcher Jenna Hurt and asked if it was busy because she wanted to come in late. Jenna said it was busy and even explained the types of issues they were responding to, and Van Hill still took 3 hours off and reported to work at 2200 instead of 1900 as scheduled. This, paired with the extended breaks, shows your lack of empathy for those who are relying on you to help take calls in the center.

Lt. Matt McLeod provided his summary of investigation to me for review, and I find that the following polices are all sustained and are the basis for the disciplinary action in this case.

- Policy 322 – Standards of Conduct
    - 322.3 DIRECTIVES AND ORDERS
      Members shall comply with lawful directives and orders from any department supervisor or person in a position of authority, absent a reasonable and bona fide justification.
    - 322.5.9 CONDUCT
      (m) Any other on- or off-duty conduct which any member knows or reasonably should know is unbecoming a member of this department, is contrary to good order, efficiency or morale, or tends to reflect unfavorably upon this department or its members.

- Policy 1011 – Meal Periods and Breaks
    - 1011.1.1 MEAL PERIODS
      Licensed employees and dispatchers shall remain on-duty subject to call during meal breaks. All other employees are not on-call during meal breaks unless directed otherwise by a supervisor. Uniformed patrol and traffic officers shall request clearance from Minot Central Dispatch prior to taking a meal period. Uniformed officers shall take their breaks within the City limits and shall monitor their radios unless on assignment outside of the City. The time spent for the meal periods shall not exceed the authorized time allowed.

Discipline: As a result of these policy violations, I am ordering the following for Senior Dispatcher Shanlya Van Hill:

- Dispatcher Van Hill will be suspended for a period of one day (12 hours) without pay.
- A copy of this letter will be placed in the personnel file of Shanlya Van Hill at the City of Minot Human Resources Office.

John Klug, Chief of Police — Date: 9/12/2023

I have been given a copy of this disciplinary decision.

Re: Internal Investigation

Dear Mr. Stewart:

Thank you for selecting Clark Hill to represent the City of Minot (the Client) in this matter. This letter and the attached Standard Terms of Engagement set forth the basis on which our firm will provide legal services. If we provide services before a signed copy of this letter is returned to us, those services are provided under these terms.

Whom We Represent. Our client in this matter will be the City of Minot. Our representation of the Client in this matter does not give rise to a lawyer-client relationship between the firm and any of the Client's officers, directors, owners, employees, subsidiaries, affiliates, or other persons or entities unless we specifically agree in writing.

Scope of Engagement. We agree to represent the Client with regard to an internal investigation into in the police department. We agree that our engagement is limited to performance of legal services related to this matter and, unless we agree otherwise in writing, we are not undertaking to represent the Client or its interests in any other matter. We will not provide business, investment, or accounting advice and understand that the Client will rely on others for such advice.

Our engagement does not include any advice or other legal services relating to federal or state securities laws, including appearing or practicing before the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) or the Client's disclosure obligations under such laws, and we understand that the Client will not, without our prior written consent, include documents or information we provide to it in any filings with federal or state securities regulators, including the SEC.

Fees. Our fees will be based on the amount of time spent by the professionals working on the matter and the hourly rates established for each. The firm's standard hourly billing rates for the lawyers I expect to be working on this engagement currently range from $350 to $750, and my standard hourly rate is $450. The hourly rates charged for paralegals range from $250 to $350. Our billing rates are subject to change from time to time.

Retainer. Our representation will not commence until we receive a retainer in the amount of $10,000 to serve as security for our final fees and expenses. These funds will remain in our client trust account for the duration of this representation, and any remaining balance will be returned to the Client upon termination of this representation.

HIPAA. We do not anticipate that it will be necessary for you to supply us any information relating to patients that is protected under federal or state privacy laws. In the future, if you deem it advisable or necessary to provide us copies of patient records or any other information that identifies one or more patients (such as their names, addresses, Social Security numbers, or device serial numbers) and is protected under federal or state privacy laws, please contact us before you do so. As required by HIPAA, we will send you a Business Associate Agreement that complies with the requirements of both the HIPAA Privacy Rule and Security Rule and protects your disclosure of such information to us.

Choice of Law. The relationship between the Client and the firm, including the validity, construction, and enforceability of this engagement letter, shall be governed in all respects by the law of Illinois, without regard to conflicts of laws principles.

If you agree to the terms of this engagement as stated above and in the attached Standard Terms of Engagement, please sign and return a copy to me. We look forward to working with you.

Very truly yours,

CLARK HILL

STANDARD TERMS OF ENGAGEMENT

Entire Agreement. The engagement letter and these Standard Terms of Engagement constitute the entire understanding and agreement between the client identified in the engagement letter (the Client) and this firm regarding our representation of the client in the matter described in the engagement letter. Unless otherwise agreed, they supersede any prior understandings and agreements, written or oral, and any billing requirements, outside counsel guidelines, or letters submitted to us. If any provision of the engagement letter or these Standard Terms of Engagement is held by a court or other arbitrator to be invalid, void, or unenforceable, the remainder of the provisions shall remain in full force and effect. The engagement letter and these Standard Terms may be amended only by a written agreement between the client and the firm. The Client should review this document carefully and contact us promptly with any questions. The Client should retain this document in its file.

Client Rights and Responsibilities. The Client has the right to (A) expect competent representation by the firm; (B) determine the purposes to be served by the legal representation, so long as those purposes are legal and do not violate the firm's obligations to the profession or to the judiciary; (C) be kept reasonably informed about the status of the matter and have the firm respond promptly to reasonable requests for information; and (D) terminate the representation at any time, with or without cause, subject to the obligation for payment of legal services provided and costs incurred by the firm.

The Client has the responsibility to (A) pay the firm as provided by this agreement; (B) be candid and cooperative with the firm and any court or other tribunal; (C) keep us informed with complete and accurate information, documents, communications, and other materials relevant to the subject matter of our representation or otherwise requested by us. In a litigation matter, the Client also has the responsibility to make its officers and employees available to meet with firm personnel and to attend trials, hearings, depositions, and other proceedings, and to commit the appropriate personnel and sufficient resources to meet the Client's discovery obligations.

The Client may not (A) demand that the firm use offensive tactics or treat anyone involved in the legal process with anything but courtesy and consideration; (B) demand any assistance which violates the Rules of Professional Conduct; or (C) pursue or insist upon a course of action which the firm reasonably believes to be illegal, fraudulent, offensive, or unwise. The firm may terminate this agreement for reasons permitted under the Rules of Professional Conduct.

Because we need to be able to contact the Client at all times regarding this representation, the Client agrees to inform us, in writing, of any changes in the Client's name, address, telephone number, contact person, email address, state of incorporation, and other relevant information regarding the Client or its business. Whenever we need instructions or authorization to proceed with legal work for the Client, we will contact the Client at the most recent business address we have received. If the Client affiliates with, acquires, is acquired by, or merges with another company, it agrees to provide us with sufficient notice to permit us to withdraw as its lawyers if we determine that such affiliation, acquisition, or merger creates a conflict of interest, or that it is not in the best interests of the firm to represent the new entity.

Whom We Represent. The person or entity whom we represent is the person or entity identified in our engagement letter. We do not represent any affiliates or related parties of that person or entity, such as owners, parent companies, subsidiaries, sibling entities, or other affiliates; or employees, officers, directors, shareholders of a corporation, partners of a partnership, members of an association or limited liability company, and/or other constituents of a named client unless our engagement letter expressly provides otherwise. Accordingly, our representation in this matter will not give rise to a conflict of interest in the event we represent other clients adverse to an affiliate or related person or entity in other matters.

Consent to Future Conflicts. As you know, Clark Hill is a large law firm and represents many other companies and individuals in many other matters. Those companies and individuals interact with one another in many different respects. Thus, during the time we are representing the Client, we may also represent other clients—including clients who are direct competitors of the Client or may otherwise have business interests that are adverse to the Client's interests—in disputes or transactions adverse to the Client that are not substantially related to this representation.

Based on the foregoing, the Client agrees that our representation of it in this matter will not disqualify our firm from in the future opposing it in litigation, transactions, or other legal matters that are not substantially related to the subject matter of this representation, and the Client consents to any conflict of interest with respect to those representations. The Client understands and agrees that the firm is not obligated to notify it when we undertake such matters that may be adverse to the Client. We agree, however, not to use any proprietary or other confidential information of a nonpublic nature concerning the Client acquired by us as a result of our representation of the Client to its disadvantage in any litigation or other matter in which we are opposed to it. Additionally, the Client agrees that we may identify the Client as a client and disclose the nature of our engagement(s) to other clients and potential clients for the limited purpose of seeking waivers of conflicts of interest. We agree, however, that the Client's consent to this disclosure shall not apply in any instance in which the revealed information would compromise the Client's attorney-client privilege. If you later withdraw or modify this consent in any respect, you agree and consent to our withdrawal from our representation of you pursuant to these terms and the applicable Rules of Professional Conduct.

Advice About Possible Outcomes. From time to time, either at the outset or during the course of our representation, we may express opinions or beliefs concerning the matter or various courses of action and the results that might be anticipated. Any such statement made by any lawyer of our firm is an expression of opinion only, based on information available to us at the time, and should not be construed as a promise or guarantee.

In-Firm Privilege. From time to time, issues arise relating to legal ethics or our duties under the professional conduct rules that apply to lawyers. These might include, e.g., conflict of interest issues, and could even include issues raised because of a dispute between us and a client over the handling of a matter. Normally, when such issues arise, we seek the advice of our firm counsel, who is an expert in such matters. We consider such consultations to be attorney-client privileged communications between firm personnel and the counsel for the firm. A few courts, however, have held that under some circumstances such communications involve a conflict of interest between the client and our firm and that our consultation with firm counsel may not be privileged, unless we either withdraw from the representation of the client or obtain the client's consent to consult with firm counsel.

We believe that it is in our clients' interest, as well as our firm's interest, that when legal ethics or related issues arise during a representation, we obtain expert analysis of our obligations. Accordingly, the Client agrees that if we determine in our own discretion during the course of the representation that it is either necessary or appropriate to consult with our internal or outside counsel, we have the Client's consent to do so and that our representation of the Client shall not, thereby, waive any attorney-client privilege that our firm may have to protect the confidentiality of our communications with counsel.

Termination of Engagement. The Client may at any time terminate our representation upon written notice to the firm. We reserve the right to withdraw from our representation as required or permitted by the applicable rules of professional conduct upon written notice to the Client. If we terminate the engagement, we will take reasonable steps to protect the Client's interests in this matter, and the Client agrees to take all steps necessary to free us of any obligation to perform further, including executing any documents necessary to complete our withdrawal. If permission for withdrawal is required by a court or other adjudicator, we will promptly request such permission, and the Client agrees not to oppose our request.

The Client's termination or our withdrawal will not relieve the Client of its obligation to pay for services rendered, including work in progress and incomplete at the time of termination, and to pay for all expenses incurred on behalf of the Client through the termination or withdrawal date.

Conclusion of Representation; Retention and Disposition of Documents. Absent express notice of termination, our representation of the Client will conclude with respect to any particular matter for which we have been engaged upon completion of our work on that matter. At the Client's written request, its original documents and property will be returned to the Client, although the firm reserves the right to retain copies of any such documents as it deems appropriate. Our files and documents pertaining to the matter will be retained by the firm. For various reasons, including the minimization of unnecessary storage expenses, and consistent with professional conduct rules, we reserve the right to destroy or otherwise dispose of any such documents or other materials retained by us at the end of the firm's retention period, which is ten years, without further notice to the Client.

Post-Engagement Matters. The Client is engaging the firm to provide legal services in connection with a specific matter. After completion of the matter, changes may occur in the applicable laws or regulations that could impact the Client's future rights and liabilities. Unless the Client engages us after completion of the matter to provide additional legal advice on issues arising from the matter, the firm has no continuing obligation to advise the Client on such issues or on future legal developments, including monitoring deadlines that may arise with respect to the matter.

Costs. We will include in our statements separate charges for services, such as copying, messenger and delivery service, computer research, travel, international telephone, and fax charges. Such expenses may also include filing fees, deposition costs, process servers, court reporters, and witness fees. The Client authorizes us to retain any investigators, consultants, or experts necessary in our judgment to represent the Client's interests in the matter. We will usually advance costs up to $100, and require that our clients directly pay, or deposit with us funds to pay, expenses over $100.

Estimates. We are often requested to estimate the amount of fees and costs likely to be incurred in connection with a particular matter. But fees and costs are usually not predictable. Accordingly, we make no commitment concerning the maximum fees and costs that will be necessary to resolve or complete the matter. Any mention by us of fees and costs is only an estimate. It is also expressly understood that the Client's obligation to pay the firm's fees and costs is in no way contingent on the ultimate outcome of the matter.

Payment of Invoices. Normally, we will send monthly invoices for work performed and expenses incurred during the previous month. Payment is due promptly upon receipt of our invoice. Any balance unpaid after 30 days of the date of the invoice will accrue interest at the rate of seven percent (7%) per annum. Payments will be applied first to costs and expenses, then to accrued interest, if any, and then to the unpaid fees.

We will give the Client notice if the Client's account becomes delinquent. If the delinquency continues and the Client does not arrange satisfactory payment terms, we may withdraw from the representation and pursue collection of the account. We may also request permission of any court in which we have filed an appearance on the Client's behalf to allow us to withdraw as the Client's counsel, and the Client agrees that non-payment of our fees is a valid basis for our request to withdraw. To the extent collection of the Client's account becomes necessary, the Client agrees that, in addition to any unpaid balance and interest thereon, we will be entitled to recover all costs and expenses of collection, including reasonable attorney fees.

Retainer. We reserve the right to apply retainer funds to any delinquent payment due from the Client and to discontinue this representation until the Client replenishes the retainer. While a retainer is on deposit in our trust account, the Client grants us a security interest in such funds. Client retainers are deposited in a pooled trust account. By law, interest earned on the pooled account is paid to a charitable foundation.

Trial Advance. In a litigation matter, once a trial or hearing date is set, we may require the Client to pay all amounts then owed to us and to deposit with us the fees we estimate will be incurred in preparing for and completing the trial or arbitration, as well as jury fees and arbitration fees likely to be assessed. If the Client fails to timely pay any additional deposit requested, we will have the right to withdraw from the representation. If permission of the court or other adjudicator is required, the Company agrees not to oppose any motion to withdraw.

Electronic Communications. It is likely that during the course of this engagement both the Client and the firm will use electronic devices and Internet services (which may include unencrypted email, mobile phones, voice over Internet, electronic data/document websites, and other technology) to communicate and transfer documents. Although the use of this technology involves some degree of risk that third parties may access confidential communications, you agree that the benefits of using this technology outweigh the risk of accidental disclosure. Nevertheless, just as we have policies and systems in place designed to make our electronic communications with you reasonably secure, it is equally important that you communicate with us in a manner that reasonably protects the confidentiality of information we share and any attorney-client privilege that may apply to our communications. This means that you should not use any computers or other electronic devices, networks, or websites that are owned, controlled, or may be accessed by others, including but not limited to, an employer, a hotel, library, or Internet café, or a shared home computer, to send or receive confidential information to or from us. Any device you use should be password protected and not accessible for use by any third party.

   3.1. EMPLOYMENT INVESTIGATION

   RECOMMENDED ACTION
   Staff recommends the City Council consider and approve a retainer agreement with a third-party investigator to investigate allegations of a hostile work environment, inconsistent discipline, staff confidence in leadership, staff retention, staff morale, and staff concerns of retaliation at the Minot Police Department and Minot Central Dispatch.

   While all three available investigators are qualified to conduct the investigation, the City Manager's recommendation is that Yvette Heintzelman's experience conducting investigations of police departments makes her the most specifically qualified.

   It is also recommended that the City Council approve the proposed budget amendment on first reading, authorize the Mayor to sign any documents necessary to retain the investigator, including authorization to remit any necessary financial retainers prior to second reading.

So, you can speak with both or wait and speak with the investigator. Just let me know what you would like to do.

Mr. Roach,

Thank you for your willingness to speak to me. How soon would you like to talk? If you are available, I could make sometime today work. Tomorrow I am available after 5pm. Unfortunately, I leave early Wednesday morning for a work trip to Washington DC and won't be back until late Friday night/early Saturday morning. Hi Mr. Stewart, id like to set up a time to come speak with you in regards to chief Klug. I had been asked previously to come forward with my issues a few years ago by other members of our department but felt like I could potentially be retaliated against for coming forward. I would now like to speak with you personally in regards to this.

Good evening sir,

I am sure you are receiving a lot of emails and/or calls regarding the recent post about Chief Klug. That is actually why I am emailing you, I did also call and leave a message. I am sorry to leave you 2 messages, but I have tried to have a voice for over 4 years regarding Klug. I am a former police officer with the City of Minot, something I was so proud of. Unfortunately that changed in 2020, due to Klug.

I would absolutely love to sit and speak with you, talk on the phone, or exchange emails so I can finally tell someone other than my family what happened. What Klug did not only affected myself, but also affected my family. It went beyond, or rather below professional and was downright immoral.

I do hope I get the chance to at least provide my side of the event(s).

Thank you again,

Sgt. Bambenek,

Thank you for reaching out. I would be happy to listen to whatever you are willing to share. To answer your two questions, yes I would continue the investigation if Chief Klug was no longer Chief of the department. Given what I am hearing I am committed to identifying and resolving the challenges the department is experiencing. Secondly, yes I am aware of the 2023 evaluation issues. I do believe performance evaluations are critical to having a healthy organization, however, with the current concerns of retaliation and lack of trust I believe committing to not doing them this year will help members of the department feel more comfortable opening up about their concerns.

Let me know when you would like to meet.

Subject: John Klug- pending investigation

Mr. Harold Stewart-City Manager of Minot,

I am Jason Bambenek a patrol sergeant currently assigned to night shift. I have been with the agency for just under 20 years and have been in law enforcement for 25 years.

I am writing a short email in regard to wanting to meet with someone prior to this investigation being completed.

I will compile everything on paper and then will direct my discussion to that as a starting point to make sure I don't miss anything pertinent.

One question I have is if John Klug was to separate for any reason, will the investigation be completed regardless?

While I believe the investigation is a good start, from my perspective the problems that have evolved around the police department run deeper than him.

Last, I have a comment. You mentioned that evaluations will be on hold for the near future for 2024 until investigation is complete. I may mis-speak here; however, most if not the complete patrol division has received an evaluation for 2023. As a patrol supervisor we completed our tasks for the evaluations in early December of 2023. I was surprised no-one brought this up at last week's meeting during Q & A.

I am aware that the investigations division received their evaluations in a timely manner. There're absolutely no circumstances that this can be acceptable. Captain Justin Sundheim is the Operations Commander. Mr. Stewart are you aware of this flagrant mishap?

Thanks for your time,

Jason Bambenek

MEMORANDUM

TO: Harold Stewart

FROM: Yvette Heintzelman

DATE: December 16, 2024

CLIENT MATTER: City of Minot, ND

SUBJECT: Supplemental Notes to Investigation Report

On November 13, 2024, I submitted an investigation report which included a summary of the interviews I or Lidia Koelbel had with individuals as part of the investigation.

In the original report, there was a section entitled "Interviews of Current and Former Employees of the Police Department and Dispatch." This section was a non-verbatim summary of the interviews. This section was included because the summaries were subject to disclosure under the interpretation of the transparency laws in the State of North Dakota. These were not verbatim statements but summaries of the substance of the discussions.[1]

After submission of the report, several individuals addressed what they described as errors in or desired clarifications of certain information they disclosed in their respective interviews and, upon the invitation of the City Manager, delivered to the City supplements and/or corrections to the summaries of their interviews. Those submissions are attached to this memorandum. I have reviewed the submissions. They do not require revisions to the substance of the report or the recommendations.

To the extent any changes should be made, those changes are as follows:

Sean Christie summary: Margaret told Casey Visocsky that Nicole was pregnant. Nicole is married to Andrew Mathieson, not Casey Visocsky. Changed the husband's name to Andrew Mathieson.

Chief John Klug summary: Add the word "not" to Chief Klug's summary, i.e. Chief Klug did not complete his one-on-one interviews.

Jenna Bjork summary: Remove her comments regarding Jesse Miller and Brittany

Amanda Wright summary: Remove Deputy Van Pelt's name from the report.

Encl.

[1] The disclosure laws also required disclosure of the underlying information 75 days after the complaint was filed on August 26, 2024. Clark Hill was hired on September 27, 2024.

Subject: Report Inaccuracies

Harold, just following up on what I brought up at the meeting this morning, regarding not trusting the investigator. I know I hadn't seen the report, but now that it is out, I read my own interview summary, and it is almost completely wrong. Obviously, the way I was treated in that meeting caused me to believe that would be the case, which is what I was trying to say. I appreciate you putting yourself out there in front of us all, for what was obviously very tough news to deliver. And I respect that you wanted me to give it a chance.

To make this easier, I'll include a summary of what it was reported I said, vs what I actually did. I'll put my own corrections in bold. There are some glaring factual differences. I will not be reading the rest of the report, because I cannot trust what was said, and I don't want it to color my impressions of coworkers or command staff. (Incidentally, I have heard from several others that were interviews, and they are all very distraught over the inaccuracies in their own statements).

Sean Christie On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Sean Christie. Christie is a dispatcher who began working for the City in 2023. (I started in 2013. Maybe this was a typo) Christie believes there have been issues in the Dispatch Department that have existed for a long time. He has been a dispatcher for eight years and believes that he "is the reason the dispatch continues to operate." (I have been a dispatcher for 11 ½ years, and a Lead Dispatcher for 8) By that, he means that there is a lot of dissatisfaction in the department, particularly concerning the 12-hour shifts and how many people they have lost since COVID. (Those were among my issues, but not even close to the most important, so the 'particularly' immediately skews what I was saying) The current PSAP leader is Margaret Haugen who, he believes is not good at her position. He describes her as a cartoon supervillain, who is completely untrustworthy and lies to the dispatchers. Because she's untrustworthy, she causes a lot of problems between the dispatchers. By way of example, he recalled the situation with a dispatcher who is not adhering to the dress code. Another dispatcher reported it to Margaret and rather than behaving like a supervisor and correcting the dispatcher's attire, Margaret identified the dispatcher that made the complaint. This resulted in animosity between the two dispatchers. (This is almost completely wrong, so I have to give the entire story - Jackie Lausch came in on an overtime shift on a weekend. She mentioned to me that her pants weren't in dress code, but Margaret authorized it. I honestly wouldn't have noticed, and it didn't bother me anyway, so I just said "sounds good". The next week I had a meeting with Margaret, and she brought up casually that Nicole Rivera complained about Jackie being out of dress code. I was shocked, because that was very out of character for Nicole. I said I would talk to her about it. Margaret immediately backtracked and said that, well, she didn't complain, but she glared at Jackie, and Jackie could tell she was going to complain, so she came to Margaret first. I replied asking why it was being brought up, since there was no complaint? She said that there only wasn't a complaint because Jackie saw it first. The next time Jackie and I worked together, I asked Jackie about the situation. She said she was also wanting to talk to me, because Margaret told her I complained about her being out of dress code. Jackie was very hurt, because she didn't understand why I wouldn't just talk to her when she brought it up, and why I couldn't just talk to her, since I was a lead. I was shocked, as I definitely didn't complain, and would have just talked to her if I had an issue. After talking with Nicole, she said that not only did she not complain, she hadn't noticed Jackie wasn't in dress code, and couldn't have cared less, even if she would have noticed. The entire story was fabricated, and seemed designed to cause an issue where one didn't exist). Christie says that Margaret has no sense of confidentiality. She talks to one dispatcher about another lead dispatcher which creates animosity between the individuals. Sean, Beth, Lacie, and Shanlya all work four 12-hour shifts. They all believe that Margaret talks to everyone about everybody else. The dispatchers have a deal among themselves. They will always confirm with the actual dispatcher when Margaret says somebody made a comment or complaint. They are high-pressure jobs that are subject to tribalism. It's easy to create fractions amongst the departments.

He believes that Margaret uses gossip as a way manage the department on a daily basis . He doesn't think that discipline is being handled correctly. One of the more egregious situations is with Nicole. She came from Orange County Florida and had six years of experience. Margaret hired her and was very supportive. Nicole became pregnant with a new boyfriend and wanted to switch days. She told Margaret, but said that she did not want the issue of her pregnancy to spread around the department. Nicole was asking to switch days to handle her pregnancy. That same day, Margaret told Christy that Nicole was pregnant. She also told other people in the apartment that Nicole was pregnant. Nicole married one of the deputies, Casey Visocsky. Margaret told Casey that Nicole was pregnant. Nicole was only in her second trimester. Nicole was very upset about Margaret's breach of confidentiality. Ultimately, Nicole received an apology email from Margaret, but no meeting. This is after Nicole complained to Sundheim about Margaret disclosing her private information. (This, again, is almost totally incorrect, so I have to expand quite a bit. Nicole discovered she was pregnant while working night shift with myself and Ashleigh Lonis. She did not have many physical symptoms associated with pregnancy, but could not physically stay awake past 1 or 2 AM. There was an open day/afternoon position at the time, which I was going to move to, since no one else wanted it. Nicole and I talked, and decided it would be a great option for her. We were both very concerned bringing it to Margaret, because of previous confidentiality issues, but it was necessary. I talked to Margaret that morning and advised her of the situation (the opposite of what the report says). She seemed very understanding, and approved the move immediately. Nicole talked to her, either later that day or the next, and was moved to the other shift. It was made VERY clear that Nicole wanted this to be private information. She was in her second month, not second trimester. She was still very much in the danger zone where most miscarriages can occur, and she didn't want the pregnancy becoming common knowledge, in case the worst happened. Margaret agreed, but immediately disregarded that. During the next week, she told deputy Casey Visocsky, dispatcher Jackie Lausch, and dispatcher Lacie Bjertness. None of whom had any reason to know, and none of whom asked. Margaret never even admitted to telling Jackie and Lacie, even when she 'apologized'. Also, Nicole was dating deputy Andrew Mathieson, the father of the baby. She did not marry Visocsky. She married Mathieson earlier THIS year, and I'm pretty sure I am accurate in that, as she is my real life best friend, and I was a part of the wedding)

Christie says everybody talks to him. All 10 dispatchers say they have problems with Margaret. The dispatch center is very broken. Margaret reports to Sundheim and every dispatcher reports to Margaret. Recently, she sent a big email to everyone appreciating everyone and trying to check in, because her office should be a safe place where people can come and talk to her. The dispatchers had difficulty taking her seriously because of her past behavior. He said that they did a 360 evaluation online, but she got the results. (This wasn't a complaint from me, she was supposed to get the results, it was the whole point) She received no discipline for all of the complaints against her. Chief Klug has been coming to dispatch to try and address some of the issues. Chief Klug takes the lead in meetings starting in 2023.

Ultimately, Christie spoke with Sundheim after the meeting who indicated that they need to know everything that is going on in the department. It has gotten better. (It absolutely has not, and I never said this. I said that she improved for about 3 months after the 360, and appeared genuinely interested in changing. But she went back to how she used to be, and things were worse in dispatch than they had ever been) Margaret needed a wake-up call. Margaret is doing okay on the administrative part of the job and they have hired another individual to manage personnel issues. He believes that Margaret got her job because of politics, because she has been there so long.

They are so short-staffed on the dayshift. They have 37 agencies for which they dispatch Police and Fire and take and dispatch calls. Christie was coming in on his days off to cover for dispatchers taking lunch. He is no longer able to come in on overtime to cover for lunch. (This leaves out extremely relevent information, and the only reason for bringing it up. I don't have a problem with the fast that sometimes we don't get lunches, it's the nature of the job. However, the other night shift hadn't been able to take any breaks at all, due to being short handed. I got approval from Margaret to come in on my off days to work for 1-2 hours so they could take lunches (the extra time was for travel to home, plus time getting logged in/out and other delays). After a couple months, Margaret told me that Captain Sundheim said I could no longer get paid overtime for this, because it was way over budget. I did not speak with Captain Sundheim, but this was a blatant lie, as he has never been concerned with budget to that point, and is focused on doing what is needed. Margaret said I was only allowed to gain Comp time for the lunch coverage. I had no interest in that, as I wasn't even able to use my existing bank of vacation, due to coverage shortages. I told her I was just going to volunteer my time. This continued for a couple of years, during which I worked 350-400 hours of unpaid time to assist other dispatchers. Margaret aware of this the entire time. I did not track these hours, so that is only an approximate).

From other interviews, I learned that dispatchers are allowed to take lunch and breaks, but they cannot leave the building. If they need to leave the building and go somewhere, they need to take paid time off. If they are going for a walk around the building, they take a radio and return if it is an emergency. The latter incident does not require PTO time. A dispatcher is allowed to go to a restaurant and pick up lunch for those who are working and want to order lunch without using PTO. Dispatchers are only required to punch out when they leave for extended periods which should not occur as they should schedule their errands on days that they are not working to avoid extended lunches and leaving the building.

Yvette,

I was retained by ND Trooper Casey Visocsky who used to work at the County as a deputy. He was incorrectly listed in the report as having sex with a woman (Nicole) and marrying her, which is patently incorrect. This has caused quite some stir at his house and with his wife.

We believe you confused him with Andrew Mathieson. This correction needs to be made ASAP.

Let me know if this needs anything further. Please confirm when this is corrected on the City's hyperlinked document.

November 23rd 2024

To who it may concern;

My name is Jesse Miller, I am a current resident of Minot, as well as a previous employee of the Minot Fire Department. I resigned from the City Fire Dept. April of 2022 to pursue employment elsewhere. Recently I was made aware of an investigation being opened on the City of Minot Police Chief. On November 22nd 2024 I was told that I was mentioned in the official report found on the City of Minot public website where I am referred to as Jenna Bjorks 'firefighter boyfriend'. The purpose of this letter is to deny the claim made by Jenna Bjork, who I had been in a relationship with from 2018-2021.

The claim I am refuting with this letter can be found on page 107 of the memorandum released pertaining to the investigation, in the last paragraph on the page. The statement I am addressing from said report, writes that I had sexual relations with another city employee, Brittany Thurston/Rust while I was in a relationship with Ms. Bjork. This statement made by Ms. Bjork is not true. The relationship between Brittany and I has been chaste from the beginning dating prior to my employment with the City of Minot and my time in a relationship with Jenna Bjork. During the relationship with Ms. Bjork she had addressed the friendship between Brittany and I multiple times and each time I would assure her nothing romantic or sexual had occurred between Brittany and myself. Each time these accusations were brought to me by Jenna during our relationship, I was belittled, humiliated, called a liar. During arguments between Jenna and I, she had mentioned multiple times to me how no one would believe anything I said because of her status within her career, additionally mentioning her gender and looks alone could get her what she wanted.

I whole heartedly believe the statement made by Ms. Bjork involving Brittany and myself was done so to publicly humiliate and defame Brittany. I have no explanation as to why this claim was made into the report. I do however hope you read this letter and understand this is a false claim made with no evidence, presumably intended to hurt someone, their family, and further spread distrust from the public towards the civil government of Minot North Dakota. Thank you for your time.

Ms. Summers,

Thank you for sharing your concerns. I also am sensitive to the concerns of retaliation. Before I make the decision regarding if Chief Klug returns, I will extensively review all materials provided in the report, including testimony. This is why I believe it to be imperative we all have confidence in the accuracy of the information provided in the report. As I have stated to all current staff, I will not tolerate any retaliation regarding this matter and will personally review all promotional and disciplinary actions before implementation to ensure retaliation is not occurring.

Mr. Stewart,

I came forward because so many others after me suffered similar and worse mental health conditions a well as an end due to those conditions.
I am responding to you today because of the fear I have for retaliation, that I am certain many others have a well.
This fear comes from the history of some of these accusations, facts, experiences, and my own personal experiences.
I have seen terminations, demotions, and outright refusal to promote an officer in some cases.
While I know my suggestion of removing the rank of Chief of Police from this individual ultimately falls upon the city counsel members, such as yourself; I urge you all to take a hard look at the interviews attached to that report. I further implore that members like yourself also take a look at the recurring theme of inherent concern addressed by every single individual interviewed.

Thank you for sending this correspondence, I await your final decision on this matter that has impacted all of us.

Respectfully

Barbara McPeak

On October 8, 2014, at 1:30 p.m. CT, Koelbel interviewed Barbara McPeak via Zoom. McPeak is a former dispatcher and PSAP Manager. She is now a retired employee. She retired on January 30, 2020, and returned to work for another two years as a dispatcher. She applied for the Assistant PSAP position to handle the training, scheduling, and problems in the dispatch center (training, recruiting, and getting people to position). The first Assistant PSAP was killed in an accident. Second Assistant PSAP, Juana, went back to Bismarck. McPeak has over 30 years in the Police Department and four years as PSAP Manager. And additionally worked approximately 2 years part time.

She retired at 76% at the highest two years by the time she was done with all.

She would come in to cover lunch breaks three to four times during the week, ~~never~~ rarely on the weekends ,for two years, starting a month after she retired. ~~Then she stopped being asked.~~ It had been a while since she had worked and then ~~-~~She went on vacation in November and then came back ~~in November two years later, in 2022,~~ she told Margaret that she felt she (Barb) ~~that Margaret~~ was not doing as well as she should since she was not working very often. Then she quit working part-time.

McPeak applied in May 2024. She feels there was no reason why she should not have gotten the position. She said she wrote the training manual and guides for the Dispatch Center. She wanted to try to help get things back on track and mold someone to be the NEXT Assistant PSAP manager.

She was very disappointed ~~upset~~ that she was not selected for the Assistant PSAP position, Barb was more frustrated in the way she was told she did not get the job. With her years of experience and relationships with the interviewers, having re-written the policy manual and the training manuals, and having the track record of retaining employees she thought the Chief could have had the common courtesy to let her know himself. She went to speak to the councilman, because she felt she should not be treated that way. She is 60 and has a good five years to give. One of the reasons, She thinks she was not hired, because she is female. She now feels that they are trying ~~tried~~ to make every position a male position. She thinks she could have sued, but that is not what she wanted, she wanted the JOB and would still be on the list to be hired for one year if the other PSAP manager did not work out. ~~She was working 12-hour shifts.~~ The interview was not normal, they wanted it to feel ~~felt~~ more like a conversation. They asked 'What can we do to retain employees?" Barb's response was "One of the number one things to do is to fix the 12-hour shifts." She feels no one should work in a dispatch center for 12 hours for mental health reasons and physically it wears on a person after time. They have been working 12 hour shifts since around M arch of 2020~~sit for 12 hours for mental health and family reasons.~~ If they want to leave the building, they have to take PTO or call in someone for a half hour. The Police Department has to pay overtime every single week for every dispatcher, because of the 12-hour shifts. From a manager's perspective that does not make sense. She understands how ~~How does~~ the budget works. ~~?~~

She believes the PSAP Manager gets paid a ridiculous wage. It takes 8-10 months ~~two or three weeks~~ to get to know what is going on in the dispatch room. The Assistant PSAP who was just hired, Wayne, will take forever to get up to speed – eight to ten months, which is how long it takes to train a dispatcher. It would have taken her a 2 or 3 weeks to get up to speed. The pay is $80,000.00. He trained paramedics. So, she feels the cost is being wasted, which bothers her. As a citizen, she sees the money as wasted.

Once you get on the hiring list you stay on the list for one year so if Wayne did not work out then she would hopefully be next. She feels she gave so much to that place. Captain Jason Sundbakken notified her that she did not get it, not Chief Klug. ~~She was told they were going in a different direction~~ Captain Sundbakken said "I just called to let you know where we are at with the Assistant PSAP position, The chief offered the position to another guy so that is where we are at". but Captain Sundbakken was not involved with the hiring process and could not answer any questions about it. She had four letters of recommendation. The letters are included in the documents provided by the City.

Part of the reason she feels she was not hired is that she was friends with Margaret Haugen. Then at one point, she told Margaret she was worried for her when Margaret became PSAP Manager but Margaret made it work. Margaret said that she was concerned about the role reversal over coffee if McPeak was hired as the Assistant PSAP.

Chief Klug took over the day she left. She has known him for 20 to 25 years. He has major integrity issues. One night he got drunk and showed up at her house crying about his first wife. McPeak drove him home and sat with him while he and his wife tried and talked things out. He was good in the lower ranks. You form a bond with these brothers. He never bitched or complained even if he was dispatched to an undesirable call.

She felt Chief Klug "was super pissed" at her, because in the interview she brought up that the long shifts cause the customer service level to go down. She has been ~~She used to be~~ friends with Chief Klug. She feels One reason he would not want McPeak back is that she has a voice. He would have been concerned that she would have found out about the "bs" that was going on in the Police Department. She could not believe some of the stuff that happened at the Police Department. She would find out from everyone else. She never had any firsthand problems with him. But as soon as he got the Chief position it went to his head. She later believed that he didn't care if she applied for the position or not.

An SRO officer told her that she should have gotten the position. She feels that once she was not hired the camaraderie changed, because they all felt she should have gotten the position. McPeak expressed that there are many issues with the dispatch team from top to bottom. The reasons follow: Margaret could not make a decision; people are negative towards her because she is always answering only to Chief Klug and Captain Justin Sundheim and not standing up for the dispatchers. For example: The move to the new Dispatch Center. The setup is awkward. Everyone faces the wall. Captain Sundheim's answer that it was for ADA compliance did not make McPeak happy, there were other options for the layout. The dispatchers can hardly talk to each other. The administration did not ask any dispatcher for input when the room was set up. When the old Dispatch Center was upgraded, they asked dispatcher's opinions. The Dispatch Center is in the basement. Cannot even go outside and walk around the building. No sunlight at all. If you are a smoker, you cannot go outside.

Margaret does not come out of her office to give people their lunch. If they do not bring lunch, they do not eat lunch. ~~Margaret changed the dispatch system~~. She did have a lot on her plate.

One of the dispatchers, Lacie, was involved in an accident on an ATV and she dropped the injured person off at the hospital and left. She was eventually arrested. Lacie applied for Assistant PSAP as well. When former dispatcher Amanda was fired or asked to resign, her facebook post about the investigation ~~she~~ had valid points about Margaret violating HIPAA and talking badly about dispatchers. But Amanda had her issues herself. ~~Another dispatcher said her brother died and it was a lie to get time off.~~ (this statement was not relevant to this point at all.)

There is no concern for the health and welfare of the dispatchers and zero regard for them being good employees. She is worried for the physical and mental health of the dispatchers. She never wants them to have to go through what she did with her mental health after taking ~~She took~~ a suicide call of her own cousin. Never got emotional on the phone, and handled the call but weeks later when received a call about a little ~~boy~~ girl home alone way out in the country she completely broke down after the call due to [redacted], and had to take an extended leave.

Margaret says there is nothing she can do. (No idea what the previous statement is referring to) McPeak's people wanted to work for her. She never said you have to find your coverage. McPeak says she treated people like people instead of just a number in a box.

If you have never been a dispatcher, you don't get it. Currently, no one can take a vacation. Everyone is so negative. During her time, McPeak did not have it that bad, because it was a different management. She realizes life is different now. During COVID, they locked down dispatch. But even after the pandemic, they kept the door locked. Causing some segregation of dispatchers and officers.

Kristin Guerton

On October 28, 2024, Heintzelman spoke to Kristin Guerton. Guerton has 8.5 years with the Police Department. She has been a detective for the past two (six) years.

When she heard about Chief Klug's desire to move people to other shifts, she had a conversation with Captain Dale Plessas and Lt. Darren Dyke. They told her that she would not be moved and that she could stay in the investigations division as long as she wanted to stay there (Until I burn out or I chose to promote). She indicated that she considered participating in the promotion process, but she does not the trust process. She is concerned that there is a lack of consistency in the training of patrol officers in that the reports that come to investigations and the affidavits that are submitted for warrants are, at times, poorly written, i.e. missing the elements of the crime, or a cut and paste from the police report which affects the effectiveness of the prosecutions. She also believes that there is no consistency in the FTO training. She is concerned that with hiring issues that the department is experiencing, the department is more lenient in passing an officer through the FTO program. Previously Shannon Lackey was responsible for the FTO program, and she was tough. Now, Captain Sundbakken supervises Caisee Sandusky who is responsible for the FTO program.

From her perspective, people are not being held accountable. Sergeant Greg Johnson works in investigations. He does not know how to draft a warrant or investigate a case. There are cases of domestic violence and sexual assault that he has let sit on his desk. When she went on maternity leave, her duties fell on Stephanie Lentz to handle. When she returned, she picked up a "gnarly stalking case" that Sgt. Johnson was not working up. (I case was brought to my attention by the victim. I am unsure how the victim received my information but she felt as though her case was not being addressed. I then had to dig into the case which was discovered to not have been touched by Greg in over a month. With stalking cases, they can not sit stagnant for that long, it allows the suspect to have the upper hand. I continually had to discuss issues I encountered with Lt. Dyke regarding Greg's involvement or lack of on this case – I did not pick the case up because I knew if I did, I would be giving into the laziness. However the bigger picture is the fact that the victims are affected by the lack of investigation into this very large case.)

No one uses Greg Johnson, because he is lazy and has not been held accountable for his performance. Everyone, including Lt. Darren Dyke, go to Sgt. Shane Johnson, because he gives feedback and offers help. Greg Johnson is a nice guy and no one wants to hurt him (hurt his feelings), but he is not pulling his weight. She recounted a situation where they were executing an arrest warrant in a homicide case and Sgt. Greg Johnson went over the radio and asked what case they were executing the warrant on (he asked what the arrest warrant was for). A supervisor that cannot do an officer's job and does not carry their weight is a problem for the department. There are five Investigators, two Sergeants, one Lieutenant and one Captain in the Investigations Department.

She was concerned that the ADP process wanted her to input her evaluation of the supervisor before her evaluation is done.

Guerton was on a search warrant when she was pregnant. During the execution of the search warrant at the end of 2023 at the Henderson Residence, Sgt. Gary (Greg) Johnson stood at the doorway and watched everyone work. Erin Bonney, who has worked at few a police departments. She moved to the east coast. She spoke her mind about Greg Johnson in her exit interview. A lot of people feel bad because he is a nice guy, but he is not pulling his weight. (I believe I also spoke about the exit interview process and how there is no consistency – how some are distributed throughout the department and how some are never seen by anyone – and how it is conducted by the IA division within the department and not HR) The entire point of speaking about my direct supervisor in this manner is the fact that it is a clear leadership issue.

Guerton believes that there is a morale issue, because some people not carrying their weight. She believes there are inconsistencies in holding people accountable. By way of example, she believes the supervisor should read an affidavit before notarizing the affidavit. She does not think all supervisors read the affidavits, because sometimes she will get them and they are a "copy and paste" of the officer's report with a lot of unnecessary information in the affidavit.

There was a Uniform Committee established to review the beard policy and other uniform issues. They "busted their asses" working on the policy. Cole Strandemo did a ton of research for the policy that was presented. It addressed uniforms, hair, hats, etc. They were all passionate about it and it gave the officers a chance to participate in the process. They are not working on it anymore and it has fallen by the wayside. Guerton said that "No shave November" went into December and carried through April. A day before May 1, when people would be required to shave, everyone was asking what was happening with the approval for the Uniform Policy. No one knew and nothing was implemented by the Chief after all the officers put in all that work. It is a morale issue. It did not cost the Department any money and the officers all worked hard and received no answer from Chief Klug with no explanation as to why there was no response.

As a result of the recent officer-involved shooting, Acting Chief Plessas sat down with every shift and explained what the process was for the investigation. He also read the victims' wife's response to a post on Minot Whiners and Complainers that attempted to criticize the police in their response. It was very well received.

She said Chief Klug is on the ND Post Board. She feels comfortable talking to Chief Klug, but there is a lack of communication in other areas. She suggested that I review Erin Bonney's exit interview. Lt. Haug and Lt. McLeod do exit interviews for the Police Department.

Harold Stewart

On October 16th, 2024, Koelbel and Heintzelman spoke to Harold Stewart regarding this investigation. Stewart has been the City Manager for the City of Minot ND since the week after Christmas 2020. City Council appointed Chief Klug before COVID. Stewart was not involved in that process.

Stewart indicates that council members have been historically approached by patrol officers who want to provide information to the elected officials after they have not received a satisfactory answer from the Administration. They do not use the grievance or complaint procedure. He was not involved in the hiring decision for Klug as Chief and the information that is out there is a mix of truth, rumor and speculation. He has told council members who heard concerns to have the people ~~to~~ come talk to him directly if they have specific issues they want to address, they should come and talk to him, but no one has come to talk to him directly. In Stewart's perspective, since the alleged incidents regarding Chief Klug's current wife and alcohol use, he's been investigated and disciplined. He was promoted five times since then and he's been performing satisfactorily. If there is some new issue, Stewart will investigate it.

All of these issues, predate Fuller and Samuelson. There ~~was a~~has been conversations regarding the need for a new police station. Both Fuller and Samuelson have stated they believe it is a higher priority ~~held up that process because they want~~ to take care of these morale issues first, and then potentially address the facility needs.

On August 26, 2024, Fuller and Samuelson came to him to discuss the morale problems. Stewart told them that the information previously provided ~~they were providing~~ happened in the past, had already been investigated and disciplined. If there is something new then he would address it.

Also during the week of August 26th Stefanie Stalheim asked Stewart if he had heard anything regarding drugs going missing in the PD. Stewart stated he had not. Stalheim stated her Assistant Attorney Corbin Dickerson had been approached by Brittany Thurston in HR while at a swimming event regarding hearing drugs had gone missing at the PD.

Formatted: Superscript

On September 4, 2024 Stewart received a text message from Stefanie Stalheim at 5:40pm stating a meeting had been scheduled the following morning at 8m with Chief Klug, Fuller, Monica Porter (from HR) him, and Stefanie. ~~Fuller came back and said that he had new information, because he has been meeting and talking to people about what was going on at the Police Department~~. In the meeting Fuller~~'s~~ stated he had heard information ~~was~~ that Officer Batteiger had slept with a domestic violence victim and that he had lost 15.7 grams of heroin. This information was new to Stewart.

Stewart was very disappointed that Fuller ~~and Samuelson~~ had this information, but Chief Klug had not brought it to his attention. Stewart has repeatedly told his management team that bad things are going to happen and there are things that we'll need to deal with and they need to let him know what is happening. Stewart would rather hear it from them directly than from another source. Once a month, they have a one on one meeting where the department heads can update Stewart and give information regarding personnel issues and other matters. The department heads are however free to contact Stewart at any time to discuss an issue that's going on in their department.

By way of example, when COVID began, the Chief said that no one should go into dispatch unless they're working there. A couple of officers shared their codes to get into the door to dispatch. Then, during the investigation, one of the officers lied about it and was fired. For that incident, Stewart was kept advised. Concerning the heroin issue, Chief Klug did not advise him of that situation when it occurred. Chief Klug had told Stewart there was a personal matter he was addressing with a K9 officer, that he was working with HR, and he believed he was going to remove the K9 from the officer This is not the first time Stewart has managed a Police Department. They are siloed and protective of their own and they don't want to interact either with the administration or the Human Resources Department. Klug has been inconsistent with notification. If there is an officer hurt or injured or an officer-involved shooting or a shooting in a bar, there is an update and they reach a consensus about how to handle the situation the next day. But concerning personnel matters, Chief Klug does not provide the same updated information. Captain Plessas has been much better about keeping Stewart updated. The City has a grievance process which ultimately comes to him but it is not utilized much.

Stewart works with Chief Klug on the budget process. It has been very adversarial at times. Chief Klug was having difficulty working with Stewart. He would blow up at ~~the meetings~~Stewart via email and then come back and apologize. Stewart believes that Klug would talk to his wife about having a good relationship with the administration and that's when he would come back and apologize. He had a very tough time when he was having personal problems and his behavior was very inconsistent. This time period spanned the loss of Officer Blanchard and Asst. PSAP Petersen-Ness.

Stewart does not think the leadership in the department and communication is where it needs to be. The three~~wo~~ Captains are Sundheim, Plessas, and Sundbakken. Sundbakken has been with the department for a long time and is a nice guy, but he ~~isn't perceived by the department as a strong leader~~~~does not have the qualities of management~~. He ~~does not seem to exercise leadership or direction. He's far more task-oriented.~~is good at implementing decisions and directives of the Chief and the leadership team.

Before being promoted to Acting Chief, Stewart did not have much interaction with Plessas. He recalled a meeting between Chief Klug, Plessas, Sundbakken, and Sundheim where they wanted a new position as a public information officer. Officer Moss was ~~supposed to be~~ the community outreach person at the time, and Stewart questioned the need for an additional PIO if they already had Moss ~~but they were not getting sufficient bang for their buck from his performance.~~ The Fire Department also needed a Public Information Officer. Stewart told Klug and the captains that he could not ~~get~~ justify additional personnel for their department, however he could support having one additional Community or Public Information Officer that could specialize in supporting~~for~~ both the Police Department and the Fire Department~~, and other city departments~~but report to the City's PIO team. They became very adversarial including Plessas. None of them could understand that he was on their side and trying to do the best he could for them, but the organization was limited in its~~his capabilities~~financial capacity. There was no reason that one person couldn't support both the Fire Department and the Police Department as a Public Information Officer. Maybe the following year, they could increase the budget for that position depending on how the position functions. Since that time, Plessas has stepped up and done a nice job in the Acting Chief position. He has been far more supportive and communicative. He shares his position and once a decision is made he will execute it. Stewart did not get that kind of performance and response from Chief Klug. Plessas appears to have the trust of the department.

Sundheim is extremely defensive of Chief Klug and himself. He gets pretty heated at times and this has concerned Stewart at times.~~is not impressed with his leadership capabilities.~~ Sundheim was involved in the ~~development~~ design and construction of the dispatch center. This was new to everyone that participated in the process but Sundheim made it harder than it needed to be, based on feedback from other City Staff involved in the process. He believes that Sundheim is perceived by officers as more of a dictator than a leader.

Stewart is aware of an issue concerning creating a grooming policy so that the officers could have beards year-round. A committee was established and a grooming policy was created, but it has not been implemented. Stewart thinks this is a problem because the Chief has not executed on the policy or told the department that he was not going to accept their policy.

Stewart provided an example of how he has approached similar situations with Staff and the organization. Stewart recently ~~has~~ made policy changes converting from vacation leave and sick leaves to the PTO policy, which was based on staff input after several meetings with staff and the management team. He expected that his department heads would talk to their personnel and bring any concerns to him that were expressed by the officers. That was done and he implemented some of the ideas he received.

Klug's reaction to a new issue depends upon what mood he's in and whether he agrees with it. Stewart has had to tell him directly that he will do certain things. It has been difficult working with him on budget issues . He has been slow to come to the bigger picture of being ~~a manager~~part of the management team and looking at the entire organization. Klug's focus is on the Police Department and while he advocates strongly for the Police Department he has a hard time prioritizing his needs. By way of example, Chief Klug pushed hard for this Public Information Officer position, but they also needed more dispatchers that year. Stewart thought the dispatchers were more important than the public information officer. Similarly, he asked for other positions such as a forensic technician who works on computer files. In Stewart's opinion, he would have prioritized the forensic technician over the PIO. Sometimes he questions Chief Klug's logic and judgment.

Chief Klug knew the Assistant PSAP Manager who died in the motorcycle accident shortly after being hired. He also took some personal blame on the Blanchard situation. He was slow to get help for himself even though he advised officers to go to the EAP program. He believed Chief Klug's lashing out was a result of these deaths.

Another situation occurred concerning the vet clinic that provides shelter for the stray animals~~dogs~~ that they pick up. Animal services falls under the responsibility of the Chief.~~Stewart told Chief Klug that he should make sure he has other options in case the clinic can no longer handle the stray animals.~~ Renewing the contract in a previous year was delayed, late, and ultimately renewed after the contract expired. ~~Chief Klug did not do so and this year~~During the spring/summer of 2024~~,~~ the vet clinic told the Chief Klug~~ity~~ that it would no longer provide shelter for the strays after the end of the year. ~~Now Chief Klug is struggling to find an alternate location on short notice.~~Despite the advance notice Stewart was not aware of any progress by Chief Klug on the process to identify a new provider/partner for animal services.

Over the years Stewart has talked to Chief Klug about the fact that the command staff works Monday through Friday 8:00 to 4:00. He asked him when the last time was that he visited a night shift or came in on the weekends. He has not been disciplined for his performance. It is Stewart's position that the City should not go back and discipline Chief Klug for incidents that occurred many years ago, particularly since he assumes that they have disciplined for those behaviors. Stewart believes that there is much more team building and training that Chief Klug needs to do in Dispatch. He has informed Stewart of some of those issues but there is more for Chief Klug to do.

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Jared Foley.

Foley was promoted to Sergeant in July 2019. He is currently the Sergeant responsible for the Records Department, which includes being the Evidence Custodian. Before moving into Records, he was on the patrol shift for ~~eight~~ 12 years. In December 2022, he was ~~on patrol and loved his job. Thereafter, Chief Klug moved him~~ interviewed, selected for and reassigned to the Records division. In Records, he's in the station five days a week and always around the administration.

Foley is not a fan of how the administration is running the department. He believes that they never make timely decisions and their thought process is inconsistent. He thinks that ideas go down the hallway and die, because they never hear anything back. The person responsible for the Records Department before him was ~~not efficient and there was a big mess to clean up.~~ assigned several extra duties that took away from proper management of the evidence department, leading to a back log of evidence. They use LERMS for records management. Foley has been going through cases and conducted a massive cleanup and a massive push for categorizing evidence and destruction of evidence that is no longer needed. He was provided with three days of training working with the former Sergeant in Records. He also took a 14-hour online training course with the International Association of Property and Evidence. This is an association for training evidence custodians. In July, he took an additional 16 hours of online training on the chain of custody process for managing the property room. ~~issues and how evidence is handled in the City of Minot~~. They use Lexipol for the management of their property room. Lexipol is an entity that provides rules and regulations for police departments and other agencies. ~~They conducted~~ An audit of the property room was previously conducted in 2018. ~~when Kenton was moved to the position of SRO~~. There ~~is another officer~~ were several different officers who were ~~is~~ on temporary light duty and assigned to records prior to Foleys selection to include, Belinda Gladback, Aaron Moss and Carrie Stanfield (Petersen), who also worked in the Records Department with Foley for a year. At one point, Stanfield (Peterson) applied for the open position in Records, but was not given it. Instead, the position of the records officer was given to a Senior Officer. ~~The department is also hiring another officer to work in the back as well.~~ Foley claims he inherited a total mess in the ~~Records Division~~ Property and Evidence Room.

There has not been a formal audit of evidence since 2018, even though it has been discussed numerous time. He cleaned up and organized the ~~Records Department~~ Property and Evidence rooms and came up with ideas consistent with what he had ~~learned~~ received training on to make applicable changes. By way of example, he needed shelving units. They cost $800. He made the request several months ago with no response. He brought it up several times. ~~The Chief~~ Captain Sundbakken gave him an answer similar to "I don't wanna rob Peter to pay Paul." Foley found some shelves that were not being used so after making several requests, he simply took them cleaned them up, and began using them in the evidence room. Several weeks go by and Chief Klug notices that Foley moved the shelves. ~~Chief Klug~~ Captain Sundbakken said that he told Foley not to take the shelves and that ~~he~~ (Chief) would get back to him (Foley). As a result, he received a letter of counseling for insubordination for moving the shelves into the ~~intake room of the~~ Evidence Locker. Another suggestion was to move evidence processing outside the ~~evidence room~~ evidence intake room to ~~near~~ the ~~digital evidence technician~~ evidence work stations and to put the heat sealer out there so that it would be easier for the officers to process evidence. He wrote a proposal and it was sent to the Chief's office and it died there. Foley says that he's a young sergeant who has ideas about how work may flow better but he keeps getting shut down.

He said he participates in Tuesday meetings with the administration. There's a lot of small talk back and forth and questions about what he~~'s~~ and others are working on. He does not believe it is productive. ~~Four~~ Two months ago, he received discipline with a day off because during his attempts to auction off unclaimed property, two bicycles in evidence were inadvertently sold. ~~He auctioned one off, but was able to recover it. The other one the department paid for.~~ The owner of the bicycles was reimbursed by the City for one bike and the other bike was replaced with another bicycle that was to be auctioned off. It was simply a mistake, because he didn't have enough help, as he was working the auction himself with four adults and seven juveniles from the cadet program. He feels that the discipline was unfair, because he didn't have enough help during the first time through the process and did the best he could. Foley drafted and created a department operations manual for the property and evidence section to avoid errors in future auctions and upon completion received little to no feedback on the task other than "looks good".

He also said that the administration does not attend community events. There is a suicide prevention walk called "Out of the Darkness". No administrative personnel showed up for that walk this year. ~~There was also an issue with coffee with a cop.~~ During this most recent "Coffe with a Cop" event, the Acting Chief Plessas and Captains Sundheim and Sundbakken attended. ~~He also participated in drafting the wellness program. The City Attorney reviewed it and thought they did a good job. However, it has not been implemented.~~ ← (This was not part of my interview)

There have also been efforts made by the patrol officers on the uniform policy and a beard policy. They worked on the uniform policy two years ago and still nothing has been implemented. Foley said he did have a one-on-one meeting with Chief Klug. He thinks Chief Klug had meetings with three people. Even though, he wanted to get to know everyone. The one-on-one meetings were stopped, because Chief Klug had family issues. ~~Only three or four sergeants go to the administrative meetings, even though all sergeants were supposed to attend these meetings.~~ ← (This was not part of my interview)

At the weekly administration meetings, the ~~administration~~ meetings focused on things like signs for parking in front of the new retaining wall, as opposed to things that are affecting morale. ← (I don't recall where this was going but we discuss several things during weekly meetings that ultimately don't have conclusions or outcomes to.) He believes that the morale issues are more important and are affecting service. For example, the failure to complete and implement the beard policy and the continuing the prohibition of beards for officers potentially results in ~~p~~ good candidates ~~not applying for~~ overlooking open positions.

Jenna Hurt Koelbel interviewed Jenna Hurt on October 15, 2024, at 6:00 p.m. CT.

She started in dispatch in August 2012 and until December 2023. She was a Lead. They had been working on policies for dispatch separate from the Police Department. Never got them officially established. She was injured in April of 2022 on her way to work during a 42 inch blizzard She broke her wrist in two places and went to work. Instead of saying thank you for still coming in all Margaret said when overhearing me talk to an officer about what happened was "No one told you, you had to be here" She had surgery and after two weeks was back to work on light duty. She could not type fast to take calls. So, she spent two weeks working on the processes that the former PSAP started regarding the dress code, updating information from former Chief Olson to Chief Klug and creating policies for the new phone system and programs. She submitted it to Margaret then it sat on Captain Sundheim's desk. There is no follow-up or follow through. Kept following up with Captain Sundheim, who said he would check with Chief Klug. People were late all the time. She followed up on employees stealing time. By the time they looked into it, it was recorded over. Margaret should be right there being investigated with Chief Klug. She created such a hostile work environment. She would pit them against each other. Went to Captain Sundheim and the 360 eval happened, but then there was no follow-up. Margaret got better for a bit and then nothing changed. Scheduling was taken away from her, because her scheduling made people mad and she was creating more animosity by the way she would hold the schedule over people's heads. Jenna started to make the schedule. Jenna was told to cut overtime. People complained to Margaret and instead of admitting she told me to do something she would not be supportive, say it's what everyone wanted and would say bad things about Jenna. It appears that one can be arrested at work in dispatch and still have a job there. Captain Sundheim was the Shift Commander and Jenna used to have amazing respect for him. FBI model for chain of command was created and dispatch was placed under Captain Sundheim, so he had dispatch and patrol which in my opinion is too many people to have under one captain when you don't have a strong enough leader leading a department. There were meetings with the Lead team that would be redundant and would go no where we would have meetings about the same thing over and over with no real solution or resolution to many problems. Margaret on the floor bullied Juana, the second Assistant PSAP. They would openly argue with each other in front of everyone. Tami, the first Assistant PSAP passed away in a motorcycle accident.

Margaret made it impossible. Insane stuff trainees go through. Captain Sundheim and Chief Klug knew about it. They all went to McLeod during exit interviews. They tried for years to get the training program straight. There are no standards. People on the night shift were ~~ignoring calls~~ not doing their job and watching TV. Nothing ever happened to them. There was inconsistency in discipline. Towards the end of my employment we were having weekly, then monthly meetings during which Chief Klug said: I don't even know why you are here if you are so miserable. Jenna knew then and there that nothing was going to change. There was no sense in going to Margaret. Anything you went to her with, the entire department would know. They started fact-checking with each other based on the lies that Margaret spread. The Center is terrible for mental health. They were promised treadmills and an exercise room. They made such a big deal about mental health after Pat's suicide. Everything went right back to how it was and no one cared. The solution they provided was three fancy TV screens that were supposed to be their windows. It was supposed to be this grand center. Safety in general was not looked at. They asked for five spots to be lit up in the parking lot. They said they would install lights and security cameras after the City Hall personnel moved in. An officer was beaten up by homeless people in the parking garage we are expected to walk to, there was blood and needles in the alley shortly after we moved in, we did not feel safe. Margaret is a yes-woman. During the five or six years in which Margaret led the team it was a horrible situation. She is grossly underqualified. She had the most time of all of them. Cari Stiel applied for the position and some external applicants. There was inconsistency and a lack of leadership. ~~It was already not an ideal~~ It was already a tough job and situation but then with Margaret it went downhill. At the end of the day, McPeak and I may have had our differences but at least had their backs. Jenna left her pension and took a pay cut just to get out of there. She misses the officers, She still keeps in touch with many old coworkers, recently ran into one who mentioned he was moved to investigations and with everyone leaving ~~and his badge number~~ when they do another number crunch, he will be 413 because so many officers left. ~~He is an investigator.~~ Mental health was not a priority for the department even before Pat's suicide. Not one person came in to check on her and Sami the next morning 4 hours after being woken up to a friend, colleague had just committed suicide. They worked on the same shift for eight years. Jenna works at the advocacy center now. People ask if she would ever go back. At the end of the day, the damage is done. She is trying to make it better for the ones that remain. They tried to figure out how to stop people from leaving. Margaret asked for scheduling ideas when she had no intention of implementing anything again just creating animosity between employees and delaying the process and dragging stuff out unnecessarily. Emails were catty and condescending , stupid things like evaluations, she had them complete them themselves and would add a little word here and there. She never jumped on to assist, especially when they worked 12-hour shifts with no breaks. She and Jackie worked 12-hour shifts every day by themselves the first two years of COVID. Before they would get weekends off every six months. At least with the 12 hours, they got every other weekend off. People at night worked a different rotation. It was always the same people helping with overtime. Some PTO rules may have been illegal. I heard that Shanlya figured out that they were not being properly paid through Covid, but the response was that they may end up owing the City money instead.

Retention speaks volumes. Chloe left two weeks before Jenna left. Molly Schoen left right after she did. Molly and her leaving would have improved morale she was told. They were very vocal about all the issues in dispatch. Chief did not take ownership of the things he kept allowing to happen. Margaret continued to bully Juana so she was job hunting before I even left in December and I don't blame her ~~Margaret said when Jenna was leaving that she was sorry she bullied Jenna~~. Margaret always said out with the old and in with the new. She had stated multiple times she wished she could fire a lot of people and start over.

Foley said he did have a one-on-one meeting with Chief Klug. He thinks Chief Klug had meetings with three people. Even though, he wanted to get to know everyone. The one-on-one meetings were stopped, because Chief Klug had family issues.

Only three or four sergeants go to the administrative meetings, even though all sergeants were supposed to attend these meetings. At the meetings, the administration focused on things like signs for parking in front of the new retaining wall, as opposed to things that are affecting morale. He believes that the morale issues are more important and are affecting service. For example, the failure to implement the beard policy and the continuing the prohibition of beards for officers results in p good candidates not applying for open positions.

Sara Kiss

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman spoke with Sarah Kiss. Kiss was trained on the department's personnel policies and passed her probationary period in June 2023.

Kiss had an altercation with another female officer named Becker. They responded to a call where a female had gone to the hospital, but they could not help her. She was a drug user and was very sick and wasn't eating. They responded to a call for a well-being check. The female was refusing to go to the hospital and Becker threatened the woman by saying something about her kids.

Kiss believe that this was an ethical issue. Sgt. Sandusky told Kiss to report the incident to her supervisor Sergeant Taylor Jensen. They called Sergeant Noyes and they interviewed Kiss. Kiss had detailed notes of what happened. Then the sergeants talked to Becker. Afterward, the Sergeants told Kiss that they would not do anything about it.

Kiss came to work the next day and got in the car with Becker. Becker told Kiss that Kiss should have come to her (Becker), because this is not how we do things here. Becker told Kiss that she (Becker) will not have her (Kiss') back on the road, and once that bridge is burned, nobody will have her (Kiss') back. Kiss spoke to Amanda Somerville who was a friend on her shift. They reviewed the policies and determined that it would be instant termination if Becker failed to back them up. Later, she found out that other issues were going on with Becker and, as a result of those other issues, Becker was moved to dayshift and they worked all of their days together. Kiss was concerned, because Becker said she would be on her own. Becker was put on leave came back to work and then went back on leave. Ultimately, Becker submitted her resignation. Kiss does not know what happened to Becker or if the department ever investigated retaliation against her. Kiss did not report Becker's statements about backing Kiss up to anyone. Kiss believes that it would be good to follow up with the officer and let them know what happened in the investigation.

Otherwise, she is very happy in the department. They checked on her after she had a call with a gunshot victim. Kiss thought that she got the best medical care.

Tyler Ruelle

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Tyler Ruelle. He has been working for the department for 15 years and is currently a Patrol Sergeant, on the SWAT team, and sniper team.

Ruelle doesn't have a lot of interaction with the administration. He is concerned, because they have not yet received their 2023 performance evaluation. That being said, he believes an employee would know if there was an issue with their performance, because the sergeants work closely with the patrol officers. When Chief Klug began working as the Chief, he said he (Klug) would have one-on-one meetings with each of the officers. ~~He was doing them with Lieutenant Haug and Sundheim~~. Ruelle does not see the Chief as he seems to come in late and does not come to any of the shift briefings compared to other chiefs. Ruelle says that it is noticeable. Ruelle is also critical of the 12 to 10 shift, because the department is down on staffing and the individuals that are working that shift are not seeing their Sergeant. They do not have enough personnel to cover the street and the 10 to 12 shift makes it even worse. Ruelle was aware of the situation between Becker and Batteiger. He said that the officers need to be professional when they come to work and they cannot take their issues onto the street. Ruelle said that if they were working on the same side of town, Becker's statements that "I will not cover him" and "if he is on a call, I will not cover him" are not manageable. Any officers can end up on the same side of town working with another officer they may not like. At some point, she was removed from the sniper team and ultimately resigned.

(1) Can't yet give it a fair evaluation without being fully staffed shift.

(2) I was told by Capt. Sundheim that Schoenrock was the elephant in the room.

It has been a weird time after COVID, ~~which is the elephant in the room.~~ He was told that his behavior was being influenced by Sergeant Schoenrock, but the fact of the matter was that COVID had isolated the midnight shift in the patrol division from the administration, and that created the separation and maybe some of the issues.

He recalled the situation with Batteiger at the annual firework show at the fairgrounds. This is an incident where Batteiger was chasing two juveniles on an ATV. The traffic was all backed up going west and he was trying to pursue a four-wheeler down ~~Third~~ Avenue. Ultimately, Batteiger was in the eastbound lane going west. The pursuit was outside of the pursuit policy. Ruelle ~~does not believe~~ Batteiger received any discipline for that pursuit. Another incident occurred when there was a kid on a bike who was hit by a car. Becker, Ruelle, and Batteiger were doing traffic control. It was a hot day and Ruelle told Batteiger to relieve Becker from the traffic control. Becker was getting angrier and angrier as she focused on Batteiger and would not allow him to relieve her. ~~Ultimately, Ruelle relieved her instead of Batteiger~~. However, this created operational issues as the sergeant should not be directing traffic.

(3) individuals (4) 17 yrs (5) is unaware of it (6) I released Becker from the call altogether.

Ruelle is aware of the situation with Pat Blanchard. He was drunk at a party and then heard a call go out for the SWAT team. Blanchard tried to respond to the call leaving the bar. He crashed his car and blew the tire. He drove the car to the Police Department and was in the sallyport trying to change the tire. There were two or three officers there watching him. ~~Ultimately, Shane Haug went over and convinced Blanchard not to change the tire and respond to the call. At this point, people in the department knew that Blanchard needed help with alcohol~~. He does not know what discipline was issued or what help was provided to Blanchard. Blanchard was suspended from the SWAT team. He believes that the DUI for Blanchard was ~~overlooked~~, which in his opinion, is unfair because others may have gotten ~~prison time~~ for the same behavior.

(7) Ruelle confronted Blanchard and directed him to a side room. Ruelle found Haug to address the situation. Haug chose only to address administratively not criminally at that time.

(8) not handled properly by Lt Haug (9) arrested

Ruelle believes that the midnight shift was trying to make a morale problem, fun. They went from three lieutenants to two lieutenants, and the administration was presenting that the department members were all "one shift." This is the same time the Chief created the position of Professional Standards, Lieutenant. There are only two patrol lieutenants, one works the 6 a.m. to 2 p.m. shift and the other works the 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. shift. The night shift does not have a lieutenant. The administration tried to address this issue by saying we were one big shift and we could do this because we are the administration. However, Ruelle believes that if officers have questions, the administration should provide answers. If the

(10) initially, now both work day hours.

Chief is not around, the Captains need to have sufficient information to respond as representatives of the Administration

Ruelle has had conversations with Sundheim where he was seeking information to share it with his shift. The response from Sundheim was that the administration trusted the sergeants to respond to the patrol officers. However, Ruelle didn't have the information to provide. It was like they were saying "We trust you to make the information up" and respond to the officers. Now they have five lieutenants as Dave Chapman was promoted to Lieutenant. He believes some of the Lieutenants are pretty direct but he always thinks something else is going on.

(11) we did not discuss this. Also, I did not receive a low score.

Ruelle believes that patrol officers should get an honest performance evaluation. ~~He believes there needs improvement evaluation on item 8 on his performance evaluation was tied to the "free talk" meeting, which he doesn't believe is appropriate. He was not downgraded in his overall evaluation and does not think he lost pay.~~ He identified the anonymous email that was sent to the media containing a long list of performance issues of the Chief and Captain.

Andrew Roach

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Andrew Roach. Roach has been with the department for 8-1/2 years. Roach has previous experience in other police departments, including the county. He is on the Ward County Task Force. They respond to calls around the state. He has been on the task since January 2024. He has been on the dayshift for one year and was on midnights before then.

Chief Klug took over in 2020 right before COVID. There have always been issues with communication and explaining why we do things the way we do them. By way of example, he put in for a training session in Bismarck, North Dakota. The training was free and he was willing to drive to Bismarck to attend the training. He put in for the training three weeks before the training was scheduled and then followed up with Lieutenant Haug the week before the training. By Thursday or Friday, Roach had not received a response. The Training Captain is Sundbakken. He talked to Sundbakken, who did not take it well and was rude and Roach was upset because it was taking so long to get a response. Sundbakken shut the door and they argued the lack of a response. Roach says that the only time he saw administration is when he was getting off of the midnight shift when they were coming in. He was frustrated in general, because he needed to follow up on the training to get lodging and wanted to know if he was going to be able to go. He got a call from Lieutenant Haug that Sundbakken was upset with the way Roach spoke to him regarding the training. Roach said that conversations are preferable to emails. Later that night, he was told that he was approved to go to the training, but he woke up the next morning to a text that said the training request was denied. Later that night at a briefing, Schoenrock told Roach that he was accused of yelling at Sundbakken. Roach said that he was made to look like a bad guy, but all he wanted was approval for the use of a car and a response to his email. The training was on March 22, 2021. It was called Evidence-based Interview and Interrogation.

From other interviews, I was told that training was curtailed if not eliminated during COVID-19, because of the risk of transmission in large groups. As the administration made the decision not to allow officers to walk into the dispatch center, the denial of training is consistent with that approach for that time.

In 2021, he received his performance evaluation but his Sergeant, Schoenrock, did not write the evaluation even though he saw me every day. Lt. Haug went through the evaluation with Roach and gave him subpar grades. He was told that the midnight shift was cliquey and did not integrate with the other

Good Morning (or Evening) –

I am writing this in response to the investigative report that was released in regards to Chief Klug and the Minot Police Department. I have read through the report extensively and have several concerns in regard to the accuracy of the statements listed under my name and others where I am specifically mentioned. As I stated in the interview, I will only address those concerns which I have personal knowledge of or experienced myself. I do have a litany of concerns regarding other statements, but I will allow those officers to address their concerns individually. These concerns are based around the statements listed in the report itself and the way I was attempting to convey them as I do not believe this was achieved in the final report.

1) The first issue I would like to address is listed on page 40 under former Officer Aaron Moss' statement regarding my radio issue. Paragraph 6 highlights the concerns Moss had for my radio issue prior to the incident outlined later in the report. The statement is worded as if I had only went to Moss to report this issue, which is factually untrue. I had reported this issue to the administration no less than four different times and Officer Roach also reported this issue with my radio specifically once. In total, the radio issue was reported at least five times prior to the incident occurring with nothing being done about it. Later in the statement, it is listed that no grievance or complaint was filed over the issue. I was never provided any sort of guidance on the grievance procedure and all complaints were to be filed with the chain of command. I absolutely reported this to my chain of command multiple times with no response as stated above.

2) Secondly, in the final statement, in parentheses reads "Later in my interviews, I spoke with Shaide who had the issue, he was able to communicate via his radio and did not use a cell phone". This is factually correct, however; it is worded in such a manner as to convey that I actually had no issue with the radio at all, which is untrue. I attempted to call for help multiple times during the incident and nothing went through. I eventually told Officer Somerville to call 911, throw the phone on the ground and tell dispatch we needed help. This can be corroborated by Shanlya Van Hill, who took the call that morning. The fact of the matter is that the phone call took place PRIOR to any radio traffic going out. I had to gain control of the suspect for just enough time to pull my radio out of the pouch, and manually activate it to get any traffic out whatsoever.

3) The third issue I would like to address is located under my statement on page 53 of the report regarding both the radio incident itself and the process I went through to report the issue. In the second paragraph, it is listed I made a traffic stop for a DUI driver. This is factually incorrect as the incident was NOT a traffic stop. It was originally a traffic complaint that the suspect was later found to have stolen a vehicle and trailer, had multiple felony warrants for his arrest, and fought officers for 7 and a half minutes. The suspect was never charged with DUI. In the next statement, it is stated that I was extremely vocal and upset about the issue, which is correct; however, there is no context as to why I was as vocal as I was about what I felt was a legitimate officer safety concern that could affect anyone else in the department. This context would come from the fact that this issue was reported no less than 5 separate times to the administration by Officer Roach and I (as stated under issue #1). This information is not contained in the original report and leads the reader to believe that I was angry about a momentary malfunction of equipment rather than an issue that had been reported and could have been fixed several times over prior to the incident occurring. I had informed you that I had reported this issue to both Lt. Haug and Lt. Chapman. You later stated that my issue lied with Haug and not Sundheim. Which made it all the more surprising that this information was left out of the report completely and only states that I did not identify who I made the complaint with. This also contradicts your earlier statement in Moss' report that no complaints were made in regards to this issue.

4) The last issue(s) I would like to address is in regards to the 2nd to final paragraph of the report that outlines discipline. At no point did I state that due to these two instances alone did I believe there was inconsistent discipline. This paragraph simply leads the reader to believe that I had some sort of grudge against the discipline being levied against me, which is false. I never received a two day suspension for the plow incident. I received a suspension in 2024 for tossing a cell phone onto the dashboard of one of the patrol cars and the phone bounced, damaging the windshield. The context I was attempting to convey is that when I received the suspension, I was told I was showing a pattern of conduct. I had three previous incidents prior to this over the course of approximately 3 years. I have been a patrol officer for approximately 7 years and have had 4 incidents that were documented. At an average rate of less than one incident per year, I do not believe this constitutes a pattern of conduct.

5) I provided you a copy of my yearly eval which was also provided to you by Officers Roach and Hugg. I read Officer Roach's eval and it is the exact same wording as I had on mine. This has seemed to come out after Captain Sundheim called a meeting implying officers were allowed to "speak freely". I was one of the officers who vocally brought up concerns regarding the department. I have never been graded that low prior to that year and taking into consideration the "dislike" – for lack of a better term – for nightshift at the time, led me to believe that this was an attempt to silence dissent within the department rather than taking on issues that may be causing the breakdown between nightshift and the administration. This information was also left completely off the final report.

Thank you for your prompt attention to this matter.

I would like Charlsie Burud's name stricken out from my summary. Her name was simply provided to follow up if needed with the pattern McLeod's poor judgement. The summary in my mind makes it appear that this behavior is currently happening. This was 6-8 years ago like originally reported. Outside the examples that I felt they weren't needed due to the magnitude of the recent investigation into McLeod appeared to be swept under the rug.

I stated that an investigation would reveal that McLeod showed deception on the polygraph test. I stated that it's unfortunate that people have lost their job when they lied to the Chief but the minute, they show deception on a polygraph where there's serious allegations a person is allowed to still be in law enforcement. In my mind with McLeod being employed as a police officer that HR, or the city attorneys had no idea of these allegations and/or the nature of an internal investigation if it actually took place.

The recent case involving McLeod is what makes it weird for me to work with him.

There were other errors in my summary however I don't believe they are catastrophic or change anything. Such as Dana Rustebakke is Valley City Police officer, and Marcie Pfeifer as alleged victim/reporting party in rape case. I said Jason Sundbakken is horrendous at training, but in all fairness, I provided several examples. I also stated that Robbie Sumlin's as a position is not needed as he doesn't supervise anyone as he is a sergeant. I didn't say he doesn't do his job.

Thank you,

Jason Bambenek

Subject: Police Department Investigation Concern and Opportunity for Correction

Thank you for coming forward and participating in the Police Department Investigation. I am emailing you as a participant because I have been made aware many of you, after reading the final report, do not believe the report accurately reflects what you stated during the interview. Given I strongly believe this is a concern needing remedied, I have reached out to Yvette regarding the issue. She has responded that anyone who identifies issues with the summary of their interview can submit a response, and she will review the comments and consider a change to the report. If you have already provided me an email outlining your concerns it has already been forwarded to Yvette for her review. Yvette is copied on this email so you can provide them directly to her if you would like. I would recommend if you have proposed corrections, they be provided as soon as possible so an updated version of the report can be completed.

“Hugg did not identify what concerns either he or anyone else from the night shift raised other than Schoenrock’s contention that he should have been promoted over Dyke.”

I do not recall stating this during our meeting or during the “free talk” meeting with Sundheim.

“Hugg describes the situation where former officer Blanchard was at a bachelor party and became intoxicated.”

It was a 30th Birthday Party for Officer Bloyer.

“Blanchard was on the SWAT team and received a call out while at the party.”

Former Officer Blanchard had responded from his own residence, as he had left the party earlier in the evening.

“He does not believe Blanchard received any discipline for this situation.”

I don’t believe I would have said that, as I know that Officer Blanchard received a suspension from the SWAT team.

“Hugg does not believe that Pappenfus or Haug will be promoted past Lieutenant This is an interesting perspective since Chief Klug promoted Pappenfus to Sergeant and Lt. Haug is now in charge of Professional Standards.”

I believe what I told you was that I was given my performance evaluation from Pappenfus and Haug. Where in that performance evaluation they told me that I would not promote based on category 8.

“Hugg is not involved in discipline or investigations, but believes that in 2021 and 2022, there were issues concerning McLeod’s conduct but nothing was done about it.”

I do not recall making any statements about McLeod's conduct in 21 or 22 but I did bring up that he was on administrative leave for approximately 6 months in 2024 for a criminal investigation into a sexual offense.

"He said that they, but did not identify the "they" did not believe that Sommerville, Laudenschlager, or Wilk got a fair shake regarding the discipline they received."

I am unsure of why you would add Laudenschlager's name into this as I recall he resigned on his own accord. I remember making statements that both Sommerville and Wilk lied and one was terminated while one was just suspended and I believed that is unfair.

"Hugg does not understand some of the decisions that are made. His schedule would change in June. He talked to Lieutenant Wegner and talked to Sundheim about staying on the midnight shift."

What I believe I said was that Officers plan their lives around their full year's schedule that we receive in December the previous year. But in 2024, shortly before June we were told that the schedule was changing in June and that they will try an accommodate peoples personal schedules. My "new" schedule was the opposite of my "old" schedule. This change now made it so I had to work the day of my wedding which was in the end of June. My wedding day was known in the department, shortly before the schedule came out Sundheim and myself spoke about the wedding. When I came in to speak about it, I was told that I would have my wedding off but if I wasn't able to get another officer to switch schedules with me I would have to take PTO to cover my already planned personal schedule. The total of hours I would have needed to take was an extra 80 hours of PTO. I did however get the officer that was on my "old" days to switch schedules with me so it never did end up changing. The officer that switched with me was the next officer under me in seniority. This other officer that switched with me also got his "old" days. With me and the other Officer being next to each other on the shift seniority list and our schedules being flipped, it was clear to me they did not care about how the change would affect us. I have also been on dayshift since 2022 and it was not changed to the 12-10 shit with this change.

Amanda Wright Koelbel interviewed Amanda Wright via Zoom on October 9, 2024, at 2:00 p.m. CT. She worked as a dispatcher from 2017 to 2020. She was forced to resign by Chief Klug in July 2020. Chief Olson had just retired, and Chief Klug was just starting. There was a hit-and-run on Broadway in front of the Taco Bell. She was told to answer a call from Margaret's console, so she did not have her equipment on hand (was working on a phone and a dead console with no computer or radio, information had to be relayed to another dispatcher to pass on the radio while there was many calls due to the accident.) The call was from a gentleman asking questions about the accident which she was unable to provide. No documentation of the call was able to be done since Amanda did not have a working console. Initially Sundbakken brought Amanda in and listened to the call with her. He provided a letter that was added into her file because the caller was actually the hit and run driver and there was no documentation of the call. Sundbakken told Amanda things like this happen. He even told her she was a good dispatcher and he was not concerned. He had confidence in her as a call taker. This was her first and only job performance coaching. Two weeks later Chief Klug called Amanda back in and she was placed on administrative leave, everyone in the department was forbidden from speaking with her, and she was under investigation. She was suffering from [redacted] . Amanda was working four ten-hour shifts on the overnight shift. She was not sleeping, the environment was tense and abrasive with other staff, and she felt entirely unsupported by her supervisor. A year later she was reading the resignation paperwork and it listed two incidents: a warrant that was not removed from LMS, and a medical call received in error. She deviated from instructions from the card, warrants should not be missed ever but, sometimes their removal is busy work or passed on to the next shift. After resigning, Amanda found out Margaret told co-workers that Amanda claimed mental health issues, but Margaret "knows others with real mental health issues and there is no way she has them, it's an excuse". Amanda feels that confidential medical information as well as anything said in a closed door meeting with her supervisor and the Chief should've stayed behind that closed door. Prior to the investigation Amanda had attempted to utilize the department EAP program. Amanda was unaware that Chief's wife was one of the therapists and scheduled an appointment with the Village in an attempt to get some support. When she arrived at the appointment she was assigned to Maggie Bohannon who pointed at a picture of Chief and asked Amanda if she was comfortable with her being her therapist as she was the Chief's spouse. Amanda was not, she took the recommendations for other therapists and got on a waiting a list. Amanda felt it was unprofessional and intimidating to be placed in that scenario and she wondered how many other dispatchers and officers had needed to talk to someone and ended up in the same office.

During COVID, she was dating one of the deputies, but keeping it quiet. The deputy got COVID. So, she called in since she had to isolate. She shared with Margaret that she was dating this deputy to establish that she did not go out of the directives of no large or unnecessary gatherings that had been passed down from chief. Please redact Deputy Van Pelts Name, he was murdered on Christmas Eve and his girlfriend was injured. I've had a few people reach out to me thinking I was the injured party. Out of respect for them and their families his name should not appear as it has nothing to do with him."Margaret subsequently shared with everyone that she was dating the deputy and had COVID. Again, sharing confidential medical information and information that was shared in a private meeting. Amanda had gone to Margaret multiple times about struggles in the center, morale, and attempted to speak with her seriously in her review. The response she received was Margaret relaying information of hard times she's had personally in the past and her saying scheduling changes were coming and they'd figure it out. When Amanda was pulled into Chief's office Margaret stated she knew nothing of the struggles Amanda had in dispatch and made it sound like she would make every effort to look into the issues and make scheduling adjustments as need.

Prior to PSAP Manager, Margaret was her trainer. Margaret's behavior was not what you would expect of a trainer or leader. She often exceeded the allotted break times and spent time working on personal crafts or visiting with officers in and out of dispatch. Some nights she'd give the trainee's crossword puzzles or other busy work because she wasn't in the mood to train. She once told a domestic violence victim that "if your cell phone dies, you can still call 911." When McPeak was there it was a lot better. Night and day difference atmosphere-wise.

For lunches and breaks, people used to come in to cover breaks that may not have been paid – Sean and Shanlya. When two people were on shift that was how they used to get a break. You make more mistakes when you are exhausted and stressed, Amanda did not work excessive overtime because of this but did work many 2 person shifts and was unable to leave the center for the entirety of the shift. M E M O R A N D U M P A G E 9 3 CLARKHILL\M9214\501629\279417273.v9-11/20/24 Amanda found the work in dispatch to be incredibly rewarding in itself but the environment and leadership made it a draining position that did not foster an environment of support of stability. There were very few incident debriefs that were held during her time there and when they were had they made it inaccessible. If you work nights you would have to come in in the middle of the day and still return on time for your evening shift. There were several coworkers who would chastise the other staff for attending. Day shift would have to find someone from another shift to cover so they were able to attend. It would've been helpful to have multiple meetings so everyone could attend and receive support. There were also several DUI's during Amanda's employment. 2 in dispatch that were handled completely differently. One of the employees had been in trouble legally prior and the other had not but, the one who hadn't received a graver punishment. Amanda feels there is a precedent of breaches in confidentiality and repeat disregard for mental health. The department has had 2 suicides in less than 3 years and Amanda wonders if more could have been done for Blanchard and Watne.

Investigation Correction

To: Yvette Heintzelman

In March of 2021 I put in for a training called Evidence based interview and interrogation in Bismarck ND. The training was set to take place on March 22nd , 2021. During this time I was assigned to the night shift. At this time (though covid was still going on) Officers were being sent to trainings on a case by case basis. I had put in my training request approximately two to three weeks prior to the training. The training did require lodging. Approximately a week and a half prior to the training I spoke with Lt. Haug and asked him if the training request had been either approved or denied. He had informed me that he had not heard by in regard to the training from the captains or Chief Klug. Lt. Haug informed me that he would inquire about the training.

A week later (approximately 3 to 4 days before the training), I had not heard anything about the training. At this point I just needed to know if it was a yes or no as I still had to get lodging if it was approved. I first inquired about the training again with Lt. Haug , who again said he would speak with command staff. I then went into Captain Sundbakken's Office just after 8am to inquire about the training. At this time I was frustrated about the lack of communication and process in general. When I inquired about what was going on with the training I was told to shut the door and to sit down. At this time it was only Captain Sundbakken and I in the room. Like I stated previously at this time I was frustrated. I did have a tone about me. I was first told by Captain Sundbakken that he had "not even had his coffee yet" and then I should not be coming into his Officer the way that I did. During this time I will say I never once yelled at Captain Sundbakken. I came away from the interaction with Captain Sundbakken even more frustrated because how he handled the interaction. To me it appeared that more concerns or my training were not worth his time.

After I left Captain Sundbakken's Office, I changed out and got into my vehicle. While getting into my vehicle I received a phone call from Lt. Haug stating that Chief Klug had approved my training down in Bismarck.

I then woke up around 4 or 5 pm the same day after sleeping to a text message or email from Lt. Haug stating that the training had been denied. This was frustrating to me as I felt like I was being punished for inquiring about the training.

That same night I went to briefing and was told by Sgt. Schoenrock that I had yelled at Captain Sundbakken. I proceeded to ask Sgt. Schoenrock if he was there, he stated that he was not. He informed me that he was told that I yelled at Captain Sundbakken. Like previously stated there were only two people in the room and Captain Plesas Office next door. I informed Sgt. Schoenrock that I did not yell at Captain Sundbakken but felt like I was punished for "yelling at him" without any sort of investigation or inquiry into the incident. I was never asked about the incident from any other command staff or an internal investigator, yet I was denied a training based on one person's story and punished. The fact that the training was denied is not my issue. My issue was the fact that I appear to have been denied based up on an altercation with captain Sundbakken which was never investigated.

That same year when during end of the year evaluations I was given a negative evaluation in the category of "Ability to work cooperatively with supervision or as part of a team". The evaluation meeting was led by Lt. Haug, but Sgt. Schoenrock was present. Under the comments sections it was written "Officer Roach needs to remember that the night shift is part of a larger teams and needs to improve his demeanor towards administration and other personnel outside of patrol. The total team effort includes all aspects of the department as a whole".

I have never been accused of not working as a team player other than this evaluation. This comment seemed targeted towards the incident that took place with Captain Sundbakken, which again was never inquired about but I was continued to be punished for in an evaluation.

I was then informed by Sgt. Schoenrock that he did my evaluation but stated that it had been changed by someone higher up then him.

As far as the night shift went during this time. We were kind of labeled agitators by the administration. The admin did not like things that we did such as what is being referred to as the "Sammy Sosa Kiss" or "one shift". This was something that we did with every shift in the department and it was not just a "night shift" thing.

In regard to chief Klug, I never received my one on one meeting with him. It was my understanding that the Majority of night shift did not receive a meeting with him. After passing my Master Officer test I also did not receive any sort of promotion ceremony. In fact, I did not receive my Master Officer pins for approximately 2 to 3 months. When I did finally receive them, they were left in my mailbox. It was very common for night shift officers to not receive a promotion ceremony or to receive their pins for weeks if not months after the fact.

During this time there a large amount of communication issued between the administration and the Officers. Chief Klug would implement policy's without any regard for the effect that they would have on Officers and their family. One in particular was the 4 year maximum on an shifts and or special assignments. Investigations roles in particular did not make sense to me. Most detectives don't really start to hit their stride and understand everything that needs to be done on bigger cases until year 3 or 4.

Breaks are allowed in the employee's room if the employee is working in the Water Maintenance Yard, Shop, Public Works Building, Water Plant, City offices, etc., at the time of break. If the employee is in a mobile unit at break time, the break may be taken at the nearest convenient location, or in the unit. The immediate supervisor has the authority to add other reasonable rules to the above, for the efficiency of the operation and the public image of the department.

Harassment Policy

Statement of Philosophy: It is the policy of the City to provide a positive work environment that is free of discrimination, sexual and all other forms or harassment. This policy is a measure to ensure that all employees will enjoy a safe workplace free from unreasonable interference, intimidation, hostility, or offensive behavior on the part of the council, department heads, supervisors, co-workers or visitors. All employees are responsible for compliance with this guideline, as the City of Minot will not tolerate unlawful discrimination or harassment.

A. It is the City policy that sexual and other unlawful harassment of its employees in any form is prohibited and that all employees shall be treated with respect. Actions, words, jokes or comments based on an individual's sex, race, ethnicity, age, disability, religion, sexual orientation or any other legally protected characteristic shall not be tolerated.
B. Employees have the right, under Section 703 of Title VII of the Federal Civil Rights Act of 1964, to work in an environment that is free of conduct that can be considered sexually harassing or abusive. Any employee who engages in, who perpetuates or condones sexual or other unlawful harassment shall be subject to disciplinary action, up to and including termination.
C. The City, in recognizing its obligation to maintain a place of employment that is free of harassing, abusive, or disruptive conduct shall take positive and prompt corrective action where necessary in accordance with this policy.

Definitions:

Unlawful harassment is defined as verbal or physical behavior which relates to an individual's race, color, national origin, religion, gender, age, sexual orientation and/or disability when such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work performance or creating an intimidating, hostile or offensive work environment.

Workplace harassment is defined as any unwelcome conduct, whether, verbal, physical, visual, or innuendos that are derogatory, abusive, disparaging, bullying, threatening or disrespectful types of behavior, even if unrelated to a legally protected status; when such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work performance or creating an intimidating, hostile or offensive work environment.

Sexual harassment is defined as any verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature such as, but not limited to, sex-oriented remarks or jokes, pressures or demands for sexual favors, implied or overt promises or threats, or any unwelcome conduct with sexual or demeaning overtones when:

- Submission to or rejection of such conduct is made, explicitly or implicitly, as a term or condition of employment or advancement;

This page contains no comments

- Submission to or rejection of such conduct by an individual is used as a basis for employment decisions affecting such individual; or
- Such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonable interfering with an individual's work performance or creates an intimidating, hostile, or sexually offensive working environment.

Unacceptable Conduct Defined: Sexual harassment is a serious offense and is a form of employee misconduct. Sexual harassment does not refer to the occasional non-sexual compliment, but to behavior of a sexual nature that is not welcome, is personally offensive and impairs an employee's work effectiveness or is behavior that creates an intimidating, hostile or offensive work environment.

The following are types of conduct an example of harassment, which are prohibited. These examples do not necessarily represent all ways in which sexual harassment may occur and are not intended to limit the definition of sexual harassment.

A. Verbal comments and gestures of a sexual nature including any suggestive remarks, pictures, jokes and catcalls.
B. Explicit or implicit promises of career advancement or preferential treatment in return for sexual favors. Such promises or preferential treatment may include but are not limited to: hiring, promotion, training opportunities, work schedule, leave approval, performance evaluations and pay increases.
C. Explicit or implicit threats that an employee shall be adversely affected if sexual demands are rejected. Such threats include but are not limited to: lower performance evaluations, denial of promotions, punitive transfers, terminations and altered/increased work assignments.
D. Unsolicited and repeated touching of any kind including: touching, patting or pinching of another person, or repetitive brushing against a person's body.
E. Derogatory remarks about a person's national origin, race, language, accent; disparaging or disrespectful comments.
F. Loud, angry outbursts or loud, angry outbursts of obscenities.

Responsibilities of Employees, Elected Officials, Department Heads and Supervisors:

A. All employees have a responsibility to conduct themselves in a manner, which ensures the proper performance of their job responsibilities and maintains the public's confidence. Employees who experience or witness any type of sexual, workplace or unlawful harassment should follow the steps outlined in the Complaint process to assist in maintaining a workplace environment free of sexual, workplace or unlawful harassment.
B. Department Heads and other department Supervisors have a responsibility to act immediately and take corrective action when they observe behavior that violates this policy. All management representatives must recognize the seriousness and sensitive nature of any sexual, workplace or unlawful harassment complaint brought to their attention and need to follow the procedures outlined in this policy to assist in maintaining a workplace environment free of unlawful discrimination or harassment.

Complaint Procedures

City Employees or job applicants who perceive they have been subjected to sexual harassment have the right to pursue a grievance including an appeal to the Civil Service Commission pursuant to procedures stated in Sections 24-101 through 24-104 of the City of Minot Code of Ordinances. If unreported the City is severely limited in maintaining a workplace free of sexual or other unlawful workplace harassment. Employees are not required to deal directly with an offending individual(s) in seeking a resolution.

A. An employee who feels that he/she has been subject to sexual, unlawful or workplace harassment should clearly state to the individual that his/her behavior is offensive to them.
B. If you are unable to confront your alleged offender or the behavior persists after confronting the alleged offender, go to your immediate Supervisor who shall immediately notify the Department Head and Human Resources.
C. If the immediate Supervisor is involved in the alleged harassment, the incident should be reported director to the Department Head, who shall immediately notify Human Resources.
D. If the complaint involves the Department Head, the incident should be reported directly to the Human Resource Director and/or the City Manager.
E. If the complaint involves a member of Human Resources, the incident should be reported to the Department Head and/or the City Manager.
F. If the complaint involves the City Manager or a member of the City Council, the incident should be reported directly to the Human Resource Director.
G. The Human Resource Director shall be responsible for conducting an investigation in a fair, prompt and complete manner as outlined in the nature and scope of investigation.

Nature and Scope of Investigation:

- Any investigation of a complaint of sexual, workplace or unlawful harassment shall be limited to an inquiry of the truth or falsity of a specific complaint.
- Interviews of all relevant witnesses will be conducted in confidence to the extent permitted by law, and summaries of witnesses' statements and the investigator findings shall be in writing.
- To the extent permitted by law, investigations shall be conducted in a confidential manner; the knowledge of a pending investigation, nor the contents and/or findings of an investigation will not be shared except with the appropriate parties, or otherwise required by law.
- Persons who are asked to cooperate and participate in a pending investigation shall only be informed that a harassment complaint has been brought and that information being sought from the individual is a necessary part of the investigation. Written contents and findings of investigations are done pursuant to the complaint process and shall be maintained by the Human Resource Department in a secure place. However, it must be noted to all employees, that records of the City are public, except certain confidential records in accordance with NDCC 44-04-18.1.

Discipline

- An employee who is found to have engaged in sexual, workplace or unlawful harassment or retaliation, or who is found to have knowingly condoned, encouraged, or perpetuated an act or acts of sexual, workplace, or unlawful harassment or retaliation, shall be subject to disciplinary action: including but not limited to, suspension, loss of salary increment, demotion and termination.

- Any employee who believes they have been unfairly disciplined may follow the City of Minot Grievance Procedure as outlined in the City of Minot Employee Personnel Policy Handbook in Chapter 7.

Dissemination of Policy

Prevention and education are the best tools for the elimination of workplace and sexual harassment. The City will take all steps necessary to prevent harassment in any form from occurring such as:

- Conducting training for Department Heads, Supervisors and Employees to affirmatively raise the subject by reviewing policies, discussing behaviors to be mindful of, and a general awareness of intimidating, hostile, or offensive workplace environments and sexual harassment.
- Informing all City employees of the policy.
- Investigating all claims of harassment, hostile work environment, and/or any unwelcome conduct in a confidential manner.
- Taking appropriate disciplinary action for the prevention of reoccurrence of sexual harassment.

Disciplinary Policy

The Civil Service Commission has implemented the following rules and regulations as they refer to discipline of City employees:

A. Procedural Rule: In all matters of employees' discipline, the employee's rights of due process will be observed. No employee will be subject to punishment for behavior which is not reasonably identified in Section IV as being the sort of behavior which can give rise to disciplinary action.
B. Allowable Disciplinary Punishments: Employees may be subject to any one or more of the following disciplinary punishments in accordance with the rules and regulations authorized under Section IV:
    1. A letter of reprimand to be included in the employee's personnel file (refer to Section 1-12 of the Code of Ordinances);
    2. Special performance evaluation that reflects cause for discipline;
    3. A temporary decrease in pay in an amount not to exceed twenty (20) percent of the amount of gross pay which the employee would be receiving in the absence of disciplinary punishment for a period of time not to exceed one hundred eighty (180) consecutive days;
    4. Suspension without pay;
    5. Lateral Transfer;
    6. Demotion,
    7. Dismissal.

    A lateral transfer for disciplinary reasons may only be made to a pre-existing vacancy and then only in accordance with the following rules:
    1. The pre-existing vacancy is first opened up to all other employees. If, after posting the position vacancy for 10 days there is no application from any employee who is in good standing and who meets the qualifications for the position, then the lateral transfer may be considered.

This page contains no comments

2. Both the Department Head of the department from which the lateral transfer is made and the Department Head of the department to which the lateral transfer is made must agree to the lateral transfer.
3. The concerned employee must meet the qualifications for the position to which he or she may be laterally transferred.

C. Appeal: An employee who has been subjected to disciplinary action resulting in the imposition of disciplinary punishment may appeal by following the City of Minot Grievance Procedure.

D. Substantive Regulations: Employees may be subject to any one or more of the disciplinary punishments provided in Section II for the following types of behavior:
1. Misconduct (i.e. the deliberate violation of a City policy set forth in the employee handbook, Civil Service ordinances or departmental rules and regulations).
2. Insubordination (i.e. being unwilling to submit to supervisory authority).
3. Chronic tardiness (i.e. frequently being late to work over a long duration).
4. Unauthorized absence (i.e. not showing up for work without proper approval).
5. Inefficiency, incompetence, or negligence (i.e. being wasteful of time or energy, lacking qualities needed for effective action, or failure to exercise the care that a prudent person usually exercises).
6. Violation of Safety Rules or Procedures for the employee's job, or, violation of safety rules or procedures, that extends to all City Employees.
7. Conviction of a felony.
8. Being under the influence of or use of intoxicating beverages while on duty.
9. Unlawfully manufacturing, distributing, dispensing, possessing, being under the influence of or using a controlled substance on any City of Minot worksite at any time or elsewhere during working hours.
10. Sale or delivery of non-prescription controlled substance.
11. Theft of City property.
12. Willful destruction of City property.
13. Falsification of City records.

(The above are types of behavior. They are not intended to describe specific events or to indicate the seriousness of the offense. The punishments listed in Section II will be applied in relation to the degree of the offense.)

E. Effect on Departmental Rules and Regulations: The Civil Service Commission has approved disciplinary rules and regulations for the Police Department and the Fire Department. Implementation of the foregoing rules and regulations will not supersede any previously adopted rules. If a conflict exists between these rules and previously adopted rules of the Police and Fire Department, the rules of the Police and Fire Department will govern.

Suspension, Demotion, and Dismissal

A procedure for implementing the suspension, demotion or dismissal of officials and employees of the City of Minot for misconduct, inefficiency, and other contributing factors, has been developed by the Civil Service Commission. The procedure consists of an investigation and appeals hearing of the adversely affected employee. No employee shall be suspended or discharged without adequate reason and just cause.

Grievance Procedure

The grievance procedure is defined as a procedure whereby any employee who is adversely affected by a decision of his/her immediate Supervisor, Superintendent/Manager or equivalent, or Department Head, may require the decision be reviewed by a person having the authority to reverse the decision. This procedure is as follows:

1. Oral Report: An employee who has a grievance shall first discuss his grievance with his/her immediate Supervisor. If the grievance pertains to a decision made by that Supervisor, the employee may forward the grievance in writing to the next Supervisory level in the department which is generally the Superintendent, Manager or equivalent within the Police and Fire departments.
2. Written Report: The written report must be submitted to the next Supervisory level, as indicated above, within five (5) working days of the initial decision by the immediate Supervisor. Within five (5) working days after receiving a written grievance, the next level of Supervision shall furnish the employee with a written reply to the grievance. If the grievance pertains to a Department Head, the written report must be submitted to the Human Resource Director within five (5) working days of the initial decision.
3. Appeal to Department Head: If the written reply to the grievance is not satisfactory to the employee, he/she may, within ten (10) working days after receiving the reply, submit an appeal in writing to his/her Department Head. The Department Head shall confer with the aggrieved employee and/or his authorized representative and the employee's supervisor before rendering a decision. Such a decision shall be provided in writing and shall be delivered to the aggrieved employee within ten (10) working days of the date on which the appeal was received by the department head.
4. Appeal to Civil Service Commission: If the appeal to the Department Head fails to resolve the grievance, the employee may, within five (5) working days of receipt of decision on the appeal, submit an appeal in writing to the Civil Service Commission. This appeal shall be filed with the Human Resource Office and be referred to the next available meeting of the Civil Service Commission for its review, which shall be final.

Note: The grievance procedure does not apply to: employee terminations related to probationary employment, for just cause or due to a reduction in force; or employee transfers for the good of the service.

MINOT POLICE DEPARTMENT POLICIES RELEVANT SECTIONS

Law Enforcement Code of Ethics

As a law enforcement officer, my fundamental duty is to serve the community; to safeguard lives and property; to protect the innocent against deception, the weak against oppression or intimidation and the peaceful against abuse or disorder; and to respect the constitutional rights of all to liberty, equality and justice.

I will keep my private life unsullied as an example to all and will behave in a manner that does not bring discredit to me or to my agency. I will maintain courageous calm in the face of danger, scorn or ridicule; develop self-restraint; and be constantly mindful of the welfare of others. Honest in thought and deed both in my personal and official life, I will be exemplary in obeying the law and the regulations of my department. Whatever I see or hear of a confidential nature or that is confided to me in my official capacity will be kept ever secret unless revelation is necessary in the performance of my duty.

I will never act officiously or permit personal feelings, prejudices, political beliefs, aspirations, animosities or friendships to influence my decisions. With no compromise for crime and with relentless prosecution of criminals, I will enforce the law courteously and appropriately without fear or favor, malice or ill will, never employing unnecessary force or abuse and never accepting gratuities.

I recognize the badge of my office as a symbol of public faith, and I accept it as a public trust to be held so long as I am true to the ethics of police service. I will never engage in acts of corruption or bribery, nor will I condone such acts by other police officers. I will cooperate with all legally authorized agencies and their representatives in the pursuit of justice.

I know that I alone am responsible for my own standard of professional performance and will take every reasonable opportunity to enhance and improve my level of knowledge and competence.

I will constantly strive to achieve these objectives and ideals, dedicating myself before God to my chosen profession . . . law enforcement.

Discriminatory Harassment

316.1 POLICY

The Minot Police Department is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to creating and maintaining a work environment that is free of all forms of discriminatory harassment, including sexual harassment and retaliation. The Department will not tolerate discrimination against members in hiring, promotion, discharge, compensation, fringe benefits, and other privileges of employment. The Department will take preventive and corrective action to address any behavior that violates this policy or the rights and privileges it is designed to protect.

The nondiscrimination policies of the Department may be more comprehensive than state or federal law. Conduct that violates this policy may or may not violate state or federal law but still could subject a member to discipline.

Meal Periods and Breaks

1011.1 PURPOSE AND SCOPE

This policy regarding meals and breaks, insofar as reasonably possible, shall conform to the policy governing all City employees that has been established by the City Manager.

1011.1.1 MEAL PERIODS

This page contains no comments

Licensed employees and dispatchers shall remain on-duty subject to call during meal breaks. All other employees are not on-call during meal breaks unless directed otherwise by a supervisor.

Uniformed patrol and traffic officers shall request clearance from Minot Central Dispatch prior to taking a meal period. Uniformed officers shall take their breaks within the City limits and shall monitor their radios unless on assignment outside of the City.

The time spent for the meal period shall not exceed the authorized time allowed.

1011.1.2 15-MINUTE BREAKS

Each employee is entitled to a 15-minute break, near the midpoint, for each four-hour work period. Only one 15-minute break shall be taken during each four hours of duty. No breaks shall be taken during the first or last hour of an employee's shift unless approved by a supervisor.

Employees normally assigned to the police facility shall remain in the police facility for their breaks. This would not prohibit them from taking a break outside the facility if on official business.

Field officers will take their breaks in their assigned areas, subject to call, and shall monitor their radios.

Personnel Complaints

1005.1 PURPOSE AND SCOPE

This policy provides guidelines for the reporting, investigation and disposition of complaints regarding the conduct of members of the Minot Police Department. This policy shall not apply to any questioning, counseling, instruction, informal verbal admonishment or other routine or unplanned contact of a member in the normal course of duty, by a supervisor or any other member, nor shall this policy apply to a criminal investigation.

1005.2 POLICY

The Minot Police Department takes seriously all complaints regarding the service provided by the Department and the conduct of its members.

The Department will accept and address all complaints of misconduct in accordance with this policy and applicable federal and state laws, City of Minot ordinances and the City of Minot Employee Manual.

It is also the policy of this department to ensure that the community can report misconduct without concern for reprisal or retaliation.

1005.3 PERSONNEL COMPLAINTS

Personnel complaints include any allegation of misconduct or improper job performance that, if true, would constitute a violation of department policy or of federal, state or local law, policy or rule. Personnel complaints may be generated internally or by the public.

This page contains no comments

Inquiries about conduct or performance that, if true, would not violate department policy or federal, state or local law, policy or rule may be handled informally by a supervisor and shall not be considered a personnel complaint. Such inquiries generally include clarification regarding policy, procedures or the response to specific incidents by the Department.

1005.3.1 COMPLAINT CLASSIFICATIONS

Personnel complaints shall be classified in one of the following categories:

Informal - A relatively minor matter in which the supervisor is satisfied that appropriate action has been taken to address the matter.

Formal - A matter in which a supervisor determines that further action may be warranted. Such complaints are generally investigated by a supervisor of rank greater than the accused member.

Incomplete - A matter in which the complaining party either refuses to cooperate or becomes unavailable after diligent follow-up investigation. At the discretion of the supervisor or the Chief of Police, such matters may be further investigated depending on the seriousness of the complaint and the availability of sufficient information.

1005.3.2 SOURCES OF COMPLAINTS

The following applies to the source of complaints:

(a) Individuals from the public may make complaints in any form, including in writing, by email, in person or by telephone.
(b) Any department member becoming aware of alleged misconduct shall immediately notify their supervisor.
(c) Supervisors shall initiate a complaint based upon observed misconduct or receipt from any source alleging misconduct that, if true, could result in disciplinary action.
(d) Anonymous and third-party complaints should be accepted and investigated to the extent that sufficient information is provided.
(e) Tort claims and lawsuits may generate a personnel complaint.

1005.4 AVAILABILITY AND ACCEPTANCE OF COMPLAINTS

1005.4.1 COMPLAINT FORMS

Personnel complaint forms will be maintained in a clearly visible location in the public area of the police facility and be accessible through the department website.

Personnel complaint forms in languages other than English may also be provided, as determined necessary or practicable.

1005.4.2 ACCEPTANCE

All complaints will be courteously accepted by any department member and promptly given to the appropriate supervisor. Although written complaints are preferred, a complaint may also be filed orally, either in person or by telephone. Such complaints will be directed to a supervisor. If a supervisor is not immediately available to take an oral complaint, the receiving member shall obtain contact information sufficient for the supervisor to contact the complainant. In cases of a formal complaint, the supervisor, upon contact with the complainant, shall complete and submit a complaint form to the Chief of Police..

This page contains no comments

Although not required, complainants should be encouraged to file complaints in person so that proper identification, signatures, photographs or physical evidence may be obtained as necessary.

1005.5 DOCUMENTATION

Supervisors shall ensure that all formal complaints are documented on a complaint form and forwarded to the Chief of Police. The supervisor shall ensure that the nature of the complaint is defined as clearly as possible.

All received complaint forms will be documented in a log that records and tracks complaints. The log shall include the nature of the complaint and the actions taken to address the complaint. The log will be maintained by the Chief of Police or the authorized designee.

1005.6 ADMINISTRATIVE INVESTIGATIONS

Allegations of misconduct will be administratively investigated as follows.

1005.6.1 SUPERVISOR RESPONSIBILITIES

In general, the primary responsibility for the investigation of a personnel complaint shall rest with the member's immediate supervisor, unless the supervisor is the complainant, or has any personal involvement regarding the alleged misconduct. The Chief of Police may direct that another supervisor investigate any complaint.

A supervisor who becomes aware of alleged misconduct shall take reasonable steps to prevent aggravation of the situation.

The responsibilities of supervisors include, but are not limited to:

(a) Ensuring that upon receiving or initiating any complaint, a complaint form is completed.
(b) Responding to all complainants in a courteous and professional manner.
(c) Resolving those personnel complaints that can be resolved immediately.
    a. Follow-up contact with the complainant should be made within a reasonable time frame.
    b. If the matter is resolved and no further action is required, the supervisor will note the resolution on a complaint form and forward the form to the Professional Standards Lieutenant.
(d) Ensuring that upon receipt of a complaint involving allegations of a potentially serious nature, the Patrol Supervisor and Chief of Police shall be notified as soon as practicable.
(e) Promptly contacting the Division Commander and Chief of Police for direction regarding their roles in addressing a complaint that relates to sexual, racial, ethnic or other forms of prohibited harassment or discrimination.
(f) Investigating a complaint as follows:

a. Making reasonable efforts to obtain names, addresses and telephone numbers of witnesses.
b. When appropriate, ensuring immediate medical attention is provided and photographs of alleged injuries and accessible uninjured areas are taken.

(g) Ensuring that the procedural rights of the accused member are followed.

1005.6.2 ADMINISTRATIVE INVESTIGATION PROCEDURES

The following applies to employees conducting administrative investigations:

(a) Interviews of an accused employee shall be conducted during reasonable hours and preferably when the employee is on-duty. If the employee is off-duty, he/she shall be compensated.
(b) Unless waived by the employee, interviews of an accused employee shall be at the Minot Police Department or other reasonable and appropriate place.
(c) No more than two interviewers should ask questions of an accused employee.
(d) Prior to any interview, an employee should be informed of the nature of the investigation unless it would jeopardize the investigation.
(e) All interviews should be for a reasonable period and the employee's personal needs should be accommodated.
(f) No employee should be threatened, nor shall any promises, rewards or other inducements be used to obtain answers.
(g) Any employee refusing to answer questions directly related to the investigation may be ordered to answer questions administratively and may be subject to discipline for failing to do so.
    a. An employee should be given an order to answer questions in an administrative investigation that might incriminate the employee in a criminal matter only after the employee has been given a Garrity advisement.
(h) The interviewer should record all interviews of employees and witnesses. The employee may also openly record the interview. A copy of that recorded interview should be provided to the employee prior to any subsequent interview upon request.
(i) All employees subjected to interviews that could result in discipline have the right to have an uninvolved representative present during the interview. However, in order to maintain the integrity of each individual's statement, involved employees shall not consult or meet with a representative or attorney collectively or in groups prior to being interviewed.
(j) All employees shall provide complete and truthful responses to questions posed during interviews.
(k) No employee may be compelled to submit to a deception detection device examination, nor shall any refusal to submit to such examination be mentioned in any investigation.

1005.6.3 ADMINISTRATIVE INVESTIGATION FORMAT

Investigations of formal personnel complaints shall follow this format:

Introduction - Include the identity of the members, the identity of the assigned investigators, the initial date and source of the complaint.

Synopsis - Provide a brief summary of the facts giving rise to the investigation.

This page contains no comments

Summary - List the allegations separately, including applicable policy sections, with a brief summary of the evidence relevant to each allegation. A separate recommended finding should be provided for each allegation.

Evidence - Each allegation should be set forth with the details of the evidence applicable to each allegation provided, including comprehensive summaries of member and witness statements. Other evidence related to each allegation should also be detailed in this section.

Conclusion - A recommendation regarding further action or disposition may be provided.

Exhibits - A separate list of exhibits (e.g., recordings, photos, documents) should be attached to the report.

1005.6.4 DISPOSITIONS

Each personnel complaint shall be classified with one of the following dispositions:

Unfounded - When the investigation discloses that the alleged acts did not occur or did not involve department members. Complaints that are determined to be frivolous will fall within the classification of unfounded.

Exonerated - When the investigation discloses that the alleged act occurred but that the act was justified, lawful and/or proper.

Not sustained - When the investigation discloses that there is insufficient evidence to sustain the complaint or fully exonerate the member.

Sustained - When the investigation discloses sufficient evidence to establish that the act occurred and that it constituted misconduct.

If an investigation discloses misconduct or improper job performance that was not alleged in the original complaint, the investigator shall take appropriate action with regard to any additional allegations.

1005.6.5 COMPLETION OF INVESTIGATIONS

Every investigator or supervisor assigned to investigate a personnel complaint or other alleged misconduct shall proceed with due diligence in an effort to complete the investigation.

1005.6.6 NOTICE TO COMPLAINANT OF INVESTIGATION

The member conducting the investigation should provide the complainant with periodic updates on the status of the investigation, as appropriate.

1005.6.7 COMPLAINT REGARDING THE USE OF A CONFIDENTIAL INFORMANT

The member conducting the investigation regarding the alleged misuse of a confidential informant in violation of N.D.C.C. § 29-29.5-01 et seq. shall comply with the investigation time frame and notification requirements of N.D.C.C. § 29-29.5-07.

Anti-Retaliation

1000.1 PURPOSE AND SCOPE

This policy prohibits retaliation against members who identify workplace issues, such as fraud, waste, abuse of authority, gross mismanagement or any inappropriate conduct or practices, including violations that may pose a threat to the health, safety or well-being of members.

This policy does not prohibit actions taken for nondiscriminatory or non-retaliatory reasons, such as discipline for cause.

These guidelines are intended to supplement and not limit members' access to other applicable remedies. Nothing in this policy shall diminish the rights or remedies of a member pursuant to any applicable federal law, provision of the U.S. Constitution, law, ordinance or employment agreement.

1000.2 POLICY

The Minot Police Department has a zero tolerance for retaliation and is committed to taking reasonable steps to protect from retaliation members who, in good faith, engage in permitted behavior or who report or participate in the reporting or investigation of workplace issues. All complaints of retaliation will be taken seriously and will be promptly and appropriately investigated.

1000.3 RETALIATION PROHIBITED

No member may retaliate against any person for engaging in lawful or otherwise permitted behavior; for opposing a practice believed to be unlawful, unethical, discriminatory or retaliatory; for reporting or making a complaint under this policy; or for participating in any investigation related to a complaint under this or any other policy.

Retaliation includes any adverse action or conduct, including but not limited to:

- Refusing to hire or denying a promotion.
- Extending the probationary period.
- Unjustified reassignment of duties or change of work schedule.
- Real or implied threats or other forms of intimidation to dissuade the reporting of wrongdoing or filing of a complaint, or as a consequence of having reported or participated in protected activity.
- Taking unwarranted disciplinary action.
- Spreading rumors about the person filing the complaint or about the alleged wrongdoing.
- Shunning or unreasonably avoiding a person because he/she has engaged in protected activity.

1000.4 COMPLAINTS OF RETALIATION

Any member who feels he/she has been retaliated against in violation of this policy should promptly report the matter to any supervisor, command staff member, Chief of Police or the City Human Resource Director.

Members shall act in good faith, not engage in unwarranted reporting of trivial or minor deviations or transgressions, and make reasonable efforts to verify facts before making any complaint in order to avoid baseless allegations. Members shall not report or state an intention to report information or an allegation knowing it to be false, with willful or reckless disregard for the truth or falsity of the information or otherwise act in bad faith.

Investigations are generally more effective when the identity of the reporting member is known, thereby allowing investigators to obtain additional information from the reporting member. However, complaints may be made anonymously. All reasonable efforts shall be made to protect the reporting member's identity. However, confidential information may be disclosed to the extent required by law or to the degree necessary to conduct an adequate investigation and make a determination regarding a complaint. In some situations, the investigative process may not be complete unless the source of the information and a statement by the member is part of the investigative process.

1000.5 SUPERVISOR RESPONSIBILITIES

Supervisors are expected to remain familiar with this policy and ensure that members under their command are aware of its provisions.

The responsibilities of supervisors include, but are not limited to:

(a) Ensuring complaints of retaliation are investigated as provided in the Personnel Complaints Policy.
(b) Receiving all complaints in a fair and impartial manner.
(c) Documenting the complaint and any steps taken to resolve the problem.
(d) Acknowledging receipt of the complaint, notifying the Chief of Police via the chain of command and explaining to the member how the complaint will be handled.
(e) Taking appropriate and reasonable steps to mitigate any further violations of this policy.
(f) Monitoring the work environment to ensure that any member making a complaint is not subjected to further retaliation.
(g) Periodic follow-up with the complainant to ensure that retaliation is not continuing.
(h) Not interfering with or denying the right of a member to make any complaint.
(i) Taking reasonable steps to accommodate requests for assignment or schedule changes made by a member who may be the target of retaliation if it would likely mitigate the potential for further violations of this policy.

1000.6 COMMAND STAFF RESPONSIBILITIES

The Chief of Police should communicate to all supervisors the prohibition against retaliation.

Command staff shall treat all complaints as serious matters and shall ensure that prompt actions take place, including but not limited to:

(a) Communicating to all members the prohibition against retaliation.
(b) The timely review of complaint investigations.
(c) Remediation of any inappropriate conduct or condition and instituting measures to eliminate or minimize the likelihood of recurrence.
(d) The timely communication of the outcome to the complainant.

1000.7 WHISTLE-BLOWING

North Dakota law protects employees who report job-related violations of law, rules, regulations, ordinances, or misuse of public resources in writing to the Chief of Police, State's Attorney, the attorney general, the state auditor, or an employee organization (N.D.C.C. § 34-11.1-04).

Members who believe they have been the subject of reprisal for engaging in such protected behaviors should promptly report it to a supervisor. Supervisors should refer the complaint to the Office of Professional Standards for investigation pursuant to the Personnel Complaints Policy.

1000.8 RECORDS RETENTION AND RELEASE

The Chief of Police shall ensure that documentation of investigations is maintained in accordance with the established records retention schedules.

1000.9 TRAINING

The policy should be reviewed with each new member.

All members should receive periodic refresher training on the requirements of this policy.

ROLE OF THE CHIEF

Sec. 27-40. - Appointment; duties; authority.

The chief of police, who shall be appointed pursuant to chapter 24, shall be responsible for the discipline, operations, and efficiency of the police department, and shall have all authority necessary to that end.

Rev. Gen. Ords. 1962, § 4-1801; Ord. No. 3890, § 2.

ROLE OF THE CITY MANAGER

Sec. 2-47. Duties generally.

The city manager shall be the chief administrative officer and shall:

(a) Be responsible to the city council for the proper administration of all of the affairs of the city;
(b) Prepare and submit to the governing body an annual preliminary budget as provided for under Chapter 40-40, N.D.C.C., and shall be responsible for the administration of the final budget, subject to the control of the city council as to changes in the same;
(c) Be responsible for law enforcement;
(d) Appoint and remove, subject to civil service regulations if in effect, all heads of administrative departments and employees of the city except the city attorney. However, the city manager shall neither appoint nor remove the head of any department without consent and approval of the city council;
(e) Keep the city council advised of the financial condition of the city and make such recommendations as may seem desirable;
(f) Be responsible for the purchase of all supplies, materials and equipment for the operations of the city in accordance with the purchasing policy of the, as established in this chapter; and

ROLE OF THE ELECTED OFFICIALS

From City of Minot Ordinances

Sec. 2-16. - Governing body—Who constitutes.

The governing body of the City of Minot is the city council, which is composed of seven (7) members, one (1) being the mayor and six (6) being aldermen.

(Ord. No. 5133, § 1)

Sec. 2-24. Council committees.

(a) The city council may meet as the committee of the whole, which shall be comprised of the entire governing body, and the council president, or the vice president in the absence of the president, shall preside over the committee of the whole meeting. In the absence of the president and vice president, the member in attendance with the most seniority shall preside over the committee of the whole meeting. The committee of the whole reports its recommendations at the conclusion of its deliberations.
(b) The city council may form such standing and special committees, and refer such matters to such committees, as it deems appropriate.
(c) Notwithstanding the reference of a matter to a committee of the council, and the absence of a report on such matter from the committee, and even if the committee has not yet had time to consider initially such matter, the city council as a whole may take up such matter at its own discretion.
(d) A majority of the members of a committee, including positions on the committee which are vacant, shall constitute a quorum; however, the absence of a quorum shall not prevent the members of the committee appearing at a meeting which has been properly noticed beforehand from informally considering the matters on the committee's agenda, and any other matter which might properly come before the committee if a quorum were present, and from reporting informally to the city council concerning their respective views about such matters.

Ord. No. 5133, § 1.

From North Dakota Century Code

The council shall perform all duties prescribed by law or by city ordinances and shall see that the laws and ordinances are faithfully executed.

Title VII Alternate Reporting Procedures

A complaint can be made by a third party, such as a friend, relative, or coworker, and need not be made by the target of the harassment. For example, if an employee witnesses a coworker being subjected to racial epithets by a person at work, and that employee reports it to the appropriate personnel in Human Resources, the employer is on notice of potentially harassing behavior. Similarly, even if no one complains, the employer still has notice if someone responsible for correcting or reporting harassment becomes aware of the harassment, such as by personally witnessing it. Available at https://www.eeoc.gov/laws/guidance/enforcement-guidance-harassment-workplace

See Clark v. United Parcel Serv., Inc., 400 F.3d 341, 350 (6th Cir. 2005) (concluding that the employer had notice of harassment that was witnessed by supervisors with a duty to report it to management, where the employer's anti-harassment policy required "all supervisors and managers" to report such harassment to the appropriate management personnel) (emphasis in original). Id. at 349 ("While there is no exact formula for what constitutes a 'reasonable' sexual harassment policy, an effective policy should at least . . . require supervisors to report incidents of sexual harassment.")

INTERVIEWS OF CURRENT AND FORMER EMPLOYEES OF THE POLICE DEPARTMENT AND DISPATCH

The following summarize the statements made by individuals and highlight the concerns expressed to the interviewer. Many individuals had opinions regarding investigations, discipline, resignations but lacked any personal knowledge about what happened and how decisions were made, and by whom. These are not verbatim statements unless quotations are used and there are no recordings of the interviews.[5]

Captain Dale Plessas

On October 1, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Dale Plessas. Plessas is the Investigations Commander who holds the Civil Service rank of Captain. He has been with the Police Department for 23 years. The rank structure is officer, senior officer, sergeant, lieutenant, captain, and chief of police. Plessas was promoted to the position of Investigations Commander in 2020, the same year by the previous chief, Jason Olson. He describes Olson as a "darn good guy."

John Klug was selected as Chief of Police at the beginning of 2020 and COVID. It was very difficult to manage through COVID. During this time, Chief Klug told everyone to stay out of dispatch because they were so shorthanded and he did not want anyone to get sick. There was a code given to sergeants to get into dispatch. Sgt. Wilk was going into dispatch off duty contrary to Chief Klug's order may have given out the code to other officers who went in off duty. Wilk was interviewed several times and said he did not remember giving out the code. Officers were disciplined and it was determined that Wilk lied during the interview and he was terminated for lying under Giglio for doing so. it was an unpopular decision. Allegedly, Chief Klug did not ask the investigating officer before making the disciplinary decision.

As Investigations Commander, Plessas oversees the investigations division, including detectives; task force; bomb squad and crime scene unit, intelligence, and internal investigations. with a new Professional Standards Lieutenant: late 2020. Plessas got the PSL assignment if a lieutenant was under investigation.

[5] Where applicable, an investigation was made into the existence of supporting or contradictory documentation.

Plessas is aware of the Batteiger situation with the discrepancy in the location of the heroin. He does not believe there is any concern that Batteiger lied or stole the drugs. There is also an issue with Batteiger having a sexual relationship with a domestic violence victim he met at a call.

The Operations Commander is Justin Sundheim and the Administrative Commander is Jason Sundbakken.

Chief Klug has made some very unpopular decisions, such as instituting a policy of transferring people out of specialty assignments after a period of time. There is a memorandum describing the process. Attachment 41.

Plessas discussed the Back the Blue grant program which supports hiring police officers. The police department requires 60 credit hours which is the equivalent of an associate degree. They recruit from Alexandria Tech Academy a technical college, but the hiring and recruiting is done through Human Resources.

I asked about some of the individuals that were identified in Fuller's notes. With respect to Amanda Somerville, Plessas told me that she lied to a supervisor about calling somebody back and she had not done so. When the internal investigation was conducted, she saved herself by telling the truth.

Concerning Shannon Lackey, Sundbakken investigated her off-duty interaction with Jenna Bjork. Shortly, thereafter, there was an issue in a bar which resulted in Lackey resigning.

At some point, the City received anonymous letters regarding Chief Klug's conduct many years ago. This related to alcohol issues.

There was a Center for Public Safety Management study regarding the police department.

There was animosity about moving a particular sergeant off the night shift and onto days. While shift selection is based on seniority, there was some stagnancy in people remaining in the same shift assignment for long periods. Now there is a limit of four years in specialty units or assignments.

Lieutenants must go where they are assigned by the Chief. There was an issue regarding Lt. Scott Redding who worked the night shift. He was injured and worked light duty on the night shift for a long time. At some point, he was told that the Department could no longer provide light duty. That same accommodation was not extended to Steve Kenny, who was on extended sick leave and then resigned/retired. Thereafter, the City made some changes to the benefits policy and created a PTO policy which also created some animosity.

There is a core group of people angry at Chief Klug including Scott Redding, Steve Schoenrock, Anthony Hugg, and Jay Bloyer who were all moved off of nights. There were concerns that the night shift was developing a bad attitude towards the administration and segregating themselves from the rest of the department which was the reason for instituting the rotating shifts.

If he has a criticism of Chief Klug, it would be that he has "analysis paralysis." He wants to make the right decision but in trying to do so, makes no decision. By way of example, Plessas identified the uniform/grooming policy. Chief Klug created a committee to look at the issue, they made recommendations, but Chief Klug did not follow through and accept or implement any policy. He gave them "no shave November" 2023 and then extended it to April 2024 and then it disappeared.

Plessas investigated the allegations of missing heroin against Batteiger. He did not agree with the Chief's decision not to dismiss Batteiger as a result of that investigation, but did not think it was a wrong decision. He believes there is an honesty and integrity issue associated with that incident. Lt. Chapman was responsible for the Canine Unit and he received discipline as well. He does not know what discipline Connole received related to this issue. He also does not know what policies were changed as a result of that investigation. Plessas believes there should be a notification process for internal investigations and discipline to the Human Resource Department and the City Manager. There was also an issue with the location of discipline and personnel files. information was not making its way to the "official" personnel file in the Human Resource office.

Previous chiefs issued suspension or loss of pay shortly after the investigation was completed. Chief Klug is slower to get that done.

Chief Klug created the Professional Standards office which conducts policy reviews; use of force reviews; and internal investigations.

The department has body cameras on all patrol officers and detectives. They are all issued body armor. There was no mandate for change within the department when Klug was appointed. The department is Lexipol-certified. The department provides training for officers/command staff including anti-harassment training annually.

There is no discussion of what happens as a result of an investigation into an officer's conduct. There is no distribution of information/policy changes.

On November 6, 2024, shortly after another officer's suicide, we spoke to Plessas again. Plessas stated that now all members of the Police Department, including dispatchers are required to speak to a counselor after such a traumatic occurrence. As for the services, everyone at the department, including the dispatchers, is being kept apprised of the funeral arrangements via the "Chief's Messages" page on Evertel. Command is also staying cognizant that individuals may have different perceptions, reactions, and well-meaning actions may have contrary effects, such as removing a dispatcher on duty during a traumatic event. Her perception was that she was being removed from her support system. Plessas is going to follow up with the dispatcher to let her know that she was heard. Whenever he is at City Hall he will stop by the dispatch center and he acknowledges everyone there. Wayne is usually out on the floor Margaret is usually in her office and Plessas will stop by her office to see how things are going. She updates him on some disciplinary issues that Wayne brings up to her.

Acting Chief Plessas has been trying to make decisions more quickly as these long-elapsed periods of time in decision-making in time were a sticking point under Chief Klug. Plessas has cleared out all the backlogged discipline that was on Chief Klug's desk and has reached a 1-year agreement with the pound for stray animals. Plessas has regularly visited the midnight shift, is trying to talk to people frequently and being more approachable.

Plessas did not second guess Chief Klug's decision on the beard policy. He has never heard Chief Klug say to anyone or about anyone that they were replaceable. Plessas is currently still responsible for Investigations.

Regarding Greg Johnson's shortcomings as a supervisor, Plessas with Lt. Dyke is trying to get him where he needs to be. He should be doing more supervising and less investigative work. Considerations are being made about whether to keep him in investigations. Plessas is not involved at all with the McLeod investigation as he is his brother-in-law. There are still issues with everyone knowing everyone's everything and gossiping. The speculative nature of individuals has been an issue since Chief Balentine. They have been trying to find a balance between how much information to release to the entire department and maintaining confidentiality. Off-duty conduct for officers is affecting the applicant pool – conduct unbecoming, negative attitudes, and backstabbing the department. Plessas recognizes that most issues are with the lower ranks.

As a result of the 2021 investigation, Lt. Shawn Wegner was taken out of investigations where he really did not feel in his element. The department is trying to implement some of the recommendations from the 2024 Center for Public Safety Management organizational study.

Plessas stated that Chief Klug tried many different approaches. Chief Klug did try to meet with the night shifts and brought in dinner, but not regularly. Chief Klug spent many long days working in his office, but unfortunately, he was not out there with everyone else. Chief Klug gave the night shift options as far as when to receive the pin, but Plessas recognizes that people may not take an offered option. Plessas will come back for the night shift after leaving on time. Plessas does not think the night shift cliques exist anymore. He involves HR and the City Manager in all his discipline decisions and receives the benefit of the guidance, perspective, and knowledge of their position. He was not given a choice, which turned out to be a good outcome. The relationship with Ward County has been good and professional.

Plessas has kept his distance from Chief Klug so as to not compromise the investigation. The potential return of the Chief will be very positive for some and met with frustration from others. Plessas wishes that division did not exist. He hopes that in the end the problems will be addressed and the Department can move forward.

Sgt. Taylor Jensen

On October 1, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Taylor Jensen. Jensen has worked for the Police Department for approximately twelve years. She was promoted to the rank of Sergeant in 2022. She is the Minot Area Bomb Squad Commander and is a canine officer whose canine specializes in recognizing/identifying explosives. She gave me copies of documents identified as Attachment 15.

Jensen told me that in early 2022, Eric Laudenschlager retired his dog Lois The next canine handler was Batteiger. Batteiger lateraled over from another agency. He was at the department for three years. He qualified for the canine unit and had no use-of-force issues. He was selected and took on canine Cyrus. Part of the process was to attend a twelve-week course and maintain a yearly certification. In 2022, Batteiger went to Minneapolis, Minnesota for canine training. Batteiger was getting a divorce and separated from his wife. While he was in Minnesota, he was using the department's take-home car to go to Fargo to see a dispatcher he was dating. Jensen believes this is wrong because he was missing training with the dog while he was on the road. In 2022/2023, Batteiger received several write-ups for a traffic stop and lying although she did not indicate how she had personal knowledge of these circumstances or disciplinary action. During one situation, she had her dog Caspian out on a scene of a call to find shell casings. As they were looking for the casings, she recognized Batteiger's truck at the home of a female where he had arrested her spouse on a domestic violence call. Batteiger initially denied any sexual encounters and said that he was just being "good company." However, during the internal investigation, he admitted that he (Batteiger) was sleeping with the woman he met on the call. She thinks this situation happened before she was promoted.

This page contains no comments

Batteiger wanted canine hours, but the dog started regressing. Between September 2022 and October 2023, Lt. Chapman who is the canine coordinator, and Jensen started seeing the dog regressing and not hitting on any calls/cars. They tell Batteiger that these are the things we are seeing and provide him with some guidance on what he (Batteiger) should be doing to address the problems. Batteiger did not listen to her about this issue. Jensen told Sundheim in early 2023, about seeing Batteiger at the domestic violence victim's house. Sundheim told Jensen "We're not morality police."

On September 14, 2023; Jensen wrote a letter to the captain highlighting the mission statement and policies of the Police Department. She indicated there was an issue with Batteiger' s canine hours. He received discipline for not recording hours. She recommended that in light of the issues Batteiger was having with the dog, that the dog be removed from Batteiger. Attachment 15.

Thereafter, Connole was looking for the drug kit to take his canine out for training. The drug kit contains drugs from the DEA that are used to train canine officers. They discovered that the heroin was missing. Jensen and Chapman had to take drug tests to determine if they had any heroin in their systems.

After an investigation by Captain Plessas, Captain Sundheim and Chief Klug decided that they would strip Batteiger of all of his responsibilities in training and that he would lose the canine. They sent him back to patrol as a Master Officer. A Master Officer has five years on the job and a Senior Officer has three years on the job. An officer needs five years on the job to be eligible for the sergeant's promotion test.

During our interview, Jensen said that she does not agree that there is no discipline in his file for the missing heroin. Chief and Captain sent out an Evertel message that Batteiger no longer had the dog. Canine Cyrus went to Chapman's house until they found another handler. Batteiger has been telling people he was too busy and did not have time for the canine. When asked by Sgt. Schoenrock why are you lying about losing the dog, Batteiger said that it was too embarrassing to tell the truth.

The investigation did not uncover what happened to the drugs, but Jensen does not believe that taking the dog from Batteiger was a sufficient punishment. She thinks he should be fired, because Somerville was disciplined for lying and Wilk was fired for lying.

While Jensen also stated that there was a rumor about Batteiger and a young girl, Jensen had no personal knowledge and that rumor was subsequently investigated and determined to not be credible.

The Police Department has low morale and she attributes it to tolerating Batteiger and the changes that were made to the night shift.

Jensen is also upset about the way Krysta Becker was treated. Becker had a mental health issue and was left with a $4,000 bill for mental health treatment. Becker refused to work with Batteiger.

Jensen is upset about how discipline is decided and how duties and responsibilities are given out. The Chief decides who gets promoted. She believes three guys were passed over that should not have been passed over: Eric Laudenschlager, Lakoduk and Jay Bloyer.

She also indicated that the Chief has not released the patrol evaluations for 2023. Jensen has not had a one-on-one interview. She also mentioned that the Chief has not acted on the beard policy that the committee submitted to him in November 2023 and it is now November 2024.

Former Officer Aaron Moss (FOP Representative)

On October 1, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Aaron Moss. Moss worked for the Minot Police Department for approximately 19 years and one day as a patrol officer. He is currently an FOP executive board member and representative for the North Central FOP Lodge, which includes officers from North Central North Dakota and they also have members who are sheriff deputies. They have approximately 125 members. The Minot Police Officers, of which there are approximately 80 sworn, are the largest group of officers in the lodge.

Since April 2023, he has been working for the federal government in a division of the Veterans Administration. He is also a part-time deputy for a jurisdiction that is northwest of Minot. Moss told me that there is no collective bargaining agreement for the peace officers in the state of North Dakota.

Moss spent three years at the Minot Police Department, while John Klug was the Police Chief. He finished his tenure as a Master Police Officer and served in the capacity of Community Outreach Officer working Monday through Friday, eight to 5 o'clock. Before that, he spent 11.5 years as a Patrol Officer.

Moss also served as a field training officer (FTO) for some period of his tenure. As an FTO trainer, he told his recruits that if the job makes you miserable, you need to find something else to do. Moss felt that he was heading in the path of being miserable, so he left the department. Moss said that he wasn't pushed out the door. Rather, when Chief Klug decided to rotate officers out of specialty assignments, he did not agree with that principle. Under this policy, Moss was going to be rotated out of the position of Community Outreach Officer, so he put his name in for promotion. He knew that he needed to have a more varied experience to be competitive and therefore put in for other specialty assignments/staff duties, such as evidence and records.

He also took the sergeants examination and was on the promotions list. He stated that the promotions list was based on a testing process. There were two vacant sergeant positions, which means the city or department would look at the top five people on the list and make their selection from those five people. While Moss was in the top five in the rankings, he was not selected. He indicated that Chief Klug called him and told him that he had not been selected.

Moss believes that because he had spoken up against Chief Klug, he was not selected for those other positions and probably did not have a shot at being selected for promotion. Moss said he had members come to him with complaints about the department, such as a lack of communication from the Chief and/or Administration. He stated that officers felt that working the chain of command did not get them a response back from the administration. Other concerns relayed to him were equipment failures and officer safety (radio incident). Moss described an incident where a patrol officer was concerned that his radio didn't work. Neither the FOP nor the officer filed a complaint or grievance over the issue. Concerning the radio issue, Officer Shaide was complaining that his radio was not consistently working. Moss stated that nothing was done to respond to the radio issue. As a result, there was an incident where officers responded to a call and were required to use their cell phones to call 911 to get back up. Moss was not present during this incident. (Later in my interviews, I spoke with Shaide who had the issue, he was able to communicate via his radio and did not use a cell phone.)

Moss indicates that he and Kenton met with Chief Klug regarding the communication issue in the department. Moss described Chief Klug as raising his voice when they told him that his downward communications were not making it past the Captains. Moss indicated that previous Chiefs would have quarterly meetings with the union to address any issues. The union was fielding concerns regarding the department. Moss also said that every previous Chief would hold patrol meetings and that patrol officers would get comp time for attending the meetings. It was an opportunity for a free flow of information. The meetings were stopped during COVID-19 and have not been picked back up.

Moss complained that Chief Klug never provided his overall plan and vision for the department. Instead, Chief Klug would implement changes without much of an explanation. Directives were dropped on the department without explanation. Moss's perspective is that Chief Klug is dismissive of other people's feelings and that he doesn't have an open-door policy. In 2022/2023 Klug implemented the decision to rotate some members out of their specialty assignments, and people were furious. He indicated that there was no advanced communication with the FOP to let them know it was coming. Apparently, at one point there was a meeting that all officers attended to explain the rationale for the decision to move people out of their specialty assignments, because people were so upset. During that meeting, some identified the negative effects of such a change. Based on that meeting Chief Klug did not change the schedules for detectives. However, during that meeting with personnel, Chief Klug expressed his opinion that it was not his responsibility to take care of the officer's individual needs. Rather, as Chief, his responsibility in managing the organization was to prioritize the organizational needs of the department. This description is inconsistent with the email that Chief Klug sent to the department explaining the changes being implemented and the opportunities available to officers depending on their tenure and experience.

Moss also raised the issue of disparity in discipline. He stated that some women claimed they believed they were being discriminated against. This issue of discrimination was investigated in 2021. Attachment 23. Surprisingly, Moss indicated that the FOP did not know that the City had a grievance process.

In 2022, a Minot officer, Pat Blanchard, committed suicide. That caused the City Council to take an interest in officer wellness and, at the time, one of the council members was a forensic psychologist. They asked for a meeting with the FOP executive board to discuss what could be done for officer wellness. Moss believes that the pressure from the City Council is what caused Chief Klug to discuss the implementation of an officer peer support program.

A group of employees formed a wellness committee to address mental health issues in the workplace. There are no state statutes regarding police officer wellness. Employees spent a significant amount of time preparing documentation and presenting it to Chief Klug. Chief Krug responded that he would "look it over " and they never heard back from him. Moss said that the was done eight months ago. He indicated that Chief Klug's response to the work that the employees did for a wellness program "lit the fuse for him" and he left the department.

As part of the sergeants' promotional process, there is an in-person interview. At the end, a question is posed to the candidate by Klug or one of the Captains to the effect of: "What can we do better?" When Moss was asked this question, he told the interviewers that there was an appearance of unapproachable ability from the Captains and the Command Staff. He further indicated that using the chain of command was pointless, because the communication downwards never occurred.

Moss describes Sundheim as ferocious about supporting Chief Klug.

This page contains no comments

When asked about the vote of no-confidence letter, Moss said that the letter was intended to get better communications with the City and a more stable work environment. The letter generated a discussion with Alderman Fuller.

Moss indicated that he and Kenton approached a newly elected Alderman, Rob Fuller, regarding the issues they were hearing about from the FOP Lodge members. Both Kenton and Moss were frustrated, because the Police Chief would no longer sit down and speak to them to discuss the issues they were fielding. After several conversations, with Fuller, Fuller told Moss that he was going to "get to the bottom" of what was going on. Moss indicated that there were budgetary issues in the department and that they had made some changes concerning overtime and officers being required to request overtime versus simply working it. He indicated that other departments pay for 100% of family medical coverage, but the Minot Police Department does not. He also indicated that as a result of Klug being appointed the Police Chief, there have been a lot more officers leaving. He indicated that officers did not leave as a result of the previous Police Chief, Olson. Moss indicates that the three previous chiefs' had a concern for the individual officers at the forefront. Now it's more of a job than a profession for him. Moss indicated that the perception has never been that the imposition of discipline was nefarious. The previous Chiefs communicated that the imposition of discipline was to try and make you a better officer. He indicates that it was rare to have discipline imposed and that there was no feeling of disparity of discipline from other Chiefs. The feeling was that the Chief was reinforcing a recognized standard. That is not the perception that the department has, at least from Moss's view, of Chief Klug.

Kenton Kossan

On October 23, 2024, at 3:00 p.m. CT Heintzelman and Koelbel interviewed Kenton Kossan. Kossan started working in early 2018 and had 9 years of experience as a patrol officer. He was a Senior officer and then Master Officer under Chief Olson. He resigned in February 2023.

Kenton has read and acknowledged the Minot Police Department Policies and the employee handbook. Kenton was not aware necessarily of the grievance procedure or complaint procedure. He did not receive any discipline. He was aware of the policies which were handled by the direct supervisor. He has never received a letter of reprimand or anything.

Regarding his relationship with Chief Klug, because of his position in the labor organization, he maintained a non-contentious relationship with the Chief. He understood that the Chief would come up with directives and policies. Kenton advised the Chief that he should "use us to help you." When Chief Olson reached out to the union to come up with a drug testing policy, the union worked with Chief Olson and the Chief would approve what was presented.

Chief Klug, however, did give the union any advanced notice. For example, when he wanted specialized positions in the department and did not include the Union. Kenton brokered a meeting between the membership and the Chief to try to smooth the waters and identify things that could be compromised. The new policy would establish a three-year max stint for the specialized positions, e.g.: Detective or SRO. Kenton's concern with the three-year limit was that an officer did not have enough time to learn the position before they had to move. The SROs, for example, do not even get to see the freshmen class graduate. It takes a specific type of cop to be an SRO, so that may limit the pool of individuals willing to take the assignment. They must be able to handle an active shooter situation and deal with kids on a non-aggressive manner. Detectives need mentoring and time in the position. He did not think it needed to be a hard and fast rule It was not meant to be a Chief bashing session, but to voice an opinion. At the end of the day, the Chief's position did not change.

Jay Haaland, who left, used to be SRO for seven years, ten years walking out the door. Stephanie Lentz was an SRO with a disposition for the position. The theme was that he thought he saw that people at the school liked working with the specific SRO assigned to their school, but then that person would be gone by graduation.

Aaron Moss (other FOP rep) and the Chief got into a yelling match about the incident where an officer's radio did not work. The Chief did not appear to want to hear what they had to say about the officer safety issue.

Kossan also raised the issue of employee insurance contributions. A police officer with a family had a monthly employee contribution towards the cost of health insurance of $200-$250 for insurance, which is higher than the surrounding towns. The retirement pension was based on the Rule of 90 – years of service plus age to get a certain percentage of your pay during retirement. The union had been trying to convince the City to go to the Rule of 85. Their requests were ignored until this budget cycle. Both the Police Chief and Fire Chief supported the change and it appears to be moving forward.

Kenton served a year in the Minot City Council. He believes there are inherent problems in the department that are causing people to leave the Police Department. Kossan said that Alderman Fuller told him that there are 200 years of police experience lost under Chief Klug.

Kossan believes that the culture at the Minot Police Department is not good and that there is an ego/attitude that precludes common sense. He believes that there is a lack of collaboration both within the department and with other agencies. By way of example, the. the relationship between the Sheriff's Office and the Police Department is not good.

Currently, Kossan is an undersheriff for a different county. Sheriffs from other counties do not want to have anything with Chief Klug. He was number two on the promotion list and six people were promoted off of it, but not number one and number two. Aaron Moss was number one. After being passed over twice, Kossan did not care to know what the reason was for being passed over. He assumed that he would not be promoted, even though Kossan has a spotless personnel file.

Councilman Fuller said if they had known that those investigations into the Chief's past took place then he may not have become Chief (the Chief's records were purged consistent with City Policy). Since that time, the retention policy has been changed.

There was a lack of leadership, lack of communication, and an inconsistent disciplinary process. Olson was great.

Belinda Gladback

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Belinda Gladback. Officer Gladback has been a patrol officer for 8-1/2 years. She has worked midnights for the past two years. When asked why she wanted to work midnights, she indicated that she wanted to stay away from everyone. She also indicated that gets migraine headaches, but has not gone to a doctor to request accommodation for working the night shift.

This page contains no comments

In the past, she has had issues working with certain Sergeants and Lieutenants, but when she spoke to her ex-husband about it, he did not agree with her perspective on how she was being treated. She received a very bad evaluation from Sergeant Foley. In 2021, Sgt. Foley told her that she was "not where she should be if she wanted to be a Master Officer." The Master Officer is a test that officers take after they've been with the Department for five years. She indicated that she made grammatical mistakes in her reports, but did not think that the mistakes changed the substance of the report so she did not understand why she was criticized for the mistakes. She said that Sergeant Foley made working for him difficult. Amanda Somerville, Mat Cole, and she had to "dot their 'I's' and cross their 't's'" to stay out of trouble. She got into trouble with Officer Olson indicating that he did not like a comment she made about a child being "ugly" because a child had special needs.

She said that Sergeant Strandemo is much easier to work with, because he's supportive and talks to her. She believes there is a stigma around her that she is difficult to work with or that she makes things difficult for other people. She applied, but did not get an assignment to be an FTO or an SRO. She does not know who the other applicants for those positions were or whether they were more qualified for the position. She does not know whether they had any problems with the consistency of their police reports she thought her reports looked fine to her. She complains that the lieutenants would "get on you" if you did anything that was outside of policy. She identified Lieutenant Wegner as one of those lieutenants. She believes that the smallest fraction would get you counseling. She recalls a situation where Lieutenant Wegner shoved the notebook in her vest and said "If you're going to carry a notebook, make sure it isn't seen." She indicated that at the time, she had a notebook in her vest, which was popping up the top of her vest pocket.

Recently, she scratched the side of the squad car. She told Sergeant Strandemo who took photos and documented the damage. She compared that situation to Jessica Presley having an "at fault" car accident. She claimed that Presley totaled three cars and did not have to write a "dear Chief letter" about the accidents. Gladback thought the incident was over after she wrote the report, however Lieutenant Wegner called her into his office to talk about it. Gladback indicated that anytime she or an officer gets talked to, the sergeants are supposed to know about it. Her sergeant told her that's the way it's supposed to be. However, Sgt. Strandemo told her that he thinks Lt. Wegner is harder on women. Sgt. Strandemo indicated that he saw it with Sergeant Taylor Jensen as well. She indicated there were several incidents with Jensen that he went to Captain Sundheim about with a suggestion on how to fix it. She started documenting things when a male officer engaged in the conduct and how they were treated. Gladback says that now marijuana is charged as an infraction, which is slightly more than a traffic ticket. You have to be charged with it three times before it becomes a B misdemeanor. Patrol Officers have the discretion whether to charge or not to charge marijuana. She states that Patrol Officer William DeNovio was there and that he made a decision not to charge someone with a marijuana violation and did not get talked to you about it. There is no indication that a Lieutenant knew about DeNovio's decision not to charge the marijuana incident. A couple of weeks ago, Gladback worked 10 hours and was late to training. While she was at training, she received three emails and a message on the patrol application about completing a report on an "M" case from Lt. Wegner. An "M" case is a statutory rape case, because of the age differences between the victim and the offender. The victim was a willing participant. The phone was dumped and the report was due. Gladback says that during a meeting, in which Strandemo was there, Wagner called her out in front of Caisee Sandusky, and Officer Andrade. Andrade said she was disrespectful. She's one of the individuals who works midnights along with Strandemo, Scott Redding, and Whitesell. Gladback thought that Jensen went to Human Resources about Lieutenant Wegner

She indicated that Sundheim asked her if she was interested in the noon to 10:00 schedule. She does not think she is interested.

Sgt. Noyes does not follow up on stuff and has covered up for Becker. By way of example, Becker had a ride-along and engaged in a pursuit. She has pepper-sprayed some people in a bar. Gladback does not know what discipline is, because Jensen and Noyes are best friends. Gladback says that Chief Klug and Lt. Wegner have separate files on people, but she doesn't know how she knows that information. She has not seen the files.

Alderman Rob Fuller

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman met with Alderman Rob Fuller regarding this investigation. Alderman Fuller had met with 13 current or former members of the Minot Police Department, including a few dispatchers. He had taken notes of his meetings, which he then transcribed but did not identify the individuals with whom he had spoken. Alderman Fuller said that he does not have a background in human resources or employment law. He stated that his experience in conducting this investigation is as a businessman in the City of Minot. He previously owned a gun store, Spartan Arms where he employed several current or former police officers. Based on our conversation, Fuller employed several individuals, who did not leave the Police Department on good terms. Over the years, he has heard complaints from people regarding their departure from the City's employment.

When asked about his notes, including some of the conclusions that he had in those notes. He indicated that he does not have a background in human resources and is not an attorney. He stated that those notes were his stream of consciousness and thoughts as he was listening to the individual tell their story. Alderman Fuller did not indicate that he had any experience in police operations, procedures, police organizations, or discipline or management. He did not indicate that he had taken any police leadership courses or training or that he had ever been a police officer or supervised a police department.

Fuller indicated that the city was considering building a new police department and as part of his efforts on fiscal responsibility, he and Scott Samuelson were wondering why they should build a new police facility when it appears as though there are officers that are leaving the department in significant numbers. He did not indicate how the departures would support or contradict the need to replace a building that may be past its usefulness.

He has known Harold Stewart and Stefanie Stalheim, because he was a business owner in the City of Minot.

Alderman Fuller was having conversations with officers and asking what was going on at the Police Department. When he heard complaints, he solicited information about how the officers believed the City could fix things. A Master officer by the name of Dan Batteiger kept coming up.

The Thursday after Labor Day, he spoke with Chief Klug, Stalheim, Stewart, and Human Resource personnel Monica Porterfield. He indicated that Chief Klug got defensive during the meeting as he did not like to be questioned about why Dan Batteiger still worked for the City. Chief Klug indicated that he knew where this was coming from, referencing Officer Batteiger. Fuller indicated that there was an issue with Batteiger's ability to manage his canine and missing heroin. Chief Klug was adamant that Batteiger was a reformed officer and that there is nothing else going on with Batteiger. After the meeting, Fuller also told Stalheim and Stewart about some allegations that a 16-year-old girl had made regarding "being" with Batteiger.

This page contains no comments

As a result of the meeting, the Chief was put on administrative leave on September 11, 2024. When Stewart met with Chief Klug about why he wasn't told about the heroin, Fuller indicates that Chief Klug told Stewart that he "did not think you needed to know yet"' Fuller indicated that Stewart, the Mayor, Lisa Jundt, and Stalheim were asked to recount some meetings with the Chief.

Fuller was upset that Klug went to the Ward County Sheriff after a call where Becker was the deputy on the scene where she made some statements about checking body cam footage to ensure that everybody is "staying honest" Fuller believes Chief Klug went to the Sheriff to retaliate against Becker. He also thinks there is another with a 16-year-old and Batteiger. Fuller also is concerned about Lieutenant Matt McLeod being on the force as a result of some complaints from Valley City, North Dakota, one out of Montana, and Idaho. He was placed on administrative leave until a decision not to prosecute was made by those agencies. Fuller indicates that Steve Schoenrock keeps asking why Dan Batteiger has "a hook" in the department. There were some allegations that Batteiger had been spying on the midnight shift on behalf of the Chief, and therefore the Chief was not going to take any disciplinary action against him.

Steve Schoenrock

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Steve Schoenrock. Schoenrock is a Sergeant working in the Police Department and worked the midnight shift until 2023.

Schoenrock was aware that there was an investigation regarding some issues in the department. I asked him to explain to me any issues he was having at the PD. He said in 2021, some female officers who worked in detectives were having a lot of trouble with their supervisors, Lt. Wegner and Sgt. Wilk. He said that Officers Talbott, Lentz, Guerton, and Asham were complaining about having to come to work when the administration stayed at home and they were also complaining about Lieutenant Wegner and Sergeant Wilk but he did not identify anything specific. He suggested that Captain Plessas oversee detectives. Schoenrock did not tell me that there was an investigation into these allegations in 2021 that did not sustain the allegations against either command staff member. Attachment 27.

When COVID hit, there was no administrative personnel in the building at any time. The detectives were working from home, and only the patrol officers were in the Department working. He talked to the administration about the issues and that the assignments were being treated differently. He thought that they were harder on the female officers. He also thought there was an issue with disparate discipline as Shannon Lackey had some alcohol issues, but she and Chief Klug were good friends, and therefore her conduct was allowed to continue.[6] Lackey told Schoenrock that she was "on the inside," so when she was caught lying, she kept her job. Schoenrock compares that statement to what happened to Sgt. Wilk who was terminated for lying in an investigation about giving out the passcode to others to get into the dispatch area during COVID.[7]

Schoenrock said that he had no issues at work before an investigation report came out in 2021. Thereafter, he was pegged as an instigator, because he said that if things didn't change, people would leave.

At some point, Captain Sundheim had a meeting with the patrol officers to provide an opportunity for "free talk" pre -2022. The meeting was an opportunity for patrol officers to identify the issues are having [6] Lackey resigned based on some altercations that would have led to disciplinary action.

[7] The Chief limited access to the dispatch center to minimize the potential for transmission of COVID since the department had to maintain emergency services and the dispatch center was short-staffed. The risk to the public was unknown at the time.

at work. Schoenrock told the people on his shift that they have "no right to complain if don't go to the Captain and speak" when they have the chance. Schoenrock describes Sundheim as a narcissist, because he always has to be the smartest guy in the room. He took all the comments and complaints personally, and after that meeting, anyone who said anything in the meeting that put in for special positions did not get them.[8]

Schoenrock had some medical issues with his neck and was struggling with pain. He was called into Captain Sundheim's office with Lieutenant Wegner. He was handed a letter that outlined how he was responsible for the poor attitudes of the people on his shift. He was asked whether he had given officers talking points to come to the "free talk" meeting. At the "free talk" meeting, Sundheim said that the shifts were too "clicky" and that they should think of the department as "one shift". In response, the night shift, and others, began kissing their index and middle fingers and raising their hand above their head (reminiscent of the Hunger Games/Sammie Sosa kiss?) and saying, "one shift." Schoenrock claims that it was not a passive/aggressive "fuck you" to the captains, but not surprisingly, that is how it was interpreted. Lt. McLeod was the one who brought the issue to Schoenrock's attention. Schoenrock indicated that he apologized to Lt. McLeod about the gesture.

At the time, Schoenrock wanted to stay on the night shift. He believes that Sundheim and Wegner were looking for an emotional reaction from him, so they could take some sort of disciplinary reaction against him. He believes that the letter is in his personnel file.

He was reassigned off the night shift onto the day shift so that the department could provide some oversight from one of the lieutenants. He said that his evaluations have been four and five over the past few years and now he was rated a two in one category. He went to the Chief about the reassignment. Chief Klug told Schoenrock that he just let Sundheim "do his thing" and now he is supervised by Lt. Haug and Lt. Wegner. Sundheim accused him of spreading rumors and not going through the proper channels. Schoenrock is the Senior Sergeant and should be able to choose the shift he works and he wants to stay on midnights. This is inconsistent with his desire to be a lieutenant in that all lieutenants work a day shift.

Schoenrock believes that Lt. Wegner has trouble working with women, because he does not believe they make good cops. He is concerned that Lt. Wegner was moved to patrol and Wegner has had issues with Becker and Jensen in the past. He believes that Lt. Mcleod is doing a good job.

A former officer, whom Schoenrock did not identify, stated that Batteiger confided in him that he had been charged with recording the night shift officers for Chief Klug. Schoenrock was very upset by this, because he knew Batteiger was having money issues. Schoenrock gave Batteiger a job to remodel his basement and fronted him $1000 on the job. The project has been a disaster. Batteiger was struggling to buy Christmas presents for his kids, so Schoenrock gave him some extra money. Batteiger bought his 18-year-old girlfriend a new cell phone with the money instead of buying gifts for his kids. Becker also had a problem with Batteiger. She would not work with him. Becker was angry, because Batteiger was sleeping with a domestic violence victim. Becker told Ruelle that she would not back up Batteiger. She was moved to days and then things blew up and she was gone.[9]

[8] Schoenrock received a counseling memorandum during his transfer off of the day shift because he was undermining the command staff after he was not selected for promotion to lieutenant. At the time of Schoenrock's participation in the promotion process, the Chief had established an assessment center process wherein he brought individuals from other departments to assist in evaluating individuals interested in promotion. Chief Klug indicated that a colonel from the Air Force indicated that Schoenrock was not a good selection for promotion because of his inability to control his emotions. This conduct was demonstrated during my interview with him. He is very upset about this decision that happened years ago.

Shortly after he was appointed, Chief Klug told some members of the department that they were all replaceable. He states that Chief Klug has been passing over the people on the top of the promotions list. Schoenrock has been struggling physically and put in for some other sedentary positions, like records and the crime lab, but did not get the position even though he believes he was a better fit than the person selected. Schoenrock has been released to perform his job duties by his physician without limitation. Should he need an accommodation, that issue should be addressed by Schoenrock with the Human Resources Department.

C. Shane Johnson

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Shane Johnson. Johnson is the Sergeant of investigations. He has worked for the department for fifteen years and works on the drug task force, which is a multi-agency regional task force with members from BCI, Minot, Ward County, and the Border Patrol.

He believes it is a "good old boys" club in the Police Department to this day regarding decisions and discipline. Sundheim is responsible for the SWAT team. Because public perception is that the SWAT team is militant, they wear body armor, etc., they are not called out to execute warrants. Rather, the drug task force members, who do not have the proper equipment, are required to execute the search warrants without SWAT backup.

There were two openings for sergeants in approximately 2022. The promotion process consisted of a written test and an interview committee. Cole Strandemo was promoted to Sergeant in Crime Prevention and Matthew Pappenfus was promoted to Sergeant in the Patrol Division. There is also an opening for a sergeant in investigations. Johnson said that they tested and scored higher than the individuals selected but were not promoted. He thought both Strandemo and Pappenfus had discipline in their file but that the discipline was disregarded. He believes this is true even though the Chief talks about accountability and transparency. He said that supervisors are reviewing reports, but are not making corrections to the reports. He identified a report in which the officer failed to identify the car involved as a stolen car as the one being driven into the garage. Case no; 2024-00023085.

Johnson said that Tyler Ruelle told Shane Haug that Pat Blanchard had a steroid issue. Also, Jay Bloyer knew Blanchard was drinking.

Sundbakken gives 72 hours' notice for a random drug test. Johnson's name was selected on July 29, 2024. He does not understand why so much notice is given because it takes around 72 hours for drugs to dissipate in your system. Therefore, the random drug test is not serving its purpose.

Johnson told Captain Dale Plessas that Greg Johnson does not do his job and Lieutenant Dyke is not holding him accountable. Greg Johnson used to play poker with Sundheim and that is why he is not being held accountable. Dyke also does not hold people accountable. There are supposed to be seven Investigators, two Sergeants, one Lieutenant, and one Captain in Investigations. Greg Johnson has worked on three homicides and Elijah Hanks ends up completing his cases. Johnson gave an example of Greg Johnson Steve Schoenrock and Anthony Washington investigating a missing individual complaint. They searched the basement of the home where he was last seen. They reported to the Captain and Lieutenant that there was no evidence in the basement. He went missing on April 3rd. On April 18th/19th, they were waiting on probable cause subpoena to search electronics on Facebook. They obtained the warrant in June 2024. They used the luminal or Bluestar which detects iron in the blood in the basement. They ultimately found the body behind a door in the basement where Greg Johnson, Schoenrock, and Washington searched. Johnson also identified a series of robbers where an individual was stealing cars crashing into garages and stealing items. Greg Johnson had two cases that could get warrants, but was not able to figure out the other cases with the same Modus Operandi.

Johnson identified the Chief's failure to approve the uniform policy as a communication issue. The Chief set a deadline and did not meet the deadline. The Administration always seems to be double booked, so most of the patrol officers don't have one-on-one interactions with the Chief and Administration.

Krysta Becker

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman met with Krysta Becker. Becker is a former Patrol Officer, who left the City in the summer of 2024. She had been with the department for nine years and was a Master Officer. She is currently with the Ward County Sheriff's Department.

She did not have any problems with former Chief Jason Olson. Shortly after Sundheim and Klug came in, Pat Blanchard killed himself. The patrol officers needed more help mentally to handle what was going on. Becker was having a tough time, because her neighbor also shot herself in the head. She was friends with Officers Jensen and Sergeant Noyes. She had difficulty after Blanchard's suicide and her neighbor's suicide. Becker made some statements about putting a bullet in her head. Sergeant Noyes was concerned. Jensen and Noyes reported the statement and she ended up being [redacted]. Becker is upset, because she thought that Sundheim and Chief Klug said they would support the officers and help them no matter what they needed. She feels like she was let down because she was put into the [redacted]. She says that it was good intention, but poorly executed. It took her four days to calm down. They convinced her that she needed to go for [redacted] in Florida . She was upset, because she thought that the department would pay for all of the cost of the [redacted] but the department ran it through her health insurance. The department paid for her transportation to [redacted] in Florida, but she had a $4,000 bill for the co-pays and deductible. She does not think it is fair that she had to pay any of the bills for her own healthcare treatment.

She was originally on the sniper team with SWAT, but was taken off when she had mental health issues. She had some issues with an individual by the name of Batteiger. He was initially living with her when he was separated from his wife, but she kicked him out of the house when she believed he was sleeping with the victim of a domestic battery call that Batteiger responded to. This happened around the same time as the [redacted]. When she returned, Chief Klug told Becker that she needed to give Batteiger a second chance and be able to work with him. She struggled to deal with the Chief's request to be professional with Batteiger while at work. At some point, Becker told another officer that she would not back up Batteiger if he needed her on a call because he had lied to her. Chief Klug and Sundheim tried to work with her to ease her back into working with Batteiger, but she was not willing to do so. They moved her to days. She told both Chief Klug and Sundheim that she would not back up Batteiger if he called for help, because he was not trustworthy. Based on that statement, Chief Klug told her she had a choice to make and she resigned.

Becker believes that she was the first female sniper in the upper Midwest. She said that her psychologist said that she could continue to work on SWAT, but she was not allowed to do so. She thought this was unfair because Blanchard got a six-month suspension for a criminal offense (DUI) and she got a six-month suspension and never returned to work.

As part of the interview process, we reviewed the documents Becker provided as well as the fitness for duty recommendation and provision of transportation to Florida and expenses. Contrary to her assertions, the psychologist indicated that Becker could train and educate the SWAT team, but did not say she should respond to calls in the interim. The fitness for duty report also indicates that Becker needs to realize that she is responsible for her mental health fitness. Attachment 48.

Dave Chapman

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Lieutenant Chapman. He indicated that he has no specific grievances concerning working in the Police Department.

Chapman was identified as part of an incident with Chief Klug many years ago and brought forth more recently in an anonymous email sent in February 2022. The original incident described in the email occurred approximately 20 years ago. Chapman was working on the night shift. Chief Klug was working on the Ward County Drug Task Force. He was going through some issues with his ex-wife. One evening, Chapman had a call out to the Clarion Inn. The desk clerk said that someone had come to the hotel and was flashing a badge. When they arrived, Klug was outside. He was intoxicated and looking for, a woman by the name of Maggie. Maggie is Chief Klug's wife. She works as a counselor but does not work for the City. Chapman talked to Klug and he agreed to go home with Maggie. Maggie was driving home and they were near the courthouse at Third Street. They argued and he jumped out of the car. Chapman, who had been following Maggie, pulled over and talked to Klug. In the anonymous email, it stated that Klug pulled a gun on Chapman. That is not true. Chapman never saw a gun. Chapman said that the incident was not reported, but it probably should have been reported.

This incident has been disclosed to the City and is the subject of a previous review. With respect to this investigation, this incident occurred twenty years ago and is irrelevant to the current events. To the extent it remains the topic of discussion, the discussion is contributing to the gossip and rumors that are deteriorating the morale of the department.

Josh Noyes

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman spoke with Josh Noyes. Noyes is currently a Sergeant on a patrol shift. He has been with a department for 12 years. He has a good assignment and believes working for the City is a good opportunity.

Noyes believes that morale is an issue. Chief Klug was appointed right before COVID. Since then, Blanchard committed suicide, there have been officer retention issues and people are burned out. He said that the command staff has an old way of addressing or fixing things, particularly retention. He believes that discipline is inconsistent, even though there is a matrix for discipline. Once he was promoted to Sergeant, he received no training. If there are problems on a shift with an officer, they are supposed to address the issue at the Sergeant level, but there is no transparency concerning disciplinary issues. The sergeants do not know what kind of discipline is given out and then there is no transparency as to how one sergeant is handling a situation versus another. Lieutenant Haug is responsible for internal affairs, but previously it was Lt. McLeod.

There is an issue concerning an officer by the name of Batteiger. He has poor performance and there was an issue regarding Jensen and Becker. At some point Officers Jensen and Becker were at a gun call, looking for brass and they saw a passenger car parked at the house where they had previously been a domestic violence call. They told Noyes about it and he asked Batteiger about why he was at that location. Batteiger lied to Noyes and said that "he was just good company ". Noyes did not put Batteiger's statements into a memorandum and Noyes was never interviewed. When Batteiger was investigated by McLeod, he told the truth about his relationship.

Noyes believes the department enforces the rule that if you lie as an officer, your employment will be terminated. Officers cannot fraternize with felons. Noyes also believes that Amanda Somerville also lied to Sergeants and/or omitted information but was not immediately terminated. Noyes indicates that she would disappear from the GPS for something like 70 days, because she had issues with her boyfriend and only received some counseling. At one point, she was responsible for investigating a vulnerable adult sexual abuse case. She was asked whether the family had been following up with her and if she had failed to return telephone calls. Somerville lied and said that she had never gotten any calls from the family. Ultimately Somerville told the truth during the investigation and therefore was not fired. Noyes doesn't understand why the department kept Batteiger and Sommerville.

Noyes thinks that everything gets politicized and internal investigations take too long and people can sit on paid administrative leave while the investigation is taking place. Noyes did not receive a one-on-one interview like Chief Klug promised. There is an overarching feeling that if the command staff doesn't come up with the idea they won't like it. Neither the command staff nor the Chief takes any of the ideas that are presented by the rest of the department.

Finally, Noyes indicated that the department will not let the SWAT team execute search warrants or arrest warrants for the drug task force or allow them to back up the task force officers. Noyes believes that the warrant execution is an elevated risk that should require a SWAT team presence.

Jacob Olson

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Jacob Olson. Olson was promoted to the assignment of School Resource Officer in January 2024. He has been with the department for nine years and in policing for 10 1/2 years.

He started as a police officer in Harvey, North Dakota. When Chief Klug was a Captain, he supervised Olson and helped Olson stay in his career. Olson was having a tough time with one of the FTO trainers. He had another situation with a promotion test. Captain Sundheim gave him an opportunity to participate in a portion of the interview process via video conference because his daughter had a medical appointment that he needed to attend.

He is very grateful to them for their assistance and how they accommodated his personal family situation. The Command Staff and Chief Klug can do good things.

He believes there is a lieutenant file on individuals working in the department There are a lot of people who talk negatively about the Administration. He discussed Blanchard, and how he had an alcoholism problem and was taken off of SWAT for six months.

He was removed from the FTO program, because they said that he was bad-mouthing other FTOs. He was not happy with being removed. He said that he did not know who decided because Strandemo said that he did not decide to remove him from FTO. He stated that Lt. Wegner and Noyes met with him and said that they could not remove the notation from his department file.

He also mentioned that in 2021 Batteiger collected thirty dollars from his shift and never bought the bobblehead Christmas gifts he was supposed to buy. Batteiger kept making excuses for the failure to buy the gift. Everyone put in 30 bucks and there was a total of 300. Batteiger never bought the gift, but kept the money.

I was told that Batteiger returned the money when he resigned from his position.

Anthony Hugg

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Anthony Hugg. Hugg is a Master Officer in the Police Department. He is also on the SWAT team and he is an FTO. The Master Officer position is an open book-tested position. The Senior Officer position is also a tested position. Hugg indicates that the patrol division has not received their performance evaluations in 2023.

In 2021, Captain Sundheim had a “free talk “meeting. This was an opportunity for patrol officers to speak to command staff with repercussions. They canceled the first date for the meeting. He believes that as a result of that “free talk” meeting, everyone who spoke up was downgraded in Category 8 of their performance evaluation. Hugg showed me his evaluations. In 2019, Hugg had four and five ranking on his evaluation. He is missing his 2020 evaluation. In 2021, in Category 8, he received a two out of five. In 2022, Category 8, he received a three out of five score. Hugg believes that this score was a result of being on the night shift and speaking out as Sergeant Schoenrock suggested they do for the administration to know what their concerns were. Hugg did not identify what concerns either he or anyone else from the night shift raised other than Schoenrock’s contention that he should have been promoted over Dyke. Hugg also did not reference the “Sammie Sosa” kiss symbol or any other that could have been the basis for the evaluation.

Hugg describes the situation where former officer Blanchard was at a bachelor party and became intoxicated. Blanchard was on the SWAT team and received a call out while at the party. He drove drunk and blew out a tire. He does not believe Blanchard received any discipline for this situation. Hugg has no personal knowledge regarding how this situation was handled.

Hugg believes that as a result of the “free talk” meeting, Schoenrock was moved to days and downgraded in his performance evaluation. Miller, Schoenrock, and Bloyer were blamed for the poor attitude on the midnight shift. Because they were also on the midnight shift, Hugg does not believe that Pappenfus or Haug will be promoted past Lieutenant This is an interesting perspective since Chief Klug promoted Pappenfus to Sergeant and Lt. Haug is now in charge of Professional Standards.

Blanchard committed suicide in December 2022. The “free talk” meeting was in the fall of 2021.

Hugg believes that his educational credits were not included in the sergeants' promotional exam. While he does not believe it would have affected his position on the sergeant's promotion list, he wanted to raise the issue.

Hugg is not involved in discipline or investigations, but believes that in 2021 and 2022, there were issues concerning McLeod's conduct but nothing was done about it. He said that they, but did not identify the "they" did not believe that Sommerville, Laudenschlager, or Wilk got a fair shake regarding the discipline they received.

Hugg did not get a one-on-one interview. He provided the email for the one-on-one interviews.

Hugg was also upset about two individuals he put up for a life-saving award. There was a guy that was stabbed in the neck and the two individuals drove him to the hospital. They were juveniles. The juveniles were at a party and may have been under the influence of alcohol in Hugg's opinion. Hugg said command staff showed up for the award and only three patrol officers attended the presentation of the award. Hugg does not understand some of the decisions that are made. His schedule would change in June. He talked to Lieutenant Wegner and talked to Sundheim about staying on the midnight shift. He does not understand why the SROs are not assigned to the extra 12 – 10 shift for the summer while school is out and he doesn't understand why his schedule is changed to the 12 to 10 shift.

Kristian Shaide

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman spoke to Kristian Shaide. He has been in the Police Department for seven years.

Shaide had a problem with his radio. He went to talk to Sundheim about it. He works on the 12 to 10 shift. For the first half of his shift, his supervisor is Ruelle, in the afternoon, his supervisor is Jensen. He complained to the administration, he did not identify who, about the fact that his radio was not working in places where it should work, e.g., not dead zones. In one instance, he had made a traffic stop and called out for a DUI driver. The driver tried to get away and the officers tackled the guy running to his truck. Shaide called two times to 1078. Nothing was coming out Amanda Somerville was his backup. She called 911. Ultimately, he was able to get the radio out of his vest and use it. This incident occurred on September 5, 2021. Neither he nor Somerville were injured other than a few bruises.

Shaide was extremely vocal about the broken radios and was extremely frustrated with the fact that no one was doing anything about it. In November 2021, he was called into Captain Sundheim's office. Captain Sundheim and McLeod told him that their fight with the suspect was very "vanilla" and there was nothing to complain about. They said that sometimes the radios did not work and that he would have to be prepared to use other resources to call for assistance. Ultimately, Sundheim continued investigating the radio issue and uncovered that there was a short in the connection between the microphone and the radio and all of the radios were fixed. In Shaide's opinion, his complaints about the radio were not taken seriously. Attachment 40, pages 1348-1349, contains Captain Sundheim's investigation and response to the radio issue identified by Shaide dated September 13, 2021.

He believes morale is an issue because the officers didn't see the captain or chief for months. There were only certain meetings scheduled, and there were never any touchpoints. By touch points, Shaide means that neither of the Captains nor the Chief would go out of their way to appear at the midnight shift to interact with the officers and see how it was going. He talked about the discussions they had on the night shift with Schoenrock about not being cliquey. Somebody came up with the idea regarding "one shift." Shaide insists that the gesture was not mocking of the administration, but the administration thought that the midnight shift people were making fun of them.

Shaide is on the SWAT team. The armor that the patrol officers have is a level two. The SWAT armor is level four. He indicates that he got on the SWAT team to do that type of work, not to just train. He thinks that the administration does not utilize the team enough, for example execution of Warrants. There was some discussion about the fact that Sundheim does not allow the SWAT team to back up the undercover team when they are executing warrants.

He believes that there is poor communication from the administration and that they are focused on the wrong problems and doing nothing to improve morale. By way of example, he believes that the department should recruit more from Minot State University. He thought this was an actionable idea. He had a meeting with Dr. Rabe about whether or not he could volunteer to work with some of the students so that they get to know officers from the City of Minot Police Department, and that may help with recruiting and relationships. After speaking with Dr. Rabe, who told him that the University was all in, he went to Sundbakken to pitch his idea. He never heard from Sundbakken about the idea. He understands that Chief Klug and Dr. Rabe had a falling out which may be the issue. He doesn't understand why that would prevent the City from recruiting at MSU.

There was a survey that was sent to the Police Department, but there was no follow-up on the survey. He doesn't understand why the City of Minot Police Department cannot be fully staffed. The Ward County Sheriff is fully staffed, the City of Fargo is fully staffed, and the City of Williston is fully staffed. He states that the work environment is not good in the Minot Police Department. Shaide said that Becker left the Minot Police Department and took less money to go to the Sheriff's Department. Shaide has no personal knowledge about the underlying issues in Becker's departure.

He thinks the discipline is inconsistent. Two years ago, he backed into a tree and totaled the back trunk of the squad car and received no discipline. A year ago, he got stuck in a snowbank with the squad car. They pushed the car out of the bank with a plow and the plow dented the back door. For the second incident, he received a two-day suspension. Based on these experiences, he believes that discipline is inconsistent.

Radio issue was addressed and fixed in 2021.

Jared Foley

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Jared Foley. Foley was promoted to Sergeant in July 2019. He is currently the Sergeant responsible for the Records Department, which includes being the Evidence Custodian. Before moving into Records, he was on the patrol shift for eight years.

in December 2022, he was on patrol and loved his job. Thereafter, Chief Klug moved him to the Records division. In Records, he's in the station five days a week and always around the administration. Foley is not a fan of how the administration is running the department. He believes that they never make decisions and their thought process is inconsistent. He thinks that ideas go down the hallway and die, because they never hear anything back.

The person responsible for the Records Department before him was not efficient and there was a big mess to clean up. They use LEARMS for records management. Foley has been going through cases and conducted a massive cleanup and a massive push for categorizing evidence and destruction of evidence that is no longer needed. He was provided with three days of training working with the former Sergeant in Records. He also took a 14-hour course with the International Association of Property and Evidence. This is an association for evidence custodians. In July, he took 15 hours of training on the chain of custody issues and how evidence is handled in the City of Minot. They use Lexipol for the management of their property room. Lexipol is an entity that provides rules and regulations for police departments and other agencies. They conducted an audit in 2018 when Kenton was moved to the position of SRO. There is another officer who is on temporary light duty, Carrie Stanfield (Petersen) also worked in the Records Department with Foley for a year. She applied for the open position in Records, but was not given it. Instead, the position of the records officer was given to a Senior Officer. The department is also hiring another officer to work in the back as well.

Foley claims he inherited a total mess in the Records Division. There has not been a formal audit of evidence since 2018. He cleaned up and organized the Records Department and came up with ideas consistent with what he had learned to make changes. By way of example, he needed shelving units. They cost $800. He made the request several months ago with no response. He brought it up several times. The Chief gave him an answer similar to “I don’t wanna rob Peter to pay Paul.” Foley found some shelves that were not being used so after making several requests, he simply took them cleaned them up, and began using them in the evidence room. Several weeks go by and Chief Klug notices that Foley moved the shelves. Chief Klug said that he told Foley not to take the shelves and that he (Chief) would get back to him (Foley). As a result, he received a letter of counseling for moving the shelves into the intake room of the Evidence Room. Another suggestion was to move evidence processing outside the evidence room near the digital evidence technician and to put the heat sealer out there so that it would be easier for the officers to process evidence. He wrote a proposal and it was sent to the Chief's office and it died there. Foley says that he’s a young sergeant who has ideas about how work may flow better but he keeps getting shut down.

He said he participates in Tuesday meetings with the administration. There’s a lot of small talk back and forth and questions about what he’s working on. He does not believe it is productive.

Four months ago, he received discipline with a day off, because during his attempts to auction off unclaimed property, two bicycles in evidence were advertently sold. He auctioned one off, but was able to recover it. The other one the department paid for. It was simply a mistake, because he didn’t have enough help, as he was working the auction himself with four adults and seven juveniles from the cadet program. He feels that the discipline was unfair, because he didn’t have enough help during the first time through the process and did the best he could.

He also said that the administration does not attend events. There is a suicide prevention walk called “Out of the Darkness”. No administrative personnel showed up for that walk this year.

There was also an issue with coffee with a cop. The Acting Chief Plessas and Sundbakken attended. He also participated in drafting the wellness program. The City Attorney reviewed it and thought they did a good job. However, it has not been implemented. There have also been efforts made by the patrol officers on the uniform policy and a beard policy. They worked on the uniform policy two years ago and still nothing has been implemented.

Foley said he did have a one-on-one meeting with Chief Klug. He thinks Chief Klug had meetings with three people. Even though, he wanted to get to know everyone. The one-on-one meetings were stopped, because Chief Klug had family issues.

Only three or four sergeants go to the administrative meetings, even though all sergeants were supposed to attend these meetings. At the meetings, the administration focused on things like signs for parking in front of the new retaining wall, as opposed to things that are affecting morale. He believes that the morale issues are more important and are affecting service. For example, the failure to implement the beard policy and the continuing the prohibition of beards for officers results in p good candidates not applying for open positions.

Sara Kiss

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman spoke with Sarah Kiss. Kiss was trained on the department's personnel policies and passed her probationary period in June 2023.

Kiss had an altercation with another female officer named Becker. They responded to a call where a female had gone to the hospital, but they could not help her. She was a drug user and was very sick and wasn't eating. They responded to a call for a well-being check. The female was refusing to go to the hospital and Becker threatened the woman by saying something about her kids.

Kiss believe that this was an ethical issue. Sgt. Sandusky told Kiss to report the incident to her supervisor Sergeant Taylor Jensen. They called Sergeant Noyes and they interviewed Kiss. Kiss had detailed notes of what happened. Then the sergeants talked to Becker. Afterward, the Sergeants told Kiss that they would not do anything about it.

Kiss came to work the next day and got in the car with Becker. Becker told Kiss that Kiss should have come to her (Becker), because this is not how we do things here. Becker told Kiss that she (Becker) will not have her (Kiss') back on the road, and once that bridge is burned, nobody will have her (Kiss') back. Kiss spoke to Amanda Somerville who was a friend on her shift. They reviewed the policies and determined that it would be instant termination if Becker failed to back them up. Later, she found out that other issues were going on with Becker and, as a result of those other issues, Becker was moved to dayshift and they worked all of their days together. Kiss was concerned, because Becker said she would be on her own. Becker was put on leave came back to work and then went back on leave. Ultimately, Becker submitted her resignation. Kiss does not know what happened to Becker or if the department ever investigated retaliation against her. Kiss did not report Becker's statements about backing Kiss up to anyone. Kiss believes that it would be good to follow up with the officer and let them know what happened in the investigation.

Otherwise, she is very happy in the department. They checked on her after she had a call with a gunshot victim. Kiss thought that she got the best medical care.

Tyler Ruelle

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Tyler Ruelle. He has been working for the department for 15 years and is currently a Patrol Sergeant, on the SWAT team, and sniper team.

This page contains no comments

Ruelle doesn't have a lot of interaction with the administration. He is concerned, because they have not yet received their 2023 performance evaluation. That being said, he believes an employee would know if there was an issue with their performance, because the sergeants work closely with the patrol officers. When Chief Klug began working as the Chief, he said he (Klug) would have one-on-one meetings with each of the officers. He was doing them with Lieutenant Haug and Sundheim. Ruelle does not see the Chief as he seems to come in late and does not come to any of the shift briefings compared to other chiefs. Ruelle says that it is noticeable. Ruelle is also critical of the 12 to 10 shift, because the department is down on staffing and the individuals that are working that shift are not seeing their Sergeant. They do not have enough personnel to cover the street and the 10 to 12 shift makes it even worse. Ruelle was aware of the situation between Becker and Batteiger. He said that the officers need to be professional when they come to work and they cannot take their issues onto the street. Ruelle said that if they were working on the same side of town, Becker's statements that "I will not cover him" and "if he is on a call, I will not cover him" are not manageable. Any officers can end up on the same side of town working with another officer they may not like. At some point, she was removed from the sniper team and ultimately resigned.

It has been a weird time after COVID, which is the elephant in the room. He was told that his behavior was being influenced by Sergeant Schoenrock, but the fact of the matter was that COVID had isolated the midnight shift in the patrol division from the administration, and that created the separation and maybe some of the issues.

He recalled the situation with Batteiger at the annual firework show at the fairgrounds. This is an incident where Batteiger was chasing two juveniles on an ATV. The traffic was all backed up going west and he was trying to pursue a four-wheeler down Third Avenue. Ultimately, Batteiger was in the eastbound lane going west. The pursuit was outside of the pursuit policy. Ruelle does not believe Batteiger received any discipline for that pursuit. Another incident occurred when there was a kid on a bike who was hit by a car. Becker, Ruelle, and Batteiger were doing traffic control. It was a hot day and Ruelle told Batteiger to relieve Becker from the traffic control. Becker was getting angrier and angrier as she focused on Batteiger and would not allow him to relieve her. Ultimately, Ruelle relieved her instead of Batteiger. However, this created operational issues as the sergeant should not be directing traffic.

Ruelle is aware of the situation with Pat Blanchard. He was drunk at a party and then heard a call go out for the SWAT team. Blanchard tried to respond to the call leaving the bar. He crashed his car and blew the tire. He drove the car to the Police Department and was in the sallyport trying to change the tire. There were two or three officers there watching him. Ultimately, Shane Haug went over and convinced Blanchard not to change the tire and respond to the call. At this point, people in the department knew that Blanchard needed help with alcohol. He does not know what discipline was issued or what help was provided to Blanchard. Blanchard was suspended from the SWAT team. He believes that the DUI for Blanchard was overlooked, which in his opinion, is unfair because others may have gotten prison time for the same behavior.

Ruelle believes that the midnight shift was trying to make a morale problem, fun. They went from three lieutenants to two lieutenants, and the administration was presenting that the department members were all "one shift." This is the same time the Chief created the position of Professional Standards, Lieutenant. There are only two patrol lieutenants, one works the 6 a.m. to 2 p.m. shift and the other works the 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. shift. The night shift does not have a lieutenant. The administration tried to address this issue by saying we were one big shift and we could do this because we are the administration. However, Ruelle believes that if officers have questions, the administration should provide answers. If the

Chief is not around, the Captains need to have sufficient information to respond as representatives of the Administration

Ruelle has had conversations with Sundheim where he was seeking information to share it with his shift. The response from Sundheim was that the administration trusted the sergeants to respond to the patrol officers. However, Ruelle didn't have the information to provide. It was like they were saying "We trust you to make the information up" and respond to the officers. Now they have five lieutenants as Dave Chapman was promoted to Lieutenant. He believes some of the Lieutenants are pretty direct but he always thinks something else is going on.

Ruelle believes that patrol officers should get an honest performance evaluation. He believes there needs improvement evaluation on item 8 on his performance evaluation was tied to the "free talk" meeting, which he doesn't believe is appropriate. He was not downgraded in his overall evaluation and does not think he lost pay. He identified the anonymous email that was sent to the media containing a long list of performance issues of the Chief and Captain.

Andrew Roach

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Andrew Roach. Roach has been with the department for 8-1/2 years. Roach has previous experience in other police departments, including the county. He is on the Ward County Task Force. They respond to calls around the state. He has been on the task since January 2024. He has been on the dayshift for one year and was on midnights before then.

Chief Klug took over in 2020 right before COVID. There have always been issues with communication and explaining why we do things the way we do them. By way of example, he put in for a training session in Bismarck, North Dakota. The training was free and he was willing to drive to Bismarck to attend the training. He put in for the training three weeks before the training was scheduled and then followed up with Lieutenant Haug the week before the training. By Thursday or Friday, Roach had not received a response. The Training Captain is Sundbakken. He talked to Sundbakken, who did not take it well and was rude and Roach was upset because it was taking so long to get a response. Sundbakken shut the door and they argued the lack of a response. Roach says that the only time he saw administration is when he was getting off of the midnight shift when they were coming in. He was frustrated in general, because he needed to follow up on the training to get lodging and wanted to know if he was going to be able to go. He got a call from Lieutenant Haug that Sundbakken was upset with the way Roach spoke to him regarding the training. Roach said that conversations are preferable to emails. Later that night, he was told that he was approved to go to the training, but he woke up the next morning to a text that said the training request was denied. Later that night at a briefing, Schoenrock told Roach that he was accused of yelling at Sundbakken. Roach said that he was made to look like a bad guy, but all he wanted was approval for the use of a car and a response to his email. The training was on March 22, 2021. It was called Evidence-based Interview and Interrogation.

From other interviews, I was told that training was curtailed if not eliminated during COVID-19, because of the risk of transmission in large groups. As the administration made the decision not to allow officers to walk into the dispatch center, the denial of training is consistent with that approach for that time.

In 2021, he received his performance evaluation but his Sergeant, Schoenrock, did not write the evaluation even though he saw me every day. Lt. Haug went through the evaluation with Roach and gave him subpar grades. He was told that the midnight shift was cliquey and did not integrate with the other shifts. There was a problem because the midnight shift liked to have fun. Schoenrock attributed this attitude against the midnight shift to the administration. We were told that we should mind our "P's and Q's." Roach also worked some overlap shifts on afternoons so when he would come in, he would make a gesture referencing "one shift," which is referred to by Fuller as the "Sammie Sosa kiss." The administration took this as a mocking gesture. However, Roach believes that they were just trying to keep the job interesting. On midnights, sometimes it's slow and it was never their intention to be disrespectful. They did not have a lot of calls so they would go out and play games to see for example who could arrest the most people. In 2018 and 2019, he had the most arrests. They were trying to maintain their motivation and build a little bit of camaraderie with some competition. They were trying to be proactive and look for people that have active warrants. It was difficult for the midnight shift, especially during COVID, because the administration would have meetings during the day and they would meet with everyone in the department except the midnight shift. Then they would hear rumors or interpretations of what occurred from different people.

Roach's 2021 evaluation, Category 8. Ability to work cooperatively with supervision or as part of a team.

> Officer Roach works well with his sergeants and other night-shift officers. Officer Roach needs to remember that the night shift is part of a larger team and needs to improve his demeanor towards administration and other personnel outside of patrol. The total team effort includes all aspects of the department as a whole.

Overall, this was a positive evaluation where Roach was encouraged to move to investigations or patrol and continue to be a leader in the department. He was counseled to maintain a positive attitude with all personnel in the department and not to let small things cause frustration.

He believes that the midnight shift and Sgt. Schoenrock was labeled the agitator, and therefore Schoenrock was moved off of the midnight shift. Roach says the people choose shifts because of their family life, and the administration's perspective only took into consideration the department operations and disregarded the personal effect the change had on department members. He, however, has no personal knowledge of any accommodation issues addressed by the administration. At the same time, the administration also decided that they would rotate people out of specialty assignments. Schoenrock was not in agreement with these changes and did not want to move off the midnight shift.

He asked to participate in the recruitment process from MSU. He's a former athlete from MSU and wanted to be a team player and do what he could to boost hiring. When he made some of the suggestions, Roach believes he was labeled an agitator. In speaking to Sundbakken, I was told that Roach is participating in recruitment at MSU.

He had a one-on-one with the Chief. Roach compared Chief Klug to former Chief Olson. Olson would say hello to you in the hallways. Klug is not that person and he is not welcoming. His stepson, Kenny Tygart, told Roach that Klug did not like him. Roach has aspirations to be with the department for 30 years. He is hoping that he can make that happen.

During our conversation, Roach was reading off of notes on his cell phone.

Jason Bambenek

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interview Jason Bambenek. Bambenek has been a Patrol Sergeant for five or six years. He has worked both the night and day shifts. He has just under 20 years of service with the Police Department. Bambenek had some notes on his phone that he was reading off of during our interview.

He thinks it hurt more than it helped with Chief Klug. He said many officers were terminated or let go for lying in investigations. In January 2024, Lieutenant McLeod had some issues raised regarding an investigation in Missoula, Montana, or Boise, Idaho. He was put on administrative leave in January 2024 and then came back to work sometime around July 4, with no explanation. Bambenek believes there was an investigation regarding McLeod's niece. Bambenek has friends in law enforcement who told him about a situation that McLeod had around five years ago.

Bambenek said that he received a call as the supervisor on duty from a woman who said that a woman reported that when she was 17 she was sexually assaulted by McLeod and wanted to make a complaint. He took the complaint and emailed it to Chief Klug. He says the woman who called is Dena Rustebakke. Rustebakke is a police officer. He said the reason that McLeod was not investigated further is that the statute of limitations had expired. McLeod is married to Plessas' sister.

Bambenek said he has a weird working relationship with McLeod, because McLeod is cheating on his wife with Bambenek's neighbor Charlsie Burud. She told Bambenek that she was having a sexual relationship with McLeod. He also feels that McLeod is "touchy-feely "with Sergeant Carmen Asham. Bambenek says that the investigation into McLeod was closed by BCI.

Bambenek said that Shane Johnson told him that the current case with the niece was closed. Something happened five years ago which was reported to a school counselor. He believes that nothing is happening, because Sundheim and McLeod were all SWAT commanders at one point and they all know each other and their friends.

Bambenek is concerned because the department is below staffing 17 officers and some people are not doing their job, such as Sergeant Robbie Sumlin. There is someone who is running a department called Street Crimes and not supervising anyone. Bambenek believes that some of these officers should be put back on the street.

Bambenek said that officers are never informed why they are under investigation and if you had been more transparent, the issues would have been minimized. He doesn't believe people are being held accountable, for example, drug testing. Officers are notified in advance that they're going to be sent for random drug testing, which gives them time to clean up. There were no evaluations in 2023 and there are no quarterly assessments. Bambenek believes in Sundbakken is horrendous at training. He believes that Chief Klug is the main reason that people are leaving. There is a long hallway between the Administration's office and the rest of the Police Department.

He thinks that there is a lack of consistency and a lack of focus on what people want to do in their careers. The Chief said that he would do one one-on-ones, but many people were not spoken to and many officers wanted to talk to the Chief. By way example, Zack Myers, wanted his one-on-one with the Chief, but was unable to get it.

Sean Christie

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Sean Christie. Christie is a dispatcher who began working for the City in 2023.

Christie believes there have been issues in the Dispatch Department that have existed for a long time. He has been a dispatcher for eight years and believes that he "is the reason the dispatch continues to operate." By that, he means that there is a lot of dissatisfaction in the department, particularly concerning the 12-hour shifts and how many people they have lost since COVID. The current PSAP leader is Margaret Haugen who, he believes is not good at her position. He describes her as a cartoon supervillain, who is completely untrustworthy and lies to the dispatchers. Because she's untrustworthy, she causes a lot of problems between the dispatchers. By way of example, he recalled the situation with a dispatcher who is not adhering to the dress code. Another dispatcher reported it to Margaret and rather than behaving like a supervisor and correcting the dispatcher's attire, Margaret identified the dispatcher that made the complaint. This resulted in animosity between the two dispatchers. Christie says that Margaret has no sense of confidentiality. She talks to one dispatcher about another lead dispatcher which creates animosity between the individuals. Sean, Beth, Lacie, and Shanlya all work four 12-hour shifts. They all believe that Margaret talks to everyone about everybody else. The dispatchers have a deal among themselves. They will always confirm with the actual dispatcher when Margaret says somebody made a comment or complaint. They are high-pressure jobs that are subject to tribalism. It's easy to create fractions amongst the departments.

He believes that Margaret uses gossip as a way manage the department on a daily basis . He doesn't think that discipline is being handled correctly. One of the more egregious situations is with Nicole. She came from Orange County Florida and had six years of experience. Margaret hired her and was very supportive. Nicole became pregnant with a new boyfriend and wanted to switch days. She told Margaret, but said that she did not want the issue of her pregnancy to spread around the department. Nicole was asking to switch days to handle her pregnancy. That same day, Margaret told Christy that Nicole was pregnant. She also told other people in the apartment that Nicole was pregnant. Nicole married one of the deputies, Casey Visocsky. Margaret told Casey that Nicole was pregnant. Nicole was only in her second trimester. Nicole was very upset about Margaret's breach of confidentiality. Ultimately, Nicole received an apology email from Margaret, but no meeting. This is after Nicole complained to Sundheim about Margaret disclosing her private information.

Christie says everybody talks to him. All 10 dispatchers say they have problems with Margaret. The dispatch center is very broken. Margaret reports to Sundheim and every dispatcher reports to Margaret. Recently, she sent a big email to everyone appreciating everyone and trying to check in, because her office should be a safe place where people can come and talk to her. The dispatchers had difficulty taking her seriously because of her past behavior. He said that they did a 360 evaluation online, but she got the results. She received no discipline for all of the complaints against her. Chief Klug has been coming to dispatch to try and address some of the issues. Chief Klug takes the lead in meetings starting in 2023.

Ultimately, Christie spoke with Sundheim after the meeting who indicated that they need to know everything that is going on in the department. It has gotten better. Margaret needed a wake-up call. Margaret is doing okay on the administrative part of the job and they have hired another individual to manage personnel issues. He believes that Margaret got her job because of politics, because she has been there so long.

They are so short-staffed on the dayshift. They have 37 agencies for which they dispatch Police and Fire and take and dispatch calls. Christie was coming in on his days off to cover for dispatchers taking lunch. He is no longer able to come in on overtime to cover for lunch.

From other interviews, I learned that dispatchers are allowed to take lunch and breaks, but they cannot leave the building. If they need to leave the building and go somewhere, they need to take paid time off. If they are going for a walk around the building, they take a radio and return if it is an emergency. The latter incident does not require PTO time. A dispatcher is allowed to go to a restaurant and pick up lunch for those who are working and want to order lunch without using PTO. Dispatchers are only required to punch out when they leave for extended periods which should not occur as they should schedule their errands on days that they are not working to avoid extended lunches and leaving the building.

Michael Connole

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Michael Connole. Connole is a Patrol Officer who began working in January 2021. He used to work in Dickinson as a Patrol Officer in the Narcotics Division. Dickinson is a town of about 30,000. He moved back home to Minot. Connole has been very lucky working in the department. He is currently working under Lieutenant Chapman as he is one of the canine officers. He works afternoons, noon to 10 o'clock. He does not understand why they are not all working 10-hour shifts for the amount of people that they have and the staffing needs. In Dickinson, they worked 12-hour shifts, but he believed it was an officer safety issue.[10]

Connole remembers a time when Batteiger's dog was aggressive to Connole. Batteiger did nothing in response to the dog's conduct. Connole is the officer who identified the problem with the drug kit. He was in the process of training his dog and he was working with Taylor Jensen. Connole stated that Batteiger was pushing to get the drug kit destroyed before Connole had access to it. The drug kit is used for training the canines and has tracked drugs including pure heroin from the DEA. There are strict guidelines for obtaining and destroying the drug kit. There are also strict training record requirements. Connole said that Jensen and Batteiger clashed regarding how the dog was being handled and trained. Connole said that while they were working through the process of destroying the drug kit, Batteiger tried to have the drug kit destroyed.

Connole indicates the administration makes a lot of promises, but does not fulfill them. For example, members of the department worked on a beard policy, but it was never implemented. He has not had a one-on-one meeting with the Chief. He has not received his 2023 performance evaluation. He is used to getting a six-month or yearly evaluation. He has had some interaction with Chief Klug, who acknowledges him by saying "hi."

After Connole receives his canine, he has to submit receipts for his expenses every month to Sundbakken. Connole feels that the administration lose the receipts monthly. They are always hounding him for the receipts, but he has turned them in. He thinks that the Captain should not be doing that administrative work and does not understand why they can't be more organized.

He does not believe that the administration takes any officer's suggestion seriously. Sundheim asked for input on the shift layout. Officers looked at the plan and sent him a proposal. Sundbakken sent back to him within 10 minutes and did not take any of their ideas. They also have a Sergeant Sumlin on a forced enforcement assignment. It is a detective position, but he's not supervising anyone. Connole believes that he is a sergeant and he could be on the road helping patrol.

Connole said that he took the Master Officer test in February. It took another month for him to get paid as a Master Officer, and it took even more time for him to get the pin, and recognize that he was a Master Officer. Connole believes this is an example of how the administration disregard for the individuals or their accomplishments.

Lisa Jundt

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman discussed with Lisa Jundt. She's been working at the city for 12-1/2 years as the Human Resources Director. She indicates that the Police Department has a policy regarding discipline and utilizes a disciplinary matrix when making disciplinary decisions. The Police Department comes to Human Resources with sensitive issues such as mental health. The department and City have a harassment policy, complaint procedure, and grievance process. Generally speaking, individuals do not come in for their exit interview. Human resources call them as soon as human resources know they're leaving, but generally, they do not come in.

Jundt did not know that Lieutenants McLeod and Haug were conducting exit interviews with officers.

Dan Batteiger

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman spoke with Dan Batteiger.

Batteiger has been with the department for five years. He came from Colorado in the western part of the state. He worked for four years in Crested Butte, Colorado. He has a year with the Ward County Sheriff's Department and then came to the City of Minot in 2019. He works, the day shift on patrol.

He doesn't have too many issues with the department. He thinks it's run in a "old-school" fashion concerning technology. During briefings, they read the case docket, but do not give out too much information on the activity on the shift prior or the street activity.

He works the night shift with Lieutenant Scott Redding and Sergeant Schoenrock. He's had some difficulty at the department regarding a pursuit involving an ATV after the state fair last year. He worked the night shift with his canine, but had difficulty with the logs and tracking. He is not good at putting in information. He was recommended for the canine program by his Sergeant. Another canine handler, Sergeant Pappenfus was retiring his canine and that's how Batteiger joined the program. When asked about the lost heroin from the canine kit, Batteiger said he was hiding different amounts to see if the dog would alert. Somehow the dog failed to find the heroin. He lost the dog for failing to train the dog. He was also removed from all instructor positions, but he was not given any suspension time. This was in March of 2024 when his dog Cyrus went to someone else. Batteiger was having trouble reading the dog. He was told that after six months if his workmanship improved, they would consider reinstating some of his teaching privileges.

Three years before that, he received some letters regarding a pursuit with a City employee in the vehicle. He was conducting a ride along with a dispatcher and he engaged in the pursuit. He also had some trouble with another officer, Becker. He was separated from his wife and was living with Becker. While he was living with Becker, there was some issue with his relationship with a domestic violence victim that he met while on a call. The relationship was short lived, but Becker found out about it and he ultimately moved out of her residence. He indicates that he had no problems with Becker and he is unaware of why she had problems working with him.

When he attended canine school, it was the toughest school he ever had to attend. They were very active in working locations and he was working with a green dog. It was a long process. Since then, he's moved to the day shift, 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. It's much busier than the night shift, but it is a much tighter shift. The day shift checks on each other. Batteiger claims he has worked to get himself in a better place.

He doesn't have a comment on the internal investigation. Some of the commanders were trying to change policies like the grooming standards and some things were changed and some things were not. There were frustrations with the rejection of suggestions. He never saw the administration and the hallway to the administrative offices is called the “ivory hallway.” People have frustrations with the administration regarding the communications coming from the administration. He denies recording people on the night shift.

He was asked about his responsibility to purchase Christmas gifts for the sergeants and lieutenants on his shift. He gathered money and was supposed to buy custom action figures of each of the lieutenants and sergeants. He put the orders in, but he has not received all of the action figures. This was for Christmas 2020. He received them in 2021. He was waiting to get all of them. When asked why he did not refund any of the money, Batteiger indicated that he had no reason he had just not put any effort into it. Lieutenant Wegner brought this situation to his attention in the spring of 2024. However, at the time of our discussion, he had not done anything in response to that conversation.

Stephanie Stalheim

On October 16, 2024, Koelbel and Heintzelman spoke with Stephanie Stalheim regarding the investigation. Stalheim is the City of Minot Attorney who handles City Council meetings, misdemeanor violations, and City Council departmental questions. She is the municipal attorney, but does not engage in civil litigation on behalf of the city. She addresses some human resources and municipal issues. She started with the City as an Assistant Attorney in 2015 and the City Attorney in 2022. She is aware that 2022 was a difficult year for the city in that Pat Blanchard committed suicide and Tami Peterson, an employee who worked in dispatch, but provided EMS services to the City was killed in a motorcycle accident. Stalheim does not have personal knowledge concerning any of the underlying conduct as she was not working for the City in this capacity in 2022. Her involvement has been with the request for this investigation for the most part.

Assistant Attorney, Nick Schmitz, handles most of the B misdemeanor hearings. She was not involved in the process of promoting Chief Klug to the Chief’s position. Two panels interviewed him. She has no involvement in the Chief's disciplinary history. There was an investigation in 2020 or 2021 regarding a claim of disparate treatment but she was not involved.

On February 6, 2022, the City and various media outlets received an anonymous e-mail. The City received the e-mail on the website citizen request. That was the first she'd heard of those issues with Chief Klug.

This page contains no comments

The City has a complaint policy or process. If it gets a complaint, it can go to the Civil Service Commission, which is the hearing body that is comprised of three people. The City Attorney's office does not investigate personnel matters, but the Human Resources Department does investigate some of those issues.

Stalheim had heard about inconsistent discipline. She is not really involved in disciplinary issues unless Chief Klug or his predecessor Chief Olson would come in to talk to her about what was going on. She was aware that there was an issue with Shannon Lackey and her interactions with Jenna Bjork. After Lackey's conduct at a bar called “The Spot” there was a call and a disorderly conduct investigation and she resigned.

Stalheim says that either Chief Klug or a Captain will attend meetings with her but they find themselves in the same place time after each meeting. There's a lot of circling back on issues and information and things seem to take a lot longer than they need to take. She doesn't believe Chief Klug is delegating enough of the responsibilities or if he is delegating, he is not giving the delegate the full authority to make the decisions. She's not sure why he is micromanaging people. All of the upper management appeared to be working 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. You don't see them afterward. She thinks that the Police Department issues stay within the Police Department and they don't utilize Human Resources or the administration or her office to work through matters as much as they could or should.

She does not work with Margaret Haugen on a daily basis and had no involvement with her promotion to PSAP Manager. Generally speaking, if people bring things to her attention, she plays the role of the mediator and tries to bring two people together. People in the Police Department are very conscious of not breaking rank and the need to talk to a supervisor before speaking to anyone else outside the department.

Concerning dispatch, the dispatch center was moved to its new location in City Hall. Margaret moved to the new location first. Her office is physically separate from the rest of the dispatchers in the new location. This physical separation may create a problem in overseeing the dispatchers. She believes that Chief Klug and Sundheim are holding monthly meetings with Margaret and the lead dispatchers to work through some of the problems. She has heard that Wayne Fahey is a good trainer and that he is adding new policies. She has also heard that he has a good relationship with everyone.

She has never heard Chief Klug say that if people don’t like it here, they can leave. She knows that Chief Klug does not like to be crossed. When asked about Chief Klug’s leadership training, she knows that he went to the FBI Academy, but does not know anything else.

The City does have a contract with a provider for an Employee Assistance Program. Maggie Klug used to be a Minot Police Officer. She is now a therapist who is contracted with the EAP program. When Pat Blanchard killed himself, the availability of EAP was communicated to all officers. Maggie Klug was one of the therapists that may have been available. No one is mandated to go to Maggie Klug.

She is not aware of any domestic violence issues against Captain Sundheim. Shane Haug runs internal investigations. McLeod was the investigations Lieutenant before that time. Sundheim conducts some investigations when they are investigating people of higher rank than a lieutenant. All of the Command Staff were members of the SWAT team.

She is aware that Chief Klug is not as responsive as the City Administration would like. She assumes that it is usually, because something bigger has come up. The captains are pretty timely. She identifies the alcohol ordinance rewrite that took a long period. There was an issue with tobacco checks and alcohol checks, this is why when Chief Klug would send a captain they'd find themselves in the same place month after month after month.

Harold Stewart

On October 16th, 2024, Koelbel and Heintzelman spoke to Harold Stewart regarding this investigation. Stewart has been the City Manager for the City of Minot ND since the week after Christmas 2020. City Council appointed Chief Klug before COVID. Stewart was not involved in that process.

Stewart indicates that council members have been historically approached by patrol officers who want to provide information to the elected officials after they have not received a satisfactory answer from the Administration. They do not use the grievance or complaint procedure. He was not involved in the hiring decision for Klug as Chief and the information that is out there is a mix of rumor and speculation. He has told people to come talk to him directly if they have specific issues they want to address, they should come and talk to him, but no one has come to talk to him directly. In Stewart's perspective, since the alleged incidents regarding Chief Klug's current wife and alcohol use, he's been investigated and disciplined. He was promoted five times since then and he's been performing satisfactorily. If there is some new issue, Stewart will investigate it.

All of these issues, predate Fuller and Samuelson. There was a need for a new police station. Both Fuller and Samuelson have held up that process because they want to take care of these morale issues first.

On August 26, 2024, Fuller and Samuelson came to him to discuss the morale problems. Stewart told them that the information they were providing happened in the past. If there is something new then he would address it. Fuller came back and said that he had new information, because he has been meeting and talking to people about what was going on at the Police Department. Fuller's information was that Officer Batteiger had slept with a domestic violence victim and that he had lost 15.7 grams of heroin. This information was new to Stewart.

Stewart was very disappointed that Fuller and Samuelson had this information, but Chief Klug had not brought it to his attention. Stewart has repeatedly told his management team that bad things are going to happen and there are things that we'll need to deal with and they need to let him know what is happening. Stewart would rather hear it from them directly than from another source. Once a month, they have a meeting where the department heads can update Stewart and give information regarding personnel issues. The department heads are however free to contact Stewart at any time to discuss an issue that's going on in their department.

By way of example, when COVID began, the Chief said that no one should go into dispatch unless they're working there. A couple of officers shared their codes to get into the door to dispatch. Then, during the investigation, one of the officers lied about it and was fired. For that incident, Stewart was kept advised. Concerning the heroin issue, Chief Klug did not advise him of that situation when it occurred. This is not the first time Stewart has managed a Police Department. They are siloed and protective of their own and they don't want to interact either with the administration or the Human Resources Department. Klug has been inconsistent with notification. If there is an officer hurt or injured or an officer-involved shooting or a shooting in a bar, there is an update and they reach a consensus about how to handle the situation the next day. But concerning personnel matters, Chief Klug does not provide the same updated information. Captain Plessas has been much better about keeping Stewart updated. The City has a grievance process which ultimately comes to him but it is not utilized much.

This page contains no comments

Stewart works with Chief Klug on the budget process. It has been very adversarial. Chief Klug was having difficulty working with Stewart. He would blow up at the meetings and then come back and apologize. Stewart believes that Klug would talk to his wife about having a good relationship with the administration and that's when he would come back and apologize. He had a very tough time when he was having personal problems and his behavior was very inconsistent.

Stewart does not think the leadership in the department and communication is where it needs to be. The two Captains are Sundheim and Sundbakken. Sundbakken has been with the department for a long time and is a nice guy, but he does not have the qualities of management. He does not seem to exercise leadership or direction. He's far more task-oriented.

Before being promoted to Acting Chief, Stewart did not have much interaction with Plessas. He recalled a meeting between Chief Klug, Plessas, Sundbakken, and Sundheim where they wanted a new position as a public information officer. Officer Moss was supposed to be the community outreach person, but they were not getting sufficient bang for their buck from his performance. The Fire Department also needed a Public Information Officer. Stewart told Klug and the captains that he could not get additional personnel for their department, however he could support having one Community or Public Information Officer for both the Police Department and the Fire Department and other city departments. They became very adversarial including Plessas. None of them could understand that he was on their side and trying to do the best he could for them, but he was limited in his capabilities. There was no reason that one person couldn't support both the Fire Department and the Police Department as a Public Information Officer. Maybe the following year, they could increase the budget for that position depending on how the position functions. Since that time, Plessas has stepped up and done a nice job in the Acting Chief position. He has been far more supportive and communicative. He shares his position and once a decision is made he will execute it. Stewart did not get that kind of performance and response from Chief Klug. Plessas appears to have the trust of the department.

Sundheim is extremely defensive of Chief Klug and himself. He gets pretty heated and Stewart is not impressed with his leadership capabilities. Sundheim was involved in the development of the dispatch center. This was new to everyone that participated in the process but Sundheim made it harder than it needed to be. He believes that Sundheim is more of a dictator than a leader.

Stewart is aware of an issue concerning creating a grooming policy so that the officers could have beards year-round. A committee was established and a grooming policy was created, but it has not been implemented. Stewart thinks this is a problem because the Chief has not executed on the policy or told the department that he was not going to accept their policy.

Stewart has made changes to the PTO policy, which was based on staff input. He expected that his department heads would talk to their personnel and bring any concerns to him that were expressed by the officers. That was done and he implemented some of the ideas he received.

Klug’s reaction to a new issue depends upon what mood he's in and whether he agrees with it. Stewart has had to tell him directly that he will do certain things. It has been difficult working with him on budget issues . He has been slow to come to the bigger picture of being a manager and looking at the entire organization. Klug’s focus is on the Police Department and while he advocates strongly for the Police Department he has a hard time prioritizing his needs. By way of example, Chief Klug pushed hard for this Public Information Officer position, but they also needed more dispatchers that year. Stewart thought the dispatchers were more important than the public information officer. Similarly, he asked for other positions such as a forensic technician who works on computer files. In Stewart's opinion, he would have prioritized the forensic technician over the PIO. Sometimes he questions Chief Klug's logic and judgment.

Chief Klug knew the Assistant PSAP Manager who died in the motorcycle accident shortly after being hired. He also took some personal blame on the Blanchard situation. He was slow to get help for himself even though he advised officers to go to the EAP program. He believed Chief Klug's lashing out was a result of these deaths.

Another situation occurred concerning the vet clinic that provides shelter for the stray dogs that they pick up. Stewart told Chief Klug that he should make sure he has other options in case the clinic can no longer handle the stray animals. Chief Klug did not do so and this year, the vet clinic told the City that it would no longer provide shelter for the strays after the end of the year. Now Chief Klug is struggling to find an alternate location on short notice.

Stewart has talked to Chief Klug about the fact that the command staff works Monday through Friday 8:00 to 4:00. He asked him when the last time was that he visited a night shift or came in on the weekends. He has not been disciplined for his performance. It is Stewart's position that the City should not go back and discipline Chief Klug for incidents that occurred many years ago, particularly since he assumes that they have disciplined for those behaviors. Stewart believes that there is much more team building and training that Chief Klug needs to do in Dispatch. He has informed Stewart of some of those issues but there is more for Chief Klug to do.

William DeNovio

On October 28th, 2024, Heintzelman spoke to William DeNovio. DeNovio has been with the Police Department since 2019, but he left to go to New York for a year and returned in 2022. He is currently in Investigations working as a Detective. He spent four years in the military and five years in the National Guard.

DeNovio does not have any complaints. He likes his job and believes he is treated well. He wanted to ensure that this investigation was not about individuals' personal complaints and that we knew that there were people who were doing well at the department.

If there was anything to discuss, it would be the communication with the administration. His comments were similar to others in that questions that are asked of the sergeants and passed up do not seem to get answered or take a long time to get answered.

He also thought there was a lack of transparency in issuing discipline. While he understands that people do not need to know everyone else's discipline, there is a level of information, particularly when someone in command is gone for some time and then returns without any information whatsoever. It is unsettling and creates an environment where there is a lack of trust. Some sergeants and lieutenants hold officers accountable and some do not.

Some are tougher on report writing than others. however, what is required under the law is the same and if the reports are not written well, then it is embarrassing for the officer in court, the victim and the department in court.

He also recounted a situation regarding use of force where the issue was presented to a Lieutenant and Sergeant who reviewed body camera footage and indicated verbally that there was no issue and nothing to report. Accordingly, reports were prepared and then the body camera footage came to light and an investigation was conducted. He subsequently received a letter of reprimand indicating that his use of force report should have been more explicit regarding another officer's conduct. An investigation was conducted several months later in response to public exposure of the video.

Darren Dyke

On October 28th, 2024, Heintzelman spoke to Darren Dyke. Dyke has been with the Police Department over 20 years. He is the lieutenant responsible for investigations. He took the lieutenant's test and was selected by Chief Klug. Another Sergeant who applied was Schoenrock. Dyke was selected over Schoenrock and Schoenrock was not happy about the fact that Dyke was selected over him. Schoenrock started complaining that Dyke was sleeping with the human resources employee and he cheated on the test which is why he scored so high and was selected. Schoenrock made this complaint in the 2021 third party investigation. The complaint was unfounded. Dyke explained that he listened to all of the testing materials on audiobooks and that is why he did so well.

He wanted me to know that Schoenrock's allegations were false. He knew the human resource person because they had both been involved in training for the department. Nothing more. He had no issues in the department. He tries to stay out of the gossip and rumors and do his job. He did not have any other issues to discuss with me.

Schoenrock raised the same allegations in 2021 and that report, which we reviewed, also determined that Schoenrock's allegations were unsubstantiated.

Cheryl Gessner

On October 28, 2024, Heintzelman spoke to Cheryl Gessner. Gessner has been with the Police Department for 35 years. She is currently Chief Klug's Administrative Assistant. She said that she has known Chief Klug for many years and gets along with him, but she says that he has been pushing her out of her job for several years. She said that Chief Klug has removed all of her duties and responsibilities and she has nothing left to do. At one time, she did payroll and accounts payable and receivable for the Police Department. Payroll took a lot of time because it was done manually and she had to correct a lot of input to ensure that people were paid correctly. Now, payroll is automated and she does not have to do it.

Gessner indicated that the Chief wanted the Captains to sit near his office so he moved her into an old office with no windows. She called it the "dark office." Then she was moved into an office in records. She was then moved back into the dark office. She has tried to find things to do in the Records Department and Investigations but they have their assistants as well.

I asked her whether Chief Klug told her that there were issues with her performance of her job duties. She said there may be some things on her performance evaluation, but nothing significant.

She said that she is not ready to retire, but Chief Klug has removed all of her duties and there is nothing for her to do.

Caisee Sandusky

On October 28th, 2024, Heintzelman spoke to Caisee Sandusky. Sandusky has been with the Police Department for approximately 18 years she worked in patrol and then was assigned as a School Resource Officer. She worked as an SRO for eight years. She is currently the Administrative Sergeant that is responsible for community outreach.

When Chief Klug came out with the idea to move people around, it started in patrol. Officers were very upset. She thought it initially came out in an email. When she heard people complaining about it, she told them to ask the Chief why he made that decision. Ultimately, there were some meetings to discuss the changes. Chief Klug then included specialty assignments into the rotation so she knew that she would be moving. She figured that if she had to move, she might as well take the promotion test. She took the sergeant's test and was promoted to the Administrative Sergeant's position.

She also said that Chief Klug has been very supportive of her after she left the SRO position and has allowed her to stay active in the State SRO program. He has also been supportive in her new role as Administrative Sergeant. She does not have any hesitation in walking into his office and asking him a question. He will provide the answer or tell her that he has to look into it. Sometimes, he gets back to her and sometimes he does not.

There is a divide between the sergeants and lieutenants regarding the amount of information that is transmitted down to the sergeants. there are times when officers will ask a question and she does not have the answer. She will ask a Lieutenant, but information does not necessarily come back responding to the inquiry. Communication is an issue in the department.

Christine Roberts

On October 28, 2024, Heintzelman spoke to Christine Roberts. Roberts has been with the Police Department for 16 years and works in the records department. Roberts told me that she did not have many complaints except her application for the Office Manager position. Roberts indicated that she and a woman named Trish applied for the Office Manager position. She likes Trish and has no complaints about her in the position. However, she does not think that her tenure with the City was given enough consideration. She indicated that when she was interviewed, the command staff told her that they were looking for new ideas for the Office Manager position in the Records Department. She said that she tried to give new ideas, but did not mention what they were when asked. Trish only had two years with the City when she was given the position. Roberts thinks that her years of service to the Department/City should have carried more weight. When asked whether she thinks she should have the position instead of Trish, Roberts said that she has no issues with Trish in the job.

Kristin Guerton

On October 28, 2024, Heintzelman spoke to Kristin Guerton. Guerton has 8.5 years with the Police Department. She has been a detective for the past two years.

When she heard about Chief Klug's desire to move people to other shifts, she had a conversation with Captain Dale Plessas and Lt. Darren Dyke. They told her that she would not be moved and that she could stay in the investigations division as long as she wanted to stay there. She indicated that she considered participating in the promotion process, but she does not the trust process. She is concerned that there is a lack of consistency in the training of patrol officers in that the reports that come to investigations and the affidavits that are submitted for warrants are, at times, poorly written, i.e. missing the elements of the crime, or a cut and paste from the police report which affects the effectiveness of the prosecutions. She also believes that there is no consistency in the FTO training. She is concerned that with hiring issues that the department is experiencing, the department is more lenient in passing an officer through the FTO program. Previously Shannon Lackey was responsible for the FTO program, and she was tough. Now, Captain Sundbakken supervises Caisee Sandusky who is responsible for the FTO program.

From her perspective, people are not being held accountable. Sergeant Greg Johnson works in investigations. He does not know how to draft a warrant or investigate a case. There are cases of domestic violence and sexual assault that he has let sit on his desk. When she went on maternity leave, her duties fell on Stephanie Lentz to handle. When she returned, she picked up a "gnarly stalking case" that Sgt. Johnson was not working up.

No one uses Greg Johnson, because he is lazy and has not been held accountable for his performance. Everyone, including Lt. Darren Dyke, go to Sgt. Shane Johnson, because he gives feedback and offers help. Greg Johnson is a nice guy and no one wants to hurt him, but he is not pulling his weight. She recounted a situation where they were executing an arrest warrant in a homicide case and Sgt. Greg Johnson went over the radio and asked what case they were executing the warrant on. A supervisor that cannot do an officer's job and does not carry their weight is a problem for the department. There are five Investigators, two Sergeants, one Lieutenant and one Captain in the Investigations Department.

She was concerned that the ADP process wanted her to input her evaluation of the supervisor before her evaluation is done.

Guerton was on a search warrant when she was pregnant. During the execution of the search warrant at the end of 2023 at the Henderson Residence, Sgt. Gary Johnson stood at the doorway and watched everyone work. Erin Bonney, who has worked at few a police departments. She moved to the east coast. She spoke her mind about Greg Johnson in her exit interview. A lot of people feel bad because he is a nice guy, but he is not pulling his weight.

Guerton believes that there is a morale issue, because some people not carrying their weight. She believes there are inconsistencies in holding people accountable. By way of example, she believes the supervisor should read an affidavit before notarizing the affidavit. She does not think all supervisors read the affidavits, because sometimes she will get them and they are a "copy and paste" of the officer's report with a lot of unnecessary information in the affidavit.

There was a Uniform Committee established to review the beard policy and other uniform issues. They "busted their asses" working on the policy. Cole Strandemo did a ton of research for the policy that was presented. It addressed uniforms, hair, hats, etc. They were all passionate about it and it gave the officers a chance to participate in the process. They are not working on it anymore and it has fallen by the wayside.

Guerton said that "No shave November" went into December and carried through April. A day before May 1, when people would be required to shave, everyone was asking what was happening with the approval for the Uniform Policy. No one knew and nothing was implemented by the Chief after all the officers put in all that work. It is a morale issue. It did not cost the Department any money and the officers all worked hard and received no answer from Chief Klug with no explanation as to why there was no response.

As a result of the recent officer-involved shooting, Acting Chief Plessas sat down with every shift and explained what the process was for the investigation. He also read the victims' wife's response to a post on Minot Whiners and Complainers that attempted to criticize the police in their response. It was very well received.

She said Chief Klug is on the ND Post Board. She feels comfortable talking to Chief Klug, but there is a lack of communication in other areas. She suggested that I review Erin Bonney's exit interview. Lt. Haug and Lt. McLeod do exit interviews for the Police Department.

Shawn Wegner

On October 31, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Shawn Wegner. He has been with the Police Department for 24 years. He was promoted in the summer of 2015 to the rank of Lieutenant. He is currently working in Patrol from 8-4 p.m.

Wegner has good things to say about the Chief and command staff. When officers have different struggles, Chief Klug goes out of his way to assist. There was an officer who had alcohol issues. That officer was sent to Utah. Another officer was struggling with depression and the Chief supported him in going to Florida to seek assistance this summer. There was another officer, Becker, who was struggling with a mental health issue and Chief Klug did several things like rearranging schedules and constantly accommodating her.

Wegner knew Chief Klug when he was a Captain in the Investigation Division. Chief Klug recognizes how this career changes a person and tries to help from the wellness perspective. He knows of another individual who was struggling with retirement and with alcohol. The command staff had discussions about how they could help the individual.

He knows that the City Manager identified unfair discipline as an issue, but Chief Klug implemented the disciplinary matrix to be more transparent and create a level playing. Even with the matrix, not everyone knows all the facts, but they still claim unfair discipline. Not everyone is the same and it will not always result in the same discipline. An ongoing issue is missing court. The department is trying to standardize the consequences for officers who miss court. But the consequences may differ if it is a first offense or a third offense.

The supervisors keep separate files for written documentation of counseling memorandum and written warnings. Lieutenants can issue letters of counseling, but a letter of reprimand then goes to the Chief. There is a shared drive where sergeants, lieutenants, captains and the Chief can access any counseling memorandum.

Wegner says that this is the fourth chief that he has worked for and Chief Klug is constantly pushing communications to the department as a whole. The email system was antiquated and so they selected an app called Evertel which can be put on everyone's phone so they have access to communications from the department. Evertel has different rooms where information can be provided. Some rooms are for sending department-wide information, some is for supervisors and some are for particular divisions. The officers are not issued phones. There are work phones assigned to patrol cars and all detectives have work phones. it is easier to get people to put the app on their phone than email and the app is compliant with CEGIS because the communications relate to criminal justice information. The app has safety systems in place so people cannot copy the messages. There is no requirement for the officers to check the app daily. The app was also added to the computers.

Wegner believes that Chief Klug is very approachable. Every time he tries to talk to Chief Klug, he never turns Wegner away. There have been very few times that the door is shut and he is in his office working. Wegner believes Klug is busy throughout the day and then sends messages later in the evening. That is his level of dedication.

Wegner comes from 30 years of military service. Sometimes, when the command has been around for a long time, they are retired in place. Chief Klug has the same drive and works hard. He replies to emails at night and sends them at all hours.

Wegner indicates that the recent Batteiger issues were all "BS." There was no credible support to the allegations and BCI looked into it. Essentially, one of the cadets took a liking to Batteiger and commented on what she would like to have happened when she turned 18. There was no credence to any allegation that Batteiger did anything wrong.

About the one-on-one meetings, Chief Klug tried to do them but they fell by the wayside. Wegner had one and he thinks Chief Klug got through most of the department. Wegner suggests that if someone wanted a one-on-one and was missed, they should have asked to schedule a meeting.

Cole Strandemo

On October 31, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Cole Strandemo. Strandemo started in May 2011. He is currently a sergeant on the night shift. He is currently the Administrative Sergeant on patrol and works 10:00 p.m. to 8:00 a.m. He has been a sergeant for two years. He is also the Commander of the SWAT team.

Strandemo wanted to talk about the discipline that was issued in the department. He said that the use of discipline has been poor. The sergeants have been tasked with implementing some discipline, but the major decisions regarding discipline are not made by the sergeants. Strandemo related that as the Administrative Sergeant, he is also involved in the FTO program. One of the sergeants on the road told Strandemo that an FTO, Jacob Olson was bad-mouthing other supervisors in front of recruits during FTO training. This happened in front of two different trainees. It was reported that all Olson did was complain about other guys. Strandemo went to administration with Josh Noyes and said that Olson should be removed from the FTO program. Chief Klug and Captain Sundheim were present and there may have been another captain present. This was Strandemo's first foray into discipline. They discussed the options and Chief Klug talked about how the department cannot allow this in the FTO program. There were two other FTOs in the program and Olson has been angry. Klug said that he was "not going to tell you [Strandemo] what to do." Strandemo said that he thought Olson should not be an FTO. When Olson went to the Chief about being removed from the FTO program, the Chief stated that it was not his decision. Strandemo is upset that the Chief basically threw him under the bus. Strandemo does not understand that as a sergeant making the recommendation, he also has to stand behind the recommendation that he made.

Strandemo believes that Chief Klug is mad at him about an off-duty incident that occurred many years ago. He does not have any support for that feeling. Notably, Chief Klug promoted Strandemo to sergeant and relied on Strandemo's recommendation for the removal of Olson from the FTO program showing a level of confidence and respect for Strandemo's opinion.

He was also involved in the decision to remove Krista Becker as a sniper from the SWAT team, because she was unable to control her emotions. After she had her mental health issues, the SWAT team decided to keep her on the team, but she was suspended from responding to calls. She was given a road map of the things she needed to do to come back to the SWAT team. Everybody agreed, command staff and day shift all met with her. Strandemo was not a part of telling her that she was suspended from the team. Becker does not talk to him, because of what happened with the SWAT team.

Strandemo thinks that the only piece of paper that she was given indicated that she was suspended from the SWAT team and it somehow implicated him in that process. Strandemo had a one-on-one with the Chief.

He states that the testing for promotion has changed. They are moving towards an assessment center, which is an interview panel. It takes into consideration time on the job, education, and training.

Since the Chief's administrative leave, Plessas has been to three shift briefings. Strandemo is on the day shift now. However, he states that in the two years that he worked the midnight shift, only one Lieutenant attended a midnight shift briefing. Neither the captains nor the Chief attended a midnight shift briefing when Strandemo was working. They may have come on a day that he was not there, but he did not see them. He said that the pins for Master Officer and Senior Officer are left in the officer's mailbox. No one from the administration has come to a roll call to pin an officer.

When they recently had an officer-involved shooting, Acting Chief Plessas notified BCI on Tuesday or Wednesday; convened the investigation on Thursday and Plessas called the officer on Friday to let him know the results of the BCI investigation. This was Officer Lakoduk. Strandemo contrasts this incident with a use of force incident with Officer Collin Hall. It was reviewed by Lt. Haug and then given to the Chief. Hall did not hear a thing about it for over six weeks, because it was s sitting on the Chief's desk. Strandemo believes that the most recent officer involved shooting with Officer Lakoduk was investigated and cleared by BCI in a week.

In speaking to Acting Chief Plessas, the investigation into the officer involved shooting with Officer Lakoduk has not been completed by BCI and the Department is still waiting for the results of that report. That being said, it appears that Acting Chief Plessas was very transparent regarding the process and the support for the officers and Department.

Lt. McLeod is the Lieutenant in charge of Standards and Practices. He also conducts investigations and sends the report to the Chief for a decision on discipline.

Strandemo and the Intel Analyst reviewed communication programs for the department. He reviewed the one that Bismarck, N.D. police department used. Chief Klug did not select the same application. Strandemo says that for that system to work, the administration has to post regularly. In Bismarck, the Chief posted every day and the captains were also on the platform. The "atta boys" also came across the platform. Strandemo indicated that Chief Klug rarely posts to Evertel. We looked at his Evertel and saw that Chief Klug had posted before his administrative leave on September 11, 2024 on these dates: September 17, 2024; August 29, 2024; August 26, 2024; August 22,2024; July 24, 2024; July 20, 2024; and June 23, 2024. This does not include any "rooms" that the Chief may have sent communications that Strandemo was not a member.

Strandemo was also involved in creating the uniform policy that was given to Chief Klug in 2023. There were some issues with how officers were dressing for court. They wanted to update the policy for hair, jewelry, and piercing. Generally, in November officers can grow a beard if they donate to a charity. Strandemo was on the committee and he/they went to a variety of places, reviewed their policies and worked on getting a uniform policy to Chief Klug. Chief Klug did not have an answer by the end of November 2023 so he extended the no-shave November into December if the officers donated to another charity, approximately $20. It was extended through April 2024 and ended May 1, 2024. Strandemo said that he has tested the respirators and believes the policy presented addresses any issues regarding the ability to obtain a seal on a respirator if the officer has a beard that complies with the policy.[11]

Jason Sundbakken

On November 1, 2024, Heintzelman met with Captain Jason Sundbakken. Sundbakken has been with the Police Department for 28 years. He was promoted in 2019 by Chief Olson. He is currently the Administrative Captain and is responsible for supervising the Administrative Lieutenant, Dale Chapman. He is responsible for the equipment, recruiting, social media sites, and records.

He is responsible for how the department recruits. He had a couple of officers, Roach and Shaide who wanted to work with Minot State University to help with recruiting. They were paid overtime and went to MSU as an outreach. They also sent officers to Alexandria Tech to the hiring fair. They usually send graduates of that school to attend the hiring fairs. They have a really good relationship with Lake Region State College in Devils Lake ND. He said that the problem with recruiting from the Criminal Justice program is that the people in the program want to be lawyers instead of police officers. He is constantly talking to staff about any ideas they may have for recruiting.

The director of MSU's criminal justice department is Dr. Rabe. He is not aware of a problem between Chief Klug and Dr. Rabe. There are times when Dr. Rabe is very difficult to get a hold of to discuss participating in his curriculum. They have had conversations with the college to try and participate in the curriculum to help with recruiting. Sundbakken states that police departments have a huge recruiting problem in that they do not receive same amount of applications or the quality applications that they used to receive.

There is a North Dakota Police Chiefs Association. There is also an MN Police Chiefs Association.

Sundbakken is responsible for the Records Department. Cheryl Gessner has been moved to Records. There have been some issues between Gessner and Roberts where Roberts called Gessner a "bitch." Gessner can be difficult to work with. She was the previous Chief's Secretary and has been with the department since 1989. She used to be responsible for the payroll system, but they have streamlined the process and implemented ADP in 2024 for payroll. The Chief wanted all administrative staff in one place to streamline workflow. Previously the administrative staff was very compartmentalized and they did not work together. Gessner was very unhappy with the move. Her current responsibilities are invoicing, billing, and payments in ADP. She does some work in MUNIS but she has not learned how MUNIS functions entirely. She does some of the review of expenses charged on the department credit cards and some requisitions [11] Generally, the aversion to allowing officers to grow beards is because federal regulations prohibited beards if officers were going to use respirators. through MUNIS. She is generally scanning and saving the invoices to the application. Currently, the Chief approves all expenses.

They thought that Records would be a better niche for Cheryl. She reviews invoicing. She also reviews obituaries and finds former employees who died and removes them from the systems. Sundbakken describes Gessner's job duties as "ambiguous." He says that she is a good performer. Her office has been moved four times since 2020. Gessner was allowed to work from home during COVID, which may have created some issues as the department delivered hard copy papers for her to work off of since she could not access all of the systems from home.

The Office Manager position identified by Roberts was the Records Manager position, which is held by Trish Guthrie. Guthrie does a great job. When the command staff was interviewing for that job, they were looking for a person who could present new ideas. Guthrie did better than Roberts and was selected. She was interviewed by the Chief and all three Captains.

Community Outreach is handled by Caisee Sandusky, who is very busy and does not have enough support.

Sundbakken stated that the administration has discussed moving some positions to civilian positions (CSOs) so that sworn members of the department can be moved into patrol. Currently, they are talking about moving the two animal officers and traffic enforcement into community services and making them civilian positions. The administration needs to bring this to the City Council for the job description change and addition of civilian positions.

Sundbakken stated that he was part of the creation of the uniform policy. It was presented to Sundbakken and he sent it to the Chief. He has not received a response from Chief Klug.

Sundbakken indicated that when the decision was made to rotate people off shifts that they had been on for an extended period, there were some people, particularly the midnight shift, that was very angry about it. After Schoenrock was passed over for promotion, his personality changed. He was disgruntled. He would not say hi to people and responded very emotionally. As a result, the midnight shift also became disgruntled and this animosity created "cliques on night shift." At the same time, Chief decided to move the lieutenants off the midnight shift, because they were in the department sitting by themselves with not much to do. The lieutenants were reallocated so that there were two lieutenants responsible for patrol (instead of three), and one lieutenant was assigned to administration, one to investigations and one became the Standards and Practices lieutenant. The two patrol lieutenants stagger their shift and the department is still trying to figure out how to address and be present for the midnight shift. The idea behind moving the lieutenants off of the patrol shift was to give the sergeants more supervisory responsibility.

They used to have patrol meetings and the patrol officers received compensatory time for attending the meeting. They were not held regularly. Now there are command staff meetings and meetings with the sergeants and command staff. The sergeants are supposed to pass the information on to the patrol officers. The Chief and captains do not show up at roll call because they are busy doing their own work. The command staff meets every Monday and every other week the command staff meets with lieutenants. From there, information is supposed to be transmitted to the sergeants and officers.

Sundbakken believes that the Chief was able to have one-on-one meetings with the majority of the department. The purpose of the Evertel system was to convey messages to the department in a manner that is CJIS (Criminal Justice Information Services)[12] compliant.

Sundbakken has heard Chief Klug say that "we are all replaceable" in the context of the mission of the department must continue whether or not one individual person is present.

Sundbakken is also in charge of the department's random drug testing process. While the testing procedure requires a 2-hour notice, Sundbakken gives more advanced notice of being selected for a drug test because of the needs of the patrol operation.

When asked about some of the issues Alderman Fuller had regarding former officers, Sundbakken told me that Jay Laudenschlager had an injury to his cornea. Chief Balentine assigned him to Investigations. Laudenschlager was promoted to Sergeant at the same time as Sundbakken. There were concerns that Jay Laudenschlager was coming to work with alcohol on his breath. He had conversations with Jay Laudenschlager about some personal issues with ultimately his drinking started showing up in his work performance. Once that started to happen, Jay Laudenschlager was told that he needed to retire.

Sundbakken indicated that Chief Klug has tried to address issues of inconsistency with discipline. He created the position of professional standards lieutenant and appointed Lt. Haug who also handles internal investigations. He created and implemented the discipline matrix and consolidated discipline into one investigator and containment in ADP which is accessible to all command staff. He has made a concerted effort to professionalize the process and make discipline consistent.

In a follow-up conversation, Sundbakken also told me that he had a heated argument with Roach regarding his request for training out of state. All training had been stopped because of exposure during COVID.

Justin Sundheim

On November 1, 2024, Heintzelman met with Captain Justin Sundheim and his attorney, Chris Redding. Sundheim has been employed with the City since May 2000. He has been on patrol, a member of the Drug Task Force, and was promoted through the ranks from Lieutenant to Captain. He is responsible for operations, which includes Patrol and Dispatch.

He was working in Investigations when Chief Klug was promoted in 2020. When COVID hit, the administration was working from home, although some of the administration still came to the office. The patrol officers were working on the street.

When Klug became Chief, he visited the issue of reallocating the lieutenants. Something the command staff had discussed with Chief Olson. They also talked about moving people out of positions where they may have become stagnant. It was very difficult for some people to think about moving. They also discussed the need for the sergeants to be more involved in supervision. So, they changed to two lieutenants supervising patrol and staggered their shifts so that they could see all three shifts. This was not dramatically different from the weekends when there was no patrol lieutenant on duty. The midnight shift can call either the Lieutenant or Sundheim directly if they have an issue they need to discuss with a higher-ranking or more experienced officer.

It was not changed simply for the sake of change. If officers had issues moving their shift, or if there was some hardship that was created, the administration took that into consideration. Dan Wheeler is an example of an accommodation made. They did get a few requests for accommodations. They discussed the issue and hardship and Sundheim believes that they were able to accommodate every request made.

The officer meetings (Sundheim was unaware of the name "Free Talk Meeting") were not very productive. Sundheim made himself available a couple of times for officers to come to meet with him in a group. It was not mandatory, but some were told to come over by their Sergeant. He thinks about 20% of the department participated. Some officers were emotional about some of the decisions that were made, but Sundheim did not recall anything specific. When asked about the lower rating in Roach's performance evaluation, he indicated that it had to do with an altercation with Sundbakken. He did not say it was because of any participation in the Free Talk Meeting. Historically, the lieutenants prepared the annual evaluations such as in 2021. The Command staff wanted more input from the sergeants that worked with the officers daily so now the sergeants prepare the evaluations, it is reviewed by the lieutenant and then the captain, and then it goes back to the officer for a discussion.

The Chief normally does pinning, so he does not know if the Chief goes to the midnight shift and does pinning. He does not recall visiting the midnight shift himself.

They have moved away from testing for promotion and are trying to do an assessment center which may include people from outside the department. Generally, the captains will discuss the individuals and talk it through and then the chief will sleep on it for a day and make a decision taking into consideration input from everyone.

When asked about the "you are all replaceable" comment, Sundheim states that it is taken out of context. He has heard the Chief say that no one is irreplaceable concerning the mission of the organization. There is no one person valued over the mission of the organization. We want people to be happy at work and if they are not happy working at Minot Police Department then, life is too short; then go somewhere where you will be happy. But the mission of the Minot Police Department must continue whether you are here or not.

We also discussed the "Sammie Sosa kiss" or Hunger Games, a symbol of defiance. Sundheim said that it was the optics of people mocking the idea of "one shift" that resulted in one of the lieutenants suggesting that they discontinue the gesture. He did not think the intention was similar to the Sammy Sosa kiss.

The reason 2023 evaluations have not been issued is that they have a new process for evaluations. There are only two lieutenants and one has not been available for several months. Now with this investigation, there has been a further delay.

They have also talked about moving the ACO, Animal Control Officer, for which they have two, and the PCO, Parking Control Officer, for which they have one, to a civilian position. They must get City Council approval before they can hire civilians for those positions.

It has been difficult to manage the complaints from some that "nothing ever changes" versus others who are not receptive to change.

Chief John Klug

On November 1, 2024, Heintzelman met with John Klug and his attorney, Jesse H. Walstad. Klug has been with the department for 30 years in January. He was promoted to the position of Chief of Police on February 1, 2020. He attended the FBI National Academy in 2014 and the University of Northwestern Staff and Command program in 2010.[13]

He believes that he has completed the one-on-one meetings.

Concerning the issuance of discipline, Klug is aware of the issuance of discipline but it depends on the level of discipline. There are many times when he does not know about discipline being issued, e.g. a counseling notice or a written reprimand. In the past, the department handled all discipline internally. He tries to utilize the Human Resources Department for certain matters, like suspensions and he also speaks to the City Attorney. He may send the report over to Human Resources for a review and ensure he is taking the proper steps consistent with City policy as well as department policy.

Chief Klug has monthly one-on-one meetings with the City Manager. He prefers in-person meetings with Stewart and thinks Stalheim prefers in-person meetings as well. They have had phone conversations about certain items too.

On August 26, 2024, Alderman Fuller told Stewart that there was a morale problem at the Police Department.

On August 30, 2024, Haug, Professional Standards Lieutenant, informed Chief Klug and Sundheim that there was an accusation against Dan Batteiger. Supposedly a cadet made a comment to her co-worker about being in a relationship with Batteiger. The co-worker has a sponsor who is Jenna Olson. Jenna Olson works in the Sheriff's office. She reached out to Sgt. Jared Foley who is responsible for the Cadet program. Foley contacted the juvenile's mother. The juvenile's mother indicated that the juvenile makes statements about her desire to date after she turns 18. The mother looked at the girl's phone and did not think anything was occurring. Foley should not have contacted the juvenile's mother before notifying command, but he has received discipline for recent judgment issues. Chief Klug advised Sundheim and Haug to tell Foley and Batteiger that they are under notice of an internal investigation. The juvenile was out of state and would return on Monday, September 1, 2024, which was a holiday. When Chief Klug met with Fuller on September 5, he did not know the outcome of the interview with the juvenile.

On September 5, 2024, Chief Klug met with Stewart, Stalheim, Fuller, and Monica Porterfield (HR). Fuller was talking about Batteiger's disciplinary issues and that Batteiger should be terminated for losing the heroine in the drug kit. Chief Klug said that all of Batteiger's issues revolved around a period when he was having personal issues. He was getting divorced and this resulted in Batteiger making some bad decisions. Once he was able to get a handle on his issues, after the canine investigation, Batteiger was on a path of returning to be a good police officer.

Chief Klug said that he did not terminate Batteiger because he could not prove that he took the drugs or that he lost them. Chief Klug had policy violations from Batteiger, but before Chapman changed the policy, Batteiger complied with how the canine officers had typically handled the drug kit. Nevertheless, Chief Klug removed the canine from Batteiger and removed him from all of his training opportunities so that he could focus on getting himself together and being a good officer. He lost a lot of opportunity as a result of the investigation. Chief Klug also held Lt. Chapman accountable for not reviewing the logs and holding Batteiger accountable. Concerning destroying the drug kit, Batteiger's mistake was not involving Jensen in the process. They have to get DEA approval for the destruction of the kit. It cannot be done in the same manner as the destruction of other evidence under state law. Batteiger's mistake in thinking that the drugs in the drug kit are destroyed in the same manner as other drugs are destroyed was wrong. It is a mistake that other canine officers have made because they are unfamiliar with the process and do not destroy drug kits frequently. Chief Klug did not conclude that Batteiger was trying to hide his mistake by destroying the drug kit.

Chief Klug discussed his interactions with officers with mental health/alcohol issues. He recalled a session he attended at the International Association of Police Chiefs' conference where the discussion about officer wellness was not about whether we can terminate an officer's employment, but rather whether there is anything we can do to help them get fit to do the job. If an officer is having a personal issue that affects his ability to do the job, Klug believes he needs to know about it.

On August 30, 2024, Chief Klug received a call from a former council member that Alderman Fuller was in a bar sharing information about an ongoing criminal investigation. At the time, Chief Klug thought it was a Minot Police Department case. He spoke to Plessas who said that it was a highway patrol case where the incident occurred at the fair. Klug recounted that Batteiger responded to the crash and the passenger in the car was a deputy's son. Becker also responded to the call. The case was given to the highway patrol, because of the potential conflict with the sheriff's office. Sgt Ruelle was there as well. When the highway patrol showed up, Becker walked around telling the highway patrol to check everyone's body worn camera to make sure everyone is telling the truth. As it turned out, the accident and response happened as everyone said it did. However, Becker is the officer who stated that she would not back up Batteiger. Chief Klug felt that her statements on the scene were a concern and thought the Sheriff should know about her statements that she would not back up one of Minot's officers.

Minot Police Department will back up the Ward County Sheriff's Department and vice versa when necessary. Chief Klug does not know if there is also an intergovernmental agreement to that effect. He is unaware of any issues between Minot Police Department and the Sheriff's office.

Klug believes that Fuller has an internal source at the Sheriff's Department to obtain information and he is sharing information publicly. Chief Klug and Sundheim had a meeting with the Sheriff and Chief Deputy Larry Hubbard later on September 5, 2024. No one knew about the meeting with the Sheriff except for the attendees.

Before Fuller left the meeting on August 30, 2024, Fuller asked two questions:

- Did you schedule a meeting and Larry Hubbard regarding Kristen Becker; and
- Is there anything else on Dan Batteiger?

Chief Klug told him that he had a meeting with the Sheriff but stated that there was nothing else on Batteiger. Chief Klug intended to tell the Sheriff that Fuller had someone inside the Sheriff's Office providing information to Fuller about investigations and, the second piece of information was about Krysta Becker's statements from the incident at the fair.

When he was asked the question by Fuller, Klug knew that there was an issue with a juvenile, but did not know if there was anything to it. He did not want to share with Fuller, because he thought Fuller was sharing information with others in a public setting. Chief Klug was waiting until September 9, 2024 to determine whether they needed to do an investigation or whether they could confirm the information with the juvenile. Chief Klug did not follow up with Stewart after the meeting to tell him about Batteiger.

Chief Klug does not believe he lied to Fuller, Stewart, or Stalheim because he did not know if there was anything to the allegations, and it turns out there was not, and he was trying to protect the integrity of the case, since Fuller is talking to people about cases outside of the department. He believes that Jenny Olson was the person who told Fuller about the recent juvenile case with Batteiger. Both Foley and Olson are mandated reporters but they are not mandated to report to Fuller or the juvenile's mother before reporting to the department. Nobody filed a complaint regarding Batteiger's conduct before the meeting with Fuller.

Chief Klug found out from Stewart that Fuller told Stewart that the Little Caesar's employee told Jenny Olson, who is a Sheriff's Deputy, Olson told Becker who then told Fuller about the incident with the juvenile.

Chief Klug did not call Stewart after the meeting with Fuller on September 5, 2024. After that meeting, Klug went to a meeting with the Sheriff. Stewart and Stalheim called Haug and asked if there was an investigation with Batteiger and a cadet. Haug said yes. Chief Klug admits that he does not always see eye to eye with Stewart, but they work together and work things out. Fuller is not following procedure and putting himself in situations where he does not belong. All of Fuller's inquiries should be done through the City Manager. He was placed on administrative leave on September 11, 2024.

The discipline matrix is modeled after the San Diego Police Department's discipline matrix with modifications consistent with Minot Police Department's operations. It has been a work in progress for the past two years and they are seeing how it works in the department. The discipline matrix is a starting point for a determination of the appropriate level of discipline. The decisionmaker must then factor in the employee's performance history and the specifics of the particular incident. Notably, counseling memorandums are kept in the department pursuant to the matrix.

The promotional process consists of a test and interview. They have implemented the review panel with scenario-based questions similar to an assessment center. There are more people involved in the evaluation process including people from outside the department.

Chief Klug admits that he dropped the ball on the uniform policy. They were too busy putting fires out and did not realize the impact on the organization.

Concerning the most recent incident with Lt. McCloud, Klug spoke to the Aida County, juvenile investigator who indicated that they would not have conducted the polygraph in the way that it was conducted. He also spoke to the investigator from Butte MT, who is a Sergeant and an SRO on the investigations side. Chief Klug does not recall any inconsistencies with McLeod, but does recall that the dates and years that the mother claimed they were with McLeod changed when she was informed that McLeod was not in attendance at the family event. Chief Klug indicated that there is a belief that the dad began the abuse but the investigators interviewed the mother with the father and therefore did not receive any information from the mother. Chief Klug investigated the incident, because Sundheim is friends with McLeod and Plessas is McLeod's brother-in-law. If a disciplinary decision has to be made, Chief Klug is the one who will make it.

Klug runs some of his personnel issues through Human Resources and some through the City attorney.

In 2020, the captains did the evaluations. That process has since changed so that immediate supervisors (sergeants) prepare the annual evaluations for the patrol officers.

When Schoenrock first applied for promotion to Lieutenant, Chief Klug had a colonel from the Air Force base sit on the assessment center. His comment to Chief Klug was that Schoenrock does not know when to stop talking. His inability to control his emotions may be mistaken for passion about the job, but in the colonel's opinion, he would not promote Schoenrock because he beats an issue to death. Chief Klug said that when he was applying for the Chief's position, Schoenrock said, "I'll do anything to get you in the job. Let me know if you need me or my wife to help." Chief Klug said that everything changed when Schoenrock was not promoted. Dave Chapman was promoted over Schoenrock.

Chief Klug does not recall Schoenrock asking for any accommodations, because of problems with his neck or sending Schoenrock for a fitness for duty.

I spoke to Chief Klug on November 8, 2024, and his attorney Jesse H. Walstad and asked some follow-up questions. Chief Klug does not have access to a list of people he had one-on-one meetings. He believes he may have spoken to 50% of the officers.

Concerning Kevin Cory. There was a lawsuit against the City and a settlement with a non-disclosure agreement. Cory had another incident and Chief Klug asked McLeod to look at the past year's body worn camera video to see if there was a pattern of violation of the code of conduct. If there is a pattern, then the Chief has to report the conduct to the Post Board. Even if Cory remained employed by the City, the Chief would have to report the conduct. They discussed the pattern that they observed with Cory's behavior and he ultimately chose to resign.

Concerning Erik Laudenschlager, he came to talk to the Chief about being passed over for promotion. Erik Laudenschlager said that he thought he was being passed over because of his father's alcoholism while he was an officer. Chief Klug told him that was not the case and that his dad does not work here, but you do. Chief Klug did not think Erik had demonstrated sufficient performance to be promoted over the other candidates. Erik made some other comments and the Chief responded that he was "not going to stop you from quitting." Erik Laudenschlager decided to quit.

Chief Klug believes that the only complaint is the beard policy, which did not rise to the level of a priority with COVID. However, the beard policy was presented in November 2023. Klug stated that he wanted to see what the officer's version of a neatly trimmed beard was after a period of time.

He has terrible leadership issues in Dispatch. They are trying to build the leads to take charge. He hears all the time that the "culture sucks", but unless we work on it, it will not change. It is not an option to fire everyone so we have to learn to work together.

Chief Klug indicated they did not implement any additional training or one one-on-one training as a result of the investigation in 2021 regarding Wegner. He stated that Wegner was recently recommended and recognized by the ESGR and was recommended for the award by a woman.

Chief Klug points out that no one has appealed discipline or filed a grievance. At the time discussions regarding conduct occur, people act like everyone understands the process. He states that he has done the best that he could.

Chief Klug is unaware of any issues between Sundheim and his wife.

As part of this investigation, I reviewed numerous documents including some emails from Chief Klug. On March 18, 2021, Chief Klug sent an email to PD@cityofminot.onmicrosoft.com which is presumably the police department's group wide email. In that email, he addresses the fact that he has not completed the one-on-one meetings he promised to have with the members of the police department in April 2021. He then explains why he did not meet with everyone, "This meeting was intended to take place last year, but... YOU KNOW...COVID HAPPENED! 😊" (emphasis in the original). (Attachment 33 - A Hugg email 3/18/21)

On June 9, 2021, Chief Klug sent an email to the same email address addressing some concerns about his failure to meet with officers in the one-on-one meetings. Chief Klug was away from the office dealing with personal issues. He again uses all capital letters for certain words in the email. Chief Klug may not understand that the use of all capitals in an email is the equivalent of yelling.[14]

> I don't think I OWE an explanation, but as I prepare to ramp up my efforts to start this meetings, I want to be 100% transparent in the "WHY" I haven't met with many of you. To be clear, my Captains (your commanders) ALWAYS know what I am dealing with personally and professionally so they can help with answering questions if I am unavailable – don't hesitate to ask them if I am not available." (Attachment 34 - Klug email 6/9/2021).

He then proceeds to describe all his efforts to help his wife and address his mother-in-law's passing. He also discusses his work on the budget and what he is trying to do for the Department and its members by seeking more money. At the end of his email, he states:

> Lastly and most importantly, I will never turn you away from my office (within reason – such as if I am already in a meeting). Even if my door is closed – please knock. I will pause to talk to you and if I need some time to complete another critical task, I will ensure to set up a time we can meet that works for both of us. If you have an emergency you need to speak to me about – lead with that information when you talk to me. Each of you are my priority. The one-on-one conversations have been a great experience and very enjoyable conversations have been had. This process is important and each of you are important to my mission. Please, be patient. some of your co-workers have talked for almost 2 hours. I have not cut off one conversation once we start.

This email provides an excuse for the Chief's absence, in capital letters, and his busy schedule. As an afterthought, he identifies the employees and then puts them off. As of September 11, 2024, all of the one-on-ones were not completed.

Shane Haug

On November 4, 2024, Heintzelman spoke to Shane Haug. Haug is a Lieutenant in the Police Department. He has worked for the department for 22 years. He is the Professional Standards Lieutenant and conducts policy reviews; background investigations; and internal affairs for sergeants and patrol officers. Investigations of lieutenants and captains go to a Captain or the Chief.

On October 31, 2024, he attended training for the position. He participated in online training and in March 2024, he went to the Southern Police Institute in Louisville, Kentucky. He also went to staff and command school. The department uses Lexipol for policies. He reviews the policies and presents them to the command staff for approval. He cannot approve the policies on his own. Their personnel complaint policy is from Lexipol.

Haug, Wegner, and Sundheim had meetings about the radio issue that Shaide identified. Haug and Sundheim had their actual radios tested in the areas and they worked. They switched away from the two-wire microphone and now they don't have any problems with the radios. Haug does not recall Shaide bringing up his radio issue with Haug directly.

Haug was present during the Blanchard incident. Blanchard was intoxicated. Haug had Ruelle utilize the breathalyzer and confirmed Blanchard was intoxicated. At that time, they did not charge him with a DUI. They called him a ride and sent him home. Haug did not see Blanchard driving the car. He does not know what the punishment was, but he was removed from the SWAT. Haug knows that because Haug was on the SWAT team.

Roach was upset that he was unable to get a response back from Chief regarding free training. Haug remembers that the car was denied and then he was told that he could not go to the training. It was during or right after COVID. All training was stopped during COVID. He is not aware of an issue between Sundbakken and Roach on the training issue.

He does exit interviews, but does not know who reviews them. He prints off a copy and sends them to the Chief and Captains. They are not sent to the City or Human Resources. He was told to remove the names from the exit interviews because of records requests. There are no dates on the documents as well. The complaints he has heard about concern Margaret in dispatch and Greg Johnson in investigations. From patrol, he hears complaints about communication; training, FTOs and the Administration. Dispatchers complain the worst about Margaret. The PSAP does not have enough personnel to separate and move people around so that they spend less time with each other.

Haug enjoys the policy review. His predecessor was McLeod. Haig had no investigation experience. He enjoys the time and the policy updates. He writes a report and then gives it to the Chief for review. Sometimes he does not hear back from the Chief for a significant period of time.

Haug said that unless a Use of Force Board is convened, Haug cannot close the internal investigation until he receives the BCI report regarding the incident. He compared this to the recent officer-involved shooting involving Officer Lakoduk. In the Lakoduk situation, Plessas convened a Use of Force Board which included a member of the Sheriff's Department and an individual from BCE. There is a five-member Board that evaluates use of force when there is a fatality or serious bodily injury as a result of an officer's use of force. This Board convened in August/Sept 2024 and reached a decision. Along the same lines, Officer Hall had a use of force incident at a domestic in June 2024. Hall shoved a guy into the car. Based upon the evaluation, the Board concluded that there was a violation of the Standards of Conduct, but the Board exonerated the officer on his use of force. The report of that incident sat on the Chief's desk for nine weeks.

On August 30, 2024, there was a report of an issue with a juvenile and Batteiger. Foley told him and Sundheim and they called the Chief. The accusation was from a girl from the Cadet program who works at Little Caesars. She is 16. She told a co-worker, who is 30 and is a rehabilitation specialist that she had a dating relationship with Batteiger. This came up during a discussion about "cute cops" and she showed a picture of Batteiger. Foley called her mom and the mom went through the girl's phone and there is no contact between the girl and Batteiger. Foley is in charge of the Cadet program. There was no opportunity for Batteiger and the girl to be alone. The juvenile denies that there is any relationship.

The City manager Stewart asked is there is a criminal investigation and to keep them apprised of what happened. Batteiger was put on administrative leave. BCI came in to investigate the allegation. Stewart and Stalheim asked if the Chief Klug knew about the allegation against Batteiger and Haug said "yes." Haug believes that Jenny Olson told Becker and Becker called Fuller and told him (Fuller) about the issue. Foley and Batteiger are under investigation.

Klug did not call Stewart after the meeting with Fuller on September 5, 2024. After that meeting, Chief Klug went to the meeting with the Sheriff. Stewart and Stalheim called Haug and asked if there was an investigation with Batteiger and a cadet. Haug said yes.

The lieutenants and captains had meetings to discuss the discipline matrix to create consistency. There is no reason not to have Human Resources involved.

Haug does not supervise anyone and has no ability to discipline anyone. He would be limited to counseling. The department has a folder for counseling and reprimands. This folder has been in existence for decades. Suspension documentation is stored in Chief's office and in ADP. Any officer that has discipline should have information there.

Haug keeps a list of complaints that are made against officers that he investigations in his capacity as Professional Standards Lieutenant.

Margaret Haugen - Dispatch PSAP Manager

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Margaret Haugen. Haugen has been the Public Safety Answering Point (PSAP) manager (Dispatch) since February 1, 2020. She's been working for the City of Minot for 17 years. Shortly after she was promoted, COVID happened. She was promoted the same day as Chief Klug.

In November 2023, the Dispatch Center moved into their new location at City Hall. It was difficult. The dispatchers remained in their previous location for several months before they moved over. In this new location, the dispatchers are down the hall from the main dispatch area. Her office is some distance away, so she feels somewhat disconnected from the dispatchers. They have been working 12-hour shifts for the past 3-1/2 years. Many are burnt out, although there is some negativity in the department regarding the shift schedules, they don't have enough staffing to move off of the 12-hour shifts. She is hopeful that they will get close to fully staffed soon enough, because they have three people in training then they'll only be down one person. Their training requires six weeks in the classroom. The new trainees are in their third week. She is hopeful that they will be in dispatch in November and December. Their minimum staffing is two people on a shift. They are given paid lunches and breaks. On a normal schedule, they would have three staff members and work 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. When they take breaks, if they are going to be in the area, one to two minutes away, they carry a radio. If they need to leave the facility, they take PTO time. They receive paid lunches of 30 minutes and two 15 to 20-minute breaks. They can always get up and get coffee or go to the bathroom unless they're on a call.

The starting pay is $22 per hour. The supervisor with the longest tenure is receiving $39 per hour, so they are competitive with other dispatch centers. She does not believe she micromanages the dispatchers. They are like one big family, but they are separated from the rest of the City. She moved in June 2023 to the new location and the rest of the dispatchers came on November 19, 2023 she thinks it is getting better.

After Blanchard's suicide, there was an assistant PSAP manager who had known many of the employees at the City, but she had only been working for the City for two weeks. She was killed in a motorcycle accident. They also had a former deputy killed plus they had to move their location. In addition, they have had two Assistant PSAP Managers. Haugen's opinion is that dispatch has a lot of upset people. She says that she recently hired a new Assistant PSAP named Wayne Fahy and he is fantastic.

She said that Sundheim oversees the Dispatch Center, but Klug is responsible for it. They have been having meetings regarding the morale and issues in dispatch between Chief Klug and the lead dispatcher trying to bring them into a supervisory position.

Barbara McPeak

On October 8, 2014, at 1:30 p.m. CT, Koelbel interviewed Barbara McPeak via Zoom. McPeak is a former dispatcher and PSAP Manager. She is now a retired employee. She retired on January 30, 2020, and returned to work for another two years as a dispatcher. She applied for the Assistant PSAP position to handle the training, scheduling, and problems in the dispatch center (training, recruiting, and getting people to position). The first Assistant PSAP was killed in an accident. Second Assistant PSAP, Juana, went back to Bismarck. McPeak has over 30 years in the Police Department and four years as PSAP Manager.

She retired at 76% at the highest two years by the time she was done with all.

She would come in to cover lunch breaks three to four times during the week, never on the weekends. For two years a month after she retired. Then she stopped being asked. She went on vacation and then came back in November two years later, in 2022, she told Margaret that she felt that Margaret was not doing as well as she should. Then she quit working part-time.

McPeak applied in May 2024. She feels there was no reason why she should not have gotten the position. She said she wrote the training manual and guides for the Dispatch Center. She wanted to try to get things back on track and mold someone to be the manager.

She was very upset that she was not selected for the Assistant PSAP position. She went to speak to the councilman, because she felt she should not be treated that way. She is 60 and has a good five years to give. She thinks she was not hired, because she is female. She now feels that they tried to make every position a male position. She could have sued. She was working 12-hour shifts. The interview was not normal, it felt more like a conversation. "One of the number one things to do is to fix the 12-hour shifts." She feels no one should sit for 12 hours for mental health and family reasons. If they want to leave the building, they have to take PTO or call in someone for a half hour. The Police Department has to pay overtime every single week for every dispatcher, because of the 12-hour shifts. From a manager's perspective that does not make sense. How does the budget work?

This page contains no comments

She believes the PSAP Manager gets paid a ridiculous wage. It takes two or three weeks to get to know what is going on in the dispatch room. The Assistant PSAP who was just hired, Wayne, will take forever to get up to speed – eight to ten months, which is how long it takes to train a dispatcher. The pay is $80,000.00. He trained paramedics. So, she feels the cost is being wasted, which bothers her. As a citizen, she sees the money as wasted.

Once you get on the hiring list you stay on the list for one year so if Wayne did not work out then she would be next. She feels she gave so much to that place. Captain Jason Sundbakken notified her that she did not get it, not Chief Klug. She was told they were going in a different direction, but Captain Sundbakken was not involved with the hiring process and could not answer any questions about it. She had four letters of recommendation. The letters are included in the documents provided by the City.

Part of the reason she feels she was not hired is that she was friends with Margaret Haugen. Then at one point, she told Margaret she was worried for her when Margaret became PSAP Manager but Margaret made it work. Margaret said that she was concerned about the role reversal over coffee if McPeak was hired as the Assistant PSAP.

Chief Klug took over the day she left. She has known him for 20 to 25 years. He has major integrity issues. One night he got drunk and showed up at her house crying about his first wife. McPeak drove him home and sat with him while he and his wife tried and talked things out. He was good in the lower ranks. You form a bond with these brothers. He never bitched or complained even if he was dispatched to an undesirable call.

Chief Klug “was super pissed” at her, because in the interview she brought up that the long shifts cause the customer service level to go down. She used to be friends with Chief Klug. One reason he would not want McPeak back is that she has a voice. He would have been concerned that she would have found out about the “bs” that was going on in the Police Department. She could not believe some of the stuff that happened at the Police Department. She would find out from everyone else. She never had any firsthand problems with him. But as soon as he got the Chief position it went to his head. She later believed that he didn’t care if she applied for the position or not.

An SRO officer told her that she should have gotten the position. She feels that once she was not hired the camaraderie changed, because they all felt she should have gotten the position. McPeak expressed that there are many issues with the dispatch team from top to bottom. The reasons follow: Margaret could not make a decision; people are negative towards her because she is always answering only to Chief Klug and Captain Justin Sundheim and not standing up for the dispatchers. For example: The move to the new Dispatch Center. The setup is awkward. Everyone faces the wall. Captain Sundheim’s answer that it was for ADA compliance did not make McPeak happy. The dispatchers can hardly talk to each other. The administration did not ask any dispatcher for input when the room was set up. When the old Dispatch Center was upgraded, they asked dispatcher's opinions. The Dispatch Center is in the basement. Cannot even go outside and walk around the building. No sunlight at all. If you are a smoker, you cannot go outside.

Margaret does not come out of her office to give people their lunch. If they do not bring lunch, they do not eat lunch. Margaret changed the dispatch system. She did have a lot on her plate.

One of the dispatchers, Lacie, was involved in an accident on an ATV and she dropped the injured person off at the hospital and left. She was eventually arrested. Lacie applied for Assistant PSAP as well. When former dispatcher Amanda was fired or asked to resign, she had valid points about Margaret violating HIPAA and talking badly about dispatchers. But Amanda had her issues herself. Another dispatcher said her brother died and it was a lie to get time off.

There is no concern for the health and welfare of the dispatchers and zero regard for them being good employees. She took a suicide call of her own cousin. Never got emotional on the phone, but when received a call about a little boy home alone she completely broke down. Margaret says there is nothing she can do. McPeak's people wanted to work for her. She never said you have to find your coverage. McPeak says she treated people like people instead of just a number in a box.

If you have never been a dispatcher, you don't get it. Currently, no one can take a vacation. Everyone is so negative. During her time, McPeak did not have it that bad, because it was a different management. She realizes life is different now. During COVID, they locked down dispatch. But even after the pandemic, they kept the door locked.

Samantha Newman

Koelbel interviewed Samantha Newman via Zoom on October 8, 2024, at 4:00 p.m. CT. Samantha has been a dispatcher for 3.5 years and was hired in April 2021.

Currently, including trainees, they are only short one of the full staff goal of 17. There are 16 hired, but only 12 can operate on their own. Dispatch has not been fully staffed the entire time she worked there.

When Chief Klug was first appointed, he said would meet with everyone in the department one-on-one. When he came to dispatch, he would not really speak to anyone. He would walk around the room and leave.

Concerns with the Dispatch Department include lack of follow through. Following are some examples. When Margaret said she was going to pull people for one-on-one. On Tuesday, she sent the email about meeting one-on-one and by Friday nothing had been done. Concerns were brought to Captain Sundheim regarding the hostile work environment in dispatch.

Samantha was put under Garrity for some very mean comments she made to another employee. The investigation began in February. Eight months later she received a resolution. The only reason she found out the result is because of this current investigation. Sam has heard of an employee who was on Garrity for 18 months.

The incident involved a trainee. Samantha took responsibility for some allegations and some she denied, because they were simply not true. Intimidation tactics were used. In the process of investigation, Captain Sundheim accused her of being a liar for not showing emotions. Samantha wondered if it is because she is female, that she has to show more emotion further asking if the Captain would ask a male employee the same question.

For the most part, she can get along with everyone. If there is an issue, they are able to conflict resolve and talk like adults. The job is traumatic. They lost two officers. One by suicide and one was murdered. The trauma was bonding.

This page contains no comments

Some dispatchers were missing a lot of work because of mental health days. The suicide officer called into dispatch. The department handled it terribly. Not all officers and not all dispatchers were notified of the suicide of someone with whom they worked daily.

Deputy Nick Van Pelt who worked with Burlington Police Department part-time was murdered. The announcement of the murder came via Evertel, the secured messaging system. The announcement was comprised of two sentences and minuscule. Samantha took the call on Christmas Eve 2023.

Dispatch was left unmanaged for so long. Dispatchers come and go and do their jobs. They fall under Police Department Administration. No accountability and no follow-through. There is no trust in their administration. Both Police Department and Dispatch Administration.

There is a good split between seasoned dispatchers and new employees. It is a year before the new dispatchers are ready to be good.

Six or seven dispatchers left during the time Samantha worked there. Many were seasoned ones. One new dispatcher who came from Florida with experience also left. It is a grueling process to learn the job and the system.

There is a lack of accountability of management and subordinates. There are no policies to hold themselves accountable. Nothing is in writing. She wishes that somehow, they could highlight the folks who show up. There is a high turnover rate, but the ones that show up are overlooked. They often work 100 hours per pay period. In ten weeks, she worked over 400 hours. They are scheduled 84 hours per pay period. Night shift dispatchers were expected to work nights and days. They had ten dispatchers at the time with a minimum two dispatchers on shift. They have no breaks. Especially at night, they do not get breaks. They can go to the bathroom or heat leftovers. And you have to take the radio with you to the bathroom. There is no time to just decompress.

The new center is much nicer than the last one. They moved to a new center in November of last year. There are three monitors on which one can watch movies. That is their window. There is more space, so they are not sitting on top of each other.

Margaret discussed Samantha's training with her husband's supervisors. Her husband is a firefighter. Margaret used the schedule as punishment. When Samantha asked for an extra person on shift rotation one time, she was scheduled to not work any weekends and the other dispatchers felt she was receiving special treatment. Discipline is inconsistent. For example, for hostile CAD messaging, two other dispatchers received just write-ups. For call-in policy violations, some people did not receive any punishment.

Juana, the former Assistant PSAP, would publicly fight with Margaret. Captain Sundheim told her she needed to learn how to conflict resolve. She found another job and announced that Friday was going to be her last day. Juana asked Samantha to be a trainer, but there was no training program or materials. Trainees were not retaining information and no assistance was provided. Trainees came out not knowing anything or how to even log in. She was to produce policies and manage day-to-day activities.

Wayne, the new Assistant PSAP, is a breath of fresh air. He is developing a training program. He was an EMS instructor. Margaret may be able to be an effective leader if she can let go of control and instead just focus on her administrative tasks. Even if Margaret worked 10 to 14 hours a day seven days a week, she would not be able to handle both jobs. The position has not changed over the years.

This page contains no comments

Ultimately, Samantha loves her job and hopes it will get better.

Justice Brown

Koelbel interviewed Justice Brown via Zoom on October 9, 2024, at 10:00 a.m. CT. Justice was hired in April 2022 and has been in the position for 2.5 years. Currently, the Dispatch Department has 11 fully trained, two in training, and three new hires just out of classroom training.

Chief Klug is located at the PD. Before the Dispatch location was moved, Chief Klug did not come around often. After the move, dispatchers do not see the Chief. On December 29, 2022, when Justice took the call about Officer Pat Blanchard's suicide, she did not realize she needed mental health support. When she did seek support, Chief Klug directed her to services and support.

A lot of people are frustrated with the Chief. People getting talked to and receiving disparate discipline and viewed as unfair. When she has issues or raises questions, she gets the runaround but cannot get to a definite answer.

Captain Sundheim oversees Dispatch. Justice did not have anything noteworthy to account.

The job of a dispatcher is very difficult. She has heard that previous leadership was better. Dispatchers were not allowed to take time off at all during the pandemic. Everyone was very burned out and frustrated. Since she started, there has been a lot of turnover. Some left because they could not do the job, and others because the environment was toxic. Since she started, dispatchers have been scheduled 84 hours per pay period. Four of those hours are overtime. The shifts are 12-hour shifts. Right before the move to the new location, the process to switch the payroll system to ADP began. In the past, an actual person would handle timekeeping issues, vacation requests, etc. Dispatchers could call someone in to cover lunches. After the move ADP was fully implemented, management told her that she had to clock out for lunch or use PTO.

As for the new location, she understood that the City received a lot of funding to refurbish a new place. Dispatch was supposed to be at the top floor and access would be secure. The result looks nice. Technology is top of line. There are cameras. It is a nice facility, but there are no windows so there is no natural light. When working 2-people-shifts they cannot leave the building. There are two day shifts and two night shifts. Her day shift has three dispatchers, the other day shift has four and the two night shifts have two.

Margaret Haugen's management is inconsistent as is discipline. Certain people are allowed to misbehave without consequence. On the other day shift, another dispatcher was out for a long time and a call for OT went out, sometimes for four-hour blocks. When others have to cover themselves. Margaret is not efficient or proficient at her job.

When she started, she realized the culture was going to be rough. When she was with trainer Jackie, Margaret would come in and talk "crap" about the person who was on break. Margaret further used the schedule to retaliate.

When so many dispatchers complained about Margaret, they did 360 surveys because of so many allegations against Margaret. It was supposed to be a confidential survey and only Captain Sundheim and Chief Klug were going to see and not Margaret. Justice is not sure, but she thinks, Margaret went to leadership training. Somehow Margaret found out what the questions and what the dispatchers' answers were. There was not much follow-up and they are not listened to.

After the suicide call she received, she was moved to the day shift. Jeanne made things more difficult for Justice. One time Jeanne told Justice to stop breathing, and another time to not talk before noon. When reported to Margaret, Margaret responded by asking if Jeanne was up to her old tricks. At Margaret's request, Justice typed up a brief account of the occurrence and gave it to Margaret. When Margaret talked to Jeanne about Justice's concerns, Jeanne began making snide remarks and comments when Justice was present.

In another instance, Sean, who is a lead, covered for Justice when the emotion of the suicide call she took caught up with her. Justice was working alone with Jeanne and began to cry. Justice called Sean letting him know she did not think she was able to continue her shift. Sean came in right away and Justice ended up taking time off. When Justice came back the next week, Jeanne walked up to Justice and asked her if she was going to cry again. Beth, who was on shift the whole time and witnessed the remark, when asked, could not remember anything.

Margaret told Justice that Beth and Jeanne wanted Justice's sick time to be looked into after she took the time off mentioned above. They raised the issue as Justice was there when she was not supposed to be there and taking time off when she was supposed to work. They felt Justice was spending too much time there at shift change talking to the night shift and calling in when she was supposed to be working. The chat with Margaret, Justice suspects, was for show to get them off Margaret's back.

Justice wanted to join the volunteer firefighters. She wrote a letter requesting approval as required, but the request was blocked. Margaret said Chief Klug blocked it, but she found out from a senior dispatcher that it was Margaret who blocked it. She wrote another request and submitted to Chief Klug and it was approved. Jeanne would constantly comment about Justice "of course wanting to get traffic on firefighter calls." Once Jeanne put a dispatch call on hold and told that one of them (Justice) should take it.

Her shift is a day shift comprised of Justice, Jackie, and Beth (13 years – Lead for whom she has no respect). Beth gets animated when her authority is challenged. Management, meaning Margaret, is aware of all of Beth's malicious behavior, but does nothing.

One particular week, Justice was going through a lot: her divorce, her grandmother passing away, and a friend dying of a heart attack. After dealing with all that, she slept for eight hours, went on a fire call, slept six hours, then went to work. Fifteen minutes before she leaves for the day, Beth asks to speak to Justice. Beth lectured Justice as her supervisor, regarding how dispatching takes precedence over volunteer firefighting for over a half hour. She kept going until Justice starts to cry because firefighting is her life. Justice ended up leaving 20 minutes after her shift ended.

When fires were occurring all over, Justice was paged out to a fire, but didn't go because her lead told her not to. She told Juana and Margaret about it. They asked her if she was okay. They told Justice that she does not have to worry about firefighting being taken away.

Lacie, another lead, gave classroom training. Ashley, Justice, and Lacie were put together. Lacie seemed distracted. She was out for two months. Went to a work conference and just came back in less than a month. People were upset about the sexual comments Lacie made to them. Lacie used to grab people's butts, which were brought up to Margaret.

Sean was the only guy. They know that things will be handled when he is on call. He had her back through a lot. Justice got along with Juana – somewhat. But Juana did not know their systems and Juana and Margaret did not get along.

Wayne has a way of training and teaching that does not make you feel stupid. He demonstrates a drive to learn the systems. He also provides clear answers on policy. It seems like things are improving.

Justice is not aware of a grievance procedure.

Amanda Wright

Koelbel interviewed Amanda Wright via Zoom on October 9, 2024, at 2:00 p.m. CT. She worked as a dispatcher from 2017 to 2020. She was forced to resign by Chief Klug in July 2020.

Chief Olson had just retired, and Chief Klug was just starting. There was a hit-and-run on Broadway in front of the Taco Bell. She was told to answer a call from Margaret's console, so she did not have all of her equipment on hand. The call was from a gentleman asking questions about the accident. She terminated the call with the gentleman, but could not punch a card.

Two weeks later Chief Klug called Amanda back in. This was her first real interaction with him. The parents of the boy were allegedly suing the department. It turned out that it was the driver on the phone call she took on Margaret's console. Chief Klug said this is in the file, but it was not a big deal. Then it was investigated. She was suffering from severe [redacted]. She is currently working with a [redacted]

Amanda was working four ten-hour shifts. It is a quick turnaround. She was not sleeping. The environment in dispatch was horrible. Margaret kept promising a day shift. Ultimately termination was recommended, but she was given the option to resign. She went home in shame. A year later she was reading the termination paperwork and it listed two incidents: a warrant that was not removed from LMS, and a medical call received in error. She deviated from instructions from the card.

After termination, Amanda found out Margaret told co-workers that Amanda claimed mental health issues, but Margaret "knows others with real mental health issues" and did not think Amanda was suffering from the same.

There is an EAP program. Chief Klug's wife was a therapist in the EAP program. She was the only therapist that had openings. They are sworn to confidentiality, but the boss is in the picture in her office. She was having a bad time in general because of COVID. During COVID, she was dating one of the deputies, but keeping it quiet. The deputy got COVID. So, she called in since she had to isolate. She shared with Margaret that she was dating Van Pelt. Margaret subsequently shared with everyone that she was dating him and had COVID.

Margaret was her trainer. She was unprofessional, smoking frequently, and gossiping about everyone. There was no feedback or coaching. It was a toxic work environment. When McPeak was there it was a lot better. Night and day difference atmosphere-wise.

For lunches and breaks, people used to come in to cover breaks that may not have been paid – Sean and Shanlya. When two people were on shift that was how they used to get a break. You make more mistakes when you are exhausted and stressed. Amanda did not work too much OT because she was tired.

They did not foster an environment of mental health when the Chief's wife was a mental health professional. She loved working there until the last 8-9 months. Two dispatchers – Lacie and Christian (no longer with the department) – received DUIs. She wonders what the Chief's liability would be if he knew that Pat Blanchard had a DUI.

Jackie Lausch

Koelbel interviewed Jackie Lausch on October 11, 2024, at 12:00 p.m. CT. She is a Senior Dispatcher of two-three years and a total of nine years. There are two seniors. During the process of becoming a Senior dispatcher, she withdrew but began receiving higher pay for six months, and that information was shared which caused strife. There are five dispatchers in training and 11 that can work a two-person shift, the 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m.

Three years prior dispatchers spoke to Captain Sundheim and Chief Klug. They took a survey that was supposed to be confidential. Margaret was able to read all the comments. The outcome of the survey was that Margaret went to a leadership course for a week and was not allowed to make the schedule. Chief Klug had since said he messed up for not putting Margaret on a PIP. Chief Klug would come into the room, stare and leave. Interim Chief Plessas, at least, says hello, etc. Chief Klug and Captain Sundheim never hold Margaret accountable.

Margaret creates a hostile work environment. She pits employees one against the other. She has revealed private information about folks. Jackie's father was dying and in end-of-life care. Jackie was very distraught. When he passed away, Margaret told everyone to not message Jackie, and consequently, Jackie received no support from her co-workers. Jackie does not believe it was to benefit her by allowing her time to grieve but instead to isolate her. On Jackie's birthday, she was not celebrated when Margaret promised to celebrate all the birthdays. Margaret is proud of creating a toxic work environment. She is largely unqualified. Policies are drafted in ways that Margaret can bend the rules. There are no standards. No one is held accountable. There are no policies and procedures in a job that can directly affect someone's life. Margaret says you're doing a good job and then throws them under the bus. Margaret wants to be everyone's friend. She feeds everyone stuff about everyone. It could be five years before airing out grievances created by Margaret with certain folks, because they do not always work together. If you brought up stuff, then there is retaliation either on the evaluation or scheduling, etc. Her husband is in emergency management and sent out emails telling dispatchers that they have to report things like the train derailment and big grass fires to them.

Jackie stepped out of training. Her evaluations were catty and did not reflect the type of employee she is. Chief met with Jackie to find out why she resigned from training. He brought her in to ask why she applied to a records position. Sergeants told her that if Jenna and Molly left morale will improve.

Years back City Hall put in a grant and City Hall and Dispatch were to be moved to the new location. Dispatch is now accessible from the alley. They do not even see people from City Hall. Captain Justin Sundheim and Margaret designed the new dispatch center. The location is dangerous if anyone were to go in there. There is no ventilation. Water was turned off at one point and they had to use porta-potties placed in the alley where drug deals occur. They bombed the building with disinfectant for COVID. The door hinges are on the outside. There are no windows. If someone breaks in or if there is a fire, there is no escape. There is no gym. They were promised a treadmill. There was a gym at the other place. They were told there would be a little place for them. Officers used to bring them stuff. No one comes over anymore. She believes they do not want to come in because of Margaret. They have been in the new center for one year and Margaret for 1.3 years. When Margaret was separated things had improved.

Captain Sundheim told them they would never have a window, because it was not safe. He is horrible to talk to. He puts it back on you – boomerang. He is condescending. He provides no support. Statistically, he ran the numbers and relied on them. However, dispatchers are dealing with people at their worst. The backup center is not set up. There are only one or two screens. The Chief said he was following up.

Margaret changed the radio system, but provided no training or support. It has a nice recorder rated top three or five for dispatchers. When asked for training Margaret would send out training group meetings when Jackie was off so she was never able to participate. The new system is only good for the leads and Margaret because they have a different interface. The reason for the change is that someone Margaret knew left the company of the old system and went to the new system company. So, she went to Captain Sundheim and he approved it. She has recently asked Wayne if everyone could have the same interface.

You have to use comp time for training. Jackie in one instance had 90 hours of accrued comp time working the fair which was paid by the sheriff's office. Jackie was paid out 10 hours, because they maxed at 80 hours of comp time. She was not aware that would happen. There are no lunch breaks and no 15-minute breaks. They have to punch out and be paid PTO. HR said it was the Chief's policy. They work 12-hour shifts. Margaret blames them for not coming in on their days off.

The first Assistant PSAP died in a motorcycle accident. Second Assistant PSAP, Juana Perez, and Margaret fought all the time. Wayne is the new current assistant PSAP. He is working on a schedule that is fair and it works. He has been three months in the position. Margaret wanted an Assistant PSAP, but not Wayne.

There are three leads – Lacie (see below), Beth (who does not possess great leadership skills), and Sean (who enjoys gossip). Shanlya became lead because the Chief asked her (Shanlya unprofessionally tells people she loves them over the radio where everyone can hear it). One of the Leads is a lesbian and she grabbed Jackie's breast about eight years prior while she was on a call. Jackie went to HR. The same individual was gambling on the phone on the floor, making lewd remarks, sleeping on the floor, grabbing people's butts, and was promoted to Lead. Margaret loves her so nothing happened to her. People joke about it. This Lead asks for nude pictures. Jackie spoke to Wayne on Tuesday and requested to not be scheduled with her.

With Officer Pat's suicide, other agencies were debriefed before dispatchers. The janitor passed away on PD. One debrief was at the time her dad was dying so she could not attend. A Sergeant asked them if they were okay. Sgt. Ruelle told her about the wellness program and brought flyers. But the program was in place six months to a year before dispatchers were aware of it.

People are leaving and quitting, and the administration has no idea why. The administration stated they are surprised half of the dispatchers are still even there. New rules are getting applied but no policy behind them. They bought walkie-talkies and rolled them out. Margaret asked her to walk as far as she could in 15 minutes to see if the walkie-talkies would still be within range.

Shanlya Van Hill

Koelbel interviewed Shanlya Van Hill on October 11, 2024, at 2:00 p.m. CT. She has been a Dispatcher since January 2017. There are 11 fully trained dispatchers, two training on the floor and three in classroom training. The evening shifts are 7:00 p.m. to 7:00 a.m.

In January 2020 Chief Klug became Chief and Margaret became PSAP Manager. Shanlya became the Lead Dispatcher in December 2023.

A lot of issues present in dispatch were communicated to Chief Klug and Captain Sundheim – issues with Margaret. When she reported issues to Chief Klug, he said to hang in there. Captain Sundheim, HR, and Chief Klug had no follow-through. Chief said he would have one one-on-one, but there was no actual scheduling of any meeting. So, she decided to have one one-on-one herself. He told her to give him a list of who she wanted to talk to, but there was no follow through. Chief Klug then had group meetings with the leads, Margaret, and Captain Sundheim. They would get to the first stage and maybe the second and then never follow through. He is not a leader. He just holds the title. He began saying that if he has to fire all of the dispatchers, he will. In the last 10 months, there was one meeting.

Chief said Shanlya could meet with him. The majority of dispatchers went to him complaining they were at 60% staffing which is not sustainable. There was a 360 evaluation. The results were not released so there was no way to know if her perspective and experience were different from anyone else's based on the responses. Still does not know what happened with the results. Sean, as a Lead, can click on disciplinary files and there was nothing on Margaret's. Margaret used the schedule as a means of power. So, after the survey, she was not able to make the schedule any longer. The job was a lot for her, and she liked to delegate. Jenna Hurt started making the schedules. Within the last month, Shanlya just learned that Margaret received some training. Captain Sundheim said, "we heard you and there will be lots of changes based on your feedback."

One instance in which Shanlya felt targeted was a Letter of suspension she received from Chief Klug. He said, "I know you feel like it is just the two of you (her and Molly) are the ones who are being disciplined." Molly quit in January 2024. She was hired in October 2017. The suspension was for taking long breaks or stealing time. Minimum shift of about five years. They have 12-16 hours with no lunches or 15-minute breaks. As a courtesy, her former supervisor, Lacie, would allow her to take a long lunch break when she could take a lunch break. The practice trickled over under the current supervisor. Then she got in trouble. During the time of the fair, they are expected to work hundreds of hours. She was told that taking four hours of flex time shows that she has no sympathy for her job. It was such a humiliating process. During the investigation, she was so fearful. Chief also said that was the first time she was taking ownership of it.

Shanlya went to a conference called NINA. A dispatcher from Colorado told her the state had to backpay all their employees because they were not being paid properly. Shanlya sent an email involving the HR department regarding the new pay system not paying by the law of North Dakota. They were not getting compensated properly for the four hours over 40. HR said that employees might end up having to pay back the City. She said she did not know how that works. The law dictates the minimum and the policy depends on that. Chief Klug sent a message directly to Shanlya to be careful if she keeps pushing the envelope. Shanlya felt very threatened by the Chief and HR. She emailed back saying that she felt threatened. HR kept asking if she wanted to have the matter looked into. They changed her mind. They did not point to specific policies.

Margaret was a poor leader even as a floor supervisor. There were not as many issues such as poor personality, not being kind, making little comments, but her work performance was not great. She did not possess very good people skills. Margaret was answering the same number of calls as everyone. Margaret greatly mishandles information.

In 2021, Shanlya broke up with long-time fiancée, Josh after eight years. He was a volunteer Firefighter with Minot. Margaret and her husband volunteer there as well. Margaret liked her fiancée more than she liked Shanlya. Margaret made comments like: “When am I losing you?” “Was cheating a factor in break-up” “I heard you slept with a Sergeant in the department.” She tried to spread rumors to Sean. Dispatch was female-dominated. Police were male-dominated. She also commented on the women her ex-fiancée was involved with. Margaret emailed an evaluation commenting about how she will be affected by the breakup. By comparison, another co-worker broke up with a girlfriend and Margaret would drive the former girlfriend to places to get stuff. At the same time, Margaret would cry to Shanlya about her relationship issues. Shanlya’s ex-fiancée called in as a possible suicide. Margaret, in her superhero complex with firefighting, authorized a phone ping without a warrant for Josh. Shanlya brought this up to Captain Sundheim, but nothing happened.

Molly was Shanlya’s best friend. They worked well together. That upset Margaret, so she targeted them. One instance was a trainee who left for various reasons and sent a letter disparaging Molly, Shanlya, and Lacie. Margaret sat Shanlya down, slid the letter across the table and threatened to write her up for a hostile work environment. She wrote, “This will not get you fired.” Shanlya gave Lacie a heads-up after that meeting. Lacie was asked and said that the things in the letter were true.

One time Beth did not make it to a meeting, so Margaret read Beth’s letter calling in out loud. At the meeting, Margaret said, “Raise your hand if you think I play favorites.” Beth wanted a break from the 12-hour shifts. For the upcoming schedule changes and bidding process, Margaret asked for suggestions for a shift for Beth. Shanlya brought up suggestions to Margaret. Margaret responded that she did not want to offer Beth the schedule she wanted. Instead, she wants to offer a very bad schedule to cause Beth to quit.

When Shanlya was interviewed for Lead in July 2023 there were two rounds of interviews. Margaret asked her during the panel: “Do you need a minute? I know you have anxiety.”

A co-worker was struggling with 12-hour shifts and mental health issues, Margaret said it was Amanda Wright. Margaret approved of a meeting in which Juana was allowed to bad mouth a new hire the entire meeting. Margaret said that a dispatcher complained that she does not like to be talked down to by Lacie.

Lacie was on an extended leave for a suicide attempt. No one was allowed to talk about it, but then Margaret was upset that someone did not know what Lacie was going through. Margaret asked for on-call schedules. She spent up to three months on FMLA. There was a few days of notice and it resulted in 13 days in a row for Shanlya. On a different occasion, Lacie was arrested at work. Margaret told them not to punch a card. The arresting officer asked for the incident number. Margaret said that Jackie told her not to punch a card.

Lt. Lackey recently moved and threatened to have Shanlya killed because she was friends with the officer she liked. Margaret said, was she drunk?

The shift she wanted she did not get. She wanted to switch shifts. Margaret wanted to make Shanlya work a shift where she would never see her fiancée. Jenna said the same thing on another occasion of schedule change.

Shanlya's boyfriend was told to be watched. Officers take longer lunches. Lieutenants told sergeants to watch their lunches. He was told, "you know what it looks like when your car has not moved for 35 minutes." Alluding to him having sexual relations during lunch. Other interdepartmental relationships are not as closely monitored. If you are good at your job, Margaret will target you. Other dispatchers have issues with dating an officer mindset. People deem workplace relationships as unprofessional. She was pulled for random drug tests frequently (see below) and now her boyfriend too.

Margaret did not hire a trainee because the trainee was in therapy. Margaret has said publicly that she has to speak to Shanlya in a special way. Margaret claims untruthfully that she has special meetings to communicate with Shanlya to appear to provide an ADA accommodation.

Shanlya always passes drug tests. However, the way she is pulled is inconsistent with others. She is notified a week ahead, via text, email, etc. which she does not believe she should receive. Once she asked Margaret if she should take a painkiller. Margaret said yes, and then Shanlya was hit with a drug test. Shanlya was drug tested in five out of six quarters. So, she asked for the policy and suddenly she stopped being pulled for drug tests.

When she got employee of the year, a lieutenant asked her how she was doing because she had high blood pressure. She has no idea how he could know that except from Margaret.

To illustrate Margaret's inability to lead, when the officer committed suicide Margaret did not think she had to come in. She asked Sean if he thinks she should come in. Also, Margaret did not allow dispatchers to participate in the debrief. They received no information, and it was just assumed that Shanlya knew about it.

During the fair, a shift was having difficulty scheduling. She was asked if she was willing to take vacation time and work the fair and then come back to work the rest of the shift. At the time Shanlya asked if Margaret could authorize OT for coverage of dispatch while the fair was going on. The answer was that then people would use it as an excuse for not working the fair. So, only two dispatchers working dispatch were allowed.

Additionally, Margaret quoted pay for working the fair at $50/hour. They were paid the lower amount of $46/hour because the City had to pay taxes. Margaret never answers the phone when you need her. Once an entire shift called out and she could not be reached. Shanlya was dealing with having to find one of two people. But when Margaret came in, she was upset about a broken cabinet door. Instead of thanking her for finding coverage, she said "the door." Shanlya was authorized by Margaret to violate City policy – she worked a 17-hour shift which was needed without a break and a seven-hour break between that shift and Shanlya's next shift. Being reliable and dependable was turned into a punishment.

A dispatcher on the day shift said would be in late. Beth did nothing with the information and was passed into Shanlya's shift, so she worked a 16-hour shift in a 13 stretch. Jeanne was on her way so Shanlya asked Margaret if she wanted her to stay. And Margaret kept saying it's up to you, it's up to you. Shanlya was a person who came in to cover a shift and Margaret gave her attitude.

When Shanlya was promoted, her seniority zeroed out. So, when shift bids for 10-hour shifts came up they did how seniority was selected. Then it was by hire date. She found out this about a meeting with Captain Sundheim regarding seniority. Jeanne attacked Shanlya on the floor. Jackie did not speak to Shanlya for three years because Jeanne made up a story about Shanlya saying Jackie was incompetent. Margaret knows of Jeanne's bad attitude.

Margaret has told others that Shanlya neglected her dog to go out and party. She accused Shanlya of causing one of the K-9s to have to go to the veterinarian because it took a bone out of the garbage. She said Shanlya's fiancée kept adding majors in college because he did not love Shanlya anymore. Margaret is wishy-washy and has no structure at all. Even When McPeak was manager, there was a level of frustration and she could be catty, but at least McPeak could do the job.

A meeting was called with HR about the lunches. It used to be that as long as there was coverage, they could take a lunch. Dispatchers were asked if going to unpaid lunches is preferable. The one-hour meeting turned into a three-hour meeting. They tried to convince them to go to unpaid lunches. If they were picking up lunch for someone then they would be able to stay clocked in.

There was no policy against letting officers come into dispatch. Margaret confronted an officer about how he was getting into dispatch. Molly and Shanlya are cold in dispatch and lock boxes are put in the thermostats. A key was available to change it. Margaret hid the key when it was just the two of them working. There is a camera, but she suspects there is not supposed to be anything on screens. She suspects it is an issue for the FBI and NCIC.

If Margaret were removed from her position, the department would still run the same. She adds nothing. She tried to move the schedule for Christmas and tried to delay the schedule change. Margaret stated that they are expected to make sacrifices for the department. Juana sent this copying Margaret. Margaret allowed mistreatment by Juana. She either allowed it or participated in it. No one checks on Margaret. Shanlya is bringing this forward because she would feel terrible if she did not say anything. Margaret broke the trust they used to have in each other. Twenty-eight dispatchers were lost under Margaret. 50-70 percent of the staff.

She has received notices of the Minot Police Department Policy Manual yearly. The employee handbook is a work in progress. A policy manual has been in the works for dispatch. The grievance procedure was never formally explained. She followed the chain of command. She dislikes reaching out to HR because they will copy the boss. No one in the Center will advocate for her.

Beth Sorenson

Koelbel interviewed Beth Sorenson on October 11, 2024, at 6:00 p.m. CT. She has been a dispatcher for 14.5 years. She is now a Lead. Before Chief Klug, there was Chief Olson. Before Chief Olsen, it was Chief Balentine.

The PSAP Managers were DeVawn Beckman, McPeak, and Margaret Haugen. Last year, Chief Klug started to meet with the dispatchers to try to fix dispatch. Beth thought it was going to happen sooner. Otherwise, the interactions were minimal. The meetings are almost awkward. One year in the new center, she saw him a handful of times. During the time the meetings were going on last year, one day it was so busy that when he popped in no one was in the mood to talk.

Captain Sundheim, Margaret, Chief Klug, and Monica participated. In one of the first meetings, they said "if you are holding any grudges" let it go. She agrees. Before Lacie was a lead, there were three leads at the time. She was looking around the room thinking that she did not hold grudges against anyone. Beth made a special effort to let Jenna know that she was not holding any grudges against her. Jenna was burned out. She quit before Christmas last year.

They tried to do the meetings every month. They would say things like you are not guaranteed your schedule. There is no consideration of seniority. In middle meetings when Chief Klug would have interactions with the attendees, Chief Klug would say that he, as a manager, has the ability to replace his staff when he wants to. That was his philosophy. Chief was having some issues with his health or his wife's health. In later meetings, it became: if anyone had any problems with anyone in particular then let's set up a meeting. Communications have not been the greatest. Beth told him that she did not agree with his philosophy. That did not change his mind. She did not get the feeling that he had any intention to change. Sean Christy expressed frustration with him. It was Sean and Jenna on one side and Beth felt bad for Margaret.

Beth has an interesting relationship with Captain Sundheim. A good working relationship now. In 2021, she was writing evaluations for dispatchers. She went a year without any meaningful communication with Margaret. In November 2022, she wrote evaluations for Jackie and Jeanne and showed them to them to see how they would react. She was getting information about what they thought they could improve. She was accused of presenting evaluations before they were supposed to be presented. No one talked to her before she was pulled into the hot seat. She thought she was getting fired. He did not get her side of the story. She wonders if the people she was trying to support have anything to do with it. They knew those were not the final evaluations. Was Jeanne stirring the pot? Margaret said, "you are not giving them the evaluations, are you?" He did say to get feedback from your people. Any snarky comments were not hers. She was asked whether there was any constructive feedback for any of your people. Jackie provided some things she wanted to improve on. Do you or don't you understand this? He asked if she thought she should be a supervisor still. She was okay with being demoted.

Beth worked primarily on the day shift. For months no one was talking to her. With McPeak, at least she got some feedback as to what was wrong. Margaret's attitude is if you don't like it then oh well. Maybe some did not have enough training. But really, they did not receive great support from Margaret.

This past year has been okay. There is a lot of drama as dispatchers, because of the nature of the job and being confined in the space. As a way to stand up for herself, Beth built a wall of Clorox containers akin to a wall of cereal boxes from childhood.

When the City Manager reached out for a meeting, she was off. The City Manager had a meeting with a small group of dispatchers who could not make it to the main meeting. She was tired of having her days off interrupted. They do not care about their off time.

She does not agree with the break policy. Dispatch is considered non-essential. Shifts started with eight hours. Always tried to get a break when there were enough people. During COVID it became 12-hour shifts and two-person shifts minimum. Stress is high. They can at least go to the bathroom. When McPeak was PSAP, there were discussions about switching to ten hours. At the most recent meeting, Margaret brings up the portable radio again, which means that essentially there would be no breaks ever.

Night shift is three days on four days off. She advocated for days off together. Changes are made with little to no discussion. Two-person shifts are much more commonplace. If people wanted OT they would come in and cover lunches. There was favoritism in that as well. There is no actual discussion. Juana nipped in the bud. If you want guaranteed lunch, you have to work 12.5 hours. More people would have been more stressed and burnt out. They are not robots. They are humans.

There needs to be ways to mitigate the burnout. She used to get migraines. At the last meeting, they brought in walkie-talkie radios. Two people have to be in the Dispatch Center. They do not leave City Hall. They have phones, so they did not need the walkie-talkies.

With regards to attendance, Monica was there, but the decision was already made with Margaret and Captain Sundheim. She does not think about going to Human Resources. But often she feels they already made the decisions. She is waiting for Margaret to get back to her about the walkie-talkies. She has plenty of PTO to not have to carry around walkie-talkies.

On two-person days she does not leave the center. Dispatchers are different than police officers. Dispatchers need a mental break. They don't really use them. It is better to have a break and come back refreshed. Officers are not listening to all the channels that dispatchers are watching.

Jeanne, being closer to Margaret, directs the flow with dispatch. This may have caused more conflict between Margaret and Juana. Beth tried several times to do the scheduling, but it was never accepted because of Jeanne and conflict with Juana. Gossip about Juana and told Juana. The undercurrent of undermining people. Even though she was not the greatest Assistant PSAP. Juana bridged some of the communication. Even with Juana, they were moving in a more positive direction. She had more hope. Discipline was mob rule.

The new Assistant PSAP manager is on their side as far as really understanding what they need. Communication has increased. He is new as of July 2024. Wayne is receiving more respect from other dispatchers. He wrote the book. Dispatch is not for everyone. Have to be okay with chaotic environments. Training-wise, a little lacking. She was trying to keep Wayne out of the drama. His impression of the dispatchers was that they were tired. The Chief even with the meetings did not get that. He was okay with replacing people.

She is still friends with the first PSAP manager. The former manager did not know what was going on. They went to lunch, but did not talk about dispatch that much. Towards the end of the lunch, she could tell Beth was upset. She listened, because she cared about their employees.

It is hard for her to believe that Margaret is sincere. She should have communicated with her the Leads and not through people below her. The 360 survey felt like it went mob rule. She did not like seeing that happen to Margaret, but it is like she created the situation herself. Beth told someone that she feels Margaret does not talk to her and the response was "Consider yourself lucky."

Dispatchers do not have time to look at the policies, because they are so busy. When Juana was around, she had to do a discipline on Jeanne. Not a lot of time to look up the policy to do that. She knows there is an employee handbook online. She received a paper copy years ago. Thinks there was an email letting them know it is available electronically.

For complaints, she follows the chain of command. Some information circulating on the floor. She tried to nip the gossiping in the bud to avoid negativity.

Jeanne Alves

Koelbel interviewed Jeanne Alves on October 15, 2024, at 11:00 a.m. CT. She has been at the department for 15 years, two years part-time, nine years then part-time time then back to full-time. She is a Senior Dispatcher.

Jeanne does not see Chief Klug at Dispatch. On occasion, he will come in and stare. No meetings except for one time when the whole police department met in 2022. He was being accused of some sort of allegations and he was open to comments or questions.

There were a lot of issues with comp time and they went to management for answers from the Chief. He said to follow the chain of command. Reached out a couple of times about the change in the system. Dispatch works every day 24 hours a day. They are paid extra on holidays, but only on recognized days. She never got a response. It was finally fixed on a new pay system – ADP. Dispatchers had a lot of questions about pay etc. She gets emails communicating the changes. She did go to the manager before going to the Chief.

She felt Lacie was abusing COVID sick leave. Lacie is close with the Chief. He said he did not feel Lacie was abusing the policy. Lacie was allowed to do everything including take eight-hour lunches.

She interacts with Captain Sundheim about the same as the Chief. It is not useful as he says things like you are the problem, you need to work on yourself, you are the problem. Juana was using certain people, her favorites, to take time off and not have to put in for. She went to Margaret about it and talked to the Captain, but there is nothing they could or would do about it.

Jeanne went to Margaret to report so many issues. Margaret does nothing about them. She just sits there and nothing gets done. Morale is getting worse. She is a poor leader and plays favorites.

She asked Margaret for counseling services and it was ignored. Even with what they do daily, they need to talk about certain calls but they are just required to do the job and shut up. They do not care about their mental health. They are not being taken care of. She has been feeling this way for a very long time. It is frustrating. Dispatchers provide mental health services, and no one cares about them. Has been feeling this way for a long time. Recently, the Department started counseling sessions for the officers, but it is supposed to include the dispatchers. More officer-oriented and dispatch is left out. Margaret does not stand up for them.

Some people like 12-hour shifts. These shifts are not physically or mentally healthy. They get no breaks and no lunches. They cannot walk away, cannot catch a breath. She has gained 50 pounds. She eats nonstop, because there is no coping. They respond that it is what they are supposed to do.

On nights Jeanne was asked to switch to work with Beth, because Lacie needed a six-week break. Informed Margaret about Beth, who is a Lead. Beth is hostile, does not listen, thinks all is about her, and only wants to talk about her problems.

Talked to Margaret about harassment by Lacie. A few weeks ago, Lacie asked Jeanne if she wanted to make out. She used to walk behind you and grab your breast. This was about two years ago. Margaret is aware. Margaret's response is I will talk to her. She does not know if she talked to Lacie or not. Margaret says she will do something and never does.

One night she received a call from a girl with a head injury, and it turned out that it was Lacie who dropped her off at the hospital. She should have been charged with a DUI. She went to jail. Lacie received a write-up. The police served a warrant and she left. The girl at the emergency room told her that she was with Lacie driving the ATV. Nothing criminal ever happened with that.

Margaret kept sending out all of the changes she wanted. Margaret was the reason she quit. There were over 51 emails she wanted to change, but provided no way to implement. There was a reason they did it that way.

Certain fire departments were asking to be notified first, but there was no way to implement it. Jeanne understood that the order was to notify the Fire Department before providing CPR instructions or other emergency help. Margaret told them this is what the Fire Department wants and therefore this is what the dispatchers have to do. Margaret just forwarded the email from the Fire Department to the dispatchers and expected the dispatchers to just do whatever the Fire Department wanted. Just like this example, Margaret says yes to everything from external orders, but never asks the actual dispatchers how to implement or provide any guidance on how to do it. When questions are asked, she says she is going to look into it but never gets back to them. Jeanne does not see much leadership in dispatch because Margaret just tries to please all of the outside entities without coming up with a program and process. .

When Jeanne was working night shifts with Margaret right out of training, Margaret would be outside smoking. Margaret hardly ever took calls. Told PSAP at the time about Margaret not doing anything and asked to circulate how many calls everyone was taking. The report was sent out once and showed Margaret was not taking as many calls as everyone else. Margaret made it horrible and miserable. Margaret wrote Jeanne a nasty letter which she turned in and should be on her file.

Jeanne hoped there would not be any issues, but she knew she would be a bad PSAP. Jeanne thinks Margaret got it because she knew people. Jeanne also applied for the position once she heard Margaret applied. She has been there the longest other than Beth.

Jeanne was written up to death under Juana. Juana would be training right behind Jeanne and Jackie's area and would demand that they not talk while they train. Jeanne asked what they were doing for the day. Beth pulled her aside and was shaking and the next day she was written up by Beth and Juana and that is when Jeanne went to Captain Sundheim.

Everyone she works with is always complaining about the 12-hour shifts. They have no workout room. And do not have time to use the relaxation room. You don't want to relax in there you want to get away. One day the fire alarm went off and no one could shut it off they had to call the Fire Department, but they could not get in. It seems that no research was done on the dispatch location and the one request, the gym, was not provided. When she brought up the need to get away, they said that's why they got such a big center so they could live there. No one wants to live there. Margaret sent out an email asking for coverage and Jeanne suggested instead of burning people out, she should be able to jump in and cover. Another fire alarm went off. [redacted] had to go to the hospital because her blood pressure was so high.

Most recent example, this year at the fair, Jeanne was working doubles to cover the fair. Jeanne asked how much they would get paid, and Margaret said $50.00. When asked, why they were paid $46. Margaret did not know. She got a hold of payroll and they responded. The response was that they had to pay someone else and that is why the pay was lowered. Margaret tried to be sneaky about a shift that she was told she had to work because no one volunteered for it. Margaret ended up working it when after offering "special pay" there were still no volunteers.

Wayne would like to implement and put in some changes. He is stuck and cannot do anything yet. He is very productive and asks for input. He has an open-door policy. And when you say something to him, he actually gives feedback. At first because of the conditioning from her experience in the past, whenever Wayne would approach her she would get a sinking feeling in the pit of her stomach, she was always afraid she was in trouble.

Favoritism and special treatment are allowed especially with the 12-hour shift. Twelve-hour shifts used to be an emergency shift when shifts were eight hours.

Sometimes she received an email from the Lexipol system that there had been updates to the Police Department policy book. When she was hired she was given an employee handbook in paper format. She does not believe there is a structured grievance policy. She has sent many emails to her supervisors and requested appointments with the Captain. They tell her "don't come to me without solutions" management's job is to look for smoke.

Jenna Hurt

Koelbel interviewed Jenna Hurt on October 15, 2024, at 6:00 p.m. CT. She started in dispatch in August 2012 and until December 2023. She was a Lead.

They had been working on policies for dispatch separate from the Police Department. Never got them officially established. She was injured in April of 2022. She broke her wrist in two places and went to work. She had surgery and after two weeks was back to work on light duty. She could not type fast to take calls. So, she spent two weeks working on the processes that the former PSAP started regarding the dress code. She submitted it to Margaret then it sat on Captain Sundheim's desk. There is no follow-up or follow-through. Kept following up with Captain Sundheim, who said he would check with Chief Klug.

People were late all the time. She followed up on employees stealing time. By the time they looked into it, it was recorded over.

Margaret should be right there being investigated with Chief Klug. She created such a hostile work environment. She would pit them against each other. Went to Captain Sundheim and the 360 eval happened, but then there was no follow-up. Margaret got better for a bit and then nothing changed. Scheduling was taken away from her, because her scheduling made people mad. Jenna started to make the schedule. Jenna was told to cut overtime. People complained to Margaret and would say bad things about Jenna. It appears that one can be arrested at work in dispatch and still have a job there.

Captain Sundheim was the Shift Commander and Jenna used to have amazing respect for him. FBI model dispatch was placed under Captain Sundheim, so he had dispatch and patrol.

There were meetings with the Lead team. Margaret on the floor bullied Juana, the second Assistant PSAP. They would openly argue with each other in front of everyone. Tami, the first Assistant PSAP passed away in a motorcycle accident.

Margaret made it impossible. Insane stuff trainees go through. Captain Sundheim and Chief Klug knew about it. They all went to McLeod during exit interviews. They tried for years to get the training program straight.

There are no standards. People on the night shift were ignoring calls and watching TV. Nothing ever happened to them. There was inconsistency in discipline.

They had weekly, then monthly meetings during which Chief Klug said: I don't even know why you are here if you are so miserable. Jenna knew then and there that nothing was going to change.

There was no sense in going to Margaret. Anything you went to her with, the entire department would know. They started fact-checking with each other based on the lies that Margaret spread.

The Center is terrible for mental health. They were promised treadmills and an exercise room. They made such a big deal about mental health after Pat's suicide. Everything went right back to how it was and no one cared. The solution they provided was three fancy TV screens that were supposed to be their windows. It was supposed to be this grand center. Safety in general was not looked at. They asked for five spots to be lit up in the parking lot. They said they would install lights and security cameras after the City Hall personnel moved in. An officer was beaten up by homeless people.

Margaret is a yes-woman. During the five or six years in which Margaret led the team it was a horrible situation. She is grossly underqualified. She had the most time of all of them. Carrie Steele applied for the position and some external applicants. There was inconsistency and a lack of leadership. It was already not an ideal situation but then with Margaret it went downhill. At the end of the day, McPeak at least had their backs.

Jenna left her pension and took a pay cut just to get out of there. She misses the officers, misses the job. She continued doing the community stuff but could not continue working for that leadership. Lack of communication. She is still close with some of them. Sgt. Foley looked so defeated during a community event. You try to do something to better the Department and you get shut down. One of the officers was talking to her. He mentioned the badge numbers were up to 462. When they do another number crunch, he will be 413 because so many officers left. He is an investigator.

Mental health was not a priority for the department even before Pat's suicide. Not one person came in to check on them. They worked on the same shift for eight years.

Jenna works at the advocacy center now. People ask if she would ever go back. At the end of the day, the damage is done. She is trying to make it better for the ones that remain.

They tried to figure out how to stop people from leaving. Margaret asked for scheduling ideas when she had no intention of implementing anything. Emails, stupid things like evaluations, she had them complete them themselves and would add a little word here and there. She never jumped on to assist, especially when they worked 12-hour shifts with no breaks. She and Jackie worked 12-hour shifts every day by themselves.

Before they would get weekends off every six months. At least with the 12 hours, they got every other weekend off. People at night worked a different rotation. It was always the same people helping with overtime. Some PTO rules may have been illegal. Shanlya figured out that they were not being properly paid, but the response was that they may end up owing the City money instead.

Retention speaks volumes. Chloe left two weeks before Jenna left. Molly Schoen left right after she did. Molly and her leaving would have improved morale she was told. They were very vocal about all the issues in dispatch. Chief did not take ownership of the things he kept allowing to happen.

Margaret said when Jenna was leaving that she was sorry she bullied Jenna. Out with the old and in with the new.

Kevin Cory

Koelbel interviewed Kevin Cory on October 17, 2024, at 11:30 p.m. CT. Kevin is a former police officer who left in June or July of 2020. Kevin was a Patrol Officer hired in 2015. In 2019, he was promoted to Senior Officer, and in February 2020 he was promoted to Master Officer.

Kevin spoke to Councilman Rob Fuller regarding the overall process of how his termination happened. Everything was going well during his employment and in 2019 started noticing everything going downhill. Kevin was involved in a traffic stop that resulted in a lawsuit. The lawsuit alleged excessive force on his part and of another officer. When the stop occurred, Chief Olson was Chief. Kevin was disciplined with three days of unpaid leave and a letter to file.

The lawsuit was in 2020 after Chief Klug became Chief. A settlement was reached. After that, when he was part of the crime scene team and training, Kevin was put on paid administrative leave and had to stay home while an internal investigation occurred. He was not told why except for the use of excessive force in the past. Kevin contacted FOP to obtain representation. In mid-June, he was contacted by McLeod to come in at the height of the COVID pandemic. Before any conversation began, Kevin requested that the attorney join. He was told that it was not possible to postpone when his attorney was not able to join. McLeod said he did not want the attorney on the phone. They were going to review the prior incidents. After scoffing McLeod allowed Kevin to call his attorney. He sat with Lieutenant McLeod with his attorney on the phone. They went over the calls for service including the one involved in the litigation again. This was the only instance in which he was reprimanded. They went through five or six instances in which there was use of force. McLeod's demeanor is very confrontational, or abrasive. McLeod was asking questions such as "Did you fear for your safety?"

In those five or six instances in which force was used, he created a report which was turned in to his Shift Lieutenant for review and then passed on to the Administrative Lieutenant, who would review and file. If something looks wrong, then it goes to the Patrol Captain. First, it was Captain White then in 2017 or 2018 Klug became Patrol Captain. Kevin would never see the report again unless something needed clarification. Kevin was trained in empty-hand controls up to lethal force. 2% required the use of force in all calls he had been involved in.

After the meeting, Kevin was told to go home and wait for further instructions. Kevin was contacted on July 15 via a call from Chief Klug. Kevin had 20 minutes to report to the Police Department and went into Chief Klug's office with Captain Sundheim present. At the table, there was a packet on where he was sitting. Chief Klug went over the packet, which was the findings of the internal investigation. They had found some violation in every call for service they went over in five years. Some violations were for the use of force and/or standard of conduct. Chief Klug stated: "I am not going to downplay it; the decision is that you have to be terminated or resign."

This page contains no comments

Kevin did not agree with the findings, they were not fair or accurate. He did not feel comfortable responding and needed to talk to his attorney, but could not get a hold of him. He asked if could try again and was told "No, you already had that chance." Kevin paused for a long time stunned thinking about what he could do. There was no opportunity to dispute the findings, no matter what he was told he would be terminated. They eventually said that Kevin could dispute it afterward. Chief Klug said "I don't think you should be a cop."

Kevin wanted to be a cop since he was a kid. He cried. He said he did not want to be fired. It would cause him to lose his peace officer (post) license. Then opted to resign. He was told to sign the paperwork. It stated that he agreed with every finding. He said he did not agree. They went back and forth. He again asked for his attorney. His stomach was still turning. He asked what will happen with a license if he resigns. Chief Klug said he would turn in the paperwork that said resignation. Kevin did not want to deal with it anymore. He signed, since it was the only way to resign from the Police Department. He asked for some time to re-compose himself. Then grabbed his belongings and turned in his gear.

The Union informed Kevin that the process for grievance would be to the City Manager to decide. At the time it was a temporary City Manager. There was a low chance of the City Manager disagreeing with the Chief. He was told to weigh his options. Found out four to five months later when applying to another police department, there was an issue with his peace officer license. Had to speak to the Post Board. Chief Klug submitted it as a termination. It was finally resolved, and he was able to renew.

Chief Klug is power hungry and abused power in Police Department and was a poor choice to hire him. It just seemed like he did not care for Kevin as an officer. He was also that way towards Jenna Bjork and Heather Summers, very standoffish. It felt like high school from day one. During the time he was to be disciplined with three days unpaid, Kevin asked Chief Olson to split the days up who agreed. When he went to Captain Klug to arrange the days as one a week he flat out said it was ridiculous. If it was up to him, Kevin would be fired. He split it up between two pay periods.

Kevin went to EAP after the incident. He found out that Chief Klug's wife was a counselor there. EAP is a program that provides access to counselors. Maggie Klug is a counselor accessible through the City's EAP program. Corey states that through EAP, Maggie Klug did not use the last name of "Tygart" or "Klug." He asked if it was that Maggie Klug because Kevin did not feel comfortable with her. He could not schedule with anyone else then when he said he would seek help elsewhere, the EAP provider was able to provide him another counselor.

Maggie was an evidence technician around 2016 and went by her maiden name Tygart. In 2017 she was very rude at the Police Department. Around 2018, in the spring or summer training, she was part of new officer training. When she came to do a training, she was walking with Captain Klug and said "you didn't want to see me? Are you afraid I am going to spill all your secrets?"

Kevin is thankful to Councilman Fuller and the investigation for finally allowing him to talk about this. It was a huge weight on his shoulders these past four years.

Kevin had access to the Police Department policies, via LERMS where all the electronic policies. He also had access to the HR handbook and policies. He wasn't too familiar with the grievance policy. He looked them up when going through an internal investigation in June 2020. He wanted to know what would happen if he did not agree with the findings of the investigation. Found the policy.

Jenna Bjork

Koelbel interviewed Jenna Bjork on October 17, 2024, at 1:00 p.m. CT. Jenna began in May or March of 2015 as a Dispatcher. She moved to patrol in December 2015. Police Department provided her with training. She was promoted to Senior Officer three years in and Master Officer in five years. In October 2022, she left the Department.

Before he was Chief, Chief Klug was Captain of Investigations in 2016 right after she started. She started dating another officer in the Department and tried to keep it quiet. After a breakup, he started breaking into her house at night. Filing fake cases to get footage of where she was and with whom. The ex-boyfriend was Matt Bunk and is no longer there. The ex-boyfriend told her a protection order would not help her. Once he started screaming at her in the parking lot. Jenna told Sergeant Sundheim who told her to talk to Captain Klug. She went to him and showed him her cell phone. Captain Klug responded that Officer Bunk told him that Jenna would say those things. She had to have her doors and windows repaired and received no support. If she conducted an investigation the way Captain Klug conducted his investigation, she would be disciplined. That officer was good friends with Captain Klug. She was a new officer, so when she reported she was told that it was nothing.

Chief Klug has a crappy personality. He is very reactive, volatile, and emotional. After he was selected as Chief in 2020, she was assigned to investigations. His leadership was to do as I say not as I do. He seems like the guy who was bullied in high school. He made them feel like they were replaceable. In news articles when he was interviewed he referred to new officers as puppy dogs who did not know any better. She did not provide the news article. This was soon after he became Chief which was awful timing to be saying those things about the police, right after George Floyd.

Pat Blanchard was her partner. She wondered if things would have turned out differently if issues were addressed. Pat had gone to a SWAT call drunk. He blew a .16 over the legal limit. Pat was not allowed to train with SWAT for months. He should have been arrested. The Chief put a target on Pat's back. Pat got to keep his job because everyone liked him. Once Pat responded to a call of a young woman in her early 20s with suicidal ideations. Then called off all backups. He left the scene, changed his clothes went back to the woman's house, and had sex with her. The woman came in the next day and tried to file a complaint. These occurred in early 2022, maybe in Fall/Winter 2021. She did not look into it. Pat died in December 2022.

Jenna is from San Diego. She worked hard to build a reputation and quit, because she saw that the department was spiraling. The Department was going down the drain. She did not want to be associated with Minot. They were very short-handed. No one was ever getting off on time. It was exhausting. Even with the heavy nature of the job, the hardest part of the job was the staff and leadership.

Chief Klug never spoke a word to Jenna after Pat's incident. She only heard from the current interim Chief.

She filed a grievance once against a woman in HR around February/March 2022. Brittany Thurston (her last name was Rust) was sleeping with Jenna's boyfriend who had been a firefighter for three years. She told Sergeant Joshua Noyes and asked what to do and he said there was nothing to do. Brittany was dating a cokehead. Once when they were pulled over, she switched seats with him and was arrested for DUI. She came into the department and said what she did. Brittany used to score the test one takes to promote, which was a huge conflict of interest, since they were at odds.

Jenna never got a raise in January one year. In December, she noticed it and went to Cheryl in the administration for the Police Department. She kept arguing with Jenna. She then emailed HR and received $4,000 in back pay.

Sergeant Lackey was promoted over others to Lieutenant. She was known for always getting into bar fights.

Sergeant Noyes approved a surgery she was going to undergo. The surgery was on February 14, 2022. She had the surgery. When she handed in sick leave, Lisa Jundt emailed saying she needed to talk to her because Jenna's lieutenant told Lisa that Jenna was having elective surgery and she would have to use vacation time instead of sick time. Someone else was able to use sick time, a pill popper, and Jenna herself had been approved for other surgeries, such as her ACL surgery, which was operated on three times. When asked if she was going to hold everyone accountable to the same standard, she said no. HR pulled 180 hours of her vacation time. Lisa is good friends with Brittany. Four weeks after the surgery when she came back from leave, asking what was going on, Jenna went to Harold and Harold reversed the decision.

They tried firing her in between her previous surgeries. Chief Olson had approved it. While healing, they brought her in and tried to fire her. They told her she would have to reapply when she returned.

Jenna filed a formal grievance on that and sent it to Chief Klug, Lisa, and Captain Sundheim. Sundheim had been good to her.

Jenna had access electronically to the Police Department Policy Manual and the Employee Handbook. She was aware that the grievance procedure was in the Police Department Handbook.

Matt Pappenfus

Koelbel interviewed Matt Pappenfus on October 17, 2024, at 3:00 p.m. CT. Matt worked for the Police Department from May 2013 until April 2023. Matt was on patrol for the majority of the time and then in investigations, because of light duty. In 2021 he was promoted to Patrol Sergeant. Other specialties are FTO negotiations, SWAT, and K-9.

Matt received a paper copy of the Police Department Policies and it was switched to electronic in 2015 for policy updates. The Employee Handbook is available electronically. Regarding a grievance procedure, everyone knows that it is there. He cannot tell what it is even in his current employment in a union state. And HR was in the same building.

The bad incident he had with Chief Klug was when he left. Chief Klug changed his letter of resignation without letting him know.

Five or six months before, Matt informed Captain Sundheim and Chief Klug that he was leaving to prepare them. He notified them that they would be contacted. Matt had a baby. He tried to use some benefits. When Matt asked HR, they said he did not have benefits based on the day of the resignation letter. Matt reached out to Chief Klug, who said he was doing a tour and agreed to meet Matt later. Matt sat around for a few hours. Captain Sundheim spoke to him then Chief Klug. Matt explained the situation. Matt was on sick time for the newborn and doctor's visits for his knee. The Chief can approve or deny sick time. He denied it and changed his resignation. Matt agreed to come back to work for two weeks. More discussions were had that night. The date was changed to two weeks sooner and then changed to two days sooner. Matt wanted to discuss it, but was told that Chief was too busy and did not have time. Matt contacted

This page contains no comments

FOP to talk about the options. Then made an appointment to meet with Harold. Harold agreed to pay out the vacation time and was able to use the insurance. He was just going to approve his sick time, but received the vacation payout. Matt would have gone back and worked if necessary.

When Chief Klug was a Captain, he heard rumors, but his observations were that Chief Klug is very type A and wanted to control everything. Matt learned how he worked. The Chief was a boss. Matt thinks they should have gone outside of the department, but a lieutenant or captain told him that the evil you know is better than the evil you don't know referring to knowing what the Chief is like.

As for others, Captain Sundbakken who was in charge of training was terrible with the process. Officers would submit for things and Captain Sundbakken would pass it on and no one would ever hear back from him. Lieutenant Wegner had an issue with what he was saying or his leadership, but nothing came of it. The ineffective process could have always been that way, but when Matt became a supervisor, he came to notice it.

Matt left because he moved to Minnesota to a job with better benefits. He did not leave, because there was lots of drama at the Minot Police Department.

Erik Laudenschlager

Koelbel interviewed Erik Laudenschlager on October 23, 2024, at 11:00 a.m. CT. Erik was with the Police Department since November 2009. He was in Parking Control for about one year and then became a Patrol Officer, Senior Patrol, and Master Patrol. In June 2022, he left the department. He was also a K-9 handler and commander of the bomb squad when he resigned.

Erik does not recall ever looking at the Police Department Policies. They were not readily accessible. Erik was aware of the employee handbook. He was not aware of a grievance procedure, not at all. Erik grew up in the Minot Police Department. Erik's dad started at the same time as Chief Klug. He was a Sergeant. Erik knew Chief Klug for an extended period.

Progressing through his career Erik worked with him. Erik had a decent perception until around 2021-2022. There were no issues until he became the Chief. Some things were swept under the rug. A few incidents in which at the time he received little to no reprimand. Issues were documented as many people were aware of them.

Towards the end of his dad's career, his dad retired, and Klug became Chief, Erik was going through the process to make sergeant. The process is one takes a test and interview aggregated with years of service, training hours, and education. Then there is a second interview with the Chief and Command Staff. The process is to pick someone out of the top 3. Eric was on his third of fourth rotation of making the final three. Erik was told by other supervisors "You have K-9." There is an unwritten rule. Captain Steve Whitesell, retired, Captain and Acting Chief Dale Plessas, Lieutenant Scott Redding have told him that as a K-9 handler, you will not be promoted until your dog is ready to retire. He understood it. His dog had six years until it retired. He was told that he was good at your job and to keep doing what he was doing. Erik never had any citizen complaints and was not a problem employee.

Erik participated in three promotional processes. The last go around, one of the K-9 officers, a fresh K-9 handler, was selected for promotion when Erik's dog was set to retire at the end of the year. The new K-9 handler had less than six years, he had just gotten dog certified and had some issues with the use of force. It was Matt Pappenfus. Then shortly after being promoted, Matt moved away. He did not stay longer than a year.

Erik requested a meeting with Chief Klug. Erik told Chief Klug, that through all the processes, he specifically asked what he could do to improve, and he was told to "keep doing what you're doing." Chief Klug looked at him, smiled, and said "What are you going to do? Where are you going to go?" Erik resigned after he gave the occurrence some thought during his set of days off. If that is how the leadership treats you, he did not want to continue working there.

Chief Klug and Erik's dad did not get along at the end of dad's career. Erik spoke with Chief Olson at the time to let him know that he was not his dad. Erik said it felt vengeful and that he was being punished for his dad.

Erik did that math and with the 12 weeks of K-9 training and an additional three weeks, it was $280,000.00 in training walking out the door. There was no animosity until this last meeting. A total of 235 years of law enforcement experience were lost under Chief Klug. He single-handedly destroyed the Minot Police Department. It will take 10 years until they recover.

Some of the good people remaining are afraid that he will just return as the Chief and they will be persecuted, because of what Klug will assume they will have said.

Stephen Kenny

Koelbel interviewed Stephen Kenny on October 23, 2024, at 1:00 p.m. CT. He worked at the Police Department from July 12, 2004, until April 29, 2023. He was told he had to leave.

He is sure that he has access to the Police Department Policy Manual and the Employee Handbook. The one time he had a grievance, Chief Klug and the three captains never talked to him. He spoke to HR.

On November 17, 2022, Stephen left work at 2 a.m. and 9 a.m. had a bad case of vertigo, and had to go to ER. It was his second episode. His daughter took him to the hospital. He was there for six hours. He let the command staff know what happened and provided doctor's notes, pictures, etc. The doctors at first thought it was the crystals in his ears. He went back and was diagnosed that it was his compressed spine caused by his 20 years in the military. They suggested physical therapy. He informed Lieutenant Haug and Lieutenant Wegner. Stephen continued having episodes and in the beginning of April, they found a tumor in his ear. Sitting in the doctor's office Stephen received a text from HR that his employment would be terminated on April 29.

They had put him on FMLA leave – 12 weeks and extended seven weeks. In 19 years, he accumulated almost 1400 hours of sick leave and 300-something hours of vacation. He kept everyone aware of what he was going through. In the past, he had messed up his shoulder and was allowed to work. When he had a broken nose, he was forced to take five days off. He had a very good work ethic. He never wanted to be off work. This is due to his military training.

They forced him to retire. HR said that the Chief should have talked to him. When he went to talk to him, everyone was gone in the PD. He could never reach anyone. He told HR that no one was talking to him. He had a scheduled operation in May, and he asked Captain Dale Plessas for some light duty until the operation. Captain Plessas told him that he would have to put a letter to the Chief and ask for permission. Stephen has seen people get all kinds of light duty and no letter was needed. Four days later when he was setting up his tumor removal operation, he received a letter from HR saying that he was terminated. In June, he anticipated that he was going to be able to go back to work.

He had been a good employee for all these years. He had to fill out all the termination paperwork and it didn't matter if he wanted to or not. Later, he could only get a hold of Captain Sundbakken who kept saying he was all good, all good. Sundbakken said he accidentally deactivated his code to get into the building.

Another employee, Aaron Moss, who retired because he did not want to go back on the road received a big send-off. Stephen had to clear out his locker. The cops who were there did not help him, because they thought he had done something wrong. He wanted to retire this year in April. He stood on the sidewalk outside the Police Department at a complete loss as to what had happened.

Other observations, if Klug was fighting with his wife, he did not hear from anybody. Otherwise, Stephen and Klug trusted each other. Stephen is 10 years older than the Chief. Chief Klug was on an apology tour for something that happened years ago under Chief Balentine when Klug was dating his current wife. During a briefing, he was apologizing for it, because someone posted it online. Stephen's grandson was hired the day Stephen was terminated. The Chief pulled his grandson aside and told him about the incident that happened during Chief Balentine's time.

Lieutenant Wegner messed up a crime scene. He did not get a search warrant and Shawnee Crawl was convicted, but all the evidence and the body in the car were not allowed in. He murdered his roommate. It is a "good o boys" club in the command hall.

Stephen went back in April to HR to talk about an issue with taxes and he had still not heard from anyone.

Stephanie Lentz

Koelbel interviewed Stephanie Lentz on October 23, 2024, at 5:00 p.m. CT. She started in November 2013. She was a patrol officer for two to three years and became an investigator. She left the department on August 23, 2024.

Stephanie had access to the printed and electronic versions of the Police Department Policies and the Employee Handbook. She was never trained on the arbitration policy. Her understanding was that she had to go up the chain of command.

Initially, she had a pretty decent relationship with Chief Klug when he was captain back when she started. He promoted her to investigations. Things were going well until there was a complaint against her. He told her everything she did wrong, but would not hear her reasons.

While Klug was still Captain, one time Stephanie was off and intoxicated and was called out to a murder scene. She could not come in. She communicated with Klug and asked him if he needed her to come in. Stephanie got in trouble for lying.

As Chief, he was going to change how long you can stay in investigations. Her husband is a first responder as well. When she was pregnant, they decided that going back to patrol would be detrimental to her baby. She was five years in the investigations position so understood that under the new policy, she would have to go back to patrol. The move would be seen as a demotion. It didn't matter what she thought or how she felt about it, he did not care about them. She was not super excited about him being promoted to

Chief. She was in patrol for three to four years and in a specialty role, investigation, and drone task force, for five years.

The promotion process changed from testing to basically you had to work through scenarios. She was doing well, schooling, and college were also taken into account. No one could explain the scoring. She went from number one with the scenarios to number 11 on the promotions list for the sergeant's position. She stopped even applying. She was more so upset about the way she was treated at that meeting.

As far as training, she was trained in crisis negotiation teams and domestic violence. But the majority of training was out of state. She was regularly denied because of budget issues.

No one knew that Lt. McLeod went on administrative leave which ended up being six months. So, it devolved into rumors. There are lots of different annual reviews done by a sergeant who did not even know how to do the job. Stephanie complained, but nothing ever happened. This applies to a lot of them. There is a lack of communication with everyone. There is no follow-through. No one has your back. They were doing murder investigations with just two of them. There was a lack of competence among the subordinates. Some are great leaders in the department. The ones who were as capable as her were suppressed a little bit.

Jesse Hartman

Koelbel interviewed Jesse Hartman on October 24, 2024, at 3:00 p.m. CT. He started at the Police Department when he was 36 from the Army. He was a patrol officer in 2019. He left in March of 2022, three years.

He received the Police Department Policy Manual at training you receive a thumb drive and a monthly policy review. There was not an official grievance procedure. He followed the chain of command – Sergeant to Lieutenant to Captain and the Chief.

He was hired under Chief Olson. Then two years under Chief Klug. Said hello in passing but never went directly to the Chief. He followed the chain of command.

There was no specific incident. He was in the army for 20 years, but outside experience was not acknowledged by the command. Frustrations did not lie specifically on Klug, but the whole command staff. People were leaving and no one had a reason why. He is currently a supervisor at a different police department one that had retention problems. When he left, he asked if anyone could give him a reason to stay, he would have stayed, but no one could.

When Jesse was leaving in 2022, he was given an award he received that he earned back in November of 2021 from the North Dakota Post Board. There is never any acknowledgment of the officer's good deeds. Because of COVID no one was allowed to congregate in the hallways, etc. Sergeants kind of gave up. If he brought up an issue, a dispute with a fellow police officer, he was asked how he would take care of it. He felt it was the leadership's job to figure it out. Leadership did not care about the police officers. Many seasoned officers were leaving. No one was held accountable.

The command staff was supposed to be supportive, accountable, and transparent. The command staff's job is to support their officers. He is thankful for his time at Minot Police Department. When he left there was no exit interview with HR. Nothing that Chief Klug could have said that would have changed his mind.

Inside the department, they did not know how to speak to their people. Just because someone passed a test and was promoted it did not mean they were a leader. One thing he repeatedly heard was that "that's the way we have always done…."

When all that is left are young officers without life experience it does not work. The department was short-staffed. People could not take vacations and were overworked. Working 120 hours plus no support from the Department was too much.

One Sergeant Burns was old school, but he was learning a lot of stuff all at once from him.

He sold cars for a while and has now been a Sgt for almost a year. The call volume is a lot different.

Heather Summers

Koelbel interviewed Heather Summers on October 24, 2024, at 4:30 p.m. CT. She started on August 3, 2015. She was in a patrol officer position. In January 2018, she moved to an investigation role. In Fall 2019, she was promoted to Senior Patrol Officer. She left in July 2020, just shy of the five-year mark.

She had access to the Minot Police Department Policy Manual and the Employee Handbook consistently. A grievance procedure was not communicated. It was something she had to discover on her own and did not discover until 2020 on her way out the door.

The command staff were Chief Olson, Captain Klug, Captain Sundheim, and Captain Whitesell.

Her direct supervisors were Sergeant Wilk (known for having favorites and expressed in actions – brought up to Sergeant Burns and it was brushed away) and Sergeant Lackey (terminated).

It was considered taboo to go the route of HR. In the last four years, she never heard of the grievance process.

Started having specific issues with Captain Klug. She requested light duty for being pregnant with her now six-year-old. She felt burnt out on patrol. 2018 started feeling burned out and investigations were a way to reignite her passion for her job. Now she has to go to counseling to deal with all of the issues.

Lieutenant Wegner and Captain Klug told her that she was bringing undue hardship to the department by becoming pregnant. She was put on light duty with doctor's notes specifically, unpredictable subjects, and firearms. She had asked her doctor to be very explicit, because she knew that the department would find a gray area. Going through light duty she felt like less of a person. She was not allowed to do anything and was just as much of a burden as she felt she was. She felt like a waste of space. She could not look at any case files, unless they were specifically assigned to her. Wegner made a huge deal one day when she had to get an ultrasound. When she went on maternity leave, Wegner reiterated that she was a burden on the department.

She spoke to Jessica Sundheim and Jessica told her that things would get better once she had the baby. Jessica separated after Heather left.

In 2019, she returned from maternity leave early, because she felt so guilty. Had a difficult pregnancy. In February 2019, she was back to investigations. As soon as she comes back Wegner said to watch the little things, it is the little things that matter. She is very much we do this as a team. If she sees someone struggling to hold their load, then she will set down her load and help someone else. She helped Mikali Talbott log her photographs, and Wegner chastised her for it. Heather said, "I guess I am going to be written up today…" She was assigned domestic violence cases. She was not perfect. She owns up right away when a mistake is brought up. It went from a gradual decline to sprinting downhill.

A couple had a lot of contact with the Police Department. She wanted to talk to the people involved. She watched video footage with the female victim, which she was not supposed to do. She issued a warrant and reached out to the male party. She did not hear back for a long time. Finally, the male gets back to her and says watch the footage again, the warrant is garbage. Olson sat down with her and re-watched the video. He tells her he is glad she caught the issue. She went to the court and dismissed the warrant.

Ther[redacted] at the time was being abused in daycare by the wife of a Fire Captain. It took a while for it to become a criminal case. She thinks this is part of the "good ol boys" club. She brought up to Captain Klug that she would not be able to work with the Fire Department. Another baby suffered similar injuries and almost died. In November 2019, she asked to be sent back to patrol. In and out of Wegner's office and being chastised for something. Either in the report, style or used the radio wrong. Very nitpicky stuff that her direct supervisor advised her to go back to patrol. June 19 to November 19, she kept asking to go back on patrol. They said two opposite things: "I'm not sure this is a good fit." But when she asked if she could go back to patrol they would say "No you have to give it more time. It's a learning curve. We see this improvement."

Based on other interviews, the alleged abuse of the child in daycare did not occur in the City's jurisdiction.

Sundheim in November asked if she was ever given Garrity rights. She is known for being very good. She usually had three and four in her performance reviews. Some weird stuff was going on. There was to be an internal investigation into her conduct. They had a complaint from an individual about that bad warrant. She cried and in front of someone when she did not feel safe. She already felt like a black sheep. Two people, Det. Guerton and Lt. Wegner, were in and out of Captain Sundheim's office for the investigation.

She learned how to read lips, because she needed tubes in her ears and when she worked in a prison that skill determined whether she got out of there alive.

Justin re-watched the video that she watched with Chief Olson. Very distraught. He said, "We are here because a private citizen made a complaint that one of their officers is being discriminatory (or sexist)." She realized that she was not mentally fit and wanted to leave. Mikali Talbott suggested she leave for the day. Sergeant Goodman told her to take time and leave for the rest of the day.

Her husband, Ryan, is a deputy at the Sheriff's Department. He was shocked when she called so hysterical. They discussed and were going to request to be put back in patrol.

Annual evaluation with Wegner. All threes and fours. At the end of the email, he said we are asking that you go back to patrol or be terminated. Asked for the day shift. His final comments were that she is a good officer, but your judgment is questionable. She took the time to build relationships, get fire training, took the time to adapt to everything they asked her to do. She was sent back to patrol telling her that her judgment was questionable.

Husband told her she had to get out of there, but they could not afford it on his $30.00/hr.

She stayed in the Investigation Division until January 2020. Still did not feel safe with them. Not their fault really but it was perpetuated by the lack of mental health support. Chief Klug exacerbates it greatly. It does not get better from there.

Klug is then Chief. Olson sent an email that "it was a pleasure to work with her even during this hiccup that should have never happened." She failed handgun certification and overthought really badly. Months later, Lackey calls her back to the station and brings her to Klug's office. Never got along with Lackey, who became a Lieutenant.

Now we're realizing she has mental health problems. She was taken off the road, the gun removed and was supposed to work with Haug. Then she would go re-test. She passes the test, but is constantly called back to the station by the sergeants including Lackey. Lackey says they are watching body cam videos and tells Heather "You cannot talk to people like that (she said the people she was speaking to in the video said they were going to take her shotgun and blow her head off). You cannot share your lunch with a private citizen, because you don't know what they are allergic to."

Rookie Chris Robinson, Shane Adelman, Josh Lund, and Matt Pappenfus were her support system. Brought the concern of how deteriorated she was to Sergeant Noyes.

In May, stepdad passed away and was not allowed to go back to Michigan to visit. Once he passed away, she was told she could not go back to stay with her family. Not living up to the words, Chief Klug who had hired her specifically said that they take care of their own like family.

COVID was isolating. She could not converse with dispatch unnecessarily and could not go back to the station. It hit her badly. If this place doesn't care about me then I don't care about myself. Pat Blanchard said they took the person who she was and made her the worst version of herself.

Sergeant Jared Foley was going through similar things she was going through. She was in a dark place that she almost committed to the thought of driving her car into an oncoming train. It would take a while for someone to find her, and it would not be her husband.

She quit. She went down to the locker room. She said she would be in the briefing office. Went home early. Parked car on side of highway 52-mile marker across from grain silo waited to hear a train horn. Said she could roll her car in front of the train. Then she received a text from her husband. An hour had passed since she had been there. She showed back to shift. She felt very alone. She asked for help and no one told her where it was. They told her, she should go talk to the Chief.

She referred to the medication therapist that she has an appointment with today who works in the same office as the Chief's spouse. She does not particularly think that she respects patient confidentiality at that therapists office. When she (Chief's wife) was at the Department, (in-house social worker), she did not have a real stable track record. She is known for almost causing shootouts by agitating the perpetrators. Summers equates a conversation with her (Chief's wife) as having a conversation with a convicted killer. Ashley Healy is her medical professional. That two-year time period affected her so deeply that she had to go to counseling. Summers is working on how to take criticism.

What Jenna Bjork went through was far worse than what she went through. When she wrote her resignation letter, and was told by Chief Klug she was not to submit to HR. She gave the letter to Lisa and Lisa said this was the first time they ever received a complaint. She followed her down the stairs and heard papers being passed back and forth and the other lady said we have a problem.

Chief Klug destroyed close to 100 officers in three years.

Pat committed suicide. She was not invited to his funeral.

No one knew she was leaving. She received a bunch of texts to find out where she was.

When they announced that he was being sworn in. A male private citizen of the community in the news told them you are going to get what you deserve. She was mistaken about the report. She pulled up the article in which Chief Klug said they are getting what is coming to them. They all requested the guy from out of state to be Chief. And many of them would stay. Members of City Hall came down to ask.

Josh Lund was in his basement ready to eat one too. He was terminated for a policy violation. He was told to disengage from a pursuit, but did not have the opportunity to do so. Josh was getting ready to put spike strips. Matt Pappenfus got away with a lot, because Chief Klug liked him.

Noyes also got away with a lot too. Local defense attorneys attempted to Giglio him, because his testimony did not match up to the body camera. You cannot lie as an officer. And nothing came of it. Once before Klug was Chief and the other incident was as he was coming on as Chief.

She believes Kevin Corey was terminated after he was cleared regarding the use of force issues.

Subject: Re: Police Department Investigation Concern and Opportunity for Correction

[External Message]

Good evening Yvette,

Based upon the below email from Harold Stewart below, I have a few corrections to the summary of our conversation as detailed in the City of Minot Investigation.

1) The FOP Lodge identified doesn't exist. I'm not sure we discussed the actual name of the Lodge but we did describe the region it covers. The correct name is Souris Valley Regional Lodge #7. We are also often referred to less formally as NDFOP Lodge #7.

2) The meeting with Chief Klug regarding the radio failure included far more than the radio incident itself. I had two members approach me, when I was Lodge President, telling me they were both ready to resign from the department (Officers Shaide and Summerville). Both indicated a perceived lack of care from the chain of command following the radio incident where they both received minor injuries in making an arrest of a resistant suspect. For Shaide, this could be described as a "final straw" type conclusion, because he had been reporting to his supervision for three years of radio failure problems that were never adequately addressed. When both radios failed while the officers were arresting an actively resistant intoxicated suspect the only way they got the call for help out was when Summerville was able to use her cell phone to call 911. This method of communication was documented by dispatch at the time of the call. This was also a large part of the discussion with Chief Klug with Kenton Kossan and I following the incident, because Klug opined that there might not have been a radio failure due to the possibility of both officers losing fine motor skills under stress of the incident making it difficult to key their radio mic's. I explained that this possibility was absurd because Summerville was able to dial 911 on her cell phone to actually complete the communication. Radio testing done by the Motorola representative discovered the problem was defective mic's. The other topic of perception of not the Chief not caring is what led to him snapping at me when I explained the officers' feelings. Chief Klug seemed more concerned with convincing me that he cared, rather than addressing the lack of perception among the rank and file and further he was dismissive of the officers' complaint that nobody had reached out to them to check on them since it wasn't that serious of an incident (apparently completely missing the point that it was the culmination of a few years of unresolved equipment failure and the fear it may lead to far worse than bumps and bruises now that two officers WERE hurt). Subsequent chats his with supervision bolstered this belief with Shaide being informed that the incident wasn't so bad. The concern was that he was continuously dismissed and the radio problems not addressed, and pointing out it could have been much worse wasn't addressed. While it's true the grievance process wasn't utilized, this was addressed through the chain of command, and when my members came to me, I took the brunt of the displeasure that the Chief expressed (which was my duty as their representative, but certainly didn't endear me with the boss), but got the radio problem resolved. In this instances there was no need for a formal grievance. Both officers informed me that after the meeting, the Chief did approach them checking on them. And while neither of them were impressed with the tenor of the department wide email from Captain Sundheim addressing the steps taken to correct the equipment failure, that was written with a tone perceived as blaming officers or unnecessarily instructive of officers reiterating they have a duty to report equipment problems (after this had been done in this instance repeatedly). Both officers who were immediately ready to tender their resignations remained on the department (and are still there today) after Kenton and I addressed this with the Chief and I took the "slings and arrows" that they feared. To this day, I'm not convinced that anyone on the command staff recognizes that this was addressed this way (my involvement as FOP Lodge President) because there was a breakdown in communication from the top, that did nothing to dispel beliefs that their concerns would be timely addressed or their safety was at the forefront of Chief's mind. Chief Klug was seemingly more focused on expressing his irritation that I personally was addressing this with him. This was particularly evidenced by his snapping at me "Why would they come to YOU?" I had to explain that they came to me as their FOP representation, just like officers used to come to him back when he was president of the Police Employees Union (which predated the FOP in Minot).

3) The report says "Surprisingly, Moss indicated that the FOP did not know the City had a grievance process". I don't remember saying this because I am aware of this process's existence. If I did say it, I may have misunderstood the question or was answering it out of context, but I am aware the process is in policy.

4) The report indicates that previous Chiefs had quarterly meetings with the FOP. This is not true. First, during my tenure in various positions on the Lodge #7 executive board, Chief Jason Olson is the only other Chief to have served the Minot Police Department at the same time as the existence of the Lodge. Neither he nor Chief Klug held quarterly meetings with the FOP. While both Chiefs would agree to formal meetings if asked, Chief Olson was the only one of the two that actively sought out input from the Lodge both formally and informally. The biggest example of formal inclusion was Chief Olson insisting on FOP's participation in a several months long policy drafting series of meetings with his Captains regarding the drug testing policy (where he implemented each of our suggestions and heard our opinions on what he was thinking of adding, ultimately resulting in a written memorandum of support from the Lodge). The only time Chief Klug has asked the Lodge for support was for a financial donation to purchase several children's books called "When You are Brave" to be added to backpacks for donation to the 31:8 project (a nonprofit that works in the field of human trafficking education, advocacy, and awareness). These backpacks were then donated to this organization by Minot PD records employees who attended a conference where 31:8 was in attendance. (Law Enforcement Administrative Support - ND Conference, which was then held in Bowman, ND in October 2021).

5) The report attributes a comment to me saying during promotion interviews with the Chief, he asks "What can we do better?". While I don't wish to be semantical, the question he always asked was what HE could do better (as in what can I as the Chief do better). My response never waivered....downward communication.

Thank you for the opportunity to clarify the record.

Thank you for coming forward and participating in the Police Department Investigation. I am emailing you as a participant because I have been made aware many of you, after reading the final report, do not believe the report accurately reflects what you stated during the interview. Given I strongly believe this is a concern needing remedied, I have reached out to Yvette regarding the issue. She has responded that anyone who identifies issues with the summary of their interview can submit a response, and she will review the comments and consider a change to the report. If you have already provided me an email outlining your concerns it has already been forwarded to Yvette for her review. Yvette is copied on this email so you can provide them directly to her if you would like. I would recommend if you have proposed corrections, they be provided as soon as possible so an updated version of the report can be completed.

Ms. Bjork,

That is definitely your decision to make and will respect it if it is what you decide. To be clear, the legal matter between two members of the department is a separate legal action one took against the other. It pertains to statements made and provided in the documentation provided by Alderman Fuller and not from the work completed by Clark Hill. The City has taken no actions regarding the report to date. Regardless, if you choose not to participate further we will respect your decision.

Harold -

Thank you for getting back to me. Respectfully, I will no longer be participating in anything associated with Clark Hill due to the number of people that are now facing civil (possibly criminal?) litigation.

Respectfully,

Good morning,

First, I want to thank all of you for prioritizing the morale and leadership issues present in the Minot Police Department. I worked for MPD for about 6.5 years and planned on retiring with the City. I truly loved coming to work everyday and believed in the mission.

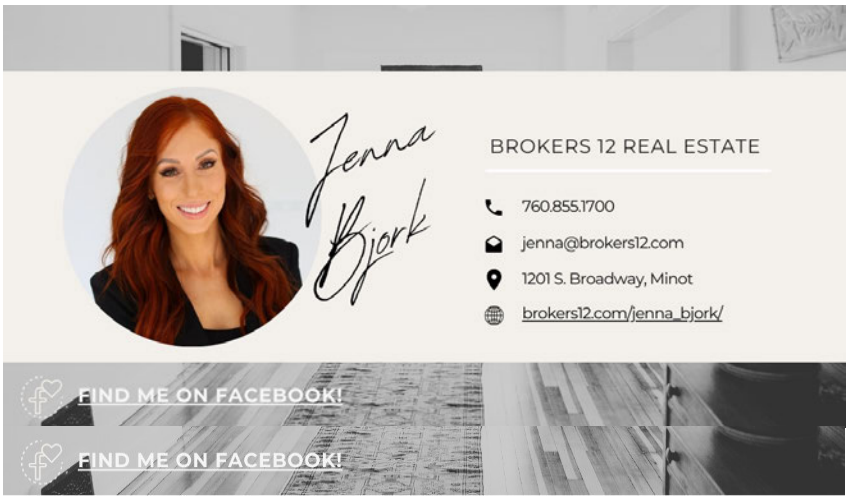
I was very encouraged to hear that The City was taking MPD feedback seriously and agreed to conduct an external interview. I participated in the interview process with Clark Hill and have read the report. I noticed several errors in my interview (incorrect dates, names, words used that I did not use, etc). I am happy to send a typed, corrected report of my statement if necessary.

In addition, I am genuinely shocked at the very obvious bias in this report. I believe this report reads more like a teenager's diary than a professional, impartial legal report completed by a competent attorney. The report contains several grammatical and spelling errors (some of the names mentioned in the report such as " Jenna Olson", "Gary Johnson", "Collin Hall", "Kristen Becker" are incorrect, for example) and appears to contain equal amounts of "facts" and the investigators personal opinions about individuals. I could not help but notice some of the colloquial and inflammatory language used (some of which appears to be directed at Rob Fuller?). In the first paragraph of the investigators report, she describes the scope of the investigation as "an external investigation regarding allegations of hostile work environment, inconsistent discipline, staff confidence in leadership, staff retention, staff morale and staff concerns of retaliation of Chief John Klug". It seems strange that the investigator spent any time at all inserting what appears to be personal opinion about Rob Fuller considering the scope of the investigation. Considering the amount of money The City spent on this investigation, I think we should all be concerned with the level of professionalism (or lack thereof) and accuracy with this report.

I have also attached my formal grievance regarding Lisa Jundt to this email as I feel my interview in this report does not fully explain the scope of what transpired between Ms. Jundt and I.

I understand The Council and Mr. Stewart have quite a bit on their plates these days and your diligence with this matter does not go unnoticed. For what it's worth, several other interviewees have reached out to me expressing great concerns with the accuracy of this report and plan to attend the next council meeting.

Respectfully,



Minot Police Department

Dear Sir,

I write you this letter to inform you of a formal grievance regarding my use of sick leave for a medical procedure and a decision made by Human Resources (HR). On February 15th, 2022, I received medical procedure. I advised Lieutenant Shawn Wegner and Sergeant Paul Burns sometime in late fall/early winter of 2021 and requested 15 work days off. I reviewed the Minot Police Department Policy regarding sick leave (policy attached) and provided my command staff with leave slips requesting 150 hours of sick leave to cover the 15 days. At no point prior to my surgery was I advised I would be unable to draw from my sick leave bank for this procedure.

I returned to work March 12th, 2022. Approximately one week after returning to work, Lt. Wegner advised me I needed to provide HR with a note from my surgeon's office stating I was cleared to return to work. I received this request towards the end of the last day of my tour and was leaving to go out of state early the next day. I returned to work approximately five days later and hand delivered a copy of the requested note to Lisa Jundt. Ms. Jundt reviewed the note and stated it would not suffice as she had been advised by my supervisor that the medical procedure I received was "elective". I told Ms. Jundt I had not told my supervisor that the procedure was "elective" and I was unsure of where that information came from. Ms. Jundt then advised me I would need to provide her with a note from my surgeon's office stating the procedure was "medically necessary". I asked Ms. Jundt to define "medically necessary" and she explained it as a procedure that is necessary to perform the duties of my job. I advised Ms. Jundt I had previously elected to have three knee surgeries while employed by the City of Minot and was never required to furnish a note stating I received a "medically necessary" procedure nor was I questioned about whether or not the procedure was "elective". These three knee surgeries were not necessary for me to perform the duties of job; however, I was advised by an orthopedic surgeon of possible negative long term health effects should I have elected to forego the knee procedures. I elected to have the procedures and was allowed to draw from sick leave bank for all three procedures. On average, I was unable to perform the duties of my job as a law enforcement officer for anywhere from six to nine months for each surgery and ultimately drained my sick leave bank after each surgery.

I also advised Ms. Jundt I was aware of at least two other police officers that had recently had medical procedures where they were permitted to use sick leave for their recovery periods and neither of them were questioned by anyone from HR about the "elective" nature of their procedures nor were they required to furnish a note from their surgeon's office stating the procedures performed were "medically necessary". In addition, a separate Minot Police Officer received the same medical procedure performed by the same surgeon and was advised by their supervisor at the time to draw from their sick leave bank. I asked Ms. Jundt about this discrepancy and was Ms. Jundt replied by saying she "would not argue" with me. I asked Ms. Jundt if she intended to investigate other city employees' past claims for sick leave for medical procedures to ensure the same standards and policies were being enforced and Ms. Jundt replied "no". I asked Ms. Jundt if, as the director of HR, she would not answer my questions or address my concerns, who could? Ms. Jundt directed me to the Minot Police Department Policy and my command staff.

I left Ms. Jundt's office and immediately went to speak with Lt. Wegner. Lt. Wegner advised me he may have miscommunicated to Ms. Jundt regarding the "elective" nature of my procedure and apologized to me for creating any confusion. Lt. Wegner and I then reviewed the Minot Police Department policy regarding sick leave and noticed the word "elective" is not mentioned anywhere in the policy nor does it state that I am required to furnish a note stating the procedure was "medically necessary". In subsection (d) of section 7 of the Minot Police Department sick leave policy, it states "Employees who have claims for sick leave may be required to furnish a doctor's certificate to return to work" which I had provided to Ms. Jundt (see attached). Lt. Wegner stated he would report the matter to Captain Justin Sundheim.

On 03/31/22, I was advised by Capt. Sundheim the decision had been made to draw the 150 hours of paid time off from my vacation bank rather than my sick leave bank. Should that occur, I would have approximately 18 hours of vacation time remaining. I have already submitted vacation leave slips and planned trips for the summer based off of the 168 hours of vacation time I currently have stored. These plans include a visit from my family who have not been able to visit in several years due to COVID and other hardships. I have worked for Minot Police Department for approximately six years and was recently promoted to Master Police Officer in December 2021. I am a Board Member for the Domestic Violence Crisis Center, a member of the Crime Scene Response Unit and was recently selected for the position of Field Training Officer. I was born and raised in San Diego, California where the rest of my family currently still resides. I have no family within a 1,000 mile radius of Minot, but have lived here since 2015 despite that. I have chosen to stay in Minot because I genuinely love this city and have developed a deep appreciation the law enforcement-friendly community which is most certainly not the case back home. I have established meaningful relationships through this department and this city with people I now consider family and who make it so I truly love coming to work every day. I believe I have established a reputation at the Police Department for being hardworking, honest and trustworthy. I take immense pride in my character and work ethic and have built a life here in Minot that I have no intentions of leaving.

The lack of consistency and obvious discrepancies in the enforcement of these policies is frustrating as a dedicated employee who has no history of abusing the sick leave policy. In addition, Ms. Jundt's admitted disparity in the enforcement of these policies is unfair as the main concern here stems from a self-confessed miscommunication by Lt. Wegner. I have been advised by multiple command staff now stating the Minot Police Department policy regarding sick leave is ambiguous and needs to be reconsidered which I am more than happy to assist with in whatever capacity I can just not at my expense as I do not believe I am in violation of the current policy. I appreciate your consideration with this matter.

Respectfully,

Jenna Bjork 423/7956

Officer Jenna Bjork 423/7956

When a holiday falls on a Saturday, the Friday preceding shall be considered the holiday. When a holiday falls on a Sunday, the Monday following shall be the holiday.

6 ANNUAL LEAVE

Annual leave with pay shall accrue to each full-time employee as follows: 1.17 days per month for one to five years of service (14 days annually); 1.42 days per month accrual five to ten years of service (17 days annually); 1.67 days per month accrual ten to fifteen years of service (20 days annually); 1.92 days per month accrual after fifteen years of service (23 days annually).

37.50 days (300 hours) maximum vacation accrual will be carried over the first payroll of each year. Employees will be allowed to exceed the 37.50 days (300 hours) maximum accrual during the course of the calendar year. However, all annual leave accrued beyond the 37.50 day (300 hour) maximum must be scheduled and used before the end of the calendar year. Any annual leave beyond the 37.50 day (300 hour) maximum, that has not been used prior to January 1st, annually, will be deleted from the employee's balance of accrued annual leave.

Use of annual leave must be approved in advance of the leave. However, supervisors will work with their employees to try to ensure their annual leave is scheduled, and so as not to lose any accrued annual leave.

Any employee leaving employment with the City of Minot for any reason should schedule and use any annual leave accrued beyond the 37.50 day (300 hour) maximum before leaving City employment, or the excess annual leave will be deleted from the employees' balance of accrued annual leave, the final date of employment.

Probationary employees will be allowed to use accrued vacation prior to completing their probationary period provided the requested leave has been approved in advance by the immediate Supervisor and Department Head, and does not interfere with normal business operations.

7. SICK LEAVE AND VIOLATION OF POLICY

(a) Sick leave is hereby defined to mean the absence of an employee because of illness, or bereavement of the employee only.

(b) All full-time employees will accrue sick leave at a rate of eight (8) hours for each full month of service. Sick leave for Non-Career and applicable part-time employees will be pro-rated in proportion to the hours worked. Sick leave used by Fire Department personnel will be charged as follows: 16 hours for each shift off. When sick leave is begun during on-duty time, the number of hours sick during that shift will be charged to a maximum of 16 hours.

(c) Sick leave which has been accrued and not used may be carried forward to the following calendar year. There is no maximum limit to the amount of sick leave which may be accrued by the employee.

(d) Requests for sick leave shall be subject to investigation when the Supervisor or Department Head deems necessary including an investigation before or after the grant of sick leave to determine if the grant is or was warranted. Employees who have claims for sick leave may be required to furnish a doctor's certificate to return to work

(e) Supervisors are responsible for administering these rules and regulations.

(f) Whenever employees are unable to report to work because of illness, they must contact their Supervisor or Department Head as soon as possible.

(g) A sick leave request form must be completed immediately upon return to work

(h) Medical and dental appointments will be authorized during work hours, as long as the employee notifies their supervisor in advance of the appointment within a reasonable amount of time, so as to ensure there is adequate personnel for work coverage. However, to the extent that is possible, employees are encouraged to set appointments during non-peak working time for their position.

(i) Sick leave in advance cannot be granted except in cases of serious disability or ailments, considered together with exigencies of the situation and then not for a period of more than thirty (30) days. Sick leave granted in advance shall be deducted from sick leave, which subsequently accrues when the employee returns to work. If an employee terminates employment with a deficit in accrued sick leave, such deficits shall be charged against accrued vacation time and if that is not sufficient, against wages due.

(j) Employees violating these sick leave rules and regulations will be subject to the following disciplinary actions:
1) First offense – Written warning and one (1) day off without pay. (1 day equals 8 hours unpaid).
2) Second Offense - One (1) week off without pay.
3) Third Offense - Dismissal.

(k) The rules and regulations set forth herein are subject to amendment by the Civil Service Commission.

8. EXPANDED SICK LEAVE POLICY

Accumulated sick leave not to exceed forty (40) hours per calendar year may be granted to an employee at the discretion of the Department Head, to tend to the needs of certain family members who are ill or to assist family members in obtaining medical services. For the purpose of this section, family members are defined as an employee's spouse, parent, child; or other relative who is financially or legally dependent upon the employee. Expanded sick leave hours are taken from the employee's sick leave accrual.

9. SICK LEAVE BANK POLICY

A Sick Leave Bank is available to all full-time City employees of permanent Civil Service status and does not include employees in probationary status. The purpose of this bank shall be for unexpected and catastrophic illness and/or injury of the employee.

Employees may decide to participate or discontinue participation in the Sick Leave Bank during open enrollment, with membership to begin on January 1st of each year. At the onset of participation, the employee must have a minimum of 88 hours of Sick Leave accrual and will be assessed a contribution of eight (8) hours to the Bank. As of January 1st of each year, if the Bank falls below 400 hours, each eligible participating employee will be assessed an additional eight (8) hours to continue membership.

Any member of the Bank having used their total accumulated sick leave may apply to the Sick Leave Bank Committee for consideration to draw upon the Bank. A medical doctor's certificate of illness shall accompany all applications. The SLB Committee shall supervise the use of the bank, review, accept or reject applications, maintain proper balance and provide reasonable assurance that the Bank is not abused and assure the established rules and regulations are followed. The donating employee retains no vested right in the hours donated or in being eligible to receive benefits as a result of their contribution.

10. BEREAVEMENT LEAVE

In the event of a death in the immediate family of an employee, a period of three (3) consecutive working days (24 working hours) shall be granted to attend the funeral of the deceased. A total of two (2) additional consecutive working days may be granted for travel if the funeral is of a distance greater than three hundred (300) miles from the city of Minot. For additional hours beyond those stated above, annual leave must be used.

Immediate family shall include the employee's mother, father, grandmother, grandfather, sister, brother, spouse, child, grandchild, mother-in-law, father-in-law, sister-in-law, brother-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, stepmother, stepfather, stepsister, stepbrother, or any other relative who is actually living in the same household of the employee.

Bereavement leave is assessed against an employee's available Sick Leave accrual and can only be assessed if there is available Sick Leave accrual for use. If the employee does not have available Sick Leave accrual, they are also able to use Vacation Leave accrual or take leave as unpaid.

11. MATERNITY LEAVE / PATERNITY LEAVE

Employees are eligible for maternity leave under the Sick Leave Policy. For purpose of this policy, delivered pregnancies or miscarriages, are viewed as medical reasons and as such, are treated as other medical reasons in terms of sick leave.

Pregnant employees are encouraged to report the existence of pregnancy as soon as possible. A pregnant employee who is medically disabled from the performance of her duties must be treated the same as any other employee similarly disabled insofar as sick leave benefits are concerned.

Expectant fathers are able to use the allowable forty (40) hours per calendar year of Expanded Sick Leave for the purpose of Paternity Leave as well as one (1) day of basic Sick Leave for the day of the child's delivery and (1) day to assist the child/mother in leaving the hospital.

12. PERSONAL DAY

Annually, on January 1st, each full-time employee - who has been an employee of the City for at least one year - shall be entitled to eight (8) hours of personal annual leave each calendar year, which leave, if not availed of by the employee before the end of the calendar year, shall expire and shall not be carried over to the succeeding year or otherwise compensated for. The employee shall take it at such time or times as the department head may designate.

13. MILITARY LEAVE

The City of Minot will approve military leave of absence requests from employees in order for employees to fulfill their military training and service obligations, provided the employee has military orders.

The City of Minot does not require the use of annual leave for military leave.

a) Up to 20 days per year for paid military leave will be granted to employees for the required annual camp and for other military training or duty when ordered by proper authority to active non-civilian employment. However, the City of Minot does not recognize 'orders' issued under 10 USC Section 672(d) (voluntary active duty) as proper orders for the purpose of granting paid military leave, instead an unpaid leave-of-absence will be granted, unless the employee requests to use annual leave in order to receive pay while on 672(d) military leave.

b) Any military leave caused by the full or partial mobilization of the Reserve and National Guard, or emergency state active duty, will be granted with pay for the first 30 days thereof, less any other paid military leave which may have been granted during the calendar year, pursuant to our military leave policy.

c) If leave is needed for weekend, daily, or hourly periods of drill for military training, employees will be given the option of time off without pay or scheduling said training to off-duty hours.

14. LONG-TERM DISABILITY

The City of Minot purchases a long-term disability policy for all employees. This policy is written through Unum Life Insurance Company. If you become disabled while insured under the policy, the policyholder will pay long term monthly disability benefits during your disability, but not beyond the maximum benefit period.

The policy provides for a monthly disability payment to the employee in the amount of 66.66% of monthly pay as determined on the day before the period of disability starts. This disability payment has a waiting (qualifying) period of 180 days before monthly payments begin. If the employee remains disabled, this payment will continue until the employee reaches retirement age. At that time, the employee will receive pension payments.

The long-term disability policy also includes survivor benefit provisions and rehabilitation plans for the employee and spouse.

Each employee is given a Group Benefits Certificate of Insurance policy upon enrollment. This document provides the full details and provisions of the policy and should be kept by all employees as their proof of coverage.

A full copy of the policy is also kept on file in the Human Resource Office for review upon request.

Belinda Gladback

On October 2, 2024, Heintzelman interviewed Belinda Gladback. Officer Gladback has been a patrol officer for 8-1/2 years. She has worked midnights for the past two years. When asked why she wanted to work midnights, she indicated that she wanted to stay away from everyone. She also indicated that gets migraine headaches, but has not gone to a doctor to request accommodation for working the night shift. (While this is true, I have seen a doctor in the past and was then seen by an eye doctor. Which is when I was prescribed glasses. I have not had any migraines since. I did not want to go get a doctor's note saying, Belinda needs more sleep and therefore should be removed from night shift. Because one would think that if someone was having an issue and they brought it up to an administrator, the problem would be taken of.) In the past, she has had issues working with certain Sergeants and Lieutenants, but when she spoke to her ex-husband about it, he did not agree with her perspective on how she was being treated. (This is not true, he just believed that I should not "ruffle feathers" as the saying goes.) She received a very bad evaluation from Sergeant Foley. In 2021, Sgt. Foley told her that she was "not where she should be if she wanted to be a Master Officer."(and implied that I was stupid several times) The Master Officer is a test that officers take after they've been with the Department for five years. She indicated that she made grammatical mistakes in her reports, but did not think that the mistakes changed the substance of the report so she did not understand why she was criticized for the mistakes. (While this is true, you're minimizing it. He made several corrections over and over again on the same reports, he continuously kicked things back to me to fix things that were not to his liking. He made me do reports and follow up that others did not have to do) She said that Sergeant Foley made working for him difficult. Amanda Somerville, Mat Cole, and she had to "dot their 'I's' and cross their 't's"" to stay out of trouble. She got into trouble with Officer Olson indicating that he did not like a comment she made about a child being "ugly" because a child had special needs. (This is not necessary in this report, you kept asking for more information, who said this, who said that, how do you know this. I was giving you back story as you kept saying you did not know any of these people; and I never called the child ugly.) She said that Sergeant Strandemo is much easier to work with, because he's supportive and talks to her. She believes there is a stigma around her that she is difficult to work with or that she makes things difficult for other people. (I don't remember saying this. While I was told there is a kind of stigma about me, no one has told me what that is.) She applied, but did not get an assignment to be an FTO or an SRO. She does not know who the other applicants for those positions were or whether they were more qualified for the position. She does not know whether they had any problems with the consistency of their police reports she thought her reports looked fine to her. (I know some of the applicants that applied, although I think we all have different strengths, some of the officers were chosen are not good with people and have a hard time teaching people. When I asked why I did not get the position of FTO, I was informed it was because of my inconsistency with my reports. However, after speaking with the FTO Sgt. at the time, I was informed that he did not see any problems with my reports and believed it had to with Lt. Wegner not liking me.) She complains that the lieutenants would "get on you" if you did anything that was outside of policy. She identified Lieutenant Wegner as one of those lieutenants. She believes that the smallest fraction would get you counseling. She recalls a situation where Lieutenant Wegner shoved the notebook in her vest and said "If you're going to carry a notebook, make sure it isn't seen." She indicated that at the time, she had a notebook in her vest, which was popping up the top of her vest pocket. Recently, she scratched the side of the squad car. She told Sergeant Strandemo who took photos and documented the damage. She compared that situation to Jessica Presley having an "at fault" car accident. She claimed that Presley totaled three cars and did not have to write a “dear Chief letter” about the accidents. Gladback thought the incident was over after she wrote the report, however Lieutenant Wegner called her into his office to talk about it. (There have been several officers who have scratched patrol vehicles and have not been talked to about it or had to write any letters. I did not just believe that, the incident was over, I was told that by my Sgt. When I was called into Wegner’s officer it was more than a week or two after the incident and it wasn’t much of a “conversation.”) Gladback indicated that anytime she or an officer gets talked to, the sergeants are supposed to know about it. Her sergeant told her that’s the way it’s supposed to be. However, Sgt. Strandemo told her that he thinks Lt. Wegner is harder on women. Sgt. Strandemo indicated that he saw it with Sergeant Taylor Jensen as well. She indicated there were several incidents with Jensen that he went to Captain Sundheim about with a suggestion on how to fix it. She started documenting things when a male officer engaged in the conduct and how they were treated. Gladback says that now marijuana is charged as an infraction, which is slightly more than a traffic ticket. You have to be charged with it three times before it becomes a B misdemeanor. Patrol Officers have the discretion whether to charge or not to charge marijuana. She states that Patrol Officer William DeNovio was there and that he made a decision not to charge someone with a marijuana violation and did not get talked to you about it. There is no indication that a Lieutenant knew about DeNovio’s decision not to charge the marijuana incident. (Because the Lt. does not examine certain officers as much as others) A couple of weeks ago, Gladback worked 10 hours and was late to training. While she was at training, she received three emails and a message on the patrol application about completing a report on an “M” case from Lt. Wegner. An “M” case is a statutory rape case, because of the age differences between the victim and the offender. The victim was a willing participant. The phone was dumped and the report was due. Gladback says that during a meeting, in which Strandemo was there, (Strandemo was not there, Strandemo had no idea of the incident until I told him about it) Wagner called her out in front of Caisee Sandusky, and Officer Andrade. Andrade said she was disrespectful. She’s one of the individuals who works midnights along with Strandemo, Scott Redding, and Whitesell. (Redding and Whitsell have been retired for years, he called me out in front of Sandusky and Andrade a week or two after the fact. Andrade believed I was being disrespectful because she’s in the military and you are not allowed to talk back to a commanding officer.) Gladback thought that Jensen went to Human Resources about Lieutenant Wegner. She indicated that Sundheim asked her if she was interested in the noon to 10:00 schedule. (Sundheim did not ask me if I wanted to work the schedule. I asked him if I could work it and the reason why was because I was getting migraines from the lack of sleep almost every night. Sundheim told all the officers about the new shift and stated that he was going to put the SRO’s on it if there was not enough interest. I know that several people applied to this shift and he put all the SRO’s on it.) She does not think she is interested. (I said I was interested in the hours.) Sgt. Noyes does not follow up on stuff and has covered up for Becker. By way of example, Becker had a ride-along and engaged in a pursuit. She has pepper-sprayed some people in a bar. Gladback does not know what discipline is, (I think you mean, I did not know what her discipline was as none of us every saw her disciplined.) because Jensen and Noyes are best friends. Gladback says that Chief Klug and Lt. Wegner have separate files on people, but she doesn’t know how she knows that information. (I said there a rumors of these files) She has not seen the files.

Some of these things may seem petty and in line with leadership or discipline, but it’s about the constant harassment and the fact that very few officers have to deal with this level of scrutiny. It seems more about the fact that I un-liked by a few individuals above me and the appearance that we are not treated in an equal manner, especially when us women go to higher ups and have been told, “it’s because you’re a woman.”
